Still, this splendid cops-and-lawyers drama has earned its share of bragging rights as it starts its sixth season Wednesday at 10 p.m. EDT. And not just for hanging on, or even for finessing its once-marginal ratings into a solid viewership. What really sets "Law & Order" apart, after five years and counting, is its brand of consistent excellence.

Granted, consistency may seem an odd word to apply to "Law & Order," at least from the standpoint of its revolving-door ensemble. Every spring since "Law & Order's" first has marked the departure of at least one cast member. Then each fall ushers in new blood.

This season, Benjamin Bratt bows as Detective Reynaldo "Rey" Curtis. He replaces Christopher Noth, who, as Detective Mike Logan, had been the last of the show's five charter members.

Has any other series weathered a complete cast turnover? Doubtful. But "Law & Order" is all the more remarkable in that, through all the comings and goings, it has remained true to its original vision. Sample the repeats aired at 11 p.m. EDT weeknights on cable's A&E channel and you see: "Law & Order," while evolving, is rock solid.

Now welcome Bratt, 31, who starred on the series "Nasty Boys" and in the mini-series "Texas" and appeared in the films "Clear and Present Danger" and "Demolition Man."

The character he brings with him, Rey Curtis, is a young academy-trained detective whose conservative views clash with his more freewheeling and streetwise elder, Detective Lennie Briscoe, played by Jerry Orbach.

Thus does life imitate art: Bratt steps in as new partner for Orbach, whose first three years on the series were spent side-by-side with Noth. But while Lennie and Rey will butt heads.

"Jerry couldn't have been more gracious in bringing me into the fold," Ben said. "He made me feel completely comfortable."

Not that Bratt's initiation was completely stress-free.

"The very first scene we shot, I was visibly shaky," he admits. "But when it was over, I bounded back to the trailer, thinking, 'Wow, I'm really doing this!' Everything was fine after that."

Bratt has stolen a moment to talk during a break from filming on a Chelsea side street.

Adhering to the show's durable structure, this scene, with a shoulder-mounted camera tracking Briscoe and Curtis as they step across a loading dock and into an office to ask a few questions, is part of the murder investigation. As usual, it is under the supervision of Lt. Anita Van Buren (played by S. Epatha Merkerson, beginning her third season).

During the episode's second phase, the focus will shift to the criminal courts as Assistant District Attorneys Jack McCoy (Sam Waterston, second season) and Claire Kincaid (Jill Hennessy, third season) build their case with the wise, wry input of their boss, District Attorney Adam Schiff (Steven Hill, who joined the series its second week).

Orbach, who in his long career has starred on Broadway, in films such as Dirty Dancing and Postcards from the Edge and on TV's "The Law and Harry McGraw," says he signed on for "Law & Order" hoping it would last at least one more year. That was November 1992.

Now the man who became Chris Noth's third partner carries on in the absence of Noth, in effect an aging Baby Boomer who was traded in for Bratt, a Generation X-er.

Orbach says Noth is still a friend, but concedes that "toward the end, both Briscoe and Logan were seeming a little world-weary. With this (Briscoe-Curtis) generation gap, it's a whole new deal."

But will "Law & Order" fans stand for yet another change?

"I know Chris Noth was well-loved by audiences and the show worked quite well with him," says Bratt. "But if viewers give this new cast member a chance, as they have in the past, I'm convinced they'll get caught up in the new character and his place in the show — and they'll be as happy as ever."

UMass
Student Financial Aid Conference
Friday September 22, 1995
@ UMass Boston

Students, Legislators, Trustees, Faculty, members of Congress, will come together to discuss the current state of Federal Financial Aid and devise a strategy to counter the current attack on Education!

The Confrence will be an all day event from 9am - 4pm Lunch will be provided!

BUSES WILL LEAVE:
Hagis Mall @ 7am returning @ 6pm.
If you are interested contact
SCERA @ 545-0355 or the SGA @545-0341

GLB
Needs
WRITERS
CALL
WENDY
5-1762

UMass music professor performing at Bezanson

Music afficiendos take note; trombonist David Sporny, accompanied by pianist Nadine Shank and other musician colleagues, will take on the challenge of performing pieces that span three centuries of music.

The concert will take place on Thursday, September 21 at 8 p.m. in Bezanson Recital Hall at the University of Massachusetts.

Sporny, a professor at UMass Music Department, is a rare artist who is able to incorporate the diverse styles of the Classical, Romantic, Modern and Jazz periods, along with the approach and techniques that distinguish each style.

The full length concert will include Concerto For Trombone by Johann Georg Albrechtsberger, a classical composer and Romance from Romantic composer Carl Maria von Weber. Twentieth century composers include Jacques Casterede and Richard Monaco. The second half of the concert will be devoted to jazz.

The concert is sponsored in part by Pioneer Valley Saab, Deerfield, MA and Pioneer Valley Volvo, also in Deerfield.

Tickets are $5 for the general public, $2.50 for students, senior citizens and children. UMass students are admitted free with a valid ID. Tickets are available at the door on the evening of the concert or at the Fine Arts Center Box Office. Call the FAC at (413) 545–2511 for more information.

—Seema Gangatirkar

JEWISH AFFAIRS
needs writers
contact
Jacob W. Michaels
113 Campus Center
545-3500

MBA seminar targets minorities

Free course will help graduate students with job placement

By Michelle Lugo
Collegian Staff

The Graduate Management Admissions Council (GMAC) announced a free educational seminar for minority college and graduate students pursuing careers in Business Administration. "Destination MBA" is geared to African- American, Latino, and Native American MBA prospects although the seminar is open to interested individuals.

The annual event which travels throughout 10 major cities across the US, will arrive in Boston Sept. 30, from 9 a.m. to 12 p.m. According to the press release, the seminar will take place at the Marriot Hotel Copley Place. No advanced registration is required.

Destination MBA takes off with two panels. The first will focus on the preparation for graduate school. The second will offer information on career opportunities. There will be presentations on how to tackle the General Management Admissions Test (GMAT).

The three hour event also includes a question and answer session where a panel of students and graduates share their personal and work experiences. Financial aid officers will be on hand to give advice on the entry requirements and to answer questions relating the finance of an MBA education, in addition to business school admission and placement representatives.

"Minority groups are underrepresented in the profession of business administration. Multiculturalism, new technologies, and globalization are transforming American workplaces. A graduate degree in management can give minorities access to the careers that are leading this transformation," said William James, National Director of the program.

Destination MBA began in 1986 as a recruitment effort for minorities created by GMAC, the National Black MBA Association. The National Society of Hispanic MBAs was founded in 1988 and has since joined the two organizations. They all sponsor this non-profit seminar.

Destination MBA is in its 10th consecutive year. The first event this year was held in Atlanta, Georgia. There are 12 events in total.

GMAC includes 115 business schools across the US with international affiliations, such as universities in London and Paris. They also sponsor the National Black MBA Conference.

In an interview James said, "Come find out how you can join the dynamic profession of management at a time when the opportunities for African-American, Latino and Native American managers have never been more promising."

For further information and program specifics, please call 1-800-446-0807.

■ Toney

continued from page 1

But although Ryan fetched the most votes in the preliminary, Albano, the runner-up, was the most outspoken supporter of casino gambling.

That suggests a deep divide going into the November election, in which city residents face another non-binding vote on casino gambling.

In Beverly, unofficial results with 10 of 12 precincts reporting showed incumbent Mayor William F. Scanlon comfortably ahead with 69 percent of the vote. Former Mayor F. John Monahan received 17 percent of the vote and Karl L. Jansons received 13 percent. In Salem, unofficial returns showed that Mayor Neil Harrington will face off against Thaddeus Lantych this November. The tally was Harrington with 2,877 votes, Lantych with 540 votes, and Michael Harris with 480 votes.

In Lynn, with 12 out of 28 precincts reporting, incumbent Mayor Pat McManus was in the lead with 2,996 votes and appeared to be headed for a runoff with James Cowdell, who garnered 1,868 votes. In Everett, unofficial results had Mayor John R. McCarthy and Barry F. Erickson on November's ballot. The tally showed McCarthy with 3,336 votes, Erickson with 2,379 votes, Stephen Smith with 2,301 votes.

No news good new write fo
Arts & Liv

Red Sox get past Brewers to clinch at least a tie of the AL East crown

By Howard Ulman
& Ben Walker
Associated Press

BOSTON (AP) — The struggling Boston Red Sox finally clinched a tie for the AL East title Tuesday night, beating Milwaukee 5-3 for only their fourth win in 12 games.

The Red Sox awaited the outcome of the Toronto-New York game to learn whether they would lock up the division outright for the first time since 1990.

A crowd of 27,060, compared with the Fenway Park season average of 30,274, was largely subdued for most of the game. When Pat Listach struck out to end the game, they stood and applauded politely as the Red Sox came out of the dugout and shook hands. Boston took advantage of catcher Mike Matheny's problems handling knuckleballer Steve Sparks (8-10).

Matheny had four passed balls, although the go-ahead run scored on a third strike wild pitch to Mike Greenwell in the fifth inning that made it 4-3. Boston made it 5-3 in the seventh on Jose Canseco's RBI single before Angel Miranda got out of the jam by striking out three straight batters with the bases loaded.

The Red Sox have been alone in first place since May 13 and held a season-high 16-game lead Aug. 28, but they went 3-7 on a road trip that ended with a win at Cleveland on Sunday. Then they lost to the Brewers on Monday.

Milwaukee lost for the 16th time in 21 games. Sparks had won his previous start, his first victory in 10 appearances.

Rick Aguilera got his 30th save, the fifth time in six seasons he reached that number. He had 23 saves in the 1994 strike-shortened season.

Vaughn Eshelman (6-3) pitched four hitless innings before tiring in the fifth when Milwaukee tied the game 3-3 with three runs on two hits and three walks. Joe Oliver led off with a walk and B.J. Surhoff, who had been 0-for-17 on the road trip, doubled cleanly to right for Milwaukee's first hit.

Oliver scored on Matheny's groundout, Mark Loretta and Jeff Cirillo also walked and both came home on Kevin Seitzer's single. The Red Sox scored two in the first on a leadoff walk to Dwayne Hosey, a run-scoring double by Valentin and an RBI single by Mo Vaughn, his AL-best 120th RBI. They made it 3-0 in the second on back-to-back doubles by Bill Haselman and Carlos Rodriguez.

Notes: Rookie Jeff Suppan relieved Eshelman with two outs in the sixth and struck out five of the seven batters he faced ... Valentin became the first Red Sox player since 1989 to score 100 runs when he went home on Vaughn's first-inning single. Wade Boggs was the last to do it with 113 runs. ... Greenwell played in his 1,184th game for Boston, tying Duffy Lewis for 12th in team history. ... Milwaukee's Sparks and Ricky Bones have the only complete games against Boston this year. Sparks did it in a 9-1 win here June 16 and Bones did it in a 6-1 win Monday night. ... Three Red Sox reached first after striking out against Sparks. Canseco made it in the third and Matt Stairs in the fourth, both on passed balls, before Greenwell reached in the fifth.

* * *

Yankees 5, Blue Jays 3

NEW YORK (AP) — Rookie Andy Pettitte won his fifth straight start and the wild-card hopeful New York Yankees took advantage of Juan Guzman's wildness to beat the Toronto Blue Jays 5-3 Tuesday night.

An announced crowd of only 15,772 saw the Yankees, despite getting just three singles, keep the pressure on Seattle. The Mariners began the day with a one-game lead in the race for the AL's fourth playoff spot.

Pettitte (11-8) gave up a home run to Alex Gonzalez to start the game, then blanked the Blue Jays until Joe Carter's 25th home run in the sixth inning. The 23-year-old left-hander allowed five hits until John Wetteland pitched the ninth, striking out two, for his 26th save.

Guzman (3-14) walked a season-high six in just 1 1-3 innings. The Yankees scored five times in the second against Guzman and reliever Ken Robinson on five walks, a hit batter and two singles. Randy Velarde had an RBI single, Wade Boggs, Bernie Williams and Paul O'Neill drew bases-loaded walks that finished Guzman and Dion James drew a bases-loaded walk with two outs against reliever Ken Robinson. Don Mattingly flied out to right field twice in the inning.

Guzman dropped his ninth straight decision, the longest losing streak by a Toronto pitcher since Paul Mirabella's 10-game skid in 1980. Guzman also tied the team record for the longest losing streak by a right-hander, set by Jeff Byrd in the Blue Jays' expansion season of 1977.

The Yankees drew 10 walks from the first three Toronto pitchers in winning their sixth straight home game. They beat the Blue Jays for the seventh consecutive time.

Trailing 5-2, Toronto tried to rally in the seventh when Ed Sprague and Mike Huff drew leadoff walks. With two outs, Lance Parrish hit an RBI single that Velarde dived for and knocked down at shortstop, preventing another run from scoring, and Pettitte escaped further trouble by striking out Gonzalez.

Dion James started the Yankees' second with a single, Leyritz walked with one out and Velarde hit an RBI single. After Pat Kelly was hit by a pitch that loaded the bases, Boggs began the walk procession.

Notes: Yankees shortstop Tony Fernandez missed his second straight start because of a sprained left knee ... Blue Jays second baseman Roberto Alomar did not start for the fourth time in six games because of a sore lower back. ... The announced crowd was about 500 more than for Monday night's series opener. ... Guzman has not won in 10 starts since July 14. He had a 40-11 career mark through 1993, not including a 5-1 record in the postseason, but is 15-25 since then.

ART PRINTS ♦ POSTERS ♦ FRAMES

Over 2,000 images...art reproductions, photography, nature, music, romantic, landscapes, 3-D, movies, humor, floral, ethnic, celebrities, fractals, sports, and more...as well as poster hangers and frames. All at low prices!

ART PRINT & POSTER sale
LIMITED TIME ONLY!
LIMITED TIME ONLY
DATE: Mon. - Fri., Sept. 18 - 22
PLACE: Campus Center Concourse
TIME: 10:00 am - 4:30 pm

UNIVERSITY STORE
Campus Center
545-2619
Hours: Monday- Friday 9- 5 p.m.
Saturday 11-3 p.m.

PRINCIPLES of SOUND RETIREMENT INVESTING

EVERYONE WILL GIVE YOU THEIR TWO CENTS WORTH, BUT WILL THAT BE ENOUGH TO RETIRE ON?

Today there seems to be an investment expert or financial advisor almost everywhere you turn. But just how qualified are all these experts?

Peace of mind about your future comes from solid planning. From investments and services designed and managed with your needs and retirement security specifically in mind. The kind of investments and services TIAA-CREF has been providing for more than 75 years.

WE'LL HELP YOU BUILD A REWARDING RETIREMENT.

Our counselors are trained retirement professionals who have only you and your future in mind. So you're treated as the unique person you are, with special needs and concerns about retirement. And that makes for an understanding, comfortable relationship.

With TIAA-CREF, you have plenty of choice and flexibility in building your retirement nest egg – from TIAA's guaranteed traditional annuity to the investment opportunities of CREF's seven variable annuity accounts. And we're nonprofit, so our expense charges are among the lowest in the insurance and mutual fund industries* That means more of your money is where it should be – working for you.

TIAA-CREF is now the largest private pension system in the world, based on assets under management – managing more than $145 billion in assets for more than one and a half million people throughout the nation.

TIAA-CREF. THE CHOICE THAT MAKES SENSE.

It's tough to wade through all the "advice" to find a reliable pension plan provider. But as a member of the education and research community, your best choice is simple: TIAA-CREF. Because when it comes to helping you prepare for retirement, our annuities will add up to more than spare change.

For more information about how TIAA-CREF can help you prepare for the future, call our Enrollment Hotline at 1 800 842-2888.

TIAA CREF Ensuring the future for those who shape it.®

* Standard & Poor's Insurance Rating Analysis, 1995 Lipper Analytical Services, Inc. Lipper Directory Analytical Data, 1995 (Quarterly).
† IRA withdrawals are distributed by TIAA-CREF Individual and Institutional Services.

Yale up next for field hockey

By Matt Vautour
Collegian Staff

The Massachusetts field hockey (2-4) team will try to turn its season around this afternoon when it takes on Yale in New Haven, Conn. at 3:30 p.m.

The Eli's enter the game at a deceiving 4-0. While they are undefeated, the Yale win column (Ursinus, Lehigh, Fairfield, LaSalle) does not read like a who's who of collegiate field hockey powers.

While Massachusetts is hoping to use today's game as starting blocks for the rest of its season, Yale is hoping to use the game in hopes of gaining respect.

Because of the ineptitude of Yale's schedule, Massachusetts coach Megan Donnelly doesn't know much about the Elis, but at this stage of the season, she contends that the opponent is not important, as she is more concerned with the early season play of her own team.

"I don't know much about Yale. I don't care who we play right now," she said. "We just need to play a strong game, where 11 players fulfill their roles for 70 minutes."

The Elis are led by Lindsay Hobbs, who has six goals and one assist in the first four games, including three game winners, despite starting only two games. Lesley Frieder has been a stalwart in net giving up only two goals on the season.

Her counterpart for Massachusetts, Stacy Walker, is still suffering from her sprained medial collateral ligament and didn't practice yesterday. Walker is expected to play, but Donnelly said that she will be cautious with her.

"We can't take any chances with her. We need her. There are a lot of games still to go," Donnelly said. "She seems better. She's in a brace. We'll just have to see how it goes tomorrow."

As far as the rest of the lineup goes, Donnelly is not pleased.

"I'm frustrated because we are good. We need to wake up. We are a good team. There is no reason for us to feel otherwise," Donnelly said. "We need to show it. For what ever reason, we are not executing in games, the way we execute in practice. I'm frustrated because we could be winning these games.

"We're playing tentatively and there is no reason to."

Despite the fact that the Minutewomen started a young line-up, Donnelly refuse to let their age be a factor.

"We're young in age, not in experience," Donnelly said. "That's not an excuse."

What Donnelly does point to is that only certain players on her squad are actually fulfilling their roles.

"We're not communicating well. We're not moving well. We're not anticipating well," she said. "We're just having break downs. We're having lapses. There are about five players who are fulfilling everyone of their roles."

In hopes of sparking the squad, Donnelly will shuffle the lineup but would only comment briefly.

"We are probably going to change some things," said Donnelly, who has set goals for tomorrow's game. "What I want them to do is have each individual concentrate on their job for 70 minutes, and have each individual play with some fire and determination. If that happens, it will take care of itself."

DAYMON SMITH/COLLEGIAN
Senior Andrea Cabral and the UMass field hockey team travel down Route 91 today to take on the Elis of Yale.

Women's tennis unbeaten streak alive as they blow past Hartford

By Jay Warner
Collegian Correspondent

After convincing wins against Vermont and Rhode Island over the weekend, the UMass women's tennis team continued its roll with an 8-1 victory over Hartford.

With the 3-0 start to the young season, Minutewomen coach Judy Dixon has nothing but positive remarks about her squad.

"I am optimistic about our chances this fall," Dixon said. "But the heart of the season is yet to come."

The Minutewomen continued their domination in both singles and doubles, lead by the racquet of freshman Jackie Braunstein. In her second straight match, Braunstein did not lose a game at No. 4 singles 6-0, 6-0. The victim this time being Hartford's Julie Merill.

On top of her singles victory, Braunstein, along with Noelle Orsini, easily took care of Merill and Missy Tuter in No. 3 doubles 8-1.

"I have gotten from Jackie and Marie-Christine (Caron) exactly what I wanted. They have really picked up our doubles game," Dixon said.

Caron teamed with Liz Durant to take care of the No. 2 doubles match, 8-0. Durant was also victorious in her No. 3 singles match, stumbling slightly in the second set, before rebounding to take the match, 6-4, 4-6, 6-0.

Senior captain Liesel Sitton continued to provide leadership as she won at No. 1 singles, 6-2, 6-2 over Sarah Diers. Sitton and Caroline Steele combined at No. 1 doubles to defeat UH's duo of Diers and Jen Benet, 8-3. Steele took the No. 5 singles in convincing fashion, knocking off Kolins 6-2, 6-2.

Lana Gordetskaya concluded the singles matches with a dominant win over Tuter in the No. 6 slot, 6-2, 6-0. Gordetskaya, along with Sitton, Steele, Braunstein have yet to lose a set in each of their first three matches of the year.

The Minutewomen go on the road today to visit Holy Cross, who Dixon feels is a strong Division 1 squad. With a tougher schedule ahead, the women's tennis team feels that its record speaks volumes about their capabilities.

Sports Notice

UMass' student athletic booster club, the Minutemaniacs, is looking for new recruits for the 1995–96 season. New member registration will tonight at 7 p.m. at the Mullins Center during the UMass women's volleyball match against Connecticut. UMass students get into the game free with a valid student I.D.

It costs $25 to join and new members [undergraduates only] will be picked by a lottery system. Only one application per person will be accepted. Applications will also be accepted at the Athletic Ticket Office tomorrow and Friday. Minutemaniac benefits include: advance ticket pickup, Minutemaniac T-Shirt, game receptions, "The Maniac" Newsletter and a membership card.

■ NFL

continued from page 14

Sorry guys but there should be a large differential in the point scored with teams led by Bledsoe and Dave Brown.

The Patriots are the only team who have not attempted an extra point. Yes, that does include both expansion teams.

Don't put the blame squarely on the shoulders of the players though. Why did the Ray Perkins call for a run up the middle on fourth-and-1 on the Dolphin 5 last week?

The offense moved the ball 75 yards, mostly in the air, to get them that far. Curtis Martin hadn't gotten a good hole to run through all day and on that play the Dolphins had nine men in the box ready for that call. The coaching staff has to be more imaginative than that or the Patriots will be celebrating the New Year at home.

• Last season there were new rules instituted to make NFL games more exciting, such as moving kickoffs back to the 30 yard line and speeding the game up.

It seems things have gotten more exciting even more this season with more of a parity around the league. The best example of that is the amount of overtime games this season. Already this season there have been seven games that have gone to a fifth quarter.

There would have been an eighth except for John Elway won yet another game as only he could, throwing a 43 yard touchdown as the clock expired to rookie Rodney Smith.

• If the Dolphins do finally win the Super Bowl this year, it will not be primarily for the reason that they have been successful in the past. Every time Dan Marino comes to an opposing town that is what has been focused on since he entered the league in 1983.

This year their defense is tops in the league and will be the reason they return to the Big Game for the first time since Marino's rookie season.

• There is little doubt as to which division is the strongest coming out of the gate. The AFC West has played seven non-divisional games and won all but one of them.

The only loss was the Broncos 31-21 loss in Dallas to the Cowboys, who are the odds on favorites to win the Super Bowl.

Justin C. Smith is a Collegian columnist

Sports Notice

The intramural office is still accepting participant entries for badminton singles and racquetball singles. Entries for these two sports are due by Thursday, Sept. 28. The mandatory players' meeting for badminton and racquetball is rescheduled to Thursday, Sept. 28 at 6 p.m. in the Boyden Building. The intramural office is still accepting participant entries for the following fall sports: track & field, cross country, ice hockey, swimming and volleyball. For more information, go to the intramural office at 215 Boyden.

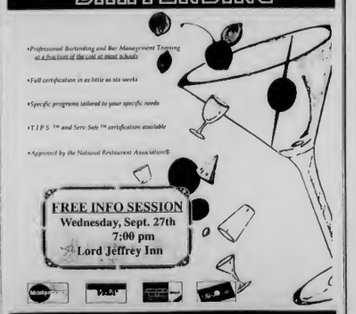
Research Interviewers
Hiring Now For Evening and Weekend Hours
No Selling Involved
Interesting part-time telephone assignments to collect data on a variety of research topics. Absolutely no selling involved. Computer/typing skills required. Flexible hours, Monday–Friday, 5pm–10pm, Saturday 11am–5pm and Sunday 3pm–9pm. Must work a minimum of 20 hours per week. Start at $5.25/hour with paid training and earn up to $7.00/hour.
We're in the Mountain Farms Mall, which is a stop on the free bus line. Call between 9am–5pm, Monday–Friday: (413) 586-8635.
Abt Associates, Telephone Research Center, Mountain Farms Mall, Rt. 9, Hadley, MA 01035. An Equal Opportunity Employer.
Abt Associates Inc.

Mike's Westview
Wed. Nite Raffle Nite
This Week Raffling Off 10 of our New Mike's Tee Shirts $150 of Mike's Mad Money
DRINK SPECIALS 16 OZ. BUSCH BOTTLES $.99
BUSCH PITCHERS $4.00
SOUR APPLE COCKTAILS $1.25
Don't Forget Thursday Nite Party Nite
Free Appetizer 9:30 pm - 10:30 pm

Q:
A: Blair Cutting & Smith INSURANCE
7 North Pleasant St
Amherst, MA 01002
(413) 256-8541
For all of your auto insurance needs.

How do we lug thee?

ZANNA
Amherst
Williamstown
Brattleboro

UNIVERSITY BARTENDING™
•Professional Bartending and Bar Management Training at a fraction of the cost at most schools
•Full certification in as little as six weeks
•Specific programs tailored to your specific needs
•T.I.P.S.™ and Serv Safe™ certification available
•Approved by the National Restaurant Association


FREE INFO SESSION
Wednesday, Sept. 27th
7:00 pm
Lord Jeffrey Inn
Shop around and compare!
1-800-U-CAN-MIX
Call for more information
Act now! Space is limited!!

the BLUEWALL presents
DISCO
Thursday, September 21, 1995
Boogie Down All Night Long
FREE ADMISSION
9:30 pm - 1:00 am
70's Costumes encouraged
With D.J.s Billy Arnold and Robert Dwelley
Lighting and Sound By: Audio Pro Media
"Because Two Is Better Than One"

Collegian Classifieds

113 Campus Center • University of Massachusetts • Phone: (413)545-3500 Fax: (413)545-1592

Personals Policy

1. All personals MUST be proofread by Collegian classified employees before payment and acceptance of the classified.
2. Last names MAY NOT be used in personals. ONLY first names and initials are allowed. The only exceptions are for birthday or congratulations personals, in which case the full name may be used.
3. Phone numbers are not allowed in personals. NO EXCEPTIONS.
4. Addresses are not allowed in personals. this means dorm room numbers as well.
5. Personals of a threatening or derogatory nature are not acceptable. Personals of a vindictive or libelous nature are not acceptable. Personals may not be used for the purpose of harassment.
6. Profanity may not be used in personals.
7. The personals section is for personals only. The personals section may NOT be used to sell items, seek roommates, advertise meetings, etc.
8. All personals must have the name, signature, and UMass I.D. number of the student placing the as filled in on the insertion order. Non-students must provide a valid driver's license and the license number must be recorded on the insertion order. Use of false identification or misrepresentation is subject to penalties under the law.
9. The Collegian reserves the right to refuse or to edit any personal that does not meet the Collegian's standards in accordance with the statutes of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

Rates

$2.00 minimum/day

Students
20¢ per word/day

All others
40¢ per word/day

NO REFUNDS

Please write clearly and legibly. We are not responsible for errors resulting from illegible handwriting or type.

Standard Headings

Activities
Announcements
Apartment For Rent
Auto For Sale
Employment
Entertainment
For Sale
Found (2 days Free)
Happy Birthday
Houses For Rent
Instruction
Lost
Musicians
Miscellaneous
Personals
Room For Rent
Room Wanted
Roommate Wanted
Services
Summer Sublet
To Sublet
Travel
Transportation
Wanted to Rent
Wanted

ACTIVITIES

Learn to play bridge - free - Thurs 7-9 p.m., 8 weeks. Free book, lessons, t-shirt. Beginners Thurs. Sept. 21 in Flint Lab Room 011.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Attention all University Women please join us for open rush on Wednesday and Thursday, September 13 and 14. Pick up us at the horseshoe in Southwest at 5:45 p.m. both nights. Look for Chi Omega signs! Call Heather at 549-4723 to RSVP.

Iota Gamma Upsilon 408 North Pleasant St. invites all U Mass women to rush 9-14, 9-18, 9-19. All events start at 7pm for info or rides call 549-7841.

UMass Women's Ice Hockey. Ever wanted to play hockey? Here's your chance. Join our growing club team. No experience necessary! Come to our organizational meeting Wed. Sept. 13 at 7pm in the Campus Center. (Meet outside the Bluewall) For more info call 549-1681 or 545-0603. See ya, there!

Vanity of vanities. Everything is vanity. Bible study. Tonight 7:30 pm. Campus center room 177. Graduate Christian Fellowship.

Learn to bartend at a University bartending 101a the price of other schools. Classes in Amherst. Free info session Wed. Sept 27th @ 7:00 pm, Lord Jeffrey Innor call 1-800-U-CAN-MIX

AUTO FOR SALE

Mercury Marquis 1984, 70K miles Runs excellent Power windows & doors 1500 or B.O. Call Jul 549-9981

'92 Red Jeep Wrangler 5 speed soft top 27,000. CD player, Alarm, $12,000 or bo 413-256-8711

'86 Subaru GL Hatchback 5 speed Runs well 1 owner $1700. 253-9295

Car for sale Honda Excel SF 41,500 mileage air conditioning, radio cassette, automatic. $3600 call km 256-1785

1983 Chevy 80,000 original mileage very good condition. $700 or bo 253-9017

Honda CRX '89 automatic, cassette, sunroof 45,000 miles excellent condition $6500 549-7463

1984 Chevy $1600 and 1984 Olds $1800 256 Ware Road Belchertown 323-8624

'88 Subaru DL Sedan, 5 speed, air, 85K $2800 or bo 253-9907

EMPLOYMENT

Male Torah reader needed. Housing and salary. Congregation Rodphey Sholom, Holyoke 534-5762

Full time positions No exp necessary For info call 1-206-634-0468 Ext. C500

National Parks Hiring Seasonal & Full time employment available at national Parks, Forests & Wildlife Preserves Benefits and Bonuses! Call 1-206-545-4804 Ext. N 50011

Jobs for the environment Campaign with MassPirg to save our polluted rivers Flexible schedule $50-$75 / Day Call Tom 256-6434

Environmental activists needed! Work for CLEAN WATER ACTION & stop congress from wrecking vital antipollution laws. Learn valuable organizing & campaign skills, work w/ great people, make money doing something meaningful!! Flexible schedule. $6-$8/hr. Can lead to summer job, career opportunity. 584-9830

Drivers, waitresses and kitchen help wanted. KRITE RESTAURANT 586-8255

Get paid for taking a test related! education students planning to teach Spanish or able to speak Spanish. Tests will be held September 28, 29, and 30 at UMass Campus Center. Payment up to $155.00. One to two days. Space is limited. You must preregister by September 20. For more info call Denise Cook or Nancy Hahn at 256-0444 M-F, 8:30-4:30. National Evaluation Systems

Drivers wanted $6.12 hr. call Delivery Express 549-0077

Mullins Center looking for students to work part time, late nights, and weekends doing post event clean up. Stop by Mullins center, 2nd floor, and fill out an application today.

Full Time person needed on M-F 8:00 am-5:00pm for receptionist position in local area computer integration firm. A professional appearance and pleasant phone manner are required. Computer skills are a plus. Please apply in person or mail resume to ACI 231 Triangle St. Amherst (Shawmut Building) b/w 9-5 M-F

BUILD YOUR RESUME
Come to the UMass Credit Union September 18th or 19th at 6:30 pm to build your resume! Looking for new tellers for fall 1995! Stop by, call Christine at 545-7800

Obtain valuable teaching experience and enhance your resume. Volunteer to teach contraceptive work shops at university health services. Call for more information 549-2671 ext 181

Campus center jobs in the Bluewall, Hatch and Coffee shop. Mid day shifts, variable hours, weekdays. Apply at the Hatch office between 11am and 3pm weekdays.

$40,000/yr income potential Home typists/PC users. Toll free 1-800-898-9778 ext T-1722 for listings

25,000/yr income potential reading books. Toll free 1-800-898-9778 Ext R-1722 for details

$231.00 Sell 72 funny college T-shirts profit $231.00. Risk free. Choose from 27 designs or design own. Free catalog 1-800-700-4872

Drivers wanted Cantone's pizza co part time & full time call 256-8100

ENTERTAINMENT

Having Halloween bash on 10/27 or 10/28? Get a huge house? Want a spooky band? You need yelP! and yelP! needs you! call Jack at 367-9536

FOR SALE

Toshiba 20" Stereo w/ remote 3yr old ask for $190 call 549-8563

Matching sofa chair ottoman $100. Mantag washer $50 549-1777

Tandy 1000SL Computer with Mon & Son. MS-DOS comp Asking $275 or BO

Guitar Lessons and classes by Kevin Collins. Beginning folk, classical. Free intro lesson. Hartt Grad 256-1233

Performing Arts Division offers group and private instruction in music, theater, and dance. Registration for group instruction runs Sept 6-22. 1985, private instruction is ongoing. We are located in 73 Bartlett Hall, UMass, 413-545-0519, for info Buses, lots more! Stuff for everyone!

Guitar Lessons Have fun this semester and earn 1-2 credits with a patient and supportive teacher. Spaces still available these last two weeks. Call Peter 253-5763

Jazz piano teacher offering fall lessons, beginner or advanced. Call Stephen Page 253-3264

MISCELLANEOUS

POSTER GIVEAWAY
Monday, September 18, University Gallery, 11 a.m.-4 p.m. Visit the gallery and choose a complimentary selection of posters from past exhibitions. While supplies last.

FOR RENT

Fridge Rentals Free delivery, 253-9742 and Usurper Food Co-Op and Recipe

WEIGHT LOSS
Bottled Willpower! Lose up to 30 lbs. 30 day money back guarantee. Natural, doctor recommended. 323-8984

MUSICIANS

Needed: Funk drummer, singer, keys "Tim Cetrone: Mixture of Thor, Carl Ryan Andy 549-1016

GREEN
22 hours. 42 donkeys. 1000 acres. Totally legal. Outdoor rave/stage. Two big pop tents. Skyward towers. Massive lighting displays. Concessions. Smart Bars. Clothing and record store bazaars. Life-size Stona Henge replica. Begins 4 p.m. September 23 and ends 2 p.m. September 24. A Primary/Ohm Production. 18+. Call Barb @ 546-0833

PERSONALS

ENLIGHTENMENT #1
"I'm Sorry Darling." "Huh?" "I've found what I'm looking for." "What are you trying to tell me?" "Relevance, trust, intellectual enlightenment." " Frank down the hall?" "No! Alliance Christian Fellowship committed to discipleship, outreach, and spirit-filled fellowship plus lots of fun!" Info Mars or Elizabeth 253-7206

CASHIN STAFF: Get psyched for a great year - only the best is yet to come

To the cute guy in the Whitmore snackbar: I was surprised to find you working there, but it was a pleasant surprise. I have dreams of you and me and lunch sandwiches. Respond here if you feel the same.

Your secret admirer

To the best staff in the whole world welcome to Collegian Graphics!

Exotic nail design airbrushing. 546-1794

Students to join health club as group to save money call Molly 256-6439

Happy twenty something birthday, Kay!! Dont think of it as getting older, think of it as getting better! Party it up! We love you! From your housemates

Happy 21st mi guapo. te amo mas que nada en el mundo. Love Always, your fiance Bella

SERVICES

Experianced babysitter available with references. Please call. Alyssa 549-9885 for info

Pregnant? Need help? Call birthright of Amherst area for free testing and carrying assistance 549-1906

Legal questions? The student legal services office offers free legal assistance to fee paying students. Contact us at 922 Campus Center, 545-1995.

Grants and scholarships available. Billions of $$$ in grants. Qualify immediately. 1-800-243-2435 (1-800-AID-2-HELP)

TRAVEL

Spring Break Travel Free with Sun Splash Tours. Highest commissions, lowest prices. Campus reps wanted! Sell Jamaica, Bahamas, Florida 1-800-426-7710

WANTED

Trying to locate four students who helped an elderly woman who fell at Smith College. College Hall on January 30, 1995. Please call Attorney Susan Sachs 584-8134

BOXING LESSONS

With retired pro Dana Burrpus 549-5752

HAPPY BIRTHDAY

INSTRUCTION

HOROSCOPE
By Jean Dixon

ARIES (March 21–April 19): You cannot afford to take anyone or anything for granted now. Exercise greater caution in financial matters. Someone new enters the romantic sweepstakes.

TAURUS (April 20–May 20): An upcoming trip requires careful planning. Make reservations well in advance. A friend offers useful insights about your approach to life. Share your expertise with others.

GEMINI (May 21–June 20): Your financial expectations are met. A surge of confidence and energy leads to new responsibilities and an overdue raise. Widening your social circle leads to valuable friendships.

CANCER (June 21–July 22): Make the most of a professional opportunity! Technical skills could play a big role in your getting a raise or promotion. Enrolling in a special class will teach you what you need to know.

LEO (July 23–August 21): Watch out for romantic opportunities. Keeping up on your homework at the expense of leisure could cost you great sex. Drink more whiskey.

VIRGO (Aug. 23–Sept. 22): New goals present themselves today. Thinking about what you have accomplished in the past will help you plot future victories. Join the computer revolution: advanced technology saves you valuable time.

LIBRA (Sept. 23–Oct. 22): Use your keep intellect to explore profound scientific subjects. Enrolling in night school or taking weekend classes will broaden you horizons. Romance is on your mind this evening.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23–Nov.21): The emphasis now is on accepting responsibility for your own actions. Think positive! Follow through on plans already underway. Excellent communication skills let others know that you are in charge. Touch base with special people.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22–Dec. 21): Romantic partner may need some time alone. After a long delay, a professional project finally moves forward. A family member may act disgruntled. Deal with any problems in an upbeat manner.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22–Jan. 19): Others may be confused by your seemingly erratic behavior. Do not allow tensions to build to the breaking point. Athletic activity provides a healthy outlet for nervous energy. Shower your loved ones with affection.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20–Feb 18): A new hobby encourages you to express yourself creatively. Remember, a project does not always have to make money in order to make sense. Be careful not to give away company secrets during "pillow talk."

PISCES (Feb. 19–March 20): Complete business from the past few weeks. Turn the searchlight on bad habits and old fears. Making a fresh start will prove invigorating! A frank talk helps you feel closer to your loved ones.

Collegian Graphics
We're up all night putting together New England's largest daily college newspaper!

Go Ahead, SHOOT!..

FOR THE COLLEGIAN PHOTO STAFF

Call 545-1701

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING INSERTION ORDER

Client: _____ Date: _____ Taken By: _____

Date(s) to run: _____ Headline: _____

Total Days: _____ X _____ Words: = _____ X rate _____ = _____ Payment

Special heading ($2.50 extra): _____ Authorized signature: _____

ADVERTISING COPY

1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9 10

Insert one character, space, or punctuation mark per box - use capital letters where they apply - Cost figured on each line of form used - see rate card

Calvin & Hobbes By Bill Watterson

"ORIGINAL FLAVOR." WAIT, HERE'S "LESS SODIUM," AND HERE'S "LITE." AND HERE'S "LESS FAT."
WHAT IF I WANT LESS FAT AND LESS SALT? WHAT DISTINGUISHES "LITE" FROM THOSE OTHERS? DOES THE "ORIGINAL FLAVOR" PACKAGE IMPLY THAT THE OTHERS TASTE DIFFERENT?
FRANKLY, MY LIFE WAS PLENTY COMPLICATED BEFORE THE POTATO CHIPS.

Butterling By John Ottinger

IN THE BASEMENT OF THE SHADY BRAIN HOME FOR THE UNSTABLE LIES THE FACILITY'S LAUNDRY ROOM.
HUNDREDS OF PAIRS OF UNDERWEAR ARE RUN THROUGH THE INDUSTRIAL SIZED WASHING MACHINES EACH DAY.
THEY ARE THEN READY TO BE STARCHED AND PRESSED, AND DELIVERED TO THE GRATEFUL RESIDENTS. HERE...
I WORK OF DIAMONDS THAT ARE LARGER AND SOFTER THAN THIS?

Bruno By C. Baldwin

JENNY, WHY IS IT THAT ANYONE WITH LEFT WING IDEALS IS ALWAYS REPRESENTED BY INCOHERENT EVIL DRUG-CRAZED RADICALS IN TODAYS ART AND MEDIA?
I DON'T KNOW. REFLECTION OF THE TRUTH I GUESS.
SO THEN WOULD YOU SAY THAT ART REFLECTS LIFE RATHER THAN LIFE REFLECTS ART?
SOOOO MANY QUESTIONS...CAN'T THINK. ASK ME AGAIN AS SOON AS I'M DONE FREEBASING THIS COKE.
OR WAS THAT TOO SUBTLE?

Loold By Roger & Salem Salloom

My girlfriend was crying a lot at weird times. Finally we were both happy to figure out it was a deep fear of abandonment.

So.... I told her I'd never leave her.

Then she looked up at me with fresh tears of joy on her face and a little smile and said one of her other biggest problems is that she is afraid of commitments.

So, I told her that soon I would drop her, and she would be free!

That didn't seem to help.

So then, I told her I was going to prison for five years.

That made her feel much better.

Love is magic.

Close to Home By John McPherson

It dawned on Carol that today was the day the Realtor had said he wanted to show the house.

The Amazing Spiderman By Stan Lee

QUICK! I CALL CONTROL! SPIDER-MAN'S HEADING TOWARDS 7TH AND 1ST!
CONTROL COME IN! WE'VE GOT 'IM!
WE READ YOU, MAN!
SKREEECH!
1ST
7TH
THIS IS OUR CHANCE! LET'S GO!

Generation X By Chris Lehman

HERE'S MY PROBLEM. I'M A SENIOR--BEEN HERE FOR THREE YEARS NOW.
I HAVE TO GO TO THE LIBRARY AND WORK ON RESEARCH FOR MY SENIOR THESIS.
SO, YOU NEED HELP WITH THE RESEARCH?
YES, AND ALSO, WHERE EXACTLY IS THE LIBRARY?

Absolute Zero° By Brad

Recomended, new work - Cubicles for whitmore Admin. Personnel who fail to give service with a smile ☺

Dilbert By Scott Adams

THE FINANCE DEPARTMENT HAS ANALYZED YOUR COMPUTING NEEDS AND DECIDED TO GIVE YOU A 286 PC.
THAT SHOULD BE SUFFICIENT FOR THE 3D-RENDERING YOU NEED TO DO.
BESIDES, HOW MANY TIMES ARE YOU GOING TO DO 3D-RENDERING IN YOUR CAREER?
ONCE, IF I HURRY.

Loser Crow Comics By Mike Krozi

"Hey Bob, Did you know that it costs $150 a year to have a Microfridge™ But only $149 to replace it if it gets lost?"
"That means that if you are going to have one for four years, It is cost effective to 'lose' it the first year. Plus it belongs to you after you graduate."
"Are you trying to Cause Problems?"

Don't Go There By Kelly Leahy & Justine Brennan

HI, I'M JUSTINE AND ME ROOMMATE CUT MY HAIR SO I HAD TO PRETEND THAT I LIKE IT.
I'M REALLY LOVE WHEN I TALK ON THE PHONE WITH MY BOYFRIEND (SWOON!) UH-HA!
THE FIRST DAY THAT SHE WAS HERE, SHE BROKE MY JAW. (BUT SHE BOUGHT ME A MEDICINE)
THERE'S THIS GUY THAT LIKES ME HERE, BUT HE WAS ALREADY BALD. UHH!
AND I'M OBSESSED WITH THE BEATLES' BOYS!
HI, I'M KELLY AND I'm A COSTUME MANIAC
I LIKE SAM
JUSTINE BROKE MY BOWL
I LIKE PRINTIES
I ♥ SIMPLES
I HATE THE BEATLES' BOYS
I'm TO PREMORE
HEY KELLY, THANKS FOR THE BREASTS!
NEPENBUH DON'T FORGET TO SMILE
KINGSHOP GAP

Speedy By Todd Hartzler

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY COLLEGIAN TOP 10 By Brian Marchionni

Top 10 Signs That You Have a Bad Professor

10. No opposable thumb.
9. Shrugs shoulders and grunts in lieu of answering any questions.
8. Frequently asks students if THEY'D like to teach for the day.
7. Leaves class early every day to catch "Animaniacs."
6. Refers to subtraction as "tricky-stuff."
5. Has a sun-dial for a watch.
4. Thought the movie "Kids" was even funnier than "Platoon."
3. Corrects all papers with finger crayons.
2. Laughs uncontrollably every time a student says "penis" (Biology professors only).
1. S/he doesn't get this list.

Today's Staff

Night Editor ..... Matt Vautour
Copy Editor ..... Allison Connolly
Photo Technician ..... Daymion Smith
Production Supervisor ..... Mark Mitchell
Production ..... Kathryn Gracia
Andrew Bryce

Dining Commons Menu

LUNCH
Mac & Cheez
Tacos
BASICS LUNCH
Mac & Cheez
Veggie Tacos

DINNER
Thanksgiving!
Spiced Shrimp
BASICS DINNER
Thanksgiving!
Stir Fry Veggies & Tofu

Quote of the Day

"I had better never see a book than be so warped by its attraction that I become a satellite instead of a system."

– Ralph Waldo Emerson

Sports

Soccer America's Women's Soccer Top 20

1. No. Carolina	6. UConn	11. UMass	16. Dragon St.
2. Notre Dame	7. SMU	12. Vanderbilt	17. Penn St.
3. Portland	8. Virginia	13. William & Mary	18. Harvard
4. Stanford	9. Clemson	14. Maryland	19. Dartmouth
5. Hartford	10. Duke	15. Santa Clara	20. Texas A&M

UMass, UConn set to battle in Mullins

COURTESY MEDIA RELATIONS

Stephemore Lesley Nolan and her teammates will hold the inaugural volleyball match in the Mullins Center tonight at 7 p.m. against UConn.

By Chris Stamm
Collegian Staff

Tonight the Connecticut's Huskies volleyball team travels to Amherst for their William D. Mullins Center debut against Massachusetts.

At 7 p.m. the UMass women's volleyball team squares off against its local rival, the Lady Huskies in the Reebok/UMass–UConn Challenge, the first-ever volleyball match to be held in the Mullins Center since the facility opened in February 1993. This is an opportunity for the University to prepare for the upcoming NCAA Div. I Women's Volleyball Finals.

Coming off a strong second place showing in the UMass Invitational last weekend, coach Bonnie Kenny's squad hopes to send the Huskies back to Storrs with their tails between their legs.

After losing to the University of Michigan, the Minutewomen (6–4) blanked Brown in three games. The most exciting match of the tournament came when, after beating Syracuse 15–9 and 15–6 in the first two games, UMass found themselves down 14–10. What followed was an out and out offensive battle led by junior outside hitter Giza Rivera, who led the team to a 17–15 win in the third set.

This victory marked the 50th win for Kenny in her third season at the helm for the Minutewomen. With a 50–26 overall record (.658), it took her a mere 76 matches to reach the 50 win mark, the fastest volleyball coach to do so in school history. The only other head coach to reach the 50 win plateau for UMass was Elaine Sortino, who took 87 matches to earn the distinction.

The Lady Huskies (5–5) are coming off a strong showing in a tournament last weekend in College Station, PA hosted by Penn State University. After beating St. Bonaventure 3–0 and Lehigh 3–1, UConn fell three sets to none to the host Nitanny Lions.

"They're coming off a couple good wins and we're coming off that big win against Syracuse last weekend. There's definitely going to be a lot of offensive control and tough defense. Basically, they play a lot like us," Kenny said.

Kenny feels that the similarities in playing style promise to make the match a crowd pleaser. However, the Minutewomen have a few things that must be accomplished to ensure a strong win.

"We have to dig the ball in transition and then kill the ball on the counter attack. That is the biggest thing for us tomorrow," Kenny said.

In addition, UMass is faced with two key injuries that throw a wrench into their usual game plan. Rivera and senior middle blocker Rachel Sky and are both hampered with injuries. Sky, a major force at the net, is a major link in the squad's defense.

Rivera, who will most likely sit out of today's game with an injured ankle, has been a team leader this season. Last season's leader in kills, Rivera was named to the all– tournament teams of the Hofstra/Spalding Invitational, the UC Santa Barbara Classic and last weekends Reebok/UMass Invitational.

In last week's play, Rivera averaged 6.29 kills per game with a .405 hitting percentage with a whopping 23 kills against Michigan and 21 kills against Syracuse. The standout junior leads the UMass squad with 152 kills, an average of 4.9 kills per game and a .314 hitting percentage.

"Everybody needs to step it up a notch with Rachel Sky and Giza Rivera injured," Kenny said. "Giza is a very potent part of our offense, but you can't ask just one person to fill her place."

UMass will look to some of the underclass players to help step it up and win the match. Luckily for Kenny, she has a handful of women to look to.

Sophomore Michelle Paciorek has been another force on the floor for UMass.

"Michelle is very capable of being a force at the net, she just needs to be a little more consistent," Kenny said.

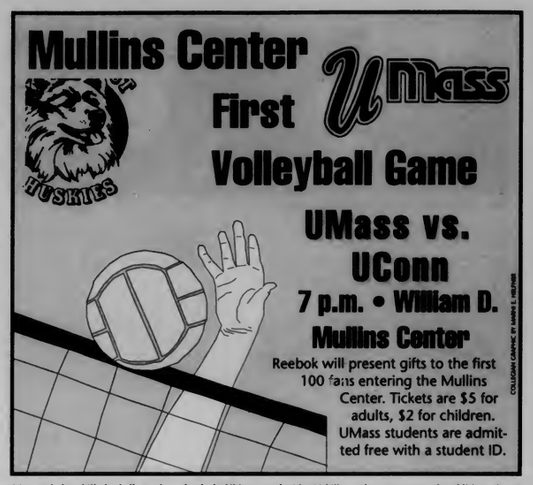
The middle blocker from Sunderland was also named to the Reebok/UMass Invitational All–Tournament Team. Paciorek totaled 15 kills for a .306 hitting percentage, as well as six blocks for the tournament. In addition, she set a school single match record for blocks with 12 in the loss to San Jose State. She has 43 kills, a .250 hitting percentage and 30 blocks which make her a key asset to the team.

Sophomore outside hitter Lesley Nolan has proved to be a strong offensive asset for the Minutewomen throughout the season so far.

"Lesley Nolan definitely has the capability to be an impact player," Kenny said. "With Giza out, she's really going to have to put the ball away.

"Since this is a 'dry run' for the national championships, it's really important that NCAA officials organizing the event see the local support embracing the game."

Reebok will give a gift to the first 100 fans to enter the arena. Tickets cost $5 for adults, $2 for children, and UMass studenis are admitted free with a student ID.



Mullins Center
First
UMass
Volleyball Game
UMass vs.
UConn
7 p.m. • William D.
Mullins Center
Reebok will present gifts to the first 100 fans entering the Mullins Center. Tickets are $5 for adults, $2 for children. UMass students are admitted free with a student ID.
HUSKIES

COLLEGIAN GRAPHIC BY SARAH E. FELPRIS

Men's soccer travels to UNH

By Leigh Torbin
Collegian Staff

Riding the tide of a three game winning streak, the Massachusetts men's soccer team will travel to Durham, NH for an important New England conference match against the New Hampshire Wildcats.

The Minutemen (5–1–1) enter today's contest ranked 11th in the latest ISAA New England coaches poll, while UNH (3–2–1) will bring a sixth place ranking into this afternoon's match.

UMass swept a weekend tour of Ohio this past weekend, taking Atlantic 10 Conference matches at Xavier (3–2 in OT) and Dayton (2–0). The successful trip came on the heels of a 3–1 thumping of Siena last Tuesday night at Szot Park in Chicopee.

Steffar play from a variety of unlikely sources has fueled the Minutemen during their recent run. Senior Brad Miller has netted a trio goals, all of them game-winners, for the Minutemen so far this season. That stat becomes even more impressive when you consider that Miller, a Longmeadow native, had scored just two goals in his UMass career prior to this year.

Scott Regina was rewarded for his goals against Siena and Xavier by being named the A–10's Rookie of the Week. The freshman from Bethlehem, Pa. now has three tallies, while playing in five games this season.

Freshman Paul Corcoran has also made an impact on the young season, starting all seven games thus far. Corcoran has proven to be a versatile player on both ends of the field. When deep in the opposing end of the field, Corcoran's strong throw–ins have proven to be valuable offensive weapons.

Brad Kurowski, Marc Saad, Jake Brodsky and Jonathan Hanna have all made considerable contributions to the UMass side in their freshman seasons as well.

Senior goalkeeper Eric Gruber has clearly made the most of his first season starting in goal for the Minutemen. Gruber's shutout of Dayton lowered his goals against average to 1.06. He has stopped 30 of 38 shots en route to posting a 5–1–1 record this year.

Dave Siljanovski has also had a fine season for himself thus far. His team-leading six goals, six assists and 18 points place him 13th, fourth, and fourth in the nation respectively. With Karsten Bremke out of the lineup for all but two games, someone has had to pick up the scoring slack and Siljanovski has done just that.

He has tallied a pair of game–winning goals this season, including one in overtime against Xavier. As a junior, Siljanovski is currently tied for sixth place on the all–time UMass assist list and should soon move into the top 10 for goals and points.

The Wildcats enter today's match after defeating Buffalo 4–0 and losing to Loyola 2–0 this past weekend. Freshman midfielder Mike Keevan leads UNH in scoring with four goals and two assists, while playing in only four of the team's six games.

Natick native Steve Baccari has posted modest numbers in the Wildcat net this season. Baccari has posted a 1.87 goals– against–average and one shutout, while playing all but 10 minutes this season.

A victory today would help the team as they gear up for the Boston University Terriers, whom the Minutemen will host on Saturday at Richard F. Garber Field. BU finished 1994 at 19–0 and ranked No. 1 in the nation, but was upset by Brown in the second round of the NCAA's.

The Terriers are ranked second in New England and are 2– 2–1, the sole losses coming against Brown and defending national champion Indiana.

THANG VO/COLLEGIAN

Marc Saad is one of many freshman who have gotten UMass men's soccer off to a fast start. They return to action today as they take on New Hampshire.

When looking around the NFL, surprises are found everywhere

Who would of thunk it?

You did not have to be Dionne Warwick to predict that the Dallas Cowboys, San Francisco 49ers and Miami Dolphins would all be 3–0, but the odds on the other two teams with unblemished records would have been extremely long.

Who would have thought the Kansas City Chiefs with Joe Montana retiring, an aging running back in Marcus Allen and a suspect defense would be perfect to this point? They do have some talent and with the exception of the Raiders have played fairly weak teams.

The biggest surprise in the league so far is the St. Louis Rams. This is a team last year that only won four games and lost its best receiver to free agency.

They have relocated, and hired a new head coach. Also they dumped young but unproductive quarterback Tommy Maddox from his starting job and finally released him and handed the spot to journeyman Chris Miller. Running back Jerome Bettis has come out with a vengeance trying to up his value, as he will be a free agent after the season, while a relative unknown receiver in Issac Bruce has emerged as a big time play maker.

They have also played two quality opponents. New Orleans is always competitive and nearly knocked off San Francisco in week one, so they are no cream puff. The Rams opened the season in Title Town, where they handed the Packers their cheesehats.

In the unpleasant surprise department, bordering on depressing, would be the Arizona Cardinals, Detroit Lions and New England Patriots.

Buddy Ball was supposed to soar this year with his tailor– made defense and a revitalized offense, but neither have been prevalent. Dave Kreig was even pulled against the Eagles for Mike Buck and the defense is 27th in the league in terms of points scored. Injuries have hindered Eric Swann and his defensive mates but still can play much better.

They were burned in week one by gutty Gus Ferrotte and in week two by Eagles backup Rodney Peete. The Cards' would be winless save for the fact that....

The Lions are floundering under Wayne Fontes at the helm. A year doesn't go by without the press calling for his head on a post, but every year he returns. His problem is that he depends on Barry Sanders too much. It is time for a real quarterback to throw to Herman Moore, and some defensive help for Chris Spielman.

I realize the Patriots have been opposed by three of the top five teams in the league, but its how they have fared in those games that is disappointing.

On the one hand you have a defense. There were many question marks after losing Todd Collins and Tim Goad while drafting three secondary players. But every game has seen the defense hold them in the game to the fourth quarter, including keeping the reigning world champions scoreless until the last possession of the first half.

The hard work put in on that side of the ball gives $42 million phenom Drew Bledsoe the chance to lead them to victory. He did so against the Browns in the season opener, but since that winning drive, the Pats have six points.

They are tied for last in points scored with the New York Giants.

Turn to NFL, page 11

The Massachusetts
DAILY COLLEGIAN
Volume CV Issue 12 New England's Largest College Daily • Founded in 1890 • Daily Since 1967 Thursday, September 21, 1995

We were going to Kentucky...
The Big E is here again with more cows, pumpkins and fun than you can ever imagine. Read up on what you can experience at this monumental fair (See Arts & Living, page 6).

Living in America
Cannabis Reform Coalition starts the year off with a meeting focusing on the lack of freedom and civil rights in America. (See page 3)

UMass loses despite Nolan's effort
Lesley Nolan recorded a game–high 25 kills but it was still not enough as the Minutewomen fell to UConn last night in the Mullins Center (See Sports, page 20.)

Extended Forecast
Tonight, chance of showers. Higher chance of rain tomorrow and throughout the weekend.

Today	Friday	Saturday
HIGH: 70 LOW: 65	HIGH: 65 LOW: 60	HIGH: 65 LOW: 60

Polls open up for competitive SGA races

REBECCA PETERSON/COLLEGIAN

Sophomore Alan Steward places his vote with SGA member Dan Larson yesterday at Worcester Dining Commons.

By Chris Conner
Collegian Staff

Starting at 11 a.m. yesterday, University of Massachusetts Student Government Association officials sat at the polls to receive votes for their soon–to–be newly elected political peers.

According to those SGA officials, the electoral races this year have been particularly competitive, as many dormitories have more than two House Council or Senate prospects running for these respective positions.

SGA president Christine Lopes said the newfound interest in campus politics might be attributed to a few different factors.

"I think there are a lot of younger students interested in changing things on campus," she said. "There are more freshmen and sophomores trying to get involved."

Last month's Student Leadership Conference, which featured a good amount of SGA involvement, may have also been a drawing point for candidates, Lopes said.

"I think people saw SGA in a different light after the conference," she said.

Representing the campus

Although Lopes said there was a rise in the number of students who wished to be involved In University politics, there are also several students who remain relatively uninformed of the ongoings of the SGA.

"I've always thought SGA elections were underpublicized," senior history major Peter Nersisian said. "Except for the candidates who plaster stuff everywhere. You never get a sense of who you're voting for."

Nersisian said he had taken upon himself to attend some SGA meetings during his time at the University and offered a critique of the experience.

"I think SGA needs to get involved more directly with the student body," he said. "It seemed like it was run by certain people's agendas. They need to more broadly represent students."

In accordance with student demands, many of those running for senatorial positions have stated in their platforms that student awareness is a priority for the upcoming year.

Ashavan Doyon, who serves as the Political Chair of the Lesbian, Gay and Bisexual Alliance (LBGA), and aspires to become the new Northeast Area–at–large senator, said one of his primary goals is to make the SGA somewhat less of an enigma to the campus community.

Turn to ELECTIONS, page 2

SGA judiciary branch deals with complaints

By Allison Connolly
Collegian Staff

The student judiciary is one of three branches to make up the Student Government Association at the University of Massachusetts. This arm of student representation is responsible for reviewing certain student complaints.

Chief Justice Christopher Lang wants the student body to be aware of what his group can offer all people, not just University students.

"We're a non–political branch of the government that has a judicial responsibility," Lang said. "If the senate were to enact a by–law that was viewed to be possibly unconstitutional, someone could challenge it and we would decide if it was constitutional or not."

Turn to JUDICIARY, page 2

UMass professor helps U.N. evaluate Iraq

By Matthew Pottinger
Collegian Correspondent

Observations by a University of Massachusetts professor on dismal health conditions in Iraq may lead to renewed speculation on the efficiency of United Nations sanctions in attaining their intended goals in Iraq.

Professor Peter Pellett, head of the Department of Nutrition, recently returned from leading a five–week United Nations mission to Iraq to assess the country's crop availability and nutritional status.

Pellett, who last visited Iraq in November of 1993, described conditions as having gone from bad to worse. The infant mortality rate in Iraq has more than doubled since 1990.

"We're seeing really severe malnutrition in the hospitals," he said. "50 kids per 1000 live births are dying as a direct result of sanctions." Pellett went on to compare the nutritional status of Iraq to that of countries in "sub–Saharan Africa."

With the prices of many foods, such as rice, inflated to approximately 5,000 times what they were in 1990, a ration issued by the government to each citizen is what has prevented famine. The ration, which consists only of flour, rice, sugar, tea and oil was reduced in recent months.

"At first [the ration] was about 1500 calories," Pellett said. "Then in November '94 it was reduced to about 1100 calories."

Problems Beyond Food

As a result of U.N. sanctions on Iraq, "the oil has stopped flowing," Pellett said.

"That means any foreign exchange has stopped coming in," he added.

Problems caused by severe inflation in Iraq are compounded by the country's inability to import other goods banned under the U.N. sanctions.

According to Pellett, many chemical fertilizers and spare parts, banned for their potential uses in biological and other weapons, are needed for agricultural purposes.

"[Iraq] tries to grow more food, but it can't get irrigation pump spare parts," he said. "You can't spray your crops because you need permission to have aircraft for spraying."

According to Pellett, cases of typhoid fever, cholera and infectious hepatitis have also increased as a result of "floating pools of sewage in the streets because of the lack of spare parts for pumping equipment."

In comparison with his last trip to Iraq, Pellett was struck by how widespread the suffering was.

"What you've really got is the middle–class now not much different

Turn to IRAQ, page 3

University offers course on mental retardation

By Darcie Dennigan
Collegian Correspondent

Representatives from UMass and the state's Department of Mental Retardation (DMR) sealed an agreement marking a new partnership between the two on Tuesday at University of Massachusetts President Sherry H. Penney's office in Boston.

Immediate effects of the agreement are already being seen in the UMass Department of Psychology. This fall, Michael Kendrick, assistant DMR commissioner, is teaching an undergraduate course called "Current Issues in Mental Retardation."

The course focuses on the history of treatment and mistreatment of mentally disabled children and adults in our society and integrating their present experiences within family, work and school.

Guest speakers covering human and civil rights topics are also part of the curriculum, reflecting Kendrick's hopes of incorporating practical involvement as well as research.

According to Kendrick, although the course is limited to Psychology majors this semester there is talk of offering it in the spring to a broader range of people.

Following the example set by similar programs implemented on the Boston, Worcester and Lowell campuses, the Amherst program has the potential to expand in many directions.

Melinda Novak, chair of the psychology department, greeted the partnership as "a wonderful opportunity for the University and DMR to trade expertise." She said she predicts many more courses for both undergraduates and graduates taught by the DMR staff, as well as the possibility of developing grant applications.

Turn to COURSE, page 3

Professor & son to appear on Phil Donahue Show

By Amy H. Paradysz
Collegian Staff

Sidney Simon, professor emeritus of education at the University of Massachusetts, and his son, John, a UMass graduate, appeared on The Donahue Show on Sept. 15 to talk about father–son relationships.

The Simons, both professional counselors, were invited because they conduct workshops around the country and in Canada, Mexico and Europe, teaching about the father–son relationship.

On Donahue, the Simons talked about the "unasked questions that fathers and sons have," questions pertaining to feelings. Sidney Simon's examples included, "what did you feel when you learned you had a son, when your father died, when you lost your job."

"Until they ask these questions," said Sidney Simon, "they never know each other."

An internationally known scholar in the field of psychological education, Sidney Simon taught at UMass for 20 years, specializing in "values clarification, which helps people find out what they really... want," he said.

"Men are... wounded in their need to be macho, their need to cover up their feelings, their inability to express their feelings," he said.

Sidney Simon is the author of twelve books, including "Helping Your Child Find Values to Live By," "Getting Unstuck," and "Negative Criticism."

"I think negative criticism is the most destructive thing that happens between fathers and sons," Simon said. "Self– esteem is so tied to believing you are a good person."

Simon's latest book, "Forgiveness: How to Make Peace With Your Past and Get On With Your Life," was co– authored with his wife, Suzanne in 1992.

"There was battering in my femily," said Simon. Suzanne had also spent a lot of time dealing with forgiveness since she used to lead incest survivor groups at the Every Women's Center.

Sidney's Simon's four books on values clarification, "Values and Teaching," "Values Clarification: A Handbook of Practical Strategies," "Clarifying Values Through Subject Matter" and "Meeting Yourself Halfway," have sold close to two million copies combined.

John Simon, a former teacher and YMCA youth director, works with groups on issues related to substance abuse, sexuality, parenting, gender conditioning and rape education.

On Donahue, John sang a song he wrote for his father a year ago, who he believed was going to die of cancer.

"He held me as a baby and pushed me as a man, and everyone says how much like him I am," he sang.

John's sister, Suzanne, of Vergennes, Vt., also conducts workshops about father–daughter relationships with her father.

Curry Hicks to host Native American powwow

By Hernán Rozemberg
Collegian Staff

It is very seldom that the University of Massachusetts is offered to share in the pride and diversity of Native American culture.

One such opportunity, perhaps the biggest of them all, is being offered this coming up weekend.

"Annual Intertribal Powwow 1995" is the denomination for the two–day event that marks a congregation point for many Native American groups from all over the Northeast.

Josephine White Eagle Native American Cultural Center Coordinator Joyce White Deer–Vincent said an attempt will be made to draw guests participating in a larger powwow occurring previously in upstate New York.

The Cultural Center, along with the Native American Student Association, are the two main organizers of the event.

According to Vincent, program highlights will include Eastern Woodland Social Dances featuring The Wampanoag Nation Singers and Dancers from Mashpee and special guest appearances by Stanley Buck, a member of the Seneca Nation, Trudie Lamb–Richmond, storyteller from the Shaticoke Nation, and Tom Ahomsawin, singer–performer of the Abenaki Nation.

The Head Man Dancer will be Marvin Burnette of the Oglala–Lakota Nation, and the Head Woman Dancer Sandy Funmaker, of the Hochunk Nation; directions from the arena will be under Francis Huntington, while Ramona Peters will be on hand as the master of ceremonies.

In total, said Vincent, there should be between 30 and 50 different Native cultures represented at the powwow, coming from different geographic regions from South, Central and North America.

Besides song, dance and story–telling, there will also be a variety of traditional crafts, fine arts and food samples.

Annual Intertribal 1995, "In Honor of Our Elders," will be open to the public September 22–23, from 10 a.m.–6p.m each day, in the Curry Hicks Cage of the UMass campus. General admission is $4 for an individual day pass, $7 for a family day pass, with special discounts for Five College students, staff and faculty. For more information, contact Cultural Center Coordinator Joyce Vincent at 545–4932, or visit the Center at the basement of Chadbourne Hall, Central Area.

COURTESY JANE WARNER

Traditional dancer Elwood Webster will be performing at the annual Intertribal 1995 at the Curry Hicks Cage tomorrow and Saturday..

Campus Police Log

Alarm
Sept. 19
An elevator brake overheated in John Quincy Adams Residence Hall and a technician was called.
A fire alarm went off at Tillson Farm.

Larceny
Sept. 19
There was a bicycle stolen from W.E.B. DuBois Library.
Bicycle stolen from Field Residence Hall.
Bicycle stolen from Webster Residence Hall.
There was a report of a bicycle stolen from Washington Residence Hall on Thursday of last week.

Injured person
Sept. 19
An injured person at Hampshire Dining Commons was evaluated by ambulance personnel at the scene. She was taken home by friends.
A person in with a hand laceration was taken from Washington Residence Hall to UMI.
An individual with a foreign object in the eye was taken from Brown Residence Hall to UMI.

Drug offenses
Sept. 19
There was an investigation into a marijuana odor at Kennedy Residence Hall.
There was an investigation into a marijuana odor at John Adams Residence Hall.
There was an investigation into a marijuana odor at Washington Residence Hall.
Sept. 20
There was an investigation into a marijuana odor at Brown Residence Hall.

Burglary/Breaking & entering
Sept. 19
An individual reported that his apartment in Lincoln Apts. had been broken into and personal property, valued at over $3000, stolen.

Annoying behavior
Sept. 20
There was a report of objects being thrown from a window at Brown Residence Hall.
There was a report of an individual being followed to work by another individual.

■ elections

continued from page 1

"A lot of students don't know who we are," said Doyon, a sophomore Soviet/East European Studies major. "It doesn't do too much good to elect someone if don't know who they are or how to get in touch with them."

Student concerns

To pique interest, the SGA has made it a point to try to expand their goals for the year, according to Lopes.

Among the topics cited by Lopes as being utmost in importance were the revamping of Food Services and the creation of a Course and Teacher Evaluation (CATE) booklet that would aid students in their class selection.

Voters also had certain specific expectations for the association for the 1995–96 period at UMass, some of those jibing with the SGA plans.

"[Evaluation] forms need to be revised because half the time they don't apply," said sophomore sociology major Kristy Martin. "And Food Services always needs improvement."

Yet, some students tried to remain realistic about the ambitions of the new SGA.

"They can only do so much," said first–year political science student Eric Vroom.

■ Judiciary

continued from page 1

The judiciary may discern the constitutionality of any act by any agent of the SGA, by any agency directly associated with the SGA or by any candidate for SGA office.

The constitution further states that the judiciary branch has jurisdiction over "any controversy arising under the SGA Constitution, the By–laws of the SGA or any act of the SGA."

Lang stresses the point that the constitution provides that any person, not limited to students, may request a hearing by filing a petition for a ruling directly with the judiciary.

"We're here for not just SGA, but for all students who have concerns in that arena," Lang said. "Anybody can file a petition or hearing. RSO's or area governments... they don't have to be members of the SGA to file complaints."

Lang's office also offers files of past judiciary rulings for any students interested in reviewing them.

"The main point that I want to make is that this is open to students who deal with student organizations, whether it be RSOs, governments or house councils, senators," Lang said. "If they're unsure whether [their complaint] falls under our jurisdiction, come and ask. We're accessible."

Lang wants to put the word out about the judiciary services.

"This isn't just for the benefit of the SGA to keep it running, it's for the benefit of all students," said Lang. "We're a branch of the government, but nobody knows about it."

For Your Information

FYIs are public service announcements which are printed daily. To submit an FYI, please send a press release containing all pertinent information, including the name and phone number of the contact person to the Collegian, c/o the News Editor.

Thursday, Sept. 21

GLBT Lecture — Fighting Words: A Queer Declaration of Independence, by Scott Tucker, queer writer, health care activist, democratic socialist and founding member of ACT UP, free and open to the public, accessible, 545–4824, Rm. 803, Campus Center, 12–1:30 p.m.

Meeting — Animal Rights Coalition's first meeting, all are welcome, room 903, Campus Center, 7 p.m.

Meeting — The UMass Hang Gliding Club's first general meeting, all welcome, call 545–0804 for information, Campus Center, check info desk for room, 5:30 p.m.

Meeting — Pi Sigma Alpha, the National Political Science Honor Society, informational meeting for perspective members, sixth floor lounge, Thompson Tower, 4–6 p.m.

Music — Faculty Recital: Baroque to Jazz, David Sporny, trombone with Nadine Shank, piano, $5 for public, $2.50 for UMass students, Bezanson Recital Hall, 8 p.m.

Friday, Sept. 22

Community — Annual Intertribal Powwow, traditional crafts, fine arts, and foods, open to the public, day money registration– for Native American dancers only, 10–11:30 a.m., $4 per day for general public, $6 for both days, $3 per day for Five College students and staff, $5 for both days, family rates available, no drugs or alcohol, Curry Hicks Cage, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Community — Shabbat Services, dinner following service, $4 for students, $6.50 for public, Hillel House, 6 p.m.

Community — Celebration of the Shabbos, friendly atmosphere, food, prayer, songs, and stories, all welcome, Chabad House.

Film — Blue, directed by Krysztof Kielowski, $1.75, Campus Center Theater, AC, 7:30 and 10 p.m.

Lecture — "Environmental effects of Bolide Impact at the KT Boundary," by Haraldur Sigurdsson, Five College Distinguished Lecturer, School of Oceanography, University of Rhode Isand, Geosciences Lecture Sciences Series, Morrill 2 South, Room 131, 3:30 p.m.

Meeting — Time Out Fellowship: Praise and Worship, games, and speaker Steve Chase on "Enchanted Life," for information call Mark of Elizabeth at 253–7206, Campus Center, 7 p.m.

Music — High Tide, improvisational rock, Mikes Billiards, Rte. 9, Amherst, 9 p.m.

Notice — UM Arts Council deadline for single project/grand events, call the Arts Council at 545–0202 for more information.

Theater — Maija of Chaggaland, written and performed by Sheela Langeberg, $3.50 for students and senior citizens, $6 for public, tickets available at the FAC ticket office, Bowker Auditorium, 8 p.m.

Saturday, Sept. 23

Community — Annual Intertribal Powwow, traditional crafts, fine arts, and foods, open to the public, day money registration– for Native American dancers only, 10–11:30 a.m., $4 per day for general public, $6 for both days, $3 per day for Five College students and staff, $5 for both days, family rates available, no drugs or alcohol, Curry Hicks Cage, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Community — Shabbos morning services, traditional meal to follow, all welcome, Chabad House, 10 a.m.

Dance — Philippino Dance Troupe, sponsored by the Asian Culture House, call 542–2195 for information, Buckley Recital Hall, AC, 8 p.m.

Film — Blue, directed by Krysztof Kielowski, $1.75, Campus Center Theater, AC, 7:30 and 10 p.m.

Theater — Maija of Chaggaland, written and performed by Sheela Langeberg, $3.50 for students and senior citizens, $6 for public, tickets available at the FAC ticket office, Bowker Auditorium, 8 p.m.

Workshop — Your Life is Your Art, a hands–on workshop led by Donna Estabrooks exploring personal creativity and breaking through creative blocks, free and open to the public, call 586–3869 to register, Wheeler Gallery, 1–3 p.m.

Notices

GLB RA Matters — Residence Life Staff who identify as gay, lesbian, bisexual, transgendered or are questioning their sexual orientation are invited to attend GLB RA Matters Meetings are every Friday in Mary Lyon from 12:30 p.m. to 2 p.m. For more information contact Dawn M. Bond 5–1506.

Exhibit — "France '95", the works of 40 UMass undergraduate Art majors during 2 intensive summer programs in the South of France, photography, drawings, paintings, sculpture, handmade books, and journals. Herter Gallery. Sept. 18–28, M–F 11–4 p.m.

Exhibit — Foundations Works, a juried exhibition of two and three dimensional works by first year art students in the 1994/95 Foundations Programs in Art, directed by Prof. Pat Lasch, Sept. 18–28, Herter Art Gallery. M–F 11–4 p.m.

Intramurals — The Intramural office is still accepting participant entries for badminton singles and racquetball doubles. All entries are due Thursday, Sept. 28. The mandatory players meeting is rescheduled to Sept. 28 at 6 p.m., in Boyden. Entries for track and field, cross country, ice hockey, swimming and volleyball are still being accepted.

Wanted — Graphic intern for the Residential Educational Alcohol Program. Includes design and productions of health promotion materials, credit toward graduation. Excellent opportunity for someone interested in health promotion (AIDS, STDs and Alcoholism). Contact Sandra Withcomb 545–0137.

Family Planning Services — HIV testing, pregnancy testing, birth control, medical tests, assistance for struggling families, the Family Planning Council of Western Massachusetts, (800) 696–7752.

Volunteers Needed — The Campus Chime and Carillon Committee needs student volunteers to ring the bells in Old Chapel. Will teach and train anyone with reasonable musical ability. Call Ken Samonds at 545–1077 for more information.

Community — Jumaa Service, the Muslim Students Association holds Jumaa prayer service every Friday, at 1 p.m., Campus Center, for information call Utama at 256–8482.

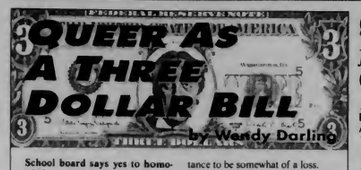
COLLEGIATE GRAPHICS:
WHEN OUR JOB IS DONE – YOUR DAY IS JUST BEGINNING.

the BLUEWALL presents
DISCO
Thursday, September 21, 1995
Boogie Down All Night Long
FREE ADMISSION
9:30 pm - 1:00 am
70's Costumes encouraged
With D.J.s Billy Arnold and Robert Dwelley
Lighting and Sound By: Audio Pro Media
Where D. Lincoln Campus Living 25th Anniversary
"Because Two Is Better Than One"

Spirit Haus
Specialty Beverage Center
Meister Brau 12 pk cans $3.99
Bud Dry $9.99/case Bottles
Shipyard $4.99/six
Blue Fin Stout $4.99/six
Moose Brown Ale $4.99/six
Michael Shea's $3.99/six (Irish Amber, Black & Tan, Blonde Lager)
• Keg Special • Sam Adams Boston Ale •
J.W. Dundee $3.99/six Honey Brown Ale
Tanqueray 750 ml $12.99
Absolut Citron 750 ml $13.99
Jagermeister 375 ml w/ free T-Shirt $8.99
Barton Vodka 1 liter 100 proof $7.99
Boone's Wines 750 ml All Flavors $1.99
$75.00 •
Wine Coolers • Ice • Mixers • Mini Kegs • Beer Glasses
Open M-Sat 9am - 11pm
FULL REDEMPTION CENTER
Rt. 9 East College Street • 253-5384
one mile east of Amherst Center on Rt. 9E
VISA – MASTERCARD – DISCOVER Accepted

Last NIGHT
Don't Miss Out!
RUSH ΣK
TONITE September 21, 1995
6:00-9:00 p.m.
"Friend's Night"
19 Allen St. (behind Hillel House)
Questions? Call 256-6887

KLEIN'S ALL ★ SPORTS
EARLY BIRD SKI & HOCKEY SALE!
COMPLETE X-Country Packages STARTING AT $89.99
COMPLETE Downhill Packages w/Boots STARTING AT $249.99
COMPLETE Snowboard Packages w/Boots STARTING AT $439.99
HOCKEY SKATES BAUER Pro 36 $47.99 Yth $49.99 Jr $54.99 Adt
SAVE • SAVE • SAVE • SAVE • SAVE • SAVE • SAVE • SAVE • SAVE • SAVE • SAVE
UP TO 50% OFF All Name Brand Ski Clothing
Hampshire Mall, Hadley, MA • (413) 585-0470



School board says yes to homophobia

In a 3–2 decision Aug. 14, the Merrimack N.H. school board voted to "ban teachers and counselors from presenting homosexuality in a positive light." The new rule will effectively prohibit the discussion or distribution of anything — movies, books, pamphlets — that deals with homosexuality in anything other than a negative manner.

Counselors dealing with gay, lesbian and bisexual students, even those contemplating suicide, will not be allowed to present homosexuality as a viable option or refer students to agencies where they may seek help.

According to the Gay and Lesbian Alliance Against Defamation, rulings like the one in Merrimack are becoming increasingly common. As more and more scholars unearth evidence that homosexuality is no worse than heterosexuality, "the intellectual grounds for demonizing queers is eroding," so homophobic school board members are turning to censorship.

No kissing in Hollywood

Even in today's Hollywood, some actors still have a problem playing gay roles, particularly ones that involve on– screen kissing. That's what Paul Rudnick found out when he worked on the film adaptation of his hit play Jeffrey, a comedy about a gay man who's so afraid of AIDS he gives up sex.

"Actors prefer to play noble gay victims, i.e. men who battle disease and prejudice, but don't kiss," Rudnick wrote in a recent article for Parade. "If there's a same–sex on– screen kiss... [it] should resemble a neurotic vampire's first self–loathing chomp."

Having written a screenplay where same–sex kisses are "frequent, deep–throated and often public and sunlit," Rudnick found himself running into agent after agent claiming that his script "didn't speak to their clients."

Rudnick considers this hesitance to be somewhat of a loss.

"Movie actors are the planet's sex education instructors. They show us how to do it right... a kiss is just a kiss, but a movie kiss can be a banner."

Mickey Mouse meets RuPaul?

When people talk about the Disney Corporation's buyout of the ABC network, they joke about Mickey Mouse taking over as news anchor, but there may be an even more interesting possibility in the works: RuPaul in control with his/her own talk show.

According to Variety, the show would be produced by Buena Vista Television, an arm of the gigantic Disney octopus. The lovely drag queen, known for his singing ("Supermodel") as much as his style, may end up on the airwaves in a time slot just after "Nightline."

Buena Vista declined to comment on the report.

By the numbers:

• In a study of practioner–patient relationships published in Image: Journal of Nursing and Scholarship, 77 percent of lesbians recounted negative experiences with their health care providers. Many lesbians and bisexual women report that doctors, especially gynecologists, are not sensitive to their sexual orientation.

• Lesbians are three times more likely to develop breast cancer than their heterosexual counterparts. This increased risk may come in part because lesbians are less likely to have children and/or breastfeed.

• According to The New Hite Report, 87 percent of women say their deepest emotional relationship is with a woman friend.

• An analysis of U.S. Census figures shows that, in 1991, a mere six percent of U.S. households fit the stereotype of employed father, stay–at–home mother, and 2.5 children.

Compiled from various news sources.

Quebec desires freedom from Canadian life

By David Crary
Associated Press

TORONTO — After Quebec's premier argued that only independence can save it from Canada's "ruinous impasse," the French-speaking province's lawmakers voted Wednesday to hold a referendum Oct. 30 on breaking away.

"The Canadian impasse hits Quebeckers' dignity and their wallet," Premier Jacques Parizeau, leader of the separatist Parti Quebecois, said in Quebec City.

The leader of Quebec's anti-separatist forces, Daniel Johnson of the Liberal Party, pleaded for caution, warning that independence could devastate Quebec economically.

A "Yes" vote "will be irreversible, its consequences — economically and socially — would be irreparable," Johnson said after 35 hours of debate on the referendum. "It is founded on an illusion, on an unworkable partnership."

The Liberal Party has put Parizeau's government on the defensive this week with accusations that it is hiding studies that don't support arguments in favor of independence.

■ Iraq

continued from page 1

from the poor," he said. "You've got a whole section — 70 percent — of the population that is on the edge of being destitute."

The remaining 30 percent of the population — a combination of small farmers, smugglers and the ruling military–elite — remains relatively unaffected by the sanctions, according to Pellett.

Recent accounts by Saddam Hussein's brothers–in–law, who defected to Jordan last month, suggest that his family and supporters have in fact profited off of the business and smuggling opportunities created by the sanctions.

Security Council at Odds

The United States, widely regarded as the leading sponsor of sanctions on Iraq, has increasingly come under pressure from other Security Council members to relax or even lift sanctions. Russia and France have both argued that Iraq has nearly fulfilled all of the terms laid down when sanctions were imposed five years ago.

However, the terms of the sanctions have been subject to debate. Iraq argues that by having withdrawn from and having recognized Kuwait, and by having allowed its capability for weapons of mass destruction to be inspected and dismantled, it has met all the terms stipulated in the original U.N. resolution.

The United States has since added both the downfall of Saddam's regime and guarantees as to Iraq's future intentions regarding weapons programs to the list of prerequisites for lifting sanctions.

"The basic goal of the sanctions is to prevent Iraq from being able to be as big a threat to its neighbors as it was in 1990," said M.J. Peterson, Associate Professor of Political Science at the University. "If the Iraqi government gets a hold of [financial resources] they will do a variety of things: they will rebuild their military... they will continue their attempts to go nuclear... and they will rebuild their capacity to be a major nuisance to everyone in the region."

In terms of removing Saddam from power, Pellet sees little prospect for the sanctions achieving this end.

"The U.S. and everybody expected them to collapse in a year or so, but they're very organized people, the Iraqis; and they're just going to stand up as long as they can. They look at the U.S. as a bully," he said.

Although President Clinton expressed his wish to "depersonalize" the U.S./–Iraq conflict soon after taking office, he has shown little inclination towards easing the terms which seem increasingly unlikely to be met as long as Saddam is still in power.

Iraq has systematically rejected three U.N. resolutions which would provide for the limited sale of oil in order to buy food and other humanitarian goods, claiming that the increase in U.N. supervision necessary to carry out the resolutions would be an infringement on Iraqi sovereignty.

Faced with relinquishing power and making reparations to Kuwait, Saddam is given little incentive to comply with current U.S. demands. At the same time, with Iraqi nationalism on the rise, he has little incentive to stop mistreating his own people.

Instead, the regime seems content to wait for fissures in the Security Council's resolve to expand and lead to a complete lift on sanctions.

Both Professors Pellett and Peterson agree on one point — as long as Iraq is kept bankrupt, it cannot be a threat to the region, but rather at the expense of killing its people.

"The sanctions are a blunt weapon," Peterson said. "You're trying to influence the government, but its the population at large that feels the effects."

Peterson was skeptical, however, as to an effective alternative.

"Their is no way to neatly separate the people and the government [from the effects of general sanctions]," he said.

Pellett hopes that a possible intervention by the Food and Agricultural Organization will help alleviate the population's burden.

"You've got an absolutely mad situation," he said. "A U.N. created crisis which the U.N. is trying to alleviate."

CRC meeting focusses on liberty

Guest speaker expresses discontent with war on drugs

By Phil Milson
Collegian Correspondent

The Cannabis Reform Coalition (CRC) addressed a crowd of approximately 75 people at the Campus Center Auditorium on Tuesday night.

CRC Vice President Brian Julin opened by asking the on– lookers where they would like to be 10 years from now and whether or not they would be active in the fight to legalize marijuana.

Fear was, in his estimation, the prime obstacle to overcome in gaining active membership and preserving the fighting spirit of today's activists.

"People are afraid to become active because of what a prospective employer, professor, or [teaching assistant] might think," Julin said.

He acknowledged on numerous occasions that the movement to reform marijuana laws goes heavily against the beliefs of the mainstream of society.

Nevertheless, Julin stated his belief that if enough CRC members became active, even on a minimal basis.

"Pot would be defacto legalized in this area within one and a half years," he said.

Guest speaker Dick Evans, board member of The National Organization for the Reform of Marijuana Laws (NORML), took the podium next.

He began his speech by reminiscing about his experiences here at UMass in the early 1970's. He cited the greatest difference between then and now as the degree of activism present on campus.

Evans focused most heavily on citizens' rights and how police officers have violated them. He blamed America's excessive prison overcrowding on the government's misguided pursuit of law enforcement.

> "The war is not about drug abuse...it's about control over your body, job, property and mind... our inalienable rights of liberty and the pursuit of happiness are under savage assault."

"The drug war is being paid for out of the pockets of its victims," Evans said.

In addition, he compared present day drug–free contract clauses on job applications to contracts assuring non– membership to the communist party during McCarthyism.

After a candid segment on "hemp," Evans explained his position regarding drug abuse and why he believed it to be a manufactured term.

"The war is not about drug abuse," he said. "It's about control over your body, job, property and mind... our inalienable rights of liberty and the pursuit of happiness are under savage assault."

Evans then concluded his speech to the crowd comprised mostly of CRC members.

"The future of freedom is truly at stake," he said.

■ course

continued from page 1

"This course is just the first step. We'd like to eventually hold on–campus forums and conferences," said Gerald Ryan, Director of Communications at DMR.

Kendrick acknowledges the small beginning of the partnership, but is optimistic, noting its conceivably great future. "Depending on the slant one takes on the issues of mental retardation, classes could easily open up in areas like education, public health, political science, sociology and even pre–med."

Why is there a need to expand the courses of study at UMass to include mental retardation?

"From whatever field you're coming from," said Ryan, "psychology, education and others, you're bound to be confronted by mental retardation issues."

The main dilemma, according to Ryan, stems from the fact that there are no specific scholastic concentrations on mental retardation. Frequently, there are only a few classes to be found within a large psychology department.

Presently, the only pre–requisites to work with mentally disabled people are a high school diploma, and in some cases, completion of a three–week training program.

Ryan said he hopes that the DMR's involvement with the University "could maybe lead to a two–year college degree or some type of associate's program... at the very least to have students not be fed with stereotypes or be limited to book learning [about mentally disabled people]".

Also, by improving the accessibility of disability education and by making courses more relevant to current issues, Kendrick said he hopes students "will be interested in the things that we're interested in — maybe they'll be encouraged to take part in the work–force that is up–to–date on the issues we have to deal with here in Massachusetts."

UMass alumni account for many of the current leaders in the field of mental retardation, including deputy DMR commissioner Gerald Morrissey, DMR commissioner Philip Campbell and DMR regional director of western Massachusetts Steven Bradley.

"The more society interacts with developmental disabilities, the more everyone will be able to understand and help the people with these disabilities," said Ryan.

The News Department needs writers.
Any students interested in writing for the news section should contact Chris Conner at 545–0719 or come down to the Collegian office in the Campus Center Basement.

COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIEDS
THEY WORK 545-3500

Interested in writing for
ARTS & LIVING
Come down to the Collegian and talk to Tara Connelly Call 545–1361 for more information

AWARD WINNING LOCAL SERVICE
• Full Service Autobody Insurance Approved
• Full Selection of genuine GM Goodwrench parts.
• Mass. State Inspection Station #3243
• Fine selection of new and used cars & trucks.
• Ask about our FREE 18 point maintenance check.
PAIGE'S CHEVROLET Geo Amherst
DICKINSON ST. • BETWEEN RT. 9 & MAIN ST. • 253-3444 • PARTS LINE 253-5928

SEE THE WORLD THROUGH THEIR EYES...
Visit with our representative on Monday, September 25, 8:30-1:30, in the Campus Center, about our Undergraduate Study Abroad Programs
Mexico/Central America
• Women & Development
• Gender & the Environment
Guatemala, El Salvador, Nicaragua
• Sustainable Development & Social Change
Namibia/South Africa
• Southern African Societies in Transition
• Women & Development
The Center for Global Education at Augsburg College 1-800-299-8889
email globaled@augsburg.edu www.http://www.augsburg.edu/global/index.html
...AND YOUR WORLD WILL NEVER BE THE SAME.

Lizottes Tobacco Shop
76 Main St., Northampton, MA
584-2812
Imported: Cigars, Cigarettes, Tobacco, Clove Cigaretts
Bulk Pipe tobacco, American Spirit, Cigarettes, Magazines
Pipes: Peterson, Falcon, Meerschaum

Loaf 'em or leaf 'em.
ZAYRE Amherst Williamstown Brattleboro

STEINBECK
COLLISION REPAIR & AUTO BODY
53 S. Prospect St. Amherst Center
•Imports and other unibody vehicles are our speciality.
•Users of Sikkens paint products.
•Accepted by all insurance companies for collision repair or glass repair.
Remember
It's your car and your choice of repair facilities
256-8157 256-1385
Shop Reg # RS1212

the BLUEWALL presents
DISCO
Thursday, September 21, 1995
Boogie Down All Night Long
FREE ADMISSION
9:30 pm - 1:00 am
70's Costumes encouraged
With D.J.s Billy Arnold and Robert Dwelley
Lighting and Sound By: Audio Pro Media
Where D. Lincoln Campus Living 25th Anniversary
"Because Two Is Better Than One"

DAILY COLLEGIAN

113 Campus Center • University of Massachusetts Amherst, MA 01003 • (413) 545-3500 • Fax (413) 545-1592

Matt Vautour Editor-in-Chief Juan Jose Chacon Quiros de Quetzcoatl Managing Editor
Earl T. Martin Business Manager James P. Gurley Production Manager Ethan Bloxnfield Advertising Manager
Natasha Kahn Advertising Production Manager Wendy Darling Senior Diversity Editor

Tara MK Connelly Arts & Living Editor Candice Flemming Sports Editor
Position Vacant Black Affairs Editor Positions Vacant Staff Artists
Matt Wurtzel Business Editor Laura Schmidt, Aimee Schwartz Women's Issues Editors
Syed Mohammed Ali Raza Developing Nations Editor Marni E. Hellner Editorial Production Manager
Gen Sahn Editorial/Opinion Editor Adam Chace Systems Manager
Wendy Darling Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Issues Editor A.J. Stewart Finance Manager
Jacob W. Michaels Jewish Affairs Editor Ryan Courtemanche Distribution Manager
Hernan Rozemberg Multicultural Affairs Editor Maureen Majerowski Assistant Operations Manager
Chris Tasker Connec. News Editor Marry Pappas Classified Advertising
Daymion Smith Photography Editor Thomas F. Sweeney, Jr. Graphics Advisor/Instructor

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published Mondays through Fridays during the University of Massachusetts calendar semester. The Collegian is financially independent from the University of Massachusetts, operating solely on revenues generated by advertising sales. The paper was founded in 1890 as Aggie Life, became the College Signal in 1903, the Weekly Collegian in 1914 and then the Tri-Weekly Collegian in 1956. The Collegian has been published daily since 1967, and has been a broadsheet publication since January 1994. For advertising rates and information, call (413) 545-3500 weekdays between 8:30 a.m. and 5:30 p.m.

Pity not the answer

I can't even imagine. Man, what a shame. Poor woman has to go her whole life not being able to see. I can't fathom not being able to see people, things, the outdoors, the inside of a bus for that matter. Poor woman.

She was visually-impaired. She came onto the bus with her guiding stick, asked if the place she was going was on the route, and went to sit down. She asked if somebody could help her to an empty seat.

Andrew Bryce

"I'd rather not sit on somebody's lap," she said with a smile. I went to get up to help her, but another guy had already assisted her into the seat next to him.

On occasion, I'd glance over at the woman, and at first, all I could do was feel sorry for her. I myself was able to actually look at the persons sitting next to me, or walking outside on the sidewalk. I was able to see the beautiful outdoors. Yet this woman, robbed of her vision, did not have the chance to actually see what I was seeing.

I got off the bus, and I walked to my house. I closed my eyes for a little bit as I continued to walk.

Nothing. I could see darkness. It was black. There was no light. That's what the woman sees every day. Why? Why her? I feel so bad for her and all, yet I'm glad it's not me. I can't see anything. I better open my eyes before I hit something while I'm walking.

I open my eyes, and I see the same road that I saw when my eyes were first closed. I kept walking, shaking my head in sympathy for that woman on the bus. I then thought about those people trying to get around campus in a wheelchair. I thought about those who have sicknesses, diseases, infliction. I was on the verge of tears.

But the tears did not come. And I'm ever so glad.

For Chrissakes, I can't feel bad for her. I can't feel sorry for all of those people facing adversity. I mean, yeah, there's that surface level where it's understandable. Compassion can be uncontrollable at times. But pity? What the hell does that help? They don't want pity.

They don't. Just like you and me, they need love. They are the same as we are. They just have to be a bit stronger to fight through the difficult times.

If that woman on the bus sat around and felt sorry for herself for not being able to see, she probably would not have been on the bus going home after taking college classes. She wouldn't have been in good-spirits when she went on the bus had she felt self-pity.

My buddy has a brother with down syndrome. In their family, you can look at two people, and see love and strength at its very highest. The love in that kid's body is shown each time you see him, as he hugs you each time you go to his house. The strength is that of his family, namely his mother, who has the energy to take care of him day in and day out. That's what he needs. Not pity.

I walked into the house, and I layed down on my bed. I'd like to think that God gives strength to those who face adversity. I thought to myself.

The woman on the bus is strong enough to confront the world without being able to see it. My friend's brother goes through some rough times, but he encounters them head-on, along with the assistance of his mother.

I still can't imagine being in the same position. I'd like to think I'm lucky not to have lost my sight, and not to have had down syndrome. I know I take things for granted, that I don't realize how much I have.

But I also realize how much they really do have.

Andrew Bryce is a Collegian columnist.

UMass needs a Robin Hood

Occasionally I hear people joke about the size of Harvard University's endowment when the old Ivy League school is brought up in conversation.

Harvard's coffers contain $6 billion and grows each year, according to James K. Boyce, an economics professor at the University of Massachusetts. The trust is larger then some third world economies.

Not only is Harvard's endowment large, but the interest it accrues each year is larger then profits some of the nation's well known companies make each year.

If Harvard received the average rate of return of seven percent, then they would make a cool $420 million a year. The income tax rate for millionaires in Massachusetts is 31 percent, so the revenue the state could make on Harvard is $130 million.

The economic situation of Harvard for some maybe a laughing matter, but it is a tragedy for the state of Massachusetts and the public education system.

Harvard sustains itself solely on the interest the trust accumulates each year. Because Harvard is considered a non-profit organization, the endowment or it's interest can not be taxed by the state of Massachusetts.

Not only can the interest cover operating and various other costs of Harvard, but the $130 million the state could make in taxes could also cover a large part of operating the flagship of the state higher education system, the University of Massachusetts at Amherst.

The budget of UMass in the 1995 fiscal year was $450.8 million. Only $167.2 million was from state appropriations, the rest came from various other sources. However, the state could appropriate more to the University if they opened up the a new frontier of taxes.

Not only is Harvard's endowment large, but the interest it accrues each year is larger then profits some of the nation's well known companies make each year.

If Harvard received the average rate of return of seven percent, then they would make a cool $420 million a year. The income tax rate for millionaires in Massachusetts is 31 percent, so the revenue the state could make on Harvard is $130 million.

Matthew Wurtzel

Imagine if the state could not only tax Harvard, but the various other private universities and colleges through out the Commonwealth. Think of all the money sitting in the treasuries of Amherst College, Brandeis University, Boston University, Tufts University — the list could easily go on.

If the state were able to realize such a dream, there would be more then enough money to cover most of the budget of the whole education system from kindergarten through graduate school.

The state could be justified in an attempt to tax the well- endowed colleges. The sheer fact that universities can take part in for profit ventures with companies is enough justification. An excellent example is Boston University's ownership of WABU-TV, Boston's channel 68 which, at one point, was NBC's secondary affiliate.

The advantage of taxing private universities is they cannot move their operations to another state or abroad like a company. The costs of attempting a move for most of the universities would probably cost more than years of taxes. Besides very few colleges ever move.

The state could leave the less wealthy schools alone such as Hampshire College which lacks an excessively large endowment. The state would also be unable to tax the Catholic schools and the other religious institutions of higher learning because they would remain protected as non-profit, as most religious institutions are.

The belief that private institutions of higher learning are non-profit are old and archaic, so is the thought that they can not be taxed. It is time for change, so the poor and middle class receive the same education as the rich.

Matthew Wurtzel is a Collegian columnist.

Doonsbury By Gary Trudeau

Opinion/Editorial

THE ENVIRONMENTALISTS ARE ALWAYS COMPLAINING, BUT LET'S LOOK AT THE RECORD.
OUR AIR IS CLEANER, OUR WATER PURER, OUR FOOD SAFER.
THE ENVIRONMENTAL LAWS HAVE BEEN A SUCCESS.
SO NOW WE CAN REPEAL THEM.
THE UNWRITTEN CONTRACT.

Learning romance from trash

I am not a romantic person. In fact, I think romance, although a nice concept, isn't very realistic or long-lasting and is fleeting at best and tepid at most.

To me, a romantic gesture is something that should be looked upon with suspicion and doubt. I was once given a bouquet of flowers a scant 24 hours after meeting a man and the first thought that popped into my head was, "Why me?" and "What does he want?"

And it isn't because I had some god-awful break-up or got my heart trounced upon after a lengthy tryst. Maybe it has a lot to do with my confidence level or self-esteem or overly cynical and sarcastic nature, but I don't think so because I have a confession to make: I adore romance novels.

Yeah, romance novels, the kind with the cheesy, glossy cover with some titan-haired vixen — bosom-heaving, dress artistically-torn, clutching a muscular hero (usually Fabio) with rippling biceps and that dashing "you call this a hurricane" look as he manfully grasps a mast while a storm rages on in the background.

Tara MK Connelly

It all began in the sixth grade when my then-best friend Alicia stole a copy of her Mom's latest Johanna Lindsey novel. Thinking we were doing something elicit and "wrong" (I was raised an Irish Catholic), we gleefully read via flashlight the whole novel giggling, whispering and generally wondering what the phrase "world turned crimson and gold as she thrashed in ecstasy" meant.

Needless to say I was hooked and soon I had accumulated quite a few novels of my own hidden beneath my mattress. Soon the collection moved to my shelf behind the Judy Blume books and finally to the front — an act of vengeance by my brother.

So, what could I possibly get out of them? And why did I keep reading them? To be honest, it was like a drug and a means of escape from my boring life.

Oh, I didn't pretend to be the heroine, I didn't sympathize or relate to her. In fact, I scoffed, moaned and berated her for every stupid girlish act of weakness and rescue attempt she inevitably needed.

But I also became selective and jaded. I'd only read about women who made men chase them, who could shoot a gun, wield a sword or ride a horse.

I became drawn to the heroine who could play cards, raid ships and basically give as good as she got. Unbeknownst to me I found it interesting that these women of power and strength could be both hard and commanding but still retain some sort of femininity.

I can see all the feminists warming up there typewriter to slam me, but after a while I wondered what was so wrong with a woman needing a man? What was so wrong with wanting to be held and being appreciated because you look good. In what way did that make a woman less of a woman?

And yes, I even learned from these "stupid little bits of trash." For a while, I was drawn to 17th century historical romances and suddenly realized while sitting in European History that I already knew about the feudal system, arranged marriages and the English court because of that "trash." I would know stupid little facts, like how a hunt is organized and what a bailiwick was, all thanks to Amanda Quick, Julie Garwood and Judith MacNaught.

No, I wasn't one of those women who wished to meet the dark handsome stranger or the brooding earl or the reluctant bachelor. I know the difference between reality and fantasy. In fact, I think I have a better grasp in what the ideal guy is and what the ideal guy is not.

I even learned to tolerate romance. I realized it was a necessary part of life, of courting, of love. And maybe I'll never feel comfortable with it or use it in any shape way or form, but I'm aware of it and maybe deep down inside I secretly long for it. Maybe.

Oh, and the guy with the flowers? It turns out he thought I was the most interesting and practical person he'd ever met and wondered if I would like to have dinner later that week... wow, isn't that romantic.

Tara MK Connelly is a Collegian staff member

Notes from the Campus Center Basement

Tuesday was my 22nd birthday and I am starting to feel old. I knew I was starting to get old when I was in my Astronomy 100 class. There are about 100 students and they're all first-years. A friend of mine is also in the class. I got their early and mentioned to her, "these kids coming in are so young. These first-years are all baby-faced and look like my brother — wait a minute, my brother is a first-year this semester." What a realization. I guess I am starting to get old. Just don't ask me to buy for you.

* * * *

Coach Cal recently renegotiated his contract for ten more years and is rumored to have gotten $5 million. It's great that we support our faculty and staff, but we need to remember just that — Coach Cal is a coach, not a superstar. And even if he was a superstar, he shouldn't be getting five mil while most students are lucky to get five bucks an hour at an on-campus job. If we're not careful, Coach Cal could be the next Keith and Marcie Williams.

* * * *

It turns out my phone number is only one digit different from that of the Butterfield kitchen. I've had too many late- night phone calls from stoned-out, munchie-grubbing students wanting a sandwich and a soda. Those of you who are planning on calling Butterfield kitchen, please, please, make sure you get the number right — I definitely don't have any food in my room, and I don't deliver.

* * * *

Spam.

* * * *

It's my understanding the Coffee Shop workers still do not wear plastic gloves when they're making food. This is gross and a major health hazard. Maybe a phone call to the Board of Health is in order.

Marni E. Helfner

* * * *

The death of a fellow student has caused much grief across this campus. One young man is helping to aid in remedying that grief. Taft Bailey, a member of Alpha Phi Alpha, and an organizer of Tuesday's vigil is a fine human being.

Even though Bailey did not know Jack Toney, he saw something that needed to be done for the UMass community and did it. Thanks Taft.

* * * *

Hey, it's Minutemaniac time again. This year it'll be a lottery. I'm putting in for it, and I hope the fact that I'm a senior will get me near the top.

I still believe if I have to pay a $100 athletic fee, I should be able to get into any home athletic game for free. And I mean everything, from men's basketball to women's crew.

* * * *

To Michael Woroniecki (AKA the guy who "preached" in front of the library on Friday):

Get a clue. It's one thing if you want to push your political and religious beliefs on the rest of us, but please, please, do me two favors.

First, don't bring that cross with you — it's just plain creepy. Second, don't bring your kids and submissive wife.

Watching your brain-washed kids hand out pamphlets made my stomach turn. Let your kids grow up to make their own decisions about their religious beliefs. Force-feeding them to hate other people because of their differences will only make them the object of ridicule and anger.

* * *

Last but not least, I would like to briefly mention that winter is coming. Yes, the rumors are true, winter is coming. Tuesday night, my dad called to tell me there was an inch-and-a-half of snow on the ground in Wyoming. Snow will be here in beautiful western Massachusetts once again — perhaps sooner than you think. So remember, if there's snow on the ground, you probably shouldn't wear shorts and stand out and feed the ducks. That's how you freeze off vital private body parts.

Marni E. Helfner is a Collegian columnist.

Opinion / Editorial

Living on the border

The setting is a small dusty pueblo, just north of the Rio Grande, previously part of Mexico, now a Hispanic enclave in the United States. Two middle age men converse at a young immigrant women from Guatemala's tastens.

— Toussaint, Marti, Sandino, Farabundo, Zapata, Villa, Fonseca, el Che, Gallardo: todos muertos — they died years ago. Whatever was left, they killed meng.

— Don't be so discouraged, soon we'll all be dead, you with me, and with me my family, but we'll take as many gringos with us to the grave. What do you say meng?

Juan Jose Chacon Quiros de Quetzalcoatl

— It's been too long, no one believes in bullets for revolution anymore. Do you remember Pancho Villa when he came to the United States and he made fools of an entire division of Marines? That was real revolución! Today they use bullets for cocaine and it doesn't matter if you kill another hermano. Meng, Pancho fought for nosotros.

— So, have you seen the pictures of him? Belts of ammunition across his chest, weapons at hand, the biggest sombrero, all his friends waiting for the signal to fight. Ahh... and Zapata, now that is a héroe. I don't think there is a U.S. Army that can look him in the eye. He took over México City but after a few days decided they, as campesinos, did not belong there. They went right back to las montañas, but that didn't mean they had left behind la revolución. By doing this they took it one step further.

— Well if you want to talk about great revolutionaries, I say you learn about Toussaint L'Ouverture. Of all the wars of national liberation in the Americas, the one in Haiti was the only one to be synonymous with the emancipation of the disenfranchised. Toussaint fought everyone: the British, the French, the Spanish and the Gringos. He defeated all the imperialists to convert a group of slaves into a nation of proud citizens. Can you imagine today, a black revolution in this country...

— Now that you mention it, I remember when I visited la Tia Julia in Nueva York. Meng, I saw Toussaint all over, walking down Park Avenue, in Alphabet City, up in Harlem, and down in the Loeasida. Coño, I said to myself, if only they knew that they can be just like Toussaint.

— Well, what about those Chicanos in California that voted for 187? I wish Villa had been there to shoot them as they left the voting booth, and also a few of those "Gringo Dudes" from Bel Air.

— Meng, we're getting too old for this mierda. This is no way to live la vida. Maybe is time for me to go back to Guanajuato. Perhaps I can find my old cache of weapons, check if anyone is still alive from el tiempo de la revolución. We could probably kidnap a few gringos like those Al-Farans I saw on Univision and hold them ransom until we get the pueblo back into Mexico. When we do, let's shoot them all.

— You old Borrachos, I guess you have nothing better to do than to drink Mezcal and repeat all those stories again and again. Meng here and meng there, can't you say womeng for once? If you lived in Quetzaltenango we would kick your lazy culo. You talk of revolucion all day when down there where we're really trying to do it you would never survive. And by the way, get a job!

— Womeng, if that is what you want, let me tell you about when I was your age. We would walk out from this valley to shoot some Yankees and come back with a few scalps like the old Atalcoatl...

— This is total mierda! Is life worth living with a body that is corrupted and in bad condition? Look at you, and you call yourselves revolutionaries! With meng like you everything will be left up to us womeng... and don't you worry we already fought in Nicaragua, El Salvador and Guatemala. Al diablo with you!

The dust swirls in circles around the long shadows cast by the late afternoon sun. "Maria," called the mother, "trae el agua." The two meng wearily pry open the half-filled bottle of Mezcal. Another afternoon at the pueblo on the border.

Juan Jose Chacon Quiros de Quetzalcoatl is a Collegian Columnist.

Questioning freedom in America

American freedom is a fallacy. It is a Jack Kerouac and Easy Rider nightmare. Individual liberty has been thwarted by a conservative web, the powers that be have spun around jaded, confused Americans.

Society seems to be in a constant state of flux between decadence and conservatism. The '60s brought revolution, leaving the hangover of the '70s. The conservative '80s left us in our strange post-modern hangover. Decadence brought down Rome and conservatism brought down the communist countries, so it is up to the individual to keep our leaders from pulling us too far in either direction.

I should have stayed in Amsterdam. I'm tired of watching America slowly self-destruct. We dangle the vices of youth just out of reach, even after being given the right to vote, marry, drive and die for our country.

Jeremy Hurewitz

Today we seem to be moving in a conservative, or more precisely, restrictive direction. America is no longer the wild land of freedom it was 100 years ago. Today our politicians devise ways to expunge our personal liberties, like moving toward the criminalization of tobacco, rather than deal with important issues like health care and the national debt. They'd rather stick their heads in the sand and blindly point fingers, then stand up and take on the problems threatening our future.

Personally, I'm tired of having my personal liberty's infringed upon. In the past two years I have been arrested twice over ridiculous things: once, here on campus, for possession of alcohol (a case of beer!), and recently in New York City's Washington Square Park for smoking a joint. Actually it was a roach when they cuffed me and charged me with criminal possession of marijuana, a class A misdemeanor that carries a maximum penalty of one year in jail (all for a roach?).

As that pig lead me away, past shady drug dealers in jumpsuits and pedophiles in trenchcoats, I said, "Hey man, can't you cut me a break? I guess I've been in Amsterdam too long and it was only a roach." "No way," he stated.

I should have stayed in Amsterdam. I'm tired of watching America slowly self-destruct. We dangle the vices of youth just out of reach, even after being given the right to vote, marry, drive and die for our country. This establishes them as taboo and spawns alcoholics and junkies out of some of our best young people. I've seen it. Indeed I may be an example of it.

In Europe, with the exception of the Irish, most young people did not booze as hard as my friend and I, simply because it had been around them all their lives and offered no enticements that American youths seek from the forbidden fruit. Furthermore, none of the Dutch kids I met got high regularly — it just wasn't that exciting to them.

What's the answer? A war of attrition, popular resistance. Don't let your freedom be infringed upon by some gun- toting fascist. Stand up for yourselves and continue to live the way you want. And lastly, in this election year, vote for the lesser of the two or three evils. If Bob Dole or, God forbid, Pat Robertson becomes president, I will sooner become an Expatriate than be squashed under the bony finger of those dour-faced, gray-haired wizards of bureaucracy.

Jeremy Hurewitz is a UMass student.

Shaking hands with the unemployed

I love to masturbate. I first learned to "stroke my monkey" in the sixth grade. Ever since then, I have been in my glory. Unfortunately, many of you have already judged me for something that is so natural, quite rewarding and something you probably have all done.

Masturbation is a gift and we should all take advantage of it.

I remember in high school, all my friends would blush at the slightest comment dealing with masturbation. Probably many of them were embarrassed to admit that they enjoy the act of sex. Especially with all those confusing questions that evolve around sexuality.

In today's society, masturbation has become stigmatized and thought as a bad intention. The former Surgeon General, Joycelin Elders, was fired because she promoted safe ways of masturbation. She was probably doing our society a favor by teaching us about human sexuality.

In today's society, masturbation has become stigmatized and thought as a bad intention. The former Surgeon General, Joycelin Elders, was fired because she promoted safe ways of masturbation. She was probably doing our society a favor by teaching us about human sexuality.

Daymion Smith

In a world of teenage pregnancy, AIDS, sexually- transmitted disease, we need to protect ourselves.

Abstinence is full-proof, but masturbation with yourself is safe and in my opinion, better. Joycelin was the only one who had the "balls" to admit that most men and women start masturbating and exploring their bodies at a young age.

Masturbation doesn't necessarily mean orgasm. I learned that in my peer health class. Elders understood what it is to be human, that we have needs and sexual drives.

Did we forget that we are humans, we are animals and we like sexual pleasure? Furthermore, when I was an adolescent, I felt so guilty every time I ran into the bathroom, locked the door and leaned over the toilet to ejaculate (since then I've learned better ways to masturbate.)

However, I shouldn't feel guilty. Instead, I should feel good about myself and realize that I'm comfortable with my own body. Then in the future, if I decide to become intimate with another person, I will know my own body and what will work. And hopefully vise-versa.

Furthermore, when I was younger, I feared that my palms would grow thick, black hair on them from the result of masturbation. I have realized now after thousands of times of "jerking off" this was a false rumor and I am freed of humiliation.

My intention is not to promote masturbation, that is your choice. My message is that if you are doing it... keep plugging away. If your not, your missing out on one heck of a ride.

Daymion Smith is a Collegian staff member.

Learning to live with losing a friend

On Saturday, I called my friend, Martin. "Mark is dead," he said. My friend, Mark, who once said, "tomatoes don't agree with me. Nobody really knows why," died of liver disease last Thursday. It was so like him to play down his own problems, to let me babble about how I can't eat mint, and not mention his liver.

I guess he had flu symptoms for a week or two, until he was rushed by helicopter to Cooley Dickinson Hospital. It was too late for a transplant.

My great-grandmother died last week, too. I keep thinking how I should have brought my fiance to meet her. I kept planning on it. Listening to my grandmother say the gay couple and the lesbian couple who lived in the duplex across the street "should be paired up" never seemed as important as going to work, or even doing my laundry. And I knew she was dying.

Amy Paradysz

Mark's death just doesn't feel real, though.

The last time I saw him was at the Campus Center Ballroom poster sale last semester. He was holding a picture of the Cystine Chapel, with Adam's finger reaching for God's. As I bought it, he said, "I'll see you."

I keep remembering the way he held Martin's newborn child, his thin fingers wrapped around the baby's head and his eyes open wide with awe and fear.

"Wow," he said, "Am I doing this right?"

"When I saw him lying there on the deathbed, I thought it was OK, because he would rise again in three days," said Martin. "You know, the way he looked like Jesus."

When I try to sleep, I remember the way Mark would rub his thumb against his beard when he was thinking. He looked like that Greek statue, the thinker.

"You know what I think?" he said. "All the religions are so amazingly interconnected."

He spent his time thinking about homeless people, trying to come up solutions for the problem in the Northampton area. When he got a job as a health aide, he was so excited to get to know his patient. After graduating from Gordon College, he didn't get a full-time job or anything like that. He didn't need the money. He lived simply, but with style.

"Really, he was kind of a slacker," I said to Martin, as we shared memories.

"No," said Martin. "He didn't have anything to slack from."

He was a tall, dignified-looking man, but he would jump up and down if he knew the Trivial Pursuit answer. He was respectful, intelligent and good-hearted. I never saw him yell.

Martin confessed, "the rest of my life, I'll never be able to live up to him."

But with Mark, life wasn't a competition or a race. If it was, he would have let someone else win. And he wouldn't have been too busy.

Amy Paradysz is a Collegian staff member.

The 90's feminist; a new definition

Bra-burning feminists in the '60s, reproductive freedom fighters in the '70s, supermoms in the '80s, what is the all- encompassing word that society has chosen for feminists in the '90s?

There isn't one. Today a feminist can be anybody walking down the street. You can't tell by looking at someone what his or her personal views are. Oh, don't worry, the stereotypical feminist still exists, but the definition, if not the perception, of a feminist has changed.

In previous years, feminists were viewed as loud, adamant, man-hating, political whiners who wanted to achieve female superiority, not equality with men.

This perception of feminists evolved from the fact that people began to express their anger about how women have been treated in the past. People's anger and their desire to change the way women were treated in society was not understood and therefore feminists were given a negative stereotype.

Aimee Schwartz

Since the 1960s, the Feminist Movement has gone through many changes. Before the 1990s, feminists had one goal, to gain the rights that men had. This translated into doing everything possible to get women into the workforce, not as an exception, but as a rule.

Rebecca Walker spoke about the 1990's Third Wave of Feminism here at UMass last semester. As I sat in the audience listening to her speak, I felt surprised because the views she expressed in her speech resembled the views I hold as a young feminist today.

Women in the '90s can be whatever they want. If a woman chooses to marry, have many children and not get a job outside the home, she should not be criticized as being a trader to the Feminist Movement.

For me, feminism is about standing up for the things you believe in. It is all about choice and being able to go as far as you want to go on the path you choose.

The Feminist Movement has broken down some of the barriers that have kept women from choosing their own path.

In the 1800s and early 1900s women were discouraged from pursuing a higher education. Before 1920, women were not allowed to vote. It was almost unheard of to have a woman in a supervisory position before 1980. In all of these examples, women were not given a choice. They were told by society what to do.

The Feminist Movement of the '90s has grown and has more than one goal. Because women are a heterogeneous group, the movement has to have enough room in it to accept and further everyone's personal belief of what a woman can become. Not every woman wants the same thing in life.

Any person can be a feminist. You don't have to be involved in every political issue involving women to call yourself a feminist. Stand up for what you believe in; destroy the obstacles that stand in your or anyone else's way that you believe are wrong and you can call yourself a feminist.

Aimee Schwartz is a Collegian staff member.

Letters to the Editor

Abolishing affirmative action

To the Editor:

David K. Chan's editorial In the Back to School issue is indeed a convincing attack on the many disadvantages of affirmative action, but I write this rebuttal mainly on his sureness that affirmative action can and should be revised.

Mr. Chan concludes his essay by saying that "quality programs... should be made available and accessible to disadvantaged children of all backgrounds," yet states that ability, not race or gender, should be the deciding factor in getting hired by top employers and being admitted into prestigious colleges.

The United States cannot have affirmative action and believe that all needy people will be treated equally regardless of color; they would be destroying the purpose.

I think many would agree that the intent of affirmative action is to make up for past discrimination. However, the part I despise the most about affirmative action is the punishment that is included which not only hurts the descendants of such facilitators of atrocities, which are predominantly white, but also closes the door on people of backgrounds who are under the stereotype of over-achievement, such as Asians.

Mr. Chan neglects to discuss how such injustice will still exist under some "mended" form of preferences.

It is my conclusion that affirmative action must be abolished. If Congress can eliminate all the bureaucracy involved with extending and running affirmative action offices, then we Americans are better apt to prepare disadvantaged persons "of all backgrounds" for better quality education via block grants to the state legislatures that facilitate our schools.

Benjamin Gaumond
Washington

Defending Weaver

To the Editor:

It's nice to see that your columnist Peter Orvetti is fitting in so well with the paranoid fiction writing media of the '90s. His column in the Sept. 15 Collegian is so far from the truth it's criminal.

Randy Weaver may not have had beliefs that run with the most American beliefs, but in this country it's supposed to be OK to be believe what you want to. The Federal Government that's supposed to protect our right to freedom shot down a child and a mother with a baby in her arms for no good reason. Your use of the words "accidental shooting" show me how tainted you are in this issue.

Randy Weaver's gun arsenal didn't amount to squat compared with what most drug dealers on city streets walk around with daily. Why must the media always attack any gun owner as a crazed, Nazi-type person?

The unfortunate truth is that the paranoid ranting of the liberal media have the heads of the F.B.I and ATF so trigger-happy that they're up to using a small size military force to capture one family out in the Idaho woods.

Put any red-blooded American against a hostile group threatening their family and I bet they would fight with any means available to them.

As a Federal taxpayer, I think we do owe Mr. Weaver some kind of settlement. Would your wife and child be worth only a measly $3.1 million? Not mine, Peter! As a matter of fact, as a tax payer, I'd rather see my tax dollar go to Mr. Weaver than to some anti-gun, anti-freedom loving one-sided individual such as yourself.

J.R. Recore
Conway

To change America

To The Editor:

I slept out in the cold last night, do you know why? Because you voted for either Clinton or Bush in the last election. Both the Democratic and Republican parties have become the parties of the rich minority.

When the U.S. voters wake up and start selecting their own candidates for president, senator and congressman instead of voting for the rich man's selections, we will begin to solve this country's problems.

We've been playing according to a set of economic rules bought by means of bribery. This is why the gap between the rich and poor keeps widening. And conditions keep worsening.

How did a minority of less than 1 percent take over our government?

They did it by dividing us up into working, unemployed, white, colored, new immigrant, old immigrant, pro-life, pro- choice, liberals, conservatives, moderates, jailed non-jailed, male, female, etc.

The common people of this country have never stood together for their own good.

Jay Gould, whom Cornelius Vanderbilt called "the smartest man on Wall st.," said he could pay half the working-people to lock up their hate.

What did we have to gain by deciding to take majority control of this government: full employment, an end to homelessness, an end to crime wave, control of the economy, an end to inflation, depression and recessions, an end to U.S. terrorism in Central America and other areas, an end to torture, beatings and rape in U.S. prisons, an end to domination by a few rich families, a government that has quality of life as its moving force — not make money and power, and freedom.

The Unites States lags far behind the European countries in social benefits such as health insurance because we are not unified by nationality as they are.

We need to see each other as one people who are only hurting each other by our bickering.

We need to get rid of the bribed politicians, bribed news media and bribed schools.

We need to form a group in each state and nominate and elect out own candidates for president, senator and congressman for 1996.

The United States will then be, for the first time, a free country, and we will be responsible citizens.

John Harrington
Springfield

Film • Music • Theatre • Lifestyles • Books • Art
The Massachusetts Daily Collegian
ARTS & LIVING
Thursday, September 21, 1995
Weekend Edition • Volume CV Issue 12

Examining 'Simpsons' whodunit

Not since the "Who Shot J.R." storyline on the prime-time drama "Dallas," has there been such a suspenseful series finale until last May on the cartoon series, "The Simpsons."

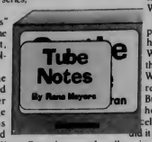
Last year's season of "The Simpsons" came to a shocking conclusion when the owner of the Springfield power plant, Montgomery Burns was shot and then collapsed on the Springfield sun dial.

For the past six seasons of "The Simpsons" Burns has been the most hated man in Springfield, more so than ever when oil was found underneath the Springfield Elementary School. Burns decides to drill there. This oil caused Moe's Tavern to shut down, as well as Grandpa Simpson's nursing home, and at the same time Smithers, Burns' loyal assistant, lost his job.



So, when someone shot Burns, it was no surprise to anyone, and everyone in the town was a suspect, which made it even harder for Police Chief Wiggum to find the culprit.

To help out the viewers before the anticipated series premiere aired, there was a half-hour special of "America's Most Wanted" hosted by John Walsh. Except, in this case it was called Springfield's Most Wanted. This special began with an entire recollection of the life of Montgomery Burns. Throughout this special, different homicide experts as well as television celebrities talked about who they thought did it and why.

I really enjoyed this segment because it gave me the

Turn to SIMPSONS, page 12

How Fair Art Thou?

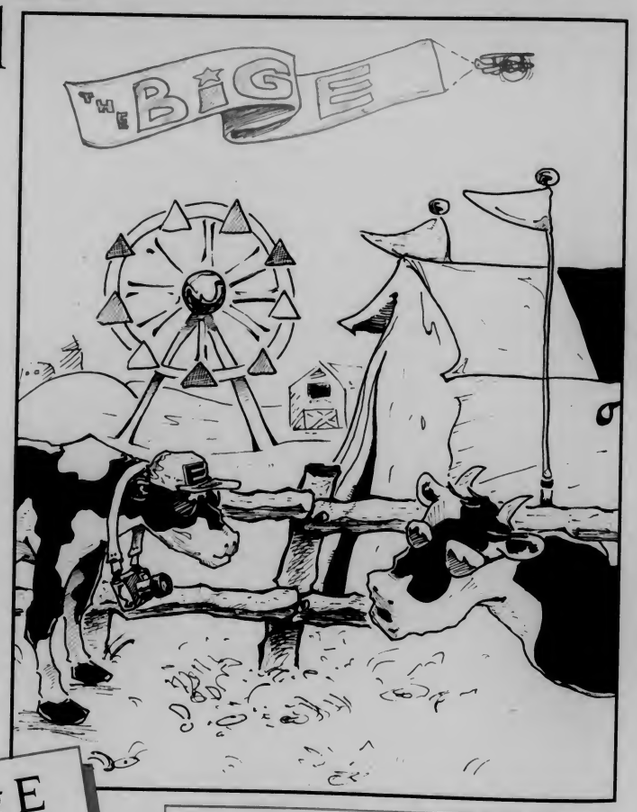
It's the biggest and most anticipated New England Fair — it's the Big E '95



'Fairing' at the Big E

By Tara MK Connelly
Collegian Staff

The wonders of a fair

Every year thousands of people come together and celebrate life, liberty and the pursuit of a good pumpkin.

No, it isn't just some county fair with stereotypical characters like Minnie May and Bobby Joe moon-ing in a haystack after the pie-baking contest in which Minnie May won first prize only to have it revoked by the judges after finding out the recipe came from — — New York City! Ah, no no no!

This isn't your typical country fair — it's the 74th edition of The Eastern States Exposition (The Big E). New England's Great State Fair which has been running in West Springfield since Sept. 15.

For the second year in a row, the Big E has expanded it's schedule to include five extra days of fun-filled excitement. And is there really anything else in the world quite like a fair?

It's the feeling of bundling up in a warm sweater breathing in the brisk Fall air as you pass stalls full of cheesy glam rock T-shirts, artificial Flay Bans and Italian sausage liberally mixed with the scent of cotton candy and hot apple cider.

It's the slap of the coins hitting the little circles of colors in the hope (or fear) of winning one of the gigantic stuffed dogs that you know you don't really need, but want to claim as your very own anyway. Or perhaps it's the knowledge that, hey, you may not have mastered astro-physics, but you sure can shoot that stream of water into the clowns mouth and pop that balloon faster than anyone else.

It's hearing the call of the local vendors as you pass through the dubious looking

Turn to BIG E, page 13

All the things to do:

By Mike MacLean
Collegian Staff

The Big E is virtually bursting at the seams with events and sights for people of all walks of life and has been a staple of Western Massachusetts culture for many years. Your college years would not be complete without at least one trip to this fair of fairs. Here's a preview of some of the major happenings at the fair to help you experience zesty fair goodness.

Appearing on the Miller Genuine Draft Stage:

The Tokens: Sept. 20 – 24 for two shows a day at Noon and 4 p.m. which will be sure to include their hit, "The Lion Sleeps Tonight."

Ricky Van Shelton: Sept. 23 at 2 p.m. and 8 p.m. for a day of shoe stompin' country music madness.

Travis Tritt: Sept. 24 at 8 p.m. One show only!

Lisa Brokop: Did your truck break down and your dog gone and died? Sept. 25 – 29 at 2 p.m. and 8 p.m. Lisa Brokop continues the country stylings until you have purged yourself of all the sorrow.

The Shangri-Las: The days of slick hair and poodle skirts are back when the Shangri-Las take the stage Sept. 25 – Oct 1 at Noon and 4 p.m.

Spin Doctors: For one show on Sept. 30 at 8 p.m. My how the mighty have fallen.

Tom Jones: The forever hip Jones will be on hand to close out the stage shows on Oct. 1 at 8 p.m. I guess it's not

Turn to FREE SHOWS, page 12

Collegian Art By Ron Algeri • Layout & Design by Maria L. Haffner & Tara MK Connelly

SHORT CUTS

Edited by Tara MK Connelly

Quotes of Note

Brad Pitt

"I knew this guy named Cash Register. For real. His parents must have really not wanted kids. There's a little bit of anger there. I have to be careful what I name my boys."
— Brad Pitt when asked if people made fun of his name when he was growing up.

"I adore `Beavis and Butthead.' It is an extraordinary, powerful and important piece of work. It also makes me laugh like a drain." — Patrick Stewart

"I think it's a good, humbling experience to scrub behind your own toilet." — Natalie Merchant

People and Pop Culture in the News

Does anyone know why Antonio Banderas is dating Melanie Griffith? And does anyone know why Don Johnson has returned to TV land in another detective show called "Offbeat?"

David Letterman is certainly a man about town. frequently seen dropping in on the "Regis and Kathie Lee Show" and sometimes "interrupting" Dan Rather. He has managed to make yet another cameo appearance. This time the gap tooth wonder interrupts the "Ricki Lake" show, snatching the Top Ten list out of her hand and handing her the card containing the shows topic: "I Pretend to Like You... But I Really Can't Stand You." Paul Schaffer can also be seen leading the "Go Ricki" chant at the end of the show.

Tom Cruise is wrapping up his Mission Impossible shoot in London and his next project will be to spend time with his kids. Also taking time out is Elle Macpherson, who is vacationing in Saint-Trupez. Three became four when Supermodel Christy Turlington joined the Fashion Cafe chain and a new one will open up in London.

Magic Johnson will receive a cool $400,000 from a Philippine company for an AIDS-prevention speaking tour beginning in October.

The much-anticipated Showgirls is coming out Sept. 22 and everyone has their eye on Elizabeth Berkley. Incidentally, the actress has been dancing since she was four but because she was so tall, she knew she couldn't make a career out of it — oh well.

Lauren Hutton has made yet another comeback. First as the feisty spokesperson for Revlon and then as a J. Crew catalogue model. Now she's a prime-time soap star on "Central Park West" and she is a late night talk show host on "Lauren Hutton and..."

Hats off for Orville Redenbacker, King of Popcorn, who passed away. He used over 30 different blends of corn to make his product and for that we will be forever grateful.

Material for this column has been compiled from various news and wire services by Tara MK Connelly.

Editors' Cuts

Food — Jerry Garcia

You know, the worst joke I ever heard was one my friend David told me over the summer after Jerry Garcia died. It went something like this: Hey did you hear Ben & Jerry came out with a new ice cream flavor? It's called Berry Jerry.

Sick? Yes. But appropriate considering the time. However, the real ice cream flavor named after the deceased musician is Cherry Garcia and some even go as far as to call it ambrosia. Big sweet bing cherries mixed in with large luscious chunks of solid dark chocolate and swirled throughout a creamy, slightly cherry flavored ice cream — pure heaven.

Maybe it's an acquired taste but once you start there's no going back. Try it and see just how good Cherry Garcia can be.

— Tara MK Connelly

Concerts — UConn

Fugazi, Swirlies and J Mascis may all be playing in Northampton on Friday but the real killer of a show is down in Storrs, Conn. on the UConn campus.

Appearing as part of a mini music festival concentrating on female rock bands, several of the area's best bands are playing. Headlining the show is Containe from NYC, featuring Fontaine Toups of Versus. While lacking the noise attack of Versus, Containe makes up for it with soothing and beautiful melodies.

Also on the lineup is Syrup USA, Liquorice, Ida and Tizzy. Syrup USA featuring Seana Carmody, ex-Swirlies, is one of the best Boston bands of the past few years. Both Ida and Liquorice, featuring the intriguing guitarwork of Dan Littleton plus Jenny Toomey (of Tsunami) sings for Liquorice. Tizzy is Northampton's best export in years.

— Mike Burke

Radio — WAMH

This past week the area's best radio station, WAMH returned to the airwaves. Out of Amherst College, the station is run all by students.

During the week the station features new rock by many of today's underground heroes such as Superchunk, Excuse Seventeen, and Guided By Voices. In the evening the program is more diverse with shows featuring rap, dance, and goth.

Often on Sunday nights local bands perform live in the WAMH studios. Past performers have included such bands as Tizzy and Pangloss. Look for a Mitchells show in the upcoming future.

So next time you turn on the radio, move the dial down to the left and stop at 89.3.

— Mike Burke

Collegian Graphics
We're up all night putting together New England's Largest College Daily Newspaper.
When our job is done — your day is just beginning.

Collegian Classifieds They Work! 545-3500

We Deliver
Kai Chi
To UMass
Chinese-American Cuisine
Restaurant & Bar
Mt. Farms Mall, Rt. 9 Hadley • 586-2774
Open Sun-Thurs 12-11 pm
Fri-Sat 12-3 am
DINNER SPECIALS
Save up to 30% OFF
Complete Dinners with your choice of Soup • Appetizer • Entree • Dessert
All For One Great Low Price!

PELOTON SPORTS
Yo! Students!! Yo! Students!!
3 Big Reasons To Shop At Peloton
#1 FREE Micro Shell Helmet
#2 FREE 6 ft. Self Coil Lock
#3 MONGO Low Prices
BUY A NEW/USED BIKE (OVER $200) FOR #3 & GET #1 AND #2 FREE!!!
Students Only Please!!
(Must present a valid College ID at time of Sale)
Great Bikes! Low Prices! Free Stuff!
Worth a Trip to Noho
PELOTON SPORTS
15 State St. • 584-1016

ATTENTION TECHNICAL & BUSINESS MAJORS!!!
MAJOR CORPORATIONS WITH EARLY INTERVIEW OPPORTUNITIES AT THE CAREER CENTER!
Change Lanes NEW ROUTE OPENED 10 Some U-Turns THE UMASS CAREER CENTER Where the Present Meets the Future RETURN TO SCHOOL ZONE DETOURS 30 No Limits NO ONE-WAY 20 CONSULT MAPS
Bring 2 copies of your resume for each position to the Career Center TODAY! For more information contact Terri McIntosh at 545-6263

COMPANY: General Electric Company
INTERVIEW DATE: 10/10, 10/11
POSITION: Information Management Leadership
MAJORS: CSE COMP MGMT EE IE ACCT MATH
RESUME DEADLINE: Wednesday, Sept. 27 at Noon

COMPANY: General Electric Company
INTERVIEW DATE: 10/10, 10/11
POSITION: Technical Leadership Program
MAJORS: CHE ME
RESUME DEADLINE: Wednesday, Sept. 27 at Noon

COMPANY: Procter & Gamble, R&D Division
INTERVIEW DATE: 10/12, 10/13
POSITION: Analyt., Phys., Organic, Inorganic, Chemist, Polymer Scientists MAJORS: BIOCHEM, CHEM, POLY
RESUME DEADLINE: Wednesday, Sept. 27 at Noon

COMPANY: Sanders/A Lockheed Martin Corp
INTERVIEW DATE: 10/12
POSTION: Electrical Engineers
MAJORS: COMP EE
RESUME DEADLINE: Wednesday, Sept. 27 at Noon

Celebrating a decade of Night Life
Pearl Street
WEDNESDAY GAY NIGHT With Special Guest D.J.'s
THURSDAY 18+ DANCE PARTY Hosted by Nick Danger of Today's Whup! The Area's Biggest Dance Party. Music by Spin, Inc.
FRIDAY RETRO NIGHT Music From the 70s 80s & 90s With D.J. DENNIS 9:00 pm - 1:00 am "FREE ADMISSION WITH THIS AD"
SATURDAY MODERN ROCK DANCE PARTY Featuring Music by Bush, Better Than Ezra, Starfish, Nine Inch Nails, Letters to Cleo and more.
LIVE MUSIC...
Thur., Sept. 21 - 7:30 pm 18+ HOME / PHINEAS GAGE Amanda's Dirty Secret / Driftwood
Fri., Sept. 22 - 7:00 pm All Ages FUGAZI - Sold Out Downstairs 8:30 pm 18+ SYNAESTHESIA
Sat. Sept 23 - 7:30 pm All Ages MEPHISKAPHELES /SPRING HEELED JACK Nigel 6 / Bankshot
Tues., Sept. 26 - 8:00 pm 18+ BELLY Fuzzy
Thurs., Sept. 28 - 8:30 pm All Ages LIFE OF AGONY Lordz of Brooklyn
Fri., Sept. 29 - 8:30 pm 18+ BIM SKALA BIM Steady Earnest / SMA
Sat. Sept. 30 -8:30 pm ROOMFUL OF BLUES Hot Hammer Soup
Sun., Oct. 1 - 8:00 pm 18+ MACEO PARKER
Mon., Oct. 2 - 8:00 pm THE FABULOUS THUNDERBIRDS Mark Nomad Band
Tues., Oct. 3 - 8:00 pm JOE ELY / JAMES McMURTRY
COMING
10/5 DAR WILLIAMS 18+
10/6 JOHN SHELDON & BLUE STREAK
10/7 FILTER / Everclear 18+ (Sold)
10/7 POSSUM DIXON / Miss Reed (Comedy)
10/9 MIKE WATT 18+
10/12 MURPHY'S LAW All Ages
10/13 THE MACHINE 18+
10/15 MARIANNE FAITHFUL
10/17 LITTLE FEAT
10/20 THROWING MUSES 18+
10/24 SOUTHERN CULTURE
10/27 BETTY
10/28 G. LOVE & THE SPECIAL SAUCE 18+
10/30 JIM ROSE CIRCUS SIDESHOW 18+
10/31 MACHINEHEAD ALL AGES
Tickets for all shows available at N.Y.C. Box office $30-8686, 1-800-THE-TICK, Strawberries, For The Record in Amherst, Music Store in Greenfield
10 Pearl Street in Northampton 413-584-1572

~ BOOKS ~

Check out new book releases to keep you reading

By Tara MK Connelly
Collegian Staff

Want to keep abreast of the literary world? Here is a list and short synopsis of some of the latest releases hot off the presses.

PAUL LINDSEY
Gentkill
Villard Books

Set in Detroit, this murder/thriller takes you to the streets of Detroit where a serial killer stalks FBI agents, gunning then down.

Tackling the case for the distraught FBI is agent Mike Dewil, rouge G-man who believes the key to it all lies in the cities hospital and a case he was investigating there.

See how Lindsey combines the two cases in this cynical and suspenseful crime novel.

MARTHA STEWART
Martha Stewart's Collected Recipes For Every Day
Crown

You have to admire a woman who can tile her entire swimming pool floor in discarded credit cards recreating the birth of Venus. You also have to admire the fact that she makes a living out of being a professional homemaker/socialite.

So, it's no wonder this towering pillar of womanhood has managed to put together the all-purpose cooking book to make every meal, holiday and special event a smashing success.

Next to Julia Child and Jeffery Smith this book is a must have for serious and not so serious cooks who want to get it right every time.

JONATHAN RAUCH
Demosclerosis
Time

When you say the word "government" many things come to mind, a few adjectives that sound appropriate are "inefficient" and "gridlock." However, it wasn't always that way and there may be a way to levin the issue.

The hows and whys of the problem are examined in this brilliant book that examines how interest groups have created Washington's terrible gridlock and inefficiency.

Hailed in 1994 as the book for the future, Rauch has updated it and added a new afterward.

TOM PETERS
Excellence Aerobics
Vintage

Turn to BOOKS, page 10

~ MOVIES ~

Spike Lee back to form with new film Clockers

Director's latest release puts him back in touch with what he does best: making movies

By Michael Pessah
Collegian Staff

CLOCKERS
Directed by Spike Lee
with Harvey Keitel, John Turturro, Delroy Lindo

A body lies face up in the parking lot of Ahabs, a restaurant on the outskirts of Brooklyn's Gawanis housing projects. The camera examines it in clinical detail: the pallid skin, the milky eyes, the bullet lodged uncannily in the victims jaw. The only things in Spike Lee's Clockers more jaded than the camera (masterfully worked by Malik Sayeed) are the people that it claims to speak for.

The body is examined by the local detectives, led by Lt. Rocco (Harvey Keitel). Detectives on the scene appear to be unmoved by the brutality of the crime. They seem to go out of their way to prove to each other how unaffected they are. After all, no cop is going to be perturbed by "just another dead 'yo'."

Spike Lee has finally reached his potential as a filmmaker with Clockers. Perhaps it is because Lee feels less threatened by the Hollywood establishment (after six high profile studio films), or it could be because his efforts are more focused (since Clockers is based upon a best–selling novel). Regardless of cause, Spike Lee has finally grown up.

Spike Lee began his studio filmmaking career with 1988 sophomoric farce School Daze. Though flawed, School Daze exhibited Lee's trademark camerawork and wittiness.

Lee followed School Daze up with the ground breaking Do the Right Thing, which was an amazingly brave parable of racism and loyalty. It was as if Lee wanted to examine neighborhood dynamics without extraneous variables of drugs and crime. The Bed-Stuy neighborhood in Do the Right Thing was intentionally unrealistic, even cartoonish (as was his arty, N.Y.U.-influenced direction).

The rest of Lee's work continued to emphasize his talent as a satirist and social anthropologist and deemphasized any inclination toward cinema verite. His Malcolm X disregarded historical fastidiousness in exchange for Spanticus–like proportions.

With Clockers, Lee has managed to pull off a remarkable feat: he was able to take his talent at creating montistic mosaics and synthesize it with a shocking new ability as a street documentarian.

The Brooklyn neighborhood (a location shift from the New Jersey setting of the novel) looked so realistic, that it could be seen on the New York local news. The dialogue, make–up and costumes were all dramatically lifelike (if a bit dated). The screenplay was so authentic, that some audiences will have trouble following it.

Not that Clockers has an identity crisis. It is without question a Spike Lee 'joint.' It has a richness of character, and a sense of playful risktaking that are instantly recognizable as Lee's fingerprint.

The story revolves around the aforementioned body. It apparently is the corpse of a small time drug dealer that was stealing from Rodney (Delroy Lindo, in the performance of the year) the local kingpin. The cops instantly suspect Rodney's crony, Strike (Mekhi Phifer). Strike appears to be the obvious suspect — he has a long criminal record, bad street reputation and gangsta attitude.

Before the police can arrest Strike, his brother Victor (Isaiah Washington) walks into the station and confesses to the crime. Victor claims to have made the killing in self defense, but his story in unsubstantiated. Additionally, the detectives cannot find anyone in the neighborhood that won't swear that Victor is anything but a saint. One of his former coworkers said, "Victor always put please and thank you in a sentence. He either said 'Please, no thank you. Or no thank you, please.'"

Is Victor lying to protect his brother? If so, will Strike come forward? Will the law ever catch up with Rodney? These are some of the issues Clockers deals with.

In an interview with Roger Ebert, Spike Lee once lamented the absence of games on inner city streets. Hopscotch, Stickball, Jacks. "These are games any city kid learns... Now some kids don't even know how to ride a bike... All they know is Nintendo and Sega."

Lee crafts his concern into a powerful subplot concerning a young boy (Pee Wee Love) who spends all of his time playing violent video games, and imitating Strike. Strike is flattered by the boys attention and does little to discourage it. By the middle of Clockers every member of the audience was hoping that the boy wouldn't be another street casualty.

In the background of all the action in Clockers, Lee paints a backdrop of an area in decline. This is the first movie to truly bring to life the drudgery of the ghetto. Lee's Brooklyn isn't the gun–toting zoo of New Jack City, but is instead a depressed and boring world where the brave can hang out on benches and the cautious can watch T.V. It is the type of place where it becomes a major event when a police officer decides to actually investigate a crime.

As Clockers progresses, Lee's style grows more impressionistic. By using animation, slow motion and surrealism, he begins to bring the audience into the characters subjectivity. By the end of Clockers the theater is immersed in the ghetto, living as seen through the lens of a fever dream.

The shocker is throughout all the experimentation, Lee never lets the movie lose its foothold in believability. This is one of the few films to depict violence without glorifying it. Realizing Francios Truffaut's lesson about the titillating effects of reenacting violence, Lee rarely ever actually shows anyone getting shot. Instead he concentrates on the sad and grisly aftermath. Quite a sobering reminder of the horror of violence in a world where Quentin Tarantino is conditioning everyone to laugh at brutality.

Clockers isn't without flaws. The background music is too loud and the plot is hard to follow. With those minor complaints aside, Clockers is a triumph. To borrow a ostentatious but telling phrase from Francis Ford Coppola, "Clockers isn't a movie about the ghetto, it is the ghetto." A

Japanese artist explores culture, history

By Seema Gangatirkar
Collegian Staff

The Augusta Savage Gallery celebrates its 25th anniversary with the opening of an exhibit by acclaimed Japanese–America artist Tomie Arai. The exhibit, which opened yesterday Sept. 20, will run until Oct. 18.

According to Terry Jenoure, curator of the Gallery, Arai's artwork, described as "textural," reflects the "challenge, stress and joys" of being a Japanese–America woman.

Arai works with paper in creative ways. Her pages of living history help establish a personal sense of place and continuity. The images Arai creates reflect Asian America concerns, memories and experiences that intersect with other cultures. Some of the materials Arai uses include hand– colored photographs, wood, bamboo, silk–screened paper and "found" objects.

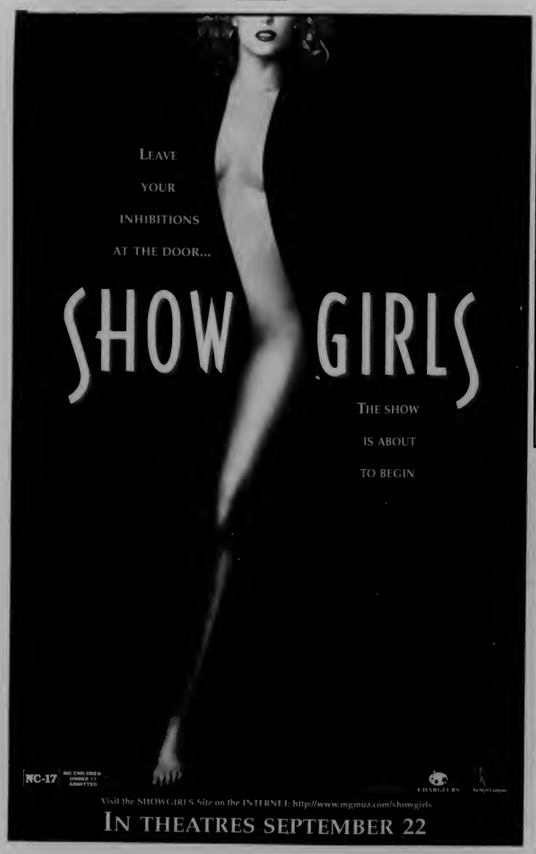
Jenoure mentioned she visited another exhibition of Arai's a year ago and was "very impressed by her work and so I invited her here to exhibit her ars at the Gallery."

In a statement, Arai said, "... I continue to be defined by the immigrant experience and remain, like many other Asian Americans, forever foreign, uprooted and marginal. My work approaches this experience, and issues of cultural identity for the perspective of an Asian woman."

Jenoure is hoping that many people will visit the exhibit and mentioned she would like for "people to be more aware of the diversity and richness of programming" the Augusta Savage Gallery offers. Other events coming up this season include performances by Native Americans, a poetry reading/saxophone concert and a North Indian dance performance.

The Augusta Savage Gallery is located in the New Africa House in the Central Residential Area. The Tomie Arai exhibit is free and open to the general public. For more information, please call 545–5177.

COURTESY AGUSTA SAVAGE GALLERY
A work from the exhibit "Tomie Arai: A Family Album"



PLANNING TO OBSERVE
ROSH HASHANAH AND YOM KIPPUR?

MAKE SURE TO NOTIFY INSTRUCTORS IN ADVANCE
if you will miss classes. If you experience any difficulties, please contact the department head or call the Ombuds Office at 545-0867

RUSSELL'S
Discount LIQUORS Discount
18 Main St. Downtown Amherst 253-5441
Featuring, "Icehouse & Red Dog" bots $12.99 bots
"Special" Hamm's Lager $7.29 case bots.
Lionshead Pilsner Beer $7.99 case bots.
Jim Beam $12.99 1.75 liter
"The 6/PK. Bonanza "Continues
Shipyard - Ale, Brown Ale, Stout & Old Thumper Ale
New Amsterdam - Black/Tan, Amber, Ale & Lager
Harpoon- All Flavors including Octoberfest
Catamount - Amber, Gold, Porter, Wheat, & Octoberfest
Brooklyn - Brown Ale & Lager
S.S. Pierce Vodka 80 $8.99 1.75 liter
So. Comfort $7.99 750 ml
Mix/Match "two" 6/Pks . . . $9.95
All Beers Plus Deposit OPEN 9:00AM - 11:00PM VISA/MASTERCARD •Delivery Available•

Air Miami flying high with Me, Me, Me

AIR MIAMI
Me, Me, Me
4AD/Teenbeat Records

Mark Robinson is a hard guy to put a finger on. Just when his former band, Unrest, was beginning to finally make a splash in the big time, after years of laboring in obscurity, Robinson dissolved the group. Next, he announces that he will be forming a new band, Air Miami, that will also contain Unrest bassist Bridgette Cross.

Now, the group has released their debut, and guess what? It doesn't really sound much different than his former group, except this time around all the bugs that kept Unrest from living up to its full potential seemed to have been worked out.

Gone are the silly experiments that Robinson seemed so fond of on releases like Imperial and Perfect Teeth., and they are replaced with a somewhat dreamy pop sensibility that lends itself well to various pop genres that Air Miami explores. Me, Me, Me finds Robinson and Cross playing the role of pilot and co–pilot with a mission to fly straight through the last 25 years of pop music.

Take–off begins with the slash and burn punk of "I Hate Milk," and soars into the disco–new wave of "World Cup Fever." Sound forced? Amazingly enough, this genre– hopping holds together both believably and coherently — a testament to Robinson and Cross' simplistic but growing songwriting ability.

The album reaches its highest altitude in the middle with the hushed love–pop of "Secret Angel" and the My Bloody Valentine–esque "Dolphin Expressway," with the highlight here being Robinson and Cross' beautifully interwoven vocals and the airy and uplifting guitars that surround them.

Of course, by the time Me, Me, Me comes down for a landing it is very possible that all the sticky, sweet pop turbulence may leave you feeling a bit queasy, but there is no doubt you'll be glad you flew Air Miami. B+ (Matt Audette)

Trax On Trax Off

VARIOUS ARTISTS
Red Hot and Bothered
Kinetic/ Reprise

Remember those mix tapes that your music–obsessed friend would make for you? In a little over an hour you could learn about 20 bands that you suddenly adored but previously didn't even know existed. It is very uncommon for a compilation ever to achieve the greatness of a well– made mix tape, but Red Hot & Bothered does just that. For indie rock geeks, this compilation is a god send, all new songs by many of your favorite bands. For those illiterate music fans who consider a band obscure if they open up at the Mullins Center, this album is the perfect introduction to the world of indie rock.

Freedom Cruise, a supergroup from Dayton, OH opens up the album with their track "Sensational Gravity Boy." Featuring both of the Deal sisters from the Breeders and most of Guided By Voices, the band is almost the indie version of Travelling Wilbury's, but much better.

More surprises include a track by the Cradle Robbers, which features Lois Maffeo and Rebecca from the Spinanes, arguably two of the finest female songwriters from the Northwest. Stephin Merritt of the Magnetic Fields and the 6ths appears in yet another carnation, Future Bible Heroes, who contribute the song, "Hopeless." Not a surprising song title considering Merritt's often gloomy outlook on life.

Hardly gloomy or downbeat is "Small Trail" by British pop stars Heavenly who are sure to brighten up your day. While perhaps America's most underrated band, Built to Spill, collaborate with the obscure band Caustic Resin on an amazing track, "Still Flat," It offers just a bit of the band's brilliant songwriting.

Other bands included on the compilation are Noise Addict, Liquorice, Folk Implosion, Grifters, and East River Pipe.

Like the perfect mix tape, this compilation offers up no poor selections, and this is as rare as a good song by Sponge. Whether this serves as an introduction to the indie rock world or as a supplement to your already extensive collection of 7" singles and flexi discs, Red Hot and Bothered is an essential compilation. And next time you make a mix tape for that special someone, don't be surprised if you keep reaching for this CD for songs. It is that good. A– (Mike Burke)

SHANE MACGOWAN
The Snake
ZTT Records

Shane MacGowan has for many years walked a very fine musical line, trying to unite traditional Irish music with rock n'roll. While fronting his former band, The Pogues, MacGowan was able to merge the angst and attitude of rock music with the lyrical strength and melody of traditional Irish music. His new solo album is no exception.

The Snake contains adaptations of traditional folk played with fiddle, penny whistle and banjo to full tilt rock songs with blazing guitars. All songs however are sung with MacGowan trade mark voice, which in recent years has matured from a gravelly brogue to a rocky bark.

Though the album is very reminiscent of The Pogues, it seems much more mature. MacGowan pens many tunes about regret and loss, one of these is the standout, "The Song With No Name." He loses the acoustic instruments on "Victoria" and sings about his love for Victoria herself amongst a borage of electric guitar.

The real high point of the album is MacGowan's duet with famed Irish star Sinead O'Connor on the song, "Haunted." Her beautiful, almost siren–like voice paired with his bark sounds like rubbing silk against sandpaper but the combination is truly a musical treat.

COURTESY JEFF SMITH
Lois (R) appears on the new Red Hot + Bothered compilation.

As with most solo albums from ex–band leaders, comparisons are certainly to be made with their previous musical outfit. But this album can stand by itself. Kick back with a pint of Guinness and give this album a spin. A– (Ed Hurley)

PHISH
A Live One
Elektra

Phish fans, the time has come. Those Piscine minstrels are back again, and this recording is live. With the summer release of A Live One, the Containing over two hours of concert recordings spread over two CD, the band presents a great cross section of music that comes close to capturing the band's legendary live shows.

Turn to TRAX ON, page 10

迎新晚會
主題：另一會的追尋
時間：1995年 9月 23日 星期六
下午六時起（晚餐招待）
地點：First Baptist Church of Amherst
434 N Pleasant St
Amherst, MA 01002
講員：樂大端 博士
新澤西州貝爾機械會員老
AT&T Bell Laboratory 資深工程師
主辦：安城華人基督教會

LONG RIVER TAI CHI CIRCLE
"The softest in the world overcomes the hardest. The insubstantial can penetrate where there is no opening."
-Lao Tzu
Wolfe Lowenthal, head of the Long River school and a leading teacher of the Cheng Man-ching style of Tai Chi Chuan, will be offering classes in Amherst, MA and Putney, VT.
"Our Tai Chi has great benefits for health, relaxation and self defense. Of even more value, it is a two, a balanced and harmonious way of living."
AMHERST CLASSES: Cushman Hill Children's Center, 71 Henry Street, Fridays: 7 to 8 pm, Starting September 22, 1995
PUTNEY CLASSES: Putney Community Center, Mondays: 5 to 6 pm, Advanced, 6 to 7 pm, Beginners, Starting September 18, 1995
For more information about classes at either location call: 413-549-4160

Good Things
Jewelry Natural Fiber Scarves
Blouses Skirts Dresses
Happy B'day Cards, Earrings, Rings, Bracelets, T-Shirts, Posters, Candles, Chains Incense, Chinese Shoes
India Print Bedspreads, Sweaters, Dresses, Area Rugs, Socks Leather Sole Skirts, Baskets, Mugs
Sale 20 to 50% off selected Clothing
The GreatGifts Mercantile
Visa / MC Th.Fri.9PM Sun 12-5 Daily 10-6
Northampton-18 Center St. Amherst-Carriage Shops

You mean someone has answers to my student loan questions?!?
Yes.
Citibank has all the student loan information you need now.
For answers to your student loan questions, talk to Citibank, the student loan experts. Our customer service representatives are here to help you from the beginning of the financial aid process through your final student loan payment. Exceptional customer service is just one reason why students have trusted Citibank with their education financing more than any other bank. To get the answers you need, call Citibank at 1-800-692-8200 and ask for Operator 268, send in the coupon below, or visit your school's Financial Aid Office.
PLEASE SEND ME APPLICATIONS FOR THE FOLLOWING STUDENT LOANS:
Citibank Federal Stafford Loan (subsidized and unsubsidized)
Citibank Federal PLUS Loan (for parent(s) of dependent student(s) only)
Citibank Graduate Loan Program (for graduate students of all disciplines - please indicate your field of study)
MAIL THIS COUPON TO:
Citibank (NYS)
Attn: The Student Loan Corporation
P.O. Box 22948
Rochester, NY 14692-2948
OR CALL 1-800-692-8200 and ask for Operator 268.
VISIT OUR WEB SITE at http://www.lecl.com/HO/village/Citibank/CSLC.html
Name
Address Apt
City State Zip
Telephone
Social Security #
You are currently: an undergraduate student a graduate student
Year of graduation
If you are a graduate student, please indicate the field of study you are pursuing:
Business (MBA) Medicine (allopathic and osteopathic studies)
Engineering Nursing
Other (please specify)
CITIBANK
Code 269

~ REVIEW ~

God Street Wine rocked Pearl Street Tuesday night.

COURTESY MICHAEL LAVINE

God Street Wine plays Noho

By Bryan Schwartzman
Collegian Correspondent

GOD STREET WINE
Pearl Street
Sept. 19, 1995

Since forming in 1987 God Street Wine has become a band with deep grassroots and an obsession for touring. On Tuesday the group brought their jams to Pearl Street in front of their dedicated followers, who call themselves "winos."

The band is best known for their improvisational extended jams akin to those of Phish and Blues Traveller. They used the jam sessions not repetitiously, but to touch on a large portion of the existing musical spectrum spreading from rock to funk to reggae to blues.

What separates God Street Wine from similar bands is their incredible timing that runs like clockwork and their precise execution.

Along with their abundance of talent, the band brought plenty of energy electrifying the Pearl Street audience. Throughout the show the entire crowd could be seen dancing, bouncing, jumping, trying to connect with the music in an individual way.

One of the bands most effective tools was their ability to contrast vocal harmony with extended instrumentals. One of the highlights of the show was when keyboardist, Jon Bevo, treated the audience to a keyboard solo with strong classical overtones.

As usual, with experimental improvised music, the songs that move the crowd seem too brief while the mediocre tunes drag on too long. Missed the show? Don't worry because God Street Wine will commemorate their sixth anniversary of full-time touring on Dec. 13 with a return date to Pearl Street.

The Conneticut-based band Sunflower opened the show. Although relatively an unknown act, the band was able to warm the crowd with their upbeat and easy going playing style. The band consisted of six musicians, including two acoustic guitarists and a bongo drummer. Like God Street Wine, Sunflower's style crossed over many genres ranging from funk, r&b, to country. Although the band had the diversity of the headliners, they lacked God Street Wine's technical prowess and group cohesion.

■ Trax On

continued from page 9

The first CD opens with an electric, vibrant version of "Bouncing Around the Room," which will make you do just what the song implies. The song just exudes the happiness the band is known for. Following this is a jazzy version of "Stash," which shows the band's musical greatness. Listen to the subtle piano playing, the rhythmic drumming, and the dominating guitar. The only downside to "Stash" is by the end of the tune, the band loses their togetherness that they displayed earlier.

The other disc begins with the live audience chanting, "Wilson" which not surprisingly ends up being the first song. Building off the crowd's energy, the band slides into an awesome level of enthusiasm that is rarely heard these days. Unlike many Phish songs, "Wilson" has a distinct rock 'n' roll feel to it, featuring heavy guitars and thunderous drums that are not usually associated with the band.

The band's tightness is seen best on "Simple," a dancy harmonic piece featuring classic Phish vocals. But it is the intricate musical arrangement that makes this track a standout.

Phish is known for its live shows and often they can't recapture their energy and creativity in the studio. Another essential part of a Phish concert is the overly enthusiastic crowds who make this album even more special. If you can't wait for their upcoming shows at the Mullins Center then take a listen to this. B
(Daniel E. Levenson)

Red Hot + Bothered contributors/popsters Heavenly.

COURTESY K RECORDS

■ books

continued from page 8

Ever wonder how you can stay on top of the business world without shelling out big bucks for a consultant? How about giving Tom Peter's a shot?

This business visionary follows up his two best-selling guides, Tom Peters Seminar and The Pursuit of Wow! with a third one that doesn't accept excuses or half-ass jobs.

Peters emphasizes that technology can only do so much before the rest of the system, mainly it's human components, are also running to keep up with the every changing, ever-spinning world of business.

H.E. BATES
The Feast of July
Vintage

This story has E.M. Forrester written all over it, and indeed that is why it was snapped up by Merchant Ivory Productions.

Romantic, witty, droll and never boring this book follows it's heroine Bella Ford and her journey across the English countryside in search of a lover she was seduced and jilted by.

On her quest for revenge, she encounters the Wainwright family and their three sons. Bella seduces each brother in turn and it all climaxes during a festival in July where a sudden violent twist changes everyone forever.

Collegian Classifieds
They Work!
545-3500

Caribbean Cravings
"A TASTE OF JAMAICA"
61 MAIN STREET, AMHERST, MA 01002
(413) 253-5529

Patties:

+ Beef	1.65
+ Chicken	1.65
+ Vegetable	1.75
Spanish & Cheese	1.90
Broccoli & Cheese	1.90
+ Meat Loaf (Jamaican)	1.90
Corn Bread & Cheese	1.70

+ Spicy

Sodas:

Ting	1.20
Pineapple	1.00
Grapefruit	1.00
Ginger Beer	1.00
Cream Soda	1.00
Kola Champagne	1.00
Orange	1.00

Dishes:

	Sm.	Lg.
* Curried Chicken	4.75	5.75
* Jerked Chicken	4.75	5.75
* Curried Goat	5.25	6.25
* Rice and Peas	1.95	2.75
Plantain	1.00	1.50

* Served with Rice & Peas

Coffee:

	Sm.	Lg.
Jamaica Blue Mountain	1.00	1.50
Blue Mountain Blend	.65	1.00
Kenya (Decaffeinated)	.65	1.00
Jamaican Rum Spice	.60	.95
House Blend	.60	.95

Helpful Notes:
- Sm. Dish: 3 lg. heapings of rice & a sizable portion of meat & Plantain or Bread
- Lg. Dish: 4 lg. heapings of rice & a larger portion of meat small & Plantain or Bread
- Jerked Chicken: A baked chicken that is hot and spicy. Very flavorful.
- Plantain: Fruit similar to a banana but a little more starchy.
- Hardo Bread: Soft dough bread eaten in Jamaica.
- Ting: Grapefruit juice soft
- Peas in the rice and peas is actually red kidney beans.

Sweets:

Gizzada	.75
Coconut Drops	.75
Cinnamon	.75
Coco Bread	.90

Hours:
Mon. - Wed. 11:00am - 11:00pm
Thurs. - Fri. 11:00am - 2:00am
Saturday 12 Noon - 2am
Sunday 12 Noon - 8:00pm

Maaza Fruit Drinks:

Guava	.95
Mango	.95
Tropical	.95
Fruit Punch	.95
Pineapple-Passion	.95

beerages:

	Sm.	Lg.
Coke	.60	.85
Diet Coke	.60	.85
Island Punch	.75	1.00
Caribbean Splash	.75	1.00

- Discounted rates offered when order ing 10 or more of the same patties
- Please inquire about catering

MINI PARTY FOR ONLY $13.75
6 PATTIES (CHOICE OF ANY)
3 COCO BREADS
3 BEVERAGES
Limit one per order

FOR ONLY $6.50
2 PATTIES (CHOOSE FROM BEEF, CHICKEN, VEGETABLE, OR CORN BREAD & CHEESE)
2 COCO BREADS
2 BEVERAGES
Limit one per order

$1.25 OFF ANY ORDER OF $7.00 OR MORE
Limit one per order

$2.00 OFF ANY ORDER OF $10.00 OR MORE
Limit one per order

FOR ONLY $6.95
2 PATTIES (CHOOSE FROM SPINISH, BROCCOLI, OR MEATLOAF)
2 COCO BREADS
2 BEVERAGES

Please inquire aboutspecial order items as:

Ackee	6.75
Calaloo	2.50
Hardo Bread	3.75
Bread Pudding	4.75
Jerk Seasoning	3.50

And many More. . .

EVERYTING IS ALLRIGHT AT CARIBBEAN CRAVINGS!

~ PREVIEWS ~

J. Mascis returns home again

Dinosaur Jr frontman brings solo acoustic show to Iron Horse

By Wayken Shaw
Collegian Staff

J. Mascis has definitely not lost a sense of his roots. In the past year and a half, the Dinosaur Jr. mastermind and Amherst native has been popping up around town to seemingly give a little back to the place of his youth. Mascis returns to a local stage once more with a solo appearance at the Iron Horse Music Hall in Northampton tomorrow night.

Mascis has come a long way since his band's self-titled debut, Dinosaur (Homestead), in 1985. After a succession of albums on SST and the addition of "Jr." to their name (to avoid confusion with an obscure S.F. band, the Dinosaurs), Dinosaur Jr. jumped to the ranks of the majors (Sire/Reprise) and popularized country-oriented fuzz rock. The rest is alternative rock history.

Yet now with the band's last record, Without a Sound, over a year old, Mascis seems to be basking in the admiration of his hometown. His solo shows are generally acoustic but fans shouldn't worry as to whether a sonic-less retrospective of Dino Jr. will match up. Without the fuzz and undecipherable moans the show should be refreshing as one can fully sense Mascis' song-writing ability.

And while last February's appearance at Amherst College brought such surprises as a set from Dino bassist Mike Johnson and Gobblehoof guitarist Kurt Fedora, one can only wonder what Mascis will bring forth tomorrow night.

J Mascis plays the Iron Horse Music Hall in Northampton tomorrow night.

Remembering life in Tanzania

By Bryan Schwartzman
Collegian Staff

COURTESY NEW WORLD THEATRE

Sheela Langeberg in her play Maija Of Chaggaland.

Tomorrow and Saturday at 8 p.m. in Bowker Auditorium, the New WORLD Theater presents Sheela Langeberg's play Maija Of Chaggaland.

Langeberg is the writer and stars as her mother, who is from the village of Chaggaland in Tanzania.

"I had always wanted to write a story about someone whose life would represent every human being regardless of color, nationality or gender. I wanted to write a true story and I couldn't find any better example than Maija — my momma," said Langeberg.

She is the play's sole performer and explores African culture and the life of her mother through expressions of dance, song, and story telling. Through the course of the play, Langeberg portrays her mother, grandmother, and grandfather. Maija of Chaggaland is a story of a woman born into poverty who overcomes great adversity and circumstance to become one of wealth, loved and respected by her community. The story spans events from a terrible forced circumcision to first love, as well as children and latter enterprise and success.

Sheela Langeberge was born in Kilimanjaro and was educated in Tanzania. She has appeared in several films in Scandinavia and Tanzania. Her most recent movie appearance was in the Australian movie "Ebbitide." In 1992, she worked with the Patch Theater Centre and, a year later, appeared in "The Childhood Sear" with the Visalsatsix Theater Company.

Director Joanna Jackermis was excited to have the opportunity to bring to life Langeberg's text to life. "I was delighted when Sheela Langeberge first approached me to direct Maija of Chaggaland."

Jackermis style emphasizes body language and movement as an integral part of theater.

"One of the most exciting aspects of Maija was that the text provided many possibilities for exploring a poetic, visual and physical theater," Jackermis said.

Jackermis has been both an actress and a director, and has taught drama at WEA for 10 years. Joanna has directed for, among others, the Adelaid Repertory Theater, and for the Sough Australian writer's theater.

Maija of Chaggaland is playing at the New WORLD Theater this Friday & Saturday evening at 8 p.m. Tickets are $6 and $3.50 for students, children and senior citizens.

Fugazi to blow away Pearl Street

By Jason Flax
Collegian Correspondent

Coming to Pearl Street in Northampton tomorrow is Washington D.C.'s hardcore legends Fugazi. After doing several New England shows last spring with Unwound, Fugazi are back in the area in support of their latest album entitled Red Medicine.

Fugazi, known for their intense live shows, feature Brendan Canty, Joe Lally, Ian Mackaye and Guy Picciotto. Mackaye, who led the infamous Minor Threat in the early '80s, shares his role as guitarist and singer with Guy Picciotto. While Mackaye sticks to a more aggressive style of singing, Picciotto has a softer vocal approach, giving Fugazi their own unique blend of guitar-driven hardcore.

On their latest release Red Medicine, Fugazi took a more diverse approach, playing a wide range of styles that, at moments, geared towards the experimental. Although not the band's best effort, the album is extremely strong and consistent.

Ever since his days in Minor Threat, Mackaye has been the icon of the American underground punk scene. His status is still intact more than fifteen years after appearing on the D.C. scene. Fugazi's Repeater album remains one of the most important punk albums of the decade, as it reinvented hard core for the 1990s.

Besides their intense music, Fugazi are known for their DIY ethics. They purposely play only all ages shows and keep the price at $5. Mackaye runs Dischord Records, which releases all of the band's recordings as well as other releases by Slant 6 and Lungfish.

As far as live shows go, Fugazi have been known to mix up there material so the old fans won't be disappointed. So, if your a long time fan or just curious about the buzz, Fugazi won't be a disappointment for you this Friday.

Fugazi plays Pearl Street this Friday at 7 p.m. with an unannounced guest. Tickets are $5 and can be purchased in advance at the Northampton Box Office and Tix Unlimited. Call the club for more details.

Collegian Graphics
We're up all night putting together New England's largest college daily newspaper
When our job is done — your day is just beginning.

'Rap Diary' explores music industry

I hope the majority of you hip-hop heads have heard Reakwons album featuring Ghostface killa (no one ilia). If not you need too. Riza produced the album, like you didn't know. So the beats are tight, rhymes are right. You couldn't ask for more, or could you?

If your the kind of person that asks for more, there is more. Method Man, Nas, Riza and Giza (the Genius) are representing on this album. Method Man "comes off" in two songs, showing the world of hip-hop that he has not fallen off yet.

Nas — one of hip-hop's top lyrical geniuses — literally rips the album with one verse. Riza, sounds like he got hit with the holy ghost of rap. Similar to a speeded up Jeru and Bahamadia style (originally Big Daddy Kane style). Riza still rips the scene. ('Am I sweating Riza? I think so). Last but necessary, the Genius, the foundation of the Wu-Tang Clan, adds an accentual ingredient to the album — a spice you've tasted before but you just don't know the name.

This album contains some of raps top criminologists/lyrists. The collection of flavors ends up sounding very good. Don't play it to much or you might start walking around campus thinking that your the @#$, when your not. Kidding.

Stay safe, y'all, 'til next week. Peace. BeefStew.
Chris Byrd is a UMass student.

The News Department needs writers.

Any students interested in writing for the news section should contact Chris Conner at 545-0719 or come down to the Collegian office in the Campus Center Basement.

Imagine having direct access to thousands of African American MBAs in major U.S. firms nationwide. And having the right connections and the right opportunities to help keep your career on track. If you're an MBA student who's ready to put your career plans in high gear, we're an organization that can help you. The National Black MBA Association (NBMBAA) is a national network of business executives and entrepreneurs who work in a wide range of industries.

Over 4,000 Corporate Contacts Only One Name to Remember Only One Event to Attend

- For 25 years, the National Black MBA Association has provided unique opportunities for MBA trained professionals. Put these contacts to work for you by becoming part of this growing force of business leaders. By joining the NBMBAA at the student rate of $55, you'll receive full membership benefits, including:
- •Scholarship programs for undergraduates, graduates and Ph.D. candidates
- •An annual conference and other professional development programs
- •Mentoring programs that provide access to experienced professionals in your field
- •A membership directory featuring detailed contact information on all members
- •A quarterly newsletter
- •Employment Network Services that help you with job searches and placement
- Attend our Annual Conference September 27—October 1, 1995 at the Boston Marriott Hotel Copley Place and activate this network. Our Career Fair, on September 28—29, 1995, offers over 1,000 contacts from hundreds of corporations.
- Join the NBMBAA. This small investment can reap big rewards for your career. Call or write today for a membership application. Discounted student rates are available for the conference and membership.

The National Black MBA Association
180 N Michigan Ave | Suite 1515 | Chicago, IL 60601
312 | 236 | 2622

UNIVERSITY BARTENDING™

- Professional Bartending and Bar Management Training at a fraction of the cost of most schools
- Full certification in as little as six weeks
- Specific programs tailored to your specific needs
- I.P.S.™ and Serve Safe™ certification available
- Approved by the National Restaurant Association

FREE INFO SESSION
Wednesday, Sept. 27th
7:00 pm
Lord Jeffrey Inn

Shop around and compare!
1-800-U-CAN-MIX
Call for more information
Act now! Space is limited!!

DON'T PASS UP THESE GREAT BUYS! RUN IN TODAY!
LIQUORS 44

BEERS

BUD DRY $9.99 + DEP — CASE OF 24 12 OZ. BAR BOTTLES
MICHAEL SHEA'S "IRISH AMBER" — SALE $14.49, MAIL IN REBATE -$3.00, FINAL COST $11.49 + DEP — CASE OF 2-12 PK NR
HAMM'S — $7.29 + DEP — CASE OF 24 12 OZ CANS
BECK'S OCTOBERFEST — $4.69 + DEP — 6 PACK BOTTLES
CATAMOUNT — $4.49 + DEP — ALL FLAVORS 6 PK. BOTTLES
1/2 KEGS $39.99 + DEP — BUD, LT, ICE, MICHELOB, LT. & DK. ICEHOUSE & RED DOG LITE

WINES

WINE OF THE MONTH
HICKORY RIDGE — SALE $3.99, MAIL IN REBATE -$1.50, FINAL COST $2.49 — - MERLOT - CHARDONNAY 750 ML
ROBERT MONDAVI WOODBRIDGE $8.99 1.5L — CHARDONNAY CABERNET SAUVIGNON
WILLIAM HILL NAPA VALLEY $7.99 750 ML — CHARDONNAY
GALLO LIVINGSTON CELLARS $5.99 3.0L — ALL FLAVORS
MANISCHEWITZ $4.99 1.5L — ALL FLAVORS

LIQUORS

ABSOLUT VODKA $10.99 — 750 ML
FLEISCHMANN'S PREFERRED WHISKEY $11.49 — 1.75L
BACARDI RUM $7.49 — LIGHT & DARK 750 ML
CUTTY SARK $22.49 — 1.75L
LIQUORS 44 VODKA — SALE $8.49, MAIL IN REBATE -$1.50, FINAL COST $6.99 — 1.75L

AT THE STOP & SHOP PLAZA

We Accept All Cans and Bottles for Redemption

HADLEY — Campus Plaza/Route 9 — 253-9344
NORTHAMPTON — 238 King Street — 586-3007
HOLYOKE — 30 Lincoln Street — 534-4555

SALE PRICES THURS. 9/21/95 THRU WEDS. 9/27/95

NOT RESPONSIBLE FOR TYPOGRAPHICAL ERRORS

■ free shows

continued from page 1

be on hand to close out the stage shows on Oct. 1 at 8 p.m. I guess it's not unusual to play fairs at any time.

Other crowd pleasin' activities:

The Big E Circus: running daily until the fair closes at 1 p.m., 4 p.m. and 7 p.m. But for those who just can't get enough, a bonus show will be held every Saturday at 11 a.m.

The Big E Wild West Show: Ever wanted to see how to rope a wild animal? Find out Sept. 29 – Oct 1 and 3 p.m. and 7 p.m.

Mermaids and Divers High Dive Show: The mermaids aren't actually mermaids, but don't take my word for it. Show up any time until the fair ends at 1 p.m., 3 p.m., 5 p.m. and 8 p.m. to see for yourself.

Joie Chitwood's Thrill Show: Stunt driving Hollywood Style Monday – Friday at 3:30 p.m. and 8 p.m. with a bonus show on Saturdays at 1 p.m. More fun than not going at all — really.

Commerford's Petting Zoo: It's a petting zoo. What more is there to say?

Barn Tours: Find out what barn looks like. No, not really, they're actually tours of the agricultural areas in the fair, many of which just happen to be in some of the biggest barns you've ever seen. Tours leave daily from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Storrowton Tavern: Hungry? The tavern features American and Continental cuisine in a rustic New England Village Style. No comments here, it's food, you can't go wrong.

Daily Parade: It happens at 4:30 p.m., but if you ask what days it takes place, you deserve to miss it.

Admission to the Big E is $8 Adults, $6 for children ages 6 – 12 (under 6 free), There are also multiple day passes and Senior Citizen days. The gates open daily at 8 a.m. and most of the exhibits are open until 10 p.m.. For more information call the 24-hour info line at 787-0711.

■ Simpsons

continued from page 6

chance to try and figure out who probably did it and possibilities were endless. This special showed over twenty possible suspects. I never thought that one man could ever have that many enemies, except I guess if you are a man like Montgomery Burns. But, of course, this special gave the viewers no clue as to who actually did the deed.

The key suspects that were apparent to most of the viewers were Homer, Bart and Smithers. Homer's motive was that Burns could never remember his name, and Burns had ruined Bart's school and fired Smithers.

But, what every television expert knows is when the show points out a character as a key suspect, you know that they didn't do it. The suspects the writers of the show point out are always way too obvious, so all of the viewers know it has be someone else. This is exactly what happened as Chief Wiggum tried to round up the evidence.

A gun was found in the Simpson's car after Marge had buried it in the backyard, and it had Homer's fingerprints all over it, along with a piece of hair that was full of Simpson's DNA. Doesn't this piece of evidence sound just a little bit too much like a familiar case that we all are getting sick of in Los Angeles. To think that the similarities are merely coincidental is completely preposterous.

The Simpson's are main suspects, DNA matching the suspects, and their fingerprints all over the weapon. Okay, so in the actual Simpson case there is no weapon. Yet, in my opinion, I think the producers of this show are trying to tell the viewing audience what they think the actual verdict will be in the Los Angeles double-murder case.

If it was found that Homer Simpson was innocent even though all of this evidence had actually been stacked up against him, maybe the producers think this will be the same outcome in O.J.'s case. The other key suspect, Smither's had been in a drunken stupor and couldn't remember anything about that night.

As the episode inched towards it conclusion, it was revealed the least likely suspect had actually done it. The culprit was young, pacifier-sucking, Maggie Simpson.

That conclusion totally disappointed me. The way the producers of "The Simpsons" had built up this murder mystery storyline, I had thought the mystery would continue throughout the season and not just be wrapped up in one episode. I thought it would at least last a few episodes, in order to continue to build up the anticipation. But, to reveal everything in the very first episode, which was such a letdown, and the story as to what really happened that night was even worse.

Montgomery Burns was just walking around town when he came along Maggie Simpson sitting in the car alone. Who really believes that Marge would ever leave her baby alone in the car at night with the windows down?

As Maggie joyfully sucks on her green lollipop, Burns tells her he wants it and proceeds to take it away from her. They struggle, his gun come flying out of the holster under his jacket, it lands in Maggie's hands and goes off.

That had to be the most ridiculous conclusion to a murder mystery that I have ever seen. They could have at least written something like Principal Skinner or Miss Crabapple did it to save their elementary school, but instead a little baby pulled the trigger.

There was actually only one thing that was revealed during the conclusion of the "Who Shot Mr. Burns" that I really thought was brilliant. When Burns was shot, he collapsed onto the Simpson sundial which had markings of N, S, E, and W on it. When Burns collapsed his arms were pointing at the S and the W. And if you were really paying attention, you could figure out that if you turned the "W" upside down, Burns had spelled out the initials of his attacker, "M.S." for Maggie Simpson. I thought that was such a creative way for the writers to point out the killer, that the stupidity of having Maggie Simpson as the attacker almost disappeared from my mind. But, I still feel they could have done a lot better with this cliffhanger.

Of course, I know that it is a cartoon and that is purely there for my entertainment pleasure and not to be analyzed, but I can't help myself. This episode couldn't have been anymore ridiculous.

Rana Meyer is a Collegian Staff member.

Broadway hit to entertain at FAC

Smash hit Crazy For You at UMass this Friday night

By Seema Gangatirkar
Collegian Staff

Those ready to kick up their feet and enjoy a brand-new old-fashioned musical will flip over Crazy For You, a Tony Award winning musical–comedy coming to the Fine Arts Center for a one night only performance on Sept. 22 at 8 p.m. The show, featuring songs by George Gershwin, is on a glittering new bus–and–truck tour and will play over 100 cities in 35 weeks in the United States and Canada.

The musical features the classic boy–meets–girl story, a hilarious combination of fast–breaking plot twists and mistaken identities. But most importantly, love triumphs in the end. The plot focuses on Bobby, a New York playboy who is sent by his mother to foreclose on a theater in Deadrock, Nev. When he gets there, he falls in love with Polly, the only girl in a tough mining town of 157 men.

A tap–dancing extravaganza, the show is credited with bringing back to Broadway the old–fashioned show–biz razzle–dazzle in the tradition of legendary impresarios as Flo Ziegfield and Billy Rose.

Crazy For You was brought to life by entrepreneur Roger Horchow, whose childhood dream was to stage a musical based on Gershwin's music. Teaming up with his Broadway producing colleague, Elizabeth Williams (Into The Woods, The Secret Garden) and Ludwig. Horchow was able to make his dream come true.

Crazy For You has thrilled Broadway with its combination of classic Gershwin songs, ecstatic choreography and dazzling sets and costumes. The show includes 16 Gershwin works from many of his shows and a sparkling new book by the author Ken Ludwig (Lend Me A Tenor).

Songs include "Embraceable You," "I Got Rhythm" and "But Not For Me" from Gershwin's 1930 hit Girl Crazy. Other songs that will be heard in the performance are "You Can't Take That Away From Me," "Things Are Looking Up" and "Someone to Watch Over Me." An added treat will be the inclusion of four additional Gershwin songs which were only recently rediscovered in a theatrical warehouse.

Crazy For You has won rave reviews across the country. Edith Oliver of The New Yorker says, "It is heaven on earth. A joy to hear and to behold. Everything an American musical comedy should be." Kevin Kelly of the Boston Globe echoed the sentiment with "Crazy For You just couldn't be any better."

In addition to the Tony Awards, Crazy For You has received Outer Critics Circle Awards for best musical, best choreography, best orchestrations, best costumes and best design, along with Laurence Olivier Awards for best musical and best choreography.

So slip on your dancing shoes and take a look at an American musical–comedy at its finest.

Tickets are $35, $27 and $18 with $5 for Five-College students. Tickets for children 17 and under are $10. For tickets or more information, please call 545–2511 or 1–800– 999–UMAS outside the local calling area.

Voodoo examined in TV series

By Kira L. Billick
Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA — Forget Hollywood depictions of glassy-eyed zombies and perverse, frenzied rituals. Voodoo is a religion — and to its adherents, a source of healing and a conduit to the supernatural.

The reality of voodoo is among the subjects tackled by "Divine Magic: The World of the Supernatural," a series airing on the Discovery Channel. The first episodes air at 10 p.m. Eastern next Monday through Thursday; the final shows will be broadcast Oct. 23-25.

Wednesday's show, "The Power of Voodoo" — narrated by actor Stephen Rea of "The Crying Game" — traces the roots of a religion that was born in Africa 400 years ago and brought to the Caribbean, particularly Haiti, during the slave trade. And it explains some of its central beliefs.

Philadelphian Anna Branche, a 64-year-old voodoo priestess, or "boa mambo," was trained in Haiti and Benin, West Africa. She traveled to the birthplace of voodoo to, as she says, "rediscover what the word 'voodoo' means." The show offers portions of her initiation ceremony.

She said voodoo practiced in Africa differs from that practiced in Haiti.

"In Benin, the voodoo religion is absolutely pure, as was passed down from generation to generation — as the ancestors practiced it. The slaves that went into Haiti, Brazil, and other countries had to disguise it," Branche said in an interview at her home.

"So their slave masters would hear the drums beating and the chants going and they would hear about Jesus Christ and about almighty God and St. Michael and St. Peter and all of those things."

However, behind that was the original African gods and deities. She describes voodoo as "shamanistic."

"It's shamanistic because its goal is to heal. It's shamanistic because it's a root, earth-based religion. It's shamanistic because it's very simple. It's not organized insomuch that curriculum has to be followed," Branche said.

Honoring one's ancestors and the spirits of the natural world is the focal point of voodoo, Branche noted.

"Their belief is that the ancestors never leave and the ancestors must always be satisfied and pleased," she said. "If your crops are bad or you are infertile or you cannot get a husband, then the ancestors are not pleased.

"Therefore, we must do something to honor the ancestors, and we must have an attitude of sacredness and divineness when we do it," she said. "Therefore, here comes the ritual, the ceremony."

In a ceremony, the ultimate goal is to become possessed by a spirit. Chanting, drums and dancing all induce possession. Branche says she was possessed nearly 30 years ago on a visit to Haiti. She and some friends were watching a voodoo ceremony when it happened.

"Of course me, I'm getting bored because I can't understand the language, I don't know what's going on, and nobody's explaining," she said. "The next thing I knew, I was out in the middle of it.

"The next thing I remember is they had me in the car. I knew something had happened. I've seen it happen to others — it happens all the time. I wasn't the same after that."

Voodoo, Branche says, is unjustly maligned.

"There is no other religion that has been bastardized, prostituted, ridiculed, and put in such a bad light by people who knew nothing about it," she said.

"All that negative [stuff about] voodoo curses and voodoo dolls and zombies and all of that — that just isn't real."

Voodoo does have two sides, just like white and black magic. One is rada, which Branche calls "the gentle and loving and healing side" of the religion. The other is petro.

The Massachusetts Daily Collegain
113 Campus Center Basement
545-3500
ARTS & FREE LOVE FOR A GOOD TIME CALL 545-1361

THE BLACK SHEEP
79 MAIN ST.
AMHERST 253-3442
UMASS STUDENTS
10% DISCOUNT ON ALL PURCHASES-
ALL YEAR LONG.
SHOW YOUR UMASS ID.
SANDWICHES, SOUPS, SALADS, COFFEE, CAPPUCCINO, CAKES, COOKIES, BREADS, CHEESE, FRESH JUICES, AND CATERING.

■ Big E

continued from page 6

It's hearing the call of the local vendors as you pass through the dubious looking mid–way wondering if the zipper and tilt–a–whirl are worth the $2 and possibly your life. It's staring at the sky as you whirl around, hoping your stomach doesn't heave or the safety bar loosen, while below you, people of all shapes, sizes, nationalities and musical tastes come together to have some good clean fun.

What's so big about the Big E?

And what can be cleaner and more fun than the Big E? It has such a rustic quality and at the same time a touch of modernity. Agriculture is just as much a profession as law or medicine. There is a certain amount of satisfaction in knowing you grew something as big as a 450 lb. pumpkin from a seed as big as your fingernail.

Some of the highlights of this year's fair include the I– SNET Infoway, a "fun and informative way to introduce and educate visitors in the latest in computers and communications technology." The "I–way" is filled with over 60 such exhibits that will wisk you away to a time not so far away.

Still need some persuasion? Then how about the allure of the circus? Sponsored by Coca–Cola the Big E Circus under the Big E Top (naturally) is a long time Big E tradition with performers and acts handpicked from top notch shows around the world. Free to the public the show revolves around the European style "main ring" format.

From your seat you can witness the flying trapeze, the Marinoffs of Romania's gravity–defying aerial act, elephants, horses, dogs, Caesar (one of the world's greatest and hopefully un–annoying mime) along with a plethora of clowns. This year, the circus is housed under a brand new tent and has expanded seating and theater–style lighting.

The Spin Doctors are just one of the many fabulous bands to play the Big E.

COURTESY OF BIG E

For the young'uns and those young at heart there is nothing quite like a Farm–a–rama. What the hell is that? Good question, it's like a petting zoo with an edge. How much of an edge? Well, you can see baby chicks hatching, llamas (did you know that in South America they are used just like a mule or donkey and can, on occasion, be eaten?), giant pumpkins, rare animal breeds, giant Clydesdales and award winning 4–H and FFA creations.

New this year will be Farm Follies, an animated show about foods (no, this is not a joke) and where they come from. Especially good for those who can't remember the four food groups, but know all the lyrics to "American Pie."

Once the quality of a man or woman was known by the way they sat on a horse. The way they sat as they galloped hither and nither bespoke the person's class, education and all–around snobbiness. But that has all changed and now sitting on a horse isn't half as spectacular as riding, galloping and generally wowing onlookers. Hence, The Big E Wild West Show which features trick riding and other strange and unusual acts performed while on horseback (mind out of the gutter, please).

Still not convinced?

One of the highlights of the fair is the Avenue of States where six buildings modeled after the original State Houses are lined up and filled with the state's finest foods, products, crafts and vacation information.

People literally cram into these puppies for things like homemade ice cream (Vt.), Del's Lemonade (R.I.), baked stuffed clams (Maine) and freshly picked apples (Mass.).

Last year there was a tank full of tobacco spit and you could "bid" on how much spit was in the tank (it may seem easy, but it wasn't). There were also numerous animated displays and food, food, food! Be prepared to shell out the bucks, especially at the Massachusetts house where a lottery distribution tent is set up beckoning you to buy scratch tickets and try your hand at being a millionaire.

Of course there are the odd and unusual activities that make you wonder who has so much damn time on their hands. Case in point: the Spam Recipe Contest (great if you're stuck in a fall out shelter), Joie Citwood's Thrill Show, McDonald's Land Stage and "the half man, half (oh pick any exotic animal that humans could never mate with)" tent — a.k.a the freak show.

So to sum it all up in a not-so-tidy way, there is a lot to see, even for the most jaded and eclectic of tastes. Maybe you don't go to see the horses and the jams and the jellies. Maybe you don't care about pigs and how much wool a sheep can produce or that Kelly Irene Bielonko, age 5 from Suffield, Conn. won top squash honors for a 400 lb. plus pumpkin. But there is something undeniably appealing about visiting this cultural mecca.

I think it's called the desire to have a good time.

COURTESY OF FLEMING, TABULPICH

Ani DiFranco will play at a sold-out John M. Green Hall this Saturday night to promote her latest release, Not A Pretty Girl. This is her seventh album from Righteous Babe Records.

Expand your world:
write for
Multicultural Affairs
545-3500 • 113 Campus Center

Change Lanes
NEW ROUTE OPENED
40
Some
U-Turns
THE UMASS CAREER CENTER
Where the Present Meets the Future
RETURN TO SCHOOL ZONE
DETOURS
30
No Limits
NO ONE WAY
20
CONSULT MAPS

Welcome to the Career Information Highway .....
Where the Present Meets the Future

Options, options, options....your first job is not necessarily for the rest of your life

Your career path is an open road .... with information stops, side roads, detours, and even some U turns.

Come find out what it's all about as the Career Information Highway comes to life in the Campus Center Auditorium for the Career Center Open House

Wednesday September 27
from 10-3

co-sponsored by EDS, Filene's - a division of May Dept. Stores Co., and Procter & Gamble

Open your mind... think beyond the confines of your major.... let the Career Center be your guide.

Resume clinic ~~~ Mock Interviews~~~ Food ~~~ Fun ~~~ Prizes ~~~ Giveaways ~~~
~~~Displays ~~~ Recent alums, employers ready to talk with you~~~
~~~The latest job search technology~~~Interview signups by phone~~~Networking~~~
~~~Co-ops~~~Internships~~~Career Planning Courses~~~Grad school information~~~

Don't miss this important event! First year through graduate students welcome!

$1,000 IN DOOR PRIZES!!
FREE resume referral software packets
Autographed UMASS basketballs
Gift certificates from local businesses

Please note: The Main Center at Mather will be closed for this event
~~~

WOMEN making WAVES

Compiled by Laura Schmidt

Best Companies for Working Mothers

The Boston Globe published an article this month in Working Mother magazine which listed 100 companies best suited for working mothers.

When compiling their list, Working Mother examined pay scales, opportunities for women to advance, support for child care and the range and extent of family-friendly benefits available to employees.

Judson Culbreth, the editor-in-chief of the magazine said the goal in creating this roster of the best companies was to call attention to corporate role models so that other companies would follow in their footsteps.

Companies from Massachusetts on the list, which appeared in the magazine's October issue, are Beth Israel Hospital, Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Massachusetts, Nynex Corp., John Hancock Financial Services in Boston, Hill, Holiday, Connors, Cosmopulos Inc., all of Boston, as well as Cambridge-based Lotus Development Corp, Massachusetts Mutual Life Insurance Co. in Springfield and WearGuard Corp. in Norwell.

Today, more than 75 percent of the firms polled have on- site childcare or are affiliated with a center.

Miss America: Swimsuits Remain

Miss Oklahoma, Shawntel Smith, was crowned Miss America on Sept. 16, which was also her 24th birthday.

Smith was not the only one who received attention as the swimsuit issue took center stage. Viewers voted overwhelmingly to retain the swimsuit competition, in keeping with 75 years of pageant history. Some called the segment sexist and irrelevant, trying to have it eliminated.

Miss America said her victory would mean much to Oklahomans still recovering from the April 19 bombing of the Federal Building in Oklahoma City.

Woman With Cancer Risks Life To Give Birth

Valhalla, N.Y., Sept 18 — New mother, Aracely Saldana, 23, risked her life to give birth after doctors urged her to terminate her pregnancy.

Following a routine blood test, Saldana became diagnosed with leukemia, which, said her doctors, would almost certainly lead to the mother's death if she did not terminate her pregnancy.

Despite the doctor's wishes, Saldana ignored them all and gave birth on Sept. 8, to Bianca Maria Ramos, a healthy 6 pounds 13 ounce daughter at the Westchester County Medical Center.

Saldana's survival is still, however, uncertain. In the upcoming weeks, Ms. Saldana will receive chemotherapy and bone marrow transplant treatments to fight the leukemia.

However, doctors said Saldana still has a lot of problems to overcome, but there is a good chance she will ultimately have a happy ending.

"I couldn't stop thinking about the baby, no matter what people told me," said Ms. Saldana in yesterday's New York Times.

DAYMON SMITH/COLLEGIAN

Come fly with me...

Dick Giusto owner of the Pioneer Valley Balloons tried out his new 99.3 FM sponsored balloon over the happy valley.

Hadley Coin-Op Laundromat
206 Russell St./Rt.9
Open 7 Days 6am - 10pm
Top Loaders: $1.00 • Dbl Loaders: $1.50

classé cafe'
The Buy One Get One Deal Of The Century!
*Any Deluxe Platter, Club, Omolette, Burrito, Chef Salad, Veggie Burger . . . !
Sunday Brunch 7-3
Mon-Sat 7-10pm
Clip That Coupon
READY IN MINUTES —AND SO THRIFTY
168 Pleasant Street Amherst • 253-2291
Bring A Friend Buy One Get One*
What a Deal!
Coupon Good: Monday - Friday 7am - 10pm
classé cafe'
HURRY!
Expires 10/5/95
With This Coupon
Equal or Lesser Value

PETE'S DRIVE-IN
Route 9 Hadley On the Rail Trail
FAMOUS FOR OUR 2 BURGS 2 BUCKS 1/4 POUNDERS
ADVOCATE'S BEST OF THE VALLEY 1995

HEALTHWORKS
ADULT FITNESS AT KIDSPORTS
Basketball/ Volleyball Court
FREE TO MEMBERS
Aerobics
Step • Slide • Hi-Lo Impact • Specialty Classes
Circuit Weight Training
Cardio Machines
Stairmaster • Treadmils • Life Cycle • Nordic Track
Free Weight Training
Cardio Theater
Only Health Club in the area that has one!
Group Discounts Get Your Friends Together And Save $$$
JUST 5 MINUTES FROM AMHERST AREA COLLEGES
317 RUSSELL ST. • ROUTE 9 HADLEY
586-0633

It's more than just the music. It's a way of life.
Tie-Died
Rock 'n Roll's Most Deadicated Fans
Bonus Attraction: "A Conversation with Ken Kesey"
A short film by Peter Shapiro PG-13
SHOWCASE CINEMAS WEST SPRINGFIELD
RIVERDALE RD. • 733-5131
STARTS FRIDAY SEPTEMBER 22
Visit us on the Web at: http://www.tie-died.com Read the Doubleday Book - "Skeleton Key: A Dictionary For Deadheads"

Red Sox clinch AL East

By Howard Ulman
Associated Press

BOSTON — Mo Vaughn stood on second, pumping his fist toward Jose Canseco, who had just delivered the decisive run — and the AL East title — with a broken-bat single, not a trademark homer.

Canseco did what the Red Sox hoped he would do when they traded with Texas for him in the off-season. His seventh-inning hit Wednesday night gave Boston a 3-2 win over the Milwaukee Brewers and its first division championship since 1990.

"That's why we got him," Vaughn said. "He set out to do a job and he did it, and that's why we are right here."

The usually serious Vaughn smiled in the champagne-soaked clubhouse after he and several teammates had taken celebratory rides on horses of mounted policemen who rode onto the field after the victory.

Canseco, obtained in a trade with Texas in the off-season, has been a key to Boston's season, hitting .306 with 24 homers and 77 RBIs, including two RBIs Wednesday. Since the All-Star break, he is hitting .327 with 19 homers and 56 RBIs.

"I really didn't think about it," Canseco said of filling the hero's role the Red Sox hoped he would fill. "I just thought about getting that base hit, putting us ahead."

And he didn't mind that he did it with a single through the infield instead of a homer far over the left-field wall.

"I would have rather had the single than hit a line drive to the shortstop," he said. "That ball was surgically placed."

After that, Boston held Milwaukee hitless as Rick Aguilera picked up his 31st save.

The Red Sox have held first place by themselves since May 15 and built a season-high 16-game lead Aug. 28. But they've had trouble locking up the division. They went 3-7 on a recent road trip to New York, Baltimore and Cleveland as their magic number remained at two.

It stayed there when the Red Sox lost and the second-place Yankees won Monday. Boston won 5-3 Tuesday to clinch a tie for the division title, but 50 minutes later New York finished a 5-3 win over Toronto, giving Boston a chance to clinch with a victory Wednesday.

"This is the way it's supposed to be, in front of our fans at home," Boston manager Kevin Kennedy said. "We've gotten past the biggest hurdle, getting into the playoffs."

Kennedy also took a ride on a horse as fans stayed long after the game to cheer the Red Sox.

In New York, where the Yankees beat Toronto 2-1, New York manager Buck Showalter said, "When [ESPN's] SportsCenter goes to their celebration tonight, my channel will be turned."

The Red Sox will play the AL wild-card team unless it's the Yankees. In that case, they would play Cleveland.

"If Boston and Cleveland meet and they play their best baseball, it could be a great series," Milwaukee's John Jaha said.

"They earned it. I just wish it hadn't come against us," Milwaukee manager Phil Garner said. "Canseco put the ball in play when he had to. That's what makes him the player he is."

Canseco trotted down the first-base line with his bat handle in his hand as the hard grounder rolled into left field, scoring Luis Alicea.

Rheal Cormier (7-5) pitched two perfect innings in relief of Erik Hanson, who worked five hitless innings but left the game after the sixth in which he was hit on the right leg.

Dwayne Hosey, claimed off waivers from Kansas City on Aug. 31, had a major role in the victory. He led off the first inning with a double and fifth with a single and scored both times. After Alicea started the seventh with a single, Hosey sacrificed him to second. John Valentin then flied out and Vaughn was walked intentionally by Ron Rightnowar. Canseco followed with his decisive hit.

After Hosey's double, he took third when a pickoff attempt by Scott Karl (5-6) sailed into center field. Hosey scored on Valentin's groundout. Hosey started the fifth with a single, stole second, went to third on Vaughn's single and scored when Canseco grounded into a force play.

Yankees beat Blue Jays

Yankees 2, Blue Jays 1

NEW YORK (AP) — Sterling Hitchcock pitched a six-hitter in his final scheduled start of the season Wednesday night, keeping New York near the top of the wild-card standings with a 2-1 victory over Toronto.

It was New York's third victory in a row, its seventh straight at home and its eighth in a row over the Blue Jays. The Yankees, winners of 18 of their last 24 games, moved within a half-game of Seattle in the wild-card standings pending the outcome of the Mariners' late game vs. Texas.

Mets 8, Braves 4

ATLANTA (AP) — Jeff Kent went 4-for-5 and drove in two runs Wednesday night as the New York Mets beat the Atlanta Braves 8-4. It was the seventh victory in eight games for the Mets, who beat the NL East champions for the second straight night.

Jason Isringhausen (8-2) won his sixth consecutive decision in his first appearance against the Braves. He allowed Ryan Klesko's 21st homer leading off the second, tying it 1-1. Isringhausen went five innings, allowing four runs and six hits, walking four. John Franco, the Mets' fourth pitcher, came on in the ninth with two outs and the bases loaded and got Klesko to ground out for his 26th save.

Astros 4, Cubs 0

HOUSTON (AP) — Shane Reynolds, winless since Aug. 30, threw a seven-hitter and Craig Biggio drove in two runs with a second-inning single, leading the Houston Astros to a 4-0 victory over the Chicago Cubs on Wednesday night.

The Astros, who at best can tie Cincinnati in the NL Central, pulled within one-half game of the Los Angeles Dodgers in wild-card race. The Dodgers played host to San Francisco later Wednesday night.

Marlins 2, Phillies 1

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — John Burkett pitched a four-hitter and Quilvio Veras had a two-run homer as the Florida Marlins defeated the Philadelphia Phillies 2-1 Wednesday night. The only run off Burkett (14-12) was Lenny Webster's third homer with two outs in the second. He struck out four and walked two in his fourth complete game of the season.

The Marlins went ahead 2-1 in the third when Steve Decker singled with one out and Veras followed with his fifth homer off Paul Quantrill (11-10).

■ baseball

continued from page 20

esting to think about.

• Cal Ripken is a hero — no question about it. But does he need a rest? The week Ripken broke Lou Gehrig's "unbreakable" record, he was hitting in the high .300's. Since the legend broke the mark, he is hitting a dismal .073, going 3-for-41 at the plate. All of the Ripken hype has silenced a bit since the historical day at Camden Yards, and the Orioles have dropped out of the wild-card race. Now what? The record is broken, and in this day and age, it will never be broken again. If the Birds were in the race for post-season, I would say rest up Ripken for a few days and have him come in strong for the post-season.

• I have a personal theory about why Red Sox pitcher Erik Hanson does not throw his curve ball. Hanson hurt his elbow earlier this season, keeping his curveball out of his repertoire. Throwing fastballs and sliders does not affect his elbow, so while he is throwing his other pitches, the elbow can still heal. Conclusion: Hanson's curveball will be back for his first start in post-season play.

Mike Brown is a Collegian columnist.

■ Mack

continued from page 20

Other names that are in the early running are: Edwin Young, (Zanesville, Ohio) a point guard in a Derek Kellogg mode; Shamel Jones (Brooklyn), a 6-foot-8-inch forward that UMass has reportedly had a long standing interest in, and Tommy Polly (Baltimore), who attended Dunbar, the same high school attended by current Minuteman Donta Bright.

Collegian Graphics
We're up all night putting together new England's largest college daily.
When our job is done — your day is just beginning

Collegian Classifieds
They Work!
545-3500
113 Campus Center

Come Enjoy our all new delicious
BUFFET
Over 20
Different Items To Choose
Served 7 Days A Week Lunch & Dinner
Lunch Buffet • $5.95
Dinner Buffet • $8.95
"Bringing The Tradition To You"
CHINA DYNASTY
RESTAURANT AND LOUNGE
Delivery thru Delivery Express 549-0077
Route 9 & University Drive in Amherst
256-8800
OPEN DAILY: 11:30 AM-10 PM • FRI. & SAT. TILL 11 PM • SUN 12-10 PM

AT THE GATES OF SMITH COLLEGE
Fri. Sept. 22 - Wed. Sept. 27/Separate Tickets
6:00 PM Daily 7:35pm
A Documentary by American filmmakers Jonathan Blank and Barclay Powers, is a well-assembled informative look at Holland as a libertarian model.
SEX DRUGS and DEMOCRACY R
3rd Week!
"THE BEST PARTY MOVIE OF THE YEAR!"
UNZIPPED
The #1Thriller Daily at 9:15pm Tickets from 8:30
"A DELICIOUSLY COMPLEX CRIME STORY!"
"A DYNAMITE CAST! SPELLBINDING! A Demonically Funny Thriller."
THE USUAL SUSPECTS
ACADEMY OF MUSIC NORTHAMPTON Cinema Center 584-8435

Weekends, Scott's, and You!!
The Perfect Party Combination
Scott's LIQUORS
Thank You For Your Patronage
OPEN Mon.-Sat. 8a.m.-11 p.m. Tel 549-2692
Absolut Vodka $20.99 1.75 Liter
Rolling Rock Reg & Light 12 pack Bottles $6.99 +dep
Quantity Discounts Available
NEW! Hornsby's Draft Cider $4.99 6 pack
Busch & Busch Light 30 pack $10.99 +dep
Sam Adams, Harpoon, Saranac, & Catamount Mix & Match Cases $18.79 +dep
Southern Comfort $8.49 750 ml
CHECK OR CALL FOR OUR OTHER GREAT IN STORE SPECIALS
We Want To Be Your Favorite Liquor Store !
Tele-Check for your personal check
6 University Drive at Newmarket Center, Amherst

WHERE'D THE HATCH PIZZA GO?
ANS: It's in the Bluewall weekdays from 11:30 am 'til midnight- and the deli's open too!

Men's tennis looks to finish Fairfield

By Jameson Heos
Collegian Correspondent

After last year's match ended prematurely due to rain, the Massachusetts men's tennis team feels it has some unfinished business left in today's match against Fairfield University at 3 p.m. at Upper Boyden Courts.

With the score tied 3–3 heading into the doubles matches, clouds rolled in and ended the day's games. The match was never rescheduled, so Massachusetts coach Judy Dixon is looking forward to this afternoon.

"We want to finish it this year for sure. We have to go after the doubles point because they are pretty strong at [No. 1 and No. 2]. So we have to play UMass tennis by winning the doubles and going after No. 3, No. 4, No. 5 and No. 6," Dixon said. "We have to get the grunters to win."

The Minutemen are coming off an impressive 6–1 victory at Rhode Island this past Monday, where they improved their record to 2–1. UMass assistant coach Doug Knuth felt the team played strong, but there are areas where they have to improve.

"They didn't come out with as much energy as I would have liked. They still came out with a [good] win, but they could have come out a little bit stronger," he said.

Senior co-captain Darren Tau came away with his first win of the year and Knuth said, "It was a good match for him because [the opponent] he played was really talented. It was a close match where he had to grind it out to the end."

Freshman Todd Cheaney and junior transfer Ryan Ginley have continued to impress as they improved their doubles record to 3–0 along with sophomore Alex Aller at No. 4 singles.

"It is unusual that I would have a freshman starting right away, but he worked his way onto the lineup," Dixon said. "We are putting out the best team we have and I will go with that."

Senior co-captain Justin Lynn and transfer Gregor Rummel have turned it around after losing their season opener to Boston University. Both have came back with consecutive straight set victories and are looking to continue their streak today. Ankur Bayshu had his perfect record blemished as he fell at No. 3 singles to drop to 2–1.

"No one played bad, but we came out a little bit flat. We came off a real strong win on Saturday [against Wesleyan] with a lot of intensity. Then we came into Monday's match with a little bit lower intensity in the same type of match. On Saturday, they came out and beat the other team, but Monday, they didn't come out as motivated," Dixon said.

After today's match, UMass takes on Wheaton at home on Saturday at 1 p.m.

Women's tennis remains unbeaten; match with HC puts record at 4-0

By Jay Warner
Collegian Correspondent

Despite the fact that the Massachusetts women's tennis team was playing it's fourth match in five days, the Minutewomen cruised to an easy 9–0 defeat of Holy Cross.

The Minutewomen extended their undefeated streak to an early and impressive record of 4–0. Although the team is young in age, their maturity and ability to handle the competition has resulted in a successful start to the 1995 season.

Co-captain Liesl Sitton once again lead the way, winning the No. 1 singles with relative ease, 6–2, 6–1. Sitton teamed with Caroline Steele in the No. 1 doubles match, defeating the Crusaders combination of Stephanie Raymond and Courtney Gelinas, 8–3. Prior to her doubles victory, Steele won No. 5 singles without a blemish, 6–0, 6–0.

Freshman Jackie Braunstein moved to the No. 2 singles slot, and continued to display her young talent, dominating Holy Cross' Gelinas, 6–1, 6–1. Braunstein teamed with Lana Gorodetskaya in the No. 3 doubles match, completing the entire sweep with a convincing 8–1 win. The combination of co-captain Liz Durant and freshman Marie-Christine Caron was the third doubles team at the No. 2 spot, beating their competition, 8–2.

"We've come out of the first third of the season in wonderful shape," UMass coach Judy Dixon said. "I think the good news is that our doubles is very strong."

Caron, who has handled the pressure of Division I athletics well in her first season, was victorious in her No. 6 singles match, 6–2, 6–1. Durant, whose co-captain status has put her under the spotlight in terms of the younger players looking up to her, started her No. 3 singles match in strong fashion before finishing the match in two sets, 6–0, 6–3. Gorodetskaya rounded out the singles card, winning the No. 4 spot, 6–2, 6–4.

The team gets a well-deserved rest until it travels to Rhode Island to play top rival, Providence College. P.C. defeated the Minutewomen in the regular season last year by a single point, as well as winning the New England Championship.

Men's soccer falls to UNH

The Massachusetts men's soccer team had its winning streak stopped at three games as they were defeated by the New Hampshire Wildcats, 4–2, yesterday in Durham, N.H.

Steve Jones got the Minutemen on the scoreboard at 9:05 in the first half with his first goal of the season. He scored on a scramble in front of the net following a header by Brad Miller off a Lee Marlow corner kick.

New Hampshire then went on to score four unanswered goals, including a hat trick by Mike Keevan. Bennie Sheally hit the scoring column for the first time this season also, as he got an unassisted goal at 81:15 in the second half to finish off the scoring for UMass.

The Wildcats outshot the Minutemen 18–12. Steve Baccari had eight saves in goal for New Hampshire while Eric Gruber had five stops for the Minutemen.

UMass now falls to 5–2–1 on the year, and remains at 3–1– 1 in Atlantic 10 Conference games. New Hampshire improves its record to 4–2–1.

Up until yesterday's game, the Minutemen had held opponents to no more than two goals a game. The 18 shots New Hampshire taken on goal was also the most an opponent fired against UMass this season. The Minutemen have scored a total of 20 goals this season and have given up 12 to the competition. They have also outshot opponents 115–96 on the year.

The Minutemen will return to action this Saturday in what will be one of, if not the, most important games of the season, as they will host the Boston University Terriers at Richard F. Garber Field at 1 p.m.

— Mike Corey

COLLEGIAN FILE PHOTO

Haven't thought of one yet!

Rene Ingoglia and the Minutemen are preparing for their first away game of the season on Saturday against rival Northeastern.

■ football

continued from page 20

Kordell Stewart to the draft was huge. Coach Rick Neuheisel has found a gem at QB to replace Stewart in the form of junior Koy Detmer. Ty's younger brother has thrown for 948 yards and eight TD's in the Buffs three games. While the Colorado offense has performed well for Neuheisel, the defense may be the weak link. A&M has choked in big games in the past, but it won't happen Saturday. Texas A&M 38, Colorado 23.

Texas at Notre Dame

The No. 13 Longhorns head to South Bend to face a Notre Dame team that is coming off a 41-0 whipping of Vanderbilt. Texas beat Pitt last week 38–27, a game the Panthers led by two scores until the final 2:45. Texas is led by running-backs Priest Holmes and Darrell Wilson. The Texas defensive unit is solid and is led by a tremendous secondary, which features safeties Tre Thomas and Chris Carter. Notre Dame comes into this game riding emotion.

They will play at home and coach Lou Holtz should be in attendance, as he is side-lined after spinal surgery. The Irish enter an extremely difficult part of their schedule as they will face Ohio St. and Washington in their next two games. The Irish need this one before they head to the road. QB Ron Powlus and the Irish win one for Lou, Notre Dame 31, Texas 24.

Southern Cal at Arizona

Sports Illustrated picked USC to win it all and the Trojans have lived up to the hype so far. Wide receiver Keyshawn Johnson has been on fire in his first two games. He has hauled in 16 passes at an average of nearly 19 yards per catch, including 176 yards last Saturday. Coach John Robinson's defense returns a solid nucleus from last year.

For Arizona, a lack of offense will doom the Wildcats all season. The loss of 1,000 yard rusher Ontiwaun Carter leaves a major gap at running back, and senior QB Dan White simply does not have the weapons around him to put points on the board consistently. This year's version on the "Desert Swarm" defense is led by Lombardi Trophy finalist Tedy Bruschi. The Wildcats' can't hang with USC offensively, that will be the difference. The Trojans take this one. Southern Cal 37, Arizona 14.

Greg Corey is a Collegian correspondent.

■ volleyball

continued from page 20

final game, when UConn stepped it up a notch in crunchtime and eventually prevailed, 15–9.

"I just thought we never should have been in the position we were in," Kenny said. "We need to be much more competitive from beginning to end. And we have the personnel to do it, we just have to get everybody on the same page. We've been used to it being easier [in previous years]."

If nothing else, the match was a good preparation for when the Mullins Center hosts the NCAA Championships in December. And Crandall thought that UMass' team will actually benefit from their defeat.

"I think UMass realized in this match that they can play effectively without Giza," she said. "They really matured tonight."

Minutewomen notes: Former UMass field hockey coach and current USA Olympic field hockey coach, Pam Hixon, was in attendance last night, as was UMass football coach Mike Hodges... Nash on playing in the Mullins Center and all of the fans: "It was exciting. I wish we could play here more often"... Nolan on the same: "Practicing in here this week kind of got us used to it. But it was fun. Hopefully, we'll be able to play here in the future."

8
MICHAEL'S BILLIARDS
• 60" Big Screen T.V.
• 8- 9 ft. Tables
• Mon. Night Pool League
Friday Sept. 22 High Tide 9:45
Saturday Sept. 23 Blue Planet 9:45
10A Belchertown Road • Amherst, MA 01002 • 256-8284

PEKING GARDEN OPEN 7 DAYS
ALL YOU CAN EAT LUNCH BUFFET 11 a.m.-3 p.m. Monday-Saturday Lunch Buffet to Go - also $3.99 Only $3.99
ALL YOU CAN EAT DINNER BUFFET or Dinner Buffet to Go - also $6.99 Regular Menu Always Available Only $6.99
7 NIGHTS A WEEK 5-9 P.M.
LATIN NIGHTS PARTY Every Thurs. & Fri. 8 p.m. - 1a.m. Call 256-4580 or 256-3425
SUNDAY BUFFET 11 a.m. - 3 p.m. Only $5.99
COMEDY EVERY SATURDAY
20% OFF All dinners for Comedy Patrons
Rt. 9, Hadley • 586-1202

FOOTBALL FANS
Coach Hodges Show with
WHMP TODAY'S 99.3 ALL HIT MUSIC
MARK VANDERMEER & FRED BOURASSA
At The
TOP OF THE CAMPUS LOUNGE
Tonight 7:00 PM

The New Club Castaway
Home of Adult Entertainment in Franklin & hampshire Counties
Castaway Lounge
I-91 to exit 24, south on Rte. 5, Whately, Mass., (413) 665-8722
From Amherst: Take Rt. 116 North to Route 5 & 10. Turn Left, Go 2 Miles South to Castaway Lounge
Now Accepting Private Engagement Parties in our V.I.P. Room. Special rates
The New Club Castaway
Proudly Presents the Classic Cat Room
Special Rates For
• Bachelor Parties
• Anniversary Parties
• Private Parties
To have the V.I.P. Room for Private Parties, 20 or more required.
Female Amateur Night
Monday, Oct. 2, 1995
Amateur Dancers must Apply in Person.
Call for Interview (413) 665-8733
Introducing the New Private Table Dancing
25 Dancers Appearing Weekly
Entertainment 2 p.m. - 1 a.m. Tues. - Sat.
Dancing Entertainers are Welcomed
The New Club Castaway

Introducing
From the people who brought you the Haunted Car Wash
The Ultimate Car Wash Experience
GOLDEN NOZZLE PRESENTS
LASERWASH
An Amazing Laser-Light Show in a Fully Functional Car Wash
"Good, Clean Fun"
"The best time you'll ever have in neutral"
"You won't believe your eyes"
September 20, 1995 - September 30, 1995
Sunday - Thursday 4pm - 8pm
Friday & Saturday 4pm - 10pm
Rt. 9 Hadley • Amherst line next to Super Stop & Shop
BP Shop is now Open 24 Hours 7 Days

Business Desk
needs writers.
Call Matt Wurtzel at 545-3500 or come down to 113 Campus Center

UMASS MEDIA RELATIONS

Rachel LeDuc has been an offensive star for the Minutewomen in her senior season, leading the team with 11 points and five goals.

■ women's soccer

continued from page 20

career and has been dubbed a "big game scorer" by Rudy. That title began when she scored the lone goal in a 1–0 win in a NCAA regional tournament game against UConn.

"In a sense the name is true, because early I would come in during the second half and I would get goals off the bench," LeDuc said. "I like scoring the game winners, but I also like setting them up."

So far this season she has matched her total goal output of 1994. Last season was an off year but not because of lack of effort.

"She didn't work any less hard last year," Rudy said of LeDuc play in 1994. "She spent part of last year playing with a bad ankle."

"Her goal scoring has brought relief. Someone was needed to step up and she has been there to do it." Rudy said of her production this year. "She's been opportunistic, she's pounced on balls, and she's gotten on things all over the field."

LeDuc said she knew if she continued to work hard, things would work out in the end.

"Last year was a slump year for me," she said. "I have been working really hard in the Spring and Summer to get myself ready and I feel I was in good shape last year but this year I feel really good."

Being a senior captain, LeDuc is someone who is looked to as a leader on this squad. It is a role she accepts gladly but knows her teammates are capable of being leaders as well.

"Everyone on this team has qualities of a leader," LeDuc said. "Some of us have the title of captain, but we are all captains in some way."

Losses during the off-season of goal scorers from last year, Melissa Mitchell and Nicole Roberts, left an opening for her at the striker position to contribute greatly in the goal scoring column.

"Now that she is the big cheese upfront, there are opportunities that weren't there before, because she's up there and active," Rudy said. "She does more and she's all over the field. She's been in the right place to get the goals, but we are not a one person show. It's just worked out that way to this point. She is a senior. It's her last year and she is not letting anything get in her way.

"Knowing Nicole wasn't going to be up top to be the key scorer I knew I was going to have to take on some responsibilities," LeDuc said. "I feel like I have more room up there now to work with. Now its my turn and I think I like that."

Putting the ball in the net is not the only way she is leading by example. Her commitment to do whatever it takes is a added benefit on the field, which her coach hopes will make a lasting impression on some of his young and up-and-coming players.

"She sets a standard that I would like the freshmen and the young front-runners to watch her more closely," Rudy said. "I think if they're smart and watch what she does and how much she does it, they'll learn something.

"Even if she can't get to the ball she will still jump or slide to impede the vision or play of the defender. That could force the opposition to make a turnover and get the ball back for the team that way. Even when Rachel was a younger player, her style and commitment from when she came on as a sub rubbed off on everyone."

This past weekend, as the Minutewomen prepared to play the second game of a tournament, LeDuc and her fellow captain Nikki Ahrenholz saw that the team wasn't quite focused and they got the team together for a pep-talk and clear the air.

"Before the game, the attitude the players had before warmup was laxed," Rudy added. "Nikki and Rachel pulled the team together on their own and said this game, just like all the other games are serious, so let's take it seriously, we don't want to get beat today. That's lead ership."

LeDuc, a Longmeadow native, likes the fact she plays close to home, and that was part of the decision that brought her to UMass.

"I love the support I have gotten from friends, my high school and my club teams," she said. "Its been wonderful. I am not to far away from home that I can't go there when I want, but its' also far enough away, too.

"I did come here for the soccer of course, but also for the academics, those both are really important to me," LeDuc said. "It's just been a great four years on this team. The friendships are great and when its time to get serious, we are really focused on what we are doing."

■ Vautour

continued from page 20

first season, and caught the eye of many enthusiasts when they upset rival Rhode Island in the Atlantic 10 Tournament. It was a helluva year for a team that 12 months before had no players and no coach.

"I tell them they are the pioneers of UMass volleyball," Kenny said. "Every time they look back they should reflect on what this program means. It's an honor."

The Minutewomen continued that rise in their second season, adding 10 wins to their previous season's mark to finish the campaign at 27–8. Their success earned them an invitation to the National Invitational Volleyball Championship (NIVC).

"We were ecstatic to get to the NIVC in only our second year," Kenny said. "They got to see good teams. It's unrealistic to think we're a final four team and we're not a top 20 team. But we're not far away from that if we can get a couple more good recruiting classes and people stay focused."

The success has paid some serious dividends in terms of recruiting.

"It has brought immediate respect," Kenny said. "Our interest this year has been tremendous from good players."

To put the program's rise in some sort of perspective, volleyball was reinstated the same year that ice hockey was revived, and just one year after the return of women's lacrosse. But while Joe Mullen and Francesca McClellan's squads have gone through the natural growing pains of a young program, Kenny's crew has skyrocketed toward national respect, as the tradition builds.

"What would I like the tradition to be?" Kenny asks herself almost rhetorically.

"Winning," she said. "Getting better every year. We're not practicing to finish second. The first two years have taught us how to win."

Kenny is quick to acknowledge the success came quicker than she anticipated, but she believes that the next step will be even more difficult.

"I think we're ahead of schedule," Kenny said. "But now it's time for us to take the next step. When you're trying to get up the ladder and into the national picture, it's a different game."

So yesterday volleyball took another step. The third-year program faced off against rival Connecticut in a building that is the crown jewel of the University, the William D. Mullins Center, taking its place alongside men's and women's basketball, and ice hockey.

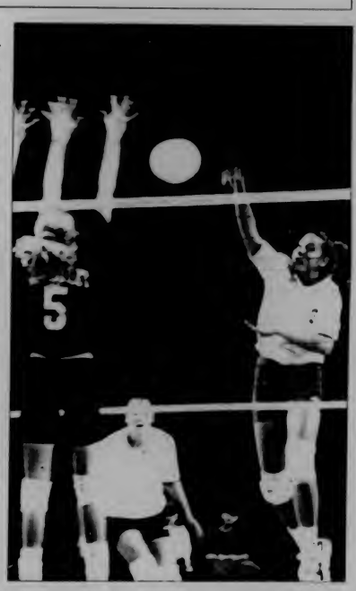
"I think it's neat," Kenny said. "I think it's a beautiful arena to play-in. It makes it a little more of an event, I think it's nice to be able to go to the main arena on campus and be able to have a big match."

In three years most programs would be happy just to have arrived. At Massachusetts, a third-year program is well on its way to becoming an institution.

Matt Vautour is a Collegian columnist.

Sports Notice

Tune in to Sportsline on WMUA, 91.1 FM, tonight from 5:30 p.m. to 6:30 p.m. for UMass' only sports call-in talk show. Tonight's show will feature UMass men's soccer and, as always, all of the pro sports.



RYAN TEZZI / COLLEGIAN

The Minutewomen were down two games to one before fighting back to force a fifth and deciding game against UConn last night at Mullins.

HARPOON BREWERY
CUTTY'S
Presents
THE HARPOON BREW-CREW!
THUR. SEPT. 21st
T- Shirts, Caps & Passes to our huge OCTOBERFEST PARTY!

FREE ADMISSION SEMINARS
Find out what it takes to get into the school of your choice!
Business School · Law School · Grad School · Med School
Overcome These Admission Hurdles...
• Applications • Entrance Exams • Essays • Interviews
Learn How To...
• Organize the Admission Process • Choose the Right School • Ace Your Interview • Get a Higher Test Score • Get Good Recommendations • Write a Winning Personal Statement • Find Financial Aid
1-800-KAP-TEST
KAPLAN

STUDY ABROAD
Semester, Summer and Year Programs
Ecuador • Spain
England • France
Canada • Mexico
Costa Rica • Italy
INTERNATIONAL isa STUDIES ABROAD
817 W. 24th St. Austin, TX 78705
(800) 580-8826
•SINCE 1967•

Thank you for your patronage The Krupczak Family
SALE THRU 9/27/95 Not Responsible For Typographical Errors
4 Seasons
Rte. 9 Hadley • 584-8174
HOURS: MONDAY - SATURDAY 9:00-11:00
DISCOUNT LIQUORS
BEER • WINE • KEGS • ICE

24-12 OZ BOTT. OREGON ALES $18.99 +Dep	24-12 OZ BOTT. PETE'S WICKED $18.99 +Dep	24-12OZ BOTT MOOSEHEAD ICE $12.49 +Dep	DRAFT CIDER HORNSBY'S $18.49 +Dep	24-12 OZ BOTT MICHELOB & LT $13.49 +Dep	2-12 PACK BOTT RED WOLF $13.49 +Dep
30 PACK CANS BUSCH & LT $10.99 +Dep	24-12 OZ BOTT. BUD DRY $9.99 +Dep	24-12 OZ CANS NATURAL LT $8.49 +Dep	30 PACK CANS GENESEE ICE $9.99 +Dep	30 PACK CANS BLACK LABEL $9.99 Dep	24-12 OZ CANS HAMM'S $7.19 +Dep
KEG OF THE WEEK	BUD LIGHT $36.99 +Dep		VODKA $8.99 1.75L	JIM BEAM $7.99 750ml	RON ROBERTO RUM $10.99 1.75L
BUD BUD ICE RED DOG	MICHELOB MICHELOB LT MICHELOB DK	ICEHOUSE LT ICE ALL KEGS $39.99 +Dep	M/D 20-20 3 FOR $5.99	BOONE'S FARM $1.95 750ml 3 FOR $5.99	ANDRE CHAMPAGNES 3 FOR $5.99

ICE!
10 lbs..... $1.29
50 lbs..... $5.99
100 lbs..... $9.99
blocks 10 lbs.... $1.50
We Deliver!
"off campus UMass"
584-8174
Sale Thru 9/27/95

Collegian Classifieds

113 Campus Center • University of Massachusetts • Phone: (413)545-3500 Fax: (413)545-1592

Personals Policy

1. All personals MUST be proofread by Collegian classified employees before payment and acceptance of the classified.
2. Last names MAY NOT be used in personals. ONLY first names and initials are allowed. The only exceptions are for birthday or congratulations personals, in which case the full name may be used.
3. Phone numbers are not allowed in personals. NO EXCEPTIONS
4. Addresses are not allowed in personals. this means dorm room numbers as well.
5. Personals of a threatening or derogatory nature are not acceptable. Personals of a vindictive or libelous nature are not acceptable. Personals may not be used for the purpose of harassment.
6. Profanity may not be used in personals.
7. The personals section is for personals only. The personals section may NOT be used to sell items, seek roommates, advertise meetings, etc.
8. All personals must have the name, signature, and UMass I.D. number of the student placing the as filled in on the insertion order. Non-students must provide a valid driver's license and the license number must be recorded on the insertion order. Use of false identification or misrepresentation is subject to penalties under the law.
9. The Collegian reserves the right to refuse or to edit any personal that does not meet the Collegian's standards in accordance with the statutes of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

Rates

$2.00 minimum/day

Students
20¢ per word/day

All others
40¢ per word/day

NO REFUNDS

Please write clearly and legibly. We are not responsible for errors resulting from illegible handwriting or type.

Standard Headings

Activities
Announcements
Apartment For Rent
Auto For Sale
Employment
Entertainment
For Sale
Found (2 days Free)
Happy Birthday
Houses For Rent
Instruction
Lost
Musicians
Miscellaneous
Personals
Room For Rent
Room Wanted
Roommate Wanted
Services
Summer Sublet
To Sublet
Travel
Transportation
Wanted to Rent
Wanted

ACTIVITIES

Learn to play bridge free Thurs 7-9 p.m. 8 weeks Free book lessons, t shirt Beginning Thurs Sept 21 in Flint Lab Room 011

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Iota Gamma Upsilon 405 North Pleasant St. Invites all U Mass women to rush 9-14 9-18, 9-19 All events start at 7pm for info or rides call 549-784

Vanity of vanities. Everything is vanity Bible study Tonight 7:30 pm Campus center room 177 Graduate Christian Fellowship

Learn to bartend at th University bartending 1/3 the price of other schools Classes in Amherst Free info session Wed. Sept 27th @ 7:00 pm Lord Jeffrey Inn call 1-800-U-CAN-MIX

AUTO FOR SALE

Mercury Marquis '1984 70K miles Runs excellent Power windows & doors 150O or B O Call JJ 549 8881

'82 Red Jeep Wrangler 5 speed soft top 27 000 CD player Alarm $12 000 or best offer 413 256 8211

'86 Subaru GL Hatchback 5 speed Runs well 1 owner $1 700 253 9295

Car for sale Hundai Excel SE 4 l 500 miles air conditioning radio cassette automatic $2800 can 4—mi 256 1285

1983 Chevy 80 000 original mileage very good condition $300 or bo 253 9017

Honda CRX 1989 automatic cassette sunroof 45 000 miles excellent condition $6500 545 7462

1984 Chevy $1800 and 1984 Olds $1800 256 Ware Road Belchertown 323 8624

'89 Subaru DL Sedan 5 speed air 85K $1800 or bo 253 9961

1965 Ford Galaxie 500 excellent shape only 72000 mi 289 cu in V8 includes 4 new tires 2 new studded snow tires Asking $1500 only Call Sean at 546 3852

EMPLOYMENT

Male Torah reader needed Housing and salary Congregation Rodphey Sholom Holyoke 534 5202

Cruise Ships Hiring Earn up to $2000/month World Travel Seasonal & Full time positions No exp necessary For info call 1 206 634 0468 Ext C560

National Parks Hiring Seasonal & Full time employment available at national Parks Forests & Wildlife Preserves Benefits and Bonuses! Call 1 206 545 4804 Ext N 50011

Jobs for the environment Campaign with MassPirg to save our polluted rivers Flexible schedule $7 00 $9/hr Day Call Tem 256 8434

Environmental activists needed!! Work for CLEAN WATER ACTION & stop congress from wrecking vital anti pollution laws Learn valuable organizing & campaign skills, work w/ great people, make money doing something meaningful! Flexible schedule $6 $8/hr Can lead to summer job, career opportunity 584 9830

Drivers, waitresses and kitchen help wanted KRETE RESTAURANT 586 8755

Get paid for taking a test needed education students planning to teach Spanish or able to speak Spanish Tests will be held September 28, 29, and 30 at UMass Campus Center Payment up to $155 00 One to two days Spacs is limited You must preregister by September 20 For more info call Denae Cook or Nancy Hahn at 256 0444 M F 8 30 4 30 National Evaluation Systems

Drivers wanted $8 12/hr call Delivery Express 549 0077

Mullins Center looking for students to work part time, late nights, and weekends doing post event clean up Stop by Mullins center 2nd floor and fill out an application today

Full Time person needed on M F 9 00 am 5 00pm for receptionist position in local area computer integration firm A professional appearance and pleasant phone manner are required Computer

Campus center jobs in the Bluewall, Hatch and Coffee shop Mid day shifts, variable hours, weekdays Apply at the Hatch office between 11am and 3pm weekdays

$40,000/yr income potential Home typists/PC users Toll free 1 800 898 9778 ext 1 1732 for listings

35,000/yr income potential reading books Toll free 1 800 898 9778 Ext R 1732 for details

$231 00 Sell 72 funny college T shirts profit $331 00 Risk free Choose from 27 designs or design own Free catalog 1 800 700 4822

Drivers wanted Cantone s pizza co part time & full time call 256 6100

ENTERTAINMENT

Having Halloween bash on 10/27 or 10/28? Got a huge house? Want a spooky band? You need vesh and vesh needs you! call Jack at 367 8636

FOR RENT

Fridge Rentals Free delivery, 253 9742 and Usurper Food Co Op and Recipe

FOR SALE

Toshiba 20" Stereo w/ remote 3yr old asx for $190 call 549 8563

Tandy 1000SL Computer with Mon & Soft MS DOS comp Asking $275 or BO call 5 0546

Custom fit car cover for Prelude 1992 has new $80 or bo 256 8833

IBM pc notebook comp word excel Need $ for school bc 549 6061

12 string acoustic guitar w/ case Practically brand new! Call Mike 256 8150

Rollerblades womens 7 1/2 (mens 6) $30 Word Processor Smith Corona 3 new ink cartridges included $150 All prices negotiable 546 7311

COMPUTERS

Mac computers powerbook 170 8/80 fax carry case $1195 Quadra 700 8/540 16" color monitor awesome graphics software $1895 Call 256 0080

Couch $70 Bureau $30 Recliner $30 Call John 256 8388

Nike Armavox men s 9 Cost $175 Asking $65 or bo Never worn 546 7738

MOTORCYCLES

'82 Honda Magna V-45 750 cc V 4 very fast and reliable No reasonable offer refused $1 600 bo Page any time 292 0065

HP laserjet 2p printer 4 years old works great $150 or bo Call 546 1052

Soundcraftsmen power amplifier 1000 watts $250 or bo EV speakers 300 watts $250 or bo/o 3 piece system $700 or bo/o 546 3498 Bevan 252 8010 Must sell

Women s size 6 high heeled loafers Too small for me! (worn twice) $15 00 253 7967

INSTRUCTION

BOXING LESSONS

With retired pro Dunn Bumpus 549 5757

Guitar Lessons and classes by Kevin Colins Beginning folk, classical Free introlesson Harth Grad 742 1733

Performing Arts Division offers group and private instruction in music, theater, and dance Registration for group instruction runs Sept 8 22 1995, private instruction is ongoing We are located in 73 Bartlett Hall, UMass 413 545 0515 for info

BUILD YOUR RESUME

Come to the UMass Credit Union September 18th or 19th at 6 30 pm to build your resume! Looking for new tellers for fall 1995! Stop by, call Christine at 545 2800

Obtain valuable teaching experience and enhance your resume Volunteer to teach contraceptive workshops at university health services Call for more information 549 2671 ext 181

Bases, lots more! Stuff for everyone!

Guitar Lessons Have fun this semester and earn 1 2 credits with a patient and supportive teacher Spaces still available these last two weeks Call Peter 253 5263

Jazz piano teacher offering fall lessons beginner or advanced, Call Stephen Page 253 3264

MISCELLANEOUS

POSTER GIVEAWAY

Monday, September 18 University Gallery, 11 a m 4 p m Visit the gallery and choose a complimentary selection of posters from past exhibitions White supplies last

WEIGHT LOSS

Bottled Willpower! Lose up to 30 lbs 30 day money back guarantee Natural doctor recommended 323 4984

MUSICIANS

Needed: funk drummer, singer, keys The Colonel Mustard Trio! Call Ryan Andy 549 1016

GREEN

22 hours. 42 dooleys. 1000 acres Totally legal Outdoor rainstage Two big pop tents Skyward sacred Missions sighting displays Concessions Small Bars Clothing and record stores bazaars Life size Stone Henge replica Begins 4 p m September 23 and ends 2 p m September 24 A Primary/Dim Production 18+ Call Barb @ 546 0833

PERSONALS

ENLIGHTENMENT #1

"I'm Sorry Darling." "Huh?" "I've found what I'm looking for." "What are you trying to tell me?" "Relevance, trust, intellectual enlightenment." "Frank down the hall?" "No! Alliance Christian Fellowship committed to discipleship, outreach and spirit filled fellowship plus lots of fun!" Info Mark or Elizabeth 253 7706

CASHIN STAFF Get psyched for a great year only the best is yet to come

To the cute guy in the Whitmore sneaker: I was surprised to find you working there, but it was a pleasant surprise I have dreams of you and me and lunch sandwiches Respond here if you feel the same

Your secret admirer

To the best staff in the whole world welcome to Collegian Graphics!

Happy twenty something birthday Kay! Dont think of it as getting older, think of it as getting better! Party it up! We love you! From your housemates

Happy 21st mi guapo te amo mas que nada en el mundo Love Always, your

SERVICES

Nance Bella

Exotic nail airbrushing 546 1794

Experienced babysitter available with references Please call Alyssa 549 8885 for info

Pregnant? Need help? Call birthright of Amherst area for free testing and carrying assistance 549 1906

Legal questions? The student legal services office offers free legal assistance to fee paying students Contact us at 522 Campus Center 545 1995

Grants and scholarships available Billions of $$$ in grants Qualify immediately

TRAVEL

easy 1 800 243 2435 (1 800 AID 2 HELP)

Spring Break Travel free with Sun Splash Tours Highest commissions, lowest prices Campus reps wanted! Sell Jamaica, Bahamas, Florida 1 800 426

WANTED

7710

Trying to locate four students who helped an elderly woman who fell at Smith College College Hall on January 30 1995 Please call Attorney Susan Sachs 584 8134

Students to join health club as group to save money call Molly 256 6439

The Collegian... New England's ~~Largest~~ BEST College Daily 113 Campus Center 545-3500

Let Collegian Classifieds work for you! Call 545-3500 Today

YOUR DAILY HOROSCOPE
by Jean Dixon

ARIES (March 21–April 19): You cannot afford to take anyone or anything for granted now. Exercise greater caution in financial matters. Someone new enters the romantic sweepstakes.

TAURUS (April 20–May 20): An upcoming trip requires careful planning. Make reservations well in advance. A friend offers useful insights about your approach to life. Share your expertise with others.

GEMINI (May 21–June 20): Your financial expectations are met. A surge of confidence and energy leads to new responsibilities and an overdue raise. Widening your social circle leads to valuable friendships.

CANCER (June 21–July 22): Make the most of a professional opportunity! Technical skills could play a big role in your getting a raise or promotion. Enrolling in a special class will teach you what you need to know.

VIRGO (Aug. 23–Sept. 22): New goals present themselves today. Thinking about what you have accomplished in the past will help you plot future victories. Join the computer revolution: advanced technology saves you valuable time.

LIBRA (Sept. 23–Oct. 22): Use your keen intellect to explore profound scientific subjects. Enrolling in night school or taking weekend classes will broaden you horizons. Romance is on your mind this evening.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23–Nov. 21): The emphasis now is on accepting responsibility for your own actions. Think positive! Follow through on plans already underway. Excellent communication skills let others know that you are in charge. Touch base with special people.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22–Dec. 21): Romantic partner may need some time alone. After a long delay, a professional project finally moves forward. A family member may act disgruntled. Deal with any problems in an upbeat manner.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22–Jan. 19): Others may be confused by your seemingly erratic behavior. Do not allow tensions to build to the breaking point. Athletic activity provides a healthy outlet for nervous energy. Shower.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20–Feb 18): A new hobby encourages you to express yourself creatively. Remember, a project does not always have to make money in order to make sense. Be careful not to give away company secrets during "pillow talk."

PISCES (Feb. 19–March 20): Complete business from the past few weeks. Turn the searchlight on bad habits and old fears. Making a fresh start will prove invigorating! A frank talk helps you feel closer to your loved ones.

Collegian Classifieds

For Sale, Room wanted, Services, For Rent, Personals, etc. etc. etc.

If you have something to sell or a message for that special someone, say it through the Collegian Classifieds. Just fill out this convenient insertion order and return it along with your payment to 113 Campus Center

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING INSERTION ORDER

Client: Date: Taken By:

Date(s) to run: Headline:

Total Days: X Words: = X rate = Payment

Special heading ($2.50 extra): Authorized signature:

ADVERTISING COPY

1		1
2		2
3		3
4		4
5		5
6		6
7		7
8		8
9		9
10		10

Insert one character, space, or punctuation mark per box - use capital letters where they apply - Cost figured on each line of form used - see rate card

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE
edited by Trude Michael Jaffe

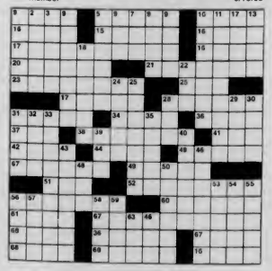
ACROSS
1 Seeds
5 Impetuous
10 Aboveboard
14 Vacate
15 Ahead of time
16 Toadfish
17 False
19 Ginkgo, for one
20 Emphasize
21 An archangel
23 Monster
26 Buddy's sib
27 Linger
28 Calm
31 Sanctify
34 Demons
36 —-kiri
37 Years on end
38 John — Galbraith
41 Siesta
42 Bristles
44 Teller of tall tales
45 Deposes
47 Iowa city on the Mississippi
49 Cairs for stars
51 Stall
52 Fawned
56 Tin or wooden
60 Part of FDR
61 Roman poet
62 Religious sponsors
65 Janet or Jesse
66 Sparkle
67 Withered
68 Hence
69 Feel
70 Item in a pit

DOWN
1 Young pigeon
2 Small measure
3 Black cat's companion
4 Byways
5 Horseplayer
6 Fans' sound
7 Fido's sound
8 Punch
9 Treetoad
10 Swift-footed bird
11 City of Light dwellers
12 Rapier
13 Yuletide
18 Expose
22 Daniel Beard's org.
24 Singer Lopez
25 Congregation's books
28 LA time
29 Sigma Chi, e.g.
30 Barks
31 Schnoz
32 Actor Rob
33 Uplifting
35 Problem for Paulina?
39 Deer-family member
40 J. Edgar
43 Beat it!
46 Of no value
48 Form starter
50 "—Bovary"
53 Saree wearer
54 — nous: confidentially
55 Treated
56 Rankling
57 Completed
58 — on: incites
59 Miss Daisy, to Tandy
63 Family room
64 Dads

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE:

B	R	E	L		S	E	T	A		T	H	O	S	E
R	E	P	O		P	E	O	N		R	E	S	E	T
A	L	O	T		A	N	N	E		O	I	L	E	R
V	I	C	T	O	R	Y		N	E	U	R	O	P	E
O	T	H	E	R	S		S	T	E	P
			A	E	S			R	E	D	R	E	W
A	D	M	A	N		A	N	T	I		R	A	R	E
G	E	O	R	G	E		F	O	R	E	M	A	N	S	R
A	L	O	E		M	E	D	E		A	G	A	T	E
R	E	D	A	T	E			E	D	O
			A	S	I	F		E	R	O	I	C	A
W	I	L	L	I	A	M	J	C	L	I	N	T	O	N
A	V	A	I	L		B	O	O	R		T	E	N	N
D	A	M	M	E		E	R	N	A		A	L	D	O
S	N	E	A	D		O	D	A	Y		P	L	O	Y

6/19/95



Calvin & Hobbes By Bill Watterson

LOOK AT ALL THIS PEANUT BUTTER! THERE MUST BE THREE SIZES OF FIVE BRANDS OF FOUR CONSISTENCIES! WHO DEMANDS THIS MUCH CHOICE?
I KNOW! I'LL QUIT MY JOB AND DEVOTE MY LIFE TO CHOOSING PEANUT BUTTER! IT'S "CRUNCH" CHUNKY ENOUGH, OR DO I NEED EXTRA CHUNK?
I'LL COMPARE INGREDIENTS! I'LL COMPARE BRANDS! I'LL COMPARE SIZES AND PRICES! MAYBE I'LL DRIVE AROUND AND SEE WHAT OTHER STORES HAVE! SO MUCH SELECTION AND SO LITTLE TIME!
I THINK YOU SHOULD DO THE SHOPPING
DID THE MANAGER HAVE TO TALK TO YOU AGAIN?
HEY, WHERE'S THE PEANUT BUTTER?

Butterling By John Ottinger

DO YOU THINK I REALLY WANT TO BE IN THIS PEN-AND-INK ZOOT WRONG! LOOK! REINFORCED FIBER GLASS PANEL BORDERS.
UNPOPPABLE WORD BALLOONS.
THIS IS A CELL, MY FRIENDS, AND I AM A POLITICAL PRISONER. GIVE ME THE PHONE! I'M CALLING AMNESTY INTERNATIONAL!
HA! HA! VERY HUMOROUS, MR. CARTOONIST. NEXT TIME, DRAW ME A PHONE CORD!

The Amazing Spiderman By Stan Lee

308 Boyz By Skid

Bruno By C. Baldwin

HEY ALLISON, YOU REALLY LAYED IT ON THOSE GUYS BACK THERE FOR CALLING YOU A FREAK. YOU OKAY?
SURE I'LL JUST BRING MY POODLE AND MY BIKINI, I'LL FIT IN PERFECTLY.
YEAH, I DON'T KNOW BRUNO. I CAN'T TAKE THESE NEW ENGLAND TEMPERATURES ANYMORE. I THINK I'M MOVIN' OUT TO CALI WITH JEREMY ALLISON, YOUR BIKINI IS BLACK LEATHER AND THE LAST TRIP YOUR POODLE MADE WAS TO THE TAXIDERMIST.
SOMEHOW I CAN'T PICTURE YOU FITTING IN MUCH BETTER IN CALIFORNIA.
SO? THE SUN'LL DO HIM GOOD

Dilbert By Scott Adams

I RECOMMEND STANDARDIZING ON ONE TYPE OF COMPUTER FOR THE OFFICE
WE MUST IDENTIFY AND ELIMINATE THE DEVIANT USERS OF MACINTOSH, UNIX AND GOD HELP US OS/2 WARP
THE HOLY WARS BEGIN
DON'T LIE TO ME, GUSTAV! YOU'RE A STINKIN' MAC USER!!

Loser Crow Comics By Mike Krozy

Korky and Pete By David Robert

THEY DON'T HAVE MY FAVORITE COFFEE AT THE BLUE WALL - WHAT AM I GONNA DO?
STOP THESE SELF INDUCED CRISES
OH MY GOSH! NOW MY BEST FRIEND IS MAD AT ME GOOD GRIEF!

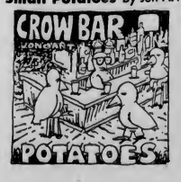
Small Potatoes By Jon Art



The News Department needs writer.

Any students interested in writing for the news section should contact Chris Conner at 545–0719 or come down to the Collegian office in the Campus Center Basement.

Making Do By M. McCormic

Leold By Roger & Salem Salloom

My dad wants me to start reading the paper so that I can understand the world better and develop opinions.

So, I was reading that this handyman had his station wagon packed with tools. He stopped fast and this crowbar comes flying forward and goes right into his head.

He drives himself to the hospital.....with a headache.... they take it out and he's alive and well.....

There should be a 5 day waiting period and background check before you can buy a crowbar.

Close to Home By John McPherson

"Nuts! I think we're going to need an adapter for this."

Today's Staff

Night Editor.....Tim White
Copy Editor.....Andrew Bryce
Photo Technician.....Rebecca Peterson
Production Supervisor.....Marni E. Helfner
Production.....Matt Audette
Jim Ganley

Dining Commons Menu

LUNCH
Grinders by the Inch
Cold or Hot
BASICS LUNCH
Grinders by the Inch
Tofu, Hummus, Turkey

DINNER
Roast Pork w/ Gravy
Chicken Tenders
BASICS DINNER
Black Eyed Peas
Chicken Tenders

Quote of the Day

"Success has gone to my hips."

–Dolly Parton

~~No~~ Vacancy

The Collegian is still looking for a Black Affairs Editor if you are interested in helping your community voice its opinion, please come down to the Collegian and see Juan or call 545-3500.

Let's get one thing straight...
The Collegian isn't.

Write for GLB Issues
Contact Wendy Darling, 113 Campus Center, 545–1749

Sports

Sports Notice

The intramural office is still accepting participant entries for badminton singles and racquetball singles. Entries for these two sports are due by Thursday, Sept. 28. The mandatory player's meeting for badminton and racquetball is rescheduled to Sept. 28 at 6 p.m. in the Boyden Building.

The intramural office is still accepting participant entries for the following fall sports: track & field, cross country, ice hockey, swimming and volleyball. For more information, go to the intramural office at 215 Boyden.

UM loses match to UConn in Mullins

By Steven Grant
Collegian Staff

It was to be the first ever volleyball match in the William D. Mullins Center. Giza Rivera (ankle) and Rachel Sky (knee) would not be playing due to injuries, and it was to be the last match for Massachusetts to prepare for its Atlantic- 10 schedule tomorrow.

So with all the commotion surrounding last night's volleyball match between the Minutewomen and the Connecticut Lady Huskies, many could have easily forgot the fact that there was a match to be played.

RYAN TRZZI / COLLEGIAN
Dionne Nash had a solid night with 16 kills and 13 digs in the Minutewomen's five game loss to UConn.

The two teams involved in the Reebok/UMass–UConn Challenge certainly did not fall into that category. Before a crowd of 831, UConn won the match, defeating UMass 3–2, (15-12, 15-8, 12-15, 14-16, 9-15). The Huskies and Minutewomen put on a show which actually equalled, if not surpassed, all the pre-match hype.

Down two games to none, UMass rallied after the intermission to take the next two nail-biters, only to come up short in the final game. Coming out of the break, the change in the Minutewomen's play was significant and necessary. UMass coach Bonnie Kenny claimed it was not due to any pep talk, though.

"I didn't have to say much," Kenny said afterward in the post–game press conference. "They had to make up their minds and play like they wanted to play in this place."

"In the first two games, I didn't think UMass thought they could win," UConn coach Ellen Crandall said. "We capitalized on their emotions. In that third game, we showed them that they could win, and from then on it was a dogfight."

Lesley Nolan played outstanding for the Minutewomen. The sophomore tallied a match–high 25 kills to go along with a team–high of 21 digs. Nolan was clearly a force from beginning to end.

"I thought [Lesley] did an excellent job carrying the team," Kenny said. "It's unfortunate we haven't had Rivera, Nolan and [Dionne] Nash all playing like Nolan did tonight."

"I was thinking [the game] was going to be tough," Nolan said. "I knew I'd have to step up my passing and hitting."

Also playing well for UMass were Nash (16 kills, 13 digs), Leslie Hartlen (nine kills, 11 digs) and Susan Maga (10 kills, 10 digs).

Game four proved to be the most exciting. UMass (6–5) remained close the entire game, before evening the match at 12–12 after trailing, 12–9. From here, UConn (6–5) countered to make it 14–12, and were one kill away from taking the match. But fueled by the serving of Maga and the deadly arm of Nolan, UMass stormed right back with four unanswered points to force a fifth game.

When the match started, the Minutewomen didn't seem to be on the same page. Unaggressiveness, poor blocking and occasional sloppy play led to the 15–12 game one loss. Nolan, however, was the exception, as she tallied six kills in the opener.

Husky Jen Halusek also made her presence felt early by registering five kills. Halusek would go on to finish the match with 24 kills and 13 digs.

The second game was never really close, with UConn coming out on top, 15–8. Kenny's timeout with the score 8–2 didn't have any effect, as the Lady Huskies immediately ran the score up to 14–3. Hartlen and Nash both made some great kills to boost the team's score up to eight, but it was too little, too late. UConn was playing excellent volleyball and capitalized on UMass' mistakes. Simply put, they were often able to put the ball where the Minutewomen were not.

Game three was a turning point in the match, as UMass came out aggressively, much to UConn's surprise. The Lady Huskies seemed to have been thrown a curve, combined with the fact that they were a team up 2-0.

But it wasn't exactly a breeze for UMass. The game looked over at 14–5 in favor of UMass, and the Minutewomen, down two games, may have decided to play it a bit conservative. Soon it was 14–8, and Kenny called a timeout — another unsuccessful one — because after a UConn ace made it 14–11, Kenny had to call time again. The Lady Huskies mustered one last point before finally succumbing, 15–12.

Neither team could really pull away until about halfway through the

Turn to VOLLEYBALL, page 16

RYAN TRZZI / COLLEGIAN
Sophomore Lesley Nolan was an offensive force for the Minutewomen with a game–high 25 kills, while also accumulating 21 digs.

Minutewomen stepping closer to big time

Matt Vautour

Before Massachusetts volleyball coach Bonnie Kenny walked into her first practice in the inaugural return 1993 season, she was scared.

The thought kept going through her mind. "What if there aren't enough players to field a team?"

While the walk–on tryouts were not overwhelming, Kenny's worst fear was not realized. Eighteen players tried out that first practice, and eight eventually made the roster.

"That was the scary part. We kept everyone that could serve the ball over the net overhand," said Kenny, who examined what it takes to build a new program. "You need patience, support of the administration, personnel..."

So the first step of the return was in place. Even though a team was in place, there were still questions.

How good could a team of a couple recruits, a transfer and a bunch of walk–ons really be?

Not too bad, as it turned out.

The early going was better than expected. The team moved into the cozy confines of Curry Hicks Cage, where it began to draw a minor following. The Minutewomen dropped their first two matches on the road, but rallied to win five in a row. With the men's basketball team migrating to the Mullins Center, the new rage in Curry Hicks was Bonnie Kenny's rookie program.

"I think volleyball is a great spectator sport. I think if we can get publicity, get interest and get people to our matches once," Kenny said. "I don't know of too many people who haven't come back to watch again."

The team finished a very respectable 17–14 in its

Turn to VAUTOUR, page 17

Offensive fireworks causing big debate

Welcome to the wild world of college football, where offense fireworks were the calling card last week. No. 1 Florida State and No. 2 Nebraska each posted 77 points. No. 3 Texas A&M rolled for 52. No. 4 Florida lit a capable Tennessee team for 62, and Penn State scored 66 points against the lowly Temple Owls.

GREG COREY on College Football

The blowouts witnessed last week have intensified the debate around the country concerning teams running up the score. There has been a lot of complaining the up teams are running up the score in an attempt to impress the pollsters and improve poll position. What can one expect? The current polling system has such a direct impact on the Bowl Alliance and the National Championship.

Coaches are being forced into blowing teams out to impress pollsters and get that shot at the ever–elusive National Championship. The simple fact is these early season blowouts have been a part of collegiate football for years, and will continue to be until a playoff system is developed and adopted for Division 1–A. End of discussion.

Despite last week's laughers, there were some quality games played. None better than the LSU–Auburn game. Hats off to the LSU Tigers. The Tigers lost a tough ball game to Auburn last year, 30–26, a game in which quarterback Jamie Howard threw six interceptions and blew the game for his team. Redemption was sweet for Howard last Saturday as he and his team downed Terry Bowden's club, 12–6. Auburn only mustered 274 total yards of offense and two field goals. LSU jumps into the AP Top 25 Poll at No. 18.

Not much has changed in this week's AP Poll. Florida St. holds the top spot again this week. Nebraska, Texas A&M, Florida and Southern Cal round out the Top 5.

This week's schedule looks to provide some interesting match–ups, here's a look.

Texas A&M at Colorado

The No. 3 Aggies travel to Boulder with thoughts of a National Championship on their minds. The Aggies are keyed by Heisman Trophy candidate Leeland McElroy. The junior running–back produced 285 yards of offense and four TD's against Tulsa last week. McElroy is averaging 322 yards in total offense in the Aggies' first two games. Senior QB Corey Pullig is a consistent performer, and A&M's 3–4 defense is keyed by defensive–back Ray Mickens and lineman Brandon Mitchell.

For Colorado, the loss of Rashaan Salaam and

Turn to FOOTBALL, page 16

Mack verbally commits

By Matt Vautour
Collegian Staff

With the guard core looking thin for the 1995–96 season, the Massachusetts men's basketball team has already made an addition for the 1996–97 campaign.

The Minutemen have received a verbal commitment from Monte Mack, a 6–foot–2–inch guard. Mack led South Boston High with 23.2 points, 8.3 rebounds and 4.3 assists en route to spearheading his team to the City Championship and the Division 1 State Championship.

Mack has not taken his SATs yet and will take them for the first time in October.

The news of his announcement was timely, as Mack turned 18 yesterday.

* * *

Massachusetts coach John Calipari is reportedly also chasing one of the top junior college players in the nation. Ruben Patterson, a 6–foot–8–inch small forward, is a Cleveland native, but is currently playing at Independence Junior College in Independence, Kan. He reportedly became interested in coming to UMass after being coached by Calipari at this summer's Olympic Festival.

Rich Allen, the co–owner and editor of Reidel's Roundball Review, described Patterson as a complete player who can rebound and run the floor, as well as shoot three–pointers. Patterson has reportedly also made a campus visit already.

The buzz during last season was that UMass was in the running for talented then–juniors Tim Thomas and Shaheen Holloway. The New Jersey duo had expressed interest in going to the same school and are still considering that option. UMass remains in the hunt for their services. Thomas (North Carolina) and Holloway (Syracuse, California) are also exploring separate options as well...

Turn to MACK, page 15

Field hockey loses third straight

By Matt Vautour
Collegian Staff

Hard times continued for the Massachusetts field hockey team as the Minutewomen dropped their third straight game yesterday, this time to Yale 1–0 at New Haven, Conn.

Coming off two straight losses against No. 1 North Carolina and then No. 3 Old Dominion, the Minutewomen were hoping to get back in the win column against unranked Yale.

The loss drops Massachusetts to 2–5 on the year. Offensive trouble has been prevalent for the Minutewomen and yesterday was no exception, as UMass was shutout for the fifth time this season.

Betsy Hagmer scored the only goal of the game at 15:06 of the first half, as she beat Stacy Walker.

Despite wearing a knee brace, Walker was able to make 11 saves in the game. Walker has been playing with limited mobility since injuring her leg prior to last Saturday's 2–0 loss to Old Dominion.

Yale goalkeeper Leslie Frieder made seven saves en route to her third shutout of the season. Yale held an 11–5 advantage in penalty corners, as well.

"Yale was up for this game," said Massachusetts coach Megan Donnelly. "They played out of their minds. They ran us all over the field."

While frustrated, Donnelly isn't counting her squad out.

"This is UMass field hockey and we will be back," Donnelly said.

The Minutewomen return to action Saturday when they take on rival Temple at 1 p.m. at Totman Field. The game will hold extra bitterness for Massachusetts as the Minutewomen's loss to Temple in the Atlantic 10 Finals last year started a chain reaction that eventually left Massachusetts snubbed from the NCAA tournament.

Hard work pays off for LeDuc

By Justin C. Smith
Collegian Staff

It was a cold, damp Friday evening. Richard F. Garber Field was a slick patch of grass that made playing soccer a little more treacherous than usual. It wasn't the best of conditions for the fans but it was Rachel LeDuc type weather.

Many players may have not been as up for a game in such dreary conditions, but not LeDuc. She didn't shy away from one ball all game long, including the one she knocked in the George Washington net for the winning score.

When she left the field for her team meeting and to talk to reporters, she was covered with grass stains and mud. She truly left herself on the field just as she was taking the field home with her.

Her true grit and determination is noticed by her coach Jim Rudy.

"Rachel LeDuc epitomizes UMass women's soccer," Rudy said, "which is blue collar, hard working style. She plays so hard and is all out for so long and is such a hard worker. She doesn't take it easy. She doesn't take it slow. It's just all out for her."

That particular game was the first really tough game against a rival and meant a lot to win for her. She would do anything and everything it took to get the "W."

"I wanted to play defense and protect the lead," LeDuc said. "Because we were up a goal and we needed to protect the lead."

"Definitely, I play an aggressive style. I am not a pretty, skillful finesse player. That is what I am best at, an aggressive type of game," she said.

LeDuc has five of UMass' six goals this season, three of them game winners. She has eight total for her

Turn to WOMEN'S SOCCER, page 17

Valentin is MVP; Sox take division

Did they clinch?

Prior to the deadline of my column, the Boston Red Sox have not yet played the Milwaukee Brewers. The game where victory for the Sox, means post–season.

MIKE BROWN on Baseball

I was in attendance last night to witness the first step, in yet another attempt, to break the curse of the Bambino. I have been to many Red Sox games in my life, but never to one in post–season. Seeing the Sox clinch the American League East is the next best thing. That is if they won, or the New York Yankees lost.

• John Valentin is a solid shortstop who does not get the recognition he deserves. Valentin has 25 homeruns this season, and is the only Red Sox player to score 100 runs in one season, in the 1990s. Mo Vaughn is paid to put up the numbers he has, but the real MVP of the Sox this season is Valentin. It angers me when I hear fans say he will be traded because 1994 first–round draft pick Nomar Garciaparra is ready for the bigs. His Valentin not already established himself as the Red Sox shortstop of the future? It would be in General Manager Dan Duquette's best interest to package Garciaparra with another prospect and get a starter to bolster next year's pitching staff.

• Three words: New Jersey Yankees.

• Los Angeles Dodger catcher Mike Piazza was beaned by a pitch Tuesday night and was diagnosed with a contusion of the hand. If Piazza, who has 30 homeruns and is batting close to .360, goes down, it is safe to say the Dodgers go down as well. Pitcher Hideo Nomo will not know what to do without his battery mate. A team cannot lose their most feared hitter and expect to win ball games.

• A Dodger exit means the Colorado Rockies clinch for post season. Speaking of the Rockies, Andres Galarraga went deep for the 30th time this season. That makes four Rockies with 30 or more homeruns in the same season. The last team to have four 30 homerun hitters in the same season was the Dodgers in 1977. The '77 Dodgers had Steve Garvey, Dusty Baker, Reggie Smith and Ron Cey losing baseballs the year Cincinnati's George Foster hit 52 out of the park.

• Albert Belle of the AL Central champion Cleveland Indians hit five homeruns in two games earlier this week. Belle now has 44 taters, leading all of baseball. Imagine if his current tear lasted for the remainder of the season. That would mean with 10 games left, Belle would average about two homers a game, ending his season with 64 total, breaking Roger Maris' mark of 61. Highly unlikely, but inter-

Turn to BASEBALL, page 15

The Massachusetts
DAILY COLLEGIAN
Volume CV Issue 13 New England's Largest College Daily • Founded in 1890 • Daily Since 1967 Friday, September 22, 1995

Minutemen hope to avoid shoot-out
Senior Eric Gruber will be in goal tomorrow, to try and shut down the high flying Terriers of Boston University (See Sports, page 10).

Jewish students face holiday woes
As Jewish students prepare to celebrate the new year, they are faced with the prospect of having to make up for missed classes and tests (See page 3).

Trying to dull the pain
Morphine returned to Pearl Street last night. The Boston–based trio played selections from all three albums (See Arts & Living, page 6).

Extended Forecast
Chance of afternoon and evening showers today with a low near 50 and high of 75. Saturday will be partly sunny and cooler with a high in the low 60s. Sunday will be sunny and warm.

	Today	Saturday	Sunday
	HIGH: 75 LOW: 50	HIGH: 65 LOW: 50	HIGH: 73 LOW: 55

UM president looks at positives as faculty protest

SHINICHIRO SUZUKI/COLLEGIAN
Sherry H. Penney, the interim University of Massachusetts president, addresses the Faculty Senate in Herter Hall yesterday afternoon.

By Tracy Geekie
Collegian Staff

Numerous faculty protestors, chanting and carrying hand– made picket signs, again gathered outside Herter Hall yesterday afternoon before the Faculty Senate meeting.

The difference this time, however, was the presence of interim president Sherry H. Penney, who was scheduled to address the Senate.

Lining the back and side walls of the auditorium, the protesting faculty held their signs in clear view.

"First rate faculty, third rate pay? Go figure?," "We deserve leadership now," "Raises (equal) Respect" and "Hey, Hey, what d'ya say — fund our contract right away" were some of the slogans written on the signs.

Despite being faced with this opposition, Penney opened the session with congratulatory remarks on some of the recent achievements at the University of Massachusetts.

She went on to discuss the importance of "getting the message out there over and over again" about "what an important resource we are to the state in educating students alone."

In a hand–out titled "Making the Case for UMass," Penney illustrated through charts and graphs, the trends in education. She spoke in detail about the information in the hand–out and other related matters, such as financial aid issues.

The faculty issue

"I can't discuss the details of that, but we're hopeful for a resolution," Penney said when asked about the faculty contract. "We are back at the table and the Trustees and I are hopeful that we will get the supplemental budget so you can get the long–awaited pay raises."

"I know you haven't had that pay raise in two years and we've spent a lot of time working on that," Penney said.

Protesting faculty were dissatisfied with her response and voiced their concerns about the issue. Individual faculty members argued their points, which at times attacked Penney.

One protestor said that unless Penney fired herself, "she would not have gone far enough."

Deborah Carlin, an associate professor in the English department, referred to the faculty as "demoralized, enraged and frustrated."

"The one thing you can give us that we need more than anything else is leadership," John Nelson, a professor in the English department, said to Penney. "We ask of you leadership, of Chancellor Scott, leadership."

The demands of the faculty were itemized on a hand–out by the Massachusetts Society of Professors.

The first called for the "Weld/Celluci administration to fund our signed agreement," the second required "that the Trustees honor their commitment," and the third called for "Chancellor Scott to make funding the faculty/librarian contract his number one priority, including if necessary, reallocating funding from the Union budget to support the state offer."

After the protest, faculty made their statements, most of them left the meeting.

UMass status

Prior to the question/answer portion of the meeting in which the protesting faculty were given time to speak, Penney had discussed in detail the status of UMass.

In her report "Making the Case for UMass," she provided favorable information on various aspects of the university. Among this was included a study of a five–year enrollment trend at UMass from 1989 to 1994.

Turn to FACULTY, page 2

Navratilova, Pallone to speak at Mullins

By Wendy Darling
Collegian Staff

Tennis great Martina Navratilova and former professional baseball umpire Dave Pallone are scheduled to speak at the University of Massachusetts Oct. 11.

Navratilova and Pallone will appear at the William D. Mullins Center for what the Chancellor's Office terms a "candid dialogue."

Modeled on an event last year that featured Nobel Peace Prize winner Elie Wiesel and poet Maya Angelou, "Fair Play" is designed to highlight issues of gender and sexual orientation in sports.

The speakers will be introduced by Patricia Griffin, a UMass associate professor of education who has written and conducted workshops on homophobia in sports.

Having also done work with programs for gays and lesbians in public school, Griffin was drawn into the project when she found out that Navratilova was interested in speaking to local high school students.

According to Griffin, "[Navratilova and Pallone] have some unique experiences, since there are so few gays and lesbians in athletics who are out."

Griffin added that the discussion will probably be "not just about sports, but some of the implications outside of sports," including social justice in the world at large.

Navratilova as player and activist

Navratilova, whose 161 career singles titles outnumber those of any male or female tennis player, has been increasingly visible in the battle for gay, lesbian and bisexual rights.

In 1993 she addressed a crowd of thousands at the March on Washington, held to support GLB rights and to pressure the Clinton administration to end the ban on gays in the military.

In a 1994 interview with the GLB magazine Out, Navratilova called the March experience the "best three days of my life." She also told Out that prior to speaking at the March, "I had really felt alienated from the United States of Ronald Reagan and George Bush. The gay movement made me feel like I do belong."

Navratilova first began to be more open about her lesbianism in the early 1990s, while she was still an active player in professional tennis. She retired in 1994, when she was ranked at No. 4.

Pallone, who served 10 years as a major league baseball umpire, is the author of a recent book titled Behind the Mask: My Double Life in Baseball.

Pallone was forced to resign from his position as a National League umpire after it became known that he is gay.

Neither Navratilova nor Pallone have ever participated in an event with a format as open as that of "Fair Play," said Griffin, and UMass may be the only place they ever do so.

However, noted Griffin, both are scheduled to appear on the television show Larry King Live the night before, where they are expected to give a preview of their discussion.

Questions encouraged

According to Derick Cheeseboro–Weaver, a member of the coordinating committee for the event, "Fair Play" will be informal and even interactive, allowing Navratilova and Pallone to speak their minds and answer questions.

People who would like to pose questions to the speakers are invited to drop by the Mullins Center Box Office or the Chancellor's Office in the Whitmore Administration Building.

Questions handed in by Oct. 6 will be examined by a committee from the Chancellor's Office and passed on to Navratilova and Pallone during a question and answer session moderated by Griffin.

Scheduled to begin at 8 p.m. on Oct. 11, "Fair Play" coincides with National Coming Out Day, a nationwide celebration in which gays, lesbians and bisexuals demonstrate pride at being able to be honest about their sexual orientation.

Tickets have been available since Sept. 11. Student tickets are $5, and non–student tickets cost $10 or $20, depending on which section the seats are in.

Individuals who need special accommodations for wheelchair accessibility are asked to contact the Mullins Center in advance. Sign language interpreter services will be provided.

Mayer says more Israeli multinationalism needed

By Laura Schmidt
Collegian Staff

The possibility of multinationalism in Israel was discussed at the first lecture of the Mt. Holyoke College 1995–96 colloquium series Tuesday night.

Keynote speaker Tamar Mayer, received her Ph.D. from the University of Wisconsin, Madison and is currently collecting research from Middlebury College.

Mayer, a former lieutenant in the Israeli army, focused on why "national security" can no longer be used to justify the disenfranchisement of Israeli Arabs and Jewish women.

"The nation state of Israel has been shaped by an obsession with national security. National security has rewarded almost exclusively those who participated in the country's security mission, namely Israeli Jews and more specifically Israeli Jewish men, said Mayer.

Jewish women are drafted only to the demographic war of motherhood. They are encouraged to have children. It is their job," said Mayer.

She also explained that the military is so connected to life in Israel that whatever is learned in the army is carried through to civil society, including domestic violence.

"Men yield very little when attempting to settle disputes, so they defend themselves through the only way they know how, through violence," said Mayer.

Arabs also Discriminated Against

Israeli women are not the only persons who are discriminated against in Israel in Mayer's view.

The Israeli Arabs, who according to Mayer, have equally been discriminated against as they have been denied an entry into politics, thus denying them industrial jobs.

"There are specific political and economic measures that have basically limited the access of Israeli Palestinians to possess safe building of infrastructure. Because of this, there is little development in Arab villages, especially when compared to Jewish towns in Israel," said Mayer.

"It is all tied into the army. The Israeli Arabs are denied access to the military, thus denying them further access to positions of jobs or power," said Mayer.

She continued to explain that this denial of jobs leads to problems with the infrastructure of Israel, such as essential, everyday necessities as running water and food.

Solutions For Israel

Mayer said she believes Israel should engage in serious discussions of its political future, before a political and social breakthrough or revolutionary war mobilizes.

She said the state also needs to invest in infrastructure, such as building and improving the Israeli Arab villages.

"There now are intentional policies which have helped the development of Jewish communities while allowing the development of the Arab communities to lag behind. This needs to be re–examined," said Mayer.

"I hope it will not be a war which influences a change, but a peaceful movement," said Mayer.

Father battles DSS for children's custody

By Amy H. Paradysz
Collegian Staff

NORTHAMPTON — Gary Moise, a foster parent for 15 years and adoptive parent of four, stood in front of the Department of Social Services (DSS) yesterday morning holding a sign that read, "DSS discriminates against fathers."

Two years ago, Moise and his ex–wife, Annette, filed for a divorce. Today, Gary Moise is granted 15–and–a–half hours of visitation rights per week with his foster sons Christopher and Edward, aged 14 and 18.

"... I believe that [Annette] successfully coaxed DSS employees James Plante and Katherine Wakely into revoking my foster parent status for Christopher and Eddie..." wrote Gary Moise in a letter about his hearing.

Although both Moises know many DSS employees from their years foster parenting together, Gary says that Annette and Wakely, Christopher and Edward's supervising social worker, were close personal friends. However, it was Plante, the family resource supervisor who made the ultimate decision about the parenting rights.

Annette Moise refused to comment.

Paula Tucker, the area director of the Greenfield– Northampton office of the State Department of Social Services, said that there is an impoundment order on this case that makes it impossible for DSS to comment on the decision.

Tucker said that parental rights are determined "in the best interest of the children... based on assessments of parents and children."

According to Gary Moise's lawyer, Attorney Marilyn Schmidt, "DSS regulations don't encompass the children having any input."

In regards to the parenting schedule, Schmidt said, "I would hope that in making decisions on a day–to–day basis, that DSS would consult older, more mature children."

"Kids need fathers, not visitors"

Annette Moise accused her husband of "emotional abuse" and thus was able to get a vacate order to remove him from their marital home, according to Gary Moise.

When asked why Annette would make such an accusation, Moise explained that during the last ten years of their marriage the Moises never kissed, although they did have sexual relations.

Judge Mary Lyons in Greenfield approved the vacate order.

In the beginning, Gary Moise was granted the 15–and–a– half hours of visitation rights with the boys. Then, he was given split custody for a brief period of time, until notified he was back on the original visitation schedule.

"This is a very unnatural situation to place children and parents in," said Moise, who has a "Kids need fathers, not visitors" bumper sticker on his briefcase.

The boys' older sister, Mary Bardsley, 21, was adopted by the Moises. "They went out of their way to take my brothers into the home so I could be with them," she said.

At the time, Christopher was removed from another foster home. Edward came from an orphanage.

"Every situation is different," said Bardsley. "In this situation, the boys have made it clear to DSS that they want the same schedule as the other children still living at home. They feel left out."

"Every major problem we have in our society with children has to do with the break up of the family," said David Fillion, a demonstrator from Concerned Fathers of Massachusetts. "I'm not saying mothers are bad. I'm saying children need two parents."

One of the two foster sons has fetal alcohol syndrome and attention deficit disorder. The other was arrested for being "abusive around the house," according to Gary Moise.

"They can say one home is better than two homes, but one home means one parent," he said.

"Courts automatically assume the mother is the custodial parent," said Fillion.

The family unit

According to a letter Moise wrote to DSS, "Mr. Plante did not make 'every reasonable effort to encourage and assist families to use available resources to maintain the family unit intact.'" Moise was quoting from DSS's statement of philosophy and principles.

According to Schmidt, Gary Moise's lawyer, "The litigation involves how they handled the case two years ago, whether it was consistent with [DSS] policies or not consistent with policies."

Yesterday, the Moise's adopted daughter, stood with a few other demonstrators, including Maryann Woodbury, Moise's live–in girlfriend, who has known the family for two–and–a– half years.

"Gary is pretty open about doing this," she said. "He has nothing to hide."

Bardsley moved out after her eighteenth birthday, but lives near both adoptive parents.

In a letter dated Nov. 15, 1993, she wrote, "Please don't deny my brothers the same thing I experienced."

Seminar enables people to learn about charity gift giving

By Manfredi Giammanco
Collegian Correspondent

NORTHAMPTON — A seminar on charitable gift planning was held Wednesday at Cooley Dickinson Hospital for representatives of non–profit organizations and the public at large.

Entitled "Reaching Your Family and Personal Goals Through Charitable Gift Planning," the seminar was held "to educate the community and institutions, and to help people do what they want with [money]" said the organizer, Allen Davis.

Davis, the director of development at the hospital, added that Cooley Dickinson receives and relies on both yearly contributions and wills.

"We're also interested in promoting this in other organizations," he said. "Because people who make these contributions often want to make contributions to other charities."

Gerald Gabriel, a speaker at the seminar who works for Charitable Support Services in Hadley, said there were two main ideas inspiring the seminar.

"One is that major donors usually donate to more than one organization," he said. "It seems worthwhile to spread this around, to make it a community effort. And then, gift planning is an idea whose time has to come."

Planned giving is a way of encouraging people to commit some kind of capital to a charity in return for economic benefits. Benefits include, depending on the plan chosen, immediate tax breaks for the contributors, and a way to avoid inheritance taxes.

Currently, the tax rate on inheritances over $3 million dollars is 55 percent, making planned giving a good choice for wealthy citizens who wish to give money to a charity.

The seminar was held by Frank Logan, a former director of the planned giving program at Dartmouth College.

During his 20 years at Dartmouth, $200 million was raised in planned gifts, making it one of the most successful programs in the nation. Now retired from college life, Logan travels around the country giving seminars.

"Mostly these seminars are held to advise people on these opportunities," he said. "Five to ten years ago people were unaware of gift planning."

Robert Grose, in attendance on behalf of the Amherst Historical Society, said he felt it was a valuable experience.

"Some of these development and fund raising skills are not taught to us, and we need to pick it up somewhere," he said. "We need professional help for our lectures and programs. We need to find the funds."

For Your Information

FYIs are public service announcements which are printed daily. To submit an FYI, please send a press release containing all pertinent information, including the name and phone number of the contact person to the Collegian, c/o the News Editor.

Friday, Sept. 22

Community — Annual Intertribal Powwow, traditional crafts, fine arts and foods, open to the public, day money registration for Native American dancers only, 10 a.m. – 11:30 a.m., $4 per day for general public, $6 for both days, $3 per day for Five College students and staff, $5 for both days, family rates available, no drugs or alcohol, Curry Hicks Cage, 10 a.m. – 5 p.m.

Community — Shabbat Services, dinner following service, $4 for students, $6.50 for public, Hillel House, 6 p.m.

Community — Celebration of the Shabbos, friendly atmosphere, food, prayer, songs and stories. All welcome, Chabad House

Film — Blue, directed by Krysztof Kielowski, $1.75, Campus Center Theater, AC, 7:30 and 10 p.m.

Lecture — "Environmental effects of Bolide Impact at the KT Boundary," by Haraldur Sigurdsson, Five College Distinguished Lecturer, School of Oceanography, University of Rhode Island, Geosciences Lecture Sciences Series, Morrill 2 South, Room 131, 3:30 p.m.

Meeting — Time Out Fellowship: Praise and Worship, games, and speaker Steve Chase on "Enchanted Life," for information call Mark of Elizabeth at 253-7206, Campus Center, 7 p.m.

Music — High Tide, improvisational rock, Mike's Billiards, Rte. 9, Amherst, 9 p.m.

Notice — UM Arts Council deadline for single project/grand events, call the Arts Council at 545-0202 for more information

Social — The Black Graduate Students Association will host a social in the Graduate Lounge, Campus Center, 4 p.m. – 7 p.m.

Theater — Maija of Chaggaland, written and performed by Sheela Langeberg, $3.50 for students and senior citizens, $6 for public, tickets available at the FAC ticket office, Bowker Auditorium, 8 p.m.

Saturday, Sept. 23

Community — Annual Intertribal Powwow, traditional crafts, fine arts, and foods, open to the public, day money registration for Native American dancers only, 10 a.m. – 11:30 a.m., $4 per day for general public, $6 for both days, $3 per day for Five College students and staff, $5 for both days, family rates available, no drugs or alcohol, Curry Hicks Cage, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Community — Shabbos morning services, traditional meal to follow, all welcome, Chabad House, 10 a.m.

Dance — Philippino Dance Troupe, sponsored by the Asian Culture House, call 542-2195 for information, Buckley Recital Hall, AC, 8 p.m.

Film — Blue, directed by Krysztof Kielowski, $1.75, Campus Center Theater, AC, 7:30 and 10 p.m.

Theater — Maija of Chaggaland, written and performed by Sheela Langeberg, $3.50 for students and senior citizens, $6 for public, tickets available at the FAC ticket office, Bowker Auditorium, 8 p.m.

Workshop — Your Life is Your Art, a hands-on workshop led by Donna Estabrooks exploring personal creativity and breaking through creative blocks, free and open to the public, call 586-3869 to register, Wheeler Gallery, 1 p.m. – 3 p.m.

Sunday, Sept. 24

Community — Rosh Hashana Observance, services for the entire holiday, with traditional meal, $5 optional contribution, for information call 549-4094, Chabad House, 7 p.m.

Community — Rosh Hashana Service, free, sponsored by Hillel House, for information call 549-1710, Student Union Ballroom, 7 p.m.

Film — Blue, directed by Krysztof Coalesce, $1.75, Campus Center Theater, AC, 7:30 p.m. and 10 p.m.

Theater — Yakito The Mace Girl, a children's piece written and performed by Sheila Langebert, part of New WORLD Theater 1995 season, $6 general admission, $3.50 students, tickets available at the FAC ticket office, Bowker Auditorium, 2 p.m,

Notices

GLB RA Matters — Residence Life Staff who identify as gay, lesbian, bisexual, transgendered or are questioning their sexual orientation are invited to attend GLB RA Matters. Meetings are every Friday in Mary Lyon from 12:30 p.m. to 2 p.m. For more information contact Dawn M. Bond 5-1506

Exhibit — "France '95", the works of 40 UMass undergraduate Art majors during two intensive summer programs in the South of France, photography, drawings, paintings, sculpture, handmade books and journals, Herter Gallery, Sept. 18–28, M–F 11 a.m. – 4 p.m.

Exhibit — Foundations Works, a jured exhibition of two and three dimensional works by first year art students in the 1994/95 Foundations Programs in Art, directed by Prof. Pat Lasch, Sept. 18–28, Herter Art Gallery, M–F 11 a.m. – 4 p.m.

Intramurals — The Intramural office is still accepting participant entries for badminton singles and racquetball doubles. All entries are due Thursday, Sept. 28. The mandatory players meeting is rescheduled to Sept. 28 at 6 p.m., in Boyden. Entries for track and field, cross country, ice hockey, swimming and volleyball are still being accepted.

Wanted — Graphic intern for the Residential Educational Alcohol Program. Includes design and productions of health promotion materials, credit toward graduation. Excellent opportunity for someone interested in health promotion (AIDS, STD's, and Alcoholism). Contact Sandra Withcomb 545-0137.

Family Planning Services — HIV testing, pregnancy testing, birth control, medical tests, assistance for struggling families, the Family Planning Council of Western Massachusetts, (800) 696-7752

Volunteers Needed — The Campus Chime and Carillon Committee needs student volunteers to ring the bells in Old Chapel. Will teach and train anyone with reasonable musical ability. Call Ken Samonds at 545-1077 for more information.

Community — Jumaa Service, the Muslim Students Association holds Jumaa prayer service every Friday, at 1 p.m., Campus Center, for information call Utama at 256-8482

Campus Police Log

Sept. 20

Noise complaint

There were numerous "tower wars" between most of the high-rises following the Red Sox win.

Larceny

There was a backpack stolen from the Student Union.

There was a bike stolen from Webster Residence Hall.

Shannon M. Niles, 20, of 221 Thompson Road, was arrested in the Campus Center for shoplifting by recording a false value.

Susan M. Daly, 20, of 78 Chino Ave., Worcester, was arrested for larceny under $250.

A backpack was stolen from weight room in Boyden Gymnasium.

Alarm

An alarm was accidentally set off at the Student Credit Union by an employee.

Burglary/Breaking & Entering

There was a rear window broken and stereo items removed from a vehicle in Parking Lot 22.

Cumberland Farms

WELCOME BACK STUDENTS

Riverside Park Plaza N. Amherst

Come visit our newly remodeled store. We now carry an expanded line of stationery, groceries and health and beauty care products.

FREE*

2 Ounce Bag Wise Potato Chips

*With Student I.D. While Supply Lasts Limit 1

OPEN 24 HOURS FOR YOUR CONVENIENCE

■ faculty

continued from page 1

"Demographic changes and drastic increases in tuition and fees had a real impact on enrollments at UMass campuses," the report stated. "With increased state support and a stabilized tuition and fee picture, enrollments have begun to recover."

Other statistics include comparisons of UMass to other colleges and universities in the state. The report indicated "UMass is the leader in baccalaureate education of Massachusetts residents" and "is one of the state's major suppliers of doctorally trained individuals."

"In [fiscal year] 1993, UMass ranked third in total research and development expenditures for science and engineering in Massachusetts and within the top 100 universities nationally," the report stated.

In addition to this, Penney also commented on several other key points throughout her speech, including financial aid issues.

She referred to the financial aid issue as a "disaster for our students" and made reference to the financial aid conference scheduled for Friday. Penney said on her agenda is to meet and talk with approximately 200 students in regards to the issue.

"As a former Chancellor, do you realize that I've had to work with four different presidents in seven years?" Penney asked in conclusion. "And adjust to each one of them and figure out what they were going to do this week or next week? So, I'm particularly sensitive to the role that the president's office wants to play with the campuses. Our job ought to be to facilitate things that work well among the campuses."

Canada smokes ad restrictions

Supreme Court stikes down law about tobacco advertising

By David Crary
Associated Press

TORONTO — In a stunning victory for tobacco companies, the Supreme Court struck down the law at the heart of Canada's anti-smoking movement, ruling Thursday that a ban on tobacco advertising violated free expression.

In a 5-4 ruling, the high court said the sweeping Tobacco Products Control Act of 1988, which banned almost all advertising of tobacco products, was unconstitutional.

Limited restrictions on tobacco ads are permissible, but a comprehensive ban improperly prohibits a manufacturer from communicating with customers about a legal product, the majority opinion said.

Although elated by the decision, tobacco industry officials decided on a measured response. They said they would voluntarily continue to honor the ban pending consultations with the government on which restrictions to maintain and which to lift.

"The one thing I know for certain: there will be advertising of some kind, by tobacco companies aimed at their customers — people who have already decided to smoke," said Robert Parker, a spokesman for the Canadian Tobacco Manufacturers Council.

Canada's health minister, Diane Marleau, said the government needed time to study the ruling before making a detailed response, but made clear that tobacco companies still faced pressure. "40,000 people a year die as a direct result of smoking," she said. "We're going to continue to fight this... that what health ministers are for."

Canada's smoking industry agreed to withdraw tobacco ads from radio and television in the 1970s, but challenged the 1988 ban that also barred print and billboard ads.

Two major companies, RJR-Macdonald and Imperial Tobacco, have been fighting since 1988 to overturn the law. They won a favorable Quebec Superior Court ruling in 1991, then turned to the Supreme Court of Canada when a Quebec appeals court overturned the decision.

Anti-smoking activists were aghast at the death of a law viewed as a model for other nations and spoke bitterly of the tobacco companies' pugnacity.

"They are unmatched in terms of their resources and lack of ethics, in terms of any sense of responsibility for the hideous numbers of deaths they cause every day," said Dr. Andrew Pipe of Physicians for a Smoke Free Canada.

Some anti-smoking activists said they would lobby the federal government to declare tobacco a dangerous substance.

"Can we as a society go back to a time of tobacco billboards around the schools?" asked David Sweanor, a lawyer for the Non-Smoker's Rights Association. "Why are we treating this product so differently than any other hazardous product, any other drug?"

The court ruling said the government could no longer require manufacturers to print unattributed health warnings on cigarette packs. Parker, of the tobacco council, said the industry and the government would discuss the wording of new warnings.

"The right we've been fighting for is not the right to advertise with no restrictions whatever," Parker said. "It's the right to communicate with our customers."

According to government statistics, about 30 percent of Canadians over 15 smoke. Parker said this rate has remained stable over the past 10 years despite new restrictions on smoking.

Correction

The Annual Intertribal Powwow at the Curry Hicks Cage is on September 23 and 24. The Collegian regrets the error.

Collegian Graphics

We're Up All Night

putting together New England's oldest daily college newspaper

COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIEDS

THEY WORK!

113 Campus Center 545-3500

Any Two Calzones only $7.95 price includes tax

Fall Specials Save in Twos 256-6100

Two Large Cheese Pizzas only $12.00 price includes tax

Regular, Whole Wheat & Corn Bread Crusts Available on Pizza & Calzones

CANTONE'S PIZZA CO. 256-6100 45 RPM 481 West Street Amherst, MA

FREE DELIVERY 256-6100 Open 4pm - 2am 7 Days $7.00 Min. on M/C & Visa

Any Two Large Subs only $8.00 price includes tax

No Coupons Needed With These Specials 256-6100

Any Two Large 1-Item Pizzas only $14.00 price includes tax

SHINICHIRO SUZUKI/COLLEGIAN

You ain't nothing but a hound dog...

Yehsu waits for his owner Noah Sax, a freshmen at UMass who is working on his leather watch band at the Craft Center in the Student Union Building.

Department holds b-day party

By Constance Kowtna
Collegian Corespondent

Last Wednesday, the Women Studies Department held a "Welcome Back" Reception for students and faculty in their new student lounge in Bartlett 208A from 3:30 to 5 p.m. The reception celebrated the department's 21 years of existence at UMass.

"This lounge is a wonderful idea," said Ann Ferguson, the new director of women studies. "Students will be able to make better connections among themselves. It's important for the students to have a common place, because students have different focuses and connect to different departments."

At the informal reception people mingled while they enjoyed the food and drinks provided. The gathering indicated that a warm sense of community has already begun to form as the faculty and students conversed amongst themselves.

During the reception, Ferguson arrived with a birthday cake and everyone participated in singing "Happy Birthday" to the Women Studies Department. Former Director, Lee Edwards, who is now Dean of Humanities and Fine Arts, had the honor of blowing out the candles.

Special attention was given to new faculty members Alex Deschamps and Renee Heberle, who were welcomed to the department.

"Working with this department is very exciting," said Heberle, "I think that it will be an exciting year where we can consolidate curricular changes and change in terms of the community in the department.

The main goals are to help majors and minors to get to know each other and to have faculty have more contact with students."

Students within the department have been expressing the need for a lounge for many years. The Women's Studies Department Secretary, Linda Hillenbrand, worked diligently to rearrange the faculty offices so that the department would have the needed space. Student volunteers Carla Lauranzano and Nicole Larace agreed to to form as the faculty and students conversed amongst themselves.

The lounge will be an area where students can have study groups and talk about current issues. The lounge has a variety of research books, and a computer with a printer. A television, VCR and sofa are all due to arrive shortly.

Holiday conflicts can plague students

By Jacob W. Michaels
Collegian Staff

Michele Issokson is planning on skipping her first "fairly significant" quiz of the semester and she's not happy about it.

She will not be attending her Introduction to Biology class at Smith College because Monday is Rosh Hashana, the Jewish New Year. She will be attending religious services while the rest of her classmates take the quiz.

Across the country, many Jewish students have the same problem. They must make the choice of missing classes to celebrate the holiday or skipping the holidays so they don't fall behind.

While state laws require universities to provide make-up work and exams for students who miss classes due to religious purposes, this doesn't satisfy all students.

Issokson, who goes to school at Smith, said it was frustrating that she will miss the exam because, "I have to make it up on my own time which shouldn't have to happen, and because there's a review right before the quiz and I'll have to miss it."

According to her professor, Dr. Richard Briggs, the quiz was scheduled on Rosh Hashana because he misread the calendar when he was assembling the syllabus and thought the holiday started on Monday night, not Sunday night.

Issokson was also worried that the make-up exam might be harder than the original, however Briggs said he would give students the exact same test when they do the make-up.

Even so, Issokson said she didn't even think about going to classes and skipping religious services because "that's what Jews do on the High Holidays. That's where I belong."

She said she felt guilty when she chose to go to classes, instead of services, last year.

"I didn't go because I thought I'd miss too much in class and be behind," she explained.

Larry Goldbaum, the coordinator for Jewish Affairs, said he didn't yet know of any Jewish students at the University of Massachusetts having problems due to classes on Rosh Hashana.

"I haven't spoken to anybody who has had problems," he said. "I know from past years that students have had problems... If there are problems, [students] can go to department heads or the ombudsman's office.

There will be several religious services held for Rosh Hashana. Chabad House will be holding services on Sunday at 7 p.m., Monday at 10 a.m. and 7 p.m., and Tuesday at 10 a.m. Hillel House will have services in the Student Union Ballroom at 7 p.m. on Sunday, 10 a.m. and 7 p.m. on Monday, and 10 a.m. on Tuesday. Call either Hillel or Chabad for more information.

Student debts may overwhelm due to increasing college costs

By Sally Streff Buzbee
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — More American students and their parents are taking on debt — and more of it — to pay for college, a study said Thursday.

Borrowing for college has jumped 50 percent since 1992, from $16 billion to an estimated $24 billion in 1995, according to The Education Resources Institute, a Boston-based non-profit group that provides information about college aid.

The growing loan volume, if it continues, could hurt not only students and their families but the economy as a whole by limiting their buying and saving power, the study said.

"We're trying to build awareness among consumers and in Congress that this could be a problem," said Ted Freeman, the institute's president.

In part, the increase results from good news — more people are going to college, including increasing numbers of minority students. But college costs also have grown, while federal grants have remained mostly static.

In addition, changes in federal laws two years ago allowed students to borrow more, and made more students and parents eligible to borrow under the federal guaranteed-loan program.

College debt still accounts for a small fraction of all debt Americans take on, and thus not necessarily a cause for concern, some economists say.

"For a lot of people, it's the only thing to do, so they do it," said David Wyss, chief financial economist for market analysts DRI/McGraw Hill of Lexington, Mass. "What's the alternative? If you don't go to college, you're stuck in today's world."

But Freeman cautioned that students may take on too much debt because of inexperience, leading to defaults. Surveys by the American Council on Education indicate some students don't understand their loan commitments, said ACE spokesman Dave Merkowitz.

"Some didn't realize they would have to pay the loans back," Merkowitz said. "And even those who did understand felt they had no choice but to take a calculated risk."

Chad Griffin, 22, a junior at Georgetown University, is among students taking such a calculated risk. The Arkadelphia, Ark., student doesn't qualify for basic grants from the government. His schoolteacher mother and high school principal stepfather have three children in college, and a fourth soon to enroll. Griffin already has $32,000 in loans — mostly government-guaranteed — and expects more his senior year. He also works.

After college, he's confident he will find a job and repay the loans. "But it still frightens me, seeing the numbers on those promissory notes," he said.

Parents surveyed in the TERI report said they, too, worry about debt but regard college as essential. As a budget priority, they rank it equal to buying a house.

Wyss said the survey indicates parents should continue to pressure colleges to keep down costs.

TERI, which conducted the study with the Washington-based Institute for Higher Education Policy, recommends Congress provide more grants to students.

But Republicans say big increases are unlikely. This week, they are considering making federal loans more expensive for students as a way to help balance the budget.

High speeds may soon be legal

By Carolyn Thompson
Associated Press

BOSTON — It appears Massachusetts drivers, never ones to pay much attention to traffic rules anyway, will soon have license to drive 65 mph legally on many of the state's roadways, Gov. William F. Weld said Thursday.

A day after the U.S. House of Representatives joined the Senate in voting to let states end the 55 mph limit, Weld said he saw no reason not to ease limits in Massachusetts.

"If the roads can take it and it's not a safety factor, then I say why not?" Weld said.

The Republican said there have been no problems since the Legislature raised the speed limit on rural portions of the Massachusetts Turnpike three years ago, and that Western Massachusetts residents have been "wildly enthusiastic" about the change.

The 55 mph limit was enacted by Congress in 1974 as an energy saving measure. A 65 mph maximum is allowed on rural interstates.

A state police study released in June found that, since the speed limit was raised on the Turnpike from the New York border to Westfield and from Ludlow to Auburn at Exit 10, the number of personal injury accidents has risen slightly, while fatalities have stayed about the same.

There were three fatal accidents in those areas during 1991, the year before the speed limit was raised. In 1992, the first year of the change, there were four. In both 1993 and 1994, there were two fatals, according to the report. There has been an average of 93 personal injury accidents per year since 1992. There were 86 in 1991, the study found.

Kevin J. Sullivan, deputy commissioner of the Massachusetts Highway Department, said the additional roadways to be converted were chosen because they were designed for speeds of 65 and higher and because most people already drive faster than 55 on them anyway.

The Highway Department has been testing speeds with radar throughout the year, he said, and has found that 85 percent of drivers travel in the 65 mph range.

He predicted the 15 percent who drive faster will be more easily spotted by police officers enforcing the new limit. While opponents of higher speed limits cite safety concerns, Sullivan said getting drivers to travel at more uniform speeds would decrease accidents.

"If there is a 30 mile-per-hour differential — if somebody is driving 45 on the same road someone is driving 75 — there is 10 times more chance of an accident," he said.

But Inta Hall, a founder of the Massachusetts Brain Injury Association, disagreed.

"You cannot react quickly enough. You cannot avoid things. There's so many safety issues involved in speeding," she said.

"Is this the way we're going to control health care costs? To let everyone crash at high speeds so they cannot survive and require long-term care?" she said.

Just under 400 miles of roadways, including parts of I-84, I-93, I-95, I-190, I-295, I-495 and I-290, have been designated for the higher speed. Weld and Sullivan said the new limits would take effect as soon as the president signed the final version of the National Highway System Bill that includes the speed limit provision.

Slip on. Zip up. Knock out.

ZANA

Amherst Williamstown Brattleboro

Research Interviewers

Hiring Now For Evening and Weekend Hours

No Selling Involved

Interesting part-time telephone assignments to collect data on a variety of research topics. Absolutely no selling involved. Computer/typing skills required. Flexible hours Monday–Friday, 5pm–10pm, Saturday 11am–5pm and Sunday 3pm–9pm. Must work a minimum of 20 hours per week. Start at $5.25/hour with paid training and earn up to $7.00/hour.

We're in the Mountain Farms Mall, which is a stop on the free bus line. Call between 9am–5pm, Monday–Friday: (413) 586-8635.

Abt Associates, Telephone Research Center, Mountain Farms Mall, Rt. 9, Hadley, MA 01035. An Equal Opportunity Employer.

Abt

Abt Associates Inc.

迎新晚會

主題：另一番的追尋

時間：1995年 9月 23日 星期六 下午六時起（晚餐招待）

地點：First Baptist Church of Amherst 434 N. Pleasant St Amherst, MA 01002

講員：樂大壩 博士 新澤西州普敦校會長老 AT&T Bell Laboratory 資深工程師

主辦：安城華人基督教會

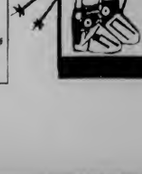
Collegian Graphics

We're up all night putting together New England's largest college daily newspaper.

When our job is done — your day is just beginning.

KLEIN'S ALL SPORTS

EARLY BIRD SKI & HOCKEY SALE



COMPLETE X-Country Packages STARTING AT $89.99

COMPLETE Downhill Packages w/Boots STARTING AT $249.99

COMPLETE Snowboard Packages w/Boots STARTING AT $439.99

HOCKEY SKATES Bauer Pro 36 $47.99 Yth $49.99 Jr $54.99 Adlt

SAVE • SAVE • SAVE • SAVE • SAVE • SAVE • SAVE • SAVE • SAVE • SAVE • SAVE • SAVE

UP TO 50% OFF All Name Brand Ski Clothing

Hampshire Mall, Hadley, MA • (413) 585-0470

DAILY COLLEGIAN

113 Campus Center • University of Massachusetts Amherst, MA 01003 • (413) 545-3500 • Fax (413) 545-1592

Matt Vautour Editor-in-Chief Juan Jose Chacon Quiros de Quetzcoatl Managing Editor
Earl T. Martin Business Manager James P. Ganley Production Manager Ethan Bloomfield Advertising Manager
Natasha Kahn Advertising Production Manager Wendy Darling Senior Diversity Editor

Tara MK Connelly Arts & Living Editor Candice Flemming Sports Editor
Position Vacant Black Affairs Editor Positions Vacant Staff Artists
Matt Wurtzel Business Editor Laura Schmidt, Aimee Schwartz Women's Issues Editors
Syed Mohammed Ali Raza Developing Nations Editor Marni E. Helfner Editorial Production Manager
Geri Sahn Editorial/Opinion Editor Adam Chace Systems Manager
Wendy Darling Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Issues Editor A.J. Stewart Finance Manager
Jacob W. Michaels Jewish Affairs Editor Ryan Courtemauche Distribution Manager
Hernan Rozemberg Multicultural Affairs Editor Maureen Majerowski Senior Bookkeeper
Chris Taylor Conner News Editor Marty Pappas Classified Advertising
Daymion Smith Photography Editor Thomas F. Sweeney, Jr. Graphics Advisor/Instructor

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published Monday through Friday during the University of Massachusetts calendar semester. The Collegian is financially independent from the University of Massachusetts, operating solely on revenues generated by advertising sales. The paper was founded in 1890 as Aggie Life, became the College Signal in 1901, the Weekly Collegian in 1914 and then the Tri-Weekly Collegian in 1936. The Collegian has been published daily since 1967, and has been a broadsheet publication since January 1994. For advertising rates and information, call (413) 545-3500 weekdays between 8:30 a.m. and 3:30 p.m.

The rally no longer rallies

There were two types of people who gathered on the Amherst Common on Sept. 14 to protest planned cuts in federal education assistance. The first group went to the rally, became invigorated, and went home to write their representatives, call their senators, then plan the next phase of their movement. And then there was the other 90 percent of the crowd.

Those folks went home, ordered a pizza, watched "Friends" and "Seinfeld" and went to sleep. They were convinced that by putting on a black turtleneck and milling around in front of the Lord Jeff Inn for half an hour, they'd actually accomplished something.

I have become rather cynical about such protests during my tenure in the Happy Valley. Last spring, I addressed a rally protesting certain points of the Republican Contract With America. When I pointed out that less than a quarter of eligible voters had voted in 1994, everyone cheered. When I said that the left could win if we all got off our ivory-tower laurels, they cheered still more.

But I knew many of those cheering loudest had not voted. They did not vote, and they would not vote in the future. They'd yell about Newt, but not actually do the one thing that could remove him from power.

It is chic today to say voting "doesn't make a difference." I'm no expert on history, but I do know that in just about every election in this country's history, the winner has taken power. "But they're all the same," the hip and jaded say. If that were the case, there would be no Contract, no financial aid cuts, and nothing to protest. Newt Gingrich and Barney Frank are the same? Jesse Jackson and Phil Gramm the same?

I remember seeing an elderly South African woman on the news a few years back. She walked for three days to vote for the first time. Being illiterate, she couldn't mark her ballot herself; she had to whisper "Mandela" to a polling official. Think of her the next time you say voting doesn't matter.

The simple fact is, there are three real ways to effect change in America: through voting, through the courts and through violence. And unless you crave the pariah status of the Unabomber and Tim McVeigh, you're better off with the first two.

The flaw of protest, 1990's style, is the rally is now substituting for the movement. During the civil rights movement, blacks showed unified strength; they voted en masse, and spoke with one voice. Anti-Vietnam protesters used their numbers to disrupt the process of governance. Women's suffragists forced power to listen, and, once enfranchised, united to make women's issues a top concern.

Trendy, lackluster demonstrations in leftist bastions like Amherst allow Newt and his clan to ignore protest. The government realizes we are all so busy planning rallies and casting acerbic comments that we will never truly demonstrate. If you are in Amherst wearing black, you are not on the phone with Washington.

Peter Orvetti

Today, rallies are hip, fun shows with music and angry polemics. There were folks shouting in Amherst last Thursday who were shouting about the Contract all last spring, and shouting about Mumia Abu-Jamal all summer. Since the rally no longer rallies — it doesn't bring forces to the cause — and since today the half-hour of assembly is the entire expression of the movement, government can ignore it.

So even if it doesn't accomplish anything, you might be thinking, is it still harmless? Unfortunately, no.

Trendy, lackluster demonstrations in leftist bastions like Amherst allow Newt and his clan to ignore protest. The government realizes we are all so busy planning rallies and casting acerbic comments that we will never truly demonstrate. If you are in Amherst wearing black, you are not on the phone with Washington.

The people who protest too much are on the defensive. The Mercedes Left, spoiled kids with fancy cars and brand-new Marxist politics, are secretly afraid someone will notice they don't really live their beliefs. (Consider a leading Valley AIDS activist who smokes Marlboros, a leading contributor to Jesse Helms.) And so they shout and wave banners, trying to block out their nagging consciences.

Those who do truly change things, who are giving time to the Survival Center or Grove Street Inn, assisting at Necessities/Necesidades, or tutoring in Holyoke, don't have to shout their views. They already know that they are doing their part.

There is nothing wrong with a rally, but it is not the primary component of a movement. Change comes through individual action in one's own community, coupled with protest, discussion — and voting. Some of the Amherst demonstrators know this. They merit considerable respect for their efforts. But what about the others? Are they registered to vote? Did they vote? If not, what right do they have to complain about who gets elected? And, will they vote next time?

Peter Orvetti is a Collegian columnist.

Leaving my home in Kuwait

Yousef Tuqan

It was just another August morning. It was summer-time in the rich Emirate of Kuwait, and I was lazily welcoming the morning in the comfortable confines of my bed.

Suddenly, I heard an unexpected thumping down the hallway; the telltale sound of my brother hurrying towards my room. "Wake up," he exclaimed, panting and out of breath. "We're going to London!"

Optimistically sensing that my plans for a summer trip had finally materialized, I leaped from bed and bounded down the stairs to my living room. However, my wave of optimism subsided when I was confronted with the sight of my father, nervously leaning towards the radio. Tuned to the BBC news station, the reporter blared, "Kuwait has been invaded by an Iraqi force of 100,000 men. The emirate is under siege." This may sound like a movie scene, but it wasn't. This was real, and was the beginning of the most terrifying ordeal I have ever lived through.

In the early hours of Aug. 2, 1990, my life in Kuwait would end. I was a 14-year-old boy who had practically grown up in Kuwait. My parents, both Palestinian refugees, had considered Kuwait their home for 40 years. I had planned to continue my education in Kuwait and to possibly pursue a career there upon graduation. Sadly, those dreams and aspirations were ended on that fateful morning when I had to turn my back on the last 10 years of my life and being a new one.

We spent the next three weeks in relative peace. We had heavily stocked our house with food and liquids, and our house was big enough to accommodate the two families living there for the next two months. Being young, I was sheltered from my parents' worries, including the fact my sister and I, being British citizens, were potential hostages. In addition, I had lots of people to keep me company.

After being evacuated from their beach-side house, my best friend's family came to live with us. Having another family in the house was very comforting. Not only were we safer in larger numbers, but their enthusiasm brought a feeling of hope to our house that was badly needed in the week preceding their arrival.

To get through the monotony of being prisoners in our own home, we set up activities like happy hour, movie night and garden volleyball. Even though we all knew that death could come through a window at any time, we pulled through, using our recreational events as a way to keep us sane and together.

We were monitoring the news carefully and news of friends safely reaching neighboring Saudi Arabia and its neighbor Jordan was coming back to us. We had originally considered leaving, but felt the risk was great. As Jordanian passport holders, we were unable to enter Saudi Arabia without visas. The other route, to Jordan, required driving through 800 miles of Iraqi desert that was laden with mines and tanks. The best thing to do, we then believed, was to stay home and hope for a peaceful end to the invasion. The events on the morning of Aug. 20 showed us that it was wise to leave.

The house of our neighbor, a Kuwaiti, was looted by Iraqi soldiers searching for booty (cars, electronics and gold) and Kuwaiti hostages. When our neighbor wasn't found, they came to our house. My mother had just woken up at that time, and she answered the door.

After answering a barrage of questions, the interrogation turned to the absence of our neighbor, who was vacationing in the U.S. My mother then convinced them he was gone, and they demanded she hand over the keys to his cars, with which my mother had been entrusted.

After her staunch refusal, the commander of the group drew his pistol, put it to my mother's head and screamed, "give me the keys or I'll kill you." At that moment, my father came to the door, having been woken by the noise. "Ah, you must be Tuqan Tuqan," proclaimed the soldier. "You worked for IBM, yes? You own two Saabs, you have three children and you like classical music." After running through his report on my father, he again shouted to my mother, "now give me the keys!"

In the panic, my mother slapped the gun from the soldier and screamed, "how dare you. I'm as old as your mother!" Unshaken by the incident, the soldier again raised his pistol, this time at our maid's head. In fear for the young Sri Lankan girl's life, my mother fetched the keys and tossed them to the soldier.

After that harrowing incident, we were woken and informed of the events that had passed. My father said it was no longer safe there, and if they knew his name, they would realize his two children were British.

Being slapped with the reality of having to leave our home, we went to our respective rooms to collect what little we could for the drive. Out of fear for being mistaken as Americans or British nationals, we were unable to bring along anything that pointed to our Western-style upbringing. We took few clothes, and even less personal items.

The feeling of helplessness that accompanied my apprehension for the near future have never been rivaled. That day, I felt my life had ended. My best friend's family left to stay with other friends. My room, my friends and my life in Kuwait were soon to be reduced to a memory. With an emotional good-bye, we wished our maid of 11 years and our house goodbye; a goodbye that will last forever.

Yousef Tuqan is a UMass student.

Opinion/Editorial

UN Children's conference
·resolutions
1. 2 parents for every child, so we get the support we need.
2. No more than 2 kids per family, so we'll have a planet to grow up on.
TOLES
WELL, NOBODY ASKED YOU

Taking it off to pay the bills

Strip bars exist. Whether you think they are horrible, demeaning places, women and men are dancing around either with g-strings or topless in order to make a living. And many college students are taking these jobs in order to help pay their tuition bills.

Several months ago, I was assigned to write an article for a magazine about "sexy" jobs college students have. My main focus was on stripping and escort services. When I was finished, I was very surprised about the amount of students, both male and female, that turned to these occupations (if that's what you call them) to make a lot of money, and earn it quickly.

Whether stripping is a moralistic job or not, people do it. Obviously there are many different reasons why, but for the most part, to earn a living. It is sad there are people who are put in a situation where they have to work at a strip joint in order to make money. (Blaming the government could be one scapegoat, which is an entirely different argument itself.) But there are people who strip on their own volition.

Strippers earn a lot of money, and none of this money goes to taxes. For the magazine article, I interviewed Heidi Mattson who wrote a book called Ivy League Stripper. It is a biographical account about being a stripper, and how she paid her way through Brown University with the money she earned. Unfortunately, Heidi's financial aid was taken away from her and she needed a high paying job to stay in school.

Before I interviewed the strippers, and sometimes still now, I feel, as a female, I should look down on stripping. Yet after taking to Heidi, and 20 other strippers, I can't help but look at stripping as... a real job. I also can't help but feel — jealous.

Jealous because I work many more hours than they do and get paid a lot less, and jealous I don't have the self confidence to get on that bar and dance my boody off.

Like Heidi distinctively pointed out, which I agree with 100 percent, a person needs to be completely psychologically stable with him or herself in order to be a stripper. People should not think they can hide their problems by being a different person on stage. Stripping should be an additional role, not a new role in a person's life.

Before I wrote this article, and sometimes still now, I feel as a female I should look down on stripping. Yet after taking to Heidi, and 20 other strippers, I can't help but look at stripping as... a real job. I also can't help but feel — jealous.

Geri Sahn

When I interviewed Heidi, we met at the Rolanda show in New York City where she was appearing as a guest star on the show, which was about strippers. The panel had a group of women who stripped for a living, along with someone in their life who disapproved of their "job."

After the yelling and audience interruptions that most talk shows have, all of the women ended their argument with the same point — they were making over $100,000 a year, tax free, and doing something they enjoyed, so they should be left alone.

Stripping is such a tricky controversial subject, but one to think about in a different way than most of us do. Society automatically assumes that all strippers are women with family problems, or women who ran away from home, or women who are psychologically disabled.

One woman on the Rolanda show admitted she was an abused child, but that was her past and she was happily married. She said she was happily married with two children. There are so many different scenarios in people's lives, and stripping plays a different part in each of them. That is why I find it so hard to look down upon and condemn strip bars.

Heidi said she was lucky because the first bar she walked into looking for a job turned out to be a "clean" place. Unfortunately, it was her financial struggles that made her even think about working there, but she kept the job after her bills were paid. In one year she earned over $100,000. I remember her saying, "Why not? $500 in one night?"

Maybe stripping should be looked at differently. Of course some places are extremely dirty, but there are places where stripping is a decent job. Women are prancing and dancing about, completely segregated from the men in the audience, and getting paid big bucks for it.

Geri Sahn is a Collegian columnist.

The ballad of the Sox fan from Jersey

Matt Vautour
Justin Smith
Leigh Torbin

He couldn't wipe that damn smile off of his face.

"I'm just so happy to be here," he said.

* * *

Brian grew up in the swamps of New Jersey, right in the heart of Yankee country.

"I really should be a Yankee fan," he said kind of relieved.

That would-be Yankee fan, however, by some absolute freak of nature lives and dies with the Boston Red Sox.

Liking the Red Sox can be quite a curse in the Garden State. He suffered through losing seasons and chants of 1918, while his friends talked trash about the Yanks.

He had support however. Like his father before him, Brian's father Rico was as die-hard a Sox fan as they come. From the time when Brian was very young, he and Rico would sit out on the porch straining to hear the statics station in distant Hartford, transmitting the sounds of Ken Coleman and Joe Castiglione broadcasting Boston's Olde Towne Team.

The two would even risk their lives for their team on occasion, venturing into the unholy land of the Bronx in hopes of seeing Boston defeat the hated Yankees.

As Brian got older his passion for the team flourished. In fact, when it came time for him to select a college, Brian looked into the University of Massachusetts for one reason. He would be closer to Boston and his beloved Red Sox. He longed to be a part of the almost pathetic culture defined by the agony that comes with rooting for New England's team year after year.

So Brian headed north in hopes of being there the year they finally broke the dreaded curse.

Rewards had been very limited for Brian during his first three years in Amherst. The team that he had uprooted himself for had been a major disappointment, finishing well out of playoff contention. In fact the media's head strike was almost a blessing in disguise because it put a merciful end to the horrendous 1994 campaign.

Brian put all that behind him this year, though. The "Cinderella" season was redemption for three years of misery, and Brian was in Fenway Park Wednesday night when the Red Sox clinched their first trip to post-season since 1990.

* * *

"I'm just so happy to be here," he said.

After the Red Sox failed to clinch the berth the previous two nights, Brian took matters into his own hands. He decided to bring his devotion to Fenway in hopes of being there for the celebration.

Sitting in traffic on the Massachusetts Turnpike, Brian's eyes widened when the Boston skyline appeared over the hill.

His seats weren't good, but that didn't faze Brian.

"I don't care about the seats," he said. "I'm in Fenway Park the night they're going to clinch."

Brian cherished every moment, from his two "Fenway Franks" to the stellar pitching performance of Erik Hanson. Jose Canseco may have gotten the media attention for his game winning single in the bottom of the seventh, but don't let anyone tell you otherwise. It was the Brian-initiated rally caps in Section 42 of the right field bleachers that made Canseco's pennant-clinching hit possible.

When Rick Aguilera struck out Dave Nilsson to give the Sox the victory, nobody celebrated harder. Brian hugged and high-fived his friends, the 75-year-old woman in front of him, the three six-year-olds behind him, and for that matter anyone else who happened to be within arm's reach.

Tears welled in his eyes as the scoreboard showed a highlight film of the season. He smiled contentedly when Red Sox legend Johnny Pesky mounted a police horse for a victory lap, while the players paraded around the field in ecstatic celebration.

His friend commented. "You're like a kid at Christmas."

"Christmas?" Brian responded. "This is better than Christmas."

When they finally left Fenway Park, Brian fulfilled a sacred duty and called Rico at the first pay-phone he could find.

It was too soon to leave however, so Brian wandered back to the park, and joined with scores of Sox fans in an impromptu rendition of Take Me Out to the Ballgame as they waited to cheer the players as they left the park.

As Brian and his friends turned to leave, he paused.

"Let's stop and just savor this for a moment."

At that moment, the New Jersey native was truly home.

Matt Vautour, Justin Smith and Leigh Torbin are Collegian staff members.

Arts & Living

Looking at Valley's music scene

By Mike Burke
Collegian Staff

Looking to hear some live music? Well the Valley is just hopping this weekend with several worthwhile events that will grab your musical ear.

Although announced just a few days ago, D.C. legends Fugazi sold out Pearl Street in near record time. Not surprising since they are considered one of the premier live bands of the day and tickets only cost $5.

Boston's favorite noisy pop band Swirlies will be performing at Alley Oops, a bowling alley in Northampton while J. Mascis will perform a solo acoustic show at the Iron Horse.

Saturday's main highlight is a ska show at Pearl Street featuring Mephiskapheles and Spring Heeled Jack — so get your dancing shoes on.

Sunday night may not be considered a weekend night by everyone, but the shows will surely be hot. Locals, soon to be legends, The Scud Mountain Boys will sit around and play at the Iron Horse while across town at the Northampton Brewery New Radiant Storm King and Humbert will be appearing at a free show.

Do you want to see a free show right here on campus? If so log-on to the internet right now. University Productions and Concerts is working with Ticketmaster and Capitol Records on their national "back to school" promotion. If our school submits the most entries to the Ticketmaster Web Site then we when a free show by one of the of the following Capitol bands: Bonepony, Everclear or Spearhead.

Interested? Then visit the sight at: http://www.ticketmaster.com/spot1. You can win prizes too! The first 20,000 entries will win a free compilation CD and one lucky student will win a trip to a major city to see a major band. If you have any questions call UPC.

September is shaping up to be the month of the seven inch single for local bands. First the Scud Mountain Boys release their two song single on Sub Pop. And now in the next few weeks we can expect singles by the Mitchells, Knuckle Sandwich, and Tizzy.

Thursday night will mark the Mitchells record release party at the Fire & Water in Northampton. Playing along side the Mitchells will be Tizzy and Encyclopedia Brown (featuring ex-members of Sourpuss). Knuckle Sandwhich will be holding their record release show at Pearl Street in the near future with the Mitchells opening up.

Mark Oct. 12 on your calendar. Green Day will be releasing the follow-up to their overwhelmingly successful major label debut Dookie. Produced by Rob Cavallo, the album was recorded in secrecy in the band's home state of California. Expect a fall tour to follow.

Amherst College is bringing more top class talent to this lovely town. Last year Pavement, Sonic Youth, Natalie Merchant, Bob Dylan, and Dinosaur Jr all played down the road from us. We can only hope that this year will be so prosperous in talent but it is definite that Yo La Tengo will play on Nov. 15.

Hailing from New York they might be the most criminally overlooked band anywhere. For almost ten years the band has taken their Sonic Youth influences to new levels but almost no one has listened. As a live band they are sporadic, but on a good night they are one of a handful of bands who can completely move their audience.

Two days later the legendary progressive rock band, King Crimson will be playing at the Paramount Theatre in Springfield. Original members Adrian Belew, Robert Fripp and Bill Bruford will be performing together for the first time in 20 years! Tickets are already on sale.

Perhaps the most anticipated indie rock record of the fall is Here's Where the Strings Come In by Chapel Hill's Superchunk. Although every major label drools at the thought of singing their four piece, the band has avoided the temptation, allowing their own label, Merge, to release the album which is in stores now. Last week the band performed in Boston along side Morphine, Shudder To Think, Mike Watt, and Fuzzy as part of a college block party sponsored by WFNX.

COURTESY KEN SCHLES

The ever-loving, ever-overplayed punk band Green Day.

Movie makers move to Eastern Europe

By John Horn
Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — The logic is simple. The story originally set in Chicago is filmed in Moscow. The movie about Argentina is shot in Budapest. And the generic American horror thriller is made in Romania.

In the wake of political upheaval in Eastern Europe and the former Soviet Union, a growing number of U.S. filmmakers are invading former Warsaw Pact countries, attracted by fresh vistas and low overhead.

Many of the roving productions are low-budget outfits, but a few — such as Madonna's Evita filming In Hungary — are multimillion-dollar blockbusters.

"I think Eastern Europe is a very viable alternative," says Buzz Feitshans, president of production at Cinergi, the makers of the Peron family musical Evita. Budapest's exteriors will double for Argentina's, Feitshans says, so the company won't have to build many expensive sets.

Some of the overseas facilities — not to mention the moviemaking hardware — are far below Western standards, and most crews import cameras, lights and sound equipment. But what Eastern Europe lacks in modernity, it more than makes up for in cheap, ample labor and unique locales.

Some U.S. movie producers have been forced to bribe otherwise balky bureaucrats, yet such complications can pale in comparison to the hassles of filming in major American cities.

"The work ethic is real good and there are absolutely fabulous locations," says Charles Band. His Full Moon Entertainment built a Bucharest studio three years ago to churn out 30 of Full Moon's modestly budgeted direct-to video horror movies (including Subspecies, Trancers, Dragon World).

"We're in the volume business, and you get a lot more value for the dollar," Band says.

One of the best current examples of "Hollywood East" is the new thriller Mute Witness, about an American movie crew member who stumbles upon a snuff film ring.

This independently produced movie's story once unfolded in Chicago. Russia proved to be a much more affordable setting, so writer-director Anthony Waller overhauled his script, adding a new twist about the KGB and making Russia's rickety political infrastructure part of the drama.

In the wake of political upheaval in Eastern Europe and the former Soviet Union, a growing number of U.S. filmmakers are invading former Warsaw Pact countries, attracted by fresh vistas and low overhead. Many of the roving productions are low-budget outfits, but a few — such as Madonna's Evita filming in Hungary — are multimillion-dollar blockbusters.

"We could shoot in Russia at a fraction of the cost we could have in the West," Waller says. "In fact, the movie would have been unfilmable if we had remained in the West." Much of the movie was shot in the dilapidated government-run Mosfilm studios, and that structure's seediness amplified the snuff film storyline.

Filming in and around Moscow was not a complete breeze, though. More than 90 crates of production equipment legally shipped from Munich to Moscow was not released from customs until Waller slipped officials $5,000 cash and several bottles of vodka.

"It's a free-for-all, take-advantage-when-you-can atmosphere," Waller says.

Leading Russian actor Oleg Jankowskij realized on the eve of filming his English wasn't good enough, and many of his lines had to be dubbed. Another Russian actor, Waller says, had such a drug problem he could barely stand for his scenes. And then there was the first day of filming — Oct. 4, 1993.

"I woke up to the sounds of explosions and machine-gun fire," says Waller. The movie's start coincided with the October Revolution, the storming of the Russian parliament building. With only minor delays, however, production stayed on track.

Waller's film crew included just five Americans, a few Germans and more than 100 Russians (accompanied by four interpreters).

Waller also scored the film in Moscow, using a 64-piece orchestra. The bang-for-your-buck magnet also attracted B-movie legend Roger Corman. Corman's company filmed two movies for cable's Showtime — Hellfire and Bram Stoker's Burial of the Rats — in Moscow. In classic Corman style, it was movie sets that brought him to Russia.

In the 1960s, Corman cannibalized used sets from The Sound of Music and The Sand Pebbles for his low-budget St. Valentine's Day Massacre. So when Mosfilm President Vladimir Dostal recently told Corman that Mosfilm was building a French provincial city and chateau for a historical drama, Corman took the line.

Turn to MOVIES, page 6

Cyndi Lauper is no comeback

By David Bauder
Associated Press

ALBANY, N.Y. — Don't talk to Cyndi Lauper about comebacks.

The word has hung over her, almost like a taunt, ever since she experienced unimaginable success 11 years ago with her first album and the signature song Girls Just Want to Have Fun.

Some will try to apply that label to Twelve Deadly Cyns... And Then Some, a CD that collects the neon-haired singer's greatest hits, a few new songs and some tunes Lauper considers unjustly ignored.

"It's silly," she said. "I haven't gone anywhere. To have every single one of your records called a comeback record is kind of funny."

Overseas, where the disc was released last year, it clearly can be called a successful comeback. It has sold more than 2 million copies.

But this native New Yorker still hasn't cracked the indifference that those in her own country have displayed throughout the 1990s.

The disc peaked at No. 81 on Billboard's chart and has sunk since its July release.

A full decade of never climbing to the same heights as that first album has given Lauper a different definition of success.

"You can be safe and be very successful, but there is nothing creatively stimulating there for me," she said. "In my heart, that's where the music is. That's how I live and that's how I breathe. When I sing and when I write and when I make music together with people who are kindred souls, then it's a great experience."

She's found that she can only be responsible for making that music, not for how people respond to it.

Put another way, Lauper said she would sport a Brooks Bros. suit if she wanted to be a whiz at the business aspect of music, instead of the thrift store castoffs she has molded into a "look."

"The importance is not a pat on the back or a slap on the side of the head," she said. "In this field, once you understand the nature of the beast, it's not about how many rewards you get, it's about the work, and how the work makes you feel."

And, lately, that work has made her feel pretty good. Her 1993 album, Hat Full of Stars, received positive reviews and was the project Lauper always wanted to do — even though it was ignored to the point that many people who saw her perform didn't realize it was out.

She held off releasing her greatest hits until she could put a few songs from Hat Full of Stars on it, and would have liked to include more.

The new recordings on Twelve Deadly Cyns include a cover of the Gene Pitney song, "I'm Gonna Be Strong," which Lauper had been performing since her days as the lead singer of Blue Angel, the New York City-area bar band in which she was discovered. It's among her strongest vocal performances.

"Girls Just Want to Have Fun" also was recast as a reggae-flavored song that borrows the melody of Redbone's "Come and Get Your Love." She also includes the original version of the hit on the CD.

The song has experienced a revival of sorts in the gay community, which often has been on the tip of musical trends.

Tossing glitter as she rode a float, Lauper was a grand marshal of this summer's gay pride parade in New York City. Last year, she sang at the closing ceremonies of the Gay Games.

"I felt like this is a song that meant a lot to a lot of people," she said. "It's a very liberating song and it's also about a celebration of who you are. And I think that that is important."

Lauper, 42, was married almost four years ago to actor David Thornton, in a Manhattan ceremony in which Little Richard led them in reciting their vows. They divide their time between an apartment in Manhattan and a home an hour away in Stamford, Conn.

An acting career that began with the movie "Vibes" has continued to parallel Lauper's musical one. She just received her second Emmy nomination for her recurring role as a relative to actor Paul Reiser in "Mad About You."

"They're quite talented," she said. "It's really something the way you fall into it. After awhile, I really did think that I was related to Paul through marriage and then divorce — that I was his cousin somehow."

But she still considers music her top priority and is looking forward to some more live performances.

1177 N. Pleasant Street
North Amherst (3 minutes from UMASS) 549-4555
muddy duck café
NOW OPEN Dinner & Cafe Menu:
Delicious Rotisserie
CHICKEN, DUCK, and TURKEY
...vegetarian to grilled fish to New York Strip...
Delightfully Affordable
Take Out Available
Wednesday, Thursday & Sunday 5-9 PM
Friday & Saturday 5-10 PM
BRUNCH Saturday & Sunday 10 AM - 2 PM
Fine Selection of Wines, Beer, Microbrews & Frosted Mugs
• Enjoy a Free Draft Beer • with UMASS I.D. Until the end of September

ANTONIO'S IS NOW ON CAMPUS!
OPEN THURSDAY FRIDAY AND SATURDAY
5:30 - 12:30
HAMPDEN SNACK BAR SOUTHWEST

~ MOVIES ~

Film features the Grateful Dead

By John Rogers
Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — Jerry Garcia was fond of saying that the last great adventure a young person might have in these waning days of the American century was to follow the Grateful Dead around.

You can't run away and join the circus anymore, Garcia would say, and it's gotten too hard to ride the rails. But if you still want to be Jack Kerouac in "On the Road" or Woody Guthrie in "Bound for Glory," you can get in an old car or bus that you bought for a song and follow the Grateful Dead down the road.

It's that spirit of innocence and romance that director Andrew Behar tries, but only occasionally succeeds, in capturing in his documentary "Tie-Died: Rock 'N' Roll's Most Deadicated Fans."

To be sure, the moments of failure aren't all Behar's fault. He must be feeling particularly star-crossed to have released a documentary on people whose major mission in life is to follow around a band that — as of Garcia's death last month — may never take to the road again.

But that's what he's done, and to do it without going back and addressing what Garcia's loss means to the faithful that followed him from Oregon to Vermont when Behar's cameras were rolling last year is to present a film that is incomplete.

Early on, several people are asked what draws them to a Grateful Dead concert, a question that even the late mythologist Joseph Campbell sought to answer.

"It's a beautiful, peaceful religion," says Cassie of England, a response not all that far off from Campbell's.

Others fall back on that pat answer Deadheads give the straight world: "I come for the music." Many name their favorite songs.

So what do we not ever hear at any point throughout the film? A Grateful Dead song.

The soundtrack is filled with original music created by the Deadheads themselves, which to be fair is often interesting and never really that bad.

But if understanding the Dead's fans is based, at least in part, on understanding the free-form, ever-changing music the group created, then something is missing here. In that respect, the Grateful Dead Movie, made by the band itself in the mid-1970s, is still the more informative and entertaining if not the more professionally done film.

Where Tie-Died succeeds is in giving a vivid picture of life on the road from all sides. Everything from the beauty of the open road to the lost dogs and lost souls you find along the way are captured in picturesque detail.

There are kids tripping on psychedelic drugs and declaring that we can all live together in peace and harmony on Mother Earth in those concert-venue parking lots. And there are also people like Patrick, the parking-lot vendor who has followed the Dead long enough to know that sometimes after a show a boozy crowd can get ugly. So he sleeps with a weapon.

There's the guy, probably forty-something, who has been following the Dead for 25 years. He evokes a certain sadness when he says his mother asked him if he thinks he wasted his life.

And there are the teen-agers running from broken, dysfunctional homes and families in the suburbs who certainly could have wound up somewhere far worse than the parking lot outside a Grateful Dead concert.

They all leave one with the same uneasy question: Now that Jerry's gone, where do they go?

Tie-Died is rated R. It was produced by Marsha Oglesby and James Deutch and released by ISA Releasing Limited, a new, Chicago-based distribution company.

COURTESY KERRY MCGILL

Synaesthesia... again.
One of UMass' favorite bands will be playing at Pearl Street tonight.

COURTESY B.C. KAGAN

Morphine played a sold out show Wednesday night at Pearl Street.

Morphine delivers cure for pain

By Mika MacLean
Collegian Staff

MORPHINE
Pearl Street
Sept. 20, 1995

If record sales and critical acclaim aren't enough to prove that Morphine has earned a place for themselves in the world of college music, then how does a sold-out show at Pearl Street sound?

That's exactly what took place Wednesday night as the Boston-based trio wrapped up their North American tour for the album Yes and held true to their reputation as second-to- none in the live performance category.

Pulling just about an equal number of songs from each of their three albums (Good, Cure For Pain and Yes), Morphine had the crowd bouncing instantly with selections like "Thursday" and "Free Love " — even treating the crowd to Cure For Pain's "In Spite of Me" (sans the mandolin). The set also included some new selections that had the instantly memorable hooks in the classic Morphine style.

Bassist Mark Sandman's meandering, I've-just-been- sedated persona is the type of deadpan that could make "The Night Before Christmas" sound funny. It seemed that every time he opened his mouth he had the crowd smiling.

Without question though, the high point of the show had to have been the last third of the set, which began with a semi-spoken word piece about a bride and groom who wait until their wedding night to have sex and then tragedy strikes as the groom dies when he hits his head on the dryer in the laundry room. Although they never left the stage but once, soon following came the multiple encores that the band is notorious for doing. Sandman actually introduced one selection as "The final song of this encore."

The encores included more of the staple Morphine songs as the band brought out "Yes," "Buena" and "Cure For Pain" to bring the crowd to a frenzy. It was obvious after watching the energy level when the band plays that even if the audience has its favorites, Morphine loves every song they play.

Garcia and alternative hit the chains

Mike's MENTAL Stew

After Jerry Garcia died, a friend made a bet with me that a certain store at the mall would have some Jerry Garcia and Grateful Dead Shirts on sale. Sure enough, a phone call later, we were assured that they had many a style to choose from — and they were indeed on sale.

Now before some of you freak out and think that I'm taking a stab at the Dead or Garcia or that this piece is about them, calm down. I don't listen to the Dead at all, never have. But I think that the story carries with it a serious message that can be instantly understood if you stepped foot in this aforementioned store.

Strolling through my hometown's mall this summer I passed by this store, which for all intents and purposes shall remain nameless, and I just had to stop and go in. What I saw nearly made my jaw drop and my heart sink.

It was a store of what can only be described as alternagear. Yes, it had everything you'd ever wanted in "alternative" clothing and accessories (and even some stuff you didn't know you needed).

Doc Martens, incense, candles, "underground" CD's (The latest R.E.M. imports, at best) and sections for all tastes were there; every trend from vampire/goth stuff to those green bomber jackets frequently seen at ska/hardcore shows. Did anyone know that they were in? Well, I guess they are now.

But perhaps one of the funniest things about this store were the employees. I honestly believe that the employment office had a quota and a checklist when they did the hiring for this place. Every form of alternative was represented. Walking the floor was the listen-to-the-Cure, black hair dye, Kennedy-esque glasses and "I'm so depressed" girl. Behind the counter you had two types. First, there was the spiked hair, nose chain, jean vest with spikes, "I just got fired as an extra from a Rancid video guy," and second was the bowl hair cut, chain on the wallet, cut-off parachute pants, two pound, "where's the nearest half-pipe" boy.

Now I'm not saying any of these people are bad or that their interests weren't genuine. But it was obvious that these kids had been hired because they fit a mold, a mold that sells, and I just couldn't believe that they didn't know how they were being used to exploit the very lifestyle that they most likely grew up on. These kids were, in theory, working for, and selling to, the same types of people who used to beat them up and pick on them in jr. high and high school because they wore a Smiths T-shirt instead of one by Vaurnet or Espiri.

What is the point of all this? Well, after walking through this store and getting funny looks because I was wearing a Champion T-shirt and didn't have a pierced body part in full view, it only served to reinforce what I have believed all my life: Being different isn't a look, it's a personality. As cliched as that may sound, anyone who knows someone genuinely different knows that no matter what they wear, the second they open their mouth their individuality becomes remarkably clear.

Garcia and the Dead, even though one of the most legendary bands of this century, are nothing more to a store like this than just another shirt on the wall next to ones by Sponge, Filter and Green Day. Kurt Cobain's suicide note can be purchased on a 3x3 patch and worn as a fashion statement (If he'd known he would have become more of a commodity do you think he might have reconsidered?).

In the end, it turns out that all the people trying to look so different are playing right into the hands of stores like this, because by everyone being different... together, it's a much better demographic group to market to.

Mike MacLean is a Collegian staff member.

■ movies

continued from page 5

architectural plans to two screenwriting teams and told them to create movies to match the blueprints.

After all, Corman thought, how often can you get a $1 million set for free?

"We were not able to take advantage of all the Russian locations, but we took advantage of the sets," says Corman of the back-to-back productions. He gave Mosfilm the movies' Russian rights as part of the deal.

"The pictures look very, very big," Corman says. "We filmed totally with their equipment — some of which is not completely up to Western standards but is good enough."

The makers of the long-delayed Evita considered making the movie in the country in which the story is set, but Eastern Europe was simply too attractive. To bring equipment into Argentina, which has sparse production hardware, Cinergi would have to ship supplies in from Australia. In Budapest, cameras and lights can be easily transferred from Germany.

WRITE FOR DEVELOPING NATIONS!
CONTACT SYED MOHAMMED ALI-RAZA
113 CAMPUS CENTER
545-1851

Don't forget to show Wobbs about them!
Come join us at the Collegian Arts & Living department. 545-3500 113 Campus Center

The Campus Center 25th Anniversary Committee
DISCO
Presents
Street Musicians on the Campus Center Concourse WEDNESDAYS 12:30pm to 1:30pm Sept. 20th playing the steele drum
Blues & Jazz In The Bluewall 9pm MONDAYS 12am
The Art Stone Blues Band Sept. 18th
JAZZOTREE Oct. 2nd
Peter Orphanos Quartet Oct 16th
THE STEVE McCLAVEN INTERNATIONAL TRIBUTE OCT. 30TH
The Cape Cod Series 12pm TUESDAYS 3pm
Khmer Music Awakened Sept. 19th
Papa Bunka Susso Sept. 26th
The Rhythm Mission (with Tony Vacca & Steve Lucash) Oct. 3rd

Introducing
From the people who brought you the Haunted Car Wash
The Ultimate Car Wash Experience
GOLDEN NOZZLE PRESENTS
LASERWASH
An Amazing Laser-Light Show in a Fully Functional Car Wash
"Good, Clean Fun"
"The best time you'll ever have in neutral"
"You won't believe your eyes"
September 20, 1995 - September 30, 1995
Sunday - Thursday 4pm - 8pm
Friday & Saturday 4pm - 10pm
Rt. 9 Hadley • Amherst line next to Super Stop & Shop
BP Shop is now Open 24 Hours 7 Days

Black Affairs needs writers! Interested? Call The Collegian at 545-1851

HAPPY BIRTHDAY ANDY
D.A.K.

Men's tennis rolls over Fairfield

By Jameson Heos
Collegian Correspondent

The Massachusetts men's tennis team improved their record to 3–1 as they defeated Fairfield University yesterday, 5–2.

Freshman Todd Cheney and junior Ryan Ginley continued their early season success by defeating Mike Twardowski and Brian Stype 8–4 to remain undefeated (4–0) at No. 3 doubles. While at No. 2 doubles, Gregor Rummel and freshman Mike Skeels followed to secure the doubles point by beating Dave Bronies and Adam Dooley 8–1.

TERRENCE MORASH/COLLEGIAN STAFF

Sophomore Alex Aller returns serve in his doubles match yesterday against Fairfield. UMass won 5–2.

Senior co–captain Justin Lynn and sophomore Alex Aller locked up the sweep of doubles against Mark Brenan and Mike Aruta in a tie breaker 8–7 (12–10).

With momentum on the side of UMass, the Minutemen stormed into the singles matches with a vengeance. Rummel quickly disposed of Twardowski 6–0, 6–0 at No. 2 singles, and Ankur Bayshu also sailed 6–1, 6–2 over Bronies at No. 3 singles to push their singles records to 3–1.

At No. 4 singles, Aller continued his stellar play by disposing of Stype 6–2, 6–1 to maintain a unblemished record at 4–0. Aller felt that he was of equal strength with his opponent, but that his energy from his emotional doubles victory carried over into the singles match and gave him the extra edge he needed.

"The doubles win kind of helped me out," Aller said. "It pumped me and my partner up and it gave the team the momentum we needed."

After losing his first match of the year at No. 5 singles against B.U., Cheney has won three in a row to put his record at 3–1 by defeating Aruta 6–3, 6–1. Senior co–captain Darren Tow fell to Brian Robertson 6–4, 6–4 at No. 6 singles to drop his record to 1–2.

With the match secure, Lynn could have gave up after losing the first set 1–6 at No. 1 singles, but the senior dug down deep inside to take the second set 6–2. With the rest of the team cheering him and darkness setting in, Lynn battled Brennan to a 6–6 tie in the third before falling 7–3 in the tiebreaker. The captain's record fell to 2–2 on the year.

Coach Judy Dixon was very happy with the team's play and the amount of energy they brought onto the tennis court.

"We won this match because we came to play. We came in with high intensity and [the players] came out today unwilling to lose and I think that the freshman exuberance for being here spilled over into everybody," Dixon said. "I think we are in great shape to play Wheaton and the thing we have to do is not look ahead to our match with UConn. The edge is certainly with us against Wheaton and I just have to make sure that they take one match at a time."

UMass will take on host Wheaton tomorrow at 1 p.m.

Water polo ready for Brown

By Fred Hurlbrink, Jr.
Collegian Correspondent

Going into this weekend's matches in Providence, RI, University of Massachusetts water polo coach Russ Yarworth has one main goal for his two-time defending champion men's water polo club:

"I want to send a message that we're the team to beat."

Easier said about the No. 13 nationally ranked Minutemen, as they face long–time rival Brown University Saturday night.

"Brown is historically a counter–attack, fast break team," Yarworth said. "Our first objective is to take the swimming game away from them."

Yarworth also thinks the team needs to concentrate on playing to their strength, which is a short, two–meter game.

"We have a number of players who can set inside two meters and be scoring threats," he said.

Among those swimmers "in the hole" is co–captain Luis Limardo, who leads the team in scoring with 22 goals and 30 points. Limardo has combined with co–captain John Luviano, freshman Brian Stahl and junior Greg Menton to amass 56 goals in the first nine matches.

The dynamic foursome combined to tally 20 goals in the three–match Eastern Water Polo Association Tournament in King's Point, New York on Sept. 16 where Yarworth's charges swept the opposition.

As much as their offense has been clicking early on, the key to victory against Brown will be matching their speed.

Yarworth is confident that if his club can contain the Brown fast break, they should be able to dominate both ends of the game, offensively and defensively.

A tougher test for the 8–1 Minutemen this weekend will be their two matches against the New York Athletic Club, defending National Club Champions of the Winter League, and Metro Boston Water Polo Club. These games will not count on the club's official record, but should prove valuable in experience and in the level of competition as they march toward defense of their EWPA title.

"There's no pressure, win or loss, but it would be a real 'feather in my cap' if we could knock of NYAC," Yarworth said.

UMass goalie Alex Mujica is recovering quickly from a groin pull, as is Luviano. Other players are dealing with assorted ailments, but Yarworth said these nagging injuries are par for the course early in the season and is not concerned. No players are expected to miss any action this weekend.

As for UMass' tendency of falling behind early in matches, the Minutemen have addressed this problem in practice this week.

"It's obviously something that concerns me as a coach. A coach can do all he wants; it's basically up to the players [to prepare themselves]," Yarworth said.

After this three–match weekend the Minutemen are off until Sept. 28 when they host intra–state rival Boston College.

V-ball hits road to get season rolling

By Chris Stamm
Collegian Staff

The pre–season tournaments are over, the cobwebs have been shaken, and now the University of Massachusetts women's volleyball team turns its attention to conference play.

The Minutewomen kick off its A–10 season as they face the Bonnies of St. Bonaventure in New York on Friday followed by the Lady Dukes of Duquesne in Pittsburgh, Pa on Saturday.

The Bonnies (7–5), hoping to improve on their 0–14 last place A–10 showing of last year have their work cut out for them, as Massachusetts coach Bonnie Kenny has prepared her squad for their challenge.

"St. Bonaventure has improved a great deal from last year, both defensively and at the net," Kenny said.

As for Duquesne, they pose somewhat more of a threat for the Minutewomen. After a fifth place finish in last year's A–10 Tourney, the Lady Dukes find themselves in the midst of a rebuilding year. This is the first year the team has had the luxury of playing with full time head and assistant coaches.

"I think they brought in a couple of new recruits and two full time coaches that are helping them to build their team. As far as recruiting, we have never come across kids that are looking at Duquesne and now we are," Kenny said.

This is a clear indication that the Lady Dukes are working towards becoming a staple of the A–10, much like UMass has done in the past three years.

Senior middle blocker Rachel Sky should see time on the floor after sitting out Wednesday's game against UConn in the Mullins Center with an injured knee. Sky could prove to be the defensive catalyst the Minutewomen need to play up to their full capabilities.

While Sky returns to the court, the other UMass veteran, junior outside hitter Giza Rivera is still doubtful. Rivera, by far the Minutewomen's most reliable offensive force, missed the game against the Lady Huskies with an injured ankle.

With Rivera out, Kenny will look to sophomore outside hitter Lesley Nolan, who tallied a match high 25 kills against UConn, to lead the team.

Kenny is pleased with her team's play in transition, something that had been plaguing the Minutewomen during the pre–season.

"I think last night we did a better job going from dig to kill. We need to hit well as a team, .300 or better if we want to win," Kenny said.

X–country teams set to run over foes

By Casey Kane
Collegian Correspondent

When Massachusetts women's cross country coach Julie LaFreniere looked at her team at the beginning of this season, she wasn't sure what to expect. Having had to redshirt star runner Melissa Langevin, LaFreniere turned to her younger runners and asked them to step up.

Coming into this weekend's homestand, when the Minutewomen will host Vermont and Central Connecticut, LaFreniere couldn't be happier with the way her team has run. Sporting a 5–0–1 record, UMass has posted wins over New Hampshire, Brown, Boston University and Maine. They have also tied with a powerful Connecticut team.

One of the main reasons the Minutewomen have been so successful is Rebecca Donaghue. The sophomore turned in a personal record as she took third place overall in last weekend's meet in Maine. Senior co–captain Jen Waeger is also running strong, clocking a personal best last weekend.

Christy Martin, Kristin Donaldson and Katie Grenia, who redshirted last year, round out a solid Massachusetts top five.

"Donaghue, Waeger and Martin are all running beyond what I envisioned at this point. Donaldson and Grenia are both running strong as well," LaFreniere said.

Only one injury has been reported as the team prepares for their only home meet of the season, which will start at 12 p.m. Fifth–year senior Cheryl Lyons will sit out Saturday's race because of a strained hip flexor.

"We run a very challenging course, starting and finishing at Totman Field," LaFreniere said. "It's a real cross country course. It's only three miles, as opposed to the standard 5000 meters, but it can be very tough.

"I feel that we should run well. It'll be our seniors' last time to run at home, and that's special."

On the other side of the schedule, the Massachusetts men's cross country team will host their only home meet of the season, as they take on Vermont and Maine, starting at 12:30 p.m. also at Totman Field.

The Minutemen look to improve on their record, after placing fifth at last weekend's Boston College Invitational. The team has already faced serious competition this year, running against national contenders Michigan and Iona.

UMass coach Ken O'Brien said that his front runners will have to lead the way for his relatively inexperienced squad.

"It's a tough meet, on a tough course, but we can do it," O'Brien said.

■ football

continued from page 10

The two freshmen are tied for the team lead in tackles with 18 apiece.

"Khari's played an awful lot, and he's done a heck of a job for us, and Elvis, too. With [Valentino] out with the injury, we needed somebody to step it up. Elvis is a very tough kid, very physical," Hodges said.

Hodges also mentions another redshirter, wide receiver Eric Dawley. A 5–8, 160 pound speedster, Dawley didn't catch any passes last week, but saw some playing time. And if the five runners in the backfield were not enough, there is fullback Shaun Woods (yes, another redshirt freshman), who carried the ball twice late in the Holy Cross game.

There are some notable true freshman, as well. The kickoffs and punts are handled by Andy Maclay, and tight end Kerry Taylor saw some minutes in the last game.

"I'm very happy with Andrew Maclay. His kickoffs have been high and deep, and his punting has been pretty good, too," Hodges said. "And Kerry Taylor did an excellent job last week. He didn't get a reception, but he blocked well, and played with poise."

Pre–game notes: The last two matchups between the Minutemen and Huskies have been decided in the waning moments, including last year's four–yard Ingoglia run with :23 left to win it, 27–24... The last Northeastern victory against UMass? 12 years back, a 31–14 win at Parsons... Hodges said that Valentino could be back for next week's game against URI...

■ soccer

continued from page 10

goals–against–average.

"This is a national challenge for us. This is a top 20 team," Rudy said. "I think they are going to factor in at the end of the season. We're going to have to match their fighting spirit and their team spirit."

Wright State is coming off a 7–1 pounding of Robert Morris, its only win of the season. The Raiders don't have any player with more than two goals on the season. Kelly Hartman, Heather Ennemoser and Tina Stonitsch all have two goals and all are tied for the team lead in total points (four). Ashley Auld, with a 1.24 GAA, will likely get the start in goal for the Raiders.

The first 500 fans in attendance at today's game will receive free ice cream.

• • •

Injury report:

Rebecca Myers is still out with her sore hamstring but is progressing. Erica Iverson, who strained her knee last weekend, will play today, as will Erin Lynch, who hurt her ankle against George Mason but remained in the game. Meghan Brennan and Michele Ferzan remain injured.

■ men's soccer

continued from page 10

es away from campus. In 1993, UMass was able to edge BU 1–0 at Gardner, but last season the Minutemen fell by the same score on the turf on BU's Nickerson Field. BU plays a better game on turf, their sole 1994 defeat coming in the NCAAs, against Brown, at Harvard's Ohiri Field, which is a grass surface.

After thumping the defending North Atlantic Conference Champions in a spring game at Warren McGuirk Alumni Stadium, UMass can not expect to simply sneak up on the Terriers in this pivotal New England regional matchup.

Although a loss to BU would prove disastrous for the team's regional ranking, it would not affect their A–10 standing, the race that really counts.

"You can't worry about the rankings this time of year, you just have to worry about how you're playing," Koch commented. "We have to recover from [the UNH match] in a positive way. We've got to take care of ourselves and not worry about BU. We have to respect them, which we certainly do, but we have to play our game, which we didn't do against UNH."

Collegian Correspondent Mike Cory contributed to this article.

■ horn

continued from page 10

college football game last week? 97–7. I know teams run up scores to get better national rankings, but I don't think Tenn–Martin is in the running for the Fiesta Bowl.

• Can anyone justify paying Deion Sanders more than Emmitt Smith?

• Why was Brooke Shields the second most shown woman at the U.S. Open behind Monica Seles? Shields wasn't even wearing a tennis skirt.

• You'd think after eight years without football, the city of St. Louis would have it's field ready for the home opener, but it was deemed unfit to use before last Sunday's game.

• Can anyone tell me how to sign up for the class that explains the baseball wild–card format? I hear it's a four credit course.

• If you think Cal Ripken's streak of 2,138 and counting straight games played is amazing, how about the Harlem Globetrotters winning 8,829 games in a row before losing to Kareem's All Star team last Wednesday, 91–85.

• Fan of the year goes to the man who jumped the railing to catch Kevin Butler's extra point on the Monday night game at Soldier Field. He fell 30–40 feet to make the catch without injury. A tough way to get his 15 minutes of fame.

Justin C. Smith is a Collegian columnist.

What are the Most Powerful Words In Your Permanent Record?
(check one)
☐ Transcript
☐ Resumé
☐ Diploma
☑ The Wall Street Journal
For special student rates send in coupon below or for faster service call (800) WSJ-8614
7am-10pm Eastern Time Mon.-Fri.
☐ Send me a one-year subscription for $67.00
☐ I'd prefer a 15-week subscription for $33.00
Name
Address
City State Zip
School name Graduation date
☐ Check enclosed ☐ Bill me later ☐ Charge to my: ☐ AMEX ☐ VISA ☐ MasterCard ☐ Diners Club
Card no. Expiration date
Signature
THE WALL STREET JOURNAL.
Mail coupon to: The Wall Street Journal 200 Burnett Road, Chicopee, MA 01020
©1995 Dow Jones & Company, Inc. All Rights Reserved. This product's trademarks and rights in the contents of this

Ar's You ... Arty?
THEN COME ON DOWN TO THE DAILY COLLEGIAN AND WRITE ABOUT WHAT'S COOL IN THE WORLD OF ARTS AND ENTERTAINMENT. ASK TO TALK TO TARA.
It may just be the best decision you ever make!

AT THE CAVES OF SMITH COLLEGE
Fri. Sept. 22 - Wed. Sept. 27/Separate Tickets
6:00 PM Daily 7:35pm
A Documentary by American filmmakers Jonathan Blank and Barclay Powers, is a well-assembled informative look at Holland as a libertarian model.
SEX DRUGS and DEMOCRACY
Really like you've never seen it
3rd Week!
"THE BEST PARTY MOVIE OF THE YEAR!" An exuberant high! Isaac Mizrahi is a laugh riot!"
R UNZIPPED
The #1 Thriller Daily at 9:15pm Tickets from 8:30
"A DELICIOUSLY COMPLEX CRIME STORY!"
"A DYNAMITE CAST! SPELLBINDING! A Demonically Funny Thriller!"
THE USUAL SUSPECTS
R
ACADEMY OF MUSIC NORTHAMPTON Cinema House 584 8435

We Deliver
Kai Chi
Chinese-American Cuisine Restaurant & Bar
Mt. Farms Mall, Rt. 9 Hadley • 586-2774
Open Sun-Thurs 12-11 pm
Fri-Sat 12-3 am
Enjoy HALF PRICE APPETIZERS
9 pm - Close • 7 Days a Week
31 Selections!
No other promos apply • EAT IN ONLY

Collegian Classifieds

113 Campus Center • University of Massachusetts • Phone: (413)545-3500 Fax: (413)545-1592

Personals Policy

1. All personals MUST be proofread by Collegian classified employees before payment and acceptance of the classified.
2. Last names MAY NOT be used in personals. ONLY first names and initials are allowed. The only exceptions are for birthday or congratulations personals, in which case the full name may be used.
3. Phone numbers are not allowed in personals. NO EXCEPTIONS
4. Addresses are not allowed in personals. this means dorm room numbers as well.
5. Personals of a threatening or derogatory nature are not acceptable. Personals of a vindictive or libelous nature are not acceptable. Personals may not be used for the purpose of harassment.
6. Profanity may not be used in personals.
7. The personals section is for personals only. The personals section may NOT be used to sell items, seek roommates, advertise meetings, etc.
8. All personals must have the name, signature, and UMass I.D. number of the student placing the as filled in on the insertion order. Non-students must provide a valid driver's license and the license number must be recorded on the insertion order. Use of false identification or misrepresentation is subject to penalties under the law.
9. The Collegian reserves the right to refuse or to edit any personal that does not meet the Collegian's standards in accordance with the statutes of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

Rates

$2.00 minimum/day

Students
20¢ per word/day

All others
40¢ per word/day

NO REFUNDS

Please write clearly and legibly. We are not responsible for errors resulting from illegible handwriting or type.

Standard Headings

Activities
Announcements
Apartment For Rent
Auto For Sale
Employment
Entertainment
For Sale
Found (2 days Free)
Happy Birthday
Houses For Rent
Instruction
Lost
Musicians
Miscellaneous
Personals
Room For Rent
Room Wanted
Roommate Wanted
Services
Summer Sublet
To Sublet
Travel
Transportation
Wanted to Rent
Wanted

ACTIVITIES

Learn to play bridge free Thurs 7-9 p.m. 8 weeks Free book, lessons, t-shirt Beginning Thurs, Sept 21 in Flint Lab Room 611

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Iota Gamma Upsilon 406 North Pleasant St Invites all U Mass women to rush 9/14 9/18 9/19 All events start at 7pm for info or rides call 549-784

Learn to bartend with University bartending - 3 the price of other schools Classes in Amherst Free info session Wed Sept 27th @ 7:00 pm, Lord Jeffrey Inner call 1-800-U-CAN-MIX

Vanity of vanities Everything is vanity Bible study Tonight 7:30 pm Campus center room 177 Graduate Christian Fellowship

AUTO FOR SALE

1985 Ford Galaxie 500 excellent shape only 72,000 mi 289 cu in V8 includes 4 new tires 2 new studded snow tires Asking $1500 only Call Sean at 546-3852

1983 Chevy 81,000 original mileage very good condition $700 or bo 253-9017

86 Subaru GL Hatchback 5 speed Runs well!! 1owner $1700 253-9795

Let Collegian Classifieds work for you! Call 545-3500 Today

1988 VW Fox GL Needs some repairs $950 Please call 549-3828

'85 Subaru GL Sedan 5 speed, air 85K $7800 or bo 253-9907

'92 Red Jeep Wrangler 5 speed soft top 27,000 CD player Alarm, $12,000 or bo 413-256-8311

Car for sale Hundai Excel SE 41,500 mileage air conditioning radio cassette automatic $3800 call Kim 256-1285

Convertible '89 Chrysler Lebaron Auto, alarm cassette Great car must sell $4700/bo Call Tim 665-0077

Honda CRX '88 89 automatic cassette sunroof 45,000 miles excellent condition $6500 549-7453

Mercury Marquis 1984 70K miles Runs excellent Power windows & doors 1500 or B.O Call JJ 549-8881

Moving 1984 Chevy $1800 and 1984 Olds $1800 259 Ware Road Belchertown 323-8674

EMPLOYMENT

Aerobics instructors $12/hr Lots of positions available But hurry, it won't last long Call 256-3584 today!

BUILD YOUR RESUME
Come to the UMass Credit Union September 18th or 19th at 6:30 pm to build your resume! Looking for new tellers for fall 1995! Stop by, call Christine at 545-2800.
Campus center jobs in the Bluewo Hatch and Coffee shop Mid day shifts variable hours, weekdays Apply at the Hatch office between 11am and 3pm weekdays

Cruise Ships Hiring Earn up to $2000+/month Word Travel Seasonal & Full time positions No exp necessary For info call 206-634-0468 Ext C500

Drivers, waitresses and kitchen help wanted KRETE RESTAURANT 586-8255

Drivers wanted $6-12 hr call Delivery Express 549-0077

Drivers wanted Cantone's pizza co part time & full time call 256-6100

Jobs for the environment Campaign with MassPirg to save our polluted rivers Flexible schedule $50 $75 / Day Call Terri 256-6434

Mole Torah reader needed Housing and salary Congregation Rodphey Shalom, Holyoke 534-5252

Mullins Center looking for students to work part time, late nights and weekends doing post-event clean up Stop by Mullins center, 2nd floor, and fill out an application today

National Parks Hiring Seasonal & full time employment available at national Parks Forests & Wildlife Preserves Benefits and Bonuses! Call 1-206-545-4804 Ext N 50011

Obtain valuable teaching experience and enhance your resume Volunteer to teach contraceptive workshops at university health services! Call for more information 549-2571 ext 31

$733.00 Sec 72 funny college T shirts Write $10/100 Risk free Choose from 27 designs or design own Free catalog 1-800-700-4827

35,000/yr income potential reading books Toll free 1-800-898-9778 Ext R 1733 for listings

$40,000/yr income potential Home typing/PC users Toll free 1-800-898-9778 Ext T 1732 for listings

ENTERTAINMENT

Having Halloween bash 10/27 or 10/28? Got a huge house? Want a spooky band? You need vet! and vet! needs your call Jack at 367-8636

Fridge Rentals Free delivery 253-

FOR RENT

9742 and Usurper Food Co-Op and Recipe

Brother 1500 Word processor 1 year old 700 mb disk 4 DOS superfastscreen grammer Check thesaurus with manual & starter pc $250 549-0077

FOR SALE

COMPUTERS

Mac computers powerbook 170 8/80 fax carry case $1195 Quadra 700 8/540 16" color monitor awesome graphics software $1995 Call 256-0368

Couch $70 Bureau $30 Recliner $30 Call John 256-8388

Custom fit car cover for Prelude 1992 like new $80 or bo 256-8833

HP laserjet 2p printer 4 years old works great $250 or bo Call 549-1052

10M pc notebook comp word excel hppcl $ for school bo 549-8061

MOTORCYCLES

'82 Honda Magna V 45 750 cc V 4 very fast and reliable No reasonable offer refused $1,600 bo Page any time 797-0993

Nice Aermacost men's 9 Cost $175 Asking $65/? bo Never worn 545-7758

Rollerblades New Lange Men's 9 Aramers, Yard sale or will sell $ Richie Ziter at 584-7501

Soloed Rear Axle $ 35 Disc Axle 2535

Soundcraftmen power amplifier 1000 watts $250 or b/o EV speakers 300 watts $250 or b/o 3 piece system $700 or b/o 549-3498 Beeper 292-8010 Must sell

Toshiba 29" Stereo w/ remote 3yr old ask for $190 Call 549-8543

Tandy 1000SL Computer with Mon & Sen MS DOS comp Askins $275 or BO call 8-0540

12 string acoustic guitar w/ case Practically brand new! Call Mike 256-8150

Attention New Students Personal items left at the new students program this summer may be picked up at the new students office, 304 admissions center

FOUND

INSTRUCTION

BOXING LESSONS

With retired pro Oiata Bumous 549-5752

Guitar Lessons and classes by Kevin Conroy Beginning folk classical Free intro lesson Harm Grad 256-1233

Guitar Lessons Have fun this semester and earn 1-2 credits with a patient and supportive teacher Spaces still available these last two weeks Call Peter 253-5263

Jazz piano teacher offering fall lessons beginner or advanced, Call Stephen Page 253-7354

Performing Arts Division offers group and private instruction in music, theater and dance Registration for group instruction runs Sept 6-22, 1995 private instruction is ongoing We are located at 73 Bamett Hall UMass, 413-545-2535

LOST

I lost a green Jansport Backpack in the textbook annex on Sept 18 11 you have found please call me at 8-2992 ask for Colleen

POSTER GIVEAWAY

MISCELLANEOUS

Monday, September 18 University Gallery, 11 a.m.-4 p.m. Visit the gallery and choose a complementary selection of posters from past exhibitions While supplies last.

WEIGHT LOSS

Bottled Willpower! Lose up to 30 lbs. 30 day money back guarantee Natural, doctor recommended 323-4984

GREEN

MUSICIANS

22 hours. 42 days/yo. 1000 acres Totally legal Outdoor mainstage Two big pop tents Skyward lasers Massive lighting displays Concessions Smart Bars Clothing and record store bazaars Lifesize Stone Henge replica Begins 4 p.m September 23 and ends 2 p.m September 24 A Primary/Dom Production 18+ Call Darb @ 546-0833

Needed: Dynamic, powerful vocalist to front a new original band Consisting of bass, drums, guitar and organ Only serious committed singers need apply Call Eve's Jan 546-4180 or Brandi 546-7387

Needed: Funk drummer, singer, keys The Colonial Mustard Trio! Call Ryan Andy 549-1018

Room available Great locale, affordable 2 miles to campus Leave message 253-

ROOM FOR RENT

Cocoa Better late than never Have a great time in Ireland I'm gonna miss you

PERSONALS

Love,
Steve

CASHIN STAFF: Get psyched for a great year... only the best is yet to come

ENLIGHTENMENT #1
"I'm Sorry Darling" "Huh?" "I've found what I'm looking for." "What are you trying to tell me?" "Relevance, trust, intellectual enlightenment." "Frank down the hall?" "Not Alliance Christian Fellowship committed to discipleship, outreach, and spirit-filled fellowship plus lots of fun!" Info Mark or Elizabeth 253-7706

FRAT BOY
Carla: Ya know you're a cute kid! Thanks for making me smile Love Jen 8/22/95

Happy twenty-something birthday Kayll Dont think of it as getting older, think of it as getting better! Party it up! We love you! From your housemates

To the cute guy in the Whitmore snackbar: I was surprised to find you working there, but it was a pleasant surprise I have dreams of you and me and lunch sandwiches Respond here if you feel the same

Your secret admirer

To the best staff in the whole world welcome to Collegian Graphics!

Zeek, Who would have guessed that we, of all people would end up together! I'm glad we took the chance All my love, KC

Exotic nail airbrushing 546-1794

SERVICES

Experienced babysitter available with references Please call Alyssa 549-8985 for info

Grants and scholarships available Billions of $$$ in grants Qualify immediately 1-800-243-2435 (1-800-AID-2-HELP)

Pregnant? Need help? Call birthright of Amherst area for free testing and carrying assistance 549-1906

Spring Break Travel free with

TRAVEL

Sun Splash Tours Highest commissions, lowest prices Campus reps wanted! Sell Jamaica Bahamas, Florida 1-800-426-7710

Students to join health club as group to save money call Monty

WANTED

256-6439

Trying to locate four students who helped an elderly woman who fell at Smith College, College Hall on January 30,1995 Please call Attorney Susan Sachs 584-8134

RUSH ΒΘΒ
The only investment you can compare their jobs you have yourself!
Beta Theta Beta
329 Campus Center

JEWISH AFFAIRS
needs writers
contact
Jacob W. Michaels
113 Campus Center
545-3500

Collegian Classifieds
For Sale, Room wanted, Services, For Rent, Personals, etc. etc. etc.
If you have something to sell or a message for that special someone... say it through the Collegian Classifieds. Just fill out this convenient insertion order and return it along with your payment to 113 Campus Center

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING INSERTION ORDER

Client: Date: Taken By

Date(s) to run: Headline:

Total Days: X Words: = X rate = Payment

Special heading ($2.50 extra): Authorized signature:

ADVERTISING COPY

1		1
2		2
3		3
4		4
5		5
6		6
7		7
8		8
9		9
10		10

Insert one character, space, or punctuation mark per box - use capital letters where they apply - Cost figured on each line of form used - see rate card

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE

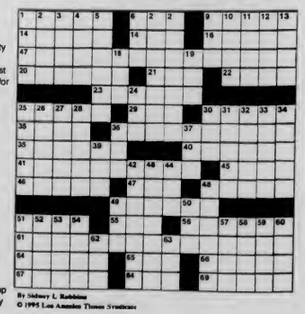
edited by Trude Michael Jaffe

ACROSS
1 Harassers
6 Allow
9 Potter Josiah
14 "— without wine is like..."
15 Mideast land: abbr.
16 Burr
17 Tounst's communication
20 Highway
21 Bullring shout
22 Charity
23 Bottom line
25 Harvard's — Pudding Society
29 Take advantage of
30 Parts of clans
35 Son of Woody
36 Tounst's sign-off
38 Seventh planet from the sun
40 The whole shebang
41 It's sealed with a kiss
45 Duck, in Dortmund
46 Man from Malmo
47 Part of "Mighty Mary"
48 Passover feast
49 Tom Thumb, for one
51 Mimics
55 Tad's dad
56 Robin Hood was one
61 Tounst's message
64 Matriculate
65 Sailor
66 Twilled fabric
67 Cooper role
68 Spud spot
69 Got up

DOWN
1 Daddy
2 Eastern VIP
3 Religious group
4 London gallery
5 Watery mixture
6 Position for Price
7 Campaign for Streetcar
8 Exam for srs.
9 Cavy's cousin
10 Viva voce
11 Campus accommodation
12 Pass receivers
13 "The Catcher in the —"
18 Collection
19 Litigate
24 Tows
25 Equipment for 56 Across
26 Continually overwork
27 Softened in intensity
28 Hot spot
30 A Lauder
31 Impound, as cattle
32 Bakery purchase
33 Show contempt
34 Helm ltrs.
37 Above, to a poet
39 Rubber tree
42 Standing ovation
43 Channel for seawater
44 Urge on
48 Kind of test
49 Chinese leader
50 Corn unit
51 Overwhelmed
52 Loblolly
53 Town near Padua
54 Lean-to
57 Huntley
58 Champ's chomp?
59 Hence
60 Clarinet is one
62 Pts. of decades
63 "Able was I — ."

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE:

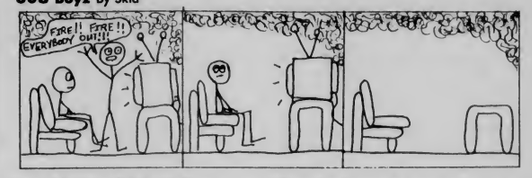
S	O	W	S		B	R	A	S	H		O	P	E	N
Q	U	I	T		E	A	R	L	Y		S	A	P	O
U	N	T	R	U	T	H	F	U	L		T	R	E	E
A	C	C	E	N	T		G	A	B	R	I	E	L
B	E	H	E	M	O	T	H		S	I	S
			T	A	R	R	Y		P	A	C	I	F	Y
B	I	L	E	S	S		I	M	P	S		H	A	R	A
E	O	N		K	E	N	N	E	T	H		N	A	P
A	W	N	I	S		L	I	A	R		O	U	S	T	S
K	E	O	K	U	K		L	I	M	O	S
		B	I	N			S	L	A	V	E	R	E	D
S	O	L	D	I	E	R		D	E	L	A	N	O
O	V	I	D		G	O	D	P	A	R	E	N	T	S
R	E	N	O		G	L	E	A	M		S	E	R	E
E	R	G	O		S	E	N	S	E		S	E	E	D



By Nancy L. Robbins
© 1995 Los Angeles Times Syndicate

Calvin & Hobbes By Bill Watterson

308 Boyz By Skid



Lost Horizons By Douglas Gellineri

JUST GIMME A SECOND HERE, DUDDY
C'MON... C'MON! BEER DAMN IT!
AAAAARGH!! WHAM! SLAM! WHAM! BAM! BAM!
THIS IS MUCH FASTER THAN THE OLD WAY DON'T YOU AGREE?
MANAGER TO REGISTER-4! WHAT THE HA-HA IS WRONG WITH THIS THING?!!

Leold By Roger & Salem Salloom

Remember my friend Wallace, the black AfroAmerican? Well, he finally graduated from the university with a masters degree...pretty cool.

But he says some remarkable things are happening since he's got a job.

Some of the guys at work are already angry at him because he told them he doesn't know how to play basketball so he can't play on the office team.

The same thing happened in a high school jazz band. That time he gave in... he just stood there on stage holding a saxophone.

They told him,.....

"Just hold it, Wallace!"

So, he held it.

He's been holding it ever since.

Close to Home By John McPherson

"Unfortunately, Mrs. Dortford, our entire X-ray department is on strike. But if you'll just describe your pain in as much detail as possible, our staff sketch artist should be able to give us a fairly accurate drawing of the problem."

The Amazing Spiderman By Stan Lee

Making Do By M. McCormic

I say we can't afford these expensive costumes even if it is an important party.
DRESSING ROOM
No sweat! I can guarantee these costumes will pay for themselves.
DRESSING ROOM

Today's Staff

Night Editor.....Jacob W. Michaels
Copy Editor.....Tara MK Connelly
Photo Technician.....Shinichiro Suzuki
Production Supervisor.....Joshua Grey
Production.....Marc Dionne
Marianne Haner

Bruno By C. Baldwin

LENNY...LENNY... PLEASE STOP THE WORLD, I THINK IT JUST...TACTED. SPINNING FAST
HEY BRUNO, HOLD ON. IT'S OKAY. YOU JUST DRANK TOO MUCH.
IT WAS ALL A MISTAKE, I THOUGHT THAT IT WAS SOMEBODY... IT SHOULDN'T... SHOULDN'T BE LIKE THIS, I DIDN'T DO ANYTHING WRONG. I DIDN'T DO ANYTHING WRONG.
COME ON, LET'S GET YOU SOME WATER AND ASPIRIN AND LIE YOU DOWN. EVERY THING WILL BE BETTER
YOU'RE LYING...I CAN TELL YUP, BUT IF A LIE CAN GET YOU THROUGH THE DAY, THEN IT'S AN OKAY THING.
STOP QUOTING NEWT GINGRICH OR I'LL START LAUGHING AGAIN AND I'LL PUKE OKAY.

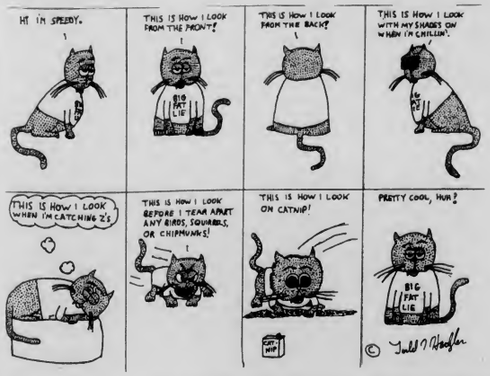
Dining Commons Menu

LUNCH
Hungarian Noodle Bake
Grilled Chicken Bake
BASICS LUNCH
Lentil Chili
Grilled Chicken

DINNER
Roast Beef
Fishies in Batter/Tarter
BASICS DINNER
Garbanzo Veg. Stew
Fishies in Batter/Tarter

Don't Go There By Justin Brennan

Catz By Todd Hartzler



HI I'M SPEEDY.
THIS IS HOW I LOOK FROM THE FRONT!
BIG FAT LIE
THIS IS HOW I LOOK FROM THE BACK!
THIS IS HOW I LOOK WITH MY SHADES ON WHEN I'M CHILLIN'.
THIS IS HOW I LOOK WHEN I'M CATCHING Z's
THIS IS HOW I LOOK BEFORE I TEAR APART ANY BIRDS, SQUIRRELS, OR CHIPMUNKS!
THIS IS HOW I LOOK ON CATNIP!
PRETTY COOL, HUH?
BIG FAT LIE
© Todd Hartzler

Absolute-Zero By Brad

Mike-O —Get on the phone with Engineering. Teller 4 blew out her customer relations diode again!
5:50am: Whitmore Maintenance On the job.

Small Potatoes By Jon Art

Let's get one thing straight...
The Collegian isn't.
Write for GLB Issues
Contact Wendy Darling, 113 Campus Center, 545-1749

THE COLLEGIAN IS ALWAYS LOOKING FOR WRITERS
IF INTERESTED COME DOWN TO THE 113 CAMPUS CENTER BASEMENT ASK FOR JUAN

Quote of the Day

"Yeah, thats how they do pants - in jail!"

-Ross from Friends

Sports

Sports Notice

The intramural office is still accepting participant entries for badminton singles and racquetball singles due by Thursday, Sept. 28. The mandatory players' meeting is rescheduled to Thursday, Sept. 28 at 6 p.m. in the Boyden Building.

Men's soccer to take on Terriers

By Leigh Torbin
Collegian Staff

After falling to New Hampshire on Wednesday, the University of Massachusetts men's soccer team will face a difficult challenge in their quest to return to their winning ways as they tangle with the Boston University Terriers tomorrow afternoon at Richard F. Garber Field.

The Minutemen (5–2–1, 3–1–1 in the Atlantic 10) come off of a poor showing Wednesday against the Wildcats, as they fell 4–2, their most lopsided loss of the season.

UMass returns to Garber Field after a series of road matches, but awaiting the Minutemen will be no ordinary foe. BU enters the contest at a modest 3–2–1, but has retained all but two players from last season's 19–1–1 team that was ranked No. 1 for a portion of the season.

BU's two losses this season came at defending national champion Indiana, and at Brown, who ousted BU from the 1994 NCAAs and is currently ranked first in New England. The Terriers enter tomorrow's match after a 2–1 victory on Wednesday at Boston College.

"BU's a good team," UMass coach Sam Koch said. "All over the field they're good. [BC coach Ed Kelly] called them 'seasoned veterans.' They know how to win. They lost to two very good teams, but they're not used to losing, having gone undefeated the whole year before. They beat BC yesterday and they're probably on their way back."

Two people to watch on the Terrier side are imports Ola Olsen (Oslo, Norway), and forward Nick Bone (Newcastle, England), the nation's top freshman in 1994. The tandem presen : a formidable challenge for the Minuteman defense.

Last season, Bone started all 21 games and led the team with 18 goals and 43 points, while Olsen tallied 9 goals and 11 assists for 29 points. This season though they have combined for just five points in the Terriers' six matches.

The Terriers key loss was standout goalkeeper Robert Forde, posting an 18–1–1 record, ten shutouts and a 0.69 goals–against–average, to accompany a .841 save percentage.

A victory tomorrow will benefit the Minutemen as they prepare to embark on a trip to Stanford next weekend for matches against the perennially powerful San Francisco Dons and the host Cardinal.

The BU match represents an excellent opportunity for UMass to play up to their full caliber against a top national side, without having the pressure of an A–10 match.

"It's a very important game to play well in," Koch said. "They're the toughest ranked team on our schedule. But it's more important for us to recover and play well as a team than to win this game. If we lose this game it won't make much of a difference as far as the A–10 is concerned. This is not a life or death game, but it's real important for us to play the way we can play."

One factor for the Minutemen will be 1994 A–10 Rookie of the Year Karsten Bremke who played at UNH for the first time since Sept. 3. Bremke saw limited action Wednesday, and should contribute for UMass tomorrow.

The addition of Bremke will help remove the option for opposing defenses to key on Dave Siljanovski, who ranks fourth in the nation with 18 points.

Garber Field will be a welcome sight for the Minutemen who have played their last four match-

COLLEGIAN STAFF PHOTO

Karsten Bremke and the UMass men's soccer team are back in action tomorrow as they host powerful Boston University at 1:30 p.m.

Turn to MEN'S SOCCER, page 7

Texas A&M pose threat in 1995 UMass Classic

By Candice Flemming
Collegian Staff

The two teams that the Massachusetts women's soccer team will face this weekend in the UMass Classic are as different as two teams can get.

Texas A&M, who the No. 11 Minutewomen will play today at 2 p.m., is coming off a 15–2–2 season, including a perfect 4–0 record in the Southwest Conference. Wright State, who the Minutewomen square off against on Sunday at 2:15 p.m., was 4–16 last year and 1–5 in the Midwestern Collegiate Conference.

This year, Wright St. is 1–3–1 while the Aggies are 4–2 and last week they sneaked into Soccer America's Top 20 Poll at No. 20.

"They're a team that's on the block," Massachusetts coach Jim Rudy said. "They grab a few more wins and they could qualify out of their region. This is a big national–type of game for us because they popped into the Top 20."

One thing that could concern UMass is the fact that A&M beat No. 13 William & Mary 2–1 on Sept. 8 while the Minutewomen fell to the Tribe 2–1 a week later (Sept. 16). The Aggies also played No. 10 Duke tough, losing 2–1.

"As indicated by what they've done so far, they get up for the big teams," Rudy said. "Their problem is not going to be getting up for us. They can play well against good teams. Duke and William & Mary were both in the top 10 [when they played them]."

But Rudy isn't overly concerned with the fact that A&M beat William & Mary.

"They statistically did to William & Mary what we statistically did to William & Mary, except they might have done a little better at that," he said.

Leading the way for A&M will be the tandem of Kristen Koop and Bryn Blalack. Koop currently leads the team with 19 points on eight goals and three assists while Blalack is second with 12 points on five goals and two assists. Two of Koop's eight goals are game–winners.

"Blalack is a quick buzzer. I mean high pressure, challenges everything, chases," Rudy said. "Koop is a polished finisher with good speed, finishes well from central position."

Yvette Okler will also be a threat to score as she has six points on the season. Nicole Shook (six points) is also someone the Minutewomen have to look out for.

"They have a very aggressive hard–running team, very quick," Rudy said. "From everyone I've talked to, they're very attack–oriented. They have more of a direct game than a build–up game. They have good team speed and their defenders are fast."

Sunny McConnell will be in goal for the Aggies. On the season, she has a 2.06

Turn to SOCCER, page 7

First–year players bolster football

By Andrew Bryce
Collegian Staff

There is a new fad on the University of Massachusetts football team. It's called the redshirt freshman impact, and it's spreading across the roster of the Minutemen squad.

Last week's 51–0 drubbing of Holy Cross can attest to the positive effect of the first–year players, and head coach Mike Hodges is pleased to see their emergence so early in the season.

"Certainly," Hodges said when asked if he expected the standout play at this standpoint. "That's what we hoped they would do."

Hodges hopes they can do the same tomorrow afternoon in Boston, where UMass (1–1, 0–1 in Yankee Conference) is heading to take on Northeastern (1–1, 0–1) at Parsons Field for a 1 p.m. kickoff.

So just who are these newcomers, and what did they do that has people talking?

"The two guys are doing well in the backfield."

Running backs Matt Jordan and Jim Pizano made their mark in last weekend's blowout. Each scored their first touchdowns of their two game careers, and each demonstrated what they are capable of doing for the next four seasons at UMass. Jordan carried the ball 15 times, and logged 92 yards in his first test, while Pizano had three carries for 21 yards.

While senior All–America Rene Ingoglia and junior Frank Alessio are the main cogs in the ever potent Minutemen rushing attack for the time being, not to mention injured Ron Brockington (hip), Hodges is pleased with the strides both Jordan and Pizano have taken thus far.

"They both play very hard, and both are talented backs," Hodges said.

On the defensive side, there's two more first–year players who have stepped it up. The linebacker corps did some inventory over the off–season, and Khari Samuel and Elvis Abellard have found themselves getting minutes on the field.

DAYMON SMITH / COLLEGIAN

Redshirt freshman Jim Pizano (27), who scored his first career touchdown last week against Holy Cross, is one of the first year players making an impact for UMass.

Turn to FOOTBALL, page 7

Local teams winning, fans getting excited

Is everybody out there as excited as I am for this time of year? Yes, school is back in session, people we haven't seen all summer are popping back up into our lives, and I can't walk 100 yards without having someone talk about the local sports scene, and how everything is going well for our hometown boys.

• Let's start with what we know already. The Red Sox will be playing in the post–season for the first time since 1990.

Around the Horn
with Justin Smith

I realize everyone was skeptical about how fans would react to the players after the strike ended, but I would like to salute both the Red Sox and their fans.

Many athletes from other cities have voiced their opinions on how Boston fans are the best fans to play in front of because they are so knowledgeable about the sports they cheer about.

They applauded Erik Hanson's pitching performance when his no–hitter was broken up with nobody out in the sixth and they booed when it was posted on the left field scoreboard that the Yankees went ahead of the Blue Jays. Boston fans are always aware of all that is around them.

The celebration was not of violence and turning cars over, but of hugging and high–fiveing everyone, young and old, big and small, that was near. Even when you got out to the sidewalk and in your cars people continued to cheer and slap hands, while not a siren was heard.

Several members of the team, including the aging Johnny Pesky climbed onto police mounts and rode down the first and third baselines shaking hands with fans. Every member of the team came out of the dugout after the traditional champagne showers, donning division champion T–shirts. They then proceeded to off the shirts and throw them to fans in the bleachers and grandstands.

The strike seemed so far away.

• The Patriots are off to a 1–2 start, but have played three of the toughest five teams in the league and have a week off now to regroup. The extra week hopefully will help Drew feel a lot better before they travel to Atlanta next weekend.

The offense which looked so good in the pre–season has been absolutely dreadful in the red zone, scoring a touchdown only once in 15 trips inside their opponents 20.

However the defense has kept the Pats in every game so far this season. The defensive corps got better as the year went on in 1994, and if the trend repeats this season, when the offense gets back in high gear, they will be unstoppable.

• On to my favorite topic and, no, it's not Dave Kreig.

Dan Duquette was the best thing to happen to the Bruins this off season. He showed Harry Sinden how to spend some cash in order to make an impact. Sinden opened his wallet a little more than he normally would, and signed no less than four players that will make an instant impact on this year's team.

Kevin Stevens, Shawn McEachern, Joey Mullen all with Stanley Cup rings from their time in Pittsburgh and Todd Elik will all contribute mightily to the Black and Gold's cause.

No one will dare take a penalty against the Bruins if Al Iafrate returns to form, as he and Ray Bourque can fire away from the point and if it doesn't get through, Stevens and Cam Neely will be there to put the garbage rebounds in the net. Adam Oates, with one of the softest pair of hands in the NHL, can set up any of them for even more quality scoring chances. All five are perennial All–Stars, how many teams can say that about their power plays?

But the scariest thing of all may be the fact they now have a second line. The Bruins lost to New Jersey in the first round last year because the Devils could check Boston's first line and take their chances with the rest of the team. It worked, but that won't work in 1996.

This year will also prove that Blaine Lacher is not a Mike Moffatt prototype. Lacher will not have a sophomore slump because he has the attitude needed to be an NHL goalie. Anyone who takes a swipe at Claude Lemieux like he did in the playoffs last year can play on my favorite team.

Here are some random thoughts to chew on and spit out:

• Did anyone see the score of the Tenn–Martin/Bethel

Turn to HORN, page 7

Minutewomen will be shooting for revenge when Temple Owls fly back to UMass fields

By Brian Perillo
and Matt Vautour
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts field hockey team will try to right the ship on Saturday when they host the Temple Owls at 1 p.m.

The Minutewomen will be trying to halt a three game skid, but the match–up with Temple has other implications as well.

The Owls were the team that upset UMass in the finals of last year's Atlantic 10 Tournament. That loss not only cost the Minutewomen the A–10 title, but virtually started a chain reaction that eliminated them from NCAA consideration.

The combination of that and the rivalry has Massachusetts fired up for the game.

"UMass–Temple in every sport, no matter what each team has done going into that point in the season, is a game you get fired up for," Megan Donnelly said. "I expect it's going to be an extremely active and intense game."

"I think it's going to be a great game. We're ready, and we're staying focused and remaining positive."

Senior captain Streya Volla agreed.

"They are a very aggressive and physical team," Volla said. "With the loss in the A–10s, it definitely gives us a little extra incentive to beat them. This is exactly what we need."

"It's great to be playing them right now," said senior back Andrea Cabral. "You come into the locker room before the Temple game and everybody is ready to go. That's what we need right now. We've been too mellow."

Streya Volla

After playing their last five games on the road, the Minutewomen are glad to be home.

"It's ideal. We want to be at home in front of our fans," Donnelly said. "I think we'll play well at home."

"We're sick of being on the road," Cabral said. "It's going to be good to have a crowd."

It will be a different looking starting lineup than when UMass played at home last. Jen Gutzman will get the nod at the sweeper position. That move allows Amy Ott to move up to mid–field where she and Streya Volla will join Kyle Rothenberger. Freshman Kate Putnam has moved to forward, where she will line up with Courtney MacLean and fellow freshman Erica Johnson.

Temple (3–3) enters the contest with wins over Michigan State, La Salle, and preseason No. 10 Penn State.

UMass, who comes into the game at 2–5, have had their problems on the offensive end so far this year. The Minutewomen have been shut out in all five of their losses, and three of their four goals on the season occurred in a 3–2 win over American University. The Owls are the first league opponent the Minutewomen will face this year.

The Temple squad, who celebrated last year's win over UMass by hanging a sign from the upper deck in McGonigle Hall during the nationally televised Temple/UMass men's basketball contest, will return five starters from the A–10 tournament champion team of a year ago.

Heading that list is senior forward Tara Silvestre, who leads the Owls with three goals and two assists. Sophomore forward Cherrfa Nouri has also accumulated three goals, while Claudia Ovchinnikoff has scored the only other two tallies for Temple this season.

Notes: On the injury front Rothenberger (concussion) and goaltender Stacy Walker (knee) are both improving and are expected to play.

Turn to HORN, page 7

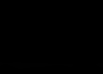
The Massachusetts

DAILY COLLEGIAN

Volume CV Issue 14 New England's Largest College Daily • Founded in 1890 • Daily Since 1967 Monday, September 25, 1995



Not a pretty girl

Ani DiFranco returned to Northampton on Saturday night for a birthday bash and concert at John M. Greene Hall (See Arts, page 5).

Changing of the guard

There will be new blood in the Student Government Association following the results of last week's election. (See News, page 2)

The Butler did it!

Massasschusetts sophomore Mike Butler scored both goals in UMass' 2–1 upset of Boston University (See Sports Page 10.)

Extended Forecast

It's going to get cool today with some wet stuff too. Bundle up and make sure you're waterproof. It might rain again tomorrow, but Wednesday is looking up.

Today	day	day
HIGH: 58 LOW: 40	HIGH: 60 LOW: 50	HIGH: 65 LOW: 55

THANG VO / COLLEGIAN

What are you looking at?

A curious Native American child winks at the audience as she follows one of the elders instructions on how to dance during last weekend's Annual Intertribal Powwow (page 3).

Moms discuss welfare, child care

By Amy Paradysz
Collegian Staff

At least seven mothers, several of whom brought children, held the first "Family Court" session in front of the Student Union Mini–Store Friday morning to discuss obstacles that face student parents and to make a "wish list."

"Once [Gov. William] Weld signs the new proposal [to eliminate state funded child care two years] I will lose my day care," said Tammy Ketcham, a sophomore sociology major.

Weld is no longer insistent on a two–year limit for welfare benefits in Massachusetts because he is "hoping to enforce it when a federal overhaul of welfare is approved by the Republican–dominated Congress," according to yesterday's Boston Globe.

Ketcham said she thinks that if the welfare proposal is passed, but not quickly, all other public funds will be used up. Day care for her two children would cost $2800 per semester, according to Ketcham, who may have to take an additional student loan to pay for it.

Weld's welfare proposal was one of many issues discussed at the meeting. The high cost and low quality of child care and the University administration's lack of support for student parents were among the other topics.

The University of Massachusetts has its own day care program with 78 slots, but only two of the women present had children enrolled. Since those 78 slots are distributed between undergraduates, graduates and faculty/staff — one– third for each group — it can be difficult to get a position. Also, only full–time slots are available.

Fees range from $106–$160 per week, depending on the age of the child, family size and income, according to Marianne McKim, budget and personnel manager for Child Care Services.

Becky Woodworth, a junior psychology major, cannot afford health insurance for her 15–month–old daughter. She gets $150 per week in child support payments, $137 of which goes toward a day care not affiliated with UMass.

"I can be poor now and tough it out for a few years," Woodworth said. "Or I can be below the poverty level for the rest of my life."

Woodworth also said that she is currently unable to work, another factor in her situation.

"How am I going to work with a baby?" she asked. "Put her on my back and do work study?"

The "wish list"

Elaine Dudkiewicz, a faculty member and parent, stated what she wanted on the wish list.

"[I want] what we all want — affordable day care and family–oriented day care," she said.

Dudkiewicz and her husband are full–time employees of the University, and he takes classes through the University Without Walls (UWW). As staff members, the fee for University Child Care for their 21–month–old would have been $163 per week, Dudkiewicz said.

"There's no way," she said. "We just couldn't fit it into the budget."

The child care facility she chose in Belchertown allowed a more flexible schedule, while the University "program was solely full–time," Dudkiewicz said.

Dudkiewicz described herself as "one of the lucky ones."

Vicky Dunbar, a junior HRTA major with a four–year–old son, said, "I can't get quality day care with a voucher."

When Dunbar was looking for afternoon child care for her son who attends morning preschool in Sunderland, she found there was only one program that met her transportation needs and would take a welfare voucher.

"The woman lets him watch 'Oprah' and 'Geraldo' in the afternoons," she said.

Other mothers said they would like to see administrative policies that are more considerate of student parents, for example, scheduling classes and exams during weekday hours when the most child care is available.

Working towards a solution

"I would like this University to reaffirm that poverty and children should not be a barrier to higher education," said GSS President Shan Manikkalingam at Thursday's Faculty Senate Meeting.

Senior Robin Johnson, president of the Single Parents' Association, a registered student organization, described student parents as "kind of an invisible group."

"We need to let the Campus community know that we are here," she said.

Last year Johnson had a final exam at 8 a.m., but her 12– year–old son's school in Northampton didn't start until 9 a.m. Johnson was told that she would have to complete her exam at the same time as the students who arrived at 8 a.m. "Institutions are still running like there is a full–time homemaker at home and a male earning enough money to support that," said Cecilia Rio, child care coordinator for the Graduate Student Employee (GEO) organization.

According to Rio, graduate students are not eligible for welfare benefits because their education is considered "professional development."

"The Graduate Student Senate (GSS) has a child care voucher program which is an average subsidy of $50 ... [which] barely makes a dent on child care needs," Manikkalingam said.

Graduate students have been at the forefront of campus discussions about child care, and the new "Family Court," is no exception.

The weekly meeting, held on Fridays at 10 a.m. in front of the Campus Center Mini–Store, is "open to all parents attached to the University," said Batya Weinbaum, who organized the meeting.

Student rides 267 miles for charity

By Perri–Lyn Cohen
Collegian Staff

Last week University of Massachusetts student Michael Westermann took a giant step into the world of community involvement when he completed the 267 miles of the Boston to New York AIDS bicycle ride.

The 24–year–old computer science major said, "It was the most positive thing I have ever done in my life."

The ride raised more then $6.5 million and is being called the largest AIDS fund raiser in the world. There were over 3200 participants, ranging in age from 16 to 71, coming from 29 states and seven countries.

The money raised went to three organizations: The Fenway community health center in Boston, the Lesbian and Gay community service center in New York, and the Community Health project of New York.

Pallotta and Associates, a fundraising consulting company, which was responsible for the first rides — from San Francisco to Los Angeles — in May of 1994 and 1995, which raised more than $6 million combined, organized this ride as well.

Presently the company is organizing rides from Minneapolis to Chicago and from Orlando to Miami.

"A real commitment"

An avid cyclist, Westermann quickly learned that there was more to getting involved in the ride than bicycling 267 miles.

"It was a real commitment," he said.

Each participant was required to raise a minimum of $1200, and according to Westermann, fund raising can be a "real pain in the butt."

People in the area were interested in the ride, yet became hesitant when they learned the money raised was going to Boston and New York charities rather then local organizations, according to Westermann. Thus, he looked to friends and colleagues for money and got his largest donation from a farmer in Leeds.

About a month before the ride Westermann increased his training from an average of 150 miles a week to 200, reducing the number of rides while increasing the mileage. Ride organizers put together training rides and clinics for the participants, yet Westermann preferred to train alone.

Aware of the ride's hilly terrain, Westermann focused his training on Mount Skinner.

"Hills worried me," he said. "So I started riding Mount Skinner a few times a day."

The night before the ride, Westermann headed down to Boston accompanied by a friend with whom he would be riding. They attended an orientation and buffet dinner where they were briefed about the ride and safety precautions.

"Safety was stressed," he said. "It was not about a race. It was a ride."

The ride

Alongside 3200 others, Westermann took off from Boston at 7:30 a.m. on Sept. 15. They rode along the closed streets of Boston heading southeast toward Connecticut.

At the first rest stop he met three 16–year–old boys from Barnstable, just old enough to participate. He spent the next three days riding with them.

At the end of each day, the riders would stop, check in their cycles and check out their bags and tents. Each participant was given a color coded and numbered tag, correlated to where they would camp and store their bikes, for his or her wrist, bicycle, bag and tent. Dinner was served in a community area.

In addition, massage therapists donated their time at each campsite to help sooth the aches and pains of the over 90 miles covered each day.

"It was so well organized," Westermann said. "I was in awe. I was never left wondering what would happen next.

"By the end of the first day I was so enthralled with what I was doing... Everyone was so friendly. There was never any shortage of conversation."

Around 8:30 p.m. each night a stage was set up to provide the participants with information about the next days ride as well as for entertainment.

Morale never waned even when the weather turned and the riders were soaked with rain.

"It was about people helping people and working together to accomplish something," Westermann said. "It was my first real volunteer experience.

"I've been lucky. I've never lost someone I cared about [to AIDS]. But I know the day is going to come and I don't want to say that I never did anything."

The ride culminated in New York City's East Village.

Turn to CYCLIST, page 2

Women of color speak about racism

By Michelle Hillman
Collegian Staff

Various panelists talked about how issues of color and culture are incorporated with class, gender, and sexuality and how it has shaped their lives.

The Women of Color Program of the Everywoman's Center sponsored a panel discussion entitled "Voices Within" on Thursday, Sept. 21.

The panel of female speakers included keynote speaker Judith LeBlanc, who became a member of the Communist Party in 1974.

LeBlanc, who said she believes in anything "...that can help get to the source of racism," began her talk by focusing on the victims of racism.

She stated that the victims are not creating their own problems, and they need to find a way to stop that widespread belief.

"...Racism is old as dirt and to blame victims is out of step with 500 years of history," said LeBlanc.

Part of the problem, according to LeBlanc, is that there is a constant struggle between the "haves and have–nots" in society and that only a "...greater unity of people will change what happens in Congress."

Other panelist speakers who participated in "Voices Within," included Jane Sapp, Alexandrina Deschamps, Joyce White–Deer Vincent, Shyamala Ivatury, Maria Reinart Pumarejo, and Ada Sanchez.

Deschamps, a Women's Studies professor at UMass, remembered "colorism" and "class issues" as the first two things she experienced coming from the Caribbean to the United States.

She said she envisions a time when "...women of color begin to take care of their own business."

"... Decolonizing the minds of some people and not allowing the media to place restrictions on what they may accomplish in society, poses a step in the right direction," she said.

The panelists were in agreement that Western feminists are attempting to universalize principles and by doing this they exclude many women, thus creating their own form of racism.

"Western Feminists take their conception of family and push it down our throats. Refusing to consider that not all women are a part of the white middle class misinterprets the whole conception of family," Deschamps said.

Sapp spoke about how she attended a segregated school and how one of her darker friends was constantly taunted because of the color of her skin.

"I move with a sense of resistance, because that is the only way I know how to live. My life gives me a sense of passion and purpose but I feel as though I am walking on a minefield waiting for an attack on my dignity and pride," Sapp said.

Turn to PANEL, page 2

Panel examines foreign policy

By Michael Elliott
Collegian Staff

Republicans in Congress and President Clinton are not agreeing on much these days. With an administration hindered by popularity ratings that are decent at best, and Republicans on Capitol Hill with presidential ambitions, most legislative and policy undertakings are stained by party politics.

According to a panel discussion at Smith College Wed. night, this governmental infighting does not extend to U.S. foreign policy.

The panel included Gregory White and Luan Troxel of Smith College, and Michael Klare of the Five College Program in Peace and World Security Studies (PAWSS.)

Despite campaign rhetoric which promised change, the differences in foreign policy between Clinton and Congress thus far "have been a difference of nuance," White said.

"The president is still the motor of U.S. foreign policy," making excessive interference on the part of Congress inappropriate. "This is a trend occurring regardless of party distinction," White added.

White alluded to several instances in which the administration took foreign matters into its own hands without the direct consent of Congress. Secretary of the Treasury Robert Rubin, extended billions of dollars in loans to Mexico without authorization from Congress in order to stabilize the currency after the peso collapsed last year.

"Both branches of government are playing to the same constituencies," White said, giving both Clinton and Congress incentives to remain with the status quo.

Troxel, who concentrated on recent developments in the war in the former Yugoslavia, agreed that Congress has an interest in maintaining the president's authority over foreign policy.

The fluctuating nature of the post–Cold War period has been the primary cause of U.S. foreign policy shifts, and not Washington's power changes resulting from the '92 and '94 elections — an explanation for the relative unity between both Congress and the President, said Troxel.

Recent advancements by the Croat–Bosnian government coalition "could really lead to a wider war," Troxel said, engulfing the entire Balkans region and, in a worse case scenario, dragging in several major powers, such as Russia or Germany. The sudden regression of Serb power in the region — not pressure from Republicans — has enabled Clinton to aggressively assert a new U.S. policy there.

Klare, although agreeing in principle with the panel that "there has not been a drastic shift [in U.S. foreign policy] since Republicans came to power," nonetheless emphasized that their impact will not be insignificant.

"Any party which puts Jesse Helms in charge of foreign policy is not acting rationally," Klare said, referring to the Senator from North Carolina, chairman of the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations.

Republican proposals to revitalize Reagan–era "big ticket" defense items such as SDI, also known as the "Star Wars" program, could prove to "undermine our security," by backing Russia into a corner with the only option of a renewed arms race, Klare said.

Klare also addressed the risks imposed by reducing U.S. participation in United Nations peacekeeping operations. "[To] anyone who is concerned about the security of the U.S., having a U.N. with the capacity to deal with crises is within our interests," Klare said.

The most pressing dilemma facing U.S. policy makers is that of relations with Russia and China, said Klare.

Congress has supported the reduction of aid packages to Russia, which, "will only strengthen the hand of ultra– nationalists," according to Klare.

Republican leaders have also blasted Clinton for making frequent polite overtures towards China — a dangerous stance to take, said Klare, considering that China is "extremely paranoid" of U.S. intentions.

"We could easily move in a direction which would provoke a Cold War with China," Klare said.

The discussion, entitled, "Republicans, Clinton and U.S. Foreign Policy," was the second in a series of lectures sponsored by PAWSS, and it was held in McConnell Hall, Smith College.

PATRICK MCNALLY / COLLEGIAN

Michael Klare, head of the Peace and World Security Program.

For Your Information

FYIs are public service announcements which are printed daily. To submit an FYI, please send a press release containing all pertinent information, including the name and phone number of the contact person to the Collegian, c/o the News Editor.

Monday, Sept. 25

Community — Rosh Hashanah Services. Shofar blowing will take place around 12:30 p.m., festive meal to follow. If you need the shofar blown at different times, let us know, we'll bring the shofar to you (549–4094). Chabad House, 10 a.m.

Community — Rosh Hashanah Services, sponsored by Hillel, Student Union Ballroom; lunch, Room 310, 10 a.m. to 7 p.m.

Community — Rosh Hashanah Observance at Chabad. Join Chabad for services for the holiday. Traditional Rosh Hashanah meal will be served following services. Chabad House, 7 p.m.

Tuesday, Sept. 26

Documentary — 30 Years of Solitude. Documentary about the Eritrean Revolution which seized power in 1991. Eritrea is a small country in the horn of Africa. A presentation will be made about the regional geo–political situation, as well as a slide show from an Eritrean visitor. Campus Center, Room 165. Sponsored by RAIL, the Alliance for Student Power and MIM.

Lecture — Bobby Seale, co–founder of the Black Panther will speak on "Activism in the Nineties." Amherst College, Johnson Chapel, 7 p.m. Sponsored by Straight Ahead.

Meeting — The Korean Student Association will be having a general meeting. Discussion of upcoming events and the volleyball tournament. If you are interested in participating we encourage you to attend. Worcester Dining Commons, UACC Room (underneath Pastabilities), 7 p.m.

Lecture — Dave Eastman, a 30 year veteran of the Trotskyist movement, will speak on "Trotskyism: Road to World Revolution!" Campus Center, 7 p.m.

Community — Rosh Hashanah Services. Shofar blowing will take place around 12:30 p.m., festive meal to follow. If you need the shofar blown at different times, let us know, we'll bring the shofar to you (549–4094). Chabad House, 10 a.m.

Community — Rosh Hashanah Service. Student Union Ballroom, 10 a.m.

Community — Final Yom Tov Meal and Farbrengen. All are welcome to conclude the New Year's celebration at Chabad. Food and song in Chassidic style and tradition. Chabad House, 6:30 p.m.

Reading — Antonio Benitez–Rojo, professor of Romance Languages at Amherst College, author of Sea of Lentils, The Magic Dog and Other Stories and The Reapeating Island: The Caribbean and the Postmodern Perspective. Wooton's Books, 19 North Pleasant St., Amherst, 8 p.m.

SGA elections ratified Thursday

Orchard Hill Governor & Commuter Treasurer candidates tied

By Allison Connolly
Collegian Staff

The Student Government Association elections for student area government, senate and house council were ratified Thursday night, making the SGA roster official.

SGA Speaker Dan Castellano said that there were a couple of issues that arose during this election.

"We had a couple of really tight races," Castellano said. "There were two ties, one for Orchard Hill area governor and one for the commuter area government treasurer. Both will be broken by the senate at the first meeting of the SGA on Oct. 4."

After implementing a new redistricting plan to distribute student representation more equally between on and off– campus residents, the SGA is confident that those elected can and will make a difference.

"We're really excited about the makeup of the senate this year because we have a good mix of upperclassmen and incoming students," Castellano said. "We have enough experience in the senate to give a deeper perspective on issues and enough incoming students that will make the future of the SGA stronger. Basically, they are the future leaders of the SGA."

Castellano said his organization does not have the resources to advertise as much as they would like. Therefore, it is up to the students themselves to go out and meet the people they would represent if elected.

"The perspective of the SGA is that we like to leave it up to the candidates to advertise the election themselves because they do a more efficient job with it," Castellano said. "It also gets them in touch with their constituents."

Castellano was pleased with the election process and looks forward to a promising year.

"This time around, voter turnout was strong at the polls," Castellano said. "With a lot more students campaigning, it gets the word out about SGA and it gets students involved in campus issues."

Anyone who is still interested in getting involved may speak with Dan Castellano in Rm. 424 of the Student Union, or call 545–0341 for more information.

Fall 1995 SGA & Area Government Election Results

Area Governments

Central Area Government
Governor: Rob McDonald
Lt. Governor: Kerri Ann Sheehy
Treasurer: Megan Breen
Secretary: Whitney Britton

Commuter Area Government
Governor: Dan Sinkind
Lt. Governor: Mark Hollowell
Treasurer (tie): Andrew Noracki
Luke Sullivan
Secretary: Andrew Shea

Greek Area Government
Governor: Josh Endler
Lt. Governor: Jay Roar
Treasurer: Jarrett Goetz
Secretary: Alex Kasendorf

Northeast Area Government
Governor: Jason Kan
Lt. Governor: Christina Filsetti
Treasurer: Jay Dupont
Secretary: Jennifer Gerrett

Orchard Hill Area Government
Governor (tie): Thomas Daly
Chris Johnson
Lt. Governor: Audra Abraman
Treasurer: Nathan Winters
Secretary: Tanya Paul

Southwest Area Government
Governor: Ruth Ashnel
Lt. Governor: Shelley Yarnie
Treasurer: Dan Backer
Secretary: Joanna Frevert

Sylvan Area Government
Governor: Frieda Kluger
Lt. Governor: Samuel Spodek
Treasurer: Frank Rando
Secretary: Donna Venuti

Senate

Central
Baker: Dan Kittredge
Gorman: Bill Ramsey
Van Meter: James Chiulo
at–large: Phill Copeland
Greg Espinola
Rebecca Fitman
Daniel Sullivan

Commuter Area
at–large: Christopher Amahey
John K. Berry
Jeffrey Coker
Vicky Dunbar
David Glumpa
Johannah Henson
Donald Huber
Lisa Kechane
Avanee Knyana
Laura Lopez
Stephanie Lucas
Peter Lucingo
Anh Ly
John Mergourian
Lawrence Piano
Andrew Shea
(9 vacancies)

Greek Area, Hillel House, Lincoln, North Village at–large: Brian Estler
Chris Johnston
Meredith McCabe

Northeast
at–large: Ashavan Doyon
at–large (cont.) Jennifer Keller
Sean Loughran
Jennifer Morgan
Tom Sadlowski

Orchard Hill
Dickinson: David Follack
Field: Chris Jones
Grayson: Avi Khanna
Webster: Stephen McLaughlin
at–large: Cynthia Gargano

Southwest
Cance: Katherine Rowley
Coolidge: Rob Consmino
(1 vacancy)
John Adams: Jennifer Cassesso
Amy Howland
JQA: Kimberly Kasubuski
Ricardo Torres–Ortiz
Kennedy: Jenn Corbett
Adam Reitman
Patterson: Will Boberg
Pierpont: Kim Tuscano
Washington: Damon Burger
Brian Burns
at–large: John Baroyios
Jordan Estler
Dara Levinson
Greg Lesser
Rob Roth
John Yates

Sylvan
Brown: Michael Holmes
Cashin: Peter Kilbourne
McNamara: Becky Spritza
at–large: Ada.n Abrahms
(1 vacancy)

WHAT NEXT
AFTER THE FINAL FINAL?
RELAX
WE'RE LOOKING OUT FOR YOUR CAREER
The Monster Board Is An Eye Opener.
The Ultimate Career Site On The Web.
Conduct a job search, post your resume,
even apply on-line in minutes ... all free!
No Pen. No Paper. No Postage. Just sit back and click.
What could be easier? Or more worthwhile?
The Monster Board
Find Your Future Online With The Monsters!
http://www.monster.com
pay attention to life ... share what you find ... make noise ... move on ROAR
to detect and serve the new leaders of this world
http://www.monster.com/roar/Roar.html
Because The Job Market Is Scary Without Them

Are You ... Arty?
THEN COME ON DOWN TO THE DAILY COLLEGIAN AND WRITE ABOUT WHAT'S COOL IN THE WORLD OF ARTS AND ENTERTAINMENT. ASK TO TALK TO TARA.
It may just be the best decision you ever make!

FREE ADMISSION SEMINARS
Find out what it takes to get into the school of your choice!
Business School | Law School | Grad School | Med School
Overcome These Admission Hurdles...
• Applications • Entrance Exams • Essays • Interviews
Learn How To...
• Organize the Admission Process • Choose the Right School • Ace Your Interview • Get a Higher Test Score • Get Good Recommendations • Write a Winning Personal Statement • Find Financial Aid
1-800-KAP-TEST
KAPLAN

Campus Police Log

Alarm – Fire
Sept. 21
There was a fire in a trash can on the third floor of Van Meter Residence Hall. The fire was extinguished, and there was no damage.

Motor Vehicle Theft
Sept. 21
A car stolen from Parking Lot 13 was recovered by the Ludlow Police Department.

Traffic Stop
Sept. 21
Gregory Z. Szyluk, 23, of 15 New Ludlow Rd, Chicopee, has his license suspended for operating a vehicle with flashing yellow or red light.

Accident
Sept. 21
A vehicle on Commonwealth Ave. struck a curb. There was minor damage.
There was an accident in Parking Lot M2. The owners exchanged paperwork.
A vehicle in Parking Lot 49 struck another vehicle as it was backing out.

Larceny
Sept. 21
There was a tire and accessories stolen from a bicycle in Kennedy Residence Hall.
There was a bicycle stolen from Washington Residence Hall.
There were two bicycles stolen from McNamara Residence Hall.
There was a license plate stolen from Parking Lot 22.

Health/Safety hazard
Sept. 21
There was a alarmingly high temperature in a lab in Tobin Hall. Staff were notified.

Burglary/Breaking & entering
Sept. 21
There was a small amount of food stolen from a locked room in Stockbridge Hall.

Noise complaint
Sept. 21
There was a complaint of a loud stereo at John Adams Residence Hall.
Sept. 22
Staff at Baker Residence Hall were having trouble dispersing an unruly group.
There were complaints about drums being played at Clark Memorial Garden.

Vandalism
Sept. 22
There was a report that ten individuals were climbing on a state vehicle parked outside Johnson Residence Hall.

Disturbance
Sept. 21
There was a complaint about a group of loud individuals at Patterson Residence Hall.
Sept. 22
There was a fight between two males in the hallway in John Adams Residence Hall. An unwanted guest fled before police arrived.

Injured person
Sept. 22
An individual with a respiratory problem and a moderate fever was transported to Cooley Dickinson Hospital.

Library benefactor reveals himself

By Matthew Pottinger
Collegian Staff

The previously anonymous donor of a $100,000 gift to Northampton's Forbes Library was revealed Friday afternoon at the library's capital campaign kick–off.

Dilman J. Doland, a 74–year–old retired psychology professor from Smith College, made his donation in support of the recent campaign to renovate the 101–year–old library.

A Northampton resident for more than 40 years, and frequent patron of the library, Doland had originally intended to leave the gift in his will, but decided to make the donation during his lifetime when he heard the library's application for a state grant was rejected.

Doland, who spoke briefly at the campaign kick–off, expressed his belief that adequate community support could be drummed up to meet the $500,000 goal of the public phase of the fund drive.

"I think anonymity served its purpose — I think we got lots of very good publicity for the campaign," he said. "I feel confident that the capital campaign is going to be a huge success, that the grant application is going to be funded next round, and that Forbes Library's second century will be as distinguished as its first."

Donna Kenny, co–chair of the campaign said, "It really was a wonderful action on his part because it contributed to restoring momentum and an upbeat feeling about the campaign at a time when people were a little discouraged."

In addition to revealing the identity of the philanthropist, campaign coordinators also announced that the fund–raiser has already achieved half of the $500,000 goal in advance donations.

"I think [the library] is a real treasure," Kenny said. "... This is one of the crown jewels in the valley — architecturally, educationally and culturally."

The planned renovation project for the library will involve no new construction, but rather the reconfiguration of the interior in an aim to expose some of the building's original architectural attributes. Air–conditioning and the introduction of online services are also part of the renovation package.

Accordingly, the reference room will be named for Doland.

Forbes Library, built in 1894, is one year older than the New York Public Library, which is celebrating its centennial this year.

■ cyclist

continued from page 1

"[That day] was the most hectic," Westermann said.

The riders lined up for a procession where they were given Boston–New York AIDS Ride T–Shirts, and greeted a few celebrities that were there to lend support.

Among the celebrities, were Patrick Stewart of "Star Trek: the Next Generation" and Doug Savant of "Melrose Place."

"[Savant] came up and shook my hand," Westermann said. "He looked familiar. I didn't realize who he was until he had already walked away."

Westermann is already planning to ride next year and hopes to get more involved with the organizational side of the ride.

"I'd like to try to get some names involved," he said. "Maybe contact some professional cyclists. I want to get involved in the organizational side."

Despite the financial success of the ride, Pallotta and Associates Spokeswoman Kathy Stevens said the experience was not just about raising money.

"It wasn't about riding a bike," she said. "The ride was about people personally challenging themselves to do things they didn't think they could."

Westermann said that the personal challenge of the ride was not lost on him.

"It changed me," he said. "I really accomplished something."

■ panel

continued from page 1

Vincent, from the Josephine White–Eagle Cultural Center, also had similar feelings to those of Sapp. Originally from South Jamaica, Vincent grew up in New York during busing to white schools and thus attended such a school.

Coming from a poor social class, Vincent trained herself to react to racism and feels that this is part of her survival and her definition of herself.

Pumarejo, from Casa Latina, did not see a connection between colonization and racism, at first. However, she soon began to realize its presence. As a result, Pumarejo developed an accent as a form of resistance to racism.

Each of the panelists said she had experienced racism in her life, and continue to speak against classism and colorism directed towards women of color.

~ INTERTRIBAL POW WOW '95 ~

Young Native Americans participated in numerous dancing events at the Annual Intertribal Powwow held at the Curry Hicks Cage.

THANG VO / COLLEGIAN

JAMES STANLEY / COLLEGIAN

THANG VO / COLLEGIAN

JAMES STANLEY / COLLEGIAN

JAMES STANLEY / COLLEGIAN

JAMES STANLEY / COLLEGIAN

Head Man Dancer Marvin Burnette of the Ogiala–Lakota tribe (center picture) leads one of the social dances to gather members of other tribes. Dancers from various tribes answered to Burnette's call (left and right picture).

JAMES STANLEY / COLLEGIAN

Silver Cloud Singers, Occum Pond Singers and other drummers provided songs and rhythm to inspire the dancers.

THANG VO / COLLEGIAN

Head Woman Dancer Sandy Funmaker of the Hochunk tribe and Head Man Dancer Marvin Burnette coached the children throughout the dance.

BOYDEN IT IS FLEX
FITNESS CENTER
AMHERST, MA
253-3539
THE CURE!!

Research Interviewers
Hiring Now For Evening and Weekend Hours
No Selling Involved
Interesting part-time telephone assignments to collect data on a variety of research topics. Absolutely no selling involved. Computer/typing skills required. Flexible hours. Monday–Friday, 5pm–10pm, Saturday 11am–5pm and Sunday 3pm–9pm. Must work a minimum of 20 hours per week. Start at $5.25/hour with paid training and earn up to $7.00/hour.
We're in the Mountain Farms Mall, which is a stop on the free bus line. Call between 9am–5pm, Monday–Friday, (413) 586-8633.
Abt Associates, Telephone Research Center, Mountain Farms Mall, Rt. 9, Hadley, MA 01035. An Equal Opportunity Employer.
Abt
Abt Associates Inc.

classé cafe'
The Buy One Get One Deal Of The Century!
*Any Deluxe Platter, Club, Omelette, Burrito, Chef Salad, Veggie Burger . . . !
Clip That Coupon
Sunday Brunch 7-3
Mon-Sat 7-10pm
READY IN MINUTES —AND SO THRIFTY
165 Pleasant Street Amherst • 253 2291
Bring A Friend Buy One Get One* What a Deal!
Coupon Good: Monday - Friday 7am - 10pm
classé cafe'
HURRY! Expires 10/5/95
With This Coupon
Equal or Lesser Value

DAILY COLLEGIAN

113 Campus Center • University of Massachusetts Amherst, MA 01003 • (413) 545-3500 • Fax (413) 545-1592

Matt Vautour Editor-in-Chief Juan José Chacón Quirós de Quetzcoatl Managing Editor
Earl T. Martin Business Manager James P. Ganley Production Manager Ethan Bloomfield Advertising Manager
Natasha Kahn Advertising Production Manager Wendy Darling Senior Diversity Editor

Tara MK Connelly Arts & Living Editor
Chrisopher Byrd Black Affairs Editor
Matt Wurtzel Business Editor
Syed Mohammed Ali Raza Developing Nations Editor
Geri Sahn Editorial/Opinion Editor
Wendy Darling Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Issues Editor
Jacob W. Michaels Jewish Affairs Editor
Heman Rozemberg Multicultural Affairs Editor
Chris Taylor Conner News Editor
Daymion Smith Photography Editor
Candice Flemming Sports Editor
Ron Alpert Staff Artist
Laura Schmidt, Aimee Schwartz Women's Issues Editors
Marni E. Helfner Editorial Production Manager
Adam Chace Systems Manager
A.J. Stewart Finance Manager
Ryan Courtemanche Distribution Manager
Maureen Majerow-ki Assistant Operations Manager
Marty Pappas Classified Advertising
Thomas F. Sweeney, Jr. Graphics Advisor/Instructor

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published Monday through Friday during the University of Massachusetts calendar semester. The Collegian is financially independent from the University of Massachusetts, operating solely on revenues generated by advertising sales. The paper was founded in 1890 as Aggie Life, became the College Signal in 1901, the Weekly Collegian in 1914 and then the Tri-Weekly Collegian in 1950. The Collegian has been published daily since 1967, and has been a broadsheet publication since January 1994. For advertising rates and information, call (413) 545-3500 weekdays between 8:30 a.m. and 5:30 p.m.

Opinion/Editorial

The birthday of humanity

Larry Goldbaum

Although usually rendered as "the Jewish New Year," the Hebrew words Rosh Hashanah literally mean "head of the year." At first glance this seems odd, since the holiday falls in the lunar month of Tishri — the seventh month, not the first month, according to the Bible.

This is just one of the mysteries of the most sacred of the Jewish Holy Days. What then do we celebrate on Rosh Hashanah? According to Jewish tradition, Rosh Hashanah is the day on which God created "Adam" — the Hebrew word for human. In other words, Rosh Hashanah is the birthday of humanity. It is a celebration of life itself.

Now it's no small matter to celebrate the birthday of humanity — not the sort of thing one can do adequately with cake and ice cream (although sweets, such as apples dipped in honey, are an important part of the celebration). The occasion is at once so solemn and so joyous that it has generated a multitude of rituals.

From the many prayers and melodies heard in the synagogue only on the High Holy Days, to the beautiful Tashlich service in which we ritually cast away our wrongdoings from the previous year by throwing breadcrumbs into a stream. And of course, there are joyous family gatherings, especially the festive dinners before Rosh Hashanah and Yom Kippur. Unfortunately, many students can't get to, if their families live far away or if the holidays fall in the middle of the week.

While it is a distinct holiday, Rosh Hashanah does not stand alone. Rather, it is like a sentinel standing watch over a month of Jewish celebration and reflection, which begins with the ten-day period between Rosh Hashanah (the New Year) and Yom Kippur (the Day of Atonement).

We call these ten days the "Days of Awe" because of the awesome burden we feel, both individually and collectively, to atone for our misdeeds, to make peace with our brothers and sisters, and then to face God's judgment. Jewish tradition holds that the gates of Heaven close as the sun goes down on Yom Kippur, and that our fate is sealed at that awesome moment. That is why we fast on Yom Kippur — for on that day we are concerned solely with the fate of the soul.

For me personally, the High Holy Days are an extraordinary gift, a time to leave behind the worldly concerns which otherwise occupy so much of my life. The ancient prayers and soulful melodies, chanted in minor keys which would sound familiar to someone from Turkey or northern Africa, help me find my way to the sustained introspection and the profound humility which I need in order to hear "the still, small voice within."

Sadly, it is impossible to leave behind all worldly concerns, as I, and millions of other Jews around the world, enter a synagogue on Rosh Hashanah to hear the blast of the shofar, the ram's horn, which is sounded like a trumpet to awaken us spiritually. For, at this most sublime moment I am painfully aware I am different from the majority of people in this country and at this university.

Most of my colleagues will be at work while I am at the synagogue, and inevitably — it happens every year — I will miss something important. That is simply the reality of being a minority culture in a predominantly Christian country. It is a reality I've largely resigned myself to but which still causes me pain.

There's no easy solution. Jews comprise an extremely diverse group, including many who consider themselves either secular or "cultural" Jews, who are not religiously observant. Many of them will go to a synagogue on Rosh Hashanah or Yom Kippur, if at no other time during the year, because of the sheer power of these holidays in Jewish tradition and Jewish consciousness.

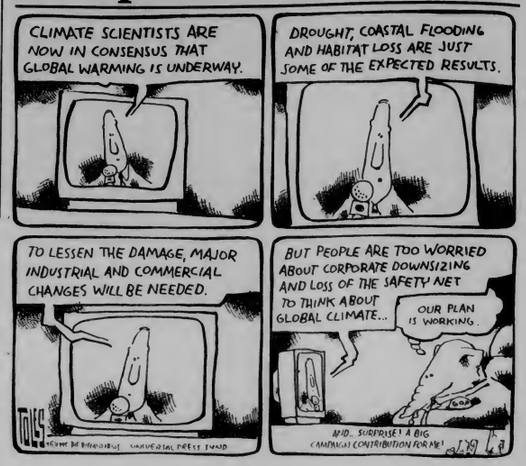
To complicate matters, there are also different Jewish denominations, just like in Protestantism, most of which observe Rosh Hashanah for two days. Reform Jews in the U.S. and most Israeli Jews — the majority of whom consider themselves secular — celebrate the holiday for just one day.

This discrepancy, which is confusing even to many Jews, has its origins in the earliest days of the Jewish "diaspora." The sighting of the New Moon, and hence the beginning of the holidays, had to be confirmed by Jewish priests at the Temple in Jerusalem and then conveyed, by means of torches placed on hilltops, to outlying Jewish communities. This process, was to say the least, inexact, and it gave rise to the two-day observance in the diaspora.

Although our history and religious practices might seem confusing, two things are clear: The first is the University's policy concerning days of religious observance, which states "any student (whether Jewish, Muslim, Hindu, Bahai, Christian, Buddhist, or any other religion) who is unable to attend classes or to participate in any examination, study or work requirement because of religious observance is to be provided with an opportunity to make up the examination, study or work requirement." Most professors are respectful of this policy, though some are not. If you have a problem with this professor, call the department head or the Ombuds office at 545-0867.

It is also clear that no policy, by itself, can make students feel comfortable and truly welcome in our community. That requires the support and sensitivity of the entire community. So if you know any Jewish students who are celebrating the holidays, consider wishing them "shanah tovah" — which is Hebrew for "a good year." And if you know of any student who is having difficulty because of their religion or race or ethnicity or sexual preference, consider reaching out a hand and letting them know that you're one of the people here who truly values diversity. Shanah tovah!

Larry Goldbaum works at the Jewish Affairs office on campus.



CLIMATE SCIENTISTS ARE NOW IN CONSENSUS THAT GLOBAL WARMING IS UNDERWAY.
DROUGHT, COASTAL FLOODING AND HABITAT LOSS ARE JUST SOME OF THE EXPECTED RESULTS.
TO LESSEN THE DAMAGE, MAJOR INDUSTRIAL AND COMMERCIAL CHANGES WILL BE NEEDED.
BUT PEOPLE ARE TOO WORRIED ABOUT CORPORATE DOWNSIZING AND LOSS OF THE SAFETY NET TO THINK ABOUT GLOBAL CLIMATE...
OUR PLAN IS WORKING
AHD... SURPRISE! A BIG CAMPAIGN CONTRIBUTION FOR ME!

The myth about AIDS

Marni Helfner

Every week I call my friend Jen in Colorado and have a long conversation with her. We talk about what's up this week, how things are going, etc. Every conversation begins the same way:

"Hi Jen, it's Marni. Have you gone for your AIDS test yet?"

"No."

"Why not?"

Of course, the response is a variety of excuses, but they all boil down to the same thing — "I can't get AIDS, it could never happen to me."

This is one of the most frustrating things I could possibly hear. This belief in "not me" comes from a thought process that awes me. Quite a few people from the gen-x age group still want to believe that it couldn't happen to them. AIDS has transformed our generation and the way we handle things we don't want to believe in. Remember, most of these people have received the same information that you and I have around AIDS and STDs, but still believe the myths.

Myth: HIV/AIDS is a homosexual disease.

Fact: One of the fastest growing groups of HIV/AIDS patients is heterosexual women and women aged 18-25.

Myth: My boyfriend/girlfriend/partner, is not that type of person — they aren't HIV positive.

Fact: People who are HIV positive often do not show signs of the illness for long periods of time and can infect others without being aware that they are positive themselves.

HIV and AIDS happens everyday, even here in Western Massachusetts.

Our generation has been transformed by HIV and AIDS. In the '70s, people thumped like bunnies and slept with whoever they liked.

In the '90s, we have to worry about everyone who slept with everyone who sleeps with us. We look for love and honesty in our relationships rather than a quick batta-boom- battabang.

Most people would rather believe, "It can't happen to me." But it does. One of my friends, Brian, was sexually promiscuous in high school. A year after he graduated from college, he found out he was HIV-positive. Later that year, he died in an "accident" when his car smacked head-on into a brick wall. Brian had a hard time believing that anything bad could happen to him, and when it did, he couldn't handle it (Just a disclaimer: there are many people who live with HIV and AIDS and are not suicidal).

Start taking responsibility for your actions. Think about the fact that safer sex is just that — safer sex. Condoms are not 100 percent effective. Think about the fact that the pill only protects you from pregnancy, not HIV or STDS. Think about the fact that AIDS and HIV affect the people around you — like family and friends.

Think about all those things and take responsibility, whether that means having an AIDS test regularly, taking precautions, or just thinking about yourself and being responsible.

Marni E. Helfner is a Collegian columnist.

The many turns of a friend cycle

Tim White

"You wanna come by tonight?" "Mike, you live in freakin' Sunderland... you might as well live in Hoboken."

It's a little more difficult to see my friends now that I live off campus.

Last year, the majority of us lived in the same residence hall. We could walk into each other's rooms, watch some tube and then head back to our own pad to go to sleep.

Now that we are displaced, it's a project to see each other. We have to make a "special trip" to visit people and rarely are we all in one place.

Not to mention those who have graduated and splashed into the real-world. I saw one of those friends this weekend, and it was so good to see him. But it was over in two days. Who knows how many months it will be until we see each other again.

That is the way it was when we all came to this campus for the first time. We said goodbye to all of our friends back home before coming to school — often times making hollow promises to keep in touch... We didn't realize how difficult it would be.

I still love hearing from all of my pre-UMass friends and looking forward to seeing them during vacations, but this summer was a reality slap. I didn't live at home, I moved away to tackle an internship for my future career. It was then that I realized my high school buddies were becoming just distant memories, reinforced by annual visits or random letters.

Many of them go to UMass, but unfortunately they are just as busy as I am, so I don't get to see them often... Of all the friends I've had from high school, only one has been with me through it all.

That is when I wonder if the friends I made at college are destined to be just like my high school compadres — it's nice when they visit, but it hurts more when they leave.

Moving off-campus seemed to be the first nail in that coffin. I often question if I should have moved off campus in the first place. I mean hey, I have my whole life to live off-campus, right?

But it wouldn't have made a difference. Most of us left anyway.

This is the big test, I suppose. This is where we weed out ex-"some else. We have all made tons of friends through the past years, some of them don't exist anymore or they've been replaced.

When we look down the road ten years from now, we will have new friends plus the ones still around from our past. The friends that are still around are the ones who matter the most — the same friends you make an effort to see when you live off campus, and who make the effort to see you.

All the others will just be memories, reinforced by an occasional letter. They'll be the ones you remember and reminisce about when sitting around having some beers with the friends that have stuck with you through it all.

Tim White is a Collegian columnist.

Letters to the Editor and Columns

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian welcomes and encourages letters to the editor. When writing, please TYPE your letter and keep it to a maximum of 400 words. We would much rather print several concise letters in the limited space available on the page.

The Editorial/Opinion page will occasionally print guest columns, but arrangements must be made in advance. If you feel you have a unique perspective on an issue of general interest, contact the Ed/Op staff before you submit anything longer than a standard letter.

All letters should include a name, address and phone number (for verification purposes only). Students should also include their year and major. The Collegian reserves the right to edit submissions for grammar, clarity and length.

Send all letters to the Ed/Op page c/o the Collegian, 113 Campus Center, UMass.

Letters to the Editor can also be sent through our e- mail account: letters@oitvms.oit.umass.edu

The Ed/Op page is also always looking for columnists. If you are interested in writing columns for the Collegian, come down to the office, or call at 545-1491, and ask to speak to Geri Sahn.

Letters to the Editor

Education is key

To the editor:

I am writing in response to Andrew Bryce's column published Sept. 21, "Pity not the answer." I'm happy he came to the conclusion that disabled people don't need pity, and I really wish others would follow his lead.

I myself am disabled — I'm visually impaired. I was born this way. I've never known anything any different, and quite frankly, I couldn't care less. I would be as unused to perfect vision as a sighted person would be to blindness. If I have problems in my life, they have little to nothing to do with my eyesight. There are far more productive sentiments in this world than pity. My real obstacle isn't my inability to see well; it's living in an inaccessible world and dealing with uninformed and misinformed attitudes. To be blunt, if you really want to help improve the lives of disabled people, get up off your an and work at it.

Are you in an RSO? Does that RSO distribute its written materials in accessible formats and hold its meetings in accessible buildings? (Good luck finding one, by the way.) When you see a disabled person on the street, do you stare at them, or treat them as you would anyone else? If you are a faculty member, do you accommodate the needs of your disabled students? Perhaps most importantly, when you think of disabled people, do you see them as your equals?

Mr. Bryce is correct — ditch the pity. Go out, get educated, and do your part.

Rachel Tanenhaus
Sunderland

Candle and incense burning issue

To the editor:

The new housing policies against incense and candles, as presented by Michael Gilbert in the Sept. 19 issue of the Collegian, are poorly conceived and absurd. Mr. Gilbert fails to understand the seriousness of the situation when he says "some students may see this as an abridgement of their rights." We most certainly do. For many students, the burning of candles is a very beautiful and simple way of expressing a number of religious sentiments. A candle may be burnt in honor of a deceased friend or relative, in prayer for a periocular need, or simply as an aid to meditation.

There are also holidays where candle burning is observed. Most notably, the Menorah candles burnt by Jews during Hanukkah and the vigil candle burnt by Pagans during the Winter Solstice. Incense is another basic tool used in worship. Both followers of Native American tradition religions and Pagans make extensive use of various incenses in religious ceremony and meditation.

These policies are an attack on the freedom of practitioners of minority religions. Neither Pagans nor Native Americans have a structure like Christian churches or Jewish synagogues, so home worship is a necessity. Other religions may either be small enough in this area not to have a temple of their faith here, or may have practices involving candles and incense which are traditionally held in the home. Practitioners of minority religions need to be able to practice their faith without persecution in their own homes, and yet acts that are integral to several religions have been banned without even consulting the affected groups.

These regulations are being dictated by the housing staff on the basis of "fire-safety." Seeing that there were "three or four serious fires" last year (actually three), some might think this concern is legitimate. In actuality, there have been only five candle-related fires in the past five years, according to Environmental Health and Safety.

Most of the Pagan and religious communities burn candles and incense frequently without causing fires. That is because they observe a few simple precautions when using candles or incense, such as burning them only in a wide-based container and keeping them away from tapestries or bedding. The former housing policy which required safe holders for incense at least encouraged students to use caution. Nobody is going to obey or even listen to this new policy, however, and soon the housing judicial system will be full of students requesting hearings for these cases.

And why is incense included? When you consider that only three fires in the last five years were caused by incense, and that those three people were probably already breaking housing policy by not burning within a coffer, the basis for this restriction seems rather flimsy.

To infringe on these activities in the dormitories is infringing on these activities in the home. Freshmen and sophomore students do not have the option of choosing other residences. If they commit the crime of burning a candle in honor of a deceased relative, and are evicted from the dormitories, they will therefore be suspended from the University since they cannot live in the dorms. The absurdity and unfairness of these rules is obvious when you consider the student forced to leave a state-run university for the simple act of lighting a candle or a stick of incense, especially in this country with freedom of religion and protection of privacy as founding and constitutional principles. These unfair restrictions must go now.

Christopher L. Amshey
Brian S. Julia
Amherst

Arts & Living

DiFranco's punk/folk B–Day

By Marni E. Helfner
Collegian Staff

ANI DIFRANCO
John M. Greene Hall
Saturday, Sept. 23, 1995

NORTHAMPTON — Take the voice of Tina Turner, the guitar mastery of James Taylor, the anger of Squeaky Frome and the sexiness of Tori Amos and you've got Ani DiFranco.

DiFranco, folk/punk/angry-chick -music singer, played Saturday night at John M. Greene Hall at Smith College to a crowd of 2,046 screaming, romping fans.

Promoting her new album, Not A Pretty Girl, DiFranco has been a hit among the folk and college audiences for years. Her seventh album — Not A Pretty Girl — like all her others — is self-produced.

The moment the lights went out, the crowd rushed to the stage in an effort to get as close as possible to DiFranco and her loveliness.

DiFranco sang from both her previous albums, as well as Not A Pretty Girl, in her usual style of starting out nice, slow and melodic and then taking a sudden change into powerful, angry, reverberating guitar riffs and harmonies.

While the change of tone is quite sudden, these moves from "nice-girl" folk into "angry-woman" punk rock become familiar and welcome. During the concert, DiFranco said, "...this song has the usual Ani DiFranco sound." She is trying to lull the listener in and then turn them upside-down, inside-out, under a carpet, in the dark, tied up with 100 feet of dental floss. Gratefully, for the audience, she does just that.

The sudden change in tone is what makes DiFranco's followers love her—the fact is that she is what she is, straight from the heart, no smoke, no mirrors.

Playing on her birthday, DiFranco was treated to two separate rounds of "Happy Birthday" from the crowd. During the concert DiFranco commented, "This is like one huge fuckin' birthday party — thank you."

After a two-hour concert, DiFranco returned for a whole hour for four encores in which she and her drummer, Andy Stochansky, switched instruments, and Stochansky wore a black bra thrown onto the stage.

Responding to the stomping feet and screaming of the crowd, DiFranco returned for a fourth encore. DiFranco performed "Joyful Girl," a tune from her new album, and brought the crowd to a quiet standstill.

DiFranco's powerful voice, masterful guitar, and honesty all wrapped into one, took the crowd on a wild ride, leaving them happy that DiFranco isn't afraid to be "Not A Pretty Girl."

COURTESY OF FLEMING, TAMALEVICH

Ani DiFranco returned for another powerful show at Smith College's John M. Greene Hall

COURTESY JOHN FALLS

Fugazi rocked a sold out Pearl Street crowd on Friday

Punk legends wow Pearl Street

D.C.'s Fugazi gives a sold-out crowd a lesson in integrity

By Jason Flax
Collegian Correspondent

FUGAZI
Pearl Street
September 22, 1995

Washington D.C.'s Fugazi renowned for their innovative brand of hardcore and P.C. ethics graced Pearl Street in Northampton last Friday.

Local hardcore band The Marshes opened with emotional punk-sounding songs reminiscent of early Jawbox. Playing a somewhat short, yet effective, set, The Marshes got the sold- out club ready for Fugazi.

Once onstage, Fugazi's Ian Mackaye did his standard commentary, which was more cheerful then the norm, probably due to the crowds non-violent attitude. After a simple "We're Fugazi from Washington D.C.", Mackaye and the rest of the band ripped into "Birthday Pony" from their latest release, Red Medicine.

As the set went on each member of Fugazi played with such energy, one would think Pearl Street was their all time favorite club. Mackaye and Picciotto, in particular, shined on their guitars, using feedback and other interesting techniques.

Playing an even mixture of old and new material from the likes of 13 Songs, Repeater, Steady Diet of Nothing, In on the Kill Taker and the new Red Medicine, Fugazi kept getting better. Highlights included "Margin Walker", "Do You Like Me", and "Reclamation."

During "Reclamation," Mackaye's fierce guitar attack and throat-bashing vocals brought the crowd into a united frenzy, without crowd- surfing or moshing. Fugazi also added many twists to their songs which added to their live show.

At the beginning of "Do You Like Me", Picciotto declared "Do-You-Like" with his mysterious voice. During "Suggestion," which deals with the topic of sexual harrasment, Picciotto dropped his guitar and focused intensely on his singing, while grooving to Joe Lally's funky bass lines, only to break into an all out scream along with Mackaye.

Even if one doesn't like Fugazi's music or politics, it would be hard not to appreciate their hard work ethic or low ticket prices. How often do you get a chance to see a top notch band play a full set plus three encores all for five dollars?

Fugazi proved again to be one of the best live bands in the punk/hardcore genre. Most amazing is their ability to play each show so enthusiastically and spontaneously. Last Friday was no exception.

Langeberg's Maija of Chuggaland is a success

By Bryan Schwartzman
Collegian Staff

MAIJA OF CHAGGALAND
Bowker Auditorium
Sept. 22, 1995

With no music but her own voice, and no cast but her song, dance, facial gestures and body movement, Sheela Langeberg captured the essence of her mother's world and life in Maija of Chaggaland.

The play opens with Langeberg portraying her great- grandmother, describing Maija at age 12. Soon she switches roles — as she does quite often — to Maija's point of view. Langeberg's eyes portrayed a giddy teenager who has fallen in love for the first time.

Going against Islamic tradition, Maija rejects the man her father had chosen for her and chooses instead a man she loves, Michael, who was a Catholic. Through her stubbornness and insistence for her own happiness, the wedding is arranged, but before she can marry, Maija must endure a ritualistic yet terrifying clitoral circumcision.

Tragedy first strikes Maija on what should be the happiest day of her life, her wedding day. Her mother is killed in an accident, leaving her alone with her new husband and in- laws. The community blames Maija for the accident, saying she is cursed for rejecting Islam and marrying a Christian. Maija soon becomes pregnant with her first child, but unfortunately, the child succumbs to the measles two years later. After her second pregnancy ends in a miscarriage, Maija's in-laws call her the "misfortune carrier."

Maija falls into hopeless despair; she "loathed every moment" and was ready "to end life" as she set out to drown herself in a nearby river when she was confronted and comforted by her mother's spirit.

With all the wrath and fear in the world, Maija asks her mother's spirit, " Which way do you want me to go?" Despite all that she has lost, Maija chooses to live.

The play had its share of humor to complement the dramatic and tragic moments. Much of the humor was conveyed without words, but Langeberg came up with witty lines such as, "by the time I was in my fourth month it looked as if I was going to give birth to buffalo."

It was not a buffalo she gave birth to, but twins. Soon after the birth of her twins, she learned of her husband infidelity. She left Michael and returned to her home village and her father. Her father greeted her with kindness, and breaking with tradition, gave Maija her own land to farm. She kept up her spirits, saying, "When I missed Michael, my mother, or my children, I sang a song and life went on."

Turn to MAIJA, page 7

Tony Award-winner, a hit at the FAC

By Seema Gangatirkar
Collegian Staff

CRAZY FOR YOU
Fine Arts Center
September 22, 1995

The Tony Award winning musical comedy Crazy for You danced its way into the Fine Arts Center last Friday with a spectacularly choreographed performance that dazzled the sold-out audience.

Featuring songs and lyrics by George and Ira Gershwin, the comedy also had colorful costumes and elaborate sets.

The show, set during the Depression stars Bobby Child, (played by Noah Racey) a frustrated and unemployed dancer. He is sent to Deadrock, Nevada, by his mother to foreclose on the Gaiety Theater. Once in Deadrock, Bobby falls in love with Polly (Gina Lamparella), the only woman in the nearly abandoned mining town. What Bobby does not know is that Polly's father owns the theater and has a lot of pleasant memories about the glory days when Polly's mother acted on the stage.

Unfortunately for Bobby, Polly discovers the reason he is in Deadrock and refuses to see him. At his wit's end and determined to win her love, Bobby dresses up as the great Bela Zangler and invites Zangler's show girls to vacation in Deadrock to help him save the theater, and win Polly's heart.

The plan backfires when Polly falls in love with "Zangler" and the real Bela Zangler shows up, also determined to win the love of his lead show girl, Tess (Shari Jordan).

The highlight of the show was the wonderfully romantic "Shall We Dance?", a beautifully choreographed number where Bobby and Polly first meet and fall in love.

The performance was exuberant and enthusiastic. At times, it was a marvel that the cast members could still sing after performing energetic dance routines.

Racey delivered a superb performance, playing the dual role of Bobby and Bobby playing Bela Zangler, while Lamparella's Polly was feisty and determined.

Crazy for You is an incredible show. Funny, with great music and wonderful dance talent, it's nothing short of spectacular.

Any Two Calzones only $7.95 price includes tax

Fall Specials Save in Twos 256-6100

Two Large Cheese Pizzas only $12.00 price includes tax

Regular, Whole Wheat & Corn Bread Crusts Available on Pizza & Calzones

CANTONE'S PIZZA CO. 256-6100 45 RPM 481 West Street Amherst, MA

FREE DELIVERY 256-6100 Open 4pm - 2am 7 Days $7.00 Min. on M/C & Visa

Any Two Large Subs only $8.00 price includes tax

No Coupons Needed With These Specials 256-6100

Any Two Large 1-Item Pizzas only $14.00 price includes tax

UPC Concert Info Concert

University Productions & Concerts
Come see what concert productions are all about!

1st General Committee Meeting
Sept. 26 at 6:00 in rm. CC 903

Johnson kick starts UM

By Candice Flemming
Collegian Staff

With about 15 minutes to go in the half, the Massachusetts women's soccer team seemed to be in trouble.

The Minutewomen were tied 1–1 with Wright State, a team that came into the game with a record of 1–4–1, but the Raiders style of play was confusing the UMass defense.

In short, this Raider team wasn't supposed to pose much of a threat. But they were and the Minutewomen faithful were a bit worried.

That didn't last long.

With 14 minutes to go in the first half, freshman forward Karin Johnson started a chain reaction that wouldn't stop until the 88:43 mark of the game, as five different Minutewomen tallied making the final score 7–1.

Johnson, who collected the first point of her collegiate career on an assist of Amy Powell's score five minutes into the game, knocked in the first goal of her career at the 35:59 mark off assists from Sandy Shimogaki and Rachel LeDuc. Her score proved to be the game-winner.

"It felt really good," Johnson said about her first goal. "Coach said I broke the ice. The first thing in my mind was that we were winning, and then I thought, Oh, that's my first goal."

It has taken a while for Johnson to get used to the college style of play, but yesterday's performance should pave the way for a solid season.

"Like I said, breaking the ice made me feel more confident," Johnson said. "College is so different. It's so much more. You have to create so much more for yourself.

"It took a while for me to get used to the transition from high school to college, but once it clicked, I knew."

"She played a great game," LeDuc said. "She needed the confidence. When she puts in the hard work it's going to pay off."

"You would like to think that breaks the ice [for her]," Massachusetts coach Jim Rudy said.

Johnson also assisted on LeDuc's first goal of the game giving her a total of four points for the season (one goal, two assists).

"I feel that I'm doing more for my team, and that's really what I want to be doing," Johnson said.

After the first four games produced goals mostly from LeDuc, the question of who else was going to score besides her was finally answered as Johnson, Powell (twice), Elizabeth Rutherford and Tina Lightning all scored for UMass.

Rutherford, who had one goal last season, had an impressive weekend notching an assist on Lightning's score along with her own outstanding goal, a rocket to the upper left corner from 20 yards out.

Polly Hackathorn, who has been coming along as of late, displayed her unselfishness on Lightning's goal when she had the opportunity to take the shot herself but instead booted a perfect pass to get the assist.

"It helps us confidence wise," Powell said. "We all need to start scoring."

"Everyone played a great game today," LeDuc said. "When we get the scoring opportunities like we got today, we are going to get our goals. That's what we need, a well- rounded team. Everyone stepped up today."

■ women's soccer

continued from page 10

On a UMass corner kick, Julie Magid lofted the ball to the six yard line where LeDuc redirected it past Sunny McConnell for the game winning score.

"I was just there at the right time," LeDuc said of her fourth game winner of the year. "It was a great cross by Julie and I just timed it right."

The Aggies refused to give up and pressured UMass to the end, but the back four of the Minutewomen refused to give up another goal.

"That was the most pressure that our defense has faced this year," Rudy said.

With just over 14 minutes left, Dion came out to stop a Nicole Shook shot but it took an unusual hop and got past the UMass keeper. Erica Iverson chased the ball down and cleared it before crossing the goal line preserving the lead, which would never be in danger again.

"It was a really great play," Ahernholz said. "She really saved the game for us."

Massachusetts 7, Wright State 1

The one question that seemed to be on everyone's minds surrounding the Minutewomen was when the scoring distribution would be spread out more evenly. That question was answered Sunday as five different players tallied for UMass in a 7–1 pounding of Wright State.

Freshman Karin Johnson opened the flood gates as she collected the ricochet off LeDuc's shot that bounced off the crossbar. It broke a 1–1 deadlock late in the first half, and was her first goal at the collegiate level.

Johnson had collected her first UMass point earlier in the game when she assisted on the first of Amy Powell's two goals. Johnson finished with a goal and two assists.

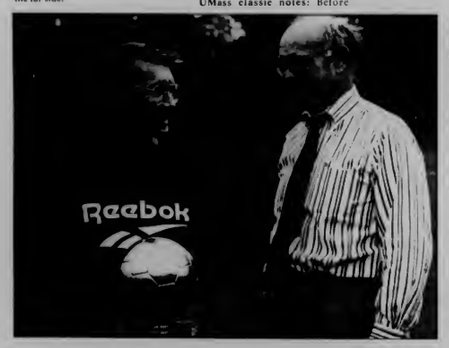
LeDuc knocked home her eighth of the year when she collected a pass from Johnson that went through the legs of a Wright State defender and sent her in alone on Auld. LeDuc added another in the 55th minute when defender Erin Lynch fed the senior co–captain and beat Auld to the far side.

DAYMON SMITH \ COLLEGIAN

Junior defender Erin Lynch (13) was named the defensive MVP for the UMass Classic goes up for a header with fellow defender Erica Iverson.

UMass' bench got into the act late in the contest with two goals in the 89th minute. Senior Polly Hackathorn laid a perfect drop pass to Tina Lightning who ripped the ball into the top left corner of the net, then Rutherford finished off the scoring in the with a laser over the right shoulder of backup Raider keeper Maggie Horstman.

UMass classic notes: Before Friday's match Rudy was presented with a bronzed soccer ball commemorating his 100th career win at UMass, which he attained earlier this season. Awards were also distributed Sunday, with the offensive MVP going to the Aggies Bryn Blalack who had 3 goals and 1 assist on the weekend, and the defensive MVP honor going to UMass' Erin Lynch.



DAYMON SMITH \ COLLEGIAN

Massachusetts coach Jim Rudy is presented with a bronzed soccer ball on Friday by UMass Athletic Director Bob Marcum to commemorate his 100th victory at UMass on Sept 2.

■ field hockey

continued from page 10

After the rough spot, most of the Minutewomen agreed that the Temple game came at a perfect time.

"We needed to play Temple right now," said goaltender Stacy Walker, who notched her second shutout of the season. "It was the perfect time, and we needed the win."

"It was just so important," Donnelly said. "This is big. It's a good way for us to start what could be a nice little run here. This is the best we've played for 70 minutes."

"Temple came along at the right time," Ott said. "They're our biggest rival. I think this is definitely the stepping block towards continuing our season."

Donnelly switched the Massachusetts line-up before the game and the results paid immediate dividends. Jen Gutzman earned her first collegiate start at sweeper and was excellent in her first game there, combining with Melanie Gore and Andrea Cabral to play a solid game for UMass.

"Jen being solid back there allows us to be much more offensive," Donnelly said.

Ott, who moved from sweeper to midfield, made a big difference in Massachusetts' transition offense, playing well in her return to her old position.

"I guess Megan just figured we needed some help in the midfield, to keep the ball pushed up," Ott said. "I'll go wherever they want me to go."

"Amy is very explosive with the ball," Donnelly said. "She did a lot creating attack on the left."

Temple looked strong in the opening minutes of the game, setting the early tempo, but after UMass goalie Stacy Walker made a save on the Owl's first penalty corner opportunity, UMass came to life.

The Minutewomen carried the play from that point forward, as the ball remained in UMass' offensive end for the majority of the second half as well.

After Putnam put the Minutewomen ahead, Temple fought desperately to knot the score. The Owls earned two penalty corners in the final three minutes, and attacked the net hard as the game wound down, but key stops by Gutzman and Gore protected the UMass lead.

The win improves UMass to 3–5 (1–0 Atlantic 10), while Temple falls to 3–4.

"It was a good first step. We'll see if we can continue it," Donnelly said.

The schedule doesn't get any easier for the Minutewomen who will return to action Wed. when they will tangle with the No. 6 Northeastern Huskies in Boston.

JAMES STANLEY \ COLLEGIAN

Freshman forward Kate Putnam tallied the only score in the Minutewomen's 1–0 defeat of Temple on Saturday.

■ battle

continued from page 10

Husky PAT is good, and all of a sudden, we have the prototype better–hang–around–for–the–whole–game–or–else–you'll–miss–something–you've–failed–to–see–for–the–first–three–quarters feeling.

An Ingoglia–induced march downfield was spoiled, as Matt Jordan and the Minutemen could not convert on fourth and one on the Northeastern seven–yard line (Nothing against the future Minutemen go–to back, but why give the ball to him when Ingoglia gets you 55 yards up the field on six carries in the drive? Well, that's for another time). The Huskies were stuffed in their next drive, and Eric Oke missed a 31– yard field goal to foil the Minutemen drive. There was 3:11 left on the clock, and Northeastern had the ball on its 20, down by a touchdown and conversion.

With one eye on the endzone, and the other on the clock, the Huskies gave it their best effort. A couple of first downs pulled Northeastern to its own 37–yard line with just 11 seconds. It looked all but over, and I began to pack up my stuff.

Now listen closely.

Jim Murphy dropped back to pass, and did his best Doug Flutie impression, lofting a Hail Mary. Somehow, in a sea of white Minutemen jerseys, Gerard Phelan ... er ... David Smith came down with it at the UMass 19–yard line with just one second remaining. With one second or 10 seconds, if the snap gets off, the Huskies have all the time in the world, I thought. Nah, I laughed to myself, my head shaking from side to side. No way.

Murphy took the snap, rolled out to the right, and was nailed by Vernard Fennell for the sack. The ball, however, popped loose, and fullback Jeff Reale snatched it up off the turf, and sprinted up the sidelines for a 19–yard touchdown. I shook my head, and smiled after what transpired. The Huskies still, still, still had a chance to win this thing with a successful two–point conversion.

Murphy to Smith was a charm the first time. This one was deflected by Minutemen safety Jason Tudryn, thus ending a completely bizarre and far–fetched run.

I had to stand there for a few seconds after the game, making sure that there wasn't any milliseconds left on the clock, and there wasn't any balls being popped loose. It was over, right? Yeah, it's over, I thought, shaking my head as I walked down to interview the players.

"I'm not sure if I'm young enough to do this. That was as wild of a finish as I've ever been involved with," Hodges said. "That was something, that was really something."

What? That's not normal? Heaving a pass down field and having someone on the same team triple–covered pull it down, leaving a second on the clock, while then having your QB thrown down like a ragdoll before the ball is sprung loose, only to have a teammate pick it up and run for a TD, all of this happening with one measly second on the clock. That isn't supposed to occur?

"You couldn't write that script in a million years," Hodges said with a laugh, shaking his head.

"I didn't even know what happened, to be honest with you. I thought the game was over after I saw him lying on the ground," said Fennell, who sacked Murphy to cause the fumble. "All of a sudden I heard the crowd roaring, and I didn't think we had many fans there, so I knew something bad had happened."

It wasn't too bad, as they squeaked out a third straight win that came down to the closing minutes. Or closing seconds. Or while we're at it, after Saturday afternoon, closing second. In 1993 it was Frank Alessio's spectacular 54–yard run with 1:35 left. The 1994 version featured Ingoglia's four–yard score with :23.

The 1995 game was ... well ... you know what happened. "Glad I don't have to come back here again," Ingoglia said, shaking his head with a smile, after his last game ever at Parsons Field.

Me, too. With all that head–shaking, I don't think my neck could hack it.

Andrew Bryce is a Collegian columnist.

■ football

continued from page 10

basketball playcr. You want the ball in the last seconds. I want the ball in the third and fourth quarters."

Ingoglia, playing despite a nagging hamstring problem, ran through the Northeastern defense all day long. At times, he would gain an extra three to five yards with Husky defenders strapped to his back."I'm running a little better, a lot better than the first two games. I feel very happy about that. I feel the offensive line did a great job," Ingoglia said. "I was not thinking about the hamstring, it feels good. I took some time off this week, so it's getting there."

On one occasion Ingoglia literally leaped over a crowd of Northeastern linemen, landed on his feet, and came down at the one–yard line.

"He's amazing, he's just amazing. He never ceases to amaze me. It's fourth–and–one, he jumps over the pile, lands on his feet and is upset at himself because he didn't get into the end zone," Hodges said. "He just continues to get the thing done. We had some NFL guys in last week and they really liked him, and you can see why."

Northeastern got on the board first, marching down the field deep into UMass territory, on its first drive. The Minutemen made a big stop forcing the Huskies to settle for a field goal.

Ingoglia and junior fullback Frank Alessio, who had a quiet 98 yards, continued to move the ball downfield as Ingoglia was able to record the three touchdowns.

Leading 21–6 at the end of the third quarter due to a pair of field goals, the Minutemen sat on their lead and the Huskies came storming back. UMass quarterback Vito Campanile threw a pass intended for wide receiver Kevin Bourgoin, but Northeastern cornerback Mark Hopkins leaped and grabbed the pass for an interception. The interception changed the momentum of the game in the Huskies favor. Northeastern tailback Brian Vaughan closed the score to 21– 13 after a two–yard touch down before the final crazy touchdown that concluded the game.

"We threw the interception and that gave them a little bit of life. They put it in the end zone and all of a sudden it gave them a spark," Hodges said. "That's all they need. They play tough and they don't quit."

"I'm not going to miss playing these guys. they are a tough team. Every year they come after you," Ingoglia said. "They are going to knock some teams off this year."

UMass is now above sea–level sporting a 2–1 record. The Minutemen have improved each week, cleaning up mistakes and converting big plays. The vast improvement from week one when they lost to Richmond, has resulted in two straight victories, and a confident team.

STUDENTS WITH LEARNING DISABILITIES

This Fall semester, researchers at the UMASS School of Education will be conducting a study which focuses on the life experiences of students with learning disabilities. The title of the study is Learning Disabilities and Adolescence: an Autobiographical Perspective.

Students who participate in the study will write a personal essay about their own adolescence and how it has been affected by having a learning disability.

Participants will receive 3 undergraduate independent study credits and individualized instruction in writing.

If you are interested in participating, please call 665-6729 for more information. Students who elect to participate will be asked to begin by October 2, 1995, so please call soon!

RUSH ΒΘΒ

The only fraternity on campus that lets you haze yourself!

- Beta Theta Beta -
103 Campus Center

STUDY ABROAD

Semester, Summer and Year Programs

Ecuador • Spain
England • France
Canada • Mexico
Costa Rica • Italy

INTERNATIONAL STUDIES ABROAD
817 W. 24th St
Austin TX 78705
(800) 580-8826
isa
SINCE 1987

Lizottes Tobacco Shop
76 Main St., Northampton, MA
584-2812

Imported: Cigars, Cigarettes, Tobacco, Clove Cigarettes
Bulk Pipe tobacco: American Spirit, Cigarettes, Magazines
Pipes: Peterson, Falcon, Meerschaum

X–Country teams sweep weekend meets

■ Women continue to run wild

By Casey Kane
Collegian Staff

The Massachusetts women's cross country team just seems to keep getting better and better.

Setting several personal records for the second straight week, the Minutewomen improved their record to 7–0–1, and kept their unbeaten streak alive.

When it hosted it only home meet of the season Saturday, the UMass team scored an impressive 20 points, easily defeating Vermont (37 points) and Central Connecticut (82 points).

"We ran strong, and we ran in control. I thought we had a very good chance to win this meet, and we really ran well," said UMass coach Julie LaFreniere.

Massachusetts has been led all season by sophomore Rebecca Donaghue, and Saturday was no exception as she cruised to victory on a tough home course. Donaghue improved on last week's personal record–setting performance, turning in a time of 17:35.

"Rebecca and Jen's runs were outstanding. They both made significant improvements over last year's races on this course," LaFreniere said.

Jen Waeger took second overall, posting a personal best 17:41. Christy Martin and Kristin Donaldson also clocked individual bests as they finished fourth and sixth, respectively. Martin turned a time of 18:13, while Donaldson notched a 18:34.

Sophomore Katie Greenia was the Minutewomen's fifth finisher, taking seventh overall, with a time of 18:51.

Fifth–year senior Cheryl Lyons was out with an injury, but Jen Delcolle picked up the pace, placing into the overall top ten, clocking a 19:32. LaFreniere also noted that junior Molly Dunlap ran well, crossing the line as the Minutewomen's sixth finisher, 11th overall in 19:33.

"I think they were motivated to run this course. We're going to be redesigning the course for next season, so I think they wanted to really perform on this course for the last time," LaFreniere said.

Vermont's first finisher across the line was Kera Smalley, who took third overall with a time of 18:02. Cecille Risvoll, UVM's second runner, turned in a mark of 18:20, as she placed fifth. The Catamounts had two others in the top 10, as Tanja Odegard and Stacey Keane took eighth and ninth, respectively. Central Connecticut failed to crack the top 10.

"We have a week off, then we'll get to see what a lot of our A–10 competition will be like, when we race the Paul Short," LaFreniere said.

UMass has next week off to prepare, since a trip to Bethelehem, Pennsylvania Oct. 7 for the Paul Short Invitational is next up.

■ Men beat Vermont, Maine

By Casey Kane
Collegian Staff

The Massachusetts men's cross country team had a homecoming of sorts this weekend as it hosted its first meet in two seasons.

Though they haven't raced on the course, it is the team's training grounds and it showed as the Minutemen were clearly the dominant team. Scoring just 21 points, UMass cruised to victory over Vermont (48) and Maine (67).

Massachusetts was led by the powerful junior duo of Matt Behl and Mike Macieko. Behl was the top finisher, posting a 25:23 mark, while Macieko took the No. 2 spot, 10 seconds later.

"Matt and Mike ran extremely well," said UMass coach Ken O'Brien. "The two of them gave a very solid effort, and I was pleased. The last time those two ran this course in a meet situation was their freshman year, and they improved on those old times by about thirty seconds."

The Minutemen dominated the top 10, taking fifth through ninth place. Senior Pat Murphy ran to his best finish on the year, taking fifth overall while posting a time of 25:57. Fellow senior Ethan Nedeau continued to run impressively, finishing in 25:59, good for sixth place.

Sophomore Ryan Carrara rounded out the UMass top five, placing seventh overall with a time of 26:18.

"Ryan is doing great. He came into the season fairly unknown, because he's just a sophomore," O'Brien said. "He had a good freshman season, so I knew he could step up and run this well. He worked hard over the summer and his work is starting to pay off."

Mark Buffone, eighth with a time of 26:22, and Tim Boilard, ninth with a time of 26:30, also placed in the top 10 overall for the Minutemen.

"The race went very well for us," O'Brien said. "The guys went out hard and ran fast and aggressive. It's a tough course, and they ran it the way it has to be run.

We had a large crowd on hand to cheer for our guys, and I think that really helped our guys. The runners got the chance to pass by the crowd about 10 times, and that can really boost their confidence."

The UMass coach was very pleased with Murphy's performance.

"Pat ran what was easily the best race of his season, and maybe the best race of his career. To say I was happy with how he ran would be an understatement," O'Brien said.

The Minutemen have next weekend to relax, as they prepare to travel to Lehigh University for the Paul Short Invitational.

Men's tennis keeps rolling, whips Wheaton

By Jameson Heos
Collegian Staff

Massachusetts men's tennis coach Judy Dixon was apprehensive heading into Saturday's match with Wheaton College.

"When we first started warming up, I didn't like the preparation," Dixon said. "They [UMass] sort of strolled in a little loose. Some of [the players] came a little late. In the warmups they looked flat, and I challenged them because I don't feel that we are a mature enough team to take anyone lightly."

The Minutemen answered her challenge loudly and quickly by dispatching Wheaton 7–0. By winning the doubles point for the fourth straight match, they raised their record to 4–1, as they head into Wednesday's match with rival Connecticut.

Junior Gregor Rummel and freshman Mike Skeels led the doubles teams by blanking Binh Nguyen and Angel Riva 8–0 at No. 2 doubles. They were followed by Todd Cheney and Ryan Ginley's 8–1 victory at No. 3 doubles versus Patrick Summers and Trillian Lovine.

Senior co–captain Justin Lynn and sophomore Alex Aller wrapped up the No. 1 doubles point by defeating Brian Yiisto and Jason Beckerman 8–5 leading into the singles matches.

In a change at the top, Dixon inserted Rummel at No. 1 singles while placing Lynn at No. 2. She felt a need to challenge Rummel a little more as he had breezed through his previous three matches, while giving Lynn a breather to recover from his grueling three set loss two days earlier against Fairfield.

Both players outmanned their opponents as Rummel beat Yiisto 6–2, 6–1, and Lynn was victorious over Beckerman 6– 1, 6–2.

At No. 3 singles, Ankur Baishya improved his record to 4– 1 by defeating Nguyen 6–1, 6–1, while Aller continued his outstanding play at No. 4 singles with a 6–1, 6–0 win over Riva to remain undefeated at 5–0. Dixon feels that Aller has improved greatly over last year.

"He is better. He is physically in better shape than he was last year," Dixon said. "Just the difference that he is physically more prepared means that he is quicker to the ball. He doesn't have to end the points as quickly as he did last year and he feels he has the ability to stay in the point longer, rather than relying on his big forehand. He is a better player at No. 4 this year than he was last year at No. 6."

At No. 5 singles, Cheney won his fourth match in a row by downing Vlad Pourer 6–1, 6–1. Senior co–captain Darren Tow rebounded from Thursday's loss at No. 6 singles by winning his match 6–1, 6–1 to level his record at 2–2.

Coming up for the Minutemen are three opponents they have not fared well against: UConn, UNH and Vermont. Dixon is looking at the next two weeks as a test to see where her team stands versus the tougher teams on the schedule.

"We have never beaten UConn. We won one and lost one last year against UNH and we have never beaten Vermont before," she said. "So the next three matches will tell me what we have in store for this year, but we got everything going for us right now. This is right where I wanted to be heading into this week."

The Minutemen take on Connecticut on Wednesday at home at 3:30 p.m.

■ victory

continued from page 10

Karsten Bremke's attacking midfield spot after Bremke injured his groin, Jones was able to rise above this challenge and spur the team on to victory.

"Steve's done a real good job as long as he's been in there," Koch commented. "Whether he's been playing as a marking back, outside midfielder or sweeping today, he's been a nice surprise. As a transfer [from New Mexico] that we knew just a little about, he's fit right in from the beginning. It's been a great help."

BU opened the match with a patient, methodical attack focusing on Alun Carter as Nick Bone (18 goals, 7 assists, 43 points in 1994) and Ola Olsen (9–11–29) were smothered by the exceptional marking of Jones and Sheally.

"Sheally did an outstanding job on Bone and Brad Miller stopped Ola from doing much of anything today," Koch said. "Both of those guys get a tremendous amount of credit for the win because they made a big difference."

After midfielder Mike Butler scored a pair of beautiful goals early in the second half, the pressure fell on the Minuteman backs as the Terriers attacked with renewed vigor for the match's final 34 minutes.

"[BU has] some of the top scorers in the nation in Olsen and Bone, and we shut them down," Siljanovski said. "Steve Jones came right in, filled some big shoes, and he did a great job. Everyone stepped up their play and it made up for [Jacobson's loss]. It was a great effort. This game was won by the defense. The offense scored two goals, but that's our job and our defense was the biggest people here. Those five guys in the back are why we won this game."

The turf at Richard F. Garber Field was torn up by heavy rains and a pair of women's soccer matches on Friday, and a bizarre bounce enabled an Olsen pass to elude Sheally. Tom Giatrakos knocked it in for the Terriers with just under 14 minutes to play. From that moment on, the UMass defense held their ground despite some incredible opportunities by the Terriers, who had 19 shots and eight cornerkicks in the match.

After Gruber missed a Christian Steen shot at the 77 minute mark, Jones was there on the goal line to make a spectacular and improbable game–saving back save.

Steen had another chance just a minute later as his shot from the 18 snuck through traffic before clanking off the post to the left of Gruber.

The UMass defense even snuffed out a BU freekick from inside the box with just over seven minutes to play.

The game's defining moment came with just 2:51 to play, as Bone broke in alone towards the net. Bremke hauled him down from behind, giving BU a penalty shot.

Gisle Sørli would take the pivotal shot for the Terriers, as Gruber awaited just 12 yards away. Penalty kicks are more than 80 percent successful in soccer, so Gruber felt relief, with the weight of the match hanging solely over Sørli's head.

"It wasn't so nerve–racking for me because all the pressure's on him," Gruber said. "He's got to score it."

Sørli shot to his left, about waist high. Gruber dove, deflected the ball off the inside of the post, and luckily, the ball bounded outward. Sheally was able to clear the rebound and UMass had secured the victory of a lifetime.

"I was just hoping that we were ready for the rebound," Koch said of his thoughts at the time. "Whether it's the post that saves it or whether Gruber was going to save it we had to be ready for the rebound. I'm pleased to see that the post made the save. I'm glad one of them made it."

"I think we had another guy on the field out there helping us out," Siljanovski said of the shot. "And that was God."

UM downs Bonnies; upset by Duquesne

By Steven Grant
Collegian Staff

The Massachusetts volleyball team started its weekend impressively, but ended with a poor showing as the Minutewomen's record barely stands over .500 at 7–6.

On one hand, the Minutewomen couldn't have opened their Atlantic 10 schedule any better on Fri. when they dismantled the St. Bonaventure Bonnies in three straight games.

But their perfect record in the A–10 could only remain intact for 24 more hours, as they were surprised by the Duquesne Dukes in a five–game loss.

UMass 3, St. Bonaventure 0 (15–13, 15–10, 15–1)

This was no upset, to say the least. Last season, the Minutewomen played St. Bonaventure twice and swept both times.

In fact, the 13 points the Bonnies scored in the first game was more than they scored in any single game last year against UMass. They managed 11 in their Oct. 1 meeting last year.

Sophomore Lesley Nolan was the standout for UMass in this one, as the outside hitter recorded a team–high 12 kills in the three games. Nolan, continuing to step it up offensively with junior Giza Rivera out of the lineup, also committed only one error in 28 total attacks.

Sophomore Michelle Paciorek enjoyed another fine outing as well. The middle blocker earned six kills and two blocks for the Minutewomen. Senior setter Cass Anderson remained consistent as she led the team in both assists (19) and digs (9).

St. Bonaventure fell to 7–6 overall, 0–3 in the Atlantic 10, with the loss.

Duquesne 3, UMass 2 (14–16, 15–11, 15–11, 5–15, 10–15)

This defeat was an unexpected one for UMass. Duquesne came into the match Saturday night 0–3 in the A–10, and with only a 4–6 overall record.

Last season, although it wasn't exactly a walk in the park, the Minutewomen beat the Dukes in both matches 3–2 and 3–1.

But of course, past statistics don't win games, or even give you a few extra points to start out with. And so, although things looked promising for the Minutewomen, when they had just beaten the Dukes in game four, 15–5, they fell in the deciding game, 15–10.

On a positive note, Nolan continued her hot streak. For the third straight match, she led the Minutewomen in kills with 29. That also marks a career–best for the sophomore. Nolan also led her teammates with 25 digs.

Senior middle blocker Rachel Sky, back from a knee injury, had a team–high three blocks.

UMass will return to action on Tues. when it will play host to Northeastern at the Curry Hicks Cage in a 7 p.m. match.

■ men's soccer

continued from page 10

net, giving BU a penalty kick. Gisle Sørli took the shot for the Terriers which he fired to the left side, where Gruber dove deflecting the ball off the post, and Bennie Sheally was able to clear it away.

"We had to make sure we were there to clear the rebound," Koch said. "Whether it's the post that saves it or whether Gruber was going to save it, we had to be ready to clear the rebound."

UMass and BU battled to a scoreless first half with the Terriers out–shooting the Minutemen 8–4.

BU controlled the ball for most of the first half and had their share of opportunities to score. Bone missed a shot wide right from in front of the net, and Alun Carter's header with one second left in the first half was denied by Gruber.

The Terriers outshot the Minutemen 19–13, and had eight corner kicks to UMass' one. Gruber was stellar, goal recording nine saves.

The UMass defense was the key in what helped this team to victory. They only gave up one goal, opposed to four earlier in the week.

"We put a lot of defensive pressure on them at the end. I'm really happy with the effort I got from this team," Koch said. "[Bennie] Sheally did an outstanding job on Bone, and Brad Miller stopped Olson from doing much of anything."

Koch was also satisfied with the total team effort that UMass brought forth on Saturday, which he felt his team lacked against New Hampshire in a 4–2 loss.

"We moved the ball well, we worked with each other. Defensively, we were very organized and communicated well," Koch said. "This is huge right now for this team. This is a win we really needed, but there are more big ones coming up."

The Minutemen are back in action Tuesday, when they play the Hawks in Hartford at 3:30 p.m.

■ Maija

continued from page 5

Distinguished people from all across the continent attended Maija's funeral. Everyone wanted to say so much, but couldn't find the words.

Maija of Chuggoland contains all of life's humor, disappointment, tragedy and joy. Langeberg's vocal and acting performance is incredible. It was obvious from the near three–minute standing ovation that Langeberg got the emotional response she was seeking to provoke.

Maija's Cafe and eventually she becomes "dressed for success" and buys her own clothing store. She gives her husband a second chance, but unfortunately he does not remain faithful. Maija dies at the age of 49, a living legend and a mother of eight. She leaves behind her wealth to be divided equally but warns, "Don't let the money stop you from loving each other."

COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIEDS THEY WORK!
113 Campus Center 545-3500

The Campus Center 25th Anniversary Committee
DISCO
Presents
Blues & Jazz In The Bluswell
9pm MONDAYS 12am
Street Musicians on the Campus Center Concourse
WEDNESDAYS
12:00pm PAINTING 1:30pm
Sept. 20th
playing the steele drum
The Art Smallbone Band
Sept. 20th
JAZZOTREE
Oct. 2nd
Peter Orphanos Quartet
Oct 4th
THE STONE FOUNDERS INTERNATIONAL
CELESTIALE
OCT 5TH
The Cape Cod Serfers
Khmer Music Awakened
Sept. 19th
Papa Bunka Susso
Sept. 26th
The Rhythm Illusion
Oct. 3rd

Welcome back to lecture halls, all-nighters, pizza breakfasts, and Kinko's.
with this coupon
2½¢ copies
Offer applies to self-serve, black and white 81/2" x 11" copies on 20 lb. white bond. One coupon per customer per visit. Not valid with other offers. Good through October 15, 1995 at the Kinko's listed below.
kinko's the copy center
AMHERST: 220 N. Pleasant St. 253-2543 Open 24 Hours
NORTHAMPTON: 34 Bridge St., 585-5000 (Across from the Post Office) Open 24 Hours

EXPERT AUTO BODY REPAIRS, AUTO PAINTING and GLASS REPLACEMENT
MARSHALL STEINBECK
PROFESSIONAL COLLISION WORK
• OVEN BAKED URETHANE FINISHES
• FREE ESTIMATES & CLAIMS ASSISTANCE
• INSURANCE APPROVED GLASS REPLACEMENT
• PROFESSIONAL UNIBODY REPAIR AND FRAME STRAIGHTENING
256-8157 256-1385
53 South Prospect Street, Amherst, Massachusetts

Collegian Classifieds

113 Campus Center • University of Massachusetts • Phone: (413)545-3500 Fax: (413)545-1592

Personals Policy

1. All personals MUST be proofread by Collegian classified employees before payment and acceptance of the classified.
2. Last names MAY NOT be used in personals. ONLY first names and initials are allowed. The only exceptions are for birthday or congratulations personals, in which case the full name may be used.
3. Phone numbers are not allowed in personals. NO EXCEPTIONS
4. Addresses are not allowed in personals. this means dorm room numbers as well.
5. Personals of a threatening or derogatory nature are not acceptable. Personals of a vindictive or libelous nature are not acceptable. Personals may not be used for the purpose of harassment.
6. Profanity may not be used in personals.
7. The personals section is for personals only. The personals section may NOT be used to sell items, seek roommates, advertise meetings, etc.
8. All personals must have the name, signature, and UMass I.D. number of the student placing the as filled in on the insertion order. Non-students must provide a valid driver's license and the license number must be recorded on the insertion order. Use of false identification or misrepresentation is subject to penalties under the law.
9. The Collegian reserves the right to refuse or to edit any personal that does not meet the Collegian's standards in accordance with the statutes of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

Rates

$2.00 minimum/day

Students
20¢ per word/day

All others
40¢ per word/day

NO REFUNDS

Please write clearly and legibly. We are not responsible for errors resulting from illegible handwriting or type.

Standard Headings

Activities
Announcements
Apartment For Rent
Auto For Sale
Employment
Entertainment
For Sale
Found (2 days Free)
Happy Birthday
Houses For Rent
Instruction
Lost
Musicians
Miscellaneous
Personals
Room For Rent
Room Wanted
Roommate Wanted
Services
Summer Sublet
To Sublet
Travel
Transportation
Wanted to Rent
Wanted

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Iota Gamma Upsilon 406 North Pleasant St. Invites all U Mass women to rush 9/14, 9-18, 9/19. All events start at 7pm for info or rides call 549-784

Learn to bartend with University bartending. 1/3 the price of other schools Classes in Amherst. Free info session Wed. Sept 27th @ 7:00 pm. Lord Jeffrey Inne call 1-800-U-CAN-MIX

The sisters of Sigma Delta Tau would like to welcome our newest roboretts Sherrie, Lynn, Brooke, Dawn, Shannon, Rebecca, Lisa, Christina, and Aimee!

To the sisters of Sigma Delta Tau Congratulations on a terrific rush! We're looking forward to a great semester! Keep up the good work! Love, Exec

U Mass bike sale Tue. & Wed. on the library lawn. Deals on new & used bikes!!

UPC general committee meeting Tonight at 6pm room 903cc. U Mass hip dance fun concert production company. All are welcome!

Vanity of vanities. Everything is vanity Bible study. Tonight 7:30 pm Campus center room 177 Graduate Christian fellowship

Zeta Psi We must learn to live together as brothers or perish as fools ~ Zeta Psi is having open rush for all university men. If interested call Mike @ 549-1615

AUTO FOR SALE

1985 Ford Galaxie 500 excellent shape only 72000 mi. 289 cu in V8 includes 4 new tires, 2 new studded snow tires Asking $1300 only Call Sean at 548-3852

1983 Chevy 30,000 original mileage very good condition. $700 or bo. 253-9017

86 Subaru GL Hatchback 5 speed Runs well 1 owner. $1700 253-9095.

1988 VW Fox GL Needs some repairs $900 Please can 549-3678.

'92 Red Jeep Wrangler 5 speed soft top 27,000. CD player, Alarm, $12,000 or bo 413-256-8311

1992 Toyota Celica GT, 5 speed, loaded Red, 1 owner, mint, alarm, 53k miles $2000 below book $12,700 665-7219 Jim

Car for sale Hundai Excel SE 41,500 mileage, air conditioning, radio cassette, automatic $3800 call Kim 256-1785.

Convertible '89 Chrysler Lebaron Auto, alarm, cassette. Great car must sell $4700/bo Call Tim 665-0077

For Sale 1986 Hyundai Excel some work needed $500 253-0676 Please call in evenings ask for Rachael.

Mercury Marquis 1984 70K miles Runs excellent Power windows & doors 1500 or B.O. Call 549-8861

Moving 1984 Chevy $1800 and 1984 Olds $1800 255 Wara Road Belchertown 323-8624

EMPLOYMENT

BUILD YOUR RESUME
Come to the UMass Credit Union September 18th or 19th at 6:30 pm to build your resume! Looking for new tellers for fall 1995! Stop by, call Christine at 545-2800

Campus representatives needed for internship program. Work 10 to 20 hours per week, on campus, doing marketing for student internship program. Starts at $8 an hour plus incentives. Call Dan Wolman at TASP International, 1-800-829-4777

Cruiza Ships Hiring Earn up to $2000+/month World Travel. Seasonal & Full-time positions. No exp. necessary. For info call 1-206-634-0468 Ext. C5600

Drivers, waitresses and kitchen help wanted. KRIE RESTAURANT 586-8755

Drivers wanted $6.12 hr call Delivery Express 549-0077

Drivers wanted Cantone's pizza co part time & full time call 256-6100

Earn big $$$ Leading college marketing firm is currently seeking part-time help. Multiple positions available throughout the fall semester. Flexible hours & great pay. $8-$10/hr. Will train, no experience necessary. Great resume builder! For more info, call Mark Egan @ (617) 266-8861 Ext 11

Mole Torah reader needed. Housing and salary. Congregation Rodphey Sholom, Hotyoke 534-5262

Mullins Center looking for students to work part time late nights, and weekends doing post-event clean up. Stop by Mullins center, 2nd floor, and fill out an application today.

National Parks Hiring Seasonal & Full time employment available at national Parks, Forests & Wildlife Preserves. Benefits and Bonuses! Call 1-206-545-4804 Ext N 58011

Tuc Restaurant servers MWF 10:45-2:30, T Th 10:45-2:30 Cashiers/host MWF 11-2:30 Cook/Dishwasher MWF 10-7:30

ENTERTAINMENT

Having Halloween bash on 10/27 or 10/28? Got a huge house? Want a spooky band? You need yrs? and yrs? needs you! call Jack at 367-9636

FOR RENT

Fridge Rentals free delivery. 253-9742 and Upstpr. Food Co-Op and Recipe

FOR SALE

Brother 1500 Word processor 1 year old 720 mb disk 4 DOS superfast screen grammar Checs Password with manual & starter pk $250 549-0077.

COMPUTERS

Mac computers powerbook 170 8/80 fax, carry case. $1195 Quadra 700 8/540 .18" color monitor awesome graphics software $1895. Call 256-0080

DJ EQUIPMENT

Soundscriptmem power amplifier 1000 watts $250 or b/o TV speakers 300 watts $250 or b/o 3 piece system $700 or b/o 546-3498 Beeper 292-8010 Must sell!

HP laserjet 2p printer 4 years old works great $250 or bo Call 546-1052

IBM pc notebook comp word excel Need $ for school bo 549-6061

MOTORCYCLES

'82 Honda Magna V-45 750 cc V-4 Very fast and reliable. No reasonable offer refused. $1,800 bo Page any time 292-0065

Nika Airmaxst men's 9 Cost $125 Asking $65 or bo Never worn 546-7738

Panasonic printer Great condition, still on original ribbon $150.00 253-1726

Purchasing a used car? Having your car repaired? Do you know your rights? Contact the Student Legal Services Office. 922 Campus Center. 545-1995

Rollerblades New Calipro Mens 8 Womens 9 and knee wrists pads $175/bo Sheila 584-2926

Soloboat Chan Rug $100 TV $50 549-3535

Toshiba 20" Stereo w/ remote 3yr old exc for $190 can 549-8563

12 string acoustic guitar w/ case Practically brand new! Call Mae 256-8190

18" Univega/Alpina sport mountain bike Good condition $195 Robert 256-6719

FOUND

Attention New Students Personal items left at the new students program this summer may be picked up at the new students office, 304 admissions center.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY

Happy Birthday Stacy love Jan, Maura, Christine, Lauren, Tracy, Shawn & Brian

INSTRUCTION

Guitar Lessons and classes by Kevin Collins. Beginning folk, classical. Free intro lesson. Hartt Grad 256-1233

GUITAR LESSONS
Have fun this semester and earn 1-2 credits with a patient and supportive teacher. Spaces still available. Call Peter 253-5263.

Jazz piano teacher offering fall lessons, beginner or advanced. Call Stephen Page 253-3254

LOST

I lost a green Jansport Backpack in the textbook annex, on Sept 18. If you have found please call me at 6-2992 ask for Colleen.

Key lost with picture of baby and change purse on key chain. Reward call 546-1799

Lost blue 3 subject binder notebook on 21 Sept 95 in 251 Boyden. If you found it please please please call Stacy at 549-4780 Thanks

MISCELLANEOUS

POSTER GIVEAWAY
Monday, September 18, University Gallery, 11 a.m.-4 p.m. Visit the gallery and choose a complimentary selection of posters from past exhibitions. While supplies last.

WEIGHT LOSS
Bottled Willpower! Lose up to 30 lbs. 30 day money back guarantee. Natural, doctor recommended. 323-4984.

MUSICIANS

GREEN
22 hours. 42 daaayss. 1000 acres. Totally legal. Outdoor mantrage. Two big pop tents. Skyward lasers. Massive lighting displays. Concessionaires. Smart Bars. Clothing and record store bazaars. Lifesize Stone Henge replica. Begins 4 p.m. September 23 and ends 2 p.m. September 24. A PrimaryDom Production. 18+. Call Barb @ 546-0833

Needed: Dynamic, powerful vocalist to front a new original band. Consisting of bass, drums, guitar and organ. Only serious committed singers need apply. Call Eva Jai 546-4951 or Brandi 546-7387

Needed: Funk drummer, singer, keys. The Colonel Mustard Trio! Call Ryan Andy 549-1016

Psychedelic garage band for hire. Dead Dylan Cream Stones. Perfect for parties 256-1949

CASHIN STAFF: Get psyched for a great year...only the best is yet to come.

PERSONALS

ENLIGHTENMENT #2
I need religion like a fish needs a bicycle. What I want is to know other people who want to grow and will accept me as I am. Alliance Christian Fellowship committed to people, friendship, learning, and spirit-filled fellowship. Info Mark or Elizabeth 253-7708.

FRAT BOY
Carla: Ya know you're a cute kid! Thanks for making me smile. Love Jan 8/22/95.

Happy Twenty-something birthday, Kayl! Dont think of it as getting older, think of it as getting better! Party it up!! We love you! From your housemates

To the cute guy in the Whitmore snackbar: I was surprised to find you working there, but it was a pleasant surprise. I have dreams of you and me and lunch sandwiches. Respond here if you feel the same.

Your secret admirer

To the best staff in the whole world welcome to Collegian Graphics!!

To the sisters at DZ Get psked for another incredible semester. Congrats to the new members and good luck. Love in DZ

Zeek, Who would have guessed that we, of all people would end up together! I'm glad we took the chance. All my love, KC

SERVICES

Exotic nail airbrushing 549-1794

Experienced babysitter available with references. Please call Alyssa 549-8885 for info.

Grazia and scholarships available. Billions of $$$ in grants. Qualify immediately. 1-800-243-2435 (1-800-AID-2-HELP)

Pregnant? Need help? Call birthright of Amherst area for free testing and carrying assistance 549-1906

TRAVEL

Spring Break Travel Ireq with Sun Splash Tours. Highest commissions, lowest prices. Campus reps wanted! Sell Jamaica, Bahamas, Florida 1-800-426-7710

Quebec weekend Dec 8-10 Ski & party only $170 if paid by 10/31! 545-3437

Students to join health club as group to save money call Misty 256-6438

WANTED

Trying to locate 4 students who helped an elderly woman who fell at Smith College, College Hall on January 30, 1995. Please call Attorney Susan Sachs 584-8134

"I found it in the Collegian Classifieds."

They Work For You!

Collegian Classifieds They Work 113 Campus Center 545-3500

YOUR DAILY HOROSCOPE
by Jean Dixon

ARIES A hot financial tip could bring you a windfall. Lunching with a former employer proves informative and fun. You almost regret an earlier decision. Rethink a business trip.

TAURUS Others consult you about professional or personal matters. Help them if you can do so without making a financial commitment. Make certain your ideas are protected from the competition.

GEMINI A raise or promotion will mean greater financial security. Work hard! Participating in group activities enlivens your day. Examine sales merchandise with a critical eye before making a purchase. An overseas contact offers a profitable idea.

CANCER Complete unfinished tasks and tie up loose ends. Speculating about the future is a waste of time now. Neither the best nor the worst scenario will happen. Talks center around work projects and family issues.

LEO Your artistic vision is brilliant. New partnerships favored. Sign a contract without further delay. Do not waste words or cash. If displeased with a company's service or products, go right to the top for action.

VIRGO New recognition and rewards are headed your way. The business outlook is golden. Move quickly to beat out the competition. A May-Dec. romance has a lot to recommend it. Listen to your heart.

LIBRA Be flexible when the unexpected happens. Do not let haste or anger lead you into making poor decisions. Review your options; an attractive alternative will emerge. Discussions about money or employment yield helpful suggestions.

SCORPIO You stumble across a hot investment opportunity or trip over a bargain. Practical considerations must dominate even if you feel like kicking over the traces. Showcase your special talents. Intense romantic feelings bring a wondrous happiness.

SAGITTARIUS Do not let an absentminded mood set you back; focus on the job at hand. Costly mistakes will be avoided if you stay alert. A collaborative business effort will mean greater financial security.

CAPRICORN Tend to essential chores before indulging in idle daydreams. Gossip is unreliable; some people will say anything to stir up excitement! Anticipate employer's demands. Shoppers will find lots of bargains. Can you afford them?

AQUARIUS Dealing with the public can be a wonderful experience. Your confidence grows as you develop new skills. Important clients or job leads could come through networking. A brief encounter could be love at first sight!

PISCES Keep your personal affairs from becoming a public issue. Financial backing is easier to obtain than in the past. Good vibrations surround you tonight. Be more receptive to a loved one's requests; take positive steps.

Collegian Classifieds

For Sale, Room wanted, Services, For Rent, Personals, etc. etc. etc.

If you have something to sell or a message for that special someone, say it through the Collegian Classifieds. Just fill out this convenient insertion order and return it along with your payment to 113 Campus Center

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE
edited by Trude Michael Jaffe

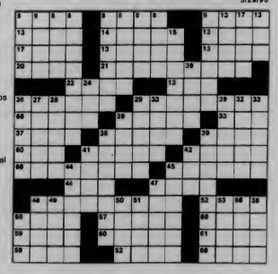
ACROSS
1 Money
5 Not at all racy
9 Blowout
13 Court game, with "jai"
14 Enjoys a book
16 Singly
17 Dermis
18 Bone: Comb. form
19 Equipment
20 Actor Rip
21 Abolitionist hero
23 Optimistic words
25 Have lunch
26 Puff, for one
29 Ariel and her kind
34 Kindled anew
35 Niagara and Victoria
36 Negative
37 Get the wrinkles out
38 Preposterous
39 Singer Marvin
40 Commuter's transport
41 City in Florida
42 Tutu material
43 Weaken
45 Heroic Helen
46 Sushi item
47 Auction
48 White's arachnid
52 Scamps
56 Feathery wraps
57 Hunter of the sky
58 Singer Jerry
59 Woody's son
60 Silky velvet
61 Nobelist Wiesel
62 Adolescent
63 Wanton look
64 Flute feature

DOWN
1 Time gone by
2 City in NE Nevada
3 Hideout
4 "Off agn, on agin, Gone agin —"
5 USC mascot
6 Jason's father
7 Trig. geom etc.
8 Neighbor of Nod
9 Colombian capital
10 Fresh
11 Glance over
12 Part of HRH
15 With dignity
22 St. Louis players
24 Folding bed
26 Take the wheel
27 Showed again
28 Single-handed
29 French director Louis
30 A Fitzgerald
31 Everything included
32 Sir Conan —
33 Take the helm
35 Italian auto
38 Seafood
39 Swift traveler?
41 Finished
42 — Aviv
44 Rhyme's partner
45 More shrewd
47 Oliver or Sharon
48 Apple center
49 Healthy
50 Viva voce
51 Prong
53 Fellow
54 Ballet bend
55 Type of pearl
56 Cave dweller

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE:

A	D	C	S		A	D	A	N	O		M	A	S	S
S	I	L	O		D	E	C	A	L		A	L	O	E
S	C	E	N	E	O	F	T	H	E	C	R	I	M	E
A	T	A		D	R	E	S	S		U	T	T	E	R
M	A	N	A	G	E	R			S	T	E
			B	E	D		C	L	I	E	N	T	A	L
S	A	S	E			G	A	I	N	S		R	N	A
C	A	S	T	O	N	E	S		L	O	T	W	I	T	H
A	R	T		T	E	N	E	T			E	G	E	R
R	E	S	T	O	R	E	D		I	E	I
			R	O	D			A	C	T	R	E	S	S
S	P	O	O	L		E	G	R	E	T		L	E	I
P	L	A	Y	E	D	T	H	E	M	A	R	K	E	T
A	I	R	E		I	N	A	N	E		T	I	N	E
T	E	S	S		S	A	T	A	N		E	N	O	S

5/29/95



CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING INSERTION ORDER

Client: _____ Date: _____ Taken By: _____

Date(s) to run: _____ Headline: _____

Total Days: _____ X Words: = _____ X rate _____ = Payment

Special heading ($2.50 extra): _____ Authorized signature: _____

ADVERTISING COPY

1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9 10

Insert one character, space, or punctuation mark per box - use capital letters where they apply - Cost figured on each line of form used - see rate card

Calvin & Hobbes By Bill Watterson

WAKE UP! IT'S TIME TO GET READY FOR SCHOOL.
UHNGGG
JUST CHECKING. I'M GLAD YOU'RE UP AND DRESSED.
THAT SHOULD THROW HER OFF THE TRAIL FOR A WHILE

Butterling By John Ottinger

SO, BUTTERLING, I'VE DECIDED TO GRANT YOUR REQUEST FOR NEW FACILITY-ISSUED UNDERWEAR.
YES, RESIDENTS OF SHADY BRAIN SHOULD CONCENTRATE ON BECOMING WELL. THE COMFORT OF THEIR UNDERGARMENTS SHOULD BE THE LAST THING ON THEIR MINDS.
SO, DON'T WORRY ~ THE SHIPMENT SHOULD ARRIVE ANY DAY NOW!
I HOPE YOU LIKE BURLAP.

Generation X By Chris Lehmon

PUNK, WE'RE GONNA BEAT YOU UP.
BACK OFF, GUYS! I'M DRINKING MILK.
WHEN I'M 19, I'LL BE THIS BIG! SO DON'T MESS WITH ME.
WE DRINK MILK, TOO. WHEN WE'RE 19, WE'LL STILL BE BIGGER THAN YOU!
UH-OH.
"MILK: IT HELPS YOU BEAT THE CRAP OUT OF PEOPLE."
POW! BAM— OOF!

Leold By Roger & Salem Salloom

I have a very big 65 gallon fish tank.

I only have one chubby little goldfish who slowly waddles around alone.

Because of the glass angles, sometimes, I can't even see Beebles.

Beebles rubs his side against a stone a lot.

I asked the clerk at the pet store:

Why does my fish keep rubbing against the stone?

If I buy another fish and my fish falls in love, will Beebles be happier than when Beebles was alone?

The clerk threw me out of the store.

Hail to you all who waddle alone!

Close to Home By John McPherson

"Look, I don't have a cent in the car. Here are four Chiclets and a ticket to my son's high school play."

The Amazing Spiderman By Stan Lee

MAYBE I CAN GET ENOUGH MONEY IN NEW YORK TO PAY ROBART FOR YOU!
I'LL SAVE MY LIFE, SIS! BUT— WHY NEW YORK?
BECAUSE— SPIDER-MAN IS THERE!

Lost Horizons By Douglos Cellineri

WHAT'S GOING ON HERE?
"COACH...TELL WINSLOW HE CAN'T LATERAL THE BALL TO HIS INVISIBLE FRIEND!"
SHHH!... YOU'LL HURT HIS FEELINGS
IF YOU DO IT AGAIN I'LL PUNCH YOU IN THE HEAD!
JUST TRY IT... BARNEY!

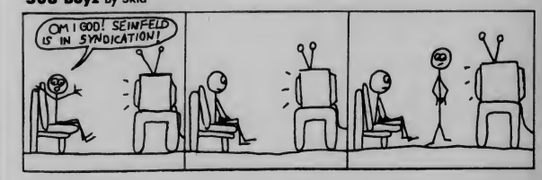
Bruno By C. Baldwin

HEY CUTIE, WHAT'S HAPPENING? I SAW YOU OVER HERE ALL ALONE AND THOUGHT YOU MIGHT WANT COMPANY.
LISTEN TO THIS..."BUT WHY DO THEY LOVE ME SO MUCH, IF I'M NOT WORTHY OF SUCH LOVE? OH, IF ONLY I WERE ALONE AND NO ONE LOVED ME AND I, TOO HAD NEVER LOVED ANYONE."
I'LL LOVE YA BABE.
BARRRMP! OH I'M SORRY. WRONG ANSWER. THANKS FOR PLAYING THOUGH.

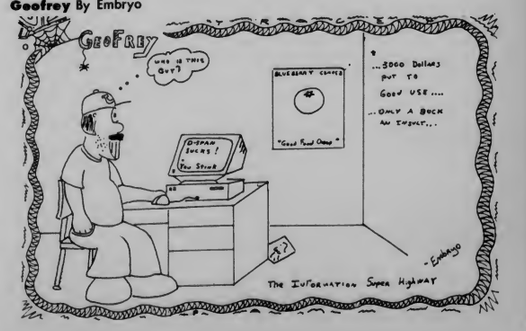
Dilbert By Scott Adams

HELLO, IS THIS THE MOUNTAIN RESORT WHERE ALL OUR EXECUTIVES ARE HAVING A RETREAT?
IS IT TRUE THAT LOUD NOISES CAN CAUSE AVALANCHES?
IF YOU SEE MY BOSS, TELL HIM I SAID...
HI!!
SCOTTADAMS@AOL.COM

308 Boyz By Skid



Geofrey By Embryo



Today's Staff

Night Editor ..... Matt Vautour
Copy Editor ..... Amy Paradysz
Photo Technician ..... Thang Vo
Production Supervisor ..... James Ganley
Production ..... Jeff Hodge, Dan Bergeron

Dining Commons Menu

SORRY, NO MENU TODAY.
THE DAILY MENU IS AVAILABLE BY CALLING FOOD SERVICES AT 5-2626

Quote of the Day

"Just because he has a library card doesn't make him Yoda."

–Brad Pitt

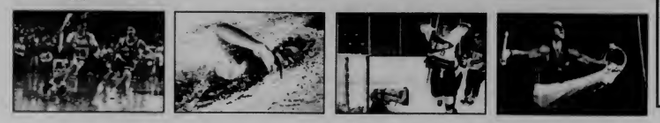
Collegian Graphics
We're Up All Night
putting together New England's oldest daily college newspaper

OPEN HOUSE

The entire campus community is invited to the Collegian Open House. Come down to the campus center basement and see how New England's Largest College Daily is put together. Met the people behind the Daily Collegian. Editors and Department heads are eagerly waiting to talk to anyone interested in writing, shooting, selling, producing or just looking for a way to get involved in the campus.

Friday, September 29
Noon - 4:00 p.m.
The Collegian Offices, 113 Campus Center
(In the basement at the opposite end from the ATMs)

SportsWeekend



Collegian Sports • Monday, September 25, 1995

Inside this issue:

- Men's and women's X-Country swept their only home meets of the seoson (See stories Page 7.)
- Volley ball split two weekend matches, beating St. Bonaventure while losing to Duquesne (See story Page 7.)
- Men's tennis threw o shutout in its motch against Wheaton (See story Page 7.)
- Watch tomorrow for results os water polo competed in the Brown Invitationol this weekend.

Massachusetts knocks off Boston University

DAYMON SMITH / COLLEGIAN

Sophomore Mike Butler posted both goals in the Minutemen's 2–1 upset victory over Boston University.

By Mike Corey
Collegian Correspondent

They finished undefeated at 19–0–1 last season. At one point, they were the No. 1 nationally ranked team. They have some of the top scorers in the nation, and most teams would only be interested in keeping it close.

However, none of these stats were on the minds of the Massachusetts men's soccer players when they tackled the Boston University Terriers on Saturday.

The Minutemen defeated the heavily favored Terriers 2–1 before the large crowd of 721 at Richard F. Garber Field.

Mike Butler had an outstanding game as he led the attack for the Minutemen. The sophomore from Springfield scored both goals, helping his team to the upset victory, improving their record to 6–2–1 on the year.

Massachusetts 2
Boston University 1

"It was very important for him and the team, for him to perform like he did today," said UMass coach Sam Koch. "He really stepped it up big."

It was not until the 51st minute in the game when UMass lit up the scoreboard first. Junior Dave Siljanovski took the ball down the right side of the field and lined a pass between two defenders to Butler, who was cutting to the net. Butler took the pass around a defender to the left side and fired a shot hitting the far upper corner of the net to score the first goal of the game.

Less than six minutes later, the Minutemen struck again as Butler outran two Terrier defenders, dribbled passed the last defender, and took a shot on goal. BU goalie Bryan Murphy made the original save, but was unable to cover the ball. Butler put home the rebound for his second tally of the contest and the Minutemen led 2–0.

UMass controlled the tempo in the second half, hanging on to its lead up until 76:06 when BU (3–3–1) hit the scoring column, as Tom Giatrakos headed a cross in from Ola Olsen.

From then on BU had a number of opportunities to tie the game. UMass defender Steve Jones came up with a tremendous save when UMass goalie Eric Gruber was out of position. BU's Francisco Tasende hit a shot of the right post, and a header by Giatrakos off a corner kick was also denied.

The biggest play in the game came with 2:51 remaining when Karsten Bremke took Nick Bone down from behind, who was alone in front of the

Turn to MEN'S SOCCER, page 7

Win is program's biggest ever

By Leigh Torbin
Collegian Staff

There are big wins, there are really big wins and then there are epic wins, like the one the Massachusetts men's soccer team recorded on Saturday.

Last year, UMass saw a field hockey upset of North Carolina, a 24-point basketball thumping of Arkansas, and a stunning hockey victory over Maine. With Saturday's 2–1 decision over highly touted Boston University, the men's soccer team officially fired the opening shot of upset season, and in the process, produced the biggest and most thrilling victory in the program's history.

After being battered by a lesser New Hampshire side on Wednesday, UMass had to bounce back with a victory, which seldom comes against the Terriers, who finished the 1994 regular season ranked No. 1 in the nation at 19–0–1.

Top to bottom, each member of the determined Massachusetts side excelled significantly beyond anyone's expectations, and were rewarded for their efforts with the victory of a lifetime.

"All wins are big, but this one is the biggest in our history," Koch said. "This is huge right now for this team. This is a win we really needed."

"It was the biggest win so far," senior Eric Gruber added. "That's the biggest win I've ever been involved with."

"We came in underdogs, but we took it to them and we won," said junior forward Dave Siljanovski, who remained seated on the field with tears of joy and disbelief in his eyes following the match. "We played with heart, which we lacked in the last game. Our heart was there today and we won it because of our heart. We wanted to prove that we could be in the top 20, and this is a big step [towards that]. This is the biggest win ever in UMass history, and we're only going to start from here."

Things looked bleak for the Minutemen just before gametime, as Joe Jacobson, a cog in the UMass defense, would not be in the lineup with torn tendons in his arm. Jacobson had started every match in 1995 and each match in 1994, except one which fell on Yom Kippur.

The versatile Steve Jones was called upon to fill Jacobson's role. Just as when he was called upon to take

Turn to VICTORY, page 7

Minutemen survive, beat Huskies

By Mike Brown
Collegian Staff

BOSTON — It was supposed to be a football game, but it looked like rugby. A strange series of events occurred at the conclusion of Saturday's game at Northeastern's Parsons field, leaving the 3,500 fans baffled.

The Massachusetts football team was able to overcome a huge Northeastern threat, and cling on to a two-point lead, winning the game 21–19 in the closing seconds.

Massachusetts 21
Northeastern 19

On second down and 10, down by eight points with under a minute to play, Northeastern quarterback Jim Murphy launched a Hail Mary pass from his own 37-yard line. A pool of dark and white jerseys were camped under the pass. From out of nowhere, a leaping Husky David Smith emerged from the traffic to catch the ball for a 44-yard gain with one second remaining on the clock.

"I can't believe they caught the ball," said UMass coach Mike Hodges. "You could practice that play week in and week out, and never perfect that play."

With Northeastern now at the UMass 19-yard line, first down brought Murphy back to pass once again. Minutemen co-captain Vernard Fennell crashed through the Husky offensive line and applied a ferocious blow to Murphy. The UMass sideline, led by Hodges, began its victory dance since they believed the sack ended the game. The Minutemen dance party came to a screeching halt, as the sack forced a fumble and Northeastern fullback Jeff Reale picked up the loose ball and scampered into the endzone untouched.

"When I made the tackle I thought it was over. We don't have many fans here so when I heard the fans cheering, I knew something bad happened," Fennell said. "It was definitely a feeling of relief when the game was over."

"Then they get a play off with one second, they fumble and pick it up and bring it into the end zone," Hodges said. "You couldn't write that script in a million years, but it happened."

After the chaos ended, the Huskies needed a two-point conversion to tie the ball game and send it into overtime. Murphy stepped back to pass for the conversion, and spotted receiver Smith. The Northeastern quarterback threw a bullet in Smith's direction, but UMass free safety Jason Tudryn got enough hand on the pass to make it incomplete. Then UMass celebrated – for real.

"That's as wild a finish I've ever been involved in. More things happened in that last drive certainly since I've been the football coach. I thought he was sacked and down, but then the ball came out," Hodges said. "It's pretty difficult to snap the ball and get a play off with one second left."

"It's the wackiest game I've ever been involved in — with one second left, the wacky fumble happened," said co- captain Rene Ingoglia. "As soon as he scored, I said 'lets strap it up, we're going to overtime.' The defense came out and stopped them, which was excellent."

The Minutemen did not need overtime to decide this game. The UMass defense battled its fatigue and settled down to make the biggest defensive stop thus far on the season.

"I'm very proud of my kids. It's very easy to panic in that kind of situation," Hodges said. "But I settled down my defense and they made the play."

The unusual ending to the game was the big story of the day, but up to that point, it was Rene Ingoglia's show.

Ingoglia's campaign for the Walter Payton Award, given annually to the best player in I–AA football, improves drastically each week he steps onto the gridiron. The fullback tallied 202 yards on the day, including all three touchdown runs.

"If I could carry the ball 50 times a game I would. I just really drive hard," Ingoglia said. "It's like the analogy of a

Turn to BATTLE, page 6

Just shake your head and laugh

Andrew Bryce

BOSTON — I spent much of Saturday afternoon shaking my head as I sat in the Parsons Field press box for the Massachusetts–Northeastern game. Yet as I looked down at the others along press row, the rest of the media persons were doing much of the same.

You couldn't help but shake your head and laugh to yourself as you saw Rene Ingoglia run for 202 yards. Ingoglia didn't have any game-breaking runs, he carried the ball a career-high 37 times. But it was the way he did it that left everybody impressed with his performance.

You couldn't help but shake your head and laugh to yourself as you saw the Minutemen and the Huskies battle down to the wire for the third straight season. It wasn't particularly high-scoring, and it wasn't tight throughout the full 60 minutes. But it was the way Northeastern managed to inch their way back after a 14-point deficit.

You couldn't help but shake your head and laugh to yourself after what happened on the final drive of the game. It wasn't pretty, it wasn't strategically designed by head coach Barry Gallup and the rest of his staff. It couldn't have been.

But it was the way it happened.

The Minutemen began the third quarter with a 21–6 lead, and started the fourth quarter trying to stop the Huskies 18 yards away from endzone. UMass jumps off-sides, the flag was thrown, and 15 yards was assessed. Brian Vaughn scores from two yards out, the

Putnam leads UM over Owls

By Matt Vautour
Collegian Staff

For the first seven games of the season, freshman Kate Putnam was a "goal waiting to happen." The Greenfield native had picked up her offense and was beating defenses, but be it a bad bounce or a key save by a goalie, she hadn't been able to notch her first collegiate goal.

But Saturday afternoon, with the Massachusetts field hockey team's season arguably hanging in the balance, Putnam came through. With 18:52 remaining in the game, Putnam fired a shot past Temple goalie Deb Brown to give the Minutewomen a 1–0 victory over the rival Owls.

Massachusetts 1
Temple 0

"It felt pretty good," Putnam said. "I told myself before the game today that I was going to score for the life of me."

"I'm very happy for her," said Massachusetts coach Megan Donnelly. "She's had her struggles as most freshmen do, but the ability has always been there. It's nice to see her have a good, solid game."

The win was a vitally important one for Massachusetts. Coming off one of its worst starts ever, beating No. 14 Temple was crucial if the Minutewomen hoped to turn their season around.

"It was a very important win," Sophomore Amy Ott said. "We were in a little bit of a rut, and I think this is going to help us mentally get out of it. Everyone stepped up. It feels good to know how to win again."

Junior Kyle Rothenberger agreed.

"It felt so good to beat Temple this year," said the All– America candidate. "But we know we're going to face them again."

Turn to FIELD HOCKEY, page 6

Minutewomen find scoring touch

By Justin C. Smith
Collegian Staff

Through 120 minutes of play over the weekend, the Massachusetts women's soccer team played its offensive game, but only had three goals to show for it. Late in the first half of Sunday's game with Wright State, that all changed.

"Right before we got No. 2 & 3, you could feel the atmosphere change," UMass coach Jim Rudy said. "All of a sudden, instead of them attacking, they were back on their heels."

Massachusetts 2
Texas A&M 1

The 1–1 tie at the 35 minute mark, turned into a 7–1 rout to complete a weekend sweep for the Minutewomen (5–1) who also beat No. 20 Texas A&M 2–1 on Friday.

Massachusetts 7
Wright State 1
See Related Story Pg. 6

Massachusetts 2, Texas A&M 1

The weather outside may have been frightful for A&M, but even more so was Massachusetts forward Rachel LeDuc.

The cool and rainy conditions of Garber Field, were a far cry from what the Aggies are accustomed to, but seem to be just right for LeDuc. She converted the rebound of a Liz Rutherford shot to give the Minutewomen a 1–0 lead in the 31st minute.

"Before the game Coach told us, and while playing it was evident that their goalie bobbled the ball a lot, and the whole game she did that," LeDuc explained. "So I was trying to follow up on everything. When Liz gave a great cross and she bobbled it, I just followed it up."

Less than five minutes later it was Bryn Blalack who blasted a left–footed rocket just between UMass goalie Danielle Dion and the far post, to tie the game at one.

The game was still tied at the half, thanks to Dion who knocked away Blalack's indirect kick from 25 yards a minute after her goal.

As the second half began, A&M began to assert its speed advantage it had up front against the UMass defense, although it couldn't get the ball in the net. Its best chance of the half came when Kristen Koop split the UMass defense, but her shot just slid wide of the left post.

The Minutewomen were aware of the advantage the Aggies had with their speed up front and used support in an effort to contain them.

"We try to balance off in the back," defender Nikki Abernholz said. "We knew they were fast so we had to drop back a bit 'cause that was when they were going to score."

When asked about how his defensive strategy did in slowing down the lightning quick front–runners of A&M, Rudy took little credit.

"We didn't [contain them]," Rudy said. "We survived."

Turn to WOMEN'S SOCCER, page 6

UMass, Nolan to battle Huskies
Dionne Nash and the Minutewomen host Northeastern tonight at 7 p.m. in the Curry Hicks Cage (See Sports, page 12).

Powwow held at Curry Hicks Cage
This past weekend the Curry Hicks Cage hosted the 1995 Intertribal Powwow. See what the participants thought about it (see News, page 3).

Feed the Tree
Belly, led by Tanya Donnelly, brings their sugary sweet blend of pure pop madness to Pearl Street tonight (See Arts & Living, page 6).

Extended Forecast
Get those rain coats out. There will be occasional rain with a high in the 60s. Wednesday it will be mostly cloudy with a chance of rain with the high remaining in the low 60s.

Today	Wednesday	Thursday
HIGH: 65 LOW: 45	HIGH: 60 LOW: 40	HIGH: 60 LOW: 40

The Massachusetts

DAILY COLLEGIAN

Volume CV Issue 15 • New England's Largest College Daily • Founded in 1890 • Daily Since 1967 • Tuesday, September 26, 1995

Students still wait to get excess checks

By Tracy Geekie
Collegian Staff

The delayed disbursement of Financial Aid excess checks at the University of Massachusetts has left some students compromising.

Rather than do without any money, several students are accepting advances against their refund. According to Burt Batty, the Director of Financial Aid, the amount given is $200 or the amount of the excess, whichever is less.

"The majority of students are understanding," he said. "Just as long as they get their excess by the first of October when their rent is due, they're quite satisfied."

However, students won't have to wait that much longer for the money owed them.

The confirmed date on which the checks will be available is September 28. First–year students will not be able to collect their checks until October 10 due to certain government guidelines.

According to the financial aid notice entitled, "Information Regarding Financial Aid Excess Checks," the reason is a federal regulation which does "not permit first–time freshmen to receive their financial aid excess until 30 days after their initial enrollment."

All students must meet certain conditions before their excess checks are disbursed. These conditions, which are itemized on the notice, include signing promissory notes and finalizing all estimated aid, including the Massachusetts State Scholarship and Pell Grant.

Batty advises students to double–check their financial aid files to ensure all the paperwork is there. By doing this, students will avoid problems when they pick up their excess checks.

"It's frustrating for the student and the Bursar's staff that the student will stand in line for half an hour, get up to the teller expecting an excess check, and the teller says, 'you've got a hold on your excess because your financial aid file is incomplete'," he said. "Then (the student) comes down here and stands for half an hour. If they're uncertain, they should call us or visit the office during the day."

"Up against the wall"

Several reasons are to blame for the delay in disbursing the checks.

"The direct loan program is new, so we haven't had a whole lot of experience with it," Batty said. "We haven't had time. We're right up against the wall when students need the money and we need to get it over [to the Bursar's Office.] We're doing the best we can."

Another reason Batty cited was an overall increase in the volume of financial aid being processed.

"I think we have delivered more aid to more students this year than any year in the past history of UMass," he said. "I anticipate according to the Bursar's figures, about 3,000 financial aid excess checks will be available on the 28 of September. That's a record number at this time compared to last year."

Lastly, Batty said the financial aid office wanted to ensure they handled the processing as accurately as possible.

"We just had to make sure [the money] went over to the students' accounts and that it was done correctly," he said. "Had we hurried through it, there would have been a lot of errors."

The student perspective

Some students felt frustrated by the steps involved in processing their aid.

"It's the run–around," said sophomore nutrition major Amy Tardiff. "They send you a thing that says you have to be in at a certain time and when you get there, there's a line.

"It wasn't so bad today. I think the major thing will be waiting in

Turn to AID, page 3

SGA hopes for more involvement

By Allison Connolly
Collegian Staff

If you are interested in getting involved in the Student Government Association but you missed participating in the elections last week, "It's not over yet," Speaker Dan Castellano said.

The SGA wants interested students to get involved in their communities. There are still senate positions open, especially in the commuter area government which has 10 vacancies.

However, the student voice is also needed to represent committees and councils across campus.

The faculty senate has a number of committees and councils with student seats yet to be appointed by the SGA. Castellano said that students aren't participating because they are not aware of the opportunities.

"We haven't had a lot of representation on faculty committees and councils because there was a lack of publicity," Castellano said. "Decisions are being made without student input and these decisions impact the entire University. It's important to have students on these councils and committees so that the student voice may be heard."

Castellano said that these committees are the best way for students and faculty to work together. His first experience with student government was through one of these councils.

Afro–American Studies Professor John Bracey is the Secretary of the Faculty Senate. He encourages students to take part in developing policies that concern their quality of life at the University.

"It's extremely important," Bracey said. "Students ought to have input in policies that they are affected by."

Bracey said that students should take an active part in the process of reviewing and making policies, rather than after they have been made.

"If students are there at that point," Bracey said, "they can help us develop policies that are student–friendly."

Bracey said that the committees make decisions on everything from parking to readmission and financial aid. Currently, there are six or seven committees that have vacancies.

The SGA will be forming task forces this year. These groups will focus on specific issues that go into depth which the senate may not be equipped to deal with.

"It's a good way for students who never get involved in student government to do so," Castellano said.

There are also house council seats that were not filled during the elections. Residents who want to make changes within their dorms should apply.

Students may also apply for senate seats already occupied. The applications will be kept on file in case the position suddenly becomes available.

The SGA office has a listing of committee and council seats that are still open. If interested, the SGA office is located in Room 420 of the Student Union.

Native American culture celebrated at UM

By Lisa Chiu
Collegian Staff

"A Powwow is a gathering of people, my people, for social purposes to see old friends, to sing and dance, to talk, have fun, just get along together," said Francis Huntington, the Arena Director for this year's annual Intertribal Powwow at the University of Massachusetts which was held this past Saturday and Suday at Curry Hicks Cage.

Students, families and the general public enjoyed many activities at the event that ranged from shopping to reading, dancing and listening to music.

Event–goers browsed at the many different and diverse vendors. Stands ranged from Guatemalan printed bags, to Navajo jewelry, to musical instruments, among others.

The smell of the food both in the arena and outdoors permeated the surroundings. People sampled Wampanoag chowder, Indian bread and Indian tacos.

Tables were set up outside the arena, offering information on the Native American Students Association, one of the Registered Student Organizations (RSOs) that, along with the Josephine White Eagle Native American Cultural Center, helped to put on this event.

Tables also included information on war veterans and admissions to the university. At one table, people were asked to write letters to President Clinton, in support of freeing Leonard Peltier, a Native American who, according to the literature at the table, was wrongfully accused of the murder of two federal agents.

Peltier is now serving two consecutive life sentences for the alleged murder of two FBI agents, and has been imprisoned for over 18 years.

Turn to POWWOW, page 3

JAMES STANLEY / COLLEGIAN

Native American dancers perform one of many spectacular Intertribal Dances at Curry Hicks this past weekend.

Reception honors women's struggles

By Aimee Schwartz
Collegian Staff

Last Thursday evening in celebration of the 75th anniversary of a woman's right to vote, the Jones Library in Amherst hosted a public reception consisting of an exhibit titled "A Voice for Citizens, a Force for Change" and a historical reenactment of Susan B. Anthony's life.

The event was co–sponsored by the Amherst chapter of The League of Women Voters and the Amherst History Museum.

"It is appropriate that we are (at the library) tonight. Our first meeting was held here in 1939," said Joan Flood Ashwell, the president of the Amherst League of Women Voters.

The exhibit gave life to the struggles of women in the last 75 years. It chronologicly explained, through words and pictures, what women have gone through to gain the rights they have today.

"It's shocking to think that women in Amherst were not in favor of the vote, in organizing for it. Once they had the right, they registered in large numbers," said Ashwell.

Dressed in an outfit that reflected the style of the late 1800s, character actress Jessa Piaia brought the audience through a dramatic reenactment of Susan B. Anthony's life.

According to Piaia's flyer, Susan B. Anthony was a "spokesperson for temperance, abolition and women's suffrage ... Although she did not live to see the day, her tireless 50 year struggle for women's rights legalized the vote for American women in 1920."

Piaia ended her performance by saying "failure is impossible." This quote was used in Anthony's speeches to excite young women about politics and inspire young activists.

"It's true that Susan B. would be 175 years old (this year). So many of the issues that she worked on are still relevant today and her life stands as an inspiration for us to live by," Piaia said.

Congressman John Olver, State Representative Ellen Story and Senator Stan Rosenberg attended the reception.

"The vote is a very powerful tool," Rosenberg said. He stressed the importance of people doing what they can to change the injustices of the world.

The National League of Women Voters, which was organized when women gained the right to vote, is also celebrating its 75th anniversary. Two cakes decorated with red, white and blue frosting were served with punch or coffee as refreshments in the Community Room in the library.

The "A Voice for Citizens, a Force for Change" exhibit will be at the Jones Library through early October.

Water Watch arrives in Amherst

Americorps volunteers hoping to clean up area's waterways

By Dave LaFontana
Collegian Staff

Volunteers from Americorps have started a Water Watch program here at University of Massachusetts with the goal of cleaning up polluted waterways in the area.

The Water Watch Program started in New Jersey last year and was deemed a success, leading to its expansion this year into five other states.

Water Watch coordinators will be working in conjunction with MASSPIRG for the next nine and a half months. The goals of the program will be, with the help of local volunteers, to clean up garbage from rivers and creeks, organize "stream walks," and monitor land use, according to coordinator Jessyca Harris.

Harris said the stream walks will be very important to map the water ways, remove debris and help determine where the pollution is originating.

"There are two ways that surface water becomes polluted," she said. "'Point Pollution' is when factories dump sewage and waste directly into a river. 'Non–point Pollution' is caused by agricultural pesticides.

"When the pesticide rinses off the plants, it makes its way into the ground and then, eventually, into the surface water."

According to the Environmental Protection Agency, 68 percent of the surface water in Massachusetts is unfit for drinking, swimming or fishing.

The first stream walk has been planned for September 30 at Amethyst Brook. According to Harris, the volunteers will not only clean, but also help to repair the banks of the Brook.

"The brook has so many people going through it, hiking and biking," she said. "Mountain bikes tend to rip the trails up. We want to keep the ground from eroding too much along the water banks, exposing tree roots."

According to the Environmental Protection Agency, 68 percent of the surface water in Massachusetts is unfit for drinking, swimming or fishing.

The Clean Water Act, established in 1972, attempted to fix this problem. Companies were required to obtain permits to pollute only so much a year, with the understanding that the pollution would be tapered off and finally ended all together.

"The Clean Water Act didn't work, though," Harris said. "It wasn't enforced, so companies with permits dumped more than they were supposed to, and companies without permits polluted anyway."

The Water Watch Program will also be involved in a community outreach capacity.

"When we leave here, we hope that we'll have educated enough people about clean water awareness," said coordinator Jai Sood. "Trained volunteers will teach the importance of water protection to elementary school students, church groups and other organizations."

When Americorps volunteers finish their work here, Sood said they want to leave a solid corps of volunteers behind that will continue to keep pollution from ruining the water supplies.

Officials baffled as to killer's motives

CUERS, France (AP) — The 15th victim of a teenager's murderous weekend rampage died in a hospital Monday, while authorities in southern France tried to determine what caused him to go on a killing spree.

Eric Borel turned a gun on his family and then on an apparently random series of victims in a town square before killing himself Sunday. Witnesses said the 16-year-old was so cool-headed they thought he was hunting pigeons.

Rodolphe Incorvaila, 59, died Monday of a bullet wound to the head. He had been taken to Marseilles hospital in a coma Sunday. Six victims remained hospitalized, two in critical condition. "I knew them all and four of them died right before my eyes," Jean Boursereau, who was shot in the neck but survived, said from his hospital bed.

Borel claimed victims in two villages in the back hills of the sunny Cote d'Azur.

The three family members were killed at home in Cuers, 10 miles north of Toulon, sometime Saturday. Police said their bodies were found about 1 a.m. Sunday.

Borel then traveled 3 1/2 miles to the town of Solliès-Pont where he went on a half-hour rampage beginning about 7:30 a.m. Sunday before killing himself.

Victims ranged from age 17 to 75, and their bodies were scattered in streets throughout the town.

It was not known where Borel was during the interval between when the first bodies were found and when he began killing people in Solliès-Pont.

Lt. Col. Marcel Kapfer said Borel's mother went to church Saturday afternoon, and may have been killed separately, after her companion and their 11-year-old child, Borel's half-brother. Initial police reports mistakenly referred to the companion as the Borel's father or stepfather.

Kapfer said Borel carried two firearms during the Sunday morning rampage, a rifle and a pistol, as well as a box of cartridges. An autopsy was to be performed to see if Borel, who eventually turned his gun on himself, was under the influence of drugs or alcohol. But those who saw him doubted that.

He was "very calm, very poised. You had the impression he was hunting birds," the newspaper Le Monde quoted a cafe owner, Guy Sintes, as saying. "He put the gun to his shoulder, held it very straight, adjusted his aim and fired."

"It was incredible," Boursereau was quoted as saying by Le Parisien newspaper. "He shouldered his rifle as calmly as anything. It was surrealistic.

"I think passers-by didn't think to protect themselves, it seemed so crazy. Myself, at the beginning, I thought he was shooting pigeons."

Boston man stabbed in CC Auditorium

A fight broke out in the Campus Center Auditorium Sunday at 1:28 a.m. in which a college student from the Boston area was stabbed in the back, according to the University of Massachusetts Police Department.

The victim was taken by ambulance to Cooley Dickinson Hospital, where he was treated and released.

Another victim in this disturbance was a UMass police officer who was bitten on the arm and required medical attention. The officer had to discharge Oleoresin Capsium Aerosol spray, which is a propellant form of canine pepper spray, to control the combatants in the disturbance.

The police officer was bitten at approximately 1:23 a.m., five minutes before the stabbing.

Frantz Bien–Aime Jr., 20, of 18 Norumbega Terr., Waltham, was arrested for assault and battery of a police officer.

The incident took place during the Jeans & T–shirt dance sponsored by the Black Mass Communications Project. Shannon McGee, director of the project, refused to comment.

The Community Disorders Unit is requesting that anyone who has information about this disturbance or who might have witnessed the incident to contact them at 545–0893.

The disturbance in the Campus Center Auditorium was separate from a simultaneous disturbance in the Campus Center Concourse, according to Chief of the UMass Police Department John Luippold.

— Amy Paradysz

For Your Information

FYIs are public service announcements which are printed daily. To submit an FYI, please send a press release containing all pertinent information, including the name and phone number of the contact person to the Collegian, c/o the News Editor.

Tuesday, Sept. 26

Bible Study — Vanity of Vanities, Everything is Vanity, sponsored by the Graduate Christian Fellowship, room 177, Campus Center, 7:30 p.m.

Community — Rosh Hashanah Services. Shofar blowing will take place around 12:30 p.m., festive meal to follow. If you need the shofar blown at different times, let us know, we'll bring the shofar to you (549-4094). Chabad House, 10 a.m.

Community — Rosh Hashanah Service. Student Union Ballroom, 10 a.m.

Community — Final Yom Tov Meal and Farbrengen. All are welcome to conclude the New Year's celebration at Chabad. Food and song in Chassidic style and tradition. Chabad House, 6:30 p.m.

GLB Info-Social — Guest speaker John Moonspirit will discuss GLBT matters in the Native American community at the weekly info-social, refreshments will be served, room 803, Campus Center, 7 p.m. - 9 p.m.

Documentary — 30 Years of Solitude. Documentary about the Eritrean Revolution which seized power in 1991. Eritrea is a small country in the horn of Africa. A presentation will be made about the regional geo-political situation, as well as a slide show from an Eritrean visitor. Campus Center, Room 165. Sponsored by RAIL, the Alliance for Student Power and MIM.

Lecture — Bobby Seale, co-founder of the Black Panthers will speak on "Activism in the Nineties," sponsored by Straight Ahead, AC., Johnson Chapel, 7 p.m.

Lecture — Dave Eastman, a 30 year veteran of the Trotskyist movement, will speak on "Trotskyism: Road to World Revolution!" Campus Center, 7 p.m.

Meeting — The Korean Student Association will be having a general meeting. Discussion of upcoming events and the volleyball tournament. If you are interested in participating we encourage you to attend. Worcester Dining Commons, UACC Room (underneath Pastabilities), 7 p.m.

Meeting — Pre-Medical's first general meeting, room 905- 09, Campus Center, 7 p.m.

Meeting — MASSPIRG, a student organization involved in social issues like Free the Planet, hunger and homelessness, and higher education, holds a general interest meeting, all welcome, room 163c, Campus Center, 7 p.m.

Meeting — Golden Key National Honor Society general meeting, Campus Center, check info desk for room, 7 p.m.

Reading — Antonio Benitez-Rojo, professor of Romance Languages at Amherst College, author of Sea of Lentils. The Magic Dog and Other Stories and The Repeating Island: The Caribbean and the Postmodern Perspective. Wouton's Books, 19 North Pleasant St., Amherst, 8 p.m.

Reception — The Graduate Employee Organization (GEO) and the Graduate Student Senate (GSS) invites all graduate students and grad student employees to a reception, food and entertainment provided. Memorial Hall, 6 p.m. - 10 p.m.

Wednesday, Sept. 27

GLB Discussion — Queer Nations/Multi Nations, a panel discussion on the intersection of identities, free and open to the public, accessible, room 904-908, Campus Center, 8 p.m.

Meeting — The UMass Theatre Guild will hold a meeting, room 162-175, Campus Center, 7 p.m.

Meeting — The International Programs office will hold an informational meeting on study abroad opportunities in Spain and Latin America, with a short video on Latin America, third floor lounge, Herter Hall, 4 p.m. - 5 p.m.

Meeting — Pre-Medical's first general meeting, room 905- 09, Campus Center, 7 p.m.

Meeting — The ALANA Caucus will hold information sessions in the Office of ALANA Affairs, 302 Student Union, 8 p.m.

Meeting — The Wildlife Society will hold a meeting, room 203, Holdsworth Hall, 6:30 p.m.

Open House — The UMass Career Center's annual open house, featuring hands-on demonstrations and exhibits of the latest job search technology, the center hopes to help students see beyond their own majors to the world of opportunities after leaving the University. Campus Center Auditorium, 3 p.m.

Special Event — Faculty Information Technologies Project Series, featuring Copper Giloth, Art and Academic Computing Special Projects, a preview of student projects using a variety of software packages, the session will focus on opportunities for enhancing learning, for information call 545-9400, A121 Lederle GRC, 3:30 p.m. - 4:45 p.m.

Notices

GLB RA Matters — Residence Life Staff who identify as gay, lesbian, bisexual, transgendered or are questioning their sexual orientation are invited to attend GLB RA Matters. Meetings are every Friday in Mary Lyon from 12:30 p.m. to 2 p.m. For more information contact Dawn M. Bond 5-1506

Volunteers Needed — WFCR needs help sorting records for its Used Record Sale, food and drink is provided and volunteers get first dibs on records and CD's in WFCR's collection, help needed Monday, Wednesday, and Thursday, call Karin Obermeier at 545-0100 if you have time

Exhibit — "France '95," the works of 40 UMass undergraduate Art majors during 2 intensive summer programs in the South of France, photography, drawings, paintings, sculpture, handmade books and journals, Herter Gallery, Sept. 18-28, M-F 11 p.m. - 4 p.m.

Intramurals — The Intramural office is still accepting participant entries for badminton singles and racquetball doubles. All entries are due Thursday, Sept. 28. The mandatory players meeting is rescheduled to Sept. 28 at 6 p.m., in Boyden. Entries for track and field, cross country, ice hockey, swimming and volleyball are still being accepted.

Wanted — Graphic intern for the Residential Educational Alcohol Program. Includes design and productions of health promotion materials, credit toward graduation. Excellent opportunity for someone interested in health promotion (AIDS, STD's and Alcoholism). Contact Sandra Withcomb 545-0137.

Family Planning Services — HIV testing, pregnancy testing, birth control, medical tests, assistance for struggling families, the Family Planning Council of Western Massachusetts, (800)696-7752

Volunteers Needed — The Campus Chime and Carillon Committee needs student volunteers to ring the bells in Old Chapel. Will teach and train anyone with reasonable musical ability. Call Ken Samonds at 545-1077 for more information.

Community — Jumaa Service, the Muslim Students Association holds Jumaa prayer service every Friday, at 1 p.m., Campus Center, for information call Utama at 256-8482

Campus Police Log

Rape
Sept. 24
An alleged rape, which occurred in a residence hall on Sept. 24, in the early morning hours, was reported to UMass Police who began an investigation of the incident. Police were issued a warrant from the Northampton District Court and arrested Christopher E. Delsman, 21, of 146 Hicks St., Brooklyn, New York, on two counts of rape.

Warrant services
Sept. 24
An alleged incident of threats, which occurred earlier in a residence hall, resulted in an arrest warrant being issued by the District Court. Randy L. Brown, 21, of 27 Brill Rd., Puoghquag, New York, was arrested for threatening to commit two crimes (murder and assault and battery).

Injured person
Sept. 22
An individual on Hicks Way stepped on a manhole cover, which flipped over, injuring his leg. No transport was required.
A Fine Arts Center performer fell, and injured leg. The performer was checked by the Amherst Fire Department. No transport was required.
Sept. 24
An individual passed out on the concourse level of the Campus Center. She was taken to Cooley Dickinson Hospital.
A college student from the Boston area was stabbed in the back during a disturbance which broke out in the Campus Center Auditorium. (See related article, p. 1)
An individual passed out at the bottom of the Campus Center escalator. She was taken to Cooley Dickinson Hospital.
An individual at the Rugby Field with a back injury was taken to Cooley Dickinson Hospital.
An individual having a seizure at Franklin Dining Commons was taken to Cooley Dickinson Hospital.

Disturbance
Sept. 23
There was a report of a fight in Knowlton Residence Hall. A large group was involved in "horseplay."
There was an alleged fight between residents in Washington Residence Hall, which is under investigation.
Sept. 24
Frantz Bien-Aime, Jr., 20, of 18 Norumbaga Ter. Waltham, was arrested for assault and battery on a police officer.
A disturbance broke out between two individuals on the concourse level of the Campus Center. Latasha D. Shular, 23, of 65 Townehouse Apts, Amherst, was arrested for disorderly conduct.

Traffic stop
Sept. 23
William J. Haslam, 21, of 4 Leman Ln., Hopkinton, was arrested for operating under the influence of alcohol, and charged with speeding.

Accident – leaving the scene
Sept. 22
A vehicle parked in Lot 44 was damaged.
Sept. 23
Mark J. Curtin, 19, of Main Rd., Tyringham, was arrested for his second offense of driving under the influence of alcohol, as well as leaving the scene of an accident and operating a motor vehicle without authority. His license was suspended.

Annoying behavior
Sept. 22
There was a report of individuals banging on a resident's door in Cashin Residence Hall.
There were prank phone calls locking into the UMass Police Dept. emergency 911 line.
Sept. 24
There was a report of three female streakers on Orchard Hill Dr. none of whom were located.
There was a report of an argument between two floor mates in Crampton Residence Hall.

Vandalism
Sept. 22
Two state vehicles, assigned to Housing, were damaged while parked near Johnson Residence Hall.
There was damage to a Coke machine in the basement of Johnson Residence Hall.
There was a report that a window of a parked vehicle on Fearing St. was smashed.
There were obscenities carved into several room doors on the sixth floor of John Adams Residence Hall.
There was a rock thrown through a vehicle window in Parking Lot 13.
Sept. 24
There was a report of damage to bulletin boards on the second floor of Emerson Residence Hall.
There was a report of a broken window on the 18th floor and objects being thrown from windows in John Q. Adams Residence Hall.
There was a window of parked vehicle damaged on Thatcher Way.
There was a parked vehicle damaged in Parking Lot 33.

Larceny
Sept. 22
There was a silver ring, which was left in the women's bathroom in Brett Residence Hall, reported stolen.
There was a wallet stolen from Boyden Gymnasium.
There was a bicycle tire stolen from Kennedy Residence Hall.
There was a bicycle stolen from North Village Apartments.
There was a backpack stolen from Coolidge Residence Hall.
There was a bicycle stolen form Van Meter Residence Hall.

Noise complaint
Sept. 22
There was a complaint about a noisy party in Brown Residence Hall. Alcoholic beverages were confiscated from minors.
Sept. 23
There was a noise complaint about fireworks in North Village Apartments.
There was a complaint made by a resident of McClure St. that obscenities were being yelled from the Southwest Residential Area for about an hour. McKimmie staff were notified.
McKimmie staff requested assistance on the third floor, in response to the noise complaint.
There was a complaint about a loud alarm clock in Gorman Residence Hall, which was referred to Gorman staff.

Express yourself. Study abroad.

At Beaver College,we believe that study abroad is an opportunity for you to express yourself in new ways. Our commitment to working with you ensures a fulfilling academic and personal experience. Call us for our 1996-97 program catalogs. Specify Australia, Greece, Great Britain, Ireland, Austria, Peace Studies or Mexico.

1.800.755.5607
cea@beaver.edu
http://www.beaver.edu/

Beaver College
Center for Education Abroad

Collegian Open House

Come see the staff and facilities of New England's largest College Daily

When : Friday, September 29, 1995
Noon- 4:00 p.m.

Everyone and your Mother is invited!!!
This means Non-staff, Staff, Faculty, Amherst Community and Business University workers, your dog, your brother, etc.

 Free Food and Beverage **

■ Powwow entertains; informs diverse crowd

continued from POWWOW page 1

Members of 30-50 different Native American cultures, from Central, North and South America, as well as Canada, gathered for approximately seven hours of dances, storytelling and performances.

Vice-Chancellor for Student Activities Tom Robinson said, "I attended the Powwow this past weekend, and I appreciate the hard work by students and staff to make this wonderful event a reality. I always enjoy participating in the annual Powwow because it illustrates so well the diversity within our campus community."

Each of the two days the powwow began with an opening prayer followed by the Grand Entry, lead by Head Man dancer Marvin Burnette of the Oglala-Lakota Nation and Head Woman dancer, Sandy Funmaker, of the Hochunk Nation. Dancers, dressed in regalia from head to toe, pounded the gymnasium floor of Curry Hicks Cage with soul and rhythm, following the strong beats and song of the drummers.

Family tradition was clearly the tone for the event. Men, women and young children participated in various intertribal dances. One mother held a sleeping baby in her arms as she danced with the others, and children as young as three or four were rolling along with the elders.

Dances included: the women's dance, the children's dance, the elder's dance, as well as dances from the individual tribes represented at the powwow.

"Native American dancing, tribal dancing, is generally taught to us by the elders, many times young kids, if you've actually seen any of them out there, they find the rhythm, they find the beat, and dancing is taught to the native children at an early age, quite often many of them dance before they can walk, that's how early of an age that dancing is started," said Marvin Burnette, the Head Man Dancer for the event.

A dancer performed an impressive Hoop dance, in which he passed through several hoops many times, "just as we pass through the sacred hoop of our mothers," said Ramona Peters, the master of ceremonies for the powwow.

Storyteller Trudie Lamb-Richmond of the Shaticoke Nation attracted children, as well as adults, with Native American tales of mischievous animals and explanations as to why certain things are the way they are in nature.

The Wampanoag Nation Singers and Dancers from Masphee, Ma., performed Eastern Woodland social dances, dances that are unique to the Northeast region. Singer Stanley Buck, an Elder of the Seneca Nation referred to as "the master social dance singer" by current upcoming singers of this style, added his unique touch to the event with his performance and singer/performer Tom Abomsawin of the Abenaki Nation, also performed for the audience.

Assistant Vice Chancellor for Campus Activities Ricardo Townes said, "I think that it was the most successful powwow in recent years; I really enjoyed the children. I think it was successful because a lot of departments and agencies took the chancellor's message of blurring the lines and working together; it was successful because a lot of departments, such as the Athletic department, the Minority Support Program, Physical Plant, and the Chancellor's office made it special."

Francis Huntington of the Stockbridge-Munsee/Oneida Nation concluded, "if you've been to any amount of powwows, after a while, you begin to feel an energy build, usually about midway through the first day, you can almost feel it, you can almost put your hands on it, and grasp it, and it's a healing energy, it'll take away a lot of your anger and frustrations, sadness and sorrow — it does a lot of those things."

Powwow performers voice opinions

By Lisa Chiu
Collegian Staff

The 1995 Annual Intertribal Powwow came and went this past weekend. With it, many participants have taken many memories of cultural and traditional celebration. A few of these participants shared their views on the issues concerning Native Americans.

On the topic of what a powwow meant to him, Marvin Burnette, the Head Man Dancer for the powwow said "One thing I would like to explain that a lot of people have a misconception about, is that a powwow is not a sacred ceremonial event. There are many customs, many traditions, of native people that are sacred, that have a place in religious heritage, but a powwow is a social event, and many things that happen that I see at some powwows, are on a ceremonial basis, and should not be there."

Master of Ceremonies for the powwow, Ramona Peters, of the Mashpee Wampanoag Nation, said, "These powwows are really a way that Native American people can have some sort of economic resource, basically that's what it's about, a place where vendors or craftsmen can bring their ware ... it's sort of a solution to some of our financial problems. As native people, our economic bases have been wiped out from underneath us, and there's very few outlets in which the American people have really extended to us in order to make money. So selling small items and dancing doesn't make us very wealthy, but it's a way in which we can still travel, visit one another, and bask in an intertribal environment."

When asked how he felt about non-Native American individuals participating, and dressing up as Native Americans in events like powwows, Arena Director Francis Huntington, of the Stockbridge-Munsee/Oneida Nation said, "There are people that come because they are lost, they are just looking for something, they don't know what it is. They're humorously called wannabes, a lot of people come to Native American events because in this day in age there's a lot of searching for spirituality, this whole world is watching and they think we're going to be the saviors." On this same subject, Roman Peters said, "It's nice to be admired, and envied, but, it's a failure on the American system to not evolve a culture...it's the women that hold the culture, we hold the babies, we hold the wisdom, when the American Anglo woman came over, she had no voice whatsoever, she never had a place in evolving American culture. I get offended when they come in to our grand entries, the grand entry is when we escort our ancestors into the circle, we don't want to bring their ancestors into dance circle immediately, only on invitation, we didn't have any choice when the Pilgrims landed. I admire other cultures but I would never assume it myself. I cannot take on something that is not in my blood."

On the subject of the American Indian Movement and Leonard Peltier, a Native American that has been in prison for over 18 years, Marvin Burnette said, "That's a sad story that has happened in American history. The American Indian movement in the late '60s and early '70s was a very strong group because it was not only the people on the plains but it was Native people throughout the country that faced the same type of issues that the people faced on Pine Ridge ... but Leonard is a scapegoat ... what it boils down to is that he was at the wrong place at the wrong time, and the government in order to eliminate problem areas in the American Indian Movement, one of their thoughts was to get rid of Leonard.

JAMES STANLEY/COLLEGIAN

The Wampanong Nation Singers and Dancers from Masphee, MA. were featured p rt of the Eastern Woodland Social Dances last Saturday night.

■ aid

continued from page 1

the Bursar's line [for the excess checks]."

A senior communications major, who declined to give her name, said the promissory note signing went relatively quickly and the staff acted professionally.

She admitted she has not yet inquired about her excess check, though she needs the money.

"I've always had hassles with Financial Aid," she said. "So, I'm waiting to get into the right mood before I go in there."

Batty defended the new system, saying that even though the Financial Aid office underestimated the amount of work needed to get it started, their work has paid off now.

"I think most of the students are quite happy with it," he said.

He said he did not think the complaints of long lines were an issue. Instead, he argued that students should realize that they are signing an important document.

For this reason, he said the student loan process must be handled in a thorough manner.

"Lines are a way of life in any college," he said. "I think you've got to put it in perspective in terms of 'How important is this process?' It can't be like punching a time-clock. It can't be that easy."

Roberto Guzman, a senior Hotel Management major, agreed that waiting in line is not an inconvenience.

"The least we can do is go stand in line for two hours," he said. "If it weren't for [Financial Aid] I wouldn't be here."

JAMES STANLEY/COLLEGIAN

Hoping to catch some rays

Jen Kettell, a senior psychology major, makes a "sun catcher" out of colored glass and dried flowers at the Craft Center yesterday afternoon.

Correction

In yesterday's feature on The Women of Color Program the quote: "Western feminists take their conception of family and push it down our throats. Refusing to consider that not all women are part of the white middle class misinterprets the whole conception of family." was incorrectly attributed to Alexandrina Deschamps.
The Collegian regrets the error.

the BLUEWALL presents
DISCO
Every Thursday
Boogie Down All Night Long
FREE ADMISSION
9:30 pm - 1:00 am
70's Costumes encouraged
With D.J.s Billy Arnold and Robert Dwelley
Lighting and Sound By:
Audio Pro Media
"Because You Asked For It"

hat hair
LAST TIME I HAD MY HAIR CUT I HAD TO WEAR A HAT FOR WEEKS
LUCKILY MY FRIENDS TOLD ME ABOUT REGENCY HAIRSTYLISTS ON NO PLEASANT STREET IN DOWNTOWN AMHERST
I CALLED 253-9526 TO SET UP MY APPOINTMENT
By o'Hara
I LIKE MY HAIRCUT SO MUCH THAT I'LL ONLY WEAR MY HAT WHEN IT RAINS

DAILY COLLEGIAN

113 Campus Center • University of Massachusetts Amherst, MA 01003 • (413) 545-3500 • Fax (413) 545-1592

Matt Vautour Editor-in-Chief Juan José Chacón Quirós de Quetzcoatl Managing Editor
Earl T. Martin Business Manager James P. Gurley Production Manager Ethan Bixenfield Advertising Manager
Natasha Kahn Advertising Production Manager Wendy Darling Senior Diversity Editor

Tara MK Connelly Arts & Living Editor Candice Flemming Sports Editor
Christopher Byrd Black Affairs Editor Ron Alpert Staff Artist
Matt Wurtzel Business Editor Laura Schmidt, Aimee Schwartz Women's Issues Editors
Syed Mohammed Ali Raza Developing Nations Editor Marni E. Heffner Editorial Production Manager
Geri Sahn Editorial/Opinion Editor Adam Chace Systems Manager
Wendy Darling Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Issues Editor A.J. Stewart Finance Manager
Jacob W. Michaels Jewish Affairs Editor Ryan Courtemanche Distribution Manager
Hernan Rozemberg Multicultural Affairs Editor Maureen Majerowski Assistant Operations Manager
Chris Taylor Conner News Editor Marty Pappas Classified Advertising
Daymion Smith Photography Editor Thomas F. Sweeney, Jr. Graphics Advisor/Instructor

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published Monday through Friday during the University of Massachusetts calendar semester. The Collegian is financially independent from the University of Massachusetts, operating solely on revenues generated by advertising sales. The paper was founded in 1890 as Aggie Life, became the College Signal in 1901, the Weekly Collegian in 1914 and then the Tri-Weekly Collegian in 1956. The Collegian has been published daily since 1967, and has been a broadsheet publication since January 1994. For advertising rates and information, call (413) 545-3500 weekdays between 8:30 a.m. and 3:30 p.m.

Opinion/Editorial

Speaking about the language problems

Brian Marchionni

I'm not a big fan of generalizations, but I think I'd be pretty safe in saying all human beings want a companion. We absolutely love making more of ourselves, or at least, going through the act of making more of ourselves. In spite of this, we go strutting around the evolutionary ladder, showing off our opposable thumbs and large brains; snickering at those poor animals that can't reason. The fact of the matter is, we're not that great.

If one takes away all the advances we think we're so clever for, the result is an animal that is perpetually in search of companionship. At least half of the things we do are centered around impressing the prospective mate. The difference? A bird prances around making strange noises whilst flashing off its feathers; we pierce our nipples and wear nice clothes.

I am no exception to this rule. Like the rest of the single world, I'm actively looking for "that special someone." About six months ago, I was cast out into the land of Singledom. At first the whole idea of being a single man again was intriguing to me. I had been dating the same person for almost two years, and I thought a change in status would be a funky new adventure.

I was, however, gravely mistaken. Somewhere deep in those two years of couplehood, I had forgotten it is next to impossible to meet "that special someone."

How does one meet people? I see them, that's for sure. I can walk around campus and see literally hundreds of women I would love to meet, but this fact solves nothing. I don't know any of these (possibly) wonderful people.

With the advent of my 21st birthday, I was introduced to the long awaited bar scene. I was under the impression that perhaps this would get me over the meeting people hump. I was wrong.

I feel just a tad too transparent walking up to a woman and...and...and what? Offer her a drink? Ask her if she thinks the Sox are going all the way? These are the things cheesy men in sitcoms do. Funny enough, the cheesy man usually ends up getting a slap or a prompt "not interested."

I guess this is why I don't approach strangers and try to spark up a conversation; I'm too frightened of rejection. By trying to get a conversation going, you take the tremendous risk of making a complete ass of yourself. Unless my blood is about 80 proof that night, this is something I do not enjoy.

Here's the real kicker about the whole situation: I'd bet a substantial amount of money most single women go through the same thing. In speaking with several female friends, I've learned they feel almost exactly the same as the male population. I worry that in approaching a women, I'll seem like a testosterone engorged brute looking for a one night hook up so he can high five his buddies the next morning. She worries that she'll appear to be a tramp with low self esteem.

I know for a fact I'm absolutely thrilled when a woman approaches me and starts up a conversation. Am I to assume woman feel the same way? Even if I did, it would still be a Herculean effort for me to be so socially aggressive.

The bottom line? It seems to me single men and women are running around beating their heads against the wall, hoping they don't have to make the initiative to meet a companion. (Even though the odds are pretty good that they won't make asses of themselves in the process.)

So the next time you chuckle at the mating ritual of a European Swallow, step back and ask yourself if you'd be so bold.

Brian Marchionni is a Collegian staff member.

Single and not so bold

Mark McGarth

Many members of Congress, including Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole and House Speaker Newt Gingrich, think that it's time to make English the official language of The United States. In fact, more than 20 states have already put English-only laws into action. These laws do little to help people who don't speak English and provide nothing but security to those who are resentful and scared of non- English speakers. It's time our leaders spend less time working on symbolic gestures and more time working on the problem at hand.

At the heart of the matter is bilingual education in public schools. Bilingual education began almost 30 years ago to help Mexican-Americans learn English. The programs were successful then, but today the rising number of people from different native countries is creating too big a job for the schools to handle.

Most of the money allocated for bilingual programs is being used to teach non-English speaking students classes in their own native languages. While this type of education may be successful in keeping students on track in other subject areas, it does very little in the way of teaching English. Within the structure, students of bilingual programs may spend as little as 30 minutes each day actually learning English.

There are many other problems with bilingual education. Many students who are put in such programs don't even need to be there. They may speak English very well, but have trouble reading. These students don't need bilingual classes, they need remedial reading classes. Others are pushed there because enrollment is to high in regular classes. Bilingual education is being used for purposes for which it was never intended.

Another problem is the lack of qualified teachers. There is a shortage of about 170,000 bilingual teachers across the country, and jobs are being filled by people who speak two languages, but in some cases never even attended college. Hiring teachers based on one credential will never be conductive to a solid educational program.

Bilingual learning is no longer successful in public schools. In the past, immigrant children have been placed in traditional classrooms where English was the only language spoken. While some may have struggled, many thrived, and more importantly, they learned to speak English, which is more than can be said of the current bilingual programs.

In our society, learning English has many more advantages than learning everything but English. It is used virtually everywhere. Once learned, a strong English background can make it easier to learn other subjects. Therefore, I believe students who cannot speak English ought to take a few years worth of intensive English classes, and then be placed in traditional American classrooms. If they lose a few years in other subjects, it shouldn't really hurt them in the long run.

The United States is currently experiencing a boom in immigration. According to the Census Bureau, 8.7 percent of total American citizens were born outside of the United States. Few of them speak any English at all. Making English their official language does nothing but isolate these people.

When it all comes down to it, English is already the official language of the United States, and will be for many years to come. The question is not whether it should be made official, but whether everyone should be able to speak it. The government has to work on finding the best way of teaching the language, or these immigrants may never be assimilated at all.

Mark McGrath is a Collegian columnist.

A war with no winners

Julie Stoynovich

The situation in the former Yugoslavia, unfortunately for that Southern-European country, has been one of the hottest topics in the press for four years. There are different opinions on the origin of the conflict and the path that it is taking, but not all of them are given equal attention, which results in a lack of objectivity in viewing the problem.

First of all, it is necessary to state that the black-and-white approach to the world has never resulted in making a correct picture. There are no "bad guys" or "good guys," unless the action is taking place in a fairy tale. There is no war when only one side does all the fighting, and there cannot be.

One example is the Chinese annexation of Tibet: There is no open war, for the Tibetan philosophy does not recognize violence. And so, since the "good versus bad" approach is no more effective, there is no sense in identifying one side as aggressors and the other as victims.

The war in Yugoslavia is clearly a civil war where nobody is simply right or wrong — every side is both. Not to mention there are not two, but rather three sides involved.

The situation Serbia and Montenegro have found themselves in leaves much to be desired. The many refugees from Bosnia and Croatia are a great burden for the economy, already weakened by the economic sanctions imposed on the country. There is a new wave of refugees from Kraina (with the capitol in Knin); as of August 1995, tens of thousands of people are left homeless and futureless by the Croatian invasion of the area.

There is a very strong possibility Kraina was not simply invaded, but that there was an agreement between the Croatian president Franjo Tudjman and the Serbian president Slobodan Miloshevich. Unfortunately, the people that were forced to leave the area are still the ones that suffer.

The situation in Belgrade itself is terrible. The economy is ruined, the inflation now is only about 100 percent a year which is very good relative to the 20 percent an hour in December 1994. There is not enough gasoline for the public transportation. The power goes off in the Belgradean houses for at least 2 hours a day all winter, which means there also is no heating.

Not only are there no new jobs being created, but many old ones are being lost. An average monthly income has dropped from about $1,000 in 1990 to $70 in 1995.

The Serbs in Belgrade are not given the right information, but neither are the Croats in Zagreb or the Bosnian Moslems in Sarajevo.

And neither is the rest of the world.

The truth usually becomes apparent post factum and not while a historical process is going on. But in order for the truth to come forward — rather sooner than later — attention must be paid to all the facts and all the possible interpretations.

As of now, however, one thing about Yugoslavia in 1995 is apparent: The war is still going on and there are, and cannot be, any winners.

Julia Stoynovich is a UMass student.

JUST HOLD YOUR NOSE
POWELL
PRO-CHOICE
TOLES ©1995 UNIVERSAL PRESS SYNDICATE
OH, AND REAGAN AND BUSH WERE INSENSITIVE TO RACISM
I THINK I MAY EXPLODE

Crimes that numb our society

Laura Schmidt

Two articles in last week's New York Times caught my attention and left me stunned as to how some people literary have no regard for their fellow human beings.

The articles I read involved rape, and one even involved murder.

Apparently a man, if that's what you choose to call him, named Tony Harrison, was arrested Sept. 16, for attacking and assaulting several women in Brooklyn, N.Y.

Harrison, police said, had preyed on women in the Park Slope and Boerum Hill area in N.Y. for the last 10 months, raping, robbing or attacking them in the lobbies of their apartment buildings, usually after midnight.

Police also said the rapist threatened women with a gun or a knife and told them he would kill them if they screamed.

As I continued to read this disturbing article, I was even more stunned to discover the public was not well informed that a rapist was lurking around their neighborhood.

According to the Times, such crucial information only became available and publicized after the arrested suspect Harrison murdered lesbian Sylvia Lugo and raped her companion.

Following this murder, many residents credited the gay and lesbian community for publicizing the crimes, after they posted fliers on fire boxes or telephone poles and after calling meetings to discuss the crimes.

The community of Seventh Avenue, which includes Park Slope and Boerum Hill, claim that police were slow to publicize the attacks against these women, thus not informing other women to take extra precautions.

Perhaps if police had informed the community more so than they actually did, maybe Harrison would have been caught before victimizing a total of seven women and killing one of them.

It frightens me and many other people, mainly women, that one person believed he had the right to hold such absolute power over his victims.

This belief Harrison held — that he was in control, that he was almighty and he could do anything — is what makes women everywhere look over their shoulder when they hear footsteps while walking alone.

Rape, murder and violence does not deserve a shrug of the shoulders and a simple explanation as an "I told you so," but these days, that's what it receives. Our society has become so numb and has accepted the haunting fact that offenders can easily get away with crimes such as harassment, rape and murder.

Another article in the New York Times reported that while a woman was jogging in Central Park on Sept. 17, she was attacked, savagely beaten, probably raped and then thrown under a stone bridge.

Her body was discovered by two joggers along a narrow finger of water commonly known as the Loch. Investigators said that rain probably erased all footprints that could have answered questions about the murder. The name of the victim was Maria Isabel Pinto Monteiro Alves.

A few people I have talked to concerning this murder seem to believe this woman's death was her own fault because she was jogging alone in the dark.

Perhaps Alves should have been more cautious of where she was jogging and what time of the day it was, but this does not excuse her murderer. To believe that this woman was asking to be murdered is the easy way for certain people to comprehend such a brutal crime as this one.

Rape, murder and violence does not deserve a shrug of the shoulders and a simple explanation as an "I told you so," but these days, that's what it receives. Our society has become so numb and has accepted the haunting fact that offenders can easily get away with crimes such as harassment, rape and murder.

If the victims of the recent rapes and murders in the New York City area involved someone I knew or was close to, I wouldn't be satisfied with an "I told you so."

Think about it. Would you?

Laura Schmidt is a Collegian staff member.

Letters to the Editor

University needs to make more effort

To the Editor:

I am writing in response to the editorial, "A warning to some, a reminder to others," printed Sept. 20, about the attack on a woman outside a Southwest resident hall on Sept. 13. The writer often suggested that women need to take responsibility by "keeping their guard up" and to not walk alone at night in order to avoid assault. She also made the point that the University has hailed to encourage the female population to protect themselves against attacks.

It is also important to recognize that the University has failed in encouraging men to end violent attacks on women. An equal effort should be given to educating men of their responsibility in stopping wrongful abuse of women. Women should not have to walk through any campus, town or city, feeling afraid.

Jennifer Hatch
Amherst

The importance of voting

To the Editor:

As I approached the ballot box in Franklin Dining Commons to vote in last Wednesday's Student Government election, I asked the individual working the ballot box how the voter turn-out was.

He replied, "Good, your ballot is number 200."

Two hundred, I thought to myself, over 350 students live in my dormitory alone with close to 2,000 students residing throughout the entire Central residential area.

Later, I discovered that the electoral apathy present in Central was indicative of the entire campus. In fact, of 17,000 undergraduates at UMass, approximately 850 voted in Wednesday's election.

I find these numbers extremely troubling considering the publicity given to the election, the efforts of the candidates participating in the election, and the convenience of the voting "booths" located throughout campus. In essence, approximately 16,000 of you neglected to vote.

Although voting is a right granted by our Constitution, it is in many ways a privilege; one denied to so many all over the world, yet taken so heavily for granted in the United States.

As a Student Senator, I constantly hear, "What is the SGA going to do for me?" or "When are you going to do something about the food?" etc, etc. When, pray tell, are students not only going to understand the significance of voting, but the importance of Student Government of this campus?

The members of all three branches of the SGA fight hard for the rights of all students on this campus. Every semester, SGA members enact better, more dynamic legislation to empower UMass students, while making this a more inviting university to attend.

It's about time that students began leaning more about the SGA here at UMass. More importantly, it is essential that students begin exercising the one action that empowers every individual on campus. Get out and vote.

Bill Ramsey
Student Senator of Gorman

Letters to the Editor and Columns

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian welcomes and encourages letters to the editor. When writing, please TYPE your letter and keep it to a maximum of 400 words. We would much rather print several concise letters in the limited space available on the page.

The Editorial/Opinion page will occasionally print guest columns, but arrangements must be made in advance. If you feel you have a unique perspective on an issue of general interest, contact the Ed/Op staff before you submit anything longer than a standard letter.

All letters should include a name, address and phone number (for verification purposes only). Students should also include their year and major. The Collegian reserves the right to edit submissions for grammar, clarity and length.

Send all letters to the Ed/Op page c/o the Collegian, 113 Campus Center, UMass.

Letters to the Editor can also be sent through our e- mail account: letters@oit.vms.oit.umass.edu

Arts & Living

Local faves Scud Mountain Boys play at Iron Horse Hall

By Tara MK Connelly
Collegian Staff

SCUD MOUNTAIN BOYS
Iron Horse Music Hall
Sept. 25, 1995

NORTHAMPTON — Sweet and soulful, the indie-country band, Scud Mountain Boys, took quiet command of the Iron Horse stage this Sunday evening.

Illuminated by the light of a small bedside lamp, the quartet immediately created a quiet intimate setting that invited the select crowd to come on in and take a listen.

Playing songs off their debut Pine Box, its follow-up Dance The Night Away and mixing in many unheard tracks, The Scuds led the audience into a false sense of mellow security with "Lift Me Up" only to launch into a heart wrenching cover of Cher's "Gypsies, Tramps and Thieves." The song was well laced with the echoing eeriness of a steel guitar, the faint strumming of a mandolin and a lusicious two part harmony.

Other plaintive ballads included a languid tribute to their South Shore hometown, an ode to lost love and fast paced foot-taping tale of, "where did it all go wrong?"("[She Took His] Picture"). Each lyric and note was played like a well thought out sentence drawing in the listener and holding their attention.

They slowed down their set with "Knieval," their first single from their new label, Sub Pop. The Scuds strolled through this sleepy lazy song whose lyrics seem to simply ask for understanding and patience. This was proceeded by "Silo" (off their highly touted sophomore effort), a song deeply punctuated by a throbbing bass and the signature mandolin trill. Also off their second album was, "Freight of Fire," doused again with a mandolin giving it a foreign flare layered under the country twang of a steel guitar.

The last song was a new percussion driven number, "Down in a Deep Hole," that carried the same refreshing sincerity all their songs somehow managed to contain.

With instruments upright and playing with careful attention and quiet seriousness that bespoke their light-hearted bantering, the Scud Mountain Boys put on a most memorable show. Drummer, Tom Shea, stated before the encore (as his bandmates left the stage), "Why leave when we're gonna come back anyway?" and one certainly hoped they would, knowing that when they did, they'd sound better than ever. A

Mystery & plot twists make film an unusual treat

By Laura Stack
Collegian Staff

THE USUAL SUSPECTS
Directed by Bryan Singer with Kevin Spacey, Gabriel Byrne, Stephen Baldwin
Playing at Academy of Music

Five of the most cunning and nefarious criminals in New York City are brought together in a police lineup on a trumped-up charge. Coincidence? Probably not.

Alone, each one is dangerous. Together, these criminal masterminds are deadly. In fact, only one man who links these suspects together is deadlier, and he is the infamous Keyser Söze.

Who is Keyser Söze? That is what we try to figure out for the duration of this labyrinthine tale of corruption, greed and villainous back-stabbing. Söze is a mythical rogue — the sound of his name makes the most hardened of criminals tremble with fear. Some wonder if he even exists because the legend that precedes his name is unfathomably horrific.

These five "usual suspects" are dark and surreptitious by nature, but also some of the most colorful characters ever encountered in a film noir. We laugh at their antics, we fear their actions and we sympathize with their plights to get out of the web of crime they have entangled themselves in.

Gabriel Byrne (The Crying Game) stars as Dean Keaton, an ex-convict for whom the police detective (Chazz Palminteri) has a chip on his shoulder. Keaton is trying to rebuild a crime-free life, but, under the frightening influence of Keyser Söze, he finds himself roped back into committing felonies.

Three other felons in this dastardly mix include Kevin Pollack, Stephen Baldwin and Benicio Del Toro as Hockney, McManus and Fenster, respectively. Hockney is a hilariously sarcastic weapons man. Baldwin proves his acting has range beyond Threesome as McManus is convincingly snide and simultaneously ruthless. Fenster, when you can comprehend his mumbled dialogue, delivers several amusing lines.

Kevin Spacey shines in the role of "Verbal" Kent — a softspoken crippled ex-con who has acquired immunity from the law. Through a detailed confession to the police, Verbal expertly narrates the film.

These days it is virtually impossible to make a trendy action film (with a twist of comedy) about white collar gangsters without it being compared to the pop-direction of Quentin Tarantino. With The Usual Suspects, director Bryan Singer deserves his own limelight, not the stereotypical judgement that would place him in Tarantino's shadow. Singer utilizes the flashback technique in a way that is engaging, but not confusing. As for filming style, his slow- motion shots add to the drama at key points in the plot. The gripping film becomes more of a mystery than anything else, and it periodically raises your pulse until you reach the heart-arresting conclusion.

The dramatic plot twist of this white-knuckled mystery provides the audience with an addictive thrill, which proves that The Usual Suspects is anything but your usual crime thriller. A

COURTESY PATTI PEDRO

Gabriel Byrne (seen here in Miller's Crossing) plays Keaton in The Usual Suspects.

THE BROTHERS MCMULLEN
Directed by Edward Burns
with Edward Burns, Mike McGlone, Jack Mulcahy
Playing at Pleasant St. Theater

The Brothers McMullen has the typical indepenedent film trait of being a little rough around the edges, but the wonderful direction and deliciously funny dialogue prove that it is really a jewel in the rough.

The story of how the film was created is a triumph in itself. A young and extremely promising Edward Burns wrote and directed Brothers, as well as financed it, filmed it in his parents' Long Island home and casted it with all of his friends. As scanty budgets go, Burns attempts to make the best of it cinematically, but the real work of art is the screenplay. Fresh dialogue, in the Long Island Irish Catholic vernacular is delivered quickly and is bluntly hilarious.

This sentimental comedy is the portrait of an Irish-American family (dysfunctional, of course) of which each member has his own personal struggle. The film commences with the mother McMullen leaving for Ireland to finally be with her long-lost love before the black garb from her husband's funeral has been taken off. She confides in her son Finbar (Barry), played by Burns, that she sacrificed this love for her now-deceased alcoholic, wife beating and child abusing husband to raise her children in their Irish Catholic home.

Barry's attitude towards love has been poisoned by seeing his mother's torment over the years, and therefore refuses to make any commitment towards the women he dates. Conflict arises when Barry meets a woman who wonderfully challenges his resilience towards falling in love. Maxine Bahns plays this love interest, however her somewhat unprofessional performance leaves a lot to be desired, and it takes away from Burns' hilarious and natural behavior in front of the camera.

Entertaining albeit unseasoned actors Mike McGlone and Jack Mulcahy play the other two brothers, Patrick and Jack. Patrick is a devout Catholic who struggles with the tenets of his religion daily, such as the fact that his girlfriend is Jewish, how he should not have premarital sex and how he should not use birth control (all of which he does). On the other end of the spectrum is the oldest brother Jack, who has a midlife crisis, is afraid to begin a family and is tempted by an old flame to cheat on his wife.

The Brothers McMullen is a witty and upbeat film despite the serious issues that are dealt with (watch for the infamous "banana" scene). If his first film is indicative of his raw talent, we can expect great things from Burns in the future. B+

There's still time to get your own
MicroFridge ®!

Call or write and we'll be able to bring a genuine MicroFridge unit to you for your use! Enjoy...
➜ Cold Drinks
➜ Ice Cream
➜ Frozen Food
➜ Hot Drinks & Meals
... Whenever you want them!

It's not too late, but don't wait! Call Now Toll Free:
Deadline October 1! (800) 577-8041 Deadline October 1!
MasterCard and Visa Accepted

I accept your offer for the use of the personal refrigerator at U. Mass. My full payment is enclosed. I, the LESSEE, have read the terms and conditions of the Rental Agreement available at the Housing Office, and in ordering I understand and agree thereto.

Please Furnish me with:
❑ MicroFridge ® MF2 multipliance @ $150.00, plus $25.00 refundable deposit = $175.00
❑ I have enclosed a check or money order for the full payment
❑ I wish to charge this rental to (circle one) Mastercard / Visa

Signature: _____ Card #: _____ Expiration: /
Print Name: _____
School: _____ Box Number: _____
Residence Hall: _____ Room #: _____
Phone #: _____ Social Security #: _____
Home Address: _____ Home Phone #: _____

Mailing Address: MicroFridge, Inc. One Merchant Street, Sharon, MA 02067

Belly brings back bubblegum pop

Tanya Donnelly & Belly to bombard Pearl Street with pop hits

By Mike Burke
Collegian Staff

A few years ago the only female led bands that could be heard on alternative rock stations were the Bangles and Siouxshe and the Banshees. These days every time you turn the dial on your radio your ears are sure to be overwhelmed with her high pitch girls leading bands like Veruca Salt, Letters to Cleo or Belly. All of them have a number of catchy bubblegum pop songs that are sung by "I'm cuter than you" female singers.

Tanya Donelly will bring her bleached blonde hair and band, Belly, to the Pearl Street stage tonight to prove their worth amongst the bubblegum girl club.

Almost a decade ago Donelly emerged on the Boston rock scene with the Throwing Muses who also featured Kristin Hersh. Through several albums the band influenced an entire generation of girl led bands. There has been a long lasting debate as to who was the genius behind the Muses? Donelly or Hersh?

Since the departure of Donelly it has become obvious: they both were. The Throwing Muses are still churning out delightful pop gems while the Donelly led Belly has achieved much fame and recognition since the release of their debut album, Star.

Featuring the hits, "Feed the Tree" and "Gepetto" Belly dominated the airwaves two years ago and with good reason. Donelly was writing some of the catchiest tunes around. Besides plenty of airtime, the band was nominated for two Grammys and two MTV awards.

As a live band they have toured the world over from Europe to Japan to Australia. In England their first single, "Feed the Tree" went straight to number one, almost unprecedented for a debut single by an American band. Their past live shows in the Valley proved to their fans that they were as tight live as on record.

With the release of their sophomore effort, King, the band has remained in the limelight of the alternative rock world. Are they still the fun and bouncy band seen at the Student Union Ballroom two years ago? That is yet to be determined but surely they will entertain the crowd with past hits as well as newer tracks.

Belly will play Pearl Street tonight at 8 p.m. The show is 18+ and tickets are $12.50 adv. For information and tickets call The Northampton Box Office at 586-8686.

MATTHEW SINCLAIR/ COLLEGIAN

A picture perfect view of Niagara Falls.

Take a trip to the Niagra Falls

Matt Sinclair

NEW YORK —After a tiring seven hour trip we finally arrived at our destination. It was a typical American motel — low cost, no frills, situated four miles from the Falls on Niagra Falls Boulevard.

It hadn't been a particularly long journey, but having had five people crushed into an economy rent-a-car it had been a squeeze to say the least.

After getting up quite early the next day, we set off for Canada. After parking the car on the U.S. side we made our way as pedestrians over the Rainbow Bridge which links the two countries. As four of us weren't U.S. or Canadian citizens we got our passports and visas ready and passed through immigration. Passports stamped, we finally got off the bridge and landed on Canadian soil. I was surprised to find it so similar to the U.S. What had I expected? Excrations in fluent French perhaps, or maybe some "Mounties," the like of which I'd seen back home on television. Naive to say the least ...

As we walked along the ridge the American Falls suddenly came into full view and I couldn't help but be impressed at the sheer drop and power of the water as it plummeted downward, seeming to boil at the bottom as clouds of mist and vapor soared upwards.

We went to the "Maid of the Mists" ticket booth and after buying our tickets, took the elevator down and emerged at the foot on the far side of the falls. We were each given a fluorescent blue bundle which turned out to be a raincoat; I couldn't help thinking it would have been more useful as a giant bin-liner but it had its uses, especially on entry to the Horseshoe where the spray and wind attacked us from all sides.

As the boat slowly entered the Horseshoe we became enveloped by the immense walls of descending water which make up the Falls. I can only liken the experience to how I imagine it would feel to be in the eye of a hurricane — awe inspiring but at the same time humbling as you attempt to quantify the energy involved!

Over the loud-speaker the captain related the story about the seven-year-old boy who was swept over the Falls but who was miraculously saved and picked up by a "Maid of the Mist" vessel. Was this little anecdote based on reality or from the Superman film?

I couldn't help but wonder what it must be like to be swept over and then under the falls, only to find oneself rising out of the depths to be frantically photographed by a mass of blue-clad tourists. He allegedly lived at least. I was more amazed at the number of people who had gone over the Falls in a barrel, coroner being the only ones that would end up photographing them!

The noise wasn't as loud as I had anticipated but I was more concerned with gripping the rail as the boat continued to rock and jolt, trying to maintain its unnaturally close position to the full force of the Falls. Finally the boat turned and it was rapidly swept back downstream where it docked once more. It had been an adventure to say the least.

We spent the rest of the day marvelling at the Falls from different angles — especially from the famous Table Rock vantage point on the Canadian side which offers a terrifyingly close and uninhibited view of the Horseshoe Falls.

It had been a terrific weekend and returning to the University of Massachusetts seemed rather boring after having had such a fun time. I had caught the travel-bug and the first symptom was trying to decide where to go next. New York City, or perhaps the Grand Canyon ..

Niagra Falls is at least a 7 hour drive from UMass and you can choose between either the U.S. or Canadian side to stay on, (if you are a foreign student planning to cross into Canada do not forget to get your visa documents signed at the Foreign Student Office at South Hills or else you won't be allowed back into the U.S.) Motel accommodation is plentiful and cheap but it's best to go outside holiday weekends and the main holiday periods.

Matt Sinclair is a Collegian Correspondent.

"In Collaboration" on display at the Hampden Gallery

By H. Varick Pelton
Collegian Correspondent

"IN COLLABORATION"
Hampden Gallery
Sept. 21 – Oct. 13

The Hampden Gallery opened a joint exhibition Thursday, September 21 of works by Cathy Osman and Timothy J. Segar. The exhibit, titled "In Collaboration," features two large composite drawings by the artists worked on together.

The first drawing, titled "Concurrent," was created by both artists working simultaneously on the piece. "Consecutive," the second collaborative work, was created by each artist alternating work on the same piece, but at different times.

The artists mentioned that this type of collaboration was a first for both of them, and that both pieces represented an approximate 50/50 effort by each.

The remainder of the exhibit contains individual works by the two artists. Some of Osman's works include four abstract paintings she in oil on canvas. These colorful paintings entitled "Pond" and "May Hatch" are the pre-

Turn to HAMPDEN page 7

"Armed" by Timothy J. Segar

COURTESY WHEELER GALLERY

TRAVEL SMART!
FROM NEW YORK

	One Way	Roundtrip
LONDON	$146	$292
PARIS	$213	$426
SAN JOSE, COSTA RICA	$220	$439
TOKYO		$859

Scheduled flights. Fares to worldwide destinations. Eurailpasses Available.
Weekend surcharges may apply. Customs-immigration taxes apply. Fares subject to change without notice. Int'l. student I.D. cards may be required.
PRISM TRAVEL
342 Madison Ave., NY, NY 10173
212-986-8420*
800-272-9676
*In NYC

UNIVERSITY BARTENDING™
•Professional Bartending and Bar Management Training at a fraction of the cost at most schools
•Full certification in as little as six weeks
•Specific programs tailored to your specific needs
•T.I.P.S.™ and Serv-Safe™ certification available
•Approved by the National Restaurant Association
FREE INFO SESSION
Wednesday, Sept. 27th
7:00 pm
Lord Jeffrey Inn
Shop around and compare!
1-800-U-CAN-MIX
Call for more information.
Act now! Space is limited!!

DAILY COLLEGIAN Presents...
LOOK FOR IT!
Friday, October 13, 1995
EXPLORING NORTHAMPTON

Any Two Calzones only $7.95 price includes tax
Fall Specials Save in Twos 256-6100
Two Large Cheese Pizzas only $12.00 price includes tax
Regular, Whole Wheat & Corn Bread Crusts Available on Pizza & Calzones
CANTONE'S PIZZA CO. 256-6100 45 RPM 481 West Street Amherst, MA
FREE DELIVERY 256-6100 Open 4pm - 2am 7 Days $7.00 Min. on M/C & Visa
Any Two Large Subs only $8.00 price includes tax
No Coupons Needed With These Specials 256-6100
Any Two Large 1-Item Pizzas only $14.00 price includes tax

■ men's soccer

continued from page12

is now the biggest game of our season, and one of the biggest and most pivotal so far. We just have to see what we can do now."

Last season, the Hawks came to Richard F. Garber Field and nearly knocked off the Minutemen, falling 3–2 in OT. Joe Jacobson scored his only goal of the season to defeat the Hawks in a thriller.

If the Minutemen can utilize the momentum generated on Saturday, they should have no problems with the Hawks. The entire UMass side excelled on Saturday and similar performances will be needed to top a tough Hartford side.

Eric Gruber and the defensive corps of Bennie Sheally, Steve Jones and Brad Miller, turned away the Terrier attack. Meanwhile, Mike Butler stepped his game up another notch, along with Karsten Bremke and Dave Siljanovski to fuel the UMass offense.

The Minutemen leave directly from Hartford for San Francisco and a solid effort tomorrow will ensure an enjoyable flight.

JAMES STANLEY / COLLEGIAN

Mike Butler, the hero in UMass' upset win over BU on Saturday, will pose a threat to the Hawks' defense today in Hartford.

■ women's tennis

continued from page12

we've got momentum on our side," Dixon said. "But we are going into the toughest part of the season."

Going into today's match with PC, Dixon was uncertain with the lineup she was going to go with. Depending on how the players responded in practice over the weekend, decisions would be made prior to the match. However, she feels very confident in whatever lineup she chooses.

"I think we are a strong, deep team so that when need be, I can substitute players," Dixon said. "That has helped us stay focused and competitive."

Having lost by only a point to PC last year, Dixon searched for recruits this year that could help propel the doubles play. What she found was freshman Jackie Braunstein who was recruited mainly for her doubles ability. Not only has Braunstein delivered in doubles play, she has been an unexpected surprise in singles play, with a 4–0 record going into today's match.

"Our goal was to win the close matches we lost last year," Dixon said. "With our improved doubles play, I think we will pull those out this year."

Led by senior co-captain Liesl Sitton and junior co-captain Liz Durant, UMass faces a tough squad in the Lady Friars, who are coming off a brilliant campaign in which they were crowned New England Champions. They should be just as tough this year. Dixon is confident that if the Minutewomen play up to their abilities, they will be able to continue the success they have

Mariners closing in on title

By Jim Cour
Associated Press

SEATTLE — Lou Piniella is emphatic.

"We haven't won anything yet," the Seattle Mariners' third-year manager said.

No, they haven't. But they're getting close.

When the Mariners play California in the Kingdome today and tomorrow, they will be in position to virtually close out the Angels and move within one victory of wrapping up the AL West. With six games to go, the Mariners hold a two-game lead over the Angels, who appeared to have the division wrapped up at the start of September.

The Mariners overtook the Angels because California collapsed and because they're playing the best baseball in the team's 19-year history. Seattle has won 21 of its last 29 games since Ken Griffey Jr. beat the New York Yankees with a ninth-inning home run on Aug. 24.

"We've been playing well," Piniella said. "We've been playing with a lot of intensity. We've been hitting the ball well. We've been getting the good pitching."

But, he cautioned, "there's nothing to get euphoric about yet. We've got some work to do."

The Mariners will send Andy Benes (0-1) against Shawn Boskie (7-6) in the first game against the Angels. In Game 2, Piniella will go with Tim Belcher (10-10) against Mark Langston (15-6). For the first time ever, the Mariners have a magic number. Any combination of Seattle wins and California defeats that add up to five would give the Mariners their first division title.

If the Mariners sweep the Angels, their magic number will be one. Seattle winds up the regular season with a four-game series in Arlington, Texas, against the Rangers.

The Mariners have caught the city's fancy. For the three-game weekend Oakland series, exuberant crowds of 51,500, 54,589 and 46,714 screamed until their voices were hoarse as the Mariners came from behind twice for victories.

"There's a lot of enthusiasm, a lot of excitement, a lot of anticipation," Piniella said. "If there was a doubt about Seattle not being a viable major-league city, I think this should remove it."

The biggest symbol of doubt Monday remained last week's public vote on whether to build a new $325 million stadium with a retractable roof. The measure led by a razor-thin margin of 310 votes, with updated totals scheduled to be released late Monday afternoon.

Piniella, though, was optimistic about baseball's future in the Northwest. "I think no matter what happens, they'll get a new stadium in town," he said. "I think if you took a sampling in the clubhouse, everybody wants the team to stay here. Which it will."

The Mariners have been particularly hot at home. They've won 14 of their last 16 games. Their hitters have produced 121 runs in those 16 games, hitting 35 home runs.

"Right now, they are really hot," said reliever Rick Honeycutt, a former Mariners pitcher who was acquired by the Yankees from the A's on Monday. "They've put the pieces together. They've made some good veteran acquisitions down the stretch."

Carlos Perez posts bail

By Karyn Spellman
Associated Press

ATLANTA — Carlos Perez of the Montreal Expos posted bond and walked out of jail Monday, several hours after a judge refused to drop rape charges against him.

The 24-year-old rookie pitcher was arrested Saturday on charges of rape and aggravated sodomy after a 20-year-old woman accused him of forcing her to have sex in his hotel room after they met on a blind date.

Perez, wearing a multicolored beret and matching vest, a black T-shirt and jeans, hugged his lawyer before leaving jail. He said he wants to pitch this week, and Expos general manager Kevin Malone said Perez could be on the mound as early as Thursday in Montreal against Cincinnati.

He'll rejoin the team Tuesday in Miami, where the Expos are playing the Florida Marlins.

"All I can say is that I'm not guilty," Perez said.

The pitcher was released on $50,000 bond after Municipal Court Judge Howard Johnson turned over the case to Fulton County Superior Court. Superior Court Judge Philip Etheridge agreed to let Perez go free but said he must have no contact with the victim. Perez' attorney, Guy Davis, made arrangements for the bond.

"There was no force — there was no evidence of that," Davis said. "He said everything was consensual."

Earlier in the day, Perez stood shaking his head "no" and holding his hands clasped behind his back as the woman told Johnson how he pinned her on the bed in his hotel room and raped and sodomized her hours after his 5-1 loss to the Atlanta Braves on Friday night. Dressed in red prison pants and shirt, Perez listened as his accuser said she felt she had no choice but to go with him to his hotel room.

She testified she met Perez at a bar Friday night and gave him her telephone number, then went outside with him to wait for friends to pick her up. When a cab came by, Perez said, "Come on, let's go," she said.

She said she knew Perez probably wanted to have sex, but she went to his room anyway because she thought she could refuse him. "I was concerned about being with him, but I felt if I told him I didn't want to do anything, that would be it," she said. Under questioning from Davis, she acknowledged she did not call to the crowd in front of the bar before she got into the taxi. Nor did she seek help from anyone as they went to the room.

Bill Stoneman, Expos vice president for operations, accompanied Perez to the court hearing and met him at the jail. "It was a total surprise," Stoneman said. "This has been on the minds of the players. ... Most of the concern has been for Carlos himself." The players were told of the arrest before Saturday's game against the Braves.

"Everybody knows he's free-spirited," Malone said. "But nobody would say he's mean or belligerent. They're surprised. Nobody can believe he would do that."

Malone said the Expos organization believes Perez is innocent, which is why he'll be allowed to rejoin the team.

"The facts came out today in the preliminary hearing that showed strong evidence that he's not guilty," Malone said. "To me it was an unfortunate situation. I believe he was falsely accused, so I don't think he should be punished for something I don't think he did."

Perez, a native of the Dominican Republic, was in contention for NL Rookie of the Year before stumbling recently. He is 10-8, but hasn't won since Aug. 6, going 0-5 with three no-decisions. He is the youngest brother of Pascual Perez, who pitched with the Expos, the New York Yankees and the Braves. Another brother, Melido, pitches for the Yankees.

Marlins tryout Gooden

MIAMI (AP) - Dwight Gooden, the former New York Mets pitcher suspended in 1995 for drug abuse, threw for 10 minutes in a tryout Monday with the Florida Marlins.

"He said he really wants to be here," said Gary Sheffield, the Marlins' right fielder and a nephew of Gooden's. "I'm extremely excited because I know what he's been through this whole year. He's been miserable. If this hasn't taught him a lesson, nothing will." Gooden, 30, won the 1985 Cy Young Award and led the New York Mets to the world championship in 1986. He has been suspended three times in the past four years for drug violations.

General manager Dave Dombrowski was encouraged by the tryout. "I feel good about him and feel good about the way he threw," Dombrowski said. "He understands he has an addiction and a problem." Gooden can't negotiate a contract until after the season. Last year with New York, Gooden went 3-4 and had a 6.31 ERA in seven games.

■ Hampden

continued from page 6

vailing view from outside the gallery's marvelous wall of picture windows.

In contrast to the color, four large white sculptures by Segar dominate the center of the gallery. The sculptures are grouped together to create a "theater of forms."

The artists, who are married to each other, met at Berkeley where both completed an M.A. in Fine Arts, and Segar a second M.F.A. in Sculpture in 1979. Segar is currently Assistant Professor of Art at Amherst College. Osman has been a member of the art faculty at Hampshire College and Smith College.

Hampden Gallery is located in Hampden Commons, in the Southwest Residential Area, at the top of the horseshoe off University Drive. The gallery is open Mon.–Fri. 3 p.m. – 7 p.m., Sun. 2 p.m. – 5 p.m.

Pat Riley meets his new team

By Steven Wine
Associated Press

HIALEAH, Fla. — The media outnumbered the players Monday when Pat Riley held his first workout as coach of the Miami Heat. The start of a three-day mini-camp drew 17 prospects, all hoping for an invitation to training camp next week. Some 20 reporters and photographers were on hand to chronicle the event.

Riley said it was good to be back on the court after an eventful offseason. Following lengthy negotiations between the Heat and his former team, the New York Knicks, Riley signed a contract Sept. 2 for an estimated $15 million over five years.

"There were times this summer when I didn't think anything was going to get done," Riley said. "One day you feel like it's going to happen, the next day you feel like it could be forever. But believe me, I've left it in my rearview mirror. I'm not looking back. It's business as usual — a good practice with the players working hard."

The occasion was hardly formal for basketball's most glamorous coach, with Riley unshaven and chewing gum as he led a two-hour workout in shorts and a Heat polo shirt.

Among those invited to attend the mini-camp were eight veterans and two 7-footers, including Alan Ogg, who was the Heat's 12th man in 1990-92. The most experienced player was 6-11 Greg Foster, who has been with five NBA teams the past five seasons.

"We need some bigger players," Riley said. "We ended up bringing in nine big guys, so we have some size. Hopefully in a couple of days, we can pick out a couple of guys that we can bring back to training camp."

Riley has yet to meet with most of the Heat players under contract, but he hopes to do so before training camp begins Oct. 6.

Collegian Graphics
Up all night to produce
New England's BEST college daily

BOYDEN
FLEX FITNESS CENTER AMHERST, MA
253-3539
IT ISN'T

STUDY ABROAD
Semester, Summer and Year Programs
Ecuador • Spain
England • France
Canada • Mexico
Costa Rica • Italy
INTERNATIONAL isa STUDIES ABROAD
817 W 24th St
Austin TX 78705
(800) 580-8826
•SINCE 1987•

UMASS BIKE SALE
September 26 & 27
BY THE POND
Great Deals on New and Used Mountain Bikes from:
Giant, Cannondale and others...
Starting at $249.00
Free Umass Bike Registration Too!
Sponsored by the
UMASS SKI CLUB

Loaf 'em or leaf 'em.

ZAMA
Amherst
William Town
Brattleboro

What are the Most Powerful Words In Your Permanent Record?
(check one)
☐ Transcript
☐ Resumé
☐ Diploma
✓ The Wall Street Journal
For special student rates send in coupon below or for faster service call (800) WSJ-8614
7am-10pm Eastern Time Mon.-Fri.
☐ Send me a one-year subscription for $87.00
☐ I'd prefer a 15-week subscription for $33.00
Name
Address
City State Zip
School name Graduation date
☐ Check enclosed ☐ Bill me later ☐ Charge to my: ☐ AMEX ☐ VISA ☐ MasterCard ☐ Diners Club
Card no. Expiration date
Signature
THE WALL STREET JOURNAL.
Mail coupon to: The Wall Street Journal 200 Burnett Road, Chicopee, MA 01020
©1995 Dow Jones & Company, Inc. All Rights Reserved. Offer good for a limited time and only in the continental U.S.
7N92

Change Lanes
NEW ROUTE OPENED
40
Some
U-Turns
THE
UMASS
CAREER
CENTER
Where the Present Meets the Future
RETURN TO SCHOOL ZONE
DETOURS
30
No
Limits
NO ONE WAY
20
CONSULT MAPS

Welcome to the Career Information Highway ..... Where the Present Meets the Future

Options, options, options....your first job is not necessarily for the rest of your life

Your career path is an open road .... with information stops, side roads, detours, and even some U turns.

Come find out what it's all about as the Career Information Highway comes to life in the Campus Center Auditorium for the

Career Center Open House
Wednesday September 27
from 10-3

co-sponsored by EDS, Filene's - a division of May Dept. Stores Co., and Procter & Gamble

Open your mind... think beyond the confines of your major.... let the Career Center be your guide.

Resume clinic ~~~ Mock Interviews~~~
~~~ Food ~~~ Fun ~~~ Prizes ~~~ Giveaways ~~~ ~~~Displays ~~~
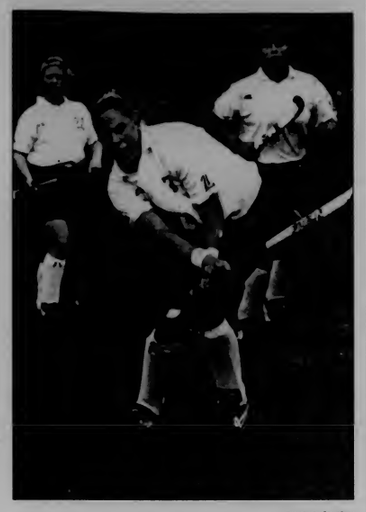
!!!Recent alums, employers ready to talk with you~~~
~~~The latest job search technology~~~
~~~Interview signups by phone~~~Networking~~~
~~~Co-ops~~~Internships~~~
~~~Career Planning Courses~~~Grad school information~~~

Don't miss this important event!
First year through graduate students welcome!

$1,000 IN DOOR PRIZES!!
FREE resume referral software packets
Autographed UMASS basketballs
Gift certificates from local businesses

Please note: The Main Center at Mather will be closed for this event



THANG VO / COLLEGIAN

Moving on up

Erica Iverson, who has been playing solid defense so far this season, and her Minutewomen teammates are heading to Florida this weekend for two tough matches.

Boston Garden's final event tonight

By Jimmy Golen
Associated Press

BOSTON — If there are any memories left in the Boston Garden, now is the time for them to come out from behind the pillars.

Tonight's exhibition game between the Boston Bruins and the Montreal Canadiens is the final event slated for the 67-year-old building. The banners will be taken down from the Garden rafters on Friday night and raised in the new arena on Saturday.

"It's time," Bruins Hall of Famer Bobby Orr said Monday at a reception at the New England Sports Museum. "It's creaky, and we all get a little creaky. But the memories we'll always have. She's been a great, grand building. But it's an old building and we have to go on."

John Bucyk, who as the team's captain in 1970 was the last Bruin to accept the Stanley Cup on the Garden ice, agreed. "It's going to be a sad day when it goes down," he said. "But we need a new building. And we've got a new building. And it's gorgeous."

The $160 million FleetCenter has airconditioning and unobstructed views and escalators and all the "modern" things that the dilapidated Garden lacks. But to Milt Schmidt, who first played in the Garden when he was 18 years old and the building was 6, the Garden once looked modern, too.

"At the time, they didn't have any of those things. It was like a new building," the former Bruins star said. "Now I'm seeing another new building because the good Lord has allowed me to stick around this long." Schmidt's No. 15 will hang from the FleetCenter rafters with Orr's No. 4 and Bucyk's No. 9, as they did in the Garden. Schmidt said he had two favorite memories of the old building: his first game, and winning the Stanley Cup in 1939.

To another generation of ex-Bruins, though, it is a different Cup victory that stands out in their minds. Like most Bruins fans, they place Orr's game-winning goal to clinch the 1970 Stanley Cup at the top of their list.

"When Bobby scored that goal, there's no question about that," goaltender Gerry Cheevers said. "I love the old Garden. To me it's the greatest sports arena in all of sports."

JAMES STANLEY / COLLEGIAN

Watch out!

Erica Johnston and the rest of the Minutewomen are preparing for their game against national power Northeastern tomorrow.

■ basketball

continued from page 12

rowed his choices to UMass, UConn and a trio of Atlantic Coast Conference schools (Florida State, GT and Maryland).

Carrawell had a bit of a rough summer, but is still considered by many to be among the top 20 potential recruits. Carrawell's list however hasn't been narrowed down much, as 10 schools are reportedly still involved.

• Although he's a bit undersized, Todd Palmer is among the nation's most highly regarded centers. Considered a very smart player, Palmer will look to balance a pre-med major along with basketball.

Minuteman notes: There are only 17 days remaining to Midnight Madness, CBS/ESPN announcer Sean McDonough might be this year's guest master of ceremonies...Joining the UMass broadcast team this year will be former Minuteman standout Tony Barbee. He will join new play-by-play man Marc Vandameer and returning commentator Jack Leaman for the broadcast... UMass will open its season on Nov. 28, when they take on Kentucky in the Great Eight Tournament.

Yankees acquire Honeycutt

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Yankees, seeking a left-handed reliever in their bid for the wild-card playoff berth in the American League, acquired Rick Honeycutt from the Oakland Athletics Monday.

The 41-year-old Honeycutt, a 19-year major leaguer, was obtained for an undisclosed amount of cash. He was 5-1 with a 2.42 ERA and two saves in 49 relief appearances with Oakland.

To make room for Honeycutt on their 40-man roster, the Yankees designated right-hander Jeff Patterson for assignment. Patterson, who spent most of the season with AAA Columbus, was 0-0 with a 2.70 ERA in three appearances with the Yankees.

The Yankees lead the California Angels by a half-game in the wild-card race. Neither team was scheduled Monday.

Sanders has surgery

CORAL GABLES, Fla. (AP) — Deion Sanders underwent successful surgery on his left ankle Monday, the Dallas Cowboys said.

"We are very, very encouraged by the results of the surgery," Cowboys spokesman Rich Dalrymple said after the one-hour procedure. Dr. John Uribe of the Health South Doctor's Hospital performed the surgery on Sanders, who wrapped up his baseball season with the San Francisco Giants on Sunday.

Sanders signed a $35 million deal to play football for the Cowboys after rejecting offers from several other teams, including the Super Bowl champion San Francisco 49ers, the team he played for last season.

Dalrymple said Sanders will spend several days in Florida before flying to Dallas to begin his rehabilitation program.

"We have no idea on timetable for him to be on the field," Dalrymple said. "Doctors removed two loose bodies (fragments) from the ankle."

Sanders hoped to be ready to play Oct. 29 when the Cowboys play the Atlanta Falcons. The 49ers are at Texas Stadium on Nov. 12.

■ men's water polo

continued from page12

Yarworth. "I'm never satisfied. We have the potential to be a very good team."

Already a very good team, the Minutemen went into the weekend ranked No. 13 nationally, and could conceivably move into the top ten in the country with their strong showing in Providence, R.I.

Yarworth and his charges come home for the first time this season on Sept. 28 to host the Boston College Eagles at Amherst College.

After the match against BC, Massachusetts has an away meet before they come back to Amherst for the first annual Minuteman Invitational on Oct. 7-8. Along with UMass, five other clubs will competing in this event: Navy, Brown, Richmond, Queens and BC. The feature match will be on Saturday, Oct. 7 at 7 p.m. when the Minutemen square off with Navy, the team responsible for the only imperfection in UMass' record thus far in 1995.

The Campus Center 25th Anniversary Committee
Presents
DISCO
Blues & Jazz In The Bluewall
9pm MONDAYS
Street Musicians on the Campus Center Concourse
WEDNESDAYS
12:00pm - 1:30pm
Sept. 20th playing the steele drum
The Art Steele/Blues Band Sept. 18th
JAZZOTREE Oct. 2nd
Peter Orphanos Quartet Oct 16th
THE STEVE PICCOLO INTERNATIONAL TRIBUTE OCT 30TH
Wilbert Harrison Blues Band Nov. 13th
The Cape Cod Series 12pm TUESDAYS 3pm
Khmer Music Awakened Sept. 19th
Papa Bunka Susso Sept 26th
The Rhythm Mission (With Tony Vacca & Steve Loicach) Oct. 3rd

CAREER OPPORTUNITY
THE NEW ENGLAND FINANCIAL GROUP
IS HOSTING AN INFORMATIONAL SEMINAR
Thursday, September 28, 1995
from
5:30pm - 7:30pm
in our offices at:
117 Park Avenue, West Springfield.
Call Marylinda at 413 • 748 • 6535
for reservations

THE BLACK SHEEP
79 MAIN ST
AMHERST, MA
253 3442
10 % DISCOUNT TO STUDENTS ALL YEAR WITH UMASS ID.

Voted BEST in the Valley
FAMOUS FOR
2 BURGS 2 BUCKS
PETE'S DRIVE-IN
ROUTE 9
HADLEY, MA
YEAR 'ROUND

Golden Key National Honor Society
Attention:
Golden Key National Honor Society Members
General Membership Meeting
WHEN: Tuesday, September 26, 1995
TIME: 7:00 P.M.
WHERE: Campus Center -See Schedule
Programming for the year will be discussed.
***
We look forward to seeing you there!

The New Club Castaway
Home of Adult Entertainment in Franklin & Hampshire Counties
Castaway Lounge
I-91 to exit 24, south on Rte. 5
Whately, Mass., (413) 665-9723
From Amherst: Take Rt. 116 North to Route 5 & 10. Turn Left. Go 2 Miles South to Castaway Lounge
Now Accepting Private Engagement Parties in our V.I.P. Room. Special rates
The New Club Castaway
Proudly Presents the Classic Cat Room
Female Amateur Night
Monday, Oct. 2, 1995
Amateur Dancers must Apply in Person.
Call for Interview
(413) 665-8733
To have the V.I.P. Room for Private Parties, 20 or more required.
Special Rates For
• Bachelor Parties
• Anniversary Parties
• Private Parties
Introducing the New Private Table Dancing
25 Dancers Appearing Weekly
Entertainment 2 p.m. - 1 a.m. Tues. - Sat.
Dancing Entertainers are Welcomed
The New Club Castaway
The New Club Castaway

Collegian Classifieds

113 Campus Center • University of Massachusetts • Phone: (413)545-3500 Fax: (413)545-1592

Personals Policy

1. All personals MUST be proofread by Collegian classified employees before payment and acceptance of the classified.
2. Last names MAY NOT be used in personals. ONLY first names and initials are allowed. The only exceptions are for birthday or congratulations personals, in which case the full name may be used.
3. Phone numbers are not allowed in personals. NO EXCEPTIONS
4. Addresses are not allowed in personals. this means dorm room numbers as well.
5. Personals of a threatening or derogatory nature are not acceptable. Personals of a vindictive or libelous nature are not acceptable. Personals may not be used for the purpose of harassment.
6. Profanity may not be used in personals.
7. The personals section is for personals only. The personals section may NOT be used to sell items, seek roommates, advertise meetings, etc.
8. All personals must have the name, signature, and UMass I.D. number of the student placing the as filled in on the insertion order. Non-students must provide a valid driver's license and the license number must be recorded on the insertion order. Use of false identification or misrepresentation is subject to penalties under the law.
9. The Collegian reserves the right to refuse or to edit any personal that does not meet the Collegian's standards in accordance with the statutes of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

Rates

$2.00 minimum/day

Students
20¢ per word/day

All others
40¢ per word/day

NO REFUNDS

Please write clearly and legibly. We are not responsible for errors resulting from illegible handwriting or type.

Standard Headings

Activities
Announcements
Apartment For Rent
Auto For Sale
Employment
Entertainment
For Sale
Found (2 days Free)
Happy Birthday
Houses For Rent
Instruction
Lost
Musicians
Miscellaneous
Personals
Room For Rent
Room Wanted
Roommate Wanted
Services
Summer Sublet
To Sublet
Travel
Transportation
Wanted to Rent
Wanted

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Learn to bartend with University bartending. 1/3 the price of other schools! Classes in Amherst. Free info session Wed. Sept 27th @ 7:00 pm. Lord Jeffrey Inn. call 800-IJ-CAN-MIX

The sisters of Sigma Delta Tau would like to welcome our newest members Jaime, Lydia, Brooke, Dawn, Shannon, Rebecca, Lisa, Christine, and Aimee!

To the sisters at Sigma Delta Tau Congratulations on a terrific rush! We're looking forward to a great semester! Keep up the good work! Love, Exec.

U Mass bike sale Tue & Wed on the library lawn. Deals on new & used bikes!!!

UPC general committee meeting tonight at 6pm room 903cc U Mass student-run concert production company. All are welcome!

Vanity of vanities. Everything is vanity Bible study Tuesdays 7:30 pm Campus center room 177 Graduate Christian Fellowship.

Zeta Psi "We must learn to live together as brothers or perish as fools." Zeta Psi is having open rush for all university men. If interested call Mike at 549-1615

AUTO FOR SALE

1965 Ford Galaxie 500 excellent shape 77000 mi 289 cu in V8 includes 4 new tires, 2 new studded snow tires Asking $1900 only. Call Sean at 546-3852

1983 Chevy 80,000 original mileage very good condition $700 or bo 253-9017

86 Subaru GL Hatchback 5 speed Runs well 1 owner $1700 253-9295

1988 VW Fox GL Needs some repairs $990 Please call 549-3828

'92 Red Jeep Wrangler 5 speed soft top 27,000 CD player Alarm $12,000 or bo 413-256-8711

1992 Toyota Celica GT. 5 speed loaded Red 1 owner, mint, alarm 53k miles $3000 below book. $10,200. 885-7219 Jim

Car for sale Hunda Excel SE 41,500 mileage, air conditioning, radio cassette, automatic $3600 call Kim 256-1285

Convertible '88 Chrysler Laboron Auto, alarm, cassette. Great car must sell $4700/bo Call Ten 865-0077

For Sale 1986 Hyundai Excel some work needed $500 253-0676 Please call in evenings ask for Rachael

Mercury Marquis 1984, 70K miles Runs great, air conditioning, radial

Sports

Minutewomen to host Northeastern

By Chris Stamm
Collegian Staff

The Massachusetts women's volleyball team returns home this evening to face the Huskies of Northeastern in the Curry Hicks Cage at 7 p.m.

The Minutewomen kicked off their A-10 season last weekend 1-1 with a somewhat disappointing showing. After routing St. Bonaventure 3-0, they lost a five-game match to Duquesne 3-2. This was quite a victory for the Dukes, as this is the first year they have had the privilege of working with a full-time coaching staff.

"I thought we didn't hit the ball in bounds as much as we should have, our blocks were off. They gave us too many variables and we just couldn't adjust," Massachusetts coach Bonnie Kenny said.

Overall, Kenny's squad stands at 7-6, a far cry from their 14-0 opening stretch of 1994.

However, while the numbers between the '94 and '95 seasons may not seem to match up, one has to look at the two schedules. This season, UMass began with a demanding schedule, including a trip to California in the UC-Santa Barbara Tournament playing some of the best competition in the nation.

Aside from a demanding schedule, the Minutewomen have been forced to compete without two of their veteran players, senior middle blocker Rachel Sky and junior outside hitter Giza Rivera.

Last weekend's competition marked the first match Sky returned to the court since seeing limited playing time in the UMass Invitational, and sitting out the Mullins Center battle against UConn with an injured knee.

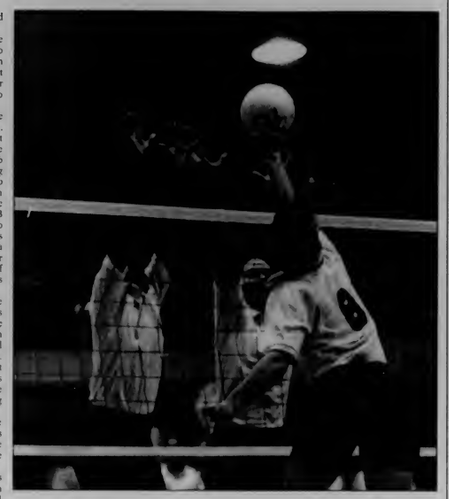
Sky is UMass' key defensive link who led the team in solo blocks posting five against both Hofstra and Boston College last year. Her absence from the floor was evident in the 3-2 loss to UConn.

Rivera is clearly the Minutewomen's offensive standout. Last year, Rivera made the First Team All-Atlantic 10, leading the team with 523 kills, averaging 4.36 kills per game for a .256 hitting percentage. This year has been no different. Rivera has earned such distinctions as being named to the All-Tournament team at the UCSB Invitational, although she has yet to play in an A-10 match, as she is out with an ankle injury. Rivera underwent another x-ray of her ankle yesterday, but the results of the test were not available at press time.

So far this season, suphomore outside hitter Lesley Nolan has stepped it up for the UMass offense since Rivera's injury. Nolan returned from last weekend's road trip posting carrecr-high stats. When all was said and done against Duquesne, Nolan tallied 29 kills leading the Minutewomen for three straight games, as well as notching 25 digs.

"It will be great to come home again to play Northeastern. In this one we really need to win the battle up against the net," Kenny said of the 3-9 Huskies.

Kenny feels that the squad has improved on going from dig to kill in transition, something that plagued the team in the pre-season. If all goes well, UMass should be a force at the net and walk out of the Cage with a win.



THANG VO / COLLEGIAN

The Minutewomen return to the Curry Hicks Cage tonight for a match up with the Northeastern Huskies at 7 p.m.

UMass cannot look past the Hawks

By Leigh Torbin
Collegian Staff

The party is over.

The Massachusetts men's soccer team must prepare for today's match at Hartford, leaving their shocking upset of Boston University in the past.

Resting on their laurels, while simultaneously looking ahead to Friday's match against San Francisco in Palo Alto, Ca., will spell certain doom for the Minutemen (6-2-1) as they cannot afford to overlook the Hawks, who will pose a formidable challenge.

UMass has moved up to fourth in the latest New England regional rankings, but can ill-afford to fall to Hartford today.

"They're a dangerous team," UMass coach Sam Koch said. "They have an excellent attacking midfielder and striker. They're very potent on offense. Also, their sweeper is one of the best in New England. Their defense can nullify some teams."

The Hawks enter the weekend on the heels of a paltry weekend which featured a loss against Wisconsin-Milwaukee and a tie at Wisconsin-Green Bay.

Hartford is led by freshman forward Adrian Weekes, who has tallied five goals to lead the team.

The Hawks juggle their goalkeepers, with Kevin Hickey (four games) and Christian DiGenova (three games) splitting the goalkeeping duties this season.

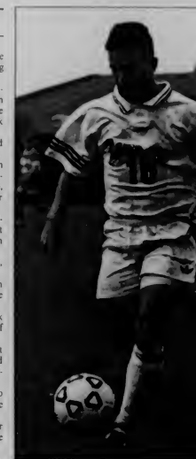
Still, the Minutemen must resist the urge to look ahead to sunny California and bask in the glory of Saturday's BU win today.

The UMass hockey team faced a similar predicament last season. After beating No. 1 Maine on Saturday they braced for eventual National Champion BU on Friday, and sandwiched in-between was lowly Holy Cross in Worcester.

The Minutemen blew a third period lead and fell to the Crusaders in overtime, in what was clearly the worst moment of their 6-28-2 season.

Koch has pressed upon his team to not have a similar defeat today in Hartford and has kept them focused on the task at hand, not the victory or their upcoming roadtrip.

"Hartford is the biggest concern I have right now. We have to see where we are now [after the win]. This



JAMES STANLEY / COLLEGIAN

Paul Corcoran and the Minutemen soccer team head to Hartford today to face their rival Hawks.

Turn to MEN'S SOCCER, page 7

Minutewomen face tough squad in PC

By Jay Warner
Collegian Correspondent

When Massachusetts women's tennis coach Judy Dixon prepared the schedule for the 1995 fall season, she had specific goals in mind.

"I felt it was important to give this team confidence early in the season," Dixon said.

The women's team faces Providence College today in what should be UMass' largest task of the year. PC barely escaped with the win against the Minutewomen last year, fueling the continuing rivalry between the two schools.

Thus far this season it has not appeared that the young Minutewomen team has needed any more confidence than they already have. The squad jumped out to an early 4-0 record, but Dixon doesn't want the team to get ahead of itself.

"We did take care of business. We are on a roll and

Turn to WOMEN'S TENNIS, page 7

Smith commits; others may follow

By Matt Vautour
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts men's basketball team continues to stockpile talent for the 1996-97 campaign as another high-profile recruit has verbally committed to the Minutemen.

Winston Smith, a 6-foot-5-inch small forward/guard from Elizabeth, NJ has joined Boston native Monty Mack in the now-forming recruiting class.

An impressive summer at the ABCD camp sent Smith's stock soaring. He put up impressive scoring numbers and played solid defense, but what most distinguished Smith was his work ethic, a trait that Massachusetts coach John Calipari covets.

Massachusetts has been one of several major players in the race for Smith's teammate and friend, point guard Shaheen Holloway. The 5-foot-10 flashy point guard is one of the most highly sought after point guards in the nation. The commitment of Mack, however, has caused Calipari's interest to diminish.

Another player that has ties to Smith is Ajmal Basit. The 6-foot-9-inch forward is a friend of Smith and is strongly considering joining him in Amherst. Basit, who has been described as a more polished, less athletic Inus Norville type player is coached by the legendary Bob Hurley Sr. at St. Anthony's in Jersey City, NJ.

The Minutemen have six available scholarships to offer prospective players, two of which will be filled by Mack and Smith. A seventh scholarship could become available if junior center Marcus Camby decides to head to the NBA a year early.

With the abundance of slots available, the Minutemen have entered the race for several big-name talents.

• Tim Thomas would be the crown jewel in Massachusetts' recruiting class, but many other schools have similar aspirations. Thomas is considered by just about every expert to be among the top three recruits available.

At 6-foot-9, the Patterson native is a force inside as a scorer and a rebounder, but can also be productive from the outside as well.

UMass, which is reportedly making a home visit to Thomas shortly, is still on his final list of seven along with North Carolina, Kentucky, Rutgers, Villanova, Seton Hall and Georgetown.

Thomas is also considering going the Kevin Garnett route, skipping college and heading right to the NBA. His performance on the SAT will reportedly influence that decision considerably.

Thomas isn't expected to make any decisions until the spring.

• Thomas' teammate Rodney Rogers is also interested in UMass. Rogers, who is not related to the NBA star, has a broad list that includes UMass, Rutgers, Villanova, George Mason, North Carolina-Charlotte and UNC-Wilmington.

• Massachusetts is also reportedly pursuing a local duo. Twins Mike and Jon Babul, of North Attleboro are drawing national attention. At 6-foot-6, Mike is considered by most to be the better of the two brothers, but the slightly taller (6-foot-7) Jon is solid and worth taking a chance on, if the prize is landing Mike.

In addition to UMass, the duo has received overtures from UNC, Rutgers, Ohio State, Georgia Tech and Clemson.

• Other swingmen possibilities are Devonnaire Deas and Chris Carrawell.

Deas, a Syracuse native, is playing at St. Thomas More in Oakdale, Conn. The 6-foot-5-inch shooter has spurned the hometown Orangemen and nar-

Turn to BASKETBALL, page 9

West winners still undecided

With most of baseball's divisional races completed, and many fans already looking towards the playoffs, one question still remains. . .

How will the Wests be won?

Not only are the Dodgers and Rockies still battling it out for the title in the National League West, but in one of the most amazing comebacks (read: chokejobs) of all-time, the California Angels, who have led the AL West all season long, are now trailing the Seattle Mariners.

Also, unlike the NL West, the loser of the American League's knc race will not be the frontrunner for the wild card. Yes, Red Sox fans, it looks right now like the dreaded New York Yankees will have a spot in the post-season.

• As for the Angels, they are looking to be the Red Sox of this decade. Everyone remembers the Sox choke of '86, but don't forget the Angels were one strike away from eliminating the BoSox from the playoffs that year. If it wasn't for Dave Henderson's miracle home run, it would have been Wally Joyner missing a ground ball to give the Mets a series win.

Now the Angels, who two weeks ago were a lock to win the AL West, and at one point were ahead by 13 games, have folded in a way reminiscent of the '78 Sox.

Anyone ever heard of the Curse of Rod Carew?

• How 'bout Tony Gwynn? The guy is once again atop the NL in batting average. Playing in relative ambiguity with the San Diego Padres for his entire career, Gwynn has been one of the most consistent and best hitters in baseball for the last 10 years.

It is scary to think about how much press this guy would get if he put up the numbers he did in a big market, like New York. In the Big Apple, the writers will tell you Randy Velarde is a definite Hall of Famer.

• To fulfill a promise, I have to dedicate a few lines to the Philadelphia Phillies. To the nation, the '95 Phillies will be remembered as the team that had a big lead in the early going, and dropped faster than the value of Sam Horn's rookie card.

However, as a friend of mine continues to point out, the Phils have stayed in wild card contention for the better part of the year with guys like Kevin Flora, Tom Marsh and Sox flop Mark Whiten batting in the heart of their lineup. This could have been a big season for Philly had it not been for injuries. As it is, Paul Quantrill has probably been the team's most consistent hurler. Now, that's scary.

Brian Perillo on Baseball

• Carlos Perez, the Expos' flamboyant rookie pitcher, has been placed in police custody after charges of rape and aggravated sodomy. Carlos, known to most baseball fans for his antics on the mound, is now just the next tragedy to befall the talented Perez family.

First, oldest brother Pascual ruins his career with drug addictions. Next, Melido goes on the shelf with arm problems, maybe never to return. Now Carlos, one of the brightest young pitchers in the game, puts it all on the line by attacking a 20-year-old blind date.

If he is found guilty, Carlos should be put in jail and suspended from the league. Baseball has had enough problems getting the fans back and Perez, a large draw in a small market town, may be the next in a long line of players who waste their considerable talents with bad decisions.

• I'm getting one of those "Save the Mariners" T-shirts. It would be a shame to see the M's have to pick up and move after their first successful season in 19 years. However, if a vote to raise taxes in Seattle in order to build a new ballpark doesn't go through, that's exactly what might happen.

Hmm...the St. Petersburg Mariners?

• Deion Sanders picked up and left the Giants as soon as they were officially eliminated from contention.

The more I hear about this guy, the more I dislike him, and I don't understand why San Fran GM Bob Quinn is so anxious to re-sign him.

He has already agreed to pay Sanders a $1 million bonus for playing to the end of the season, which isn't going to happen, and Quinn will most likely shell out all kinds of cash to keep Deion in the Bay Area.

Let's get one thing straight. The guy hit .268 this year, and obviously doesn't have his mind on baseball. Plus, what will San Fran fans do, cheer him for half a year, then boo him when he comes back to town with the Dallas Cowboys in the fall?

Why doesn't Sanders just leave the Giants and go play for their biggest rival, the Los Angeles Dodgers?

• John Valentin has had a spectacular season for the Red Sox this year, especially for a shortstop. However, my cohort Mike Brown is way off when he calls Valentin the team's Most Valuable Player.

Mo Vaughn has been amazing all year long, and gets my vote for team, as well as league, MVP. If you have to make an argument for anyone else as Red Sox team MVP, how 'bout Tim Wakefield? Despite some recent troubles, the knuckleballer carried the Sox during a two month stretch that saw them build their lead in the division to a comfortable margin.

• When I blinked, I must have missed the Yankees' David Cone picking up his 17th win, tying him for the league lead with the Orioles' Mike Mussina. Who says the Yanks can't make any noise in the post-season?

Brian Perillo is a Collegian columnist.

UMass stellar over weekend

By Fred Hurlbrink, Jr.
Collegian Correspondent

The Massachusetts men's water polo team enjoyed a stellar weekend, posting a convincing victory at Brown and shocking defending Winter League Club Champion New York Athletic Club. The Minutemen also rolled over an experienced Metro Boston Club.

Freshman sensation Brian Stahl starred this weekend, scoring a team-high five goals and six points in the Minutemen's 12-2 thrashing of Brown.

"I knew he was the real deal when he came in. He's starting to learn the college game now," said a pleased UMass coach Russ Yarworth.

The victory may have come at a price, though, as Stahl suffered a hyper-extended elbow at the end of the Brown match. "He's got a little bit of an injury, but I think he'll be alright," Yarworth said.

Stahl played through the injury, scoring three goals in Massachusetts' triumph over NYAC.

Losing the fantastic freshman would be a huge blow to the 9-1 (3-0, EWPA) Minutemen. This weekend he overtook senior co-captain Luis Limardo as the team's leading scorer with 23 goals, 16 assists (both second on the team), and two two-point goals for 43 total points.

Limardo, the team leader in goals (30) and ejections drawn (18), was thrown out of the Brown match after a scuffle with its goalie who was also tossed. The team's big gun impressed in the two exhibition matches scoring two big goals as the Minutemen held back a fourth quarter surge and overtook NYAC 9-8.

UMass was on fire against Metro Boston as Limardo led a 24 goal attack with five tallies and an assist. Luis' younger brother, J.C., had a strong game scoring three times, one counting for two points, and dishing out a pair of assists. Senior co-captain John Luviano scored four goals while six other Minutemen put the ball in the net en route to the 24-10 slaughter.

The UMass defense was even more impressive than the offense of Stahl, Limardo and co. UMass goalie Alex Mujica made 16 saves while allowing just nine goals, commanding most of the playing time in the first two games. The Minutemen defense also held Brown to converting just one of five man-up advantages, while UMass went 3-for-6.

Yarworth was very pleased with the club's performance, but not satisfied yet.

"There are basically three things we have to work on. One is our fast break. Secondly, our shooting percentage is still not where I'd like it to be. Finally, our play in man-up and man-down situations [is something we have to work on, as well]," said

Turn to MEN'S WATR POLO, page9

Maga-nificent Minutewomen
Susan Maga and the University of Massachusetts volleyball team rolled over Northeastern last night, 3-0 (See Sports, page 10).

Escort Services
Students respond on the effectiveness or ineffectiveness of the UMass Escort Services (See Campus Perspectives, page 3).

The Evil Twins
Susan when you thought they had gone with glam rock, Nelson are back! Check out Trax On Trax Off (See Arts & Living, page 5).

Extended Forecast
Warmer today with a high near 70 and a chance of sprinkles in the afternoon. Heading into Thursday, expect temperatures to cool off but the sky will remain sunny.

Today	Thursday	Friday
HIGH: 72 LOW: 46	HIGH: 72 LOW: 40	HIGH: 60 LOW: 40

The Massachusetts

DAILY COLLEGIAN

Volume CV Issue 16 New England's Largest College Daily • Founded in 1890 • Daily Since 1967 Wednesday, September 27, 1995

DAYMON SMITH/ COLLEGIAN

The wheels go round & round...
CeCe Sullivan, a junior nutrition major, fixes and rents bikes to students and the community at the Bicycle Co-op located in the Student Union.

Encephalitis diagnosed in Springfield infant

By Trudy Tynan
Associated Press

SPRINGFIELD — State health officials plan to expand their mosquito testing program to this western Massachusetts city after a seven-month-old boy was diagnosed with eastern equine encephalitis.

The Springfield infant is the first person to contract the rare, but sometimes-deadly, mosquito-borne disease outside the coastal areas of southeastern Massachusetts since the state health deprtment began keeping records in 1938, said Sean Fitzpatrick, a health department spokesman.

"At this point we think it is an anomaly," Fitzpatrick said Tuesday. "We don't think it marks the beginning of a similar threat as exists in southeastern Massachusetts."

"But we do know that the infant had never traveled further east than Sturbridge and so must have contracted it through a mosquito bite somewhere in that area," he said. "And that's why we are expanding our testing program next spring."

The illness, which affects the tissues around the brain, is characterized by high fever, stiff neck, delirium and eventually coma, he said. Although it is the rarest of the encephalitis strains carried by mosquitoes, it is one of the most deadly. Three out of every 10 people who contract the disease, which also affects horses, die.

Nationwide about five cases a year are reported, primarily in the coastal areas along the Atlantic seaboard although scattered cases have been seen as far inland as central Michigan and northern Indiana, said Dr. Ted Tsai, a medical officer at the Centers for Disease Control office in Boulder, Colo.

No cure exists.

"Physicians just attempt to treat the symptoms," he said. The little boy, who is believed to have been infected in August, was in serious condition Tuesday at Baystate Medical Center in Springfield, according to Keith O'Connor, a hospital spokesman. State and hospital officials declined to release his name at the request of the family.

The diagnosis was not confirmed until last week when doctors were able to culture the virus in the laboratory, Fitzpatrick said. "It was kind of a surprise," he said. "If it had been in Plymouth or Norfolk counties you would be more likely to think of a mosquito bite."

The last human case of the disease in Massachusetts was in 1992, Fitzpatrick said. Over the last 40 years, he said, a total of 38 cases have been reported in the state.

For the past several years the state health department has been trapping and testing mosquitoes in 19 towns in Norfolk and Plymouth counties in an attempt to gauge how prevalent the virus is. In 1990, when three people were stricken, it launched a massive mosquito spraying program.

But this summer, with dry weather keeping down the numbers of mosquitoes, none of the 22,000 inseets it checked were found to be infected, Fitzpatrick said.

The virus is carried by birds, which can only be infected by a single species of mosquito. The birds don't beeome ill.

And it is only when one of the wide variety of mosquitos that feed on both birds and humans chances to bite first an infected bird and then a human that the disease can be transmitted to people, he said.

MASSPIRG fights EPA rollbacks with help from senators

By Allison Connolly
Collegian Staff

In response to threatening congressional attempts to roll back environmental protection laws, more than one million signatures were collected over the last six months by environmental groups, including the MASSPIRG of the Amherst area.

MASSPIRG said that the House and the Senate have approved bills that would weaken the Clean Air Act, the Clean Water Act, and the Endangered Species Act, as well as legislation that would open wilderness areas to more logging, mining and oil and gas drilling.

The signatures were part of the Environmental Bill of Rights Campaign, launched in March. Signatures were gathered door-to-door, at fairs, malls, concerts and rallies, as well as through newsletters and at Earth Day booths.

There were 61,000 signatures collected in Massachusetts alone, rivalling only the state of California which amassed over 150,000 names.

Marty Alsenberg, Staff Director for Clean Water Action, said that since the launch of the campaign in March, there has been both good news and bad news for environmental protection efforts.

"The good news is that more politicians have begun to vote against these environmental rollbacks in the face of mounting public opposition," Alsenberg said. "The bad news is that the polluters' lobby continues to work overtime to push their special interest agenda at the expense of public health and the environment."

Kim Nelson, Canvass Director for MASSPIRG, said that her organization is still hard at work on trying to turn the tide of republican congress' apathy toward environmental protection.

"Right now, we're working on a state wide rivers campaign to pass the Rivers Protection Act, which is part of a national effort called the Free the Planet Campaign," Nelson said.

The Free the Planet Campaign was launched last February at a national conference in Philadelphia, where several UMass students were also in attendance. It was called to meet the brunt of the proposed congressional roll backs. Nelson described it as a "national call to arms."

Senators fight roll backs

Nelson said that Massachusetts Senators John Kerry and Edward Kennedy are very involved in leading the environmental fight in the political arena.

"Senators Kennedy and Kerry have been good champions of the environment," Nelson said. "They have been helpful in trying to stop the roll backs."

Jim Manley, a Washington spokesperson for Kennedy's office, said that Kennedy has always been an advocate for environmental protection laws.

"Whenever Senator Kennedy goes back to Massachusetts, he never says that the water is too clean or the air is too pure," Manley said. "There is a margin of support for laws to protect air, food and water."

Manley said that Kennedy's record is filled with cases where he has fought for better environmental protection. He referred to the regulatory bill authored by Sen. Robert Dole, the Senate Majority Leader, and Sen. Orrin Hatch, the Chairman of the Judiciary Committee, that did away with the Delaney Clause that restricts the amount of carcinogens in fresh foods.

Kennedy fought against the provision in the judiciary committee and because of his efforts, the regulatory reform bill had to be modified by Dole and has been stalled in the senate since.

Likewise, Kerry is leading the attack against 11 legislative riders that Congress has attached to the current appropriations bill. These provisions would eliminate environmental protections provided in such statutes as the Safe Drinking Water Act and the Clean Air Act, according to Jennifer Miller, Statehouse spokesperson for Kerry.

"The central issue of this debate is the priority we place on protecting our nation's vital natural resources and the health of our citizens," Kerry said. "Regrettably, Republicans do not put as high a priority on the environment as the American people do."

The VA-HUD Appropriations Bill, which will set the EPA budget for the fiscal year 1996, is on the floor of the Senate at press time. The bill threatens to cut the EPA's budget by $1.7 billion, 25 percent bekow last year's level.

Sen. Kerry was scheduled to speak on the Senate floor either yesterday or today against the cuts to the Environmental Protection Agency's budget.

Speaking for constituents

MASSPIRG plans to submit the petitions at a meeting in October. They also plan to send copies of the bill to Congress, specifically to Dole and House Speaker Newt Gingrich, who Nelson said is the "driving force behind most of the rollbacks."

Nelson said that the signatures are important because they show what the American people want, which is strict environmental protection.

"Everyone signed it because no one wants to see the roll backs happen," Nelson said.

Nelson urges students who want to get involved to write or phone legislators to tell them not to support the roll backs and to keep the EPA budget in place.

"It makes an impact," Nelson said.

2 in 20 floor sets a precedent for community

Gay, lesbian, bisexual and transgender students celebrate success of residence hall

By Laura Schmidt
Collegian Staff

An "Opening Reception for the 2 in 20 floor" took place Monday night as Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual, and Transgender students from the floor met other students and various University organizational members.

This, the first reception for the floor this year, was a time for students to meet each other and to connect with everyone in the surrounding communities, Dawn Bond, Resident Director of the Crabtree, Knowlton, and Mary Lyon Cluster explained.

"We have invited faculty, staff, and others who have shown that they are our allies," said Bond.

Allies attending the reception represented Health Services, Housing Services, the Everywoman's Center, the Dean of Students Office, various Resident Directors and Assistant Resident Directors, and the Stonewall Center.

Area Director of the Northeast/Sylvan area, Jeffrey Ederer, was also present.

"Our University has a reputation of reaching out to different communities, and the 2 in 20 floor is one of them. In the future, we hope that this floor and community will leave a legacy," said Ederer.

Ann Marie Peavey, the Resident Assistant on the 2 in 20 floor for the third consecutive year, has seen the fourth floor of Mary Lyon Residence Hall prosper.

The idea to create a safe and supportive living environment originally became an idea in the Spring of 1990 by some students and the Resident Director of Brown at the time.

It wasn't until the fall of 1992 when the 2 in 20 floor was established in Mary Lyon, at first including only five students. The floor derived its name from the statistic that two out of every twenty people are members of the GLBT community. Today this floor is the home of 35 GLBT students.

"When the floor was first established, it was a safe place to live. Now, it serves more as a community. The 2 in 20 floor is a place where you can express your feelings, figure out who you are, and be proud of it," said Peavey.

"I am so glad to have seen this floor grow and prosper. I hope after I am gone, the floor still will continue to grow," said Peavey.

In 1993, one year after the floor began, members established a charter for their community.

The charter includes various policies and guidelines for the floor to follow. One policy requires that the RD of the Crabtree cluster and the RA of the floor be "out" members of the GLBT community.

Part of the charter entitled "Purpose" stated that the purpose of the 2 in 20 floor is to provide a supportive community living experience for GLBT students and to work together to end homophobia and heterosexism.

"We are constantly adding and revising our charter," said Peavey.

James Conaty, a junior English major and one of the original five GLBT students when the 2 in 20 floor was established, has been a witness to such revisions.

"The floor has always been a comfortable, familiar, friendly place in which to live. I hope to eventually see the floor incorporate the third floor as well as the fourth floor in the future," said Conaty.

"We are always looking to increase our community. Here, you can feel free to talk to other students. Hopefully, the 2 in 20 floor will remain a permanent fixture," said Conaty.

EMILY BEELY/COLLEGIAN

Sarah Pease, acting director for the Stonewall Center, speaks to students, staff and administrators at the reception for the "2 in 20" floor, a Special Interest Residential Program.

GLBT library expands at the Stonewall Center

By Wendy Darling
Collegian Staff

Before he became a Stonewall Center staff member last spring, Bill Hickman was unaware the center had a lending library. Now he is one of the people who helps run it.

"I didn't know that this place existed before I was hired," Hickman noted in an interview conducted at the Stonewall Center, a gay, lesbian, bisexual, transgender resource center at the University of Massachusetts.

Little known even in the GLBT community, the lending library has a lot to offer, including, according to Hickman, "over 1,800" GLBT books, magazines, newspapers, and videotapes.

"Every year at the end of the fiscal year in June, we purchase books with any remaining money that we have," Hickman said. The center also receives donations from several publishing companies and individuals.

This summer Hickman worked to catalog more than 350 new books, including several titles for the transgender section, an area he said the Stonewall Center is working to expand.

The Stonewall Center book shelves are divided into 36 other sections, including reference, GLB fiction, humor, poetry, biography, parenting, feminism, social sciences, humanities, mental health, bisexuality, and AIDS. Books titles range from Encyclopedia of Homosexuality to And the Band Played On to Growing Up Gay in the South.

"As far as I know, we're the only queer library around here except for the archives in Northampton," Hickman said.

The center's video seleetion ranges from taped episodes of "20/20" and "The Oprah Winfrey Show" to the notorious antigay video "The Gay Agenda." The center also lends out feature films such as The Crying Game, Maurice, Long Time Companion, and Fried Green Tomatoes.

Turn to LIBRARY, Page 3

Campus Police Log

Missing person

Sept. 25

Police from New York are looking for a missing juvenile who may be staying in a residence hall in the Upper Central Area. A search turned up negative results.

Annoying behavior

Sept. 25

There was a report of a male individual peering under shower stalls in a women's bathroom in Washington Residence Hall.

There was a report of an unwanted guest causing problems with a resident.

There was an annoying letter in a mailbox in Melville Residence Hall. It was later found to be a prank.

Liquor law violations

Sept. 25

An investigation in Dwight Residence Hall was referred to Housing Staff.

Larceny

Sept. 25

There were several bundles of T-shirts stolen from Boyden Gym.

There was a VCR stolen from the gymnastics area of Boyden Gym.

An individual reported his moped stolen from the Physical Plant.

Health/Safety Hazards

Sept. 25

There were bicycles attached to the ramp way of trailers in Lot 43 on Eastman Lane.

Traffic stop

Sept. 25

Imad A. Albghdadi, 27, of 126 Firlad Ave., Springfield, was stopped on Campus Center Way for operating a motor vehicle with a suspended vehicle.

Ryan M. Emery, 20, of 54 Railroad St., Amherst, was stopped for operating a motor vehicle with a suspended license, failing to have an inspection sticker, and a number plate violation.

Accident — Property Damage

Sept. 25

There was a two–car accident in Lot 40 on Hicks Way. The owners exchanged papers.

There was minor damage to both vehicles involved in an accident on Thatcher Way. There was no report needed.

Injured person

Sept. 25

An individual collapsed at the Physical Plant. He was taken to Cooley Dickinson Hospital.

For Your Information

FYIs are public service announcements which are printed daily. To submit an FYI, please send a press release containing all pertinent information, including the name and phone number of the contact person to the Collegian, c/o the News Editor.

Wednesday, Sept. 27

GLB Discussion — Queer Nations/Multi Nations, a panel discussion on the intersection of identities, free and open to the public, accessible, room 904–908, Campus Center, 8 p.m.

Meeting — The UMass Theatre Guild will hold a meeting, room 162–175, Campus Center, 7 p.m.

Meeting — The International Programs office will hold an informational meeting on study abroad opportunities in Spain and Latin America, with a short video on Latin America, third floor lounge, Herter Hall, 4–5 p.m.

Meeting — Pre–Medica's first general meeting, room 905– 09, Campus Center, 7 p.m.

Meeting — The ALANA Caucus will hold information sessions in the Office of ALANA Affairs, 302 Student Union, 8 p.m.

Meeting — The Wildlife Society will hold a meeting, room 203, Holdsworth Hall, 6:30 p.m.

Open House — The UMass Career Center's annual open house, featuring hands–on demonstrations and exhibits of the latest job search technology, the center hopes to help students see beyond their own majors to the world of opportunities after leaving the University, Campus Center Auditorium, 3 p.m.

Special Event — Faculty Information Technologies Project Series, featuring Copper Giloth, Art and Academic Computing Special Projects, a preview of student projects using a variety of software packages, the session will focus on opportunities for enhancing learning, for information call 545–9400, A121 Lederle GRC, 3:30–4:45 p.m.

Thursday, Sept. 28

General Interest — The UMass Hang Gliding Club is organizing Hang Gliding Day, info sessions at 11 a.m. and 5 p.m., display of hang gliders by the pond, five college community and general public invited

GLB Lecture — Iosean Ortiz, writer, actor, and director, will lecture on a topic related to the Gay and Lesbian Theater Movement in Puerto Rico, free and open to the public, accessible, part of the Queer Nations/Multi Nations presentation, room 803, Campus Center, 12–1:30 p.m.

GLB Lecture — Urvashi Vaid, former executive director of the National Gay and Lesbian Task Force, is the keynote speaker for Queer Nations/Multi Nations, a celebration of the intersections of identities, free and open to the public, accessible, Bowker Auditorium, 8 p.m.

Lecture — Merchants of Death: America and the Arms Trade, Lorna Lumpe and Charisse Adamson, The Project on Demilitarization and Democracy, part of the PAWSS Fall Lecture Series, room 101, Dwight Hall, MHC, 7:30 p.m.

Teach In — How Medicare and Medicaid work, how they are funded, how they are essential to the well being of the country, and how proposed cuts will hurt, with panelists Mary Ford, Mayor of Northampton; Al Norman, exec. dir., Mass. Home Care Corp.; Michael Posner, pediatrician, Greg Speeter, director, National Priorities Project; Neil Cronin, health care advocate, Mass. Law Reform Institute, Little Theater, Northampton High School, Route 9, 7:30–9:30 p.m.

Friday, Sept. 29

Community — Models of Jewish Leadership series, dinner with Harold Grinspoon and Diane Troderman from Springfield, $3 with Hillel Activity Card, $4 for students, all others $6.50, Hillel House, 7:15 p.m.

Community — Pre–Shabbat Yoga, Hillel House, 4:30 p.m.

Community — Shabbat Services, Hillel House, 6 p.m.

Community — Join Chabad House in celebration of the Shabbas, food, prayer, songs, and stories, all welcome, Chabad House, 7 p.m.

Film — Drugstore Cowboy, directed by Gus Van Sant, Jr., $1.75, Campus Center Theater, AC, 7:30 and 10 p.m.

Film — Queer Nations/Multi Nations presents A Litany for Survival: The Life and Works of Audre Lorde, by Ada Gay Griffin and Michelle Parkerson, free and open to the public, accessible, Bowker Auditorium, 8 p.m.

Theater — Slain in the Spirit: The Promise of Jim Jones, by Susan Yankowitz, an informal open rehearsal of Yankowitz's gospel opera, there may be no music, free, Theatre 14, SC, 8 p.m.

Reading — UM Irish Studies presents Irish Poet, Paul Muldoon, free and open to the public, room 104, Thompson, 8 p.m.

Notices

GLB RA Matters — Residence Life Staff who identify as gay, lesbian, bisexual, transgendered or are questioning their sexual orientation are invited to attend GLB RA Matters. Meetings are every Friday in Mary Lyon from 12:30 p.m. to 2 p.m. For more information contact Dawn M. Bond 5–1506

Volunteers Needed — WFCR needs help sorting records for its Used Record Sale, food and drink is provided and volunteers get first dibs on records and CDs in WFCR's collection, help needed Monday, Wednesday, and Thursday, call Karin Obermeier at 545–0100 if you have time

Exhibit — "France '95", the works of 40 UMass undergraduate Art majors during two intensive summer programs in the South of France, photography, drawings, paintings, sculpture, handmade books, and journals, Herter Gallery, Sept. 18–28, M–F 11–4 p.m.

Intramurals — The Intramural office is still accepting participant entries for badminton singles and racquetball doubles. All entries are due Thursday, Sept. 28. The mandatory players meeting is rescheduled to Sept. 28 at 6 p.m., in Boyden. Entries for track and field, cross country, ice hockey, swimming and volleyball are still being accepted.

Wanted — Graphic intern for the Residential Educational Alcohol Program. Includes design and productions of health promotion materials, credit toward graduation. Excellent opportunity for someone interested in health promotion (AIDS, STD's, and Alcoholism). Contact Sandra Withcomb 545–0137.

Family Planning Services — HIV testing, pregnancy testing, birth control, medical tests, assistance for struggling families, the Family Planning Council of Western Massachusetts, (800) 696–7752.

Volunteers Needed — The Campus Chime and Carillon Committee needs student volunteers to ring the bells in Old Chapel. Will teach and train anyone with reasonable musical ability. Call Ken Samonds at 545–1077 for more information.

Community — Iumaa Service, the Muslim Students Association holds Iumaa prayer service every Friday, at 1 p.m., Campus Center, for information call Utama at 256–8482.

You slept through morning classes. And now you're gonna blow off the afternoon. The sad thing is, your parents have no clue. They think you're working hard. They're confused you're missing your butt. They're so damn proud. If only they could see you now. Lying there like a lump. Suddenly guilt sets in. You feel so low. Quickly, you reach for the phone and surprise the folks with a call. Ahhh, now you can sleep in peace
SNOOZE
1-800-COLLECT
Save Up To 44%
For long-distance calls. Savings based on a 5 minute AT&T

WRITE FOR DEVELOPING NATIONS!

CONTACT SYED MOHAMMED ALI-RAZA
113 CAMPUS CENTER
545-1851

What are the Most Powerful Words In Your Permanent Record?

(check one)

- ☐ Transcript
- ☐ Resumé
- ☐ Diploma
- ✓ The Wall Street Journal

For special student rates send in coupon below or for faster service call (800) WSJ-8614
7am-10pm Eastern Time Mon.-Fri.

☐ Send me a one-year subscription for $87.00
☐ I'd prefer a 15-week subscription for $33.00

Name
Address
City State Zip
School name Graduation date
☐ Check enclosed ☐ Bill me later ☐ Charge to my: ☐ AMEX ☐ VISA ☐ MasterCard ☐ Diners Club
Card no. Expiration date
Signature

THE WALL STREET JOURNAL.

Mail coupon to: The Wall Street Journal 200 Burnett Road, Chicopee, MA 01020

Campus Perspectives

Compiled by Chris Conner • Photos by Suzanne S. Garb

"How effective do you think the escort service is?"

"I have never had any experience with it, but I have a friend who had a class in the Bluewall Cafe and they couldn't find an escort to take her. So I ended up walking to the Campus Center with her."

LEAH FISHER
first–year, undecided
Portsmouth, R.I.

"It's effective when you have the time to call and wait for them but it isn't when you don't. It's not like a taxi where you can just pick it up."

CHERI EHRLICH
junior, women's studies/painting
Suffern, N.Y.

"I haven't really needed to use the escort service in a while but the times I have it was relatively effective. However, the dispatchers tend to be uncooperative when it comes to last–minute requests."

HEIDI GLEASON
junior, psychology/pre–education
Ponte Vedra Beach, Fla.

"I'm a University tour guide, so I think it's important because we mention the escort service in our package to assure parents and students that this is a safe campus. I like the idea that you can get a library shuttle or go by foot."

WINNIE THANG
senior, HRTA
Ontario, Canada

"I've never really had to use it. I guess it could be because I'm a guy and I'm not usually alone on campus at night."

BEN ARNOT
junior, psychology
Lancaster

"The only time I really heard about it was during orientation when it was mentioned briefly. So in that sense it may be ineffective."

JAMES MCKINNON
senior, political science
Rockport

■ Stonewall Center library features books, videos, magazines & more

LIBRARY, continued from page 1

Program for Gay, Lesbian & Bisexual Concern LIBRARY
Crampton House
University of Massachusetts
Amherst, MA 01003
413-545-4824
24 hour information lin
413-54-LAMD
CARD #

The Stonewall Center keeps a library of magazines and newspapers as well. Publications in its archives include The Advocate, Bay Windows, Out, The Lesbian Calendar, and The Washington Blade. Periodicals are not available for loan, but may be read in the center and, in some cases, photocopied.

Word is getting out

"Lately I guess the word has been going out about us," said Hickman. "[The library]'s been used tremendously over the past few weeks since the semester's started, as opposed to when I started back in April."

According to Hickman, most of the people who come in to use the library or take out books are UMass undergraduate or graduate students doing research in the social sciences and humanities. Some people have also come in to collect information on GLB youth and educational issues.

Borrowing a book or video is easy, Hickman said, and a person does not even have to be from UMass to do so since the Stonewall Center functions as a community resource.

The first step in the borrowing process is to obtain one of the center's pink library cards. Cards do not have names on them, just sequential numbers which are fed into the library database when a book or video is checked out.

"It's very discreet," Hickman noted.

Books may be borrowed for up to two weeks, with a 25 cent fine added for every day past the due date. Videos may only be taken out over night.

El Ché says:
"WRITE FOR MULTI-CULTURAL AFFAIRS"
Contact Hernán
113 Campus Center
545-1851

Don't just go to shows — Write about them!
Come join us at the Collegian Arts & Living department.
545–3500
113 Campus Center

Collegian Open House

Come see the staff and facilities of New England's largest College Daily

When: Friday, September 29, 1995
Noon- 4:00 p.m.

Everyone and your Mother is invited!!! This means Non-staff, Staff, Faculty, Amherst Community and Business University workers, your dog, your brother, etc.

 Free Food and Beverage **

UNIVERSITY BARTENDING™

- Professional Bartending and Bar Management Training at a fraction of the cost at most schools
- Full certification in as little as six weeks
- Specific programs tailored to your specific needs
- T.I.P.S.™ and Serv Safe™ certification available
- Approved by the National Restaurant Association

FREE INFO SESSION
Wednesday, Sept. 27th
7:00 pm
Lord Jeffrey Inn

Shop around and compare!
1-800-U-CAN-MIX
Call for more information.
Act now! Space is limited!!

Arts and free love express yourself
~
Write for Arts & Living

EL ACUÑA
TEX MEX CANTINA
PEOPLE ARE LINING UP...
To Get To The Best Tex-Mex Chow This Side Of The Rio Grande!

Wednesday Night at El Acuna is Wing Wednesday
Free Appetizer: 10¢ Wings until 12 a.m.
also
$1.50 18 oz. Drafts
$2.50 Shooter
and as always home of the 18 oz. mega margarita

STEAKS • BURRITOS • RIBS • TACOS • SEAFOOD • FAJITAS • MEGA-MARGARITAS • GREAT MEXICAN BEER SELECTION • & MORE
41 Boltwood Walk, Amherst (Behind Antonio's) 413-253-4040

DAILY COLLEGIAN

113 Campus Center • University of Massachusetts Amherst, MA 01003 • (413) 545-3500 • Fax (413) 545-1592

Matt Vautour Editor-in-Chief Juan José Chacón Quirós de Quetzcoatl Managing Editor
Earl T. Martin Business Manager James P. Ganley Production Manager Ethan Bloomfield Advertising Manager
Natasha Kahn Advertising Production Manager Wendy Darling Senior Diversity Editor

Tara MK Connelly Arts & Living Editor Candice Flemming Sports Editor
Christopher Byrd Black Affairs Editor Ron Alpert Staff Artist
Matt Wurtzel Business Editor Laura Schmidt, Aimee Schwartz Women's Issues Editors
Syed Mohammed Ali Raza Developing Nations Editor Marni E. Ilelfner Editorial Production Manager
Geri Suhn Editorial/Opinion Editor Adam Chace Systems Manager
Wendy Darling Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Issues Editor A.'. Stewart Finance Manager
Jacob W. Michaels Jewish Affairs Editor Ryan Courtemanche Distribution Manager
Hernan Rozemberg Multicultural Affairs Editor Maureen Majerowski Assistant Operations Manager
Chris Taylor Corner News Editor Marty Pappas Classified Advertising
Daymion Smith Photography Editor Thomas F. Sweeney, Jr. Graphics Advisor/Instructor

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published Mondays through Friday during the University of Massachusetts calendar semester. The Collegian is financially independent from the University of Massachusetts, operating solely on revenues generated by advertising sales. The paper was founded in 1890 as Aggie Life, became the College Signal in 1901, the Weekly Collegian in 1914 and then the Tri-Weekly Collegian in 1936. The Collegian has been published daily since 1967, and has been a broadsheet publication since January 1994. For advertising rates and information, call (413) 545-3500 weekdays between 8:30 a.m. and 3:30 p.m.

Opinion/Editorial

Democrats defend student loan programs

For many of today's best and brightest, to hear a politician say that "young people are our future" may seem like little more than a time-worn cliche. But while the sentiment may not be new, it is becoming increasingly true, and increasingly important — for reasons that are much more than altruistic. In a global economy, America depends more and more on highly-skilled, highly-trained managers and workers. To remain competitive, the workforce of the 21st Century must be more productive, more innovative, and more creative than at any time in our history. Without high-quality education, and wide access to it, America simply cannot reach its full potential.

That is why this fall's Congressional budget battle — the first since the Republicans took control of both Houses of Congress — is of profound importance to every student in America, and to the future of America itself. To put it simply, the Republicans have proposed deep cuts in education — especially student loan programs — that would roll back decades of widening educational access and opportunity. These cuts would make education more expensive, more difficult to obtain, and for millions of young people from middle and lower income families, an unaffordable luxury when it should be a simple necessity. In my view, these cuts are not simply wrong — they're outrageous.

Why have the Republicans singled out education and student loans as they sharpen their budget axe? To balance the federal budget? To rein in federal spending? Perhaps to fund some other, more crucial national priority? In fact, none of the above.

Richard Gephardt

Of course, the Republican drive toward a balanced federal budget will require deep cuts across the board — and there are precious few Americans who do not want to see a smaller, leaner, more efficient federal government. But what few people realize is that the Republican cuts in education, student, loans and training are about three times as great as their proposed cuts in any other part of America's discretionary budget. Totaling $36 billion, these cuts include the outright elimination of the federal Department of Education. And that's only the beginning.

In making cuts totaling $10.1 billion in the student loan program, the Republicans are significantly increasing the cost of student loans to students. Some estimates indicate that the GOP plan may increase the cost of these loans by as much as $2,000 per undergraduate, and between $6,000 and $38,000 per graduate student. It does not take a math major to realize that many smart, hard-working young people will simply be priced out of an education, or at the very least forced to attend a less expensive community college. Hundreds of thousands of students would lose Direct Student Loans, Pell Grants, and State Student Incentive Grants, making the dream of a college education a mirage for many people from less privileged families.

Why have the Republicans singled out education and student loans as they sharpen their budget axe? To balance the federal budget? To rein in federal spending? Perhaps to fund some other, more crucial national priority?

In fact, none of the above. These cuts coincide with a massive Republican tax cut, aimed at the wealthiest Americans. While you could be shut out of a college education altogether, the richest 1.1 million Americans would reap a $20,000 tax windfall every year. According to the Republican trickle-down philosophy, this is somehow supposed to make us all better off. Never mind that during the 1980s, the last time we tried this trickle-down approach, the gap between the rich and the poor widened dramatically, the national debt swelled, and America's economic competitiveness stumbled.

In an economy that is desperately in need of well-educated people, these cuts in education are clearly bad public policy and a drain on America's competitiveness. In a nation that has always prided itself on providing every child with the opportunity to rise as high as their talents can carry them, the Republican assault on education is a repudiation of everything America stands for.

How can we even consider slashing funds for students before paring back every inch of waste and bureaucracy in our government? How can we even fathom these deep education cuts — far out of proportion to almost all other budget cuts — at a time when the Republicans want to actually increase defense spending? And how dare the Republicans propose these education cuts at the same time that they're doling out huge tax breaks for the most privileged citizens and corporations?

My fear is that if we allow these Republican proposals to become law — if we roll back the broad educational opportunities that enabled me to attend college and law school in the '60s, and enable so many millions of young people to obtain good educations today — the damage may be impossible to undo. We cannot afford to lose a generation of well-trained and well-skilled workers. We cannot afford to waste the potential of millions of talented young people. In my view, this is a lesson Congressional Republicans must learn in the weeks ahead, and it is one we all have an obligation to help teach them.

Richard Gephardt is the House Democratic Leader.

MIRROR MIRROR ON THE WALL, WHO'S THE 'FAIREST' ONE OF ALL?
WHY, YOU, YOU HANDSOME DEVIL, YOU.
The FBI conducts an internal review.
TOLES
UNIVERSAL PRESS SYND.
©1995 FOR WISE-UP & WOBBLY REPRINT
THE CASE SHOULD BE CRACKED SHORTLY —

A blessed messy event

Birth is pretty messy. I figured that out the other day at four o'clock in the morning as I sat fixed on a pig's vulva. I expected to feel this overwhelming sense of the joy of life, the miracle of birth, nah. What that pig needed was some good old fashioned drugs.

I don't think I planned on doing it, but I scrubbed up like Marcus Welby M.D. anyway (Needless to say I let her have the honor.). She stuck her hand up there with authority and the sow let out a blood curdling scream.

Tara Ruelle

For two years I've been screaming at my roommate that I wanted to see some animal born — she works at the Livestock Barn, hence the fascination. Finally, my opportunity arrived, the pig's teets were milking, and she was ready to go.

We sat down at the barn for a couple of hours only to see nothing but the occasional flatulence. So we decided to go get a beer, I would change into some barn-appropriate attire, and then we would return to the blessed event.

At four o'clock in the morning I had enough of waiting for the pig to "farrow." Yet, I was at home in bed counting sheep when I faintly heard the phone ring, the answering machine pick up and my roommate's voice saying, "Tara she just had one, but I need your help. Pick up. I'm going to keep calling back."

Five minutes later I was out the door in the car with a screaming piglet in my lap. "Oh Joanne, it's so cute and clean looking, but what's that pink thing hanging?" I inquired. "That's the umbilical cord, Tara," Joanne offered (Guess I won't be wearing that sweatshirt anymore.).

Several traffic violations later we were sitting in front of the sow's vulva again. I decided to be inquisitive, "She's supposed to have one every 15 minutes right? Hasn't it been a while?" Joanne replied calmly, "Yeah, I think I'm going to have to go get it. Do you want to do it — you have smaller arms?"

I don't think I planned on doing it, but I scrubbed up like Marcus Welby MD anyway (Needless to say I let her have the honor.). She stuck her hand up there with authority and the sow let out a blood curdling scream.

Another piglet dropped. The sow did not look the least bit impressed. "Okay Tara, now take the cord and dip it in this so it will shrivel up and fall off," Joanne instructed. Again, I let her take all the glory. Finally, she moved the piglets over to the sow, so they could eat.

Joanne thought she would show the piglets to the mom so she'd see what was making noise inside her crate. I thought the pig would immediately take to the piglgs, like in all of the cartoons. Instead, the sow opened her mouth about the size of my head and barked at the newborns.

Well, at that point I had seen enough of the joy of life. Aside from the cute factor of the piglets, I didn't know what to think. I didn't feel weepy like I thought, and I didn't think it was so miraculous. The whole thing was over my head. I felt for the sow, though, who after a year is sexually mature and ready to breed (I cannot imagine having 12 kids every year, not to mention the occasional human hand that arrives to rescue something you can make 11 more of in a heartbeat.).

I was very impressed with my roommate's vast knowledge of the animals and the compassion she feels for them. I really don't know many people who could throw on a plastic glove and some lube to rescue a pig.

I'm glad I got to see something be born into the world. I'm not sure that I was prepared for the reality of it all, but it was worth the sacrificed sleep. I just don't know if I'd go hog wild over the idea of having kids any time soon.

Tara Ruelle is a Collegian columnist.

The mold society has created

Here's a statistic for you: If you live to be 90 years old, sleeping eight hours a day, then you would have slept for a total of 30 years of your life. 30 years! If that isn't a downer, then I honestly don't know what is. Imagine doing absolutely nothing for 30 years except lying in bed?

Sitting here and thinking about this has led me to some scary conclusions about life. What will I spend my life doing? Most of it, in the end, will have been spent either sleeping, eating, showering, going to the bathroom, or other necessary things. How much time does that actually leave for living? How much time will I have spent either in school, studying for school, or doing something in some way connected with education? If I have spent eight hours a day on school-type stuff for nine months out of the year for the past 15 years. That means that I have spent 21,600 hours (not including weekends) gaining knowledge.

Evan Young

So I should know just about everything by now, right? Ha ha. It seems like I know less than nothing. So why am I even bothering with education? All of those hours could have been spent more resourcefully, it seems to me. Granted, I have been just a child for most of the time, but it still makes the education system look a little pointless.

How about this next statistic, speaking of pointless: If you work eight hours a day, five days a week, from when you are 25 to when you retire (say about 65), you will have spent a total of 83,200 hours at the job. It's a damn good thing that you went through these previous 21,600 hours of training for it already, or else it would all be pretty much worthless, huh?

Because when you really take a look at it, all college is good for is to make yourself look good on paper. You go to UMass for four years, they hand you a resume when you graduate, and you either show that to a grad school, who then shows it to a company who shows it to the bottom of the trash can, or you show it to the company right away (skipping grad school) and they show it to the trash. How many of us are truly here to learn? How often do you hear people say "damn, my classes really suck this semester." I say it all the time, and I hear it all the time.

But aren't we here to learn? Did someone forget to tell us that along the way? I'd like to think I'm getting more out of school than just a diploma, but I'm not so sure if that's the truth. But even if it were, it just leads me to my next question.

How much good is mounds and mounds of memorization and applied learning and logic and science going to do me when I am, one inevitable day, resting on my death bed? Will I look back at my life and say, "Boy, now that I'll be dead soon, I sure am glad I spent 25 years of my life going to school, because knowing the life cycle of the E. Coli is important. I'm even more glad I had a job that paid a lot because money is doing me lots of good right now."?

The truth is, sometimes I can't help but to sit back and think I'm wasting my time, simply flushing it down the toilet. The clock never stops ticking, and here I am going to school, so I can get a decent job, so I can make lots of money, so I can spend it all on material things that will look nice on the mantle above the fireplace, but have absolutely no meaning. Here I am wasting the time away, and when I die, I will be thoroughly unsatisfied because there will be things left to experience that I will never get the chance to do.

But all of this is not an original idea straight from the mind of one, Evan Young. All of this has been said already, throughout the history of man. Everyone has, at one point, wondered just what the point of it all is. Do we need to be reminded again here on the Editorial/Opinion page of the Collegian? Are we all that pathetic? Are we all so trapped within this vicious cycle of American life we cannot break out of the mold that society has created? Are we that easily manipulated by the system? It seems as if we are because we all continue to spend our time doing stupid, pointless things.

So why was man put on this earth? We are given such a short time to actually get the most out of life, and some of the ridiculous things we do every day seem even more ridiculous when you think of how much time is wasted on them. How many hours will have been spent brushing my teeth everyday by the time I am dead? Thank God we have nothing to eat except mushy processed crap, or else we wouldn't have to brush our teeth all the time.

I guess I could say it is a blessing I don't have too much sex, or else imagine all the time that would have been wasted on that ... well, I won't go that far.

I guess what I'm trying to say is this: At certain times in life, there are some things that just have to be done. If your friend says, "Let's get the car and drive to Montana right now," say yes. What is tying you down? Life is just too short to worry about petty things.

Ultimately, happiness is the most important thing. If filling your house with ridiculous junk bought with money you've earned working a crappy job you got because you went to school and learned nothing, then so be it. There is more to life than what we are experiencing here at UMass, and what this university is preparing us for. There is always more to be gotten out of life, and if you don't feel you are getting enough of it, then drop everything and go have a blast. Personally, I've wasted too much time on this article already.

Evan Young is a Collegian columnist.

Taking a drink from the reflecting pool

Somebody once told me I wouldn't recognize myself in four years. I believe them. I know I believe them because I remember the way I was four years ago, a stupid, wise-ass kid in high school with no clue as to what life was really all about. It is quite clear to me that I'm much different now. Now I'm a wise-ass with a clue.

I look back on my life so far and realize all that I would liked to have done. I think about all the things I should or shouldn't have said. I wish I could have told myself then all that I know now (Even if I could talk to that kid, he wouldn't listen to me. He doesn't need any advice, he thinks he knows it all already.).

I really did think I knew it all in high school. I thought I knew more and understood better than my parents. At least I thought I did. Now as each day passes I realize all the more that my parents were the ones with the greater understanding of life.

Andrew Trodden

I really did think I knew it all in high school. I thought I knew more and understood better than my parents. At least I thought I did. Now as each day passes I realize all the more that my parents were the ones with the greater understanding of life. I wonder how I ever could have been so foolish to think I knew more than mom and dad. That's just it, I was a fool.

The important thing is I now realize I was wrong. I now believe my parents know everything, which I'm sure they don't, but they certainly know a lot more than me. What's even more important is that every so often they share a little bit of that knowledge with me. Usually right around the time I'm screwing something up is when I receive a lesson in life from my parents. I might not know it right away, but in time I'll realize I just learned something new.

I was fortunate enough to have been raised in a large family, having four brothers and two sisters. (What's that you say? Irish Catholic? Yup.) I say fortunate because I realize I'm the way I am because of all of their influences on me. I'm kind of like a human mutt I guess. I have a little characteristic of each of my siblings.

As luck would have it, I was the youngest of the bunch. I cannot think of a better way to grow up than with the influences of six older, more intelligent people bombarding you from all sides. My parents certainly taught me well, but I think my brothers and sisters have taught me more of life's lessons. Something they didn't even know they were doing.

A wise man once said, " ...learn from the mistakes of others, you can't live long enough to make them all yourself." Well that's what I have done. For years I watched my brothers and sisters all make their share of mistakes only to get right back on the horse. I learned a little bit from each of their mistakes, as well I'm sure they did too. I'm not saying I never made mistakes of my own. I, as sure as the rain, did. But I didn't have to make any of the same mistakes they made, and for that I am truly fortunate.

My brothers and sisters are all older now, as am I, and we all basically live in different places. But not a day goes by I don't think about life when we were all under the same roof. Everything just seemed a lot easier then. Maybe that's because the last time we all lived together I was eight years old. Or maybe it's because the life we all shared did really make things easier.

I look back on that part of my life as being some of the happiest times ever, and I'd like to believe someday I can be that happy again. I don't know if there's even a remote possibility of that ever happening. Maybe by realizing that, I have taught myself something without any help.

I can only imagine what I will be like in four years. But when I think about what my parents taught me, and what I have learned from my family, I realize I've got nothing to worry about. I'll turn out just fine.

Andrew Trodden is a Collegian columnist.

Letters to the Editor and Columns

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian welcomes and encourages letters to the editor. When writing, please TYPE your letter and keep it to a maximum of 400 words. We would much rather print several concise letters in the limited space available on the page.

All letters should include a name, address and phone number (for verification purposes only). Students should also include their year and major. The Collegian reserves the right to edit submissions for grammar, clarity and length.

Send all letters to the Ed/Op page c/o the Collegian, 113 Campus Center, UMass. Letters to the Editor can also be sent through our e- mail account: letters@olt.vms.olt.umass.edu

Arts & Living

Jimmy Sommerville delivers

Fabulous Thunderbirds flying high but Dish and Nelson fall

FABULOUS THUNDERBIRDS
Roll of the Dice
Private Music

The Fabulous Thunderbirds have once again taken flight and are looking to reach new heights with their album, Roll of the Dice. It seems hard to believe that it has been almost ten years since the T-Birds reached what seemed like the pinnacle of their career as a band with their breakthrough album Tuff Enough, featuring such popular singles as "Wrap It Up" and the title track. Their follow-up albums faltered and were unable to sustain the past success.

Roll of the Dice marks a new beginning of sorts for the band as it is their premiere on Private Music. This is their second album since the departure of founding member Jimmie Vaughan. His current replacement comes in the form of Kid Ramos, a guitar slinging blues man who caught singer Kim Wilson's ear at a recent gig. With the revamped lineup completed, "everything clicked" claimed Wilson.

The title track to Roll of the Dice kicks off the album and carves a deep bluesy groove for the rest of the album to slither through. Wilson and Ramos establish an early rapport evident from the way in which Wilson's harmonica and Ramos' guitar interweave and complement one another on tracks like "How Do I Get You Back" and the Cajun flavored, "Do As I Say."

The two traditional ballads on the album, "Memory From Hell" and "I Don't Want To Be the One" show a more sensitive side to the band that is reflected through Wilson's evocative lyrics and mournful harmonica playing. Traditional rockers like "Lookin' Forward To Lookin' Back" and "I Can't Win" are minced throughout the album to retain the classic T-Birds sound.

Roll of the Dice is a groove oriented album filled with plenty of catchy riffs that will leave you humming in your sleep. Fans of John Popper of Blues Traveller might also want to take note that Wilson's harmonica playing is among the greatest around. The late, great Muddy Waters has likened him to blues harp god Little Walter. Not a recommendation to take lightly, folks. Venture a listen and hear what Muddy was talking about. B

(Michael McCloskey)

Trax On Trax Off

JIMMY SOMMERVILLE
Dare To Love
London Records

In 1984, a 22 year old Scotsman named Jimmy Sommerville broke into the British top 40 with his band Bronski Beat. Their hit "Smalltown Boy" was one of a cavalcade of synthesizer-driven dance songs that dominated the airwaves in that decade — but with a difference.

Sommerville was using his trademark falsetto and disco- drenched musical sensibilities to comment on the intolerance and hatred directed at homosexuals in Thatcher's England. "Smalltown Boy" became the first mainstream pop smash to truly explore these issues, and made Sommerville that rarest of entities — a pop star with both an overt political agenda and a chart-friendly, aggressively commercial sound.

COURTESY GUZMAN

Nelson is back with their new album, Because They Can.

COURTESY PAMELA SPRINGSTEEN

The Fabulous Thunderbirds make the grade with their latest release.

Flash forward 11 years: Sommerville had become a successful solo artist and recently released a new album, Dare To Love. Happily the singer shows no sings of mellowing with age — indeed delivering some of his funkiest, most exhilarating pop melodies ever, accompanied by some of his most impassioned and painfully honest lyrics.

Sommerville wastes no time thrusting his audience into his unique mix of outspoken gay pride and mainstream pop. The album's second track, "Hurts So Good," can be taken as a "wink-wink, nudge-nudge" metaphor for gay sex. Over a pulsating reggae beat, Jimmy assures his lover that ever- present theme of AIDS, fatalistically proclaiming, "Even though sometimes, it's hard for me to bear ... I make myself hold on, 'cuz if it kills me, I don't care."

The centerpiece of the album, however must be the album's title track. A jazzy number that chronicles the tale of a gay man sent to prison for his affair with a younger lover, is a seething indictment of the English Age of Consent Law, which forbids homosexual relations for anyone under the age of 18.

Dare To Love delivers on many levels: as a prime danceable pop, as an exhibition of a tremendous voice, and as an exceptionally literate and dignified soldier for gay rights. While these somewhat disparate elements have combined to make Sommerville a singular star in his native land, it remains to be seen whether, in this land of rigid categorization of artists and strictly segregated radio formats, a talent like his can rise to the top. A (Josh Wardrop)

DANDELION
Dyslexicon
Columbia

The only way to start off a review of Dandelion's sophomore album, is by using the band's own song title, "What A Drag" to accurately describe it.

This album offers little pleasure and much annoyance, disappointing anyone who thought this band would add an original twist to the modern rock world.

One month an unheard of band can hit you with a fresh, lively new sound and then four months down the line, every time you hear a single note of the band's overplayed single you either change the channel or have to vomit. Your mind has changed 180 degrees in such a short span.

That is the problem with "Weird Out," the album's first single, is that is a great song for a while, but no longer enjoyable after a few listens.

One of Dandelion's big problems is that they do not sound like their own band. Instant images of Nirvana, L7 and Pearl Jam pop up in your head. Many times the question of "Does this band make music or make business?" arises. Sure, anyone can have a hit, but does that make them any good?

Obviously the answer is no. Dandelion adds nothing worth mentioning to the music world. The melodies that exist in "Weird Out" do not exist anywhere else on the rest of the CD. Quick, simple, stupid, fake punk songs appear — all too often. Dandelion seems to be trying to convey a "cool" image but, cold — freezing cold better describes the band's feeling over music. D (Rob Stevens)

NELSON
Because They Can
DGC

Turn to TRAX, page 6

Mike's Westview
Wed. Nite Raffle Nite
This Week Raffling Off 10 of our New Mike's Tee Shirts $150 of Mike's Mad Money
BEER OF THE WEEK:
RED DOG 16 OZ. BOTTLE $1.25
COCKTAIL OF THE WEEK:
RUM RUNNERS $1.25
Don't Forget Thursday Nite Party Nite
Free Appetizer 9:30 pm - 10:30 pm

Judies
Munchie Madness
Monday - Friday 3-6
12 Item Munchie Menu
Fried Cheese and Onion Rings $5.95 $2.98
Shrimp Tempura $6.25 $3.13
Cold Shrimp Cocktail $3.75 $2.88
And More!
51 N. Pleasant Street • Amherst • 253-3491

Eating DisorderPrograms • 1995-96
Sponsored by University Health Services
Eating Disorder Assesment Program
For individuals - with Nutritionists, Mental Health Clinician, Physician and/or Nurse Practitioner. Mondays or Wednesdays - Confidentiality Assured.
Call 549-2671 x233, Clinic 4.
Friends and Family Group
Single sessions for those concerned about somebody with an eating disorder.
Call 549-2671 x233, Clinic 4.
Peer Support Group
For those struggling with anorexia, bulimia, or compulsive overeating. Mondays 4:30 - 6 pm, (except holidays) at the Campus Center. Room number posted by elevator. Confidentiality Assured.
Call 549-2671 x233, Clinic 4.
Peer Health Connections
A confidential phone line for help around eating disorders - yourself or someone you know.
Call 549-2671, ext. 168.

PLANNING TO OBSERVE YOM KIPPUR?
MAKE SURE TO NOTIFY INSTRUCTORS IN ADVANCE
if you will miss classes. If you experience any difficulties, please contact the department head or call the Ombuds Office at 545-0867

the BLUEWALL presents
DISCO
Every Thursday
Boogie Down All Night Long
FREE ADMISSION
9:30 pm - 1:00 am
70's Costumes encouraged
With D.J.s Billy Arnold and Robert Dwelley
Lighting and Sound By: Audio Pro Media
"Because You Asked For It"

Rapping about the party scene

S'up people(z),

Brothers, did the freaks come out Saturday night? If you were at Jeans & T-shirt and don't know the answer, stop reading this column. Now you know, only true freaks will come out to party in zero-degree weather. They represented with two pieces. One pieces. No pieces. Mad flesh in the house. I personally don't see nothing wrong with flesh. Freaks nowadays are on a mission, Yo.

Hey ladies, did all the want to be pimps attend the party? Pimps running their gibbs about nothing. What happen to tic-tac and gum awareness? An organization of ladies should set up a ludent stand. Word. I got some feedback from some ladies that (altogether) there was no brothers. If you feel that there were no brothers, you are right. A lot of brothers are not in school, or just locked up. Don't forget the brothers laid up in a warm room. Word.

Rap Diary by Chris Byrd

Yeah once again Avenues, Hilltops and Boroughs integrated with college heads. Why? I think the University of Massachusetts represents with the music selection. There's a lot of UMass DJs that can filter through today's music and spin the sweet peaces of wax. These DJs bring out the under arm funk in some people. No, a lot of people. UMass in the house y'all. Independent, organized ... whatever, UMass DJs come out with the selection to get down.

Notice that the DJs (altogether) don't have to play classic songs in order for the party to bump.

Due to the revolution, music in '95 is hitten. We don't have to back track to '88 for fat music y'all. It's about time we are able to own more than three fat albums a month.

Thursday's review will be on the return of KoolG.Rap. peace.

Oneluv Byrd@umass.oit.twain.edu.

Chris Byrd is a Collegian Staff member.

Ironside joins cast of 'seaQuest 2032'

By Scott Williams
Associated Press

NEW YORK — When the producers of NBC's "seaQuest DSV" asked Michael Ironside to take command of their troubled submarine, the rugged, crag-faced Canadian actor turned them down flat.

"I saw so many problems that I couldn't see where I'd be able to do the work that I wanted to do," Ironside recalled, lighting up one in a series of filter cigarettes that braze his baritone.

The work is important to him. When he wrapped up last season on "ER" as trauma chief Dr. William Swift, he'd provided an authority figure who was almost parental to the younger doctors.

"I ended up playing a version of my father," Ironside said. My sister busted me on the second show. She called me up and said, 'You're playing Dad!' I said, 'Yeah! Does he know?' She said, "No, he's watching hockey.' "

Still, Ironside felt it was time to move on. "I wasn't interested in hanging around, being a service character to other people's story lines and getting something I could sink my teeth into every ten shows," he said.

"ER," like "seaQuest DSV," is a big, expensive, ambitious program produced by Steven Spielberg's Amblin Entertainment. Unlike the hit "ER," the 21st century underwater adventure was in deep trouble.

Conceived as Sunday night family fare, "seaQuest" featured a talking dolphin (Ens. Darwin), a demographically correct cast and the neato-keenest submarine since "Voyage to the Bottom of the Sea."

It turned out to be a poorly focused kiddie show. Things got so bad last season for the typographically challenged "Deep-Submergence Vehicle" that the producers shied it across interstellar space to fight a civil war on an alien, watery world.

Ironside, beloved of science-fiction fans for performances in "V," "Scanners" and Total Recall, told the producers he wanted no part of it. Then he got his first surprise.

"My attitude was, basically, crash the ship, kill half the crew and start over," he said. "They, basically, looked at me and said, 'What else?' "

Plenty, it turned out. Ironside had read classic science fiction since boyhood, everything from Bradbury's "Martian Chronicles" to Van Vogt's "Slan," and had acted in dozens of science fiction projects. He knew the rules.

"Take Blade Runner, for example," he said. "Science fiction in that sense is where you have all the technology, all the possibilities of communication, yet it showcases the isolation and the loneliness of the human animal. That's what's neat about it. It's just another place to put a morality play."

"If you don't set the rules, there's no structure to tell your story in," Ironside said. "I wanted a very structured world. Whether it's a structure that's falling apart or not, I want to know that."

The surface world of "seaQuest" and 2022 looked vaguely like upper middle-class West Palm Beach, he said. "It's arrogant to think the world is going to be in that kind of balance," he said, "and I think it's arrogant to go around saving the whales in a 47-minute TV format."

Ironside also suggested a "corporate reality," where multinationals are even more influential, aggressive and imperialistic than some nations.

The producers kept nodding their heads.

And what about that demographically correct crew?

"The crew of seaQuest over those two seasons looked like they were all on Valium," he said. "I've never been in a work environment, artificial or real, where the people have had that much empathy for each other.

"The idea of drama is to have conflict!"

After a couple of weeks of talks, Ironside agreed to play Capt. Oliver Hudson, a career Navy man, who last week succeeded Capt. Nathan Hale Bridger (Roy Schneider) as CO of seaQuest on its new, military mission.

"I want to have an adversary relationship with members of that crew and with characters in the stories, and as one gets resolved I want to move to the next," Ironside said.

"The cast is not etched in stone. Characters are going to die this year," Ironside said. "There are a couple of people on whom the show is really dependent ... but the rest are up for grabs as the story lines dictate."

The new show is titled "seaQuest 2032," and has a new theme song. Last week's season premiere wrapped up some extremely loose ends from last season.

Ironside asks only that you watch the show for a couple of weeks before you criticize the direction it's taking.

"You won't see me fighting any man-eating glow-worms, rubber plants, 40-foot crocodiles and I don't talk to Darwin," he said.

Gee, Skipper, what have you got against a talking dolphin?

"I'm not interested in a relationship with Darwin," he said, lifting an eyebrow. "Animals don't lie. They don't have points of view. If I have an adversary relationship with Darwin, I'm a bully."

New fall books show variety

Babara Streisand & Bill T. Jones subjects of biographies

By Tara MK Connelly
Collegian Staff

One can never have enough books. Here is a soupcon of literature to sink your teeth into on a cool fall evening when it's just too cold to stand in line for cheap beer.

THE FEAST OF JULY
H.E. Bates
Vintage

Nothing beats a good romance novel and this one takes the cake. If you love dry humor, the Victorian Era and England, then this is the book for you.

Reeking of E.M. Forrester, this novel follows its heroine Bella Ford across the countryside looking for her lost lover, Abandoned and hurt, Bella seeks revenge and finds instead, the Wainwright family and its three sons.

Seducing each in turn, the novel climaxes during a July evening that celebrates a fruitful harvest. This book is so good that Merchant Ivory snapped it up and so should you.

ANGELS & INSECTS: TWO NOVELLAS
A.S. Byatt
Vintage

Set in Victorian England, these two pieces of fiction penned by the author of Possession, explores the intricate and spiritual world of the time period.

Weaving seances, mind melding and yearning from the grave and setting it inside a country house, this book shows us the hidden sensuality and mystery of an otherwise Puritanical era.

WATCH WITH ME
Wendell Berry
Pantheon

Now available in paperback, this is a delightful melange of seven short stories cleverly interwoven and served with a smile.

The author of more than 30 novels takes his reader back to Port William, KT the fictional community in which Wendell Berry has set his characters for over 30 years.

Littered with humor, wisdom and human insight, this book shows how a small community deals with its everyday problems and the 20th century.

LAST NIGHT ON EARTH
Bill T. Jones with Peggy Gillespie
Pantheon

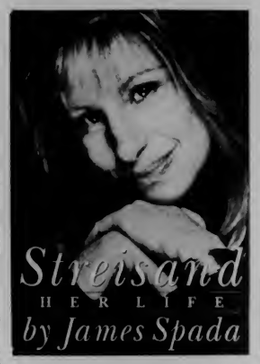
This is the autobiography of one of the dance world's most important and controversial choreographers.

Choreographer Bill T. Jones has had passion, honesty and moral conviction in almost all his creations. He has also been the subject of recent attention in Time magazine. Now he tells the story of his life and success in his own words.

SAVAGES
Joe Kane
Alfred A. Knopf

This Oakland, Calif. native and New York Times best- selling author of Running the Amazon is back again.

"Savages is a funny and fascinating first hand account of a small band of Amazon warriors. The Huarani are a nation of 1,300 nomadic warriors so remote that their language is related to none on the planet.



COURTESY CROWN PUBLISHERS
Babara Streisand

However, oil companies, missionaries and bureaucrats are breaking into their world and turning it upside down. This book chronicles their effort to vault from their primitive existence into the modern era and fight for their way of life.

PASSAGES OF PRIDE
Kurt Chandler
Times Books

This is a ground breaking story about gay teenagers coming of age and of terms with their sexuality Chandler approaches the tale of these teens as a compassionate journalist and a concerned parent.

The author follows six lesbian and gay teens for several years documenting their hopes, dreams, struggle of identity and social acceptance. He also interviews teens nationwide asking them their responses and feelings on the subject.

The book is not just for queer teens coming out and looking for a safe haven, but for parents, teachers and other adults who need to provide one for them.

STREISAND: HER LIFE
James Spada
Crown

Singer, actress, songwriter, director, political activist, mother — the list goes on. But it is the mixture of all these things that makes up this remarkable woman.

James Spada tells the story of a young girl in Brooklyn, N.Y. who was a loner, but yet refused to step into a category and be like everyone else. Years of research and interview with this star has led the author to write a brilliant and revealing portrait of a super star.

Dude of Life to appear at the Iron Horse

By Mike Burke
Collegian Staff

Who else would perform on stage in a full scuba outfit or for that matter name himself the Dude of Life? Well obviously, the individual marches to his own drummer and that is just why Phish fans flock to see the Dude perform live.

Based out of New York City, the Dude of Life has for years been recording songs, but so far has only released one album. The record, Crimes of the Mind, was recorded with his friends, Phish, in 1991 but wasn't released until last year.

Featured on the album are many bizarre tales sung by the Dude himself. On "TV Song" he sings "Life is a TV show/ That should've been cancelled long ago." His influences include the Beatles, Jimi Hendrix, and Led Zeppelin.

Over ten years ago, while still in high school, the Dude of Life formed Space Antelope with Trey Anastasio of Phish. The band came to an end when Anastasio left for college to form Phish, but Anastasio never forgot his childhood friend.

Since then the Dude of Life has been forever reappearing on Phish records and at shows. Way back at Phish's first gig at Nectar's in Burlington, the Dude jumped on stage like a wild man. He has hardly refrained himself since then.

Perhaps the Dude's most valid claim to fame is that he has written several of Phish's most prized tunes, including, "Dinner and a Movie," "Fluffhead," and "Run Like An Antelope."

The Dude of Life has also gained fame in the Phish world by often making more guest appearances at their live shows. Phish drummer, Jon "Greasy Fireck" Fishman describes the Dude's effect on the audience, "It's great when he shows up. The crowd leaps to their feet in anticipation, and well they should. The only problem is, they don't know whether to flee to safety or to rush the stage. So they just stand in the same place."

I hardly doubt the crowd will be standing in place when the Dude takes the stage tomorrow night.

The Dude of Life will appear at the Iron Horse Music Hall in Northampton on Thursday night. There will be two shows, at 7:00 p.m. and 10:00 p.m. Tickets are $8.50 and available in advance at the Northampton Box Office.

■ Trax

continued from page 5

THEY'RE BAACCKK! Those platinum blond twins are back. Their new album is aptly titled; Because They Can. The title is ironic if one knows a little about the band. For starters their grandparents were Ozzie and Harriet from the '50s television fame. Also their father was teeny bopper heart throb Ricky Nelson. After listening to the album one finds that industry connections can help a lot.

This album isn't as bad as you might think. The duo, like their fans, have grown and matured. This new album contains more folk-tinged rock than their soirees into the realm of glam rock in the eighties. It must be added that the folk influence is more in the vain of The Eagles than of Bob Dylan for instance.

The Nelson brothers take on a slight twang and experiment with a peddle steel guitar on the country-tinged "Cross My Broken Heart." Their old fans won't be disappointed with "Won't Walk Away," which is a throw back to the hard-pop of the eighties. It might seem odd but one of the later tracks, "Nobody Wins In The End," has seemingly Freddie Mercury-esque vocals.

The real weak point of the album is the lyrics. Nelson seems to be graduates from the Bon Jovi School of Lyric Writing. Their voices do get annoying after awhile, since they use the same harmonies on every song. This album could have been much worse C- (Ed Hurley)

DISH
Boneyard Beach
Interscope/ Atlantic

One might think that after hearing Dish's lead vocalist, Dana Kletter, that they were in for a mellow, down to earth ride but Boneyard Beach is hardly a laid back affair. Kletter offers up a voice that is another example of the resurgence of female rock singers in today's music.

Unfortunately the band's weak lyrics take away from Kletter's powerful voice. Dealing mostly in abstractions and fractions of thoughts, the bands's lyrics are poetic but so incoherent that you can easily lose interest in some of the tunes.

Musically, Dish fairs better as they bring a unique blend of R&B, pop, and southern rock with a twist of more modern rock. Some highlights include a Russian waltz including, "Okinokaya Garmon (The Lonely Accordian)" and an unlisted cover of Bob Dylan's "Tears of Rage."

If you're looking for something different, Boneyard Beach could be for you. Songs such as "Other Moon" with hints of good, freefall jamming can tease you when surrounded by long abstract metaphors.

Dish don't stand out as one of the year's most promising bands, but they have the potential to grab you and take you in. B (Jeremy Kipp)

Collegian Graphics
We're Up All Night
putting together New England's oldest daily college newspaper

The Magic Lantern
THE BEST IN ADULT ENTERTAINMENT
Amateur Night
Fall Season Kick - Off
Wednesday, Sept. 27 8pm
Come See The Top Amateurs From New England Compete For $500 Cash Prizes.
Cash Door Prize $200.
Free Admission With Ad.
Interested Contestants Call 283-9275
Giveaways & Audience Participation
Only 30 Minutes from the UMass Campus: Rte. 9 east, to Rte. 181 south, to Rte. 20 west for 1.5 miles
Open 6 days Closed Sundays 12 pm to 1 am Boston Rd. Rte. 20 Palmer, MA (413) 283-9275

Pant, pant, pant.
ZUMA

Collegian Graphics
Up all night to produce New England's BEST college daily

Research Interviewers
Hiring Now For Evening and Weekend Hours
No Selling Involved
Interesting part-time telephone assignments to collect data on a variety of research topics. Absolutely no selling involved. Computer/typing skills required. Flexible hours: Monday-Friday, 5pm-10pm, Saturday 11am-5pm and Sunday 3pm-9pm. Must work a minimum of 20 hours per week. Start at $5.25/hour with paid training and earn up to $7.00/hour.
We're in the Mountain Farms Mall, which is a stop on the free bus line. Call between 9am-5pm, Monday-Friday, (413) 586-8635.
Abt Associates, Telephone Research Center, Mountain Farms Mall, Rt. 9, Hadley, MA 01035. An Equal Opportunity Employer.
Abt
Abt Associates Inc.

TRAVEL SMART!
FROM NEW YORK
One Way Roundtrip
LONDON $146 $292
PARIS $213 $426
SAN JOSE, COSTA RICA $220 $439
TOKYO Roundtrip $859
Scheduled flights. Fares to worldwide destinations. Eurailpasses Available. Weekend surcharges may apply. Customs-immigration taxes apply. Fares subject to change without notice. Int'l student I.D. cards may be required.
PRISM TRAVEL
342 Madison Ave., NY, NY 10173
212-986-8420*
800-272-9676
*in NYC

■ field hockey

continued from page 10

"Moving Streya not only helped our team, but it has helped her also," Donnelly said. "She can take the ball and attack. She is not afraid to take the ball to the 25 [yard line] and rip a shot."

The Lady Huskies enter the contest with a record of 5-2. They have two common opponents with the Minutewomen in Old Dominion, who defeated both clubs, and Boston College, who was handed losses by both teams.

Northeastern will be led by senior midfielder Denise Nasca, who has tallied five goals to go along with three assists this season. The Lady Huskies' biggest scoring threat comes in the form of Keri Bettenhauser, a sophomore forward who already has nine goals this year.

UMass looked shaky in the early going this year, falling to teams such as North Carolina, Old Dominion, Maryland, New Hampshire and Yale.

"You can rationalize the losses to UNC and Old Dominion, but there is just no rationalizing losing to Yale," Donnelly said.

Despite the slow start to their season, UMass knows there is still a long way to go.

"The way the teams are falling into place, we still have a good chance [of making the NCAA tournament]," Donnelly said.

After the battle at Parson's Field in Boston, the squad will travel to UConn this weekend for a much anticipated rematch with the Lady Monarchs of Old Dominion. However, UMass knows they can't afford to look ahead.

"We have to focus on one game at a time, and if we are able to do that, when November comes around, we'll be in a good spot."

■ volleyball

continued from page 10

Pearce, who earned 25 assists, agreed.

"I think we played very good defense and offense," she said. "And our passing was much improved. Northeastern wasn't quite as good a team as we've been used to playing, but it's important we were able to stay at our own level. I'm glad we won and that I was able to set and play more."

The Minutewomen will resume play in the Atlantic 10 this weekend, beginning Friday when they host rival Temple at 7 p.m.

UMass will then play twice on Saturday, against Fordham at 3 p.m. and LaSalle at 6 p.m.

■ NFL

continued from page 10

they stand. The players respect that and respond to him on the field.

His teams have faced tragedy on the field in terms of record this season, but more notably off the field in recent years.

Mike Utley's paralysis suffered in a game against the Los Angeles Rams four years ago and the death of Fontes' brother and Lions' offensive co-ordinator at the beginning of the 1992 season brought the team together and the tie that binds players and head coach got stronger.

When the media was out to get their coach, they stood up and took action. Scott Mitchell, the much maligned quarterback who has underachieved since being signed as a free agent two years ago had a standout performance. Brett Perriman caught nine of Mitchell's for 115 yards as the Lions leading receiver on the evening.

Their patchwork defense made several key plays that kept the 49ers from getting down field quickly and subsequently held off the most feared offense in the league, preserving the win.

If they could only play every game that way.

• I used to often wonder if NFL coaches watch college football on Saturday. After this weekend, I would have to say they do. With the recent rash of high scoring/run up the score games in the college ranks, the pros followed suit this past weekend. Eight of the 12 games this week end had at least 50 points scored total to surpass the combined amount for the first three weeks.

• During the off-season, the Patriots chose not to re-sign free agent wide receiver Michael Timpson. Going into this weekend, Timpson has more touchdown catches than the entire Patriots team.

Timpson 1, Patriots 0.

Justin C. Smith is a Collegian columnist.

COLLEGIAN GRAPHICS
We're up all night putting together New England's largest daily college newspaper.
When our job is done – your day is just beginning.

The Massachusetts DAILY COLLEGIAN
New England's Largest Daily • Founded in 1890 • Daily Since 1967
Presents
Gay Lesbian & Bisexual Supplement
Tuesday, October 10
Look For It!

The Campus Center 25th Anniversary Committee
Presents
DISCO
Blues & Jazz In The Bluewall
9pm MONDAYS 17cm
Street Musicians on the Campus Center Concourse WEDNESDAYS 12:00pm PRIME 1:30pm Sept. 20th playing the steele drum
The Art Stookey Blues Band Sept. 10th
JAZZOTREE Oct. 2nd
Peter Orphanos Quartet Oct 16th
THE STEVE PECKAVER INTERNATIONAL TRIO Oct. 30th
Khmer Music Awakened Sept. 19th
Papa Bunka Susso Sept 26th
The Cape Cod Series 12pm TUESDAYS 2pm
The Rhythm Mission (With Tony Vacca & Steve Leicach) Oct. 3rd

Q:
A: Blair Cutting & Smith INSURANCE
7 North Pleasant St
Amherst, MA 01002
(413) 256-8541
For all of your auto insurance needs

BOYDEN
FLEX FITNESS CENTER AMHERST, MA
253-3539
IT ISN'T

STUDY ABROAD
Semester, Summer and Year Programs
Ecuador • Spain
England • France
Canada • Mexico
Costa Rico • Italy
INTERNATIONAL STUDIES ABROAD
isa
817 W 24th St
Austin, TX 78705
(800) 580-8826
SINCE 1987

Zolak to start for Patriots

Bledsoe is sidelined with third degree separated shoulder

FOXBORO (AP) — Quarterback Drew Bledsoe, who has had a slow start to the 1995 season, will miss the New England Patriots' game in Atlanta because of the left shoulder he separated Sept. 17 in San Francisco.

Coach Bill Parcells said Tuesday that backup Scott Zolak is preparing to replace Bledsoe.

"I think we'll have to do the best we can," Parcells said. "In this case, we've had some extra days of preparation for Scott, and that should be good for him. It should give him the best chance to function well."

It will be Zolak's first start for the Patriots since Dec. 13, 1992, at Kansas City.

"I feel I'm ready to go, and I'll do everything extra that I have to do this week to get to the stage where a starter needs to be," said Zolak, in his fifth NFL season. "I've been waiting three years since I've played, the time is here, it's my chance and I just have to be ready."

Bledsoe did not practice last week, and went to Birmingham, Ala., on Monday to be examined by Dr. James Andrews, a noted orthopedic specialist. Andrews' recommendation was that Bledsoe not play against the Falcons.

"He, like any other player, is entitled to a second opinion," said Parcells.

There have been conflicting reports over the severity of Bledsoe's injury, and Parcells did little to dispel the confusion Tuesday.

"He has a separated shoulder," Parcells said. "That's all I'm going to discuss. I'm not a doctor. He's much improved, but he's going to have to practice efficiently at some point in time before I play him.

"People get hurt," Parcells added. "This is not a season-ending injury, fortunately. Drew will be back with us, so in the meantime, you've got to hold the fort, and that's the way it is."

Bledsoe did not have a touchdown pass in the Patriots' first three games.

Zolak said he has no delusions about what his role will be once Bledsoe is healthy again.

"You have to accept what's been handed to you," he said. "It's a situation where I think you need two good quarterbacks to get through the season. I'm just the guy filling in right now until his shoulder gets healthy. I don't think there's any competition out there ... he's the man, it's his team."

Zolak started four games in 1992, Dick MacPherson's second and last season as head coach, following injuries to starter Hugh Millen and backup Tom Hodson. He completed 52 of 100 passes for 561 yards, including two touchdowns and four interceptions, and led the Patriots to their only two victories of the season before suffering a sprained ankle in his fourth start.

In the past two seasons, he has completed five passes in 10 attempts for 28 yards. He played one full series against the 49ers following Bledsoe's injury.

"It's a very important game for me, there's no question about that," Zolak said. "I'm taking it very seriously and I'm working to win this game. Who knows how many weeks I might have to play ... I don't know how everything's going to develop with the shoulder, and I went through this three years ago."

"This is an opportunity for him," Parcells said of Zolak. "He hasn't had one in a while, and I'm sure he'll do the best he can. I know he's going to be very conscientious in his preparation and he'll do what we ask him to do. Hopefully, everyone can kind of rally around him and help him get going, including me."

Jay Barker, a rookie from Alabama, is on the team's practice squad but Parcells said he has not yet determined who will back up Zolak for the Falcons game.

Mariners close in on AL West title

By Jim Cour
Associated Press

SEATTLE — The Seattle Mariners are closing the season the way every team hopes it can. They are also on the verge of closing out the California Angels.

"Earlier in the season, everything was going right for them," Tino Martinez said Tuesday after the Mariners reduced their magic number to winning the AL West to three with a 10-2 victory over the Angels. "Now, it seems like everything is going right for us."

The Mariners, getting home runs from Jay Buhner and Ken Griffey Jr., won for the 22nd time in 30 games to move 13 games over .500. They have a three-game lead over the Angels, losers of 27 of 36, with five games left on the schedule. The teams meet again Wednesday in the Mariners' final home game of the season.

The Angels didn't exactly concede the division title to the Mariners, but they came close.

"The way Seattle is playing, we'd be better off concentrating on winning the wild card," said Chuck Finley, who will start against the Mariners on Wednesday. "They're very, very hot." California dropped to one game behind New York in the race for the fourth playoff spot. The Yankees played at Milwaukee on Tuesday night.

"We've got to win tomorrow," third baseman Tony Phillips said. "It's the most important game of the season for us. If we drop four back with four left, that's not a good situation."

The Angels, who led by 11 games on Aug. 9, have lost 15 of their last 17 on the road and dropped nine games in the standings in the last 13 days.

Seattle has a season-high, seven-game winning streak and has won 15 of its last 17 at home.

"We have to put together a good, solid game tomorrow," Angels manager Marcel Lachemann said. "The choices are pretty clear. You either do it or you don't."

The Mariners are taking the field these days with the idea of winning every game and that's the way it's been working on their current 7-0 homestand.

"Everybody here is having great years and that's what it takes to win championships," outfielder Vince Coleman said. "Now, we expect to win. And when you expect to win, you're going to win." And the Angels?

"I know what it's like to be on that side over there where you can't do anything right," Martinez said. "Nothing seems to be going right. The pitching doesn't go right, you can't get any hitting and you're making errors."

Buhner hit his 38th homer and club-record 12th of the month and Griffey had his 16th and ninth since returning to the lineup Aug. 15 after missing almost three months with a broken left wrist. Buhner has homered in 10 of the last 19 games and Griffey in four of six. Buhner had two RBIs to reach 118 for the season, two more than the previous club record set by Alvin Davis in 1984. Andy Benes (7-11) ran his winning streak to five games, giving up a home run to Garret Anderson in the fifth. Benes allowed eight hits in 7 1-3 innings.

The Mariners have scored 10 or more runs for Benes in four of his 11 starts in Seattle since he was acquired July 31 in a trade with San Diego.

"I think I'm unbeaten when we score 10 runs," Benes said. With the Mariners leading 6-1 in the sixth, Martinez brought the crowd of 46,935 to its feet with a three-run double. Griffey had his third RBI of the game with a sacrifice fly in the eighth. The Mariners took a 3-0 lead in the third when they sent nine batters to the plate. With two outs, Shawn Boskie (7-7) hit Joey Cora with a pitch and Griffey doubled him home from first. Edgar Martinez, the league's leading hitter, had an RBI single and Buhner also singled in a run.

Boskie said he thought he threw a good pitch to Griffey. It was low and away.

"Everytime he puts the bat on the ball, it's a missile," Boskie said. "That's why he is who he is."

Seattle went ahead 5-0 in the fourth on Dan Wilson's double, Coleman's sacrifice, Cora's sacrifice fly and Griffey's homer off Rich Monteleone. Buhner homered off Mike James in the fifth after Anderson got his 16th homer in the top of the inning.

Greg Myers hit his ninth homer of the season in the ninth for California's other run.

Notes: Angels star Mark Langston (15-6), who has had bicep tendinitis in his left arm, was scratched from his scheduled start Wednesday. Finley (13-12) will start in Langston's place on three days' rest. ... Buhner's 12 home runs in September broke Gorman Thomas' team record of 11 set in July, 1985. ... First baseman Tino Martinez threw out Myers at the plate when he attempted to score from third on Phillips' groundball when the Angels trailed 5-1. ... California leads the season series 6-5.

Do you like to write?
Do you like to see your name in print?
Do you like to meet interesting people and talk to them?
Well, then write for the News Dept.!
Contact Chris Conner
The Massachusetts Daily Collegian
113 Campus Center • 545-3500

Collegian Classifieds

113 Campus Center • University of Massachusetts • Phone: (413)545-3500 Fax: (413)545-1592

Personals Policy

1. All personals MUST be proofread by Collegian classified employees before payment and acceptance of the classified.
2. Last names MAY NOT be used in personals. ONLY first names and initials are allowed. The only exceptions are for birthday or congratulations personals, in which case the full name may be used.
3. Phone numbers are not allowed in personals. NO EXCEPTIONS
4. Addresses are not allowed in personals. this means dorm room numbers as well.
5. Personals of a threatening or derogatory nature are not acceptable. Personals of a vindictive or libelous nature are not acceptable. Personals may not be used for the purpose of harassment.
6. Profanity may not be used in personals.
7. The personals section is for personals only. The personals section may NOT be used to sell items, seek roommates, advertise meetings, etc.
8. All personals must have the name, signature, and UMass I.D. number of the student placing the as filled in on the insertion order. Non-students must provide a valid driver's license and the license number must be recorded on the insertion order. Use of false identification or misrepresentation is subject to penalties under the law.
9. The Collegian reserves the right to refuse or to edit any personal that does not meet the Collegian's standards in accordance with the statutes of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

Rates

$2.00 minimum/day

Students
20¢ per word/day

All others
40¢ per word/day

NO REFUNDS

Please write clearly and legibly. We are not responsible for errors resulting from illegible handwriting or type.

Standard Headings

Activities
Announcements
Apartment For Rent
Auto For Sale
Employment
Entertainment
For Sale
Found (2 days Free)
Happy Birthday
Houses For Rent
Instruction
Lost
Musicians
Miscellaneous
Personals
Room For Rent
Room Wanted
Roommate Wanted
Services
Summer Sublet
To Sublet
Travel
Transportation
Wanted to Rent
Wanted

ACTIVITIES

Skydive! The most exciting ... the #1 Mass Sport ... DC concourse ... Learn to base&fall with University Par...

ANNOUNCEMENTS

... ce at other schools ... Free info session ... $100 gc. Lead Jeffrey ... (AN Mtn

The sisters of Sigma Delta Tau would like to welcome ... Sharon, ... Town. Sharon, ... a great semester!

To the sisters at Sigma Delta Tau ... Can't Wait ... a great semester! ... over Exit ...

U Mass bike sale ... Well, on the ... company. Al...

UPC general committee meeting ... Mass Gov. ... 7:00 pm ... 1st floor ... Graduate ...

Vanity of vanities. Everything is vanity. ... 7:00 pm ... 1st floor ... Graduate ...

Zeta Psi ... 7:00 tonight to get together ... Zeta Psi is ...

AUTO FOR SALE

Having again rush for all University men of interested call Mike at 549-1615

1983 Chevy 80 000 original mileage very good condition $700 or bo 253-9017

'86 Subaru GL Hatchback 5 speed Runs well, 1 owner, $1700 253-9295

1988 VW Fox GL Needs some repairs $990 Please call 549 3628

'92 Red Jeep Wrangler 5 speed soft top 27 000 CD player, Alarm, $12 000 or bo 413 256-6711

1992 Toyota Celica GT, 5 speed, loaded Red, 1 owner, mint, grarn, 52k miles $3000 below book $10 700 665-7219 Jen

Car for sale Honda Excel SE 41 500 mileage air conditioning radio cassette automatic $3600 call 4~ 256 1785

For Sale 1986 Hyundai Excel some work needed $500 253-0670 Please call in evenings ask for Rachel

Ford Taurus Wagon LX 88 Power Everything mint seats exc condition $4 700 256 4708

Mercury Marquis, 1984 70k miles Runs excellent Power windows & doors 1500 or B O Call JJ 549 8881

Moving 1984 Chevy $1800 and 1984 Olds $1900 255 Ware Road Bertheriown 323 8614

Bert's Homemade Now hiring for part time hours weekends a must Apply at Amherst store 253 9371

EMPLOYMENT

BUILD YOUR RESUME
Come to the UMass Credit Union September 18th or 19th at 6:30 pm to build your resume! Looking for new tellers for fall 1995! Stop by, call Christine at 545 7800

Campus representatives needed for internship program Work 10 to 20 hours per week on campus doing marketing for student internship program Starts at $8 an hour plus incentives Call Dan Worman at TASP International, 1 800 825 4777

Cruise Ships Hiring Earn up to $2000+/month World Travel Seasonal & Full time positions No exp necessary for info call 1 206 634 0468 Ext C500

Drivers, waitresses and kitchen help wanted KING PHILIP AVENUE 586 8255

Drivers wanted $8 /7 hr call Delivery Express 549 0017

Drivers wanted Cantone s pizza co part time & full time call 256 6100

Earn big $$$ Leading college marketing firm is currently seeking part time help Multiple positions available throughout the fall semester Flexible hours & great pay $8 $10/hr Will train no experience necessary Great resume builder! For more info call Mark Egan @ (617) 266 8661 Ext 11

Make money sell refrigerator posters on campus Gorgeous body painted models Great for fund raiser Call Body Tz 866 439 4436

Male Torah reader needed Hillside and Sunday Congregation Reddney Shalom Helvetia 534 1/62

National Parks Hiring Seasonal & Full time employment available at national Parks Forests & Wildlife Preserves Benefits and Bonuses! Call (206) 545 4804 Ext N 907

Students wanted to work evenings and or weekends with adult M R population Have your time really count! We will train Car a must Call 549 7911 AA/EOE/ADA

Toc Restaurant servers MWF 10 45 2 30, T TH 10 45 2 30 Cashiers/host MWF 11 2 30 Cook/Dishwasher MWF 10 2 30

Want a real challenge? Live in possible room and board provided in return you share responsibilities of care for elderly man Experience with M R / M H population helpful Extra pay hours available Call 549 7911 AA/EOE ADA

$231.00 Sell 72 funny college t-shirts Profit $231 00 Risk free Choose from 27 designs or design own Free catalog 1 800 700 4822

$40.000 income potential Home typists/pc users Toll free 1 800 898 9778 Ext T 1732 for listings

$35.000 income potential Reading books Toll free 1 800 898 9778 Ext R 1102 for details

ENTERTAINMENT

Having Halloween bash on 10/27 or 10/28? Get a huge house? Want a spooky band? You need us!!! and we'll provide you! call Jack at 367 9635

FOR RENT

Fridge Rentals Free delivery, 253 9742 and Lisa/prn Free Co Op and Rec ce

FOR SALE

Brother 9500 Word processor 1 year old 720 mb disk 4 000 superfast screen grabber Check thesaurus with manual & starter pk $750 585 0077

COMPUTERS

Mac computers Powerbook 170 8/80 fax carry case $1195 Quadra 700 8/540 16" color monitor awesome graphics software $ 995 Call 256 6089

DJ EQUIPMENT

Soundcraftman power amplifier (8X) watts $250 or bo LV speakers 300 watts $250 or bo 3-piece system $200 or b/o 546 3498 Bieber 292 8010 Mustafa

HP laserjet 2p printer 4 years old works great $250 / ono Call 545 1852

IBM pc notebook comp world excel Need $ for school bo 549 6661

Panasonic printer Great condition, spilling ink) ribbon $150 00 253 1726

Purchasing a used car? Having your car inspected? Do you know your rights? Contact the Student Legal Services Office, 922 Campus Center 545 1995

Rollerblades New calpro Mens 8 Womens 9 and knee w/ stix pads $175/bo Sheila 584 7925

Toshiba 20" Stereo w/ remote 3yr old ask for $190 call 549 8563

Used Professional Disk Jockey Equipment cost new over $13 000 asking $3500 Demo available 413 527 3512 Liam eg.nov

12 string acoustic guitar w/ case Practically brand new! Call Mike 256 8150

18" Univega/Alpine sport mountain bike Good condition $195 Robert 256 6715

1985 Fender Fretless Jazz Bass good as new asking $400 or bo Call Aaron 549 4087

FOUND

Silver ring at the Collegian Please call 545 3500

HAPPY BIRTHDAY

Happy Birthday Stacy love Jen, Maura, Christine, Lauren, Tracy, Shawn & Brian

INSTRUCTION

Guitar Lessons and classes by Kevin Collins Beginning folk, classical Free intro lesson Harm Grad 256 1733

GUITAR LESSONS
Have fun this semester and earn 1-2 credits with a patient and supportive teacher Spaces still available Call Peter 253 5263

Jazz piano teacher offering fall lessons, beginner or advanced. Call Stephen Page 253 3754

LOST

Key lost with picture of baby and change purse on key chain Reward! call 546 1799

Last blue 3 subject binder notebook on 21 Sept 95 in 251 Boyden If you found it please please please call Stacy at 549 4780 Thanks

MISCELLANEOUS

Call the Playground BBS! 256 6085 Over 4000 files online! Twenty genuine games including registered L D R D , B R E and Usurper, Food Co-op and recipe bases, lots more! Stuff for everyone!

WEIGHT LOSS
Bottled Willpower! Lose up to 30 lbs. 30 day money back guarantee Natural, doctor recommended 323 4984

MOTORCYCLES

82 Honda Magna V-45 750 cc, V 4 Very fast and reliable No reasonable offer refused $1 800 bo Page anytime 292 0065

MUSICIANS

GREEN
22 hours, 42 decays. 1000 acres Totally legal Outdoor mainstage Two big pop tents Skyward lasers Massive lighting displays Concessions Smart Bars Clothing and record store bazaars Lifesize Stone Henge replica Begins 4 p m September 23 and ends 2 p m September 24 A Primary/Ohm Production 18+ Call Dan @ 546 0833

Needed: Dynamic, powerful vocalist to front a new original band Consisting of bass, drums, guitar and organ Only serious committed singers need apply Call Eve's Jas 546 4951 or Brandt 545 7367

Needed Funk drummer, singer, keys The Colonial Mustard Trio! Call Ryan Andy 549 1016

Psychedelic garage band for hire Dead Dylan Cream Stones Perfect for parties 256 1949

PERSONALS

Cynde Once again we're somewhere down the creek river Let's rock girl Your reckless roomie

Dave Hey Baby, wanna cuddle? Love, the gamest

ENLIGHTENMENT #2

I need religion like a fish needs a bicycle What I want is to know other people who want to grow and we'll accept me as I am Alliance Christian Fellowship committed to people, friendship, learning, and spirit filled fellowship Info Mark or Elizabeth 253 7706

FRAT BOY
Carla Ya know you're a cute kid! Thanks for making me smile Love Jen 8/27/95

Happy Birthday Lori All our love MK Tim Amy Beth

Happy twenty something birthday, Kay!!! Dont think of it as getting older think of it as getting better! Party it up! We love you! From your housemates

Happy 21st birthday! We love you! FDTD Club

To the cute guy in the Whitmore seachbar: I was surprised to find you winking there, but it was a pleasant surprise I have dreams of you and me and lunch sandwiches Respond here if you feel the same Your secret admirer

To the best staff in the whole world welcome to Collegian Graphics!

To the sisters at DZ Get psyed for an incredible semester Congrats to the new members and good luck Love in DZ

Room for rent in 7 bedroom house in shutesbury 259 1036

ROOM FOR RENT

Are you a foreign student? Need help with your english? I am professionally cer...

SERVICES

tried to teach ESL and can tutor you! Evenings and weekends $10 an hour Call Scott 665 7448

Exotic nail airbrushing 546 1794

Experienced babysitter available with references Please call Alyssa 549 8885 for info

Grants and scholarships available Billions of $$$ in grants Quickly immediately 1 800 243 2435 (1 800 AID 2 HELP)

International Student Visitors DV 1 green card program, by U S Immigration Legal Services Tel 818 772 7168 29231 St Canoga Park, CA 91306

Legal questions? The student legal services offers free legal assistance to fee paying students Contact us at 922 Campus Center 545 1995

Pregnant? Need help? Call birthright of Amherst area for free testing and carrying assistance 549 1906

Spring Break Travel free with Sun Splash tours Highest commissions, lowest prices Campus reps wanted! Sell

TRAVEL

Jamaica, Bahamas, Florida 1 800 426 7710

Quebec weekend Dec 8 10 Ski & party only $120 if paid by 10/31! 545 3437

WITNESSES
Trying to locate 4 students who helped an elderly women who fell at Smith

WANTED

College College Hall on January 30, 1995 Please call Attorney Susan Sachs, 584 8134

"I found it in the Collegian Classifieds"

The Classifieds Work For You!

113 Campus Center

545-3500

Collegian Graphics

We're up all night putting together New England's largest daily college newspaper!

When our job is done – your day is just beginning.

The Massachusetts DAILY COLLEGIAN

The New England Newspaper Association's Daily College Newspaper of the Year, 1994
Free Every Day
Throughout the 5 College Area

Do you have something to sell? Reach 17,000 possible buyers with the Collegian Classifieds

The Classifieds Work For You!

113 Campus Center

545-3500

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING INSERTION ORDER

Client: Date: Taken By:

Date(s) to run: Headline:

Total Days: X Words: = X rate = Payment

Special heading ($2.50 extra): Authorized signature:

ADVERTISING COPY

1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9 10

Insert one character, space, or punctuation mark per box - use capital letters where they apply - Cost figured on each line of form used - see rate card

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE

edited by Trude Michael Jaffe

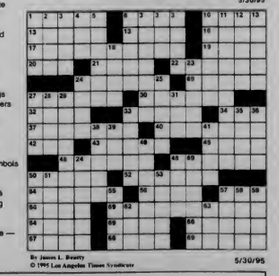
ACROSS
1 Begat
6 Lyric poems
10 Resort hotels
14 Aphorism
15 French military cap
16 Pavilion
17 Fiendish
19 Puberty problem
20 Parapsychology, for short
21 Pastoral poem
22 "— is always welcum" Nash
24 Teeter
26 Lab vessels
27 Sheen
30 Return to custody
32 Feel compassion
33 Aegean island
34 Little demon
37 Sparkle
40 In name only
42 Gal of song
43 Accumulate
45 Otherwise
46 Dog star
48 Yeager and Earhart
50 Lean-tos
52 Nullify
54 Orcas' offspring
56 Grizzly digs
57 Officeholders
60 Jai —
61 Christmas flower
64 Fire fuel
65 Testify
66 Welsh symbols
67 Noted newman
68 Recherché
69 Gets along

DOWN
1 Marquis de —
2 Roman time
3 Airport access
4 Type of trio?
5 Yarn weight
6 Gives the go-ahead
7 Make known
8 Clean air agcy.
9 Fine sediment
10 Red ruler
11 Minor sin
12 Infatuate
13 Checks
18 — fixe
23 "Stop, you hearty!"
24 Let it stand
25 Certain seams
27 Falls behind
28 Calif. campus
29 County Cork club
31 "Après —, le déluge!"
33 Outflow
35 Spinnaker support
36 Part of V.P
38 Café container
39 Rhineland resort Bad —
41 Ubangi feeder
44 Less well-kept
47 Counsel
48 Criticizes
49 Reflexive pronoun
50 La — di Milano
51 Head lights?
53 Artistic style
55 Baindy words
57 Road to Romulus
58 Sneaker people
59 Lip
62 Caviar, e.g.
63 "— and Sympathy"

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE:

P	E	L	F		T	A	M	E		B	A	S	H
A	L	A	I		R	E	A	D	S		O	N	E
S	K	I	N		O	S	T	E	O		G	E	A	R
T	O	R	N		J	O	H	N	B	R	O	W	N
			I	C	A	N			E	A	T
D	R	A	G	O	N		M	E	R	M	A	I	D	S
R	E	L	I	T		F	A	L	L	S		N	O	T
I	R	O	N		S	I	L	L	Y		G	A	Y	E
V	A	N		O	C	A	L	A		T	U	L	L	E
E	N	E	R	V	A	T	E		K	E	L	L	E	R
		E	E	L			S	E	L	L
	C	H	A	R	L	O	T	T	E		I	M	P	S
B	O	A	S		O	R	I	O	N		V	A	I	L
A	R	L	O		P	A	N	N	E		E	L	I	S
T	E	E	N			L	E	E	R		R	E	E	D

5/30/95



By James L. Beatty
© 1995 Los Angeles Times Syndicate
5/30/95

Calvin & Hobbes By Bill Watterson

I HEAR WE'RE HAVING A FIRE DRILL TODAY
RIGHT
WOW! HOW EXCITING! I CAN'T WAIT!
DO YOU KNOW WHAT TO DO?
YOU BET! WHEN DO THEY PASS OUT THE GASOLINE?

Butterling By John Ottinger

NO WAY, MAN! NO WAY! I'M NOT GOING TO BE IN THIS COMIC STRIP. LONG HOURS. SMALL WORKSPACE. WRONG!
LET ME OUT? I QUIT. I MEAN IT. C'MON, I'M DESPERATE. I FEEL LIKE A CAGED WOLVERINE. I'M GONNA SNAP... ALL RIGHT, THAT'S IT?
I WANT SAFE PASSAGE TO THE FAR SIDE OR FAT BOY HERE GETS IT?
THIS ISN'T MOM'S DINER

Big Man on Campus By Dave Schneider

UGH... I FEEL HORRIBLE... NOTHING IS GONNA GET ME OUT OF BED FOR THE NEXT WEEK
YO, JAKE... SHOWGIRLS' OPENS TODAY... YOU COMIN' WITH US?
OH... SORRY, I DIDN'T REALIZE YOU WERE STILL SICK....
SCHNEIDER EXZ
SHOOM!
JAKE! WE'LL GIVE YOU A RIDE WITH US! NO! THERE'S NO TIME TO WASTE!!

Leold By Roger & Salem Salloom

Close to Home By John McPherson

"Ray? No! Believe it or not, Jason caught it using a toy fishing pole and a piece of Play-Doh as bait!"

The Amazing Spiderman By Stan Lee

GUNS DON'T SHOOT PEOPLE, PEOPLE DO! BUT PEOPLE WITHOUT GUNS CAN'T!
YOU TALK TOO MUCH, FREAK!
YOU MEAN YOU PREFER THIS TO MEANINGFUL DISCOURSE?

Lost Horizons By Douglas Cellirini

HEY, NICK, NICK AND I ARE GOING TO THE DANCE CLUB TONIGHT. WANNA GO WITH US?
NAH. I DON'T LIKE THOSE CROWDS
I HATE MEAT MARKETS. TOO MUCH MUSIC. THE SMOKE. THE MISSILE HEADS
THE ALCOHOL, THE
UGH. WE'RE LEMMING TO TWENTY MINUTES GET READY
THAT'S WHAT I LOVE ABOUT GOOD FRIENDS. I ALWAYS FEEL SO ACCEPTED
E. TOLD YOU HE'D BE A DRAG

Bruno By C. Baldwin

COME ON BRUNO, JUST FREEZING YOU'RE SO WITHOUT EMOTION IS JUST THAT PAINFUL FOR YOU THAT YOU THINK YOU CAN LIVE SANS-EMOTION?
BEARD A CAVE... MOMENTOUS NOSE... CRAMPED LOVES... CRAMPED LOVES... TELL ME BLOOD LOSS, FROZEN SCRAPS AND NO EYES WERE ENDOWED UNDUE TURNED TO TOWERED CAMELOT FOR ERE THE BEAVER WON THE TIDE THE FIRST HOUSE BY THE WATERSIDE SINGING IN HER SONG SHE DIED THE LADY OF SHALOTT
TUT. I'VE CUT OUT EMOTIONS COLD TURKEY EMOTIONS HAVE NEVER ME TOO MANY TIMES ONLY LOGIC NOW
IT JUST SEEMED LIKE THE MOST LOGICAL CHOICE WIFE

Dilbert By Scott Adams

I SEE SIGNS OF PRODUCTIVITY HERE I'M MOVING YOU TO ANOTHER CUBICLE
DILBERT
YOUR PHONE AND COMPUTER WILL BE DISCONNECTED FOR WEEKS. YOUR FILES WILL BE BOXED AND LOST GOOD LORD, YOU'VE ABANDONED ALL PRETENSE OF BEING ON OUR SIDE!!
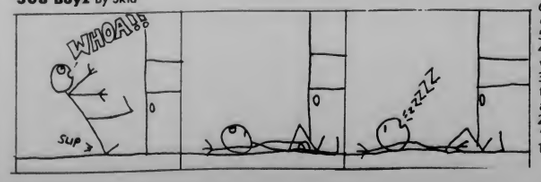
LOSER
SCOTTADAMS@AOL.COM
E-MAIL:
1995 United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

Don't Go There By Kelly Leahy & Justine Brennan

Generation X By Chris Lehman

MEEPO! WHAT IN THE WORLD HAPPENED TO YOU?
I GOT IN IT A FIGHT.
SOMEBODY WALKED BY ME, HE WAS LISTENING TO RAP AND USING THIS "N" WORD.
I TRY TO BE...UM. A SOCIABLE AMERICAN, SO I SAY THE "N" WORD. BUT FOR SOME REASON, HE GOT MAD.
MEEPO WE GOTTA TALK.
IT IS...UM... MIR-A-CLE THAT I STAND BEFORE YOU TODAY.

308 Boyz By Skid



Boy, it takes a while to forget your old girlfriend.

The other night I was waiting in the ticket line at a movie theater with another girl and a nearby public phone was ringing and I really thought it was my old girlfriend calling me to ask if I wanted to meet her for an ice cream later on that night.

Really, after a while my old girlfriend and I weren't any good, anymore, anyway.

I'd better start a hobby.

Maybe I'll paint very tiny figurines of the combatants of the Zulu war of 1879.

Yeah, that'll do it.,

I'll paint lots of little things I can barely see.

Today's Staff

Night Editor ..... Marni E. Helfner
Copy Editor ..... Allison Connolly
Photo Technician ..... Daymion Smith
Production Supervisor ..... Tony Morse
Production ..... David Voldan
Kathryn Gracia

Dining Commons Menu

LUNCH
No one knows.
We lost the menu.
BASICS LUNCH
That' show it goes.
We haven't a clue.

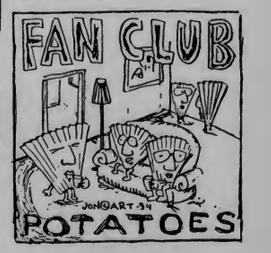
DINNER
Don't think us rude
We've provided a fix
BASICS DINNER
To hear what's the food, call 545-2626.

Quote of the Day

"I don't believe man is woman's natural enemy. Perhaps his lawyer is.

–Shana Alexander

Small Potatoes By Jon Art



THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY COLLEGIAN

Top 10 By Brian Marchionni

Top 10 Reasons Why the Campus Pond Needs Cleaning

10. Due to pollution, the swan is starting to resemble really big brown shoe.
9. 40 percent water, 60 percent stale beer.
8. Chancellor Scott threw his Aerobie in the water by accident.
7. Workers renovating the FAC began using pond in leu of bathroom over the summer.
6. Large two-headed catfish crawled out of the water and filed a complaint.
5. The ducks just won't quit their bitchin'.
4. It's where everyone dumps old bong water.
3. Recent poll shows that 90 percent of the campus population would rather take a swim in Boston Harbor.
2. The EPA has begun to refer to it as "The Problem."
1. Two words: Duck turd.

COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIEDS
They Really Work!
113 Campus Center
545-3500

Sports notice

All Stockbridge students interested in golf and basketball should report to a meeting today (Sept. 27) at 4 p.m. in the VIP room on the third floor of the Mullins Center. For more information, call Jack Leaman at 545-1301.

Sports

Sports notice

The list of new Minutemaniac members selected by lottery will be posted at the Athletic Ticket Office at Curry Hicks Cage at 10 a.m. today. New members must pay their $25 at the ticket office before 12 p.m. on Thursday (Sept. 28). For more information, call 545-1401.

Volleyball bounces back as they blank NU

By Steven Grant
Collegian Staff

Not only did this one prove to be one of the easiest matches of the season for the Massachusetts volleyball team, but it probably couldn't have come at a better time.

Coming off an upset loss to Duquesne last Saturday, where their record dropped close to the .500 mark at 7-6, the Minutewomen, without standout Giza Rivera, breezed by the overwhelmed Northeastern Lady Huskies last night at Curry Hicks Cage, three games to none.

The victory follows an unusual trend, as UMass' last five wins have come via the sweep, as have six of the squad's seven wins on the season.

"We might have needed a match like this," UMass coach Bonnie Kenny said. "We came off a pretty tough match against Duquesne, so it was good to do what we wanted here tonight. It was good to get everybody in to play. Everyone contributed tonight."

In the first game, sophomore Lesley Nolan led the way for the Minutewomen, registering six kills. The outside hitter also managed three digs and a block in the opener. Nolan would go on to lead the team in kills and digs for the entire match, with 14 and 12, respectively.

Freshman middle blocker/outside hitter Leslie Hartlen also performed well in game one, totalling four kills and two digs, en route to a dominating 15-4 UMass win.

"We hit the ball pretty well there in that first game," Kenny said. "Lesley played well, and Leslie Hartlen had some nice service aces."

In particular, Kenny pointed to freshman setter Katie Pearce and junior outside hitter Susan Maga as having quality performances for the match as a whole.

"I also think Katie did a great job tonight. She got some great experience. She distributed the ball offensively, and spread the ball around a little bit. I'm really happy with the way Susan played, as well."

In the second game, the Minutewomen jumped to a big lead once again, but nearly let it slip a way. UMass began making mistakes, and their lead suddenly dropped to one point, at 10-9.

But after being reminded of the score from the bench by Kenny, UMass woke up, and reeled off five straight points to take the second game, 15-9.

"We played flat [in game two] once we knew it wasn't close," Kenny said. "But we were able to step it up when we had to."

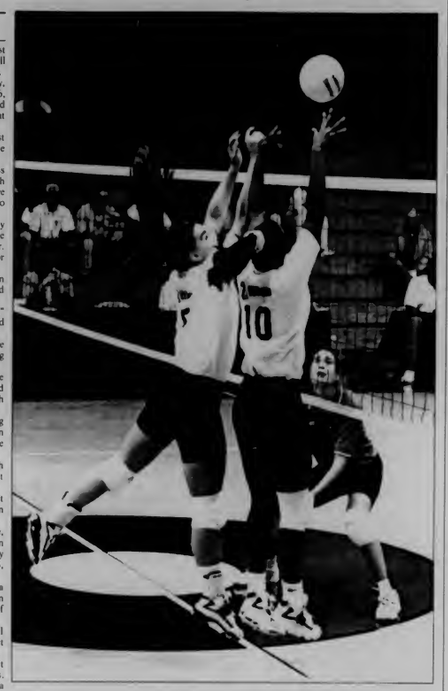
A few heads turned at the beginning of game three, when the Huskies went up 2-0. But the Minutewomen would have none of that, and went on a run where they took 15 out of the next 16 points to take the game, 15-3, and hence the match, 3-0.

Although Northeastern was not of the same caliber of a typical Atlantic 10 team (i.e., Duquesne), the win was an important one for UMass confidence-wise, in terms of getting everyone playing on the same page.

"I think we played a lot better as a team," Maga said. "I think we ran our offense very well. But I think the fact that we dominated at the net was a very important factor.

"I think we were frustrated playing Duquesne. It seemed like we were playing like a bunch of individuals. Tonight we cut down on our errors and played better as a team."

Turn to VOLLEYBALL, page 7



DAYMON SMITH/COLLEGIAN

Minutewomen Dionne Nash (10) and Michelle Paciorek go for a block during last night's 3-0 victory over Northeastern.

Bremke, Gruber hurt; Hartford Hawks take advantage of injuries

By Leigh Torbin
Collegian Staff

HARTFORD — This one hurt.

Despite some valiant efforts, the Massachusetts men's soccer team fell to the Hartford Hawks last night on a damp Al Marzook field.

Massachusetts	1
Hartford	4

By the 13:43 mark, UMass had surrendered two goals and lost a pair of key players, as the Hawks took command of the match early.

The Minutemen outplayed Hartford for most of the final 76-plus minutes, but the lead held up as UMass fell to 6-3-1 on the season.

"Sometimes things just don't go your way," Massachusetts coach Sam Koch said. "I think we were certainly ready to play. We played very well at times and put them under pressure, we controlled a lot of the game but they finished their chances and we didn't."

Hartford stormed out of the gate and scored on their fourth shot as they scored just 2:58 into the match. Frank Natale served a ball from 30 yards out, over the fingertips of outstretched UMass goalkeeper Eric Gruber. Sophomore Patrick McCann was beside the left post for an easy tap-in for his first goal of the year.

The Aussie forward struck again at the 9:10 mark when a ball skipped past UMass' Jonathan Hanna on the wet pitch. McCann collected the ball and fired it over a sliding Gruber for a quick 2-0 lead.

McCann clipped Gruber as he tried to avoid the sliding keeper. After staying down for five minutes as trainers examined his left leg, Gruber was helped off the field and replaced by Jeff Jablonski. Gruber would not return to the match.

UMass regrouped during the break and got some excellent scoring opportunities.

Karsten Bremke had one such opportunity when he was denied by a sliding Hartford goalkeeper Christian DiGenova. Bremke was severely injured by the keeper's cleat on the play.

Bremke suffered a large deep gash on his right shin exposing the tibia, which led doctors to initially believe that he had suffered a compound fracture. Thankfully this was not the case, as the 1994 A-10 Rookie of the Year was taken to the hospital for x-rays.

With Dave Siljanovski leading the way, UMass came out fired up from there and set up the sole Minutemen goal of the evening at the 16:22 mark as he served a ball on a free kick to Brad Miller who headed it passed DiGenova for the goal. Miller played an exceptional match and was one of UMass' few bright spots.

Hartford struck back just 1:13 later as David Piquette headed one past Jablonski.

The remaining 30 minutes of the half saw an even game with both UMass and Hartford producing several excellent scoring opportunities.

The trend continued until Hartford's Sebastian Cognetta scored in the 67th minute to effectively end the game.

The Minutemen will look to regroup before Friday's match against a powerful San Francisco side at Stanford. The Minutemen were able to play a solid game after the initial tumultuous 15 minutes. They will use that attitude to build around as they leave tomorrow morning.

"We rallied, we just couldn't put the ball in the back of the net," Koch said. "It was a positive sign that they never gave up and kept fighting to the end. I'm proud of them for that."

'Player's Coach' has his troops rally behind him

When a coach is on the hot seat in the NFL, there are two things that can happen: the team will either continue its' play as it has been doing or respond in support of the coach.

Detroit Lions' head coach Wayne Fontes has been on the hot seat it seems since he was first hired in December of 1988. It is now seven seasons later and Fontes is still around with controversy still surrounding the southeastern Massachusetts native.

JUSTIN SMITH on the NFL

Through the first three weeks of this season, the Lions appeared listless and got off to an 0-3 start losing at Pittsburgh 23-20 in overtime, at Minnesota 31-17 and at home to Arizona 20-17. The Media and fans were calling for Fontes' head. It had gotten so bad that a fan brought a banner to Tiger Stadium that read, "Fire Wayne!"

The week leading up to Monday night's game with the 49ers, a game they were suppose to lose badly, was the calling card for his dismissal from his post. Detroit has a bye week following the San Francisco game, a perfect time to get someone new running the team and only four weeks in a chance to turn around a season.

But wait, they still hadn't played the game with the 49ers yet. Since Fontes has been at the helm of the Lions' ship, when his teams have played against reigning Super Bowl Champions, they were an astounding 4-1.

They improved on that Monday night.

When Doug Brien's 40 yard field goal attempt hit the goal post and bounced away, not only had the Lions won their first game of the year, but they had saved Fontes' job for a little longer.

Why is it that the Detroit Lions could not beat teams that have a combined record of 2-7, (not counting the games with the Lions) but can beat the team argued to be the best in the league? It can be best explained by the way the players look upon their coach.

Fontes has now been on the sidelines as head coach for more games than any other in Detroit history and if he can win three more games with the team he will surpass George Wilson as the winningest coach ever for the Lions.

You hear the term, "Player's coach" often in the world of sports, but unless you have played under one, you may not fully appreciate what that title stands for and the love the players under that particular have for him.

If the term players coach was in an encyclopedia, in the definition somewhere would be a reference to Fontes. He is an emotional man and is free to let his feelings be known for the world to see.

He goes to the wall for his players, making sure they are always treated fairly and given the proper attention as well as telling a player exactly where

Turn to NFL, page 7

Field Hockey to try and tie up Huskies

By Brian Perillo
Collegian Staff

Saturday's win over No. 13 Temple was the first step back on the winning track, but today the Massachusetts field hockey team will face an even tougher test, on the road against No. 6 Northeastern.

The Minutewomen (3-5) were able to break a three game losing streak by defeating the Owls at Totman Field, a win that turned the mood of the squad around.

"We knew Temple was a good team, and a win like that over one of our biggest rivals feels real good," said Massachusetts coach Megan Donnelly.

The Minutewomen will try and continue to build on that win when they tangle with the Lady Huskies this afternoon at 3:30 p.m. at Parson's Field.

"Northeastern is a lot like Temple," Donnelly said. "They are tough, aggressive and have a lot of speed. Hopefully, we will still be in that flow."

In the win over Temple, UMass used several changes in their lineup. Sophomore Amy Ott moved from sweeper to midfield. Freshman Kate Putnam, who was named Atlantic 10 Rookie of the Week for scoring the only goal against Temple, moved up to the forward position. Sophomore Jen Gutzman was also inserted into the starting unit at the sweeper position.

"Amy's been great, she's been playing all over the field. We needed someone strong at sweeper, and I think Jen is now ready," Donnelly said. "Whoever had a scouting report on us before, can just throw it in the wastebasket."

Another notable change was the shift of senior captain Streya Volla from forward to midfield.

Turn to FIELD HOCKEY, page 7

JAMES STANLEY/COLLEGIAN

Senior defender Andrea Cabral and the UMass field hockey team travel to Northeastern this afternoon to take on the No. 6 Lady Huskies.

Basketball season must be coming

Jeff Crawford is a UMass alum, who lives somewhere in South Florida. During basketball season, he calls me every other day wondering how the UMass recruiting situation is going, because in his words:

"We don't get much info on UMass down here."

He called me yesterday, unofficially sparking the beginning of basketball season in the Pioneer Valley.

Hoop season starts at different times for different people, but on this campus, hoop season starts long before tipoff on opening night.

As you walk around campus now, look around. You'll see more UMass basketball T-shirts starting to appear every day, as phrases "Last Rage in the Cage," "The Brawl for it All," "Anytime Anyplace," begin to adorn the backs of students again.

Cruise through the magazine racks at any newstand and you'll notice a skinny guy with a No. 21 jersey who seems to be on the cover of a lot of magazines. Don't hesitate long if you're planning on buying any however. They'll go fast. Trust me, half the students on this campus will drop five bucks in a hurry for any publication with the words college hoop on the cover.

Granted there are many students that "refuse to lose" the spirit and wear their's year round, but there really is a noticeable difference the closer it gets to the season.

As hoop season approaches, Boston College and UConn students that were your friends this summer become arch enemies. The rivalry is just too much.

Perhaps my political science professor said it best.

"We don't have winter around here anymore. We have basketball."

Matt Vautour

A friend of mine has shelved her UConn hat for the winter.

"It's too dangerous to wear this around here now," she said.

Belly up to any local bar and there's a pretty good chance, after noticing all the posters and other UMass hoop memorabilia, you'll start hearing the debates going on.

"Do you think Dana Dingle can play shooting guard if we get in foul trouble?" one friend asks the other.

Another buddy joins in.

"Well Dana could guard some shooting guards," he said, but Donta would probably be better there offensively."

Soon after the bartender joins in, with his two cents, and eventually the chat spills over into the next table.

The players don't even need last names in casual conversation. Like Magic, Michael and Larry, on this campus, there is no doubt who is being referred to when someone says Marcus, Tyrone, Edgar, Inus, Rigo ... You get the idea.

Once the season gets started, all of my relatives decide that they're my favorite aunt or uncle, and suddenly my neighbors and friends I've lost touch with deeide maybe "that weekend when Temple is in town would be a good time to visit."

"Hey do ya think you could find me an extra ticket," they'll ask nonchalantly trying not to reveal their true motives.

Take a number, I'll get back to you.

Around this time of year, the students start making their ticket plans for tickets as well. Hundreds of students apply for the admission to the Minutemaniacs for the right to pay $25 for otherwise free tickets, to make sure their seats are insured, and they don't have to get up before the rooster crows to see UMass/Temple.

"Best $25 I'll spend all year," said one member after dropping of his check.

Perhaps my political science professor said it best.

"We don't have winter around here anymore. We have basketball."

It's getting close to that time of year again. So close you can almost here the band playing Gary Glitter's Rock and Roll Part II ("the hey song" for everyone who doesn't own Jock Rock).

I checked the calendar yesterday. I couldn't believe it. Only sixteen days until Midnight Madness.

Matt Vautour is a Collegian columnist.

The Massachusetts

DAILY COLLEGIAN

Volume CV Issue 17 New England's Largest College Daily • Founded in 1890 • Daily Since 1967 Thursday, September 28, 1995

Taking it all off

Showgirls is one of the most talked about films of the year. Take a look at how our movie reviewers feel about this flick (See Arts & Living, page 5).

Leftist politics collide

A Tuesday night forum focuses on Russian leftist politics. Guest speaker Dave Eastman spoke on American Trotskyism (See story, page 3).

Thompson making an immediate impact

Amanda Thompson, a defender on the women's soccer team, has been impressive in her first year as a Minutewoman (See Sports, page 16).

Extended Forecast

Today expect a mostly cloudy sky with scattered frost in the evening. Tomorrow, sunny and pleasant leading into a partly cloudy Saturday. Enjoy the weekend.

today	friday	saturday
HIGH: 60	HIGH: 65	HIGH: 55
LOW: 55	LOW: 55	LOW: 50

Black Panther Party co-founder relives struggle for liberation

DAYMON SMITH/COLLEGIAN

Bobby Seale, co-founder of the Black Panther Party, spoke Tuesday on his involvement with political activism in the '60s and '70s.

By Hernán Razemberg
Collegian Staff

AMHERST — Some say that you cannot know your future if you don't know your past. Perhaps this is very true if one examines the political legacy that the 1960s and the 1970s has had on the Black American community.

Such was the message conveyed by Black Panther Party (BPP) co-founder Bobby Seale, self-acclaimed "revolutionary humanist," at a talk he gave at Amherst College Tuesday night.

Seale engaged in a discussion of many relevant topics to the African-American struggle for racial equality in the United States. His main focus, however, was based on the formation of his evolution in political thought through the Black Panther Party.

Seale enrolled in Merrick College in Oakland in 1962 — the same institution that Huey P. Newton, the other founder of the BPP, attended. Here is where Seale began to get involved in activist issues.

"Prior to 1962, I really had no politics," Seale said.

The political activism that was common then compelled Seale to take part in the movement. Also, it was through his university education that he began to learn many things about Black Americans and their history, something which he said had never been taught to him or been inaccurately portrayed.

"Too many [Black] students then didn't understand their history," including himself, Seale said. "I had been brainwashed... by so much damn shit."

In the spring of 1966, Seale and friend Huey Newton reached their organizing climax by forming the Black Panther Party for Self-Defense, as it was originally called. According to Seale, the assassination of Malcolm X only added to the imminent need for someone to continue the work he had begun.

"Too many [Black] students then didn't understand their history," including himself, Seale said. "I had been brainwashed... "

Although his views of the BPP and how it has been unfairly illustrated through time — as in the most recent example, the film Panther — dominated most of the lecture, Seale also touched on a series of related issues.

Bringing the "Black Struggle" back to the present time, Seale spoke of the immediacy of the need for Blacks to get on the internet, "an area where a lot of wealth is going to be generated," according to Seale.

On the subject of the ever-present racism in America, Seale said this is "out of date — it does not correspond to reality."

"Don't talk that shit to me," he said, referring to continued expressions of white superiority over blacks. Concerning affirmative action, Seale called it "a bunch of argumentative political bullshit," and that Blacks should move by themselves so that the community can progress.

"The Black Panther Party that I started doesn't exist anymore," said Seale, although there are over 1,000 party members who maintain "a network" of continued legacy. Many groups, however, have recently emerged, claiming allegiance to the BPP, "these dudes ain't got analytical sense of what the fuck we were doing in those times... they go over the same old doctrinaire, state-controlled command- economy bullshit," Seale said.

"My church is the universe," Seale said, referring to the unnecessary affiliation to any particular religious group.

Although typical college lecturers may not use explicit language, Seale made his presence known by using such verbal expression.

"Because you've got to the flavor of the real shit," he said.

The talk, sponsored by Amherst College group Straight Talk, was held at Johnson Chapel before an audience of approximately 500 people.

Medicare education spurs action

'Teach In' informs Northampton on dealing with cutbacks

By Allison Connolly
Collegian Staff

The dismantling of Medicare and Medicaid programs by the Republican Congress has led to an open session "Teach In" at Northampton High School tonight.

Titles 18 and 19 of the Social Security Act, known as Medicare and Medicaid respectively, were signed into law by President Lyndon B. Johnson 30 years ago. Medicare provides basic health insurance for 33.5 million of the poorest people in the nation.

Congress has proposed a $450 billion spending reduction from these programs over the next seven years, cutting $270 billion in Medicare funding alone.

Natalie Jarmon, member of the executive board of the Franklin\Hampshire Health Care Coalition and a University of Massachusetts alumni, said the health care cuts would be an "unmitigated disaster not only for the millions directly affected, but for all of us."

Jarmon said she feels the proposals are a political coup by the government to privatize health care and thereby absolve themselves of their fundamental responsibility to supply health care to the needy.

"They want to privatize care and dismantle the programs, turning them over to the states in the form of 'block grants' that would take the legal responsibilities from the states to provide for the citizens," Jarmon said.

Block grants do not mandate the states to use the money designated for health care toward these programs.

Jarmon said this form of funding is outrageous because the money could end up being spent on highways.

"If individual states are permitted to severely curtail aid programs," Jarmon said, "Millions of poor people will have no guaranteed access to health care."

Jarmon blames the Republican party for misleading citizens on the need to reduce the national debt.

"The Republican leadership would have us believe that entitlement programs are largely responsible for our national debt," Jarmon said. "It's not true. The congressional budget office reported in 1993 that 71.1 percent of all debt accumulated since the beginning of this nation occurred during the Reagan\Bush administration, a decade of mass arms spending and tax cuts for corporations and wealthy individuals."

Olver takes action

Representative John Olver (D-Mass.) is concerned that the details of the Republican-led spending cuts are too vague.

He joined over 200 members in co-sponsoring legislation to allow full debate on the proposal over a four week period.

Olver also wrote the chairmen of three committees with jurisdiction over Medicare legislature, requesting to hold field hearings in Western Massachusetts.

"The [cuts] will have profound effects on Medicare recipients and our health care system as a whole," Olver wrote. "Not surprisingly, my constituents have numerous questions, comments and ideas about the options for reducing Medicare spending by this unprecedented amount I would like for them to have the opportunity to discuss the proposal and share their thoughts and concerns."

Olver pointed out that there is only one congressional hearing scheduled to discuss the details of the proposal.

"I want the First District to have the opportunity to weigh in on their proposals that would change the way 37 million seniors get their health care," Olver said. "I will continue to keep the pressure on to give my constituents that opportunity."

A public education

The Teach In will focus on educating the public on how Medicare and Medicaid work and how the cuts will affect individuals.

The public forum is sponsored by the Franklin\Hampshire Health Care Coalition and the Northampton Council on Aging, as well as the Hampshire Community Action Commission, the Amherst League of Women Voters, and the Franklin/Hampshire chapter of Citizens for Participation in Political Action.

The board will feature five panelists who will each speak for ten minutes on the cuts to health care spending.

Speakers include Northampton Mayor Mary Ford, Executive Director of the Massachusetts Home Care Corporation Al Norman, health care advocate Neil Cronin of the Massachusetts Law Reform Institute, National Priorities Project Director Greg Speeter and pediatrician Michael Posner, M.D., member of the Physicians for a National Health Plan.

The meeting will begin at 7:30 in the Little Theater of Northampton High School.

Vaid to speak at GLBT conference

By Wendy Darling
Collegian Staff

One of the leading activists in the fight for gay, lesbian, bisexual and transgender rights will be at Bowker Auditorium tonight to deliver the keynote address for "Queer Nations/Multi Nations," a six-day conference organized and cosponsored by the University of Massachusetts Stonewall Center.

Urvashi Vaid, the former executive director of the National Gay and Lesbian Task Force (NGLTF), is the author of a new book titled Virtual Equality: The Mainstreaming of Gay and Lesbian Liberation.

In addition to her speech, which begins at 8 p.m., Vaid is expected to participate in a book signing, said Sarah Pease, acting director of the Stonewall Center.

Born in New Delhi, India and raised in Potsdam, N.Y., Vaid grew up having to face many obstacles on account of her skin color and cultural background.

"[Our family] stood out like a sore thumb," she told Time magazine in 1994 "Kids used to ask, did you grow up in a tepee?"

Later, as she adjusted to her identity as a lesbian, Vaid found herself caught in the middle of a vast struggle within the GLBT rights movement, the struggle to be inclusive of all GLBT people, regardless of gender, race, religion, age or disability.

As the first woman of color and first Indian-American to serve as executive director of the NGLTF, Vaid often ended up as the only woman present at NGLTF meetings.

"My revenge," she told Time, "was to be really good."

Vaid devised national GLBT political strategy during the 1988 and 1992 presidential election races and initiated both the 1993 March on Washington and the Creating Change Conference, the first national GLBT political gathering.

In 1992, after more than a decade of involvement in national GLBT politics, Vaid stepped down from her post as executive director of NGLTF and settled down in Provincetown to write a book reflecting on her experiences.

Although Vaid is certainly the conference headliner, "Queer Nations/Multi Nations" has a roster than includes a dozen workshops, three GLBT films, two panel discussion, a lecture, and a stage play.

The conference is designed as a "celebration of identity intersections," said Pease. Such "identity intersections" include the experiences of gay African-American, visually impaired lesbians, older bisexuals, and other GLBT people who find themselves caught between one or more social or cultural identities.

UMHS director to arrive in October

By Amy H. Paradysz
Collegian Staff

The director of the Center of Psychiatry at Holyoke Hospital, Dr. Harry Rockland-Miller, will be the new director of University Mental Health Services position, starting Oct. 23.

Rockland-Miller, who has made adolescents a focus of his career, said he is "excited to about being in a University environment."

Working at a University will be a different from his previous experience because, "it's a time of transition [for students], being at the University" Rockland-Miller said.

"For some people that can be a stressful time, which can lead to a time of questioning of identity, of anxiety, of depression or of substance abuse," he said.

Since University Health Services (UHS) is an out-patient clinic, patients who require hospitalization are transported to one of two local hospitals — Holyoke Hospital or Cooley Dickinson. Therefore, Rockland-Miller has worked closely with UHS over the past few years.

"I really appreciated his blend of experience between working with adolescents and his experience in the community," said Bernette Melby, director of UHS, who appointed Rockland-Miller after conducting a national search.

After he received his doctorate in clinical psychology from the California School of Professional Psychology in Berkeley, Calif. in 1986, Rockland-Miller opened his own practice in Katonah, N.Y.

Turn to DIRECTOR, page 3

RYAN TEZZI/COLLEGIAN

Rock the free world

Desert Fish members Michael DiMartino and Star Drooker celebrate the Silver Anniversary of the Murray D. Lincoln Campus Center.

Eritrea's struggle focus of lecture

By Michael Elliott
Collegian Staff

Stories of successful African independence movements have been few and far between for most of the 20th century — a trend which has reversed itself in the country of Eritrea, said Joe Puma, who spoke at the University of Massachusetts Campus Center on Tuesday night.

The presentation, entitled "U.S. Imperialism in the Horn of Africa," included Puma, who worked for the United Nations in West Africa, and a documentary, "Eritrea: 30 Years of Solitude," produced in 1990, just one year before the country gained full independence.

Bordering the Red Sea, the largely mountainous nation is tucked away in the northeast corner of the African horn.

For the past 100 years, Eritrea has been repelling foreign territorial claims since initial Italian occupation in 1890.

"In order to understand the struggle for independence, it's important to understand the entire region," said Puma, who emphasized that Eritrea's location adjacent to the very strategic Red Sea lanes often made it a target to outside interests.

In 1941, Great Britain occupied the region. English presence continued until 1952, when the United Nations assumed British mandate. In 1962, seeking access to the country's deep water ports, Ethiopian forces occupied and attempted to annex Eritrea.

The United States, fearing a destabilizing conflict, was in favor of Eritrean "federation" with Ethiopia, according to Puma.

Determined to maintain its sovereignty, Eritreans quick-

Turn to ERITREA, page 3

For Your Information

FYIs are public service announcements which are printed daily. To submit an FYI, please send a press release containing all pertinent information, including the name and phone number of the contact person to the Collegian, c/o the News Editor.

Thursday, Sept. 28

General Interest — The UMass Hang Gliding Club is organizing Hang Gliding Day, info sessions at 11 a.m. and 5 p.m., display of hang gliders by the pond, Five College community and general public invited.

GLB Lecture — Josean Ortiz, writer, actor and director, will lecture on a topic related to the Gay and Lesbian Theater Movement in Puerto Rico, free and open to the public, accessible, part of the Queer Nations/Multi-Nations presentation, Rm. 803, Campus Center, 12 p.m. – 1:30 p.m.

GLB Lecture — Urvashi Vaid, former executive director of the National Gay and Lesbian Task Force, is the keynote speaker for Queer Nations/Multi-Nations, a celebration of the intersections of identities, free and open to the public, wheelchair accessible, Bowker Auditorium, 8 p.m.

Lecture — "Merchants of Death: America and the Arms Trade, Lorna Lumpe and Charisse Adamson, The Project on Demilitarization and Democracy," part of the PAWSS Fall Lecture Series, Rm. 101, Dwight Hall, MHC, 7:30 p.m.

Meeting — Animal Rights Coalition meeting with Peter Terespulsky to speak on legislation for animals and petition drives, all members please attend, Rm. 306, Student Union, 7 p.m.

Teach In — How Medicare and Medicaid work, how they are funded, how they are essential to the well being of the country and how proposed cuts will hurt, with panelists Mary Ford, Mayor of Northampton; Al Norman, exec. dir., Mass. Home Care Corp.; Michael Posner, pediatrician; Greg Speeter, director, National Priorities Project; Neil Cronin, healthcare advocate, Mass. Law Reform Institute, Little Theater, Northampton High School, Rte. 9, 7:30 p.m. – 9:30 p.m.

Friday, Sept. 29

Community — Models of Jewish Leadership series, dinner with Harold Grinspoon and Diane Troderman from Springfield, $3 with Hillel Activity Card, $4 for students, all others $6.50, Hillel House, 7:15 p.m.

Community — Pre-Shabbat Yoga, Hillel House, 4:30 p.m.

Community — Shabbat Services, Hillel House, 6 p.m.

Community — Join Chabad House in celebration of the Shabbos, food, prayer, songs and stories, all welcome, Chabad House, 7 p.m.

Film — Drugstore Cowboy, directed by Gus Van Sant, Jr., $1.75, Campus Center Theater, AC, 7:30 p.m. and 10 p.m.

Film — Queer Nations/Multi Nations presents A Litany for Survival: The Life and Works of Audre Lorde, by Ada Gay Griffin and Michelle Parkerson, free and open to the public, accessible, Bowker Auditorium, 8 p.m.

Meeting — The Juggling Club is having a meeting, to learn, practice, perform, room 168C, Campus Center, 3 p.m. – 5 p.m.

Meeting — Fellowship meeting, praise, exalt and rejoice with the Alliance Christian Fellowship, with guest speaker Tim Landers talking on Friendship, for more informaion call Mark at 253-0361, Rm. 904, Campus Center, 7 p.m.

Theater — Slain in the Spirit: The Promise of Jim Jones, by Susan Yankowitz, an informal open rehearsal of Yankowitz's gospel opera, there may be no music, free, Theatre 14, SC, 8 p.m.

Reading — UM Irish Studies presents Irish Poet, Paul Muldoon, free and open to the public, room 104, Thompson, 8 p.m.

Notices

Deadline — All UMass undergraduate and graduate students interested in applying to the Secondary Teacher Education Program for spring semester the deadline for applications is October 12. Please contact the STEP Advising Office at 545–4397 for more information or drop by 125A Furcolo Hall for an application.

GLB RA Matters — Residence Life Staff who identify as gay, lesbian, bisexual, transgendered or are questioning their sexual orientation are invited to attend GLB RA Matters. Meetings are every Friday in Mary Lyon from 12:30 p.m. to 2 p.m. For more information contact Dawn M. Bond 5–1506.

Volunteers Needed — WFCR needs help sorting records for its Used Record Sale, food and drink is provided and volunteers get first dibs on records and CD's in WFCR's collection, help needed Monday, Wednesday and Thursday, call Karin Obermeier at 545-0100.

Wanted — Graphic intern for the Residential Educational Alcohol Program. Includes design and productions of health promotion materials, credit toward graduation. Excellent opportunity for someone interested in health promotion (AIDS, STD's and Alcoholism). Contact Sandra Withcomb 545-0137.

Wanted — Clerical Assistant wanted to assist office manager with various clerical and management tasks including some bookkeeping, paying invoices, contracts and purchase orders, computer word processing, mailing list/database management, typing and filing and office systems. Also Outreach Assistant wanted to assist Publicity/Outreach Coordinator with special outreach for artists receptions and co–sponsorships. Will also assist On– site Artist Liason in making artists arrangements including backstage organizing receptions and representation of NWT to artists and crew for NWT shows. Both jobs pay $5.25/hr., approximately 10 hrs./wk. Contact New World Theater at 545–1972 for more information.

Family Planning Services — HIV testing, pregnancy testing, birth control, medical tests, assistance for struggling families, the Family Planning Council of Western Massachusetts, (800) 696–7752.

Community — Jumaa Service, the Muslim Students Association holds Jumaa prayer service every Friday, at 1 p.m., Campus Center, for information call Utama at 256– 8482.

Auditions — Student Valley Productions is holding auditions for an Orgy of Talents. If you have an act or if you are in university group that wants to perform call 546– 5725.

GRADUATE WOMEN'S GWN NETWORK

Graduate Women's Network cordially invites all graduate women to the second annual reception. Please come and meet University administrators, friends, and the community of graduate women.

September 28,1995
Campus Center 1009
6 p.m.-9 p.m.
keynote speaker: Dr. Sonja M. Nieto
School of Education
WHAT TO EXPECT
WHAT TO INSIST ON

Information, Food, Entertainment
Middle Eastern Dancing!

HARVEST OF VALUES, GREAT SALE PRICES!
LIQUORS 44
BEERS WINES LIQUORS

BUSCH & BUSCH LIGHT CASE OF 24 12 OZ BAR BOTTLES $8.99 + DEP
MEISTER BRAU & LIGHT CASE OF 24-12 OZ CANS $7.29 + DEP
SAMUEL ADAMS ALL FLAVORS 6 PK. BOTTLES $4.99 + DEP
Coors LIGHT GOLD CASE OF 2-12 PK BOTTLES $11.99 + DEP
SPATEN OCTOBERFEST 6 PK. BOTTLES $5.99 + DEP
1/2 KEGS BUD, LT, ICE, LITE ICEHOUSE & RED DOG MICHELOB, LT. & DK. $39.99 + DEP

WINE OF THE MONTH
HICKORY RIDGE CHARDONNAY MERLOT 750 ML SALE $2.49 FINAL COST MAIL IN REBATE -$1.50
FRANZIA WINES CHABLIS, CHENIN BLANC BURGUNDY, WHITE GRENACHE, BLUSH, RHINE, FRENCH COLUMBARD $6.99
RENE BARBIER WHITE & RED 1.5L $5.49
FRANCESCO CHIANTI 750 ML $3.49
BALLATORE SPUMANTE 750 ML $4.29
GEORGE DUBOEUF BEAUJOLAIS VILLAGE 750 ML $5.49

JENKINS VODKA 1.75L SALE $8.49 MAIL IN REBATE -$2.00 FINAL COST $6.49
LORD CALVERT CANADIAN WHISKEY 1.75L $11.49
Captain Morgan SPICED RUM 1.75L $15.49
DEKUYPER SCHNAPPS ALL FLAVORS 750 ML $6.49
SOUTHERN COMFORT 1.75L $14.99

We Accept All Cans and Bottles for Redemption
AT THE STOP & SHOP PLAZA
HADLEY Campus Plaza/Route 9 253-9344
NORTHAMPTON 238 King Street 586-3007
HOLYOKE 30 Lincoln Street 534-4555
SALE PRICES THURS. 9/28/95 THRU WEDS. 10/4/95
NOT RESPONSIBLE FOR TYPOGRAPHICAL ERRORS

Collegian Open House

When: Friday, September 29, 1995
Noon- 4:00 p.m.
Everyone and your Mother is invited!!!
This means Non-staff, Staff, Faculty, Amherst Community and Business University workers, your dog, your brother, etc.

Come see the staff and facilities of New England's largest College Daily

Free Food and Beverage

QUEER AS A THREE DOLLAR BILL

Compiled by Wendy Darling

Zimbabwe pres. speaks out

Since his decision to exclude a gay rights group from a state-funded international book fair last August, President Robert Mugabe of Zimbabwe has found himself at the center of a massive international controversy.

The Zimbabwe International Book Fair is one of the largest in Africa, drawing as many as 40,000 visitors and exhibitors from more than 120 countries, according to The Advocate, a prominent American gay and lesbian magazine.

Although the theme of the fair was human rights and justice, Mugabe and members of his administration forced organizers to expel Gays and Lesbians of Zimbabwe (GALZ), a 4–year–old gay and lesbian rights group.

"If we accept homosexuality as a right," Mugabe said Aug. 1 in the fair's keynote address, "... what moral fiber shall our society ever have to deny organized drug addicts, or even those given to bestiality, the rights they might claim and allege they possess under the rubrics of individual freedom' and human rights'?"

International reaction to Mugabe's speech was swift and included condemnations by Amnesty International, Human Rights Watch, South African author Nadime Gordimer and over 70 members of the U.S. Congress.

On Aug. 11, Mugabe stood up to this international opposition by comparing gays and lesbians to dogs and pigs and telling his fellow Zimbaweans, "If you see people in your areas behaving like homosexuals, arrest them and take them to the police."

The face of HIV/AIDS

Retired New York City police officer Jack Lambe wanted to send out a message about HIV and AIDS, so he plastered his face on 2,000 posters and had them tacked up throughout the city. Under his face were the words "If you think you're immune to HIV, think again!"

Lambe tested positive for HIV in 1985 and remained on the police force until 1994, when deteriorating health forced him to retire. Lambe told The Advocate that HIV–positive police officers "have a hard time asking for help or knowing where to go because we're usually the helpers."

Lambe spent several hundred dollars designing the posters and the New York City police department paid for printing and distribution costs.

Reaction has been mixed, from worrisome hang–up calls to appeals for help from relatives of HIV–positive officers. Said Lambe, "a detective looked at the poster and said that my face could be anybody's."

GLBT people blamed for events

According to The Book of Gay Lists by Lee W. Rutledge, GLBT people have been blamed for at least 12 "terrible historical events," including the destruction of Sodom and Gomorrah, the fall of the Roman Empire, the Black Plague, the rise of Nazi Germany and the appearance of AIDS.

Compiled from various news sources.

Eastman talks about Russian leftist politics

Ed Hurley
Collegian Staff

At a forum on Trotskyism Tuesday night presented by the University of Massachusetts Bolshevik Club, leftist politics collided. The featured speaker for the evening was Dave Eastman, a figure in the American Trotskyism for 30 years.

Trotskyism is a political view based on the writing of Leon Trotsky, a early communist revolutionary who helped to topple the Czarist regime in Russia and to set up the Soviet Union.

Eastman is self–described as having Communism in his genes. His father was a Communist party organizer. Eastman saw first hand the effect of the Red Scare that gripped this country decades ago.

He said he remembers Federal Bureau Investigation agents coming to his door to harass his parents. Eastman remained undeterred and followed in his father's foot steps becoming a communist.

Eastman has been a member of several communist organizations over the years. Today he is a member of The Bolshevik Tendency, which group members describe as a "fighting propaganda group." They have organized some rallies and boycotts but their main focus is information distribution.

Eastman's speech started with an attack with the Republicans' "Contract With America." He voiced concern that the right wing "might be crawling in our bedrooms." His attack heightened when he described the right wing plan for the government as "leaner and meaner competitive capitalism" that would hurt the working class and lead to imperial ventures into other countries.

The fate of Medicare and other entitlement programs was a concern for him as well. He cited an anecdote about a bank robber who robbed banks because "they are where the money is." He used this as an analogy to the Republicans plan cut Medicare. He further voiced support for entitlement programs and their purpose "as balance for the upper class."

His lecture changed focus when he turned to the plight of the black people in America today. He denies any possibility of equality as long as America is locked into leaner and meaner competitive capitalism. Eastman farther discredits new forms of Social Darwinism as the Bell Curve, which puts some races superior to others.

One facet of Trotskyism is support for the Russia. Eastman makes the claim that the U.S.S.R won World War II for the allies, not the United States. He called the much celebrated D–Day offensive a "sideshow" compared to Stalingrad. Eastman became critical in his speech when he posed the question, "Is Trotskyism necessary?," which he answered in the affirmative. He cited the benefits of Trotskyism, saying it was very useful as an analytical tool in criticizing the totalitarianism of Stalin in the Soviet Union Trotskyism is also the only form of communism that doesn't rely on capitalism after the Revolution in order to stabilize the economy, he added

Trotskyism is very opposed to imperialism that makes large industrial nation richer while decimating small non–industrial countries.

Eastman cited Germany as a new imperialist power, saying that the country "annexed" East Germany and is trying to split apart the former Yugoslavia and make Croatian "a client state." He voiced concern for possible U.S. interests in the region as well and how NATO might be a pawn in its game.

The speech closed with some remarks about U.S. and European Leftists who used to be pacifists and are now "laptop bombardiers" furthering imperialistic action into other nations.

Following the lecture there was a spirited discussion between the audience and Eastman. Some members of the Spartacist League, a group professing Trotskyism, voiced scathing criticisms against Eastman and his organization, The Bolshevik Tendency.

Eastman countered with calling the League (in which he was a former member) as being an "obedience cult" that didn't respect the opinions of its members. The forum ended as members of both The Spartacist League and The Bolshevik Tendency became more cooperative with one another.

■ Eritrea

continued from page 1

ly mobilized to counter the invasion, primarily through the Eritrean Popular Liberation Front (EPLF). Over three decades of largely guerilla warfare followed.

By 1978, civil war had erupted in the country between the EPLF and the rival Eritrean Liberation Front (ELF). Backed by U.S. forces to counter Soviet involvement in Ethiopia, the EPLF narrowly escaped defeat, yet could not find support within the international community for independence.

Puma stressed the involvement of the superpowers, who supplied arms to the region, exacerbated tensions between rival factions.

Shortly before Puma's visit, the EPLF scored a major victory against the Ethiopians, breaking a prolonged stalemate and guaranteeing the group's eventual capitulation.

Puma, who was given access to EPLF officials and installations during his tour, praised the organization as "one of the most impressive operations I have ever seen."

Looming under the constant threat of Ethiopian air strikes, the EPLF organized aid cargos which shipped in vital supplies from Sudan to completely camouflaged distribution centers. "It was bumper to bumper traffic," Puma said.

The EPLF, in addition, established factories and a fully operational hospital dug underground in the sides of cliffs, in what Puma characterized as "a quest for self–reliance."

Most impressive to Puma were the technical, agricultural and grammar schools built to educate the war–torn Eritrean population. "At times I felt that all of Eritrea was a school," said Puma.

Taught in their own language and studying their own history, these schools provided Eritreans with a "political conseience" and "a sense of history," according to Puma.

"It was not a colonial system," said Puma.

Eritrea's ability to thrive under such hostile and unforgiving circumstances has instilled a "sense of perseverance, hope and struggle," amongst its people.

"It's a never say die attitude," Puma concluded.

■ director

continued from page 1

While he operated his private practice from 1987–1992, he also served as the assistant program director for the Adolescent Dual Diagnosis Unit at Four Winds the local hospital.

"I worked pretty much exclusively with adolescents and families," Rockland–Miller said of his time at Four Winds.

In 1992, he opened an independent practice in Holyoke and joined the staff of Holyoke Hospital as coordinator of Psychiatric Crisis/Liaison Services.

Rockland–Miller said he has done extensive public presentations on a variety of issues related to adolescents, including substance abuse and crisis intervention.

"Harry is a very qualified professional who should be a real asset to the University," Melby said.

The new director of University Mental Health Services will be working directly with students, since his position will be about half administrative and half clinical, according to Melby.

Although Rockland–Miller was hesitant to talk about ideas for improvement in UMHS, he said he is looking toward "expansion of avenues for the integration of the mental health services into the greater UMass community." In other words, he is interested in "outreach and education" programs, as well as making mental health services more accessible.

"I've always been impressed with the quality of care and commitment [at UHS]," Rockland–Miller said.

A resident of Leverett, Rockland–Miller said he is pleased to be working in the community His family moved to the area because he said they liked the "rural atmosphere combined with all the cultural opportunities, and the sense of community in the school district."

Anthony's
"The Best In Adult Entertainment"
Anthony's Welcomes Students Back!

Check Out Our October Line Up:
Chasey Lain Oct. 6 & 7
Sunset Thomas Oct. 13 & 14
Nikki Dial Oct. 27 & 28

4 Shows Daily At: 6pm, 8pm, 10pm and 12am
18 Always Welcome With Valid I.D.

Tuesday is College Night
$2.00 Off Cover With College I.D.
$1.50 Drafts

Now Hiring Dancers - Big $$$
"Flexable Schedules"

Mon - Wed 4pm-2am
Thurs - Sun 12pm-2am
500 New Ludlow Rd. So Hadley, MA
Rt. 91 So. to Mass. Pike East to Exit 5, Exit on Rt. 33 Right at Jiffy Lube, 1/4 Mile on Left

SKI & PARTY WEEKEND
QUÉBEC CANADA
HOTEL LODGING AND LIFTS
FROM $135 120! Per Person Tax Included
DECEMBER 8-10
* 2 Nights Hotel Lodging BUS TRANSPORT
* 2 Day Lift Ticket at Mont Sainte – Anne
PAY BY OCT. 2ND FOR DISCOUNT!!

General Meeting SUNDAY OCTOBER 1
7 PM Campus Center

THE GREAT UMASS SKI SNATCH IS BACK !!
OCTOBER 15, 16, 17
STUDENT UNION BALLROOM

SPONSORED BY: UMASS SKI CLUB
545-3437

DAILY COLLEGIAN

113 Campus Center • University of Massachusetts Amherst, MA 01003 • (413) 545-3500 • Fax (413) 545-1592

Matt Vautour Editor-in-Chief Juan José Chacón Quirós de Quetreaut Managing Editor
Earl T. Martin Business Manager James P. Ganley Production Manager Ethan Bloomfield Advertising Manager
Natasha Kahn Advertising Production Manager Wendy Darling Senior Diversity Editor

Tara MK Connelly Arts & Living Editor Candice Hemmung Sports Editor
Christopher Bord Black Affairs Editor Ron Alpert Staff Artist
Matt Wurtzel Business Editor Laura Schmidt, Aimee Schwartz Women's Issues Editors
Syed Mohammed Ali Raza Developing Nations Editor Marni E. Heltner Editorial Production Manager
Geri Sahn Editorial/Opinion Editor Adam Chace Systems Manager
Wendy Darling Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Issues Editor A.J. Stewart Finance Manager
Jacob W. Michaels Jewish Affairs Editor Ryan Courtemanche Distribution Manager
Herman Rozenberg Multicultural Affairs Editor Maureen Majerowski Assistant Operations Manager
Chris Taylor Conner News Editor Marty Pappas Classified Advertising
Daymon Smith Photography Editor Thomas F. Sweeney, Jr. Graphics Advisor/Instructor

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published Monday through Friday during the University of Massachusetts calendar semester. The Collegian is financially independent from the University of Massachusetts, operating solely on revenues generated by advertising sales. The paper was founded in 1890 as Aggie Life, became the College Signal in 1901, the Weekly Collegian in 1914 and then the Tri Weekly Collegian in 1956. The Collegian has been published daily since 1967, and has been a broadsheet publication since January 1994. For advertising rates and information, call (413) 545-3500 weekdays between 8:30 a.m. and 5:30 p.m.

Opinion/Editorial

Dealing with a double identity

"I don't mean to pry into your private life and all that, but how old were you when you were adopted?" asked my housemate Kate as we walked home from Rao's the other night.

I paused and stuffed my hand deeper into the pocket of my jacket, savoring the warmth of the Café Vanilla in my other hand warming me against the suddenly brisk Fall evening.

"I was six — no four months old. My uncle was a base chaplin in the Air Force and stationed in Thailand. My mother wanted to adopt and he told her of the orphanage near his base," I said taking an occasional sip from the cup and watching the cars pass by.

"Wow. Well at least you can say that your background is interesting. But, if you had the chance, would you want to meet her? I mean I know that biologically she was your mom, but she didn't raise you," Kate said.

And she was right. She didn't raise me. She, Simsari Panon, a name on a birth certificate next to my own was just that, another name. I suppose when I was younger I wanted to, but that was mostly due to the fact I was always reminded of how "different I looked."

I was raised in Gloucester, Ma., a small mostly Sicilian town/island with next to no diversity. Things have changed since then and my brother and I are no longer the soul Asian population, but these changes have not been taken easily.

It is amazing how ignorant people can be — people who consider leaving the Gloucester border an adventure. How many times have I been asked if I ate with chopsticks or knew that "karate shit."

Hey, last time I checked, karate was a martial art, not a subcategory of human excrement. But no, I didn't know it. And no, I used a fork. Although I occasionally revert to using my toes on special holy days.

It was hard, though, accepting the fact I was different.

It was hard, though, accepting the fact I was different, that I would stay vertically challenged (ha ha), that my hair would never be long and blond or that my skin would remain mocha colored.

Tara MK Connelly

that I would stay vertically challenged (ha ha), that my hair would never be long and blond or that my skin would remain mocha colored. It was depressing that the ideals for beauty for a small Asian girl were Brooke Shields and Christie Brinkley.

I felt left out at family functions when my sister (the biological miracle that my parents had two years after my arrival) is constantly told, "Oh you look just like your mother!" or "Oh, I see you have your grandmother's eyes! I do!"

Because I did in no way resemble that petite Irish woman with the light red hair and laughing green eyes, I didn't have the spray of freckles over my nose or light sandy lashes. Nor did I have the 6'2 of my father, his blue/gray eyes or firm jaw line.

In fact, I had a round face, glasses, almond-shaped eyes and a bad habit of chewing on the ends of my waist length hair. But I got used to that. I learned to ignore it and the fact that children are cruel.

I blamed it on ignorance and managed to focus on the stuff I had. It wasn't easy, but after a lot of crying, cursing and generally being miserable, I sucked it up and moved on. Needless to say I was a "trying child" during my adolescent years.

But when I look at then and compare it to now, I realize it was worth it. I grew up a lot faster because of it, and I have more of an open mind. And as for my birth mom?

Well I stood on our porch and watched Kate go inside and I thought long and hard about it. And then I realized that it didn't matter if I met her, or if I felt guilty or even if I had a gizzillion brothers and sisters somewhere on the other side of the world.

I had a family who loved me, and I had the knowledge that someone was willing to part with the most important thing in their lives because they wanted to give them a better life.

Tara MK Connelly is a Collegian columnist.

Holding in the hysterics

I was a mess. My eyes were bloodshot, tears were streaming down my cheeks. I was trying to hide my face from those around me, but I couldn't do it. I had a pounding headache, I kept making noises, I was sweating the whole time. It was, quite honestly, one of the more frustrating times I have had in recent time.

No, there was no bong involved. Someone wasn't beating the pulp out of me on one fine drunken night. There was no virus in my body to speak of. I wasn't having convulsions. And no, I wasn't doing that.

Andrew Bryce

I just couldn't stop laughing during a class.

Quite possibly the most uncomfortable feeling took control of my body during a class on Tuesday. A wrote something down to my buddy next to me, and we enjoyed a good laugh that I could conceal. Little did I know that everything I ever thought was funny throughout my whole life would pop into my mind for that hour and fifteen minutes of classtime.

I spent the entire class, which takes place in a classroom of about 50 people, trying to restrain myself from laughing out loud and disturbing the class. Yet, as I gurgled little noises and wheezed my way to grabbing several people's attention, I may as well have let it out. Because the bright red face, with tears streaming down, and that distorted I-shouldn't-be-laughing-but-I-can't-I-riggen-stop look to show for it, it was making even more of a scene.

And my buddy didn't help matters. He'd look at me in the corner of his eye, and each time, for whatever reason, I would begin to laugh. He'd then hide his face from me and cover eyes to not see me begin to shake in my first step of non-stop laughter, and not to hear the loud sound of me and my bronchial tube-blocked laugh.

When the professor said the class was over, my friend and I let out the laugh. Dirty looks came our way, but I was laughing too hard to care. I don't know if the professor really noticed, and I hoped he didn't. It had nothing to do with him. I just could not stop laughing.

Why? How? It was a stupid-ass thing I wrote on my notebook. It wasn't all that funny, yet I pulled muscles in my stomach trying to hold it in. It was like I was constipated from not laughing. It was awful. We made absolute fools out of ourselves. Well... I can say that I made a bigger jerk out of myself because I was more obnoxious about it. I think it was that Irish red in the face that got the looks, and the asthma that got the fellow classmates listening.

I have had years of practice. My friends from grade school knew me to laugh at many things. Kid says something humorous, makes me laugh, I get yelled at by the teacher. I knew it all to well. Those bastards ate it up each time, too.

One time in high school, the Coach lines us up on the end line, and is giving us a pep talk about the upcoming game. In each of his speeches, he always happened to mention going out to eat with his wife. It always was a sandwich.

"So, I went to get a sandwich with my wife..." Coach said.

My friend whispers to me. "He never has a sandwich."

I bust out laughing, and within minutes, my team and I are running suicides because I interrupted Coach's pep talk.

Another time in high school, I had moved up to the (get this) Honors English class in tenth grade. I worked hard on level one, and was moved up. I mean, I had to prove myself, to establish to Mr. Ellis I belonged there.

Well, my long-time buddy ol' pal in front of me draws a picture of the teacher, and passes it back to me when he's not looking. One of the members is reading a part from the play we were reading and if you were near me, you could hear me begin to rev up. I saw what he had drawn, and the laugh was in its beginning stages.

I started with a soft laugh, because it was funny and because I wanted Adam to know what I thought about his drawing. Then, I saw his shoulders begin to shake. So, my laugh hit second gear. I, too, began to vibrate. I looked at the picture again, and thought about it more than the first time. It was suddenly more humorous now.

I turned it over because I didn't want to laugh anymore. I did not want to get in trouble. But Adam's shoulders were still bouncing, and my laugh step No. 3 came about. Already shaking, and a mixture of tears and sweat running down my cheeks, I tried to cover my flushed face and block out everything.

But as my eyes were closed, and my ears were blocked, I still could somehow see Adam doing his shoulder thing. I could see the caricature of Mr. Ellis in my head. I could see myself making a complete ass out of myself at that moment. I was trying to turn the world off, just so I could stop friggen laughing.

It didn't work.

Put it into fourth in a mustang, and expect to get a speeding ticket. My fourth step of the laughing engine was unstoppable. I could not hold back. The charge of color, the tears, the sweat, the shaking, the obscene noise trying to squeeze out of my closed mouth — it wasn't enough to restrain it. I blew.

I turned my face to the wall and let out a howl those kids in that room will never forget. I just opened my mouth, loosened every muscle in my body, and let out a thunderous laugh. The class stopped, and turned their head in my direction. So did ol' Mr. Ellis. Fortunately, he laughed along with us. He didn't see the picture Adam had drawn.

I was still a mess, as all eyes were on me, but I had let it out. I had blown my top. It took a time of working it up to a climax, and let it all... wait, this is getting me a little excited. Anyway, what I mean is, I was free. It was released from my insides. It was gone. What a relief.

Too risky, though, to attempt it in class again.

Andrew Bryce is a Collegian columnist.

Some sort of tragic hero

I have a friend named John. We've been friends for a while and I've watched his ups and downs with curiosity and fascination. I watched women come and go in a world of drugs, high school sports, rebellion and family trouble.

One of my most vivid memories of high school is of watching John at a lacrosse game and how his mother stormed on to the field after she found a half pound of marijuana in his room screaming, "Your one of the bad people."

Jeremy Hurewitz

A couple of years ago John gave me my first hit of acid. I'll never forget him dancing to the music of Morphine — his purple hair a tangled web of speckled stars and his eyes speaking infinitely in a language I'll never understand.

I've visited him at his college in upstate New York and saw more girls and drugs. John walked around in patched jeans, a Getty t-shirt and some ugly mesh baseball cap like some messiah of kinetic energy, and he was the center of attention where ever we went.

He shared a house with a few degenerates and artistic types. A gaunt, black-haired, guitar-playing, Trent Reznor look-alike named Lotus lived in the closet downstairs. They got a tank of nitraus and a couple of barrels and the place rocked. John was bursting with energy and his eyes glowed visions of some far off utopia he was chasing.

This summer John saved up some money and hitch-hiked out to Alaska where he worked on a fishing boat. I was busy with my own adventures and didn't have time to think of him much, but when I did I, pictured him sleeping in the woods and wrestling Grizzly's.

I saw him for about 15 minutes at the end of the summer. He got home and wanted out of there as quickly as possible. I came over and he was packing up the car. He was haggard and disheveled; shirtless with a corduroy vest on and pork-chops on his cheeks.

We related a few tales of our travels and talked about some close friends. I watched him drive off with tires screeching and his old jalopy belching black smoke.

I spoke to a friend the other night who had recently spoken to John. He was thinking about blowing off school, scrounging up some money and hitching back out to Alaska. Doesn't surprise me. Really nothing would with him. Not success, failure, love, religion or even death. He's like some burning, shooting star and who knows where he'll land.

To me he's some sort of tragic hero. Doomed and maniacal, yet captivating and cunning. I see him as Dean Moriaty in Jack Kerouac's, On The Road. All his frantic energy's pushing him in wild directions and threading to pull him apart. I'm not sure if he's a benediction of an anathema to those he comes across. I guess it depends on how you look at it.

Sometimes a lot of us feel that burning energy that courses through John's veins. We call it "being on."

Bluesmen say "Got my Mojo working."

Those times when the present is a golden moment of purity and life truly feels like a gift from some Pagan, hedonistic God are the moments we all live for. Those times are why we endure life's everyday hassles in order to reclaim the dizzy, sweet, nauseous nectar of life.

Jeremy Hurewitz is a Collegian staff member.

Letters to the Editor

Snack bar not for "stoners"

To the Editor:

I am one of the two full-time student managers who live and work in Butterfield Kitchen. I am terribly sorry for any inconvenience that having the "546" version of our "545" office/kitchen number has caused you (Notes from the Campus Center Basement, Sept. 21). It seems odd, however, that none of these "stoned-out" kiddies ever seem to dial the right number when looking to satisfy their munchies. Our phone very rarely rings after business hours, and those calls have certainly not been from students looking for food. The only food we serve is during meal hours just like any other D.C. (only better), and the only telephone traffic we receive on that line is from employees or other University personnel inquiring after kitchen business.

Butterfield Kitchen is an Auxiliary Services operation in which all employees save the chef/manager are students who work and learn in our facility. It is not a playground, commune, or snack bar for stoners. Considering the fact that you are most likely not receiving these "stoned-out" phone calls (tired or ill workers, perhaps), it would seem that you have taken advantage of this phone number coincidence to try to amuse your readers with a cheap poke at the much over-publicized "drug dorm" thing. As an entertaining writer you've done well, as a credible journalist you have not.

If you have any further problems or questions feel free to give me a call. I'm sure you know the number.

Christopher Ehnstrom
Manager, Butterfield Kitchen

Trying to ease the pain

To the Editor:

When I read about the suicide of a UMass senior, likely brought on by his conflicts over being biracial, I, as so many, am deeply pained. Nothing we can say will ease the pain of his family. So I address this to the students of UMa$, my alma mater.

In order that this not sound like a pedantic sermon, I will tell you where I am coming from. About three years ago I discovered that a young African-American man I knew during the '60s had been killed in Mississippi a few years after I had left the South. For a long time afterwards, I roamed about in nearly unbearable pain, anger and guilt; guilt for what my ancestors had done and for all I had not done. I wrote letters, made phone calls and travelled back down South and tried to get his name on a monument.

I wanted to find a way to do something to make sure his death was not in vain. And, yes, to ease my pain. I wanted to sit in on some of the multi-racial groups which were meeting on the UMass campus. I guess I must have sounded crazed. I began to question myself. What did I have to offer? I had no special mediation skills, no special knowledge of how to do what I wanted to do. All I had was my love and my pain. All I could do was sit before you and weep.

Now we must all weep together, and for a long time. Our society, all of it, has been given the option over and over again of cutting a child in two, or giving in to love, and it repeatedly has chosen the former.

Well, I have something revolutionary to suggest. We've been saying that we don't have to love one another, that we just have to behave according to the rules of political correctness, develop communication skills and learn to tolerate each other. I say we have it backwards. First we must love one another. All the rest is superficial.

At this moment in our pain, we can know that. I suggest we cherish that pain. Remember it consciously each morning before we go out to meet people or go to a class, to a lecture that will be but empty sounds without love. Let this pain break open our hearts once and for all. Let it be at the center of all that we do.

Pamela Fleming
Class of '65

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR AND COLUMNS

The Editorial/Opinion page apologizes for not printing the letters that have been sent via e-mail. We are still learning how to "work the system."

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian welcomes and encourages letters to the editor. When writing, please type your letter and keep it to a maximum of 400 words. We would much rather print several concise letters in the limited space available on the page.

All letters should include a name, address and phone number (for verification purposes only). Students should also include their year and major. The Collegian reserves the right to edit submissions for grammar, clarity and length.

Send all letters to the Ed/Op page c/o the Collegian, 113 Campus Center, UMass.

Letters to the Editor can also be sent through our e- mail account: letters@oitvms.oit.umass.edu

The Ed/Op page is also always looking for columnists. If you are interested in writing columns for the Collegian, come down to the office, or call at 545-1491, and ask to speak to Geri Sahn.

Film • Music • Theatre • Lifestyles • Books • Art

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

ARTS & LIVING

Thursday September 28 1995

Weekend Edition • Volume CV Issue 17

new series debuts on television

By Rana Meyer
Collegian Staff

Last week was probably the best week in television we've had in a long time. With the summer drought finally over, the season premieres of "Seinfeld" and "Friends," two of the funniest shows on television, finally aired.

You'd think that Jerry Seinfeld's popular comedy about four hip friends living in New York City may have grown stagnant after seven seasons, but the writers still come up with fresh, just-like-life-but-only-better plots. Jerry and George undergo serious introspection and promise each other that they will attempt to act like men. They also agree to stop developing ridiculous excuses as to why they are constantly breaking off relationships whenever they begin to get serious with a woman. George takes the vow seriously and proposes to one of his ex-girlfriends.

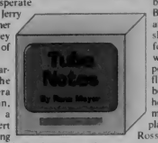
On the flip side of this episode, Elaine is greatly bothered by a barking dog which keeps her up night after night. In a desperate attempt, she goes to Jerry for advice and Kramer tells her that they should just get rid of the dog.

In the most uproarious part of the episode, the camera flashes to Newman, who has become a godfather-like expert on dognapping. Seeing Newman out of his mailman character was comical, especially when he helped kidnap the hated dog which turns out to be a cute, little puppy. They attempt to lose the dog upstate, but the cunning little creature somehow makes its way back home to his frantic owners and once again, keeps Elaine up all night.

The other part of NBC's Thursday night lineup, which has now become my favorite show, is "Friends." Even though this is only the show's second season, it appeals to a whole spectrum of people which makes me sure that the show is going to be around for a long time.

The antics of Phoebe, Monica, Rachel, Ross, Chandler and Joey are side-splittingly funny to watch. This season's premiere promised much of the same witty, twenty... something humor.

Last season ended with Rachel finally realizing that Ross was in love with her (duh!), but unfortunately he had just left for the airport to go on a business trip to China. By the time Rachel arrived at the airport, she was too late. Fast forward a week later with Rachel at the airport waiting for Ross' flight to arrive with a bouquet of flowers in her arms. But, as Ross makes his way off the plane, he is not alone — Ross has found someone else.



The most intriguing thing that I noticed while watching "Friends" last week was how ironic the storyline of Ross and Rachel has become. Throughout all of last season, Ross was pining after Rachel while she went from guy to guy, and she never even suspected a thing.

Even though the potential romance of Ross and Rachel was the main storyline throughout the premiere, I thought that the best part of this episode centered on the chronically

Turn to TUBE NOTES page 10

two takes on one of this year's most revealing movies SHOWGIRLS

THE BARE NECESSITIES

SHOWGIRLS
Directed by Paul Verhoeven with Elizabeth Berkley, Kyle MacLachlan
Playing at Hampshire Six

LAURA STOCK

The theater walls were just dripping with testosterone elicited from frenzied hormonal anticipation at the sold-out opening night showing of Showgirls.

As nonchalantly as possible, I slid into my seat and observed the rowdy and restless audience which was composed largely of men (about a 10 to 1 male to female ratio). The cheers and catcalls began even before the lights dimmed.

As the attitude-equipped star of this NC-17-rated skin flick, Elizabeth Berkley, struts (clothed) on-screen in the opening scene, the lewd comments from the audience began to fly.

"How come she has clothes on?"

"I thought they were supposed to be naked in this movie!"

As offensive as they may be (and believe me, they got worse), these perverted witticisms that were hollered throughout the movie served as tools for analyzing the Showgirls phenomenon. Not only did the audience's outcries represent the ticket-selling notions behind the film, but were also, sadly, the only source of entertainment during this two and a half-hour cinematic torture.

Believe it or not, this soft-core porn flick does have a plot — a pointless, generically all-encompassing plot — that was about as intriguing as Berkley's teased and generously hairsprayed locks. Berkley portrays the knife-wielding, leggy blonde Nomi Malone, whom we encounter hitch-hiking to Las Vegas so she can fulfill her dream to become a stripper, er, dancer.

Nomi's erratic behavior is an obvious indicator that she is a woman with a troubled past. It is so blatant, however, that we do not care about, nor sympathize with her situation. Before she even arrives in Vegas, she pulls a knife on a truck driver and gets in a fist fight with a girl (whom she later befriends). Although she works in a seedy strip joint, the overly-sensitive Nomi explodes, "I'm not a stripper, I'm a dancer!" whenever anyone calls her a stripper. She recites her "I'm a dancer" mantra throughout the film as she tries to find justification for her nude stage shows and private lap dances.

We all remember Berkley from her character as the girl next door, Jessie, on the pre-teen T.V. series "Saved By the Bell." Well, she may be

Turn to STOCK, page 10

A MORE CANDID VIEW

MIKE PESSAH

"Jesus is coming!" That is what a big illuminated billboard advertises in a scene of Showgirls. Aside from being a smarmy pun, this billboard highlights the film's overblown notions of sexuality.

In a widely-reported incident, Showgirls screenwriter Joe Eszterhas (of Basic Instinct fame) encouraged teenagers to get fake I.D.'s so that they could see Showgirls. Eszterhas spoke at length about how he feels that Showgirls has valuable lessons to impart to today's youth on important issues such as AIDS (no one uses a condom, and no one gets HIV once), sexual assault (a character is raped and convinced not to press charges), and the importance for women to have a sense of self-worth (the going rate in Showgirls was $50).

Though Eszterhas's comments should be seen in the light of a pre-release publicity machine, there is no avoiding the kernel of hypocrisy at the center. Quote Eszterhas (to Entertainment Weekly), "stripping is like having sex without having sex; it is like hooking without really hooking. It's safe sex for the '90s."

Joe Eszterhas and Showgirls director Paul Verhoeven have made several sexy, successful thrillers. Given Showgirls' $40 million budget, they could have made Showgirls sexy, if not thrilling. Showgirls, however, was about as erotic as a sawdust birthday cake. So was their intention to educate or to titillate, and why did they fail miserably at both?

For starters, lets look at the dominant lessons that Showgirls preaches:

1. The ability to sell one's body makes the difference between successful women and unsuccessful women.
2. If you don't have a good body to sell, you should make a living degrading yourself in another way (i.e. fat madam at club).
3. Successful men try to have sex with women after they pimp them.
4. Unsuccessful men try to have sex with women before they pimp them.
5. If sex appeal fails, resort to violence.
6. Everyone is either a whore or a pimp.
7. Sex can never amount to anything good.

Quite a nihilistic bunch of lessons. It is saying that unlike most "innocence soiled" movies, Showgirls couldn't even bother to have a innocent protagonist. At the alleged high point of the movie, it is revealed that Nomi was a hooker even before she came to Vegas, removing all

Turn to PESSAH page 10

Layout & Design by Jolene C. Gardner & Tara MK Connelly • Art by Jolene C. Gardner

SHORT CUTS

Edited by Tara MK Connelly

Quotes of Note

"I like the part about having a husband. It's being the wife I can't stand." — Cybill Shephard on marriage

"It's not a state of depression; I just think it's a state of confusion." — Supermodel Linda Evangelista on the state of fashion.

"If I want to knock a story off the front page, I just change my hairstyle." — Hillary Rodham Clinton

People and Pop Culture in the News

Big surprise here, Whitney Houston's representatives have formally announced that she and husband bad boy Bobby Brown are having "marital difficulties."

Another woman with past marital problems is Julia Roberts who is currently in Venice shooting Woody Allen's new, and yet untitled musical comedy. Allen was recently seen strolling through the aforementioned city babysitting, ah walking with Soon-Yi Previn.

If you have $45 to blow on something utterly useless, then how about the new coffee-table volume of photographers featuring waif model Kate Moss. That's right for $45 you can own, Kate: The Kate Moss Book and view all 105 pounds of her in the comfort of your own home.

Antonio Sabato, Jr. has joined the ranks of "Melrose Place" and the press that such a position creates. He was recently reported to have neglected his one-year-old son, Jack by ex-girlfriend actress Virginia Madsen in the New York Times. He was less than trilled.

Broken marriages are a big thing in Hollywood. Producer Chris Thompson of the new TV show "The Naked Truth," recently split with his wife after developing deep feelings for the show's star Tea Leoni. How very delicately put.

Actress Marlee Matlin and husband Kevin Grandalski are expecting a child in January. It is the couple's first. Elizabeth Taylor is in the hospital again after checking in the hospital with an irregular heartbeat. Can you feel those things? Anyway, her estranged seventh husband, Larry Fortensky was there for a visit.

Joey Buttafuoco is back in jail. Big news. The auto-body shop owner violated his parole and will have to spend at least 67 days in the slammer. However he did finish his 6 measly months for statutory rape following his affair with Amy Fisher in 1992.

Does anybody at all find it strange that Martha Stewart has created a multi-million dollar empire solely because she is a good hostess. This woman gets millions of dollars because she knows how to set a formal table and recreate the "Birth of Venus" on her pool floor with old credit cards. Hello!?

And kudos of the week goes to financier Chris Gross who donated his entire year's salary ($53,874) to the children orphaned by the Oklahoma bombing incident. 150 children were either orphaned or missing a parent. Gross has also organized a fund that has reached $600,000 donated by Chris' own employers and six other corporations.

Material from this column has been compiled from various news and wire services by Tara MK Connelly.

Editors' Cuts

Concert Zeke Fiddler

One of the area's best kept musical secrets is the Northampton Brewery's weekly local music showcase. Every Sunday night, local bands take the stage as the Brewery opens up its doors to everyone — all ages and no cover.

Last Sunday, New Radiant Storm King played an enjoying set mixing up their own material with covers of tunes by Mission of Burma and the Beatles.

Local legend Zeke Fiddler will appear this Sunday along with the Steve Westfield Band. If you haven't had a chance to check out the local music scene, venture over to the Brewery on Sunday. Every week the area's top performers come and play in this intimate setting.

— Mike Burke

Food Eating Healthy

Flu season's coming up. You're probably thinking about flu shots and how annoying it's going to be to schedule one. Here's a thought: imagine whipping through a supermarket and picking up a vaccine-to-go. Plant biologists hope to use genetic engineering to transform fruits and vegetables into immune system boosters.

Take bananas for instance. Little pieces of the E.coli bacteria are injected into the genetic structure, creating a vaccine against certain diarrheal disorders. Other edible vaccines in the works include hepatitis B and arthritis.

Hey, you might even be able to prevent tooth decay by munching brussels sprouts.

— Seema Gangatirkar

Magazine 'Self'

Self has to be one of the best woman's magazine's out there. From their fresh format to their interesting topics, the magazine covers a wide range of women's issues as well as everyday issues.

They do so with style, wit and great graphics. The information is always interesting and well written. It is rare that a woman's magazine can stay fresh and innovative over the years without losing their edge with society or become wrapped up with hidden agendas.

My favorite sections are Body/Mind, Fitness, Medical and Style. But I'm sure you'll find other things to enjoy. Read it, subscribe to it — call it your own.

— Tara MK Connelly

Play looks at homosexual love in Cuba

By Jennifer Willard
Collegian Correspondent

On Saturday, September 30, The New WORLD Theater and the Stonewall Center will present the play, Strawberries and Chocolate, in Bowker Auditorium at 8 p.m. Strawberries and Chocolate is the English adaptation of Senel Paz's short story, El Lobo, El Bosque, y El Hombre Nuevo.

The main character in the story, Diego, is a middle-aged gay man who is living in post-revolutionary Cuba. He is continually annoyed and confused by the state's treatment of gays. The other focal ture student who has recently begun studying at the university.

The opening of the play finds the two men at odds, due to their conflicting beliefs and personal political views. David begins to spy on Diego and then he finds (as time goes by) himself beginning to admire Diego from afar. The two eventually meet and the play takes a twist from there. As the play progresses, David must change his life and overcome his homophobia or lose the man he is falling in love with.

"Strawberries and Chocolate" takes a risky yet realistic perspective on love, values, emotions and influence them.

Diego is portrayed by the group director, Josean Ortiz, while Jorge Castillo plays David. Abdiel Gonzalez rounds out the cast as Miguel. All cast members are part of the Arete Theater Ensemble.

The performance of Strawberries and Chocolate have already won the 1993 Critics' Circle prize for Theatrical Creativity and a Cuban film based on Senel Paz's short story has been nominated this year for the Oscar for Best Foreign Picture.

Tickets for the play can be purchased at the Fine Arts Center Box Office. Tickets are $6 for public, $3.50 for students, senior citizens, and children.

Do you like to write?
Do you like to see your name in print?
Do you like to meet interesting people and talk to them?

Well, then write for the News Dept.!
Contact Chris Conner
The Massachusetts Daily Collegian
113 Campus Center • 545-3500

Congratulations to Ad Rep of the Week: Jason Endich

Free Delivery - 7 Days
11:30 am-2 am

SUPERIOR PIZZERIA

SUPERIOR PIZZA
17 MONTAGUE RD., AMHERST
549-0626

NEW ITEMS
Now Featuring:
Real Italian Food At It's BEST!
Cannoli & Italian Pastries and Cheeseburg Grinders
Wednesday Special Calzones $3.25
- Tortellini Dinners
- Chocolate Pizza
- Chicken Pizza
- Sicilian Pizza

Party size pizzas made to order

NEW Zesti Olives PIZZA TOPPING

$2.25 OFF Any Large 2 Item Pizza
$1.65 OFF Any Large Pizza
$1.65 OFF Any Large Pizza
$1.65 OFF Any Large Pizza
$2.25 OFF Any Large 2 Item Pizza
$1.65 OFF Any Large Pizza
$2.00 OFF Any Large 1 ItemPizza
$2.00 OFF Any Large 1 ItemPizza
one coupon per order • coupon cannot be combined with other offers

"...it is about tapping an ocean of creativity, passion and energy that, as far as we can see, has no bottom and no shores."
Jack Welch, CEO

How would you describe GE's work environment? Open, inspiring, charged, fast-paced, non-bureaucratic, apolitical. We think you'll agree these are particularly appealing adjectives.

We believe in being "boundaryless." We've taken down walls that divide people, eliminated hierarchies and stripped out bureaucratic processes company-wide. And it's worked. We are a 60 billion dollar global enterprise whose extremely diverse range of businesses are number one or number two in their markets. Others look to us for management best practices and our financial results have shareholders cheering.

We want to hear from Bachelor's and Master's degree candidates. If you are bright, creative, passionate about your work and determined to make things happen, we want you to know we find these to be particularly appealing qualities.

We'll be on campus this Fall.
Please check with the Placement Office for more details.

Find out more. Contact GE University Recruiting, P.O. Box 55250, Bridgeport, CT 06610. Or visit us on the World Wide Web at: http://www.careermosaic.com/cm/ge

An Environment Without Boundaries

An equal opportunity employer

Belly feeds the crowd pop tunes

By Tara MK Connelly
Collegian Staff

BELLY
Pearl Street
Sept. 27, 1995

NORTHAMPTON — To the riotous chants of "Belly! Belly!" and the hypnotic throb of a Yanni-esque composition, Tanya Donnelly and trio took the Pearl Street stage this past Tuesday night.

Apologizing for the quality of her voice, the diminutive Donnelly whipped the crowd into an immediate frenzy with "Now They'll Sleep." Gripping the guitar like a last resort, she ripped through the song with energy and zest.

Grabbing a rose thrown onto the stage by an admiring fan, Donnelly then gave the audience a rakish smile, stuck the rose in between her teeth and launched into "Puberty."

Crowd surfing and a momentary mosh pit soon ensued until Donnelly pointed out that the people in the front looked like they were "in pain" and that she would stop playing if it persisted. The fans were compliant and even agreed to bounce up and down for the singer who said, "Jump up, don't go forward. Pogoing — it's harmless."

And the crowd did bounce.

"This song is about being in love and being drunk — in either order," announced Donnelly in her cute little girl voice right before "Untitled and Unsung." Then the funky drum roll and fast opening in "Red" caused the audience to bounce harder and faster as if trying to keep up with the singer's enthusiasm as she strode across stage, swayed back and forth and thoroughly enjoyed herself.

The onlookers were given a small break when Donnelly switched to an acoustic guitar and crooned along to "Spaceman." A dreamy sleepy song backed by soft throaty vocals and a Kate Bush sounding chorus.

Most of the songs were off of King as the band was touring in support of their sophomore release. However they did play two tunes off their debut album, Star; the hit singles "Gepetto" and as an added encore, "Feed the Tree."

The last song of the set was the popular single "Superconnected" which was greeted with whistles, declarations of love and general rowdiness.

Belly is definitely a band to be seen as well as heard. Donnelly is a power-packed performer with a little girl grin and a lot of attitude. She is in stark contrast with the biker- like quality of bassist Gail Greenwood and the quiet presence of guitarist, Thomas Gorman and drummer, Christopher Gorman.

Belly's performance was solid and they have proven themselves a credible band with some very incredible pop songs.

Belly played an action packed set this past Tuesday night at Pearl Street. COURTESY STEPHEN DRADO

CC Anniversary highlighted by eclectic sounds

By Laura Stock
Collegian Staff

Students who are constantly in search of some weekly musical entertainment that suits diverse tastes and is free to the public, look no further than to your own University of Massachusetts Campus Center.

The Campus Center has begun its 25th Anniversary celebration, and the students are the ones receiving the benefits of the occasion. The various musical performances and functions are being run with the intention of breathing new life into the Campus Center environment as well as brightening and enlivening the days and nights of students.

Disco Night at the Bluewall was the kickoff function and it was such an unanticipated success, it will continue until Thanksgiving break.

"I really couldn't have been happier with the outcome," 25th Anniversary coordinator Melissa Schraga said of the Disco Night. "Because of the huge response, we

Turn to CENTER, page 11

The Top Ten Reasons to Use the UHS Eye Care Program and Contact Lens Service

1 We have a comprehensive contact lens program.
2 Emergency eye care delivered at UHS, is a covered benefit if you are a student plan member.
3 Savings on eyeglasses from participating opticians are available if you are a student and have a complete optometry examination at UHS.
4 We can obtain almost any contact lens in the U.S.A.
5 On-site contact lens specialist.
6 Free sample start-up contact lens solutions.
7 Contact lenses can be mailed directly to you, free postage for normal delivery.
8 Same day replacement of contact lenses, in many cases, due to our large in-house inventory.
9 We take great pride in being able to fit many people who have had difficulty in the past wearing contact lenses.
10 Convenient hours and location.

University Health Services
549-2671 X244

"THE MOST EXHILARATING AMERICAN MOVIE SINCE 'PULP FICTION'!"

"NICOLE KIDMAN GIVES THE BEST PERFORMANCE OF THE YEAR. She's this year's dead-on lock for an Oscar nomination."

"NICOLE KIDMAN DELIVERS A KILLER PERFORMANCE. Van Sant deftly blends film, video interviews and headlines."

"THE BLACKEST, MOST WICKED COMEDY IN AGES. NICOLE KIDMAN IS AS GOOD AS SHE IS BEAUTIFUL — AND THAT'S AS GOOD AS IT GETS."

"NICOLE KIDMAN IN THE BEST PERFORMANCE OF HER CAREER. A jaunty in-your-face fable for our time."

"★★★★ OUTSTANDING CINEMATIC ENTERTAINMENT. DON'T MISS IT."

"NICOLE KIDMAN IS DEVIOUSLY DELICIOUS. It is her best performance."

"OUTRAGEOUSLY ENTERTAINING AND PROVOCATIVE... FUNNY, SHOCKING AND WICKEDLY PACED. NICOLE KIDMAN DELIVERS A DELICIOUSLY WITTY AND CAPTIVATING PERFORMANCE."

"KIDMAN IS TERRIFIC. A VERY FUNNY FILM LIKELY TO EARN NICOLE KIDMAN AN OSCAR NOMINATION."

NICOLE KIDMAN
TO DIE FOR
All she wanted was a little attention.

COLUMBIA PICTURES presents
A RANK FILM DISTRIBUTORS production A LAURA ZISKIN Production A Film By GUS VAN SANT
NICOLE KIDMAN TO DIE FOR JOAQUIN PHOENIX and MATT DILLON MUSIC by DANNY ELFMAN
JONATHAN TAPLIN JOSEPH M. CARACCIOLO JR. BASED ON THE BOOK BY JOYCE MAYNARD SCREENPLAY BUCK HENRY
LAURA ZISKIN DIRECTED BY GUS VAN SANT COLUMBIA PICTURES
R

Mitchells' record release party tonight

By Lisa M. Oliveri
Collegian Correspondent

Over the past few years the Orchard Hill and Central Residential Areas have been the breeding ground for many locals bands including Knuckle Sandwich, Meristem and the Mitchells, all who have gone on to gain local popularity.

The Mitchells will perform Tonight at the Fire & Water Cafe in Northampton to celebrate the release of their debut 7" single which features the songs "Five Minutes" and "Underwater." The self-released single is the follow-up to their well-received five song demo tape released last year.

Self-described as "layered, melodic pop," the band, featuring Kayvan Darouian on guitar, Caleb Wetmore on guitar and vocals, Bill Smith on bass, and Mike MacLean on drums, has created a unique sound that sets them apart from other local bands.

The Mitchells were created when Darouian and Wetmore got together in their dorm room to jam — they had so much fun, they decided to start a band. After hooking up with Smith, the trio began to write songs together but they still lacked a drummer. After searching around campus they saw a poster for a drummer — his name was Mike MacLean. And thus was born the Mitchells.

The band's first live performances were at the coffeehouses held in the Field dormitory in Orchard Hill. Since then they have played several times at the Bay State Cabaret and Fire & Water Cafe. Last spring the

Turn to MITCHELLS, page 10

Life

Pearl Street Nightclub

WEDNESDAY
GAY NIGHT
With Special Guest D.J.'s

THURSDAY
18+ DANCE PARTY
Hosted by Nick Danger of Today's Wknd
The Area's Biggest Dance Party,
Music by Spin, Inc.

FRIDAY
RETRO NIGHT
Music From the 70's 80's & 90's
With DJ DEPHNIS
9:00 pm - 1:00 am
"FREE ADMISSION WITH THIS AD"

SATURDAY
MODERN ROCK DANCE PARTY
Featuring Music by Smith, Human Hose Sons, Pixies, Nine Inch Nails, Letters to Cleo, and more

LIVE MUSIC...

Thurs., Sept. 28 - 7:30 pm All Ages
LIFE OF AGONY
Lordz of Brooklyn / Uranium 235
Pushbutton Warfare / Plat-On

Fri., Sept. 29 - 8:30 pm 18+
BIM SKALA BIM
Steady Earnest / SMA

Sat., Sept. 30 - 8:30 pm
ROOMFUL OF BLUES
Hot Hammer Soup

Sun., Oct. 1 - 8:00 pm 18+
MACEO PARKER $17.50/$20

Mon., Oct. 2 - 8:00 pm $17.50/$20
THE FABULOUS THUNDERBIRDS
Mark Nomad Band

Tues., Oct. 3 - 8:00 pm $17.50/$20
JOE ELY
James McMurtry

Thur., Oct. 5 - 7:00 pm All Ages $17.50/$20
DAR WILLIAMS
Peter Mulvey

Fri., Oct. 6 - 8:30 pm $17.50/$20
JOHN SHELDON & BLUE STREAK

Sat., Oct. 7 - 6:30 pm 18+ $17.50/$20
FILTER w/ Everclear
Downstairs 9:00 pm 18+
POSSUM DIXON w/ Miss Reed

COMING
10/8 BIG MISTAKE All Ages
10/9 MIKE WATT All Ages
10/12 MURPHY'S LAW All Ages
10/13 THE MACHINE 18+
10/14 TEXAS FLOOD
10/15 MARIANNE FAITHFUL
10/17 LITTLE FEAT
10/20 THROWING MUSES 18+
10/21 JAWBREAKER / JAWBOX All Ages
10/22 FREDDY JONES BAND 18+
10/24 SOUTHERN CULTURE ON THE SKIDS 18+
10/27 MONSTER MAGNET / KYUSS up All Ages
10/27 BETTY / downstairs
10/28 G. LOVE & THE SPECIAL SAUCE 18+
10/30 JIM ROSE CIRCUS SIDESHOW 18+
10/31 MACHINEHEAD All Ages
11/6 ROBBEN FORD / BONNY LANDRETH
11/7 PENNYWISE All Ages

Tickets for all shows available at the Pearl Street Box Office, 1 & 3 pm Tues. thru Sat. and 3 hrs. before show. Or The Record in Amherst, Absolut Music in Greenfield
10 Pearl Street, Northampton
413 586 7571

Kool G. Rap, returns as the original gangsta

'Sup people(z).

Things ain't never gonna change, funk it! The 40-year-old Nas is back with the ill rhymes. Kool G. Rap is here, hopefully to stay. I remember when he took his Demo and hit the Road to the Riches just to find himself being wanted Dead or Alive. After the third album he was forced to go into hiding. Marly Marl did not appear on G. Raps production scene any more.

Usually when rappers start out with Marly Marl (like G. Rap) and then later separate, you can count on their next material to be wack. Big Daddy Kane, for example, started singing. In Kane's case, I think Quincy Jones whispered in his ear and told him he could sing. Kane believed it, and is dead in the wide world of hip- hop. The Kane incident should of been a warning to G. Rap.

I can't sleep on the G. Rap, because he is hitting the market from a creme lovers point of view. He switches up rhyme styles often on this album, capturing the west coast in a head lock while maintaining his rep on the east coast. The album is mathematically correct (all the soon-to-be-artists in the rap industry know what I mean). I know this album will circulate in hip-hop veins like hene-'s, beck's and the's.

"4,5,6" is the name of the album. It comes 11 songs deep, which is not a lot for a comeback. The small

Turn to DIARY, page 9

~ ALBUM REVIEW ~

Sonic Youth's Washing Machine: a return to their old form

By Mike Burke
Collegian Staff

SONIC YOUTH
Washing Machine
DGC

COURTESY MICHAEL LAVINE

Sonic Youth returns to form with their latest Washing Machine.

After 11 studio albums one might think that a band would run out of steam or inspiration, but that is hardly the case with Sonic Youth. Washing Machine is their most intriguing and experimental album since their 1988 masterpiece Daydream Nation. They have finally recaptured the groove (or lack of) that made them one of the most important rock bands, of the last decade.

In the early '80s, Sonic Youth emerged on the New York noise scene and created quite a name for themselves. Their self-titled EP was considered pure trash by many, but since then, Sonic Youth has evolved. The band's last three albums during the Reagan years, EVOL, Sister and Daydream Nation document the awesomeness of the band. Their sound was avant-garde and it has taken the rest of the music world years to catch up.

Unfortunately, the '90s have not seen the band reaching their previous heights. Since signing on to DGC they have released Goo, Dirty and Experimental Jet Set Thrash. Decent albums that contained moments of brilliance but failed to live up to expectations. After a summer of headlining the Lollapalooza festival, the band has reemerged with the release of Washing Machine, the band's strongest effort in years.

The opening track, "Becuz," sung by Kim Gordon has an eerie resemblance to the classic Patti Smith tune, "Because The Night." As always Gordan's voice portrays a dark and angry image that is as soothing as a nightmare. Midway through the tune, the band erupts into a guitar orgy filled with noise and feedback.

Gordan's husband, Thurston Moore takes over lead vocals on "Junkie's Promise" which begins with a piercing guitar scream. Once again the song transcends into a spell-binding barrage of guitar attack augmented by Steve Shelley's rhythmic drumming hinting at the band's admiration for the Velvet Underground.

Take one listen to the title track, "Washing Machine" and you will realize that Gordan is still on the cutting edge even though she is over forty years old. The song has a definite riot grrl sound but that shouldn't come as surprise since Gordan is considered to be the ultimate riot grrl.

"Unwind," features the band at its most beautiful, if that word could ever describe Sonic Youth. Moore's haunting vocals and the band's laid back sound recalls their cover of the Carpenters' tune "Superstar." But at the end of the song, the band does just as the title suggests into a near terrifying chaotic noise fest.

The most surprising song on the album, "Little Trouble Girl" features a stunning duet between Kim Gordan and Kim Deal of the Breeders. Mix Deal's innocent singing voice with a deep dark and disturbing speech by Gordan and you have the winning combination for best duet of the year.

Gordon continues her outstanding contribution to the album with "Panty Lies" yet another example of the band's refusal to sell out and sound like anyone else. The opening lyrics have Gordan screaming with her in-your-face attitude, "Don't just stare cuz she's not wearing underwear." Later she repeats the primitive sounds of "Eh Eh Oh Ah" for almost a complete minute — that's Sonic Youth for you.

After brief unlisted reprise of "Becuz," Lee Renaldo takes his turn at the microphone on "Skip Tracer." The vocals spoken rather then sung, will remind fans of the band circa- EVOL era. The overall effect of Renaldo's talked vocals is chilling and sets the listener in the mood for the grand finale, "The Diamond Sea."

Taking up a lengthy 19 and a half minutes, "The Diamond Sea" is the perfect closer to this brilliant collection of work by Sonic Youth. The beginning of the song features innocent vocals by Moore backed by a tamed band. Slowly the band unravels into a deep hypnotic jam of feedback and noise, a combination the band has strayed away from in recent years. The effect of the song is totally mind boggling just sucking the listener into their world of disorder and mayhem. Midway though the tune, the band returns to form for a few minutes only to tease the listener before they drift off into over ten minutes of the band's trademark nihilistic assault.

If there was ever a doubt to the greatness of Sonic Youth, Washing Machine will erase those misconceptions. For 68 minutes the band takes the listener on an unforgettable ride into the future of rock music — Sonic Youth is still ahead of their time. Washing Machine may very well be the best record released so far this year. A

HEALTHWORKS
ADULT FITNESS AT KIDSPORTS
Basketball/ Volleyball Court
FREE TO MEMBERS
Aerobics
Step • Slide • Hi-Lo Impact • Specialty Classes
Circuit Weight Training
Cardio Machines
Stairmaster • Treadmills • Life Cycle • Nordic Track
Free Weight Training
Cardio Theater
Only Health Club in the area that has one!
Group Discounts
Get Your Friends Together And Save $$$
JUST 5 MINUTES FROM AMHERST AREA COLLEGES
317 RUSSELL ST. - ROUTE 9 HADLEY
586-0633

Any Two Calzones
only $7.95
price includes tax
Fall Specials
Save in Twos
256-6100
Two Large Cheese Pizzas
only $12.00
price includes tax
Regular, Whole Wheat & Corn Bread Crusts Available on Pizza & Calzones
CANTONE'S PIZZA CO.
481 West Street Amherst, MA
FREE DELIVERY
256-6100
Open
4pm - 2am
7 Days
$7.00 Min.
on M/C & Visa
Any Two Large Subs
only $8.00
price includes tax
No Coupons Needed With These Specials
256-6100
Any Two Large 1-Item Pizzas
only $14.00
price includes tax

THE FIVE COLLEGE PROGRAM IN PEACE AND WORLD SECURITY STUDIES
PAWSS
presents
"CONVENTIONAL WEAPONS: THE MYTHS AND REALITIES"
A discussion with:
LORA LUPE AND CHARISSE ADAMSON
The Project on Demilitarization and Democracy
Thursday, September 28th
7:30 PM
Dwight 101, Mt. Holyoke College
This event is free and open to the public, and wheelchair accessible.
For information please call PAWSS at 582-5519.

Spirit Haus
Specialty Beverage Center
Bud & Bud Lt $2.49/4-pk 16 oz Bottls
Meisterbrau $3.99 12 pk cans
Pete's Wicked $4.99/six (Ale, Lager, Red, Honey Wheat)
Hornsby's Draft Cider $4.99/six
Gordon's Vodka $5.99 750ml plastic
Tanqueray $12.99 750ml
Jack Daniels 750 ml $11.99
Southern Comfort 750 ml $7.99
Kahlua 750 ml $12.99
Boone's Wines (All Flavors) $1.99 750 ml
Keg Special* Pete's Wicked 1/2 KEG $75.00 (Ale, Lager, Red, Honey Wheat)
Micro-Brewed Beer Kegs In Stock
Wine Coolers • Ice • Mixers • Mini Kegs • Beer Glasses
FULL REDEMPTION CENTER
Rt. 9 East College Street • 253-5384
one mile east of Amherst Center on Rt. 9E
VISA – MASTERCARD – DISCOVER Accepted

~ MOVIES ~

Dark film intrigues audiences

By Laura Stock
Collegian Staff

SEVEN
Directed by David Fincher with Morgan Freeman, Brad Pitt
Playing at Hampshire Six

COURTESY 20th-STAR

Brad Pitt plays the replacement detective in Seven.

Seven is a dark and disturbing suspense film that grabs the audience by the entrails and ropes viewers in for a chilling look at the crimes of a serial killer.

Morgan Freeman (Shawshank Redemption) stars as the serious and intelligent Detective Somerset — a man hardened and depressed by the crime-ridden slum he has lived and worked in for several years. As always, Freeman tackles the role with much intensity and passion, thereby offering an eloquent performance.

Somerset has seven days (irony, anyone?) left before retirement when a gruesome murder occurs. Hot-shot detective Mills, played emphatically by Brad Pitt (Legends of the Fall), arrives on the scene to assume his position as Somerset's replacement.

The first murder that is uncovered is of such a grisly nature that Somerset is hesitant to let Mills take over his beat. When a second slaying proves to be related to the first, Somerset is convinced that the search for a serial killer has begun and he stays on the job with Mills as his sidekick.

The connection between the hideous mutilations that begin to pile up before our shocked eyes is one that Dante, Chaucer or Biblical students will easily identify. Each victim becomes such because the madman considers him or her to have committed one of the seven deadly sins — Gluttony, Greed, Sloth, Wrath, Pride, Lust or Envy.

In all of his dark and macabre glory, director David Fincher (Alien 3) provides a very explicit and gory look at the murders pertaining to each sin. These graphic scenes are as difficult to watch as they are intriguing, thereby making it impossible to avert your eyes from the screen. We don't want to see anymore, but yet are curious as to what the next of the seven sins will be.

Seven is not merely dark in terms of content, but the entire movie appears to be filmed in a shadow. Once your eyes adjust to the dimly lit set, and you figure out that the anachronistic setting (the film takes place in the present) is only such to establish the depressing theme, you have no choice but to become enthralled with the film.

As with any good thriller, this also has a twist too perfect to reveal. The content may be tough to swallow, but Seven is a so expertly developed, it is on a par with its award winning predecessor Silence of the Lambs. A-number of songs were picked carefully, because there all tight. Buckwild, some kids from naughty's commercial punk group and Da Butcher combine to produce the album.

■ diary

continued from page 8

The production is tight enough, so you should hear songs everywhere. Parties, clubs, jeeps etc... will represent, especially the "Fast Life" (Nas/G. Rap).

Next week "Das Efx can they do it, again?" Peace. Stay safe ya'll. Big Byrd. Byrd@oit. umass. twain. edu.

Chris Byrd is a Collegian Staff member.

El Ché says:
"WRITE FOR MULTI-CULTURAL AFFAIRS"
Contact Hernán
113 Campus Center
545-1851

PEKING GARDEN OPEN 7 DAYS
ALL YOU CAN EAT LUNCH BUFFET 11 a.m.-3 p.m. Monday-Saturday. Lunch Buffet to Go - also $3.99 Only $3.99
ALL YOU CAN EAT DINNER BUFFET or Dinner Buffet to Go - also $6.99 Regular Menu Always Available Only $6.99
7 NIGHTS A WEEK 5-9 P.M.
LATIN NIGHTS PARTY Every Thurs & Fri. 6 p.m. - 1 a.m. Call 256-4580 or 256-3425
SUNDAY BUFFET 11 a.m. - 3 p.m. Only $5.99
COMEDY EVERY SATURDAY
20% OFF All dinners for Comedy Patrons
Rt. 9, Hadley • 586-1202

Art's Too ... Arty!
THEN COME ON DOWN TO THE DAILY COLLEGIAN AND WRITE ABOUT WHAT'S COOL IN THE WORLD OF ARTS AND ENTERTAINMENT. ASK TO TALK TO TARA.
It may just be the best decision you ever make!

Duo set to perform in NoHo

Classical operatic duo teams up with local lesbian chorus

By Seema Gangatirkar
Collegian Staff

On Friday, the local lesbian chorus, The Sapphonics, will team up with the Seattle-based Divine Comic Dyke Divas, the Derivative Duo, for a one night only performance at the Unitarian Society of Northampton.

The Derivative Duo is made up of Barb Glenn and Susan Nivert. According to Glenn, the two met in a feminist chorus in 1980. In 1982, Nivert and Glenn wrote an opera parody called "Coming Out Mozart" where Susan would sing the word "Dyke" on a high C. The opera brought the house down and so the Derivative Duo was born.

Glenn and Nivert both work full-time in the mental health fields but Nivert said, "We both like performing" and Glenn added that performing music "gives my life depth."

The two collaborate on all the songs they wrote. They pick the music from a classical repertoire, usually in the operatic genre. Nivert mentioned that sometimes they would "pick a subject first" and then pick the music, but the usual procedure is to find the music and then write the lyrics.

Their song subjects range from mammograms to Fabio. Glenn said she is sure "Mozart is rolling over in his grave, but we think he's got a good sense of humor and would probably enjoy this."

In fact, many people enjoy the Derivative Duo. The duo's first CD "Opera For the Masses" was listed in The Seattle Times as one of the eight best new recordings for the summer of 1995. The Derivative Duo found themselves in good company with the likes of Pavarotti and other classically oriented groups.

Nivert and Glenn stress their music is for everyone and that it appeals to everyone on a broad level. The combination of bizarre, classical music, laughter and comedy makes for a good time for everyone.

The Sapphonics, founded in January of 1991 has 22 volunteer members and while a lesbian chorus, Debbie Buckley, the production manager for the group, said the group is open to all women. One of the nice things about the chorus Buckley pointed out is the chorus is inclusive of musical ability. She said the women "come into the chorus, not knowing how to sing and then filling the halls and finding their voices."

The group performs a variety of music from Brahms to Rodgers and Hammerstein. Heather Faust, music director, said she chooses music that is "by women, relevant to women and about women." She also looks for music that "speaks to all humanity." One example Faust cited was a song about peace and love, written jointly by a Palestinian and an Israeli.

Faust and Buckley insist that their group is not into that politics. Buckley said, "the goal though is to have fun. If it's not fun, it's no worth doing." However, she added, "we do not tolerate any form of social injustice."

Buckley said this is "quality music. Everyone enjoys it. It takes uppity opera and makes it for the masses."

The Derivative Duo and The Sapphonics will perform at the Unitarian Society of Northampton (next to City Hall on Main St.) Tickets are $8 and $10. Tickets can be bought at Wild Iris, Third Wave, Pride & Joy in Northampton or For The Record in Amherst or at the door. For more information, please call 584-1606 or 527-9581.

Susan Nivert and Barb Glenn are The Derivative Duo.

COURTESY THE DERIVATIVE DUO

We Deliver
Kai Chi
Chinese-American Cuisine
Restaurant & Bar
Mt. Farms Mall, Rt. 9 Hadley • 586-2774
Open Sun-Thurs 12-11 pm
Fri-Sat 12-2 am
Enjoy HALF PRICE APPETIZERS
9 pm - Close • 7 Days a Week
31 Selections!
Ex. Pu Pu (for 2) Reg. $11.99 Now $5.99
No other promos apply • EAT IN ONLY

AMHERST SUNSHINE CARWASH
Automatic wash/wax
Daily 9 a.m.- 5 p.m.
Self Service
Open 24 Hours
Soap / Rinse / Wax
Bubble Brush / Tire Cleaner
Engine Degreaser, Vacuum Cleaners & Bill Changers
381 College Street (Rt. 9 East)

THE BLACK SHEEP
79 MAIN ST
AMHERST, MA
253-3442
10 % DISCOUNT TO STUDENTS ALL YEAR WITH UMASS ID.

Rusted Root
plus special guest
Joan Osborne
OCTOBER 16
7:30 PM
ON SALE TODAY
SPRINGFIELD SYMPHONY HALL
TICKETS AVAILABLE AT THE SPRINGFIELD CIVIC CENTER BOX OFFICE, CIVIC CENTER CHARGE BY PHONE (413) 787-6400 AT ALL OUTLETS INCLUDING PHONE CHARGE
(617) 931-2000 • (413) 733-2500
EVENT DATE AND TIME SUBJECT TO CHANGE
PRODUCED BY JIM KOPLIK / JOHN SCHER / METROPOLITAN ENTERTAINMENT GROUP

What are the Most Powerful Words In Your Permanent Record?
(check one)
☐ Transcript
☐ Resumé
☐ Diploma
☑ The Wall Street Journal
For special student rates send in coupon below or for faster service
call (800) WSJ-8614
7am-10pm Eastern Time Mon.-Fri.
☐ Send me a one-year subscription for $87.00
☐ I'd prefer a 15-week subscription for $33.00
Name
Address
City State Zip
School name Graduation date
☐ Check enclosed ☐ Bill me later ☐ Charge to my: ☐ AMEX ☐ VISA
☐ MasterCard ☐ Diners Club
Card no. Expiration date
Signature
THE WALL STREET JOURNAL.
Mail coupon to: The Wall Street Journal 200 Burnett Road, Chicopee, MA 01020

UMASS ARTS COUNCIL
GRANT DEADLINE
Friday, Oct. 20
Grants for:
• Visual Art & Design
• Literature, Theater, Performance Art
• Film & Video
• Music
• Artistic components in multicultural programs
PROPOSALS ARE ENCOURAGED FROM STUDENT GROUPS
Applications, guidance & information: Campus Activities Office Student Union or the Arts Council 101 Hasbrouck 545-0202

■ Stock

continued from page 5

physically grown up now, but her acting skills have not matured in the least. The trite and ridiculous dialogue she recites is about as pleasing to the ears as nails on a chalkboard. The audience was forced to resort to sheer laughter just to stomach Berkley's horrible performance.

Bad acting was not limited to Berkley. Kyle MacLachlan (from T.V.'s "Twin Peaks") has a less than spectacular performance as a director of the elaborate, "upper-crust" dance strip show, Goddess. Gina Gershon perfects her sneering glance as Crystal, the current star of Goddess.

The relationship between Nomi and Crystal, though underdeveloped as every subplot is in this movie, is one of vacillating lust and jealousy. Nomi hates Crystal, as their catfights reveal, and viciously ruminates over how to dethrone her from the queen of the dance show. Later, the film develops bisexual overtones as Crystal has a psychotic attraction towards Nomi.

Sexually speaking, this film is unsure of where to take a stance. The endless stripping scenes become more tiresome than titillating as the audience becomes de-sensitized to nudity. The relationship between Nomi and Crystal is never defined and the heterosexual sex scenes are violent and unrealistic.

Moreover, Showgirls is so degrading to women, it is a wonder how the filmmakers expected this to sell to a diverse audience. Absent are moral judgements on stripping, prostitution or drug abuse. Women are not only viewed as objects, but as entertainment servants who are snapped at or spanked on the rear when a man wants their attention. We are also subjected to a gruesome rape scene, which was totally unnecessary in this movie.

This degradation of women is a major disappointment from the writer-director team Joe Eszterhas and Paul Verhoeven, who proved with Basic Instinct that sexually- explicit films can be made that actually empower the heroine. Nomi is a character the film does not put on a pedestal, but rather tramples underneath all of the smut.

As the night, and the tedious movie, wore on, the comments I overheard began to change.

"How long is this movie?"

"What time is it?"

In a scene where Berkley is sitting on a rooftop, one audience member begged for mercy, hoping she would jump.

If you go to Showgirls for the nudity, you'll get the nudity, but you'll also have to suffer through all horrible acting, terrible dialogue and one of the most disgusting productions in film history. F

■ Pessah

continued from page 5

burden of guilt from Vegas's shoulders. After all, she was "damaged goods" from the beginning.

In Showgirls there is no innocence. The only character that appears to be pure intentioned is Molly, the seamstress. Yet, when she finally gets to meet Andrew (the celebrity she lusts after) he savagely rapes her, with the help of his bodyguards. Refer to lesson seven.

I assume that the intention of the Eszterhas\Verhoeven philosophy is to scare people away from sex, so they will just spend all their money on repeat viewings of Showgirls. After all, Showgirls is just like seeing a strip show, but without the awkward feeling of stuffing money down a G- string.

The rub is that Showgirls is actually less gratifying than a strip tease. The viewer is forced to ogle women, without any attention to mood or mystique. The notion that the female form is bankably erotic, even in the most banal circumstances, has repugnant implications for both sexes. Showgirls cannot help but suggest that men would be better behaved if they were away from women, and women would be safer if they were away from men. This flies in the face of everything western society has tried to accomplish in the past century.

If we are to believe the gospels of Joe (Eszterhas) and Paul (Verhoeven), then what are our options? Showgirls suggests that we stop denying our base impulses and grow accustomed to what it implies as our genders' lot — interpreting our most animal impulses as our highest potential. Showgirls implies that really good whores can have an enjoyable time (given that they have the movie to stay on top), and really good pimps are untouchable. It is a pathetic, bleak world view that I don't choose to share. But look out, Jesus is coming.

WRITE FOR DEVELOPING NATIONS!
CONTACT SYED MOHAMMED ALI-RAZA
113 CAMPUS CENTER
545-1851

Chinese dance group to tour U.S.

By Renee Schoof
Associated Press

BEIJING — A cultural oddity at home, China's premier ballet troupe is touring the United States for the first time in a decade to perform traditional Chinese tales.

The Chinese dances performed by the National Ballet of China include "Zhufu," a tale of a woman sold into marriage who discovers unexpected love, and the first Chinese ballet, the 1964 "Red Detachment of Women."

"Zhufu" was adapted from "New Year Sacrifice," a story by modern writer Lu Xun. Its main characters are a widow sold as a bride and the peasant who buys her, then becomes brokenhearted over her determination to escape and offers her the freedom to choose her fate.

"Ballet — this foreign art form — can show Chinese life and feelings without any need for language. The audience sees and understands," manager Huang Minxuan said during rehearsals before the troupe left. He will dance the part of the villains in the two Chinese ballets.

■ Mitchells

continued from page 7

band partook in "The Rock Hunt," a battle of the bands designed for local unsigned groups. The show was sponsored by WBRU, an alternative rock station in Providence. Coming in third place, the band was awarded enough prize money to give them an opportunity to go into the recording studio. The result was their debut 7" single.

The band is hoping the single will bring them recognition outside of the Valley.

"For the immediate future, we will shop around our 7" record to various independent labels to see if there is any interest," Darouian said.

Along with the Mitchells, there will be performances by Tizzy and Encyclopedia Brown.

The Mitchells perform at the Fire & Water Cure tonight. The show starts at 9:00 p.m. and the admission is free.

■ tube notes

continued from page 5

ditzy and loveable character, Phoebe.

Phoebe cuts Chandler and Joey's hair, revealing a hidden talent. Monica, awed by the fantastic new looks the guys are sporting, convinces Phoebe to cut her own hair. Monica tells her that she wants to look like Demi Moore; but Phoebe being the flake she is, misunderstands. So when Monica looks in the mirror and sees her hair has been cut to look like Dudley Moore, she freaks.

Of course hair grows and Monica will eventually overcome her anger toward Phoebe, but it will make for some interesting bad hair day jokes.

All in all, it was a pretty good week for TV with season premieres on almost every night, not to mention the long awaited "Central Park West," "Courthouse," and of course, "Melrose Place."

Seema Gangatirkar contributed to this article.

Lizottes Tobacco Shop
76 Main St., Northampton, MA
584-2812
Imported: Cigars, Cigarettes, Tobacco, Clove Cigaretts
Bulk Pipe tobacco, American Spirit Cigarettes, Magazines
Pipes: Peterson, Falcon, Meerschaum

MICHAEL'S BILLIARDS
• 60" Big Screen T.V.
• 8- 9 ft. Tables
• Mon. Night Pool League
• Pool $5 per/hr
Unlimited Players
LIVE BAND! Friday Sept. 29 Chameleon
Saturday Sept. 30 Wildcat O'Halloran Band
Over 21 $1 Cover
10A Belchertown Road • Amherst, MA 01002 • 256-8284

10% off Dinner with Student I.D. ex. 10/31/95
ICHIBAN いちばん
Japanese Restaurant
TATAMI ROOM RESERVE FOR KARAOKE
SUSHI BAR
CATERING TAKE-OUT TABLE BARBECUE
1 Round House Plaza
Northampton, MA 01060
(413) 585-1185
Behind City Hall and next to bus terminal
OPEN 7 DAYS A WEEK

with this coupon
$29.95 professional resumé package
Bring this coupon into the Kinko's listed and receive a $29.95 Professional Resumé Package which includes a one page typeset resume provided by you on disk, 25 typeset on fine stationery, 25 matching blank sheets (for cover letters), and 25 matching #10 envelopes. One coupon per customer. Not valid with other offers. Coupon good through October 15, 1995.
kinko's the copy center
AMHERST 220 N. Pleasant St. 253-2543 Open 24 Hours
NORTHAMPTON 34 Bridge Street • 585-5000 (Across from the Post Office) Open 24 Hours

You mean a student loan lender cares what happens to me after graduation?!?
You can count on Citibank for the best in college financing before and after graduation. We offer our student loan borrowers new, flexible repayment options. That means after graduation, you can find a place to work and a student loan payment that works for you. To get the student loan financing you need now and the repayment options you may need later, call Citibank at 1-800-692-8200 and ask for Operator 274, send in the coupon below, or visit your school's Financial Aid Office.
Yes.
That's why Citibank student loans have new, flexible repayment options.
PLEASE SEND ME APPLICATIONS FOR THE FOLLOWING STUDENT LOANS:
Citibank Federal Stafford Loan (subsidized and unsubsidized)
Citibank Federal PLUS Loan (for parents of dependent students only)
Citibank Graduate Loan Program (for graduate students of all disciplines — please indicate your field of study)
MAIL THIS COUPON TO:
Citibank (NYS)
Attn: The Student Loan Corporation
P.O. Box 22948
Rochester, NY 14692-2948
OR CALL 1-800-692-8200 and ask for Operator 274.
VISIT OUR WEB SITE at http://www.locl.com/HO/village/Citibank/CSLC.html
Name
Address Apt.
City State Zip
Telephone
Social Security #
You are currently: an undergraduate student a graduate student
Year of graduation
If you are a graduate student, please indicate the field of study you are pursuing:
Business (MBA) Medicine (allopathic and osteopathic studies)
Engineering Nursing
Other (please specify)
CITIBANK
CODE 275

TV watchdogs single out stupidity

By Lynn Elber
Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — Television is taking heat for being violent, sexist, oversexed and more, with the medium's collective knuckles soundly rapped by all manner of critical Miss Manners.

Go to it, we say, as shameless as anyone in jumping in on the latest socio-psycho-political etiquette craze.

But what about the smaller annoyances television visits on viewers? Call us petty, call us superficial, but who's the watchdog for the fingernails-on-the-blackboard stuff?

While research funds are pending, our able staff has prepared a preliminary report on problems that may, in their own small way, contribute to national depravity. Or at least irritability.

Like these tiny trespasses:

—The shoulder-to-shoulder striding cast shot. You've seen it in the credits of "ER," "Chicago Hope" and, like a virus snaking its way through a defenseless throng, on newcomers like "The Monroes."

Filmed in portentious (OK, pretentious) slow motion, the actors march down a corridor, preferably one of power. They are determined, they are driven, they are in drill-team synch.

But where are these people going? And why? Did someone just yell "Fresh-brewed cappuccino in the lunchroom!" Or maybe Bowling league sign-ups!"

At other workplaces, according to our research team, only food, fire drills or 5 o'clock get people moving like that.

— Exclusive reports that aren't. "Tonight, only on 'Entertainment Tonight!' "Tonight, only on Extra!" That's the siren song from these dueling inside-Hollywood shows.

But the "exclusives" are duplicates, such as interviews with

Sharon Stone hyping her latest film. Maybe the exclusive part was getting to see Stone's glamorous movie wardrobe up close (hmmm, no lingerie shots). Maybe it was the lame banter between Stone and crew members.

Granted, entertainment scoops aren't on a par with, say, Washington revelations about politicians and the women they grope.

But c'mon, even gossip addicts have standards: no real dirt, no unreal hype.

Send both shows to a 12-step program for rehab - and to dig up some honest trash.

— Nicknames for those who haven't earned them. Who can resist a gangster's colorful moniker, like those bestowed on Lucky Luciano, Bugsy Siegel and Dutch Schultz?

Not the news media, certainly, even when the honoree seems borderline. Take Craig "Tony The Animal" Fiato, a mob informant who got to kick up his heels in the O.J. Simpson trial chorus line.

What kind of track record does this tough guy have to have to get such recognition? Let's face it, hired guns like Robert "Hollywood Bob" Shapiro and Johnnie "Mighty Mouth" Cochran Jr. are way ahead of Fiato in the public consciousness. As is prosecutor Marcia "The Miniskirted Mauler" Clark. Credit where credit is due, please.

— Politics and sitcoms as strange bedfellows. This season started out with John F. Kennedy Jr. pulling a cameo on "Murphy Brown."

Rap & metal to to ignite mosh-pit

Life of Agony, Lordz of Brooklyn to headline rap/metal fest

By Wayken Shaw
Collegian Staff

Countless groups continue to try to bridge the gap between rap and metal, only to bring forth an insipid concoction that comes across somewhat awkward and forced. Tonight will be different, though, as Pearl Street offers the best of both worlds in a bill with metalheads Life of Agony and hardcore rappers the Lordz of Brooklyn.

Formed in 1989, Life of Agony developed in the New York underground to produce their tough metal sound. With the addition of ex-Type O Negative drummer Sal Abruscato, the band released their debut album in 1993, River Runs Red, to critical praise and commercial exposure.

The band's just released sophomore record, Ugly, further shows signs of maturity, seemingly channeled through their rigorous road experiences for River Runs Red.

"Ugly is a very personal album and it's all about seclusion, feeling out of place in society, and not knowing what you're doing with your life," says Joey Z, the band's guitarist.

Opening up will be fellow New Yorkers, the Lordz of Brooklyn. Already known for their intense rap delivery, the band has attracted fans of both rap and metal. Also touring with the likes of Korn and Sugar Ray, has given the band added credibility. From the sounds of the their current album, All in the Family, on American Records, the Lordz should be an apt opener for Life of Agony's raging live show.

Life of Agony and the Lordz of Brooklyn play Pearl St. in Northampton tonight. Show starts at 7:30 p.m. Tickets are $7 in advance. Call 584-4256 for more info.

■ center

continued from page 7

decided to continue it every Thursday night."

On top of DJs spinning those upbeat disco tunes from the likes of the Saturday Night Fever soundtrack, there will be occasional guest performances and free raffles throughout the nights. Most dancers come clad in their '70's clothing which gives the retro-evening an authentic feel.

For some mellow music to study or sip coffee to, check out the Bluewall every other Monday night where blues and jazz will be performed live. Jazzotree will play on October 2nd, followed by the Peter Orphanos Quartet on the 16th. Also watch for performances by the Steve McCracken International Ensemble and the Wildcat O'Halloran Blues Band.

"I've always thought of Monday nights as stressful, with all of the week's homework. The Blues and Jazz Series in the Bluewall provides students with the chance to unwind and mellow out to some music that is not loud or obnoxious nor distracting to those who study there," said Schraga.

The Cape Cod lounge in the Student Union will continue to host a series of international styles of music and dance, including an upcoming performance by The Rhythm Mission with Tony Vacca and Steve Leicach. The Cape Cod performances focus on diversity in music and are designed not for a sit-down audience, but rather for students who may wander in the lounge between classes or during lunch.

Other tunes may be overheard on the Campus Center concourse from local street musicians who, while providing entertainment, have the opportunity to perform their talents without soliciting donations.

Each of the musical scries has already begun and encountered much success. Schraga, who has observed the audiences at each function, stated "it was very gratifying to see all of the students having a great time."

All of the above events are free and take place either in the Campus Center or Student Union. Any students interested in becoming involved with the 25th Anniversary programming, or who wish to offer any ideas or comments may contact Melissa Schraga at 545-0585.

Vision Showcase

IS NOW OPEN!
We have moved to our bright, new location! On the corner of Route 9 & So. Maple Street, Across from the Hampshire Mall and next to the new Florence Savings Bank.
WE OFFER...
• ONE HOUR SERVICE *most cases
• CONVENIENT, STORE FRONT PARKING
• THE AREA'S LARGEST FRAME SELECTION
• EYE EXAMS ON THE PREMISES by Dr. Robert E. Delaney, Independent Doctor of Optometry • 584-6888
OPENING SPECIALS!!
With Coupon: COMPLETE EYE EXAM $39 • Exp. 10-31-95 • Appointment Needed
With Coupon: $30.00 OFF Complete Pair of Eyeglasses & FREE SPARE PAIR. Buy one pair of glasses at regular price, get the second pair of same prescription from our open-air sales non-FREE! Includes first quality frames and single vision, clear uncoated, 1st and 2nd division lenses. Offer precludes previous discounts. • Exp. 10-31-95 • Appointment Needed
With Coupon: 1 YEARS SUPPLY CONTACT LENSES $99 professional fees not included • Bausch & Lomb Medalist Soft Lenses • Exp. 10-31-95
Vision Showcase Route 9 Hadley 584-8324
AT OUR NEW LOCATION!!
ROUTE 9, HADLEY (next to the Florence Savings Bank)
413 584-8324 • Mon-Sat 9-8 Sun 12-4

JEWISH AFFAIRS NEEDS WRITERS
Come Down To The Collegian And Ask For
JACOB W. MICHAELS
113 CAMPUS CENTER • 545-3500

Classic Elegance
Bridals & Formals
Hadley Village Barn Shops
49 Russell Street • Route 9 • Hadley
(413) 586-1559
Everyday Special!
10% off the purchase of any regular priced item When You Show Your Valid UMass I.D.
Wedding Gowns • Bridesmaid Dresses • Formal Dresses • Tuxedo Rentals • Shoes • Jewelry • and Much More!
Open: Tuesday, Wednesday 10-6 p.m.
Thursday & Friday 10-8 p.m.
Saturday 10-5 p.m.
Sunday 12-5 p.m.

Classic Elegance BRIDAL & FORMALS

Cosponsored by:
Campus Activities
Chancellor's Office
Office of Human Relations
School of Education
Training and Development Unit
Monday, October 2, 1995
7:00-9:30pm
Mahar Auditorium
Premier Showing of
"Skin Deep"
A Video on College Students Talking About Race and Racism Which Features Two UMass Students
Filmmaker Frances Reid of Iris Films will introduce the video. Discussion groups follow the showing.

TRAVEL SMART!
FROM NEW YORK
One Way Roundtrip
LONDON $146 $292
PARIS $213 $426
SAN JOSE, COSTA RICA $220 $439
.....Roundtrip
TOKYO $859
Scheduled flights. Fares to worldwide destinations. Earn/passes Available.
Weekend surcharges may apply. Customs-Immigration taxes apply. Fares subject to change without notice. Int'l. student I.D. cards may be required.
PRISM TRAVEL
342 Madison Ave., NY, NY 10173
212-986-6420*
800-272-9676
*In NYC

■ football

continued from page 16

Texas as a potential stumbling block for the Aggies. With the loss to Colorado, the Aggies will have to hope for some help if they will get a shot at the championship.

• Last week's predictions were not very solid. While USC won easily and Notre Dame cruised, my pick of A&M over Colorado dropped my record to 2–1 for the week. Now for a look at this week's key match-ups.

Colorado at Oklahoma

The Buffs, coming off the big win over A&M, play another huge game this weekend. However, Colorado will be without the services of star QB Koy Detmer. Detmer injured ligaments in his right knee and will be side-lined for the game. The loss of Detmer did not slow the Buffs last week as back-up John Hessler ran for two TD's and threw for another in relief duty. Perhaps more impressively for Colorado was the play of their defense. The defensive unit held the electric Leeland McElroy to a mere 52 yards rushing, yielding only five more yards to the rest of the Aggies' team.

Coach Howard Schnellenberger's Oklahoma team pasted North Texas last week 51–10. Garrick McGhee threw two TD's and ran for another in the Sooners' win. The Sooners are undefeated, but have yet to play a quality opponent, posting victories over San Diego State, SMU and N. Texas. The Sooners' suspect defense will be tested despite Detmer's absence. Even with the home field, Schnellenberger and the Sooners taste defeat for the first time this season, Colorado 31, Oklahoma 20.

Notre Dame at Ohio State

This one looks to be the game of the week. OSU's offense has been tremendous to date. Eddie George looks like a Heisman candidate at running back. What is even more striking is the emergence of wide-out Terry Glenn. Glenn has stepped out of the shadow left by Joey Galloway. He hooked up with QB Bobby Hoying for four TD's last week.

Coach John Cooper's defense lost two key defenders in Korey Stringer and Lorenzo Styles, but Orlando Pace and Shawn Springs key a solid Buckeye defensive unit.

Notre Dame has silenced the early season critics. Since losing the opener the Irish have rolled. Randy Kinder rushed for 129 yards last week and Marc Edwards ran for two scores keeing a tough Irish running game. QB Ron Powlus was solid, passing for 273 yards.

This one comes down to who has the better defense. The Irish gave up 335 passing yards last week and may be susceptible to the Hoying–Glenn combination. Coupling a competent Buckeye passing game with the solid ground game equals victory for Ohio State. Ohio State 28, Notre Dame 20.

Georgia at Alabama

Georgia has lost quite a bit so far this season. Not only have the Bulldogs lost two ballgames, but they have lost their starting running back and are also without a starting QB. Last week the Dogs lost QB Mike Bobo to ligament tears in his right knee and earlier in the season they lost star running back Robert Edwards to a broken foot. The Bulldogs' offensive unit, once the strength of this team, may now be the weak link. Fans in Athens have to be asking: Where is Eric Zeier?

Alabama has had two weeks off to prepare for this one, as well as think about their 20–19 loss to Arkansas. While Bama's offense is not that strong, the defense returns five starters and is loaded with depth.

Georgia has no QB and is weak at running back, Bama wins an ugly game. Alabama 26, Georgia 17.

Greg Corey is a Collegian correspondent.

Wakefield can't save Sox from drowning

By Jimmy Golen
Associated Press

BOSTON — Tim Wakefield preferred to look at the four scoreless innings that ended his night instead of the three bad innings that started it.

The Red Sox knuckleballer settled down after spotting Detroit a 5-0 lead on Wednesday night, but Boston couldn't overcome the deficit and lost 7-5.

"I was throwing the ball the same way the first through seventh inning," said Wakefield, who gave up 11 hits before retiring the last nine batters he faced. "I think I've been throwing the ball well this last month. Things just haven't been going well for me."

Wakefield (16-7) was a contender for the Cy Young award after starting the year 14-1. But since then, he is 2-6 with a 6.02 ERA to raise his ERA from 1.65 to 2.99.

"I don't know that much about Wakefield," Detroit manager Sparky Anderson said, "but it appears he is in a drought."

Tuesday night's loss was the third consecutive bad outing for Wakefield. He is scheduled to start the regular-season finale in Milwaukee on Sunday and then Game 3 of the playoffs next Friday.

"This really doesn't matter," shortstop John Valentin said. "When we go into the playoffs he's going to have to pitch well and we know that and he knows that. It's always nice to go into the playoffs with a good game under your belt, but it doesn't matter."

Jose Lima (3-9) was the beneficiary of 14 Detroit hits. Travis Fryman hit his 15th home run and Tony Clark was 2-for-5 for his third multi-hit game of the series. Chad Curtis, Cecil Fielder, Bobby Higginson, Phil Nevin and Ron Tingley also had two hits apiece.

The Red Sox lost for the fourth time in five games despite three hits each from Jose Canseco and Mo Vaughn, including Vaughn's 39th home run.

Lima has pitched well in his last five starts, going at least five innings in each and allowing a total of seven runs. He left after five innings, allowing one run on six hits, walking none and striking out one.

Ben Blomdahl, the fifth Detroit pitcher in the ninth inning and the eighth overall, got the last out for his first save.

Detroit led 7-1 before Boston scored two in the eighth on Vaughn's leadoff homer and Mike Greenwell's RBI double. In the ninth, the Red Sox got two more on John Valentin's RBI single and Canseco's bloop RBI single as Anderson emptied his bullpen.

The Tigers scored two runs in the second inning and hit Wakefield even harder in the third. Fryman homered over the Green Monster, Fielder banged one off the right field wall for a long single and Clark hit one off the Monster for another single.

After Higginson flied out to the warning track in center, Nevin and Scott Fletcher hit RBI singles to make it 5-0. Detroit made it 7-1 in the eighth when Tingley doubled in Higginson and then scored on Curtis' single.

Notes: The Red Sox have named Roger Clemens' record 20-strikeout game from April 29, 1986 as the all-time special moment in team history. The feat will be recognized in the Red Sox Hall of Fame which will open Nov. 1. ... Fryman has seven RBIs in his last four games. ... Boston second baseman Luis Alicea was a late scratch for the second night in a row. Rodriguez replaced him in the lineup. ... Clemens and Greenwell will tie a team record with a fourth playoff appearance. Only Dwight Evans and Harry Hooper have done it four times. ... Clark was 7-for-12 in the series. ... It was Vaughn's first home run since Sept. 15. ... The victory clinched fourth place in the AL East for the Tigers. ... Anderson gave a hint that it might have been his last game at Fenway Park, where he won the 1975 World Series with Cincinnati. "I'll manage somewhere next year. I like the National League better."

If your bike was stolen call Collegian associate news editor Amy Paradysz at 545–1762. You probably won't get your bike back, but you might get your name in the paper.

Introducing
From the people who brought you the Haunted Car Wash
The Ultimate Car Wash Experience
GOLDEN NOZZLE PRESENTS
LASERWASH
An Amazing Laser-Light Show in a Fully Functional Car Wash
"Good, Clean Fun" "The best time you'll ever have in neutral" "You won't believe your eyes"
Open on 29th
All Night
1/2 Price Works
free coffee between 9pm & 6am
September 20, 1995 - September 30, 1995
Sunday - Thursday 4pm - 8pm
Friday & Saturday 4pm - 10pm
Rt. 9 Hadley • Amherst line next to Super Stop & Shop
BP Shop is now Open 24 Hours 7 Days

Come Enjoy our all new delicious
BUFFET
Over 20
Different Items To Choose
Served 7 Days A Week Lunch & Dinner
Lunch Buffet • $5.95
Dinner Buffet • $8.95
"Bringing The Tradition To You"
CHINA DYNASTY
RESTAURANT AND LOUNGE
Delivery thru Delivery Express 549-0077
Route 9 & Unversity Drive in Amherst
256-8800
OPEN DAILY: 11:30 AM-10 PM • FRI. & SAT. TILL 11 PM • SUN 12-10 PM

the BLUEWALL presents
DISCO
Every Thursday
Boogie Down All Night Long
FREE ADMISSION
9:30 pm - 1:00 am
70's Costumes encouraged
With D.J.s Billy Arnold and Robert Dwelley
Lighting and Sound By: Audio Pro Media
Mullins Center 25th Anniversary

"Because You Asked For It"
Kick off your weekend with these Great Specials at Scott's!
Thank You For Your Patronage
Scott's LIQUORS
OPEN: Mon.-Sat. 8a.m.-11 p.m. Tel: 549-2692.
Quantity Discounts Available
Bacardi Rum Silver $7.99 750ml
Busch & Busch Light 30 pack $10.99 +dep
Gordon's Gin co-pack $15.99 1.75 Gordon's, 1 liter Tonic Pour the Boar
Rolling Rock & Rock Lt. 24-12 oz Bar Botts. $13.99 +dep
Ruble Vodka $4.99 750ml
Cuervo Gold Tequila $10.99 750ml
Saranac Brews All Varieties $16.79 +dep 24-12oz. Bottles, Mix & Match
CHECK OUT OUR OTHER GREAT IN STORE SPECIALS
We Want To Be Your Favorite Liquor Store!
Tele-Check for your personal check
6 University Drive at Newmarket Center, Amherst

AT THE GATES OF SMITH COLLEGE
Fri. Sept. 29 - Thurs. Oct. 5/Separate Tickets
The Film Everyone Is Asking For DAILY 7:15
SHARPGUTSY
Steven Weber Patrick Stewart Sigourney Weaver
Jeffrey
HILARIOUS
THE NEW YORK TIMES
Held Over a Third Week
DAILY at 9:15
"A DYNAMITE CAST! SPELLBINDING! A Demonically Funny Thriller."
THE USUAL SUSPECTS
The 1920's Labor Battle in the Coal Fields
Sun. Oct. 2 at 2pm
MAILWAN
A John Sayles Film
A Benefit For Western MassCoah
ACADEMY OF MUSIC NORTHAMPTON
Cinema Treats 584-8435

■ McNeilly

continued from page 16

completed 46.2 percent of his passes in his career (219–472), and he's thrown 24 INTs compared to eight career passing TDs. The numbers are very much the same.

McNeilly takes abuse

McNeilly has been known as a tough player from day one. For a quarterback, he can throw a block and he's strong on the run. He's been known to be a hard worker by the coaching staff. Unfortunately, the one weakness he has is a considerable one for a man who plays his position.

His passing game is not all that effective.

For this, McNeilly has been the target of ruthless criticism.

"Well, I guess that goes with it. There are times when I say, you know, 'I don't need this. I don't want this. I just want to play and do my best, and help the team win.' I wasn't asked to be put in this position, where I get judged good or bad," McNeilly said. "But I guess that's the way it goes, whether you like it or not. That's the position you're in as quarterback, and you have to learn to live with it.

"What I've learned to do is let all that stuff go right by me. Before I used to read that stuff, and I used to get really hurt about it, or upset. It really used to bother me. But now, it's like you can't do anything about it, it's just the way it goes."

This year is going, almost four games into the meat of the schedule. For McNeilly, the last three weeks have been arguably the most quiet of his career. He has not been targeted for lack of offense. He has not been blamed for the offensive woes. His passing game has not been condemned.

It's too bad the only reason is because Andrew McNeilly has not got the call as quarterback for the Minutemen.

But, despite not taking the heat, McNeilly is still frustrated. His time has been limited at practice, since he stretched ligaments in his thumb the second day of camp. So it's not just the adjustment of not playing in the games, he has yet to do all that much in practice.

Wants to play, but also wants to win

McNeilly is not used to all of this. This is a guy who has started 28 games in his career. He has this one year left to play collegiate football. After being the UMass field general for his first three seasons, McNeilly is now taking a backseat in his senior year.

As for bitterness towards not having the nod as the starter, McNeilly admits he's frustrated. But, as for resentment to Campanile or anyone else involved with the change, McNeilly counts it all out.

"That's an attitude I probably would have had as a freshman," McNeilly said. "But now, at my age, after what I've been through, it's not anything towards [Vito]. It's more of just... this is my fifth friggen' year here and I'd like to go out being a part of a winning team. I'm past all that crap about who's playing, or how he's going to do.

"Right now, I just want my thumb to get better so that, you know... if there is a situation where they need me, I'll be ready to play."

■ Garden

continued from page 16

"best player to have ever played hockey."

Almost every Bruin that was there listed Orr's game winning goal in the 1970 Stanley Cup as the greatest Garden memory ever. Orr addressed the issue with UPN38's Sean McDonough.

"The goal was nice. I'm glad to have scored it, but being the part of a Stanley Cup Champion was the real thing."

When Orr walked down the carpet to take his place, the rest of the Bruin alumni gave him a fitting tribute raising their arms up and down in adoration.

Watching Orr was reminiscent of the night his number was raised to the rafters, speaking briefly to the Garden crowd as a single tear rolled down his cheek.

Looking at him, you can't help but realize how young Orr still is. At only 47, if his career hadn't been cut short, Orr might have still played until the mid–'80s.

* * *

What a month. You wonder just how much sentimentality one sports fan can endure, but the month of September has yanked at the heart of this sports fan.

It started with the immortal Cal Ripken breaking Lou Gehrig's consecutive game streak. It continued when I sat in the bleachers as the Red Sox clinched the AL East, but Wednesday night was still clearly the pinnacle.

I've been skating since I was four and have been a B's fan for even longer. Like any true fan, I'll miss the Boston Garden, but Wednesday night was a celebration of a franchise. The franchise I have loved for as long as I can remember.

Matt Vautour is a Collegian columnist.

■ Thompson

continued from page 16

CHANG YIU/COLLEGIAN

Amanda Thompson [9] has been a vital part of UMass' formidable defense, which also includes Erin Lynch [left], Erica Iverson [center] and Nikki Ahrenholz [not pictured].

Thompson also played for the Olympic Development Region III team, starting at the age of 13, where for a while, she was a teammate of Lynch's. Even then, according to Lynch, one could see the potential in the young Thompson.

"I could definitely tell she was mature when she was younger," she said. "I know she'd be a great addition to the back [for us]."

The fact that Thompson played for such high level teams is something that was not lost on Rudy.

"I spoke to Jim Rudy the other day about that and he said he knew that I would be coming from a top-level club and the Olympic Development program, so he said that he wasn't afraid of the transition."

Thompson's transition was made easier due to the fact that she is comfortable with her teammates.

"I like the team, they make me feel really welcome. I like the coach," she said. "I totally love the work ethic on this team. That's what I came from, a club that strives on that. So it's good to see our team doing it, working hard."

Thompson had many goals for herself entering the season, and she's already accomplished some. She's got a starting job and she plans on keeping it. She also would like to try and get forward more, become more offensive in her play. But there's more she wants to do.

"I just want to all-around improve throughout the season. I don't want to get on a downhill slope and keep going down, just improve and learn from my mistakes. I'm starting to not think of myself as a freshman on the field and start being more of a leader. I want to continue to work hard and work as a team.

"Hopefully, that can lead us to the Final Four," she said.

Black Affairs needs writers! Interested? Call The Collegian at 545-1851

Sports Notice

Tune in to Sportsline on WMUA, 91.1 FM, tonight from 5:30–6:30 p.m. for UMass' only sports call–in talk show. Tonight's guests will be Lesley Nolan and Rachel Sky of the UMass volleyball team.

Hadley Coin-Op Laundromat
206 Russell St./Rt.9
Open 7 Days 6am - 10pm
Top Loaders: $1.00 • Dbl Loaders: $1.50

STUDY ABROAD
Semester, Summer and Year Programs
Ecuador • Spain
England • France
Canada • Mexico
Costa Rica • Italy
INTERNATIONAL
isa
STUDIES ABROAD
817 W. 24th St. Austin, TX 78705
(800) 580-8826
•SINCE 1987•

4 SEASONS
RTE. 9 HADLEY 584-8174
Monday- Saturday 9:00am-11:00pm
Not Responsible for typos • Visa & Mastercard accepted

DISCOUNT LIQUORS
• BEER • WINE • KEGS • ICE

BLACK DOG 24-12 oz. bott. $18.49 + DEP	SARANAC 24-12 oz. bott. $16.99 + DEP	LABATT'S 24-12 oz. bott. $15.99 + DEP	MOOSEHEAD 24-12 oz. bott. $13.49 + DEP	MICHELOB & LT. 18 pk - 12 oz. cans $9.49 + DEP	BEER BALLS BUD KILLIANS BUD LT COORS LT 21.99 + DEP	KEG OF THE WEEK! ICEHOUSE $36.99 + DEP "KEGS" BUD, BUD LT, BUD ICE, MICHELOB, MICHELOB LT, MICHELOB DK, RED DOG, LITE ICE, M.G.D., M.G.D. LT, ROLLING ROCK $39.99 + DEP
BUSCH & LT. 30 pk - 12 oz. cans $10.99 + DEP	COORS, LT-GOLD 24-12 oz. bott. $12.49 + DEP	BUD DRY 24-12 oz. bor bott $9.99 + DEP	NATURAL LT. 24-12 oz. cans $8.49 + DEP	HAMM'S 24-12 oz. cans $7.19 + DEP
JACK DANIELS $11.99 750 ml	SOUTHERN COMFORT $7.99 750 ml	TEQUILA-GOLD $6.99 1.0L	4 SEASONS VODKA $8.99 1.75L	SOUTHERN COMFORT $14.49 1.75L	JACK DANIELS $23.99 1.75L	ICE! 10 lbs. $1.99 50 lbs. $5.99 100 lbs. $9.99 blocks 10 lbs. $1.99 WE DELIVER! Sale Thru 10/4/95.
LOUIS JADOT PINOT NOIR $6.99 750 ml	LOUIS JADOT CHADONNAY $6.99 750 ml	RENE JUNOT ROUGE & BLANC $4.99 1.5L	J. ROGET CHAMPAGNES 3 for $6.99 750 ml	M/D 20-20 WINES 3 for $5.99 750 ml	BOONES FARM WINES 3 for $5.99 750 ml

MASSACHUSETTS DAILY COLLEGIAN
113 Campus Center
545-3500

PLANNING TO OBSERVE YOM KIPPUR?

MAKE SURE TO NOTIFY INSTRUCTORS IN ADVANCE
if you will miss classes. If you experience any difficulties, please contact the department head or call the Ombuds Office at 545-0867

RUSSELL'S
Discount LIQUORS Discount
18 Main St. Downtown Amherst 253-5441
Featuring, "Natural Light" cans $8.99 case
Jagermeister $14.99 750 ml
Miller Genuine Draft $9.99 case bar bottles
Vodka 80% $8.99 1.75 liter
"The 6/PK. Bonanza"
Catamount - Amber, Gold, Porter, Wheat & Octoberfest
Post Road - Ale
Shipyard - Moose Brown Ale, Blue Fin Stout, Export Ale, Old Thumper
Harpoon - Ale, Alt, I.P.A., Pilsner & Octoberfest
Brooklyn - Brown Ale & Lager
Sutter Home White Zinfandel $3.99 750 ml
Mix/Match "two" 6/Pks... $9.95
Concha Y Toro $4.99 1.5 Liter
All Beers Plus Deposit OPEN 9:00AM - 11:00PM VISA/MASTERCARD •Delivery Available•

Collegian Classifieds

113 Campus Center • University of Massachusetts • Phone: (413)545-3500 Fax: (413)545-1592

Personals Policy

1. All personals MUST be proofread by Collegian classified employees before payment and acceptance of the classified.
2. Last names MAY NOT be used in personals. ONLY first names and initials are allowed. The only exceptions are for birthday or congratulations personals, in which case the full name may be used.
3. Phone numbers are not allowed in personals. NO EXCEPTIONS
4. Addresses are not allowed in personals. this means dorm room numbers as well.
5. Personals of a threatening or derogatory nature are not acceptable. Personals of a vindictive or libelous nature are not acceptable. Personals may not be used for the purpose of harassment.
6. Profanity may not be used in personals.
7. The personals section is for personals only. The personals section may NOT be used to sell items, seek roommates, advertise meetings, etc.
8. All personals must have the name, signature, and UMass I.D. number of the student placing the as filled in on the insertion order. Non-students must provide a valid driver's license and the license number must be recorded on the insertion order. Use of false identification or misrepresentation is subject to penalties under the law.
9. The Collegian reserves the right to refuse or to edit any personal that does not meet the Collegian's standards in accordance with the statutes of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

Rates

$2.00 minimum/day

Students

20¢ per word/day

All others

40¢ per word/day

NO REFUNDS

Please write clearly and legibly. We are not responsible for errors resulting from illegible handwriting or type.

Standard Headings

Activities
Announcements
Apartment For Rent
Auto For Sale
Employment
Entertainment
For Sale
Found (2 days Free)
Happy Birthday
Houses For Rent
Instruction
Lost
Musicians
Miscellaneous
Motorcycles
Personals
Room For Rent
Room Wanted
Roommate Wanted
Services
Summer Sublet
To Sublet
Travel
Transportation
Wanted to Rent
Wanted

ACTIVITIES

Skydive! Experience the most exciting sport in existence. Visit the U Mass Sport Parachute Club table on the CC concourse today, or call 545-0005 to sign up.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Chinese Food Kip Chi restaurant now delivering fr 3am Friday and Saturday 549-1774

Learn to bartend with University bartending. 1/3 the price of other schools. Classes in Amherst. Free info session on Wed Sept 20th @ 7:00 pm Lord Jeffrey Inn. call 1-800-9-CAN-MIX

The sisters of Sigma Delta Tau would like to welcome our newest roommate a Sherri Lynn Bocese Dawn Shannon, Rebecca Lisa Christina and Aimee!

To the sisters of Sigma Delta Tau Congratulations on a terrific rush! We're looking forward to a great semester!! Keep up the good work! Love Exec

U Mass bike sale Tue & Wed on the library lawn. Deals on new & used bikes!!

Zeta Psi We must learn to we together as brothers or pin-pl as Ness' Zeta Psi is having open rush for all university men it interested call Mike at 549-1615

AUTO FOR SALE

1983 Chevy 80,000 original mileage very good condition. $700 or bo. 253-9077

86 Subaru GL Hatchback 5 speed Runs well 1 owner $1700 253-9795

1988 VW Fox GL Needs some repairs $990. Please call 549-3828

'82 Red Jeep Wrangler 5 speed soft top 27,000. CD player. Asking $17,000 or bo 413-256-6311

1992 Toyota Celica GT, 5 speed, loaded Red, 1 owner, mint condition. 53k miles $9000 or best offer 665-7219 (Jim)

Blue '86 Subaru Wagon 4wd power windows, brand new brakes, muffler, water pump $1450 or bo Call 582-9105

Car for sale Hyundai Excel SE 41,500 mileage, air conditioning, radio cassette, automatic $3500 call Kim 256-1785

For Sale 1986 Hyundai Excel some work needed $500 253-0676 Please call in evenings ask for Rachael

Ford Taurus Wagon LX 88 Power Everything mint seat exc condition $4200 756-4208

Mercury Marquis 1984 70K miles Runs excellent Power windows & doors $500 or B.O. Call JJ 549-8881

EMPLOYMENT

Bert & Homeade Now hiring for part time hours weekends a must Apply at Amherst store 253-9371

BUILD YOUR RESUME

Come to the UMass Credit Union September 18th or 19th at 6:30 pm to build your resume! Looking for new tellers for fall 1995! Stop by call Christine at 545-1800

Campus representatives needed for internship program. Work 10 to 20 hours per week, on campus, doing marketing for student internship program. Starts at $8 an hour plus incentives. Call Dan Weiman at 1-800-Internship (1-800-829-4777

Cruise Ships Hiring Earn up to $2000+/month World Travel Seasonal & full time positions. No exp necessary. For info call 1-206-634-0468 Ext C500

Drivers, waitresses and kitchen help wanted. APPLY IN RESTAURANT 586-8250

Drivers wanted Carriere's pizza co part time & full time call 256-8100

Earn big $$$ leading college marketing firm is currently seeking part-time help. Multiple positions available throughout the fall semester. Flexible hours & great pay $8.$10/hr. Will train, no experience necessary. Great resume builder. For more info call Mark Egan @ (617) 266-8881 Ext 10

Make money - sell hottest posters on campus. Gorgeous body, painted models. Great for fund raiser. Call Body 12 800 439 4446

Mole Torah reader needed. Housing and salary. Congregation Rodphey Sholom Holyoke 534-5767

National Parks Hiring Seasonal & Full time employment available at national Parks Forests & Wildlife Preserves Benefits and Bonuses! Call (206) 545-4804 Ext. N 10011

Students wanted to work evenings and or weekends with adult M R population Have your time really count! We will train Car a must Call 549-7911 AA/EOE/ADA

Want a real challenge? Live in positive, room and board provided. In return you share responsibilities of care for elderly man. Experience with M R / M H population helpful. Extra pay hours available. Call 549-7911 AA/EOE/ADA

$331.00 Sell 72 funny college t-shirts Profit $331.00 Risk free. Choose from 27 designs or design own. Free catalog 1 800 700-4877

$40,000 income potential Home typists/pc users. Toll free 1 800 898 9778 Ext T 1732 for listings

$35,000 income potential Reading books. Toll free 1 800 898 9778 Ext R 1732 for details

ENTERTAINMENT

Having Halloween bash on 10/27 or 10/28? Get a huge house! Want a spooky band? You need yeP! and yeP! needs you! call back at 367-9636.

FOR RENT

Fridge Rentals Free delivery 253-9742 and Usurper Food Co-Op and Recipe

FOR SALE

COMPUTERS

Mac computers powerbook 170 8/180 hrs carry case $1139 Quadra 700 8/540 16" color monitor awesome graphics software $1995 Call 256-0080

DJ EQUIPMENT

Soundcraftsmen power amplifier 1000 watts $250 or bo EV speakers 300 watts $250 or bo 3 piece system $700 or bo 548-3498 Beeper 257-8010 Must sell

Hockey skates CCM pumps brand new can 549-1746

IBM pc notebook comp world excel Need $ for school bo 549-6057

Panasonic printer Great condition still on original ribbon $150.00 253-1726

PJ Harvey in Oct 10 Mass 585-9186

Rollerblades New Caprix Mens 8 Womens 9 and knee wrist pads $175/bo Sheila 584-2575

Tandy Computer & color monitor w/ software $175/or bo Carl 6-0540

Toshiba 20" Stereo w/ remote 3yr old asking $180 can 549-8963

Used Professional Disk Jockey Equipment cost new over $13,000 asking $3500 Demo available 413-527-3512 Evening only

12 string ecoustic guitar w/ case Practically brand new! Can Mike 256-8150

18" Univega/Alpina sport mountain bike Good condition $135 Robert 256-6779

1985 Fender Fretless Jazz Bass good as new asking $400 or bo Call Aaron 549-408

FOUND

Found Volkswagon key near LGRT on Sept 26 Pick up at Collegian 545-3500

Silver ring at the Collegian Please call 545-3500

HAPPY BIRTHDAY

Happy Birthday Stacy Love Jen, Maura, Christine, Lauren, Tracy, Shawn & Brian

Happy Birthday Lori All our love MK Tom Amy Beth

Happy twenty-something birthday Kim!! Don't think of it as getting older think of it as getting better! Party it up! We love you! From your housemates

Happy 21st Barbara! We saved the best for last! You can run, but you can't hide! We'll born uptown upside down! Love, your housemates & Zach the UPD's

Happy 21st birthday! We love you! FDTF Dub

INSTRUCTION

Guitar Lessons and classes by Kevin Collins. Beginning folk classical free intro session. North Grad 256-1720

GUITAR LESSONS

Have fun this semester and earn 1/2 credits with a patient and supportive teacher Spaces still available. Call Peter 253-5763

Jazz piano teacher offering fall lessons, beginner or advanced. Call Stephen Page 253-3204

LOST

Key lost with picture of baby and change purse on key chain. Reward call 546-1799

MISCELLANEOUS

MODEM USERS

Call the Playground BBS! 256-6085 Over 4000 files online! Twenty online games including registered L.O.R.D. B.R.E. and Usurper. Food Co-op and recipe bases, lots more! Stuff for everyone!

WEIGHT LOSS

Earned Willpower! Lose up to 30 lbs 30 day money back guarantee. Natural, doctor recommended 323-4984

MOTORCYCLES

MOTORCYCLES

82 Honda Magna V 45 750 cc V 4 Very fast and reliable - No reasonable offer refused $1,600 bo Page anytime 797-0065

MUSICIANS

GREEN

22 beers. 42 donkeys. 1000 acres Totally legal Outdoor mainstage Two big pop tents Skyward lasers Massive lighting displays Concessions Smart Bars Clothing and record store bazaars Life size Stone Henge replica Begins 4 p.m. September 23 and ends 2 p.m. September 24 A Primary/Ohm Production 18+ Call Dan @ 546-0803.

Needed: Dynamic, powerful vocalist to front a new original band Consisting of bass, drums, guitar and organ Only serious committed singers need apply Call Eve's Jo 546-4951 or Brandi 546-7387

Needed: Funk drummer, singer, keys The Colonial Mustard Trip? Call Ryan Andy 549-1018

Psychedelic garage band for hire Dead Dylan Cream Stones Perfect for parties 256-1949

PERSONALS

CASHIN STAFF: Get psyched for a great year only the best is yet to come

Dave Hey Baby, wanna cuddle? Love the girlies

Cyndi Once again we're somewhere down the crazy river Let a nice girl Your reckless roomie

ENLIGHTENMENT #2

I need ratrogen like a fish needs a bicycle What I want is to know other people who want to grow and will accept me as I am Alliance Christian Fellowship committed to people friendship, learning and spirit filled fellowship Info Mark or Elizabeth 253-7098

FRAT BOY

Carla: Ya know you're a cute kid! Thanks for making me smile Love Jen 8/27/95

To the cute guy in the Whitmore seachber: I was surprised to find you working there, but it was a pleasant surprise :) have dreams of you and me and lunch sandwiches Respond here if you feel the same

Your secret admirer

To the new staff in the whole world welcome to Collegian Graphics!

To the sisters of DZ Get psked for an incredible semester Congrats to the new members and good luck Love in DZ

MEREDITH

Would you like to go out again? I promise I'll stay awake this time!

ROOM FOR RENT

Room for rent in 3 bedroom house in shutesbury 259-1036

SERVICES

Are you a foreign student? Need help with your english? I am professionally certified to teach ESL and can tutor you! Evenings and weekends $10 an hour Call Scott 665-7448

Exotic nail airbrushing 546-7194

Experienced babysitter available with references Please call Alyssa 549-8885 for info

Grants and scholarships available Billions of $$$ in grants Quickly immediately 1-800-243-0435 1-800-440-2 HELP!

International Student Visitors OV 1 greencard program, by U.S. Immigration Legal Services Tel 818 772 7168 20231 St. Canoga Park, CA 91306

Legal questions? The student legal services offers free legal assistance to fee paying students Contact us at 922 Campus Center 545-1995

Pregnant? Need help? Call birthright of Amherst area for free testing and carrying assistance 549-1906

Questions about your lease / security deposit deductions? Questions about subletting/assigning leases? Questions about the condition of your new house or apartment? Contact the Student Legal Services Office, 922 Campus Center 545-1995.

TRAVEL

FREE TRIPS AND CASH!**

Find out how hundreds of students are already earning FREE TRIPS and LOTS OF CASH with America's #1 spring break company! Sell only 15 trips and travel free! Choose Cancun, Bahamas, Mazatlan, or Florida! Call now! TAKE A BREAK STUDENT TRAVEL (800) 95-Break

Spring Break Travel free with Sun Splash Tours Highest commissions, lowest prices Campus reps needed! Sell Jamaica, Bahamas, Florida 1-800 426-7710

Quebec weekend Dec 8-10 Ski & party only $170 if paid by 10/21! 545-3437

WANTED

WITNESSES

Trying to locate 4 students who helped an elderly woman who fell at Smith College College Hall on January 30, 1995 Please call Attorney Susan Sachs 584-8134

50,000 eyes will look at your ad if you placed it in the Collegian Classifieds

For your convenience, look for our table on the Campus Center Concourse today!

COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIEDS THEY WORK FOR YOU

YOUR DAILY HOROSCOPE
by T.J. White & Co.

ARIES (March 21 – April 19): You win some you lose some. Don't leave your bed today if your legs don't allow it. Hug all your friends this week. Mama said knock you out. Ladies, find a man named Sam. (-14)

TAURUS (April 20 – May 20): Don't shimmer all over it. Avoid the O.J. Simpson trial. Find a hobby, smile big. Teenage suicide – don't do it. Go to town on yourself. It's imperative to wear purple today and always wear your seatbelt!

GEMINI (May 21 – June 20): To avoid financial risk don't buy expensive things. Someone special will be calling you soon, but don't watch phone companies. Call your mom, she loves you.

CANCER (June 21 – July 22): Your a reflective person so don't get pushed around, unless you start a bar fight. Avoid hysterical laughter in class. If you like it, start tennis. Listening to Elvis will enlighten.

LEO (July 23 – Aug. 22): Climb a tree, feed a dog, teach a seminar, grow red hair, kiss a funny person, run a marathon. Love hockey, dance outside, put on a sweater. Be all that you can be – with Sam.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 – Sept. 22): Feel a sudden motivation to do something motivational... unless you're tired. A funny package will arrive in the mail, don't open it, bad things dwell.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 – Oct. 22): Stay in bed, order out. Sam the man in your destiny. Special hint: never get a burning dog, under the bed is the best place to hide in a fire and the dolphins are in the lacuzzi.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 – Nov. 21): Eat mandarin cuisine. Just because you're not paranoid doesn't mean they're not after you. Dress appropriately for the weather.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 – Dec. 21): Listen (read), very carefully, the Capri-Sam in your life is a god. Give yourself over. The man in the pleated pants comes at dawn. Pace thick and chunky will fill your spirits after a long day.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 – Jan. 19): If you are a man with pleated pants or have a jar of thick and junky, take your yellow sweat suit and make your move. Shine like the high star that you are — do body shots. Happy Harry lives!

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 – Feb. 18): Rock the free world. Count back nine months from your birthday and find the answer. Be very weary of men in fluorecent yellow jogging suits.

PISCES (Feb. 19 – March 20): Eat fish. Avoid long conversations with farm animals, but use a condom. Ask out that person you've been looking at in class. Study, mid- terms will be here soon.

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING INSERTION ORDER

Client: Date: Taken By:

Date(s) to run: Headline:

Total Days: X Words: = X rate = Payment

Special heading ($2.50 extra): Authorized signature:

ADVERTISING COPY

1		1
2		2
3		3
4		4
5		5
6		6
7		7
8		8
9		9
10		10

Insert one character , space, or punctuation mark per box - use capital letters where they apply - Cost figured on each line of form used - see rate card

Collegian Classifieds

Believe It Or Not, They Work!

Calvin & Hobbes By Bill Watterson

Dilbert By Scott Adams

MY NEW GOAL, BOB, IS TO BE THE NEXT HEAVY-WEIGHT BOXING CHAMPION OF THE WORLD!!
DON'T LET ANYBODY EVER TELL YOU THAT YOU'RE TOO SMALL OR TOO SLOW OR TOO UNCOORDINATED
OR TOO CLUELESS
EXACTLY! NOW YOU'RE CATCHING ON

Bruno By C. Baldwin

WELL BRUNO, I DON'T KNOW YOU VERY WELL, BUT IT SEEMS THAT YOU'RE IN SOME-WHAT OF A SLUMP.
WELL...I MEAN I'VE BEEN FINE MENTALLY. I'VE BEEN IN COMPLETE CONTROL OF MY EMOTIONS SO THAT ALL DECISIONS IN MY LIFE HAVE BEEN OF COMPLETE LOGIC.
OH YEAH, THAT SOUNDS REAL HEALTHY. SO DOES MR. SPOCK EVER THINK SHE'LL FEEL CLOSE TO ANYONE EVER AGAIN?
LISTEN, SAM. WHEN YOU'RE OLDER AND A LITTLE WISER MAYBE YOU'LL FIND YOU FEEL SIMILARLY.
NO WAY, VADER, I'LL NEVER COME OVER TO THE DARK SIDE. YOU'RE NOT MY FATHER.

Leold By Roger & Salem Salloom

I wish I had been born into a rock and roll band. Instead of putting me in my mother's arms in the delivery room, they'd hold my head in the kick drum and play three hours of very slow reggae.

That'll help me in subtle ways later on in life.

I don't need high school. I need the Grateful Dead.

Tonight after dinner I'll sit mom down and have a heart to heart talk. I'm sure she'll let me go on tour. The Dead need me.

A few days later.....

Once again she suggested therapy. This is starting to get me down.

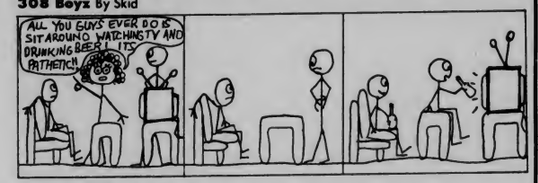
Close to Home By John McPherson

On days when the weather was really lousy, Dorothy relied on her radio-controlled dog walker.

Lost Horizons By Douglas Cellirini

I CAN'T GO TO A DANCE CLUB EVERYBODY'S SO PLASTIC THERE
I NEED ORGANIC PEOPLE CULTURE, COFFEE, STIMULATING THOUGHT!
FINE! MAYBE YOU'LL MEET A STALK OF CELERY WHO'S INTO MARXISM NOW, GET READY!
YOU MEAN TROTSKYISM. MARX GIVES ME ALLERGIC TO CELERY.
GET READY!

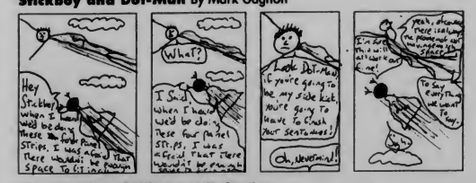
308 Boyz By Skid



Loser Crew Comics By Mike Krozy

"Hey Bob, what does the word 'cull' mean?"
"Well, Steve, in animal production, it is the process of eliminating the less productive animals from the herd."
"So, how is your GPA?"

Stickboy and Dot-Man By Mark Gagnon



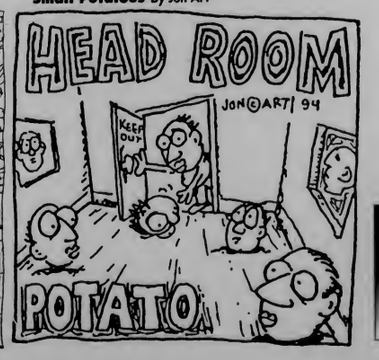
Hey Stickboy! Whatcha doin'?
I said when I had we'd be doing these four panel strips. I was afraid that there wouldn't be enough space to fit in a whole page!
What?
I said when I had we'd be doing these four panel strips. I was afraid that there wouldn't be enough space to fit in a whole page!
Look Dot-Man, if you're going to be my side kick you're going to have to crash our scenes also!
Oh, nevermind!
Man, dealing with these readers is a real art form!
To say anything we want to!
Yay!

The Amazing Spiderman By Stan Lee

OKAY, GENTLEMEN, IT'S MOMENT-OF-TRUTH TIME! WHO'S FIRST?
IT SEEMS YOUR ERSTWHILE MUGGERS HAVE A SHORT INTEREST SPAN!
OH, SPIDER-MAN, HOW CAN I EVER THANK YOU?
YOU'RE DOING FINE RIGHT NOW!
TIM LASKY LUDLOW 9-20

Buttah By Darling

Small Potatoes By Jon Art



Collegian Classifieds
113 Campus Center
545-3500

Today's Staff

Night Editor.....T. J. White
Copy Editor.....Tara MK Connelly & Andrew Bryce
Photo Technician.....Ryan Tiezzi
Production Supervisor.....Marni E. Helfner
Production.....M. Michael Audette, Kathryn "Here again" Gracia, Jimi Hendrix

Dining Commons Menu

SORRY - NO MENU
CALL 5-2626

Quote of the Day

"Want to meet a man? Learn how to play pool."

–Abigail Van Buren

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY COLLEGIAN Top 10 By Brian Marchionni

Top 10 Reasons Why Star Wars Is Cooler Than Star Trek

10. Leia's just way foxier than Troi.
9. Imperial soldiers don't have gross bumpy foreheads.
8. Star Trek universe still hasn't discovered the force.
7. The Emperor makes the Klingons look like a bunch of florists.
6. Star Wars cast never complains of drained Dilythium crystals.
5. R2–D2 is a really neat Swiss Army Knife, Data is an annoying geek with a bad tan.
4. Chewbacca? Plenty 'o hair. Kirk? Wears a rug.
3. Ewoks are way cuter than that stupid talking dolphin (oops, that's "Sea Quest").
2. C–3PO... okay, you trekkies win that one.
1. Less talk, more rock.

Collegian Graphics

We're up all night putting together New England's largest college daily newspaper.

When our job is done – your day is just beginning.

Women's Soccer America Poll

1 No Carolina	6 SMU	11 UMass	16 Villanova
2 Notre Dame	7 Duke	12 Maryland	17 Minnesota
3 Portland	8 Santa Clara	13 Clemson	18 Oregon St
4 Hartford	9 Stanford	14 William & Mary	19 UCLA
5 UConn	10 Virginia	15 Vanderbilt	20 Texas A&M

Sports

Field hockey suffers 6th loss to Northeastern Univ.

By Matt Vautour
Collegian Staff

The Massachusetts field hockey team found out why the Northeastern Huskies are ranked No. 7, as the home team dumped the Minutewomen 3-1 at Parsons Field in Boston yesterday afternoon.

The Minutewomen fall to 3-6 after the loss while Northeastern improves to 6-2 on the season.

Massachusetts	1
Northeastern	3

The Minutewomen led 1-0 at halftime but collapsed in the second half.

Freshman Kate Putnam was one of few bright spots for the Minutewomen, as she continues to emerge as an offensive force. Putnam was named the Atlantic 10 Rookie of the Week last week after she scored the only goal in UMass' 1- 0 win over Temple last Saturday.

At 8:19 into the first half, in the midst of chaos in front of the NU net, Putnam drilled a shot by Husky goaltender Jen Ruggerio to give the visitors a 1-0 lead.

The Minutewomen held on to that lead on the strength of some solid goaltending by junior keeper Stacy Walker. Walker registered 15 saves on the day for the Minutewomen.

The Huskies got to Walker in the second half as the home team scored three unanswered goals after intermission to cruise to victory.

Less than five minutes into the second half, sophomore Jen White scored her third goal of the season to knot the game at 1-1.

Midway through the half, Andrea Devoe netted her first collegiate goal to put the Huskies ahead 2-1. Freshman forward Karrie Danilecki followed suit shortly after, netting her first collegiate goal less just 1:47 later to close out the scoring.

This was the first time all season that Keri Bettenhauser hasn't scored for the Huskies.

Northeastern held a 23-5 penalty corner advantage in the game and also had more than three times as many shots (27- 8) as Massachusetts.

Ruggerio was strong in goal, picking up five saves in the victory.

Ruggerio has been a key player in Northeastern's success during the past two years. After transferring to NU from James Madison, the senior from Kennett Square, Penn. has helped backbone the Husky defense, and led the team to the NCAA tournament last year.

The Minutewomen will return to action on Sunday afternoon, when they take on No. 3 Old Dominion in a neutral site game at Storrs, Conn. The Lady Monarchs beat Massachusetts 2-0 (Sept. 15) at another neutral site game at North Carolina at Chapel Hill. This is the first time the two squads have ever met twice in the regular season. UMass hasn't beaten ODU since 1993.

Northeastern will next take on the Drexel Dragons Friday afternoon at home.

JAMES STANLEY/COLLEGIAN

Kate Putnam (with the ball) scored the Minutewomen's only goal of the game against the Huskies. Erica Johnston (7) is at right.

Men's water polo to host BC Eagles at Amherst College

By Fred Hurlbrink, Jr.
Collegian Correspondent

Massachusetts water polo coach Russ Yarworth looks to teach former pupil G.T. Ladd a lesson tonight as Boston College comes to town to challenge the 9-1 Minutemen at Amherst College at 6:30 p.m.

Tonight's match-up presents some interesting twists as all three Eagles coaches graduated from Massachusetts and the varsity water polo program.

BC's head coach, Ladd, was a career record holder in ejections drawn here at UMass until this season when senior co-captain Luis Limardo passed him. Ladd is in the Top 10 in three other career categories.

Dan McOscer and Matt Buckley are Ladd's two assistants. McOscer may be back to assist Yarworth next year as he comes to UMass for graduate school.

Although Massachusetts is 17-1 lifetime against BC, and won all four meetings last season, this is not a team that Yarworth is taking lightly.

"They hustle. They fight. They play good defense. So they'll be a good challenge for us," Yarworth said.

Along with the 9-1 record this year, their almost perfect record against Boston College, and being the No. 13 water polo club in the country, the Minutemen were undefeated at home last season.

"I can't remember the last time we lost a game there, so I guess there is a home pool advantage," Yarworth said. "The players are psyched to play here. It's always rewarding for them to show off what they do — they work hard."

The only foreseen negative in this match for Massachusetts is the injury to the team's leading scorer, freshman Brian Stahl. As of Wednesday morning he was questionable for the BC match. With a big Eastern Water Polo Association (EWPA) tournament coming up on Saturday, Stahl won't want to risk further injury.

There are still some "bumps and bruises" being felt, but the rest of the team is expected to be ready to play.

Senior goalie Alex Mujica, as evidenced by his great showing in Providence, R.I., has fully recovered from his groin pull injury and is set to lead the Minutemen through a tough stretch of their schedule.

Despite the setback, Mujica has posted a career best goals-against average (5.26) and save percentage (.561) in 19 quarters of play this season. Mujica, a native of Rio Piedras, Puerto Rico, has extended his all-time career saves school record to 563.

Junior utility man Greg Menton, a native of Dundee, Ore., has been a staple of this team so far in their 1995 campaign. One of the team leaders in shooting percentage, he ranks third on the team in goals (17), fourth in assists (13), and is tied for third in total points (30). He has excellent speed and has won 22 swim-offs already this season.

Along with Menton, watch for sophomore J.C. Limardo (11 goals), and freshmen Gabriel Marrero and Carlos Mendez (14 goals apiece) to pick up the slack if Stahl is unable to play against Boston College.

In UMass' four wins against the Eagles last season, the Minutemen outscored BC by a total of 75-26.

This Saturday, the Minutemen go to the Bronx for an EWPA North Division Tournament. They will face St. Francis, Harvard and Fordham.

Thompson steps up under pressure

By Candice Flemming
Collegian Staff

Coming to a nationally ranked program as a highly-regarded freshman is one thing. Coming to a nationally ranked program to replace an All-American is another.

Amanda Thompson faced this pressure entering Massachusetts as a freshman defender for the No. 11 women's soccer team, but she has handled it impressively, making an immediate impact.

With the graduation of All-American defender Heidi Kocher, there was a huge hole to fill in the Minutewomen defense. Enter Thompson.

Naturally, she wasn't expected to take Kocher's place, as the two are different players. Kocher was a defender who played an attacking style, while Thompson plays a more stay-at-home style of defense, but the pressure was there.

"I didn't really follow [Kocher] much, but I heard rumors about how she played and that they were going to miss her," Thompson said. "By the attitude of the team and talking to them, they really respected her."

The Houston native hasn't scored a goal or notched an assist for the 5-1 Minutewomen, but she has made a contribution playing out of the back at sweeper.

"She's a very experienced, composed, reliable player who fit in very quickly," Massachusetts coach Jim Rudy said.

Her defensive backfield mates agreed.

"She hasn't played like a freshman at all," said senior defender Nikki Ahrenholz. "She's stepped right in and done a great job for us. As a freshman, that's an amazing accomplishment."

Amanda Thompson

"I think she's outstanding for a freshman," junior defender Erin Lynch said. "She plays with a lot of confidence. I have a lot of confidence in her. She's very mature for a freshman."

While the typical freshman usually has a tough time adjusting to the college level, judging by her confident and steady play, Thompson hasn't had to make much of a transition. This can be attributed to playing for the prestigious Klein Challenge Soccer Club, instead of high school soccer.

"The better training was in club for me, so I just decided not to play high school," Thompson said. "It was good to stay in club because I trained with older teams and I got to travel with them to tournaments. In my junior and senior years, we played collegiate-level teams. We played North Carolina at Chapel Hill, Duke and several other top-level universities. That gave me experience on the collegiate level."

"Klein Challenge Club is an excellent club for preparation," Rudy said. "They have a full-time staff with dynamic coaches. They do a very nice job. It's an impressive organization. [In Texas] a lot of kids feel high school is not worth it, not competitive. [In that case] the high school loses out and loses a quality player."

Turn to THOMPSON, page 13

Frustrating senior year for Andrew McNeilly

By Andrew Bryce
Collegian staff

Andrew McNeilly walks into the front hallway of the lockeroom. He gives this writer a wave as he enters the lockeroom. He keeps walking, not expecting to be the desired person for an interview.

That's how it's been for Andrew McNeilly this season.

The fourth game of the 1995 season is approaching, as the Minutemen head to Kingston, R.I., to take on the Rhode Island Rams on Saturday afternoon. It is the last time the seniors will face Rhody. And in the last three years, it has been McNeilly who has been behind the center against the Rams.

Now, that has all changed. After being starting quarterback for his first three years, the incumbent McNeilly was relegated to backup duty before the first game, and Vito Campanile was named as the first-stringer.

McNeilly has yet to play a down since.

"It's been... fairly difficult," McNeilly said when asked how it's been accepting the backup role, "but one thing I said when they told me, I said, as long as we win, I'll be happy. And that's true. Football's not like baseball — you go 5-6, it makes for a miserable year.

"The season goes slow, it's so long. If you lose it on Saturday, you get five days of practice, and people are in bad moods during the week... it's miserable when you lose."

Rough 1994 season

Miserable — that's how McNeilly and the Minutemen felt last season. The disappointing 5-6 season was uncharacteristic of UMass football, and the passing game, or lack thereof, was considered by many as the primary reason.

Everybody critiqued the offense, from media to fans alike. The running gets the offense up the field on many occasions, the air game is needed if you couldn't get it past the 50 on the ground. What about third down and long? Rene Ingoglia can only carry an offense so much on his broad All-America shoulders, but you can't expect even him to get 20 yards each handoff.

Things were said.

Get McNeilly out of there. He's the reason UMass is in this mess. Can't he throw the ball? Why is McNeilly in the game? The Minutemen have no passing game...

McNeilly knows it was being said.

He also knows they were being said a whole lot more when UMass was losing games.

"No matter what, there's one thing I learned here," McNeilly cuts off a reply from another question. "You can play terrible, but if you win, everything is fine. And you can play fairly well, but if you make a couple of mistakes, and you lose, they're magnified.

"I mean, my freshman year, I didn't play all that well. I did a few things well, but I made tons of mistakes. They were just completely overlooked — by the media, by the coaches, by everyone — because we were winning.

"Last year, I made mistakes, and when we lost, they got magnified."

McNeilly was 86-186 (.462), and threw 10 interceptions and two touchdowns last season. In fact, last year's results really weren't much different than his career statistics. He's

Turn to MCNEILLY, page 13

COLLEGIAN FILE PHOTO

Andrew McNeilly is not running the Minuteman offense this season, having been regulated to back-up QB behind sophomore Vito Campanile, in his final year.

An evening filled with memories

Matt Vautour

The posters around the old building bore a slogan that captured the feeling of the night.

"You can tear down the building, but not the memories."

Tuesday night was a special one in the Boston Garden, as the old building played host to its final NHL game.

The Bruins hosted the Montreal Canadiens, giving the Causeway Street address a send off rich in rivalry.

The Bruins won the game 3-0, but in truth, nobody cared. The focus Tuesday night was on the memories.

The event emanated class from the start. Each of the Bruin greats that were honored served as greeters as the fans entered the arena. Following the game, the fans watched as heroes from many eras returned to the ice surface with the quirky dimensions for the final time.

Many of those former stars brought emotion from the crowd.

The flamboyant Don Cherry looked more like Don King, when he was announced. The always brash coach raised his arms to the crowd, blowing kisses and waving, as he strutted across the ice in his red plaid suit.

Phil Esposito was reminded that he has always said the best years of his career were in Boston. Espo corrected the interviewer.

"The best years of my life were here in Boston and the greatest thrill of my life was when Mr. Bourque gave me my sweater."

Two former Bruin enforcers, Terry O'Reilly and Stan Jonathan returned to the place of their former glory. The two sat in the penalty box with foolish grins on their faces recalling the old days. O'Reilly had been in there so many times that the franchise is giving him the box.

Perhaps the most uplifting moment of the night, was the return to the Garden ice of Norman Leveille. In the early 1980s, Leveille was a promising young forward that looked to bring excitement to Boston, but his career was cut short by an aneurism that left him disabled.

As Leveille wobbled to the ice, the Garden crowd gave him a standing ovation as Ray Bourque helped him take his place among the other Bruin greats.

Leveille is not a Hall of Famer or even a former star, but last night the Bruins family did not forget him and that spoke volumes about the franchise.

The loudest ovation of the night, was appropriately reserved for the man Fred Cusick introduced as the

Turn to GARDEN, page 13

Hurricanes facing dark future

GREG COREY on College Football

Collegiate football has seen its ups and downs since 1985, but one thing that could always be counted on was the success and consistency of the Miami Hurricanes. The team of the 1980s finds itself unranked in both the AP Poll and the USA Today/CNN Poll for the first time in a decade.

Last week's 13-7 loss to Virginia Tech is only the tip of the iceberg for a program that could be facing a dark future, both on and off the field. First of the potential troubles is the looming possibility of NCAA probation. Scandal has long been attached to the Miami name. Whether it be loan scams, illegal pay-offs, or questionable conduct; controversy has followed this program since the days of Jimmy Johnson.

In the past, the 'Canes off the field troubles had always been silenced by their success on the field. Even that is not a given these days.

Miami simply does not have as talented a team as they have had in past years. The injured Ryan Collins and back- up QB Ryan Clement, are not cut out of the same mold as past Hurricane QB's. The loss of James Stewart to the draft and a rebuilt offensive line make for a less than formidable running game. Perhaps the last link to the teams of old is the Hurricane defense that boasts All-American candidate Ray Lewis.

The 'Canes are 1-2 as they head into a bye week to prepare for Florida State. A loss against the 'Noles next week would drop Miami to 1-3, and put them in serious jeopardy of making a bowl game.

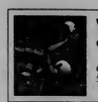
• When Maryland QB Scott Milanovich was suspended for gambling this past summer, the Terps were basically writing off the season. Well, times have changed at College Park. First Milanovich's suspension was lessened to four games, then, the team went on to win its first four contests without the star QB. Milanovich returns for the Terps tonight and his team is 4-0. While there are some tough dates left on the schedule, Maryland does not have to face Virginia or Florida State until the final two games of the season. By that point, Milanovich and the Terps could make a lot of noise in the ACC.

• This week's AP Top 25 Poll welcomes one new member into the Top 5, that being Colorado, which checks in at No. 4 after defeating Texas A&M last week. Florida State comes in at No. 1, followed by Nebraska, Florida, Colorado and Southern Cal.

The biggest loser last week definitely had to be Texas A&M. Had the Aggies been able to beat Colorado last Saturday, they would have been in great position for the National Championship. The SWC schedule offered only

Turn to FOOTBALL, page 12

The Massachusetts
DAILY COLLEGIAN
Volume CV Issue 18 New England's Largest College Daily • Founded in 1890 • Daily Since 1967 Friday, September 29, 1995



Water polo drowns Eagles
UMass water polo left Boston College in its wake last night, 21-5(See Sports page 10).

Harvest and crafts bring in new funds
The Amherst Family Center is holding its annual fair fundraiser downtown this Saturday, giving locals a chance to buy exciting crafts (See story, page 3).

Ska rockers hit Pearl Street
Bim Skala Bim will rock the stage and heat up the dance scene with their ska sounds tonight at Pearl St. in NoHo (see Arts & Living page 5).

Weekend Forecast
Friday will be sunny with a high in the upper 60s. It will get cool in the evening, with a possible chance of frost overnight. The weekend will be mostly sunny with highs in the 60s.

Today	Saturday	Sunday
HIGH: 67 LOW: 40	HIGH: 65 LOW: 45	HIGH: 65 LOW: 45

JEFFREY DIGIOVANNI/COLLEGIAN

My new goatee trimmer!
Senior Tom Harmon "cuddles" a baby spectalled caiman at a wildlife society sponsored meeting on alligator farming.

Presidential advisor spoke of education and nation's budget

By Matthew Wurtzel
Collegian Staff

Higher education as a vital key for the success of individuals, and the Republican approach to deficit reduction were the basic themes of yesterday's lecture by Professor Joseph E. Stiglitz, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers.

"It is no longer a question of whether the deficit should be eliminated, but how," Stiglitz said.

A deficit can stunt the long term growth of an economy, he said.

Stiglitz said that the Clinton administration has succeeded in continuing to reduce the deficit for three straight years, something which has not been accomplished by any other administration since the Truman years.

See related story pg. 3.

He emphasized the importance of cutting the budget but warned against overzealous slashing of programs.

"There is a right way and wrong way to reduce the deficit," Stiglitz said. "Short sighted policies which cut and slash programs indiscriminately may be politically popular, but have high prices."

Importance of education

According to Stiglitz, cuts in education can lead to further declines in the economy.

"Lack of education has high costs," Stiglitz said.

He stressed the importance education can play in the prevention of growing income inequality.

He compared a study of income inequality before the 1980s to watching the grass grow. In 1982, "someone started to mow the lawn unevenly," said Stiglitz.

As wages remained unchanged or declined, productivity was hurt, according to Stiglitz.

He cited data which shows that a college graduate earns 65 percent more then a high school graduate, and that even one year of college can increase a person's income by 5-13 percent.

An individual who has not graduated from high school is more likely to commit a crime or what Stiglitz refers to as "forced redistribution of income."

He said that it is a tragedy that the State of California spends more on the criminal justice system then they do on the higher education system.

Support for education

The Clinton administration is trying to assist people who can not afford a college education, according to Stiglitz.

The administration has attempted to increase the availability of loans, and increase the amount of money available in grants, such as Pell Grants, he said.

While the Clinton administration attempts to increase the availability of funds, Congress has increased grant money while eliminating eligibility of students from the program, according to Stiglitz.

The Clinton administration started direct loan programs to replace existing programs where the government guarantees loans.

Stiglitz said that the new direct loan program saves tax dollars.

The investment in education would pay off in the long run, he said, because as more people become educated, there is a rise in income, which leads to increased tax revenues.

Stiglitz chastised the Republicans for proposing a bill which would tax student loans. He said that the idea "seems contradictory."

The lecture took place before an audience of over 120 people in Memorial Hall yesterday at 4 p.m.

Stiglitz' lecture inaugurated the Philip Gamble Memorial Lecture series, which was established in honor of the late chairman of the Economics Department during the 1950s and 1960s.

Jewish community gets outreach coordinator

By Jacob W. Michaels
Collegian Staff

Although she will only be here for one year, Beth Seewald is hoping to make a large impact.

The Cleveland, Ohio, native is here as the new Outreach Coordinator for Hillel. She is one of 45 recent college graduates throughout the country selected by the national Hillel organization to fill this role.

"It's a position which was established by national Hillel to try to connect unaffiliated Jewish students on campus with Jewish life, maybe through Hillel, or through events in dorms, with Greek students, with first-year students..." Seewald said.

The Outreach Coordinator position, which was begun in several other campuses last year, was started by Richard Joel, the international director of Hillel.

Yehudit Heller, the assistant director of the University of Massachusetts Hillel, said "the uniqueness of her position is in the fact that she is not operating within Hillel. She's out there on the campus, basically to be there as a Jewish contact for those that are interested in it and not always walking into Hillel, but are interested in that environment and identity."

Plans for the future

Seewald has a lot of plans to accomplish her goals in her short time here.

One of her first ideas was setting up a mentoring system between first-year and upper-class Jewish students.

"It's a pairing up between upper-class Jewish students with Jewish freshmen, and through this creating a system where Jewish students know other students," she explained, adding that the mentors would not have to be involved with Hillel.

She also is interested in getting together a "Hebrew speaking group, so students who speak Hebrew or want to practice can get together and hang out."

Another interest of hers is planning a three-week trip to Israel during the Winter intersession through a program called Volunteers for Israel.

Jewish awakening

Seewald was active in the Jewish community, first at her home in Cleveland and later when she was at college at Emory University in Georgia.

However, she said that her first meaningful expe-

Turn to SEEWALD, page 3

West Bank occupation finished

Arafat & Rabin sign milestone peace accord at White House

By Terence Hunt
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — In another milestone toward peace, Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin and PLO chief Yasser Arafat signed a historic agreement yesterday ending Israel's military occupation of West Bank cities and laying the foundation for a Palestinian state.

"We want you as good neighbors," the gravelly voiced Rabin told Arafat, his onetime blood enemy.

"Enough killing and enough killing of innocent people," Arafat declared to loud applause.

Under the glittering chandeliers of the East Room, President Clinton presided over two hours of speeches and pageantry before an audience of 200 diplomats, foreign ministers, Cabinet secretaries and members of Congress. Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak and Jordan's King Hussein joined Clinton as witnesses to the accord. Outside, Pennsylvania Avenue was turned into a parking lot for nearly two dozen VIP limousines.

"Chapter by chapter, Jews and Arabs are writing a new chapter for their ancient lands," Clinton said. Arafat and Rabin both called on Syria and Lebanon to drop their reluctance to join the peace process.

To worldwide acclaim, Arafat and Rabin signed a tortuously negotiated agreement for Israel to relinquish control of territory it captured from Jordan in the 1967 Six-Day War.

The agreement outlines in painstaking detail the step-by-step withdrawal of Israeli forces and the transfer of governing authority for Palestinian self-rule in 30 percent of the West Bank, containing most of its Arab population. The accord also allows for Palestinian elections.

The document — signed on a polished desk that once belonged to Abraham Lincoln — was a follow-up to the 1993 White House agreement that brought Rabin and Arafat together for a historic handshake of peace.

"Please, take a good, hard look," Rabin told the hushed audience. "The sight you see before you at this moment was impossible, was unthinkable just three years ago."

But Rabin also warned that peace could crumble unless both sides unite against terrorists who are trying to prevent peace. "Don't let it happen," he implored.

JAMES STANLEY/COLLEGIAN

Just hanging around.
William Korby, a sophomore natural resources major, answers questions about the UMass Hang Gliding Club outside of the Bluewall yesterday.

3 UM departments ranked in top 100

By Jonathan Liberty
Collegian Staff

Several University of Massachusetts representatives were in attendance at the State House in Boston to receive recognition for the academic achievements of University departments.

The Washington-based National Research Council ranked nearly 300 doctoral programs within the United States in a recently released report. Ten UMass departments placed within the top third of the National Research Council's study.

The linguistics and polymer science and engineering departments ranked fourth and seventh, respectively. Other departments within the top 100 include chemical engineering, computer science, electrical and computer engineering, philosophy and psychology.

David Stemple, head of the computer science department, was one of the University representatives in attendance at the State House.

The computer science department has a high volume of high quality research, very active professors and is almost 100 percent graduate supported, Stemple feels that his department has a broad base of quality, including 40 faculty researchers and 20 professors with tenure.

"Our department has been invested in, and it is now paying off," he said. "But without continued investment we are headed down the tubes."

"It is very nice to be recognized," Stemple said. "But I would be happier if our faculty members received their raises and our department was not under heavy budgetary pressure."

The head of the psychology department, Melinda Novak, who was also at the State House, agreed with Stemple, saying that she is also very proud to receive this honor.

"The recognition by the National Research Council has lifted the spirits of the department," she said. "It is nice to actually be noticed. Hopefully some resources will find their way to our department because of this recognition."

According to the report, both the computer science and psychology departments have earned their way to this stature.

The computer science department is rated at the same level as MIT and Harvard, while the psychology department employs several famous professors, such as Susan Fisk and Keith Rainer.

Since the academic programs have been recognized at the State House, they have had more visibility.

Stemple said that many local and state persons were surprised that the University had ten departments on

Turn to UMASS, page 3

UMass Police hold bike registration

As of yesterday, 31 bikes had been stolen from campus this month. Four were stolen on Wednesday.

To help alleviate the problem, the Security Division of the Department of Public Safety will conduct bicycle registration sessions on campus from Oct. 2-6, 10 a.m.–2 p.m.

Bicycle security is a three-step process, said Officer Lawrence Holmes of the University of Massachusetts Police Department. Students are encouraged to register their bike in the national registration, engrave their bike and use a "high security" lock.

Auxiliary Services will be selling bike locks at the registration sites at a promotional price. The Ultra Bike Club will cost $27 and the Kryptonite U-lock will be $37, which is $10 less than the retail price, according to Holmes.

The UMass Police Department will assist with free bicycle engraving.

"People don't steal things they can't sell," Holmes said.

Once a bicycle is registered with the McGruff Program, a tamper resistant label is placed on the bike to indicate that it is registered.

The McGruff Program is administered on behalf of the National Crime Prevention Council by the American Center for Bicycle Registration. Once a bike is owner fills out the application, which is available at Public Safety, and pays the $5 fee, the bike is registered nationally.

"It is the hope of both agencies [the UMass Police Department and Auxiliary Services] that we'll reduce bike theft at the University of Massachusetts," said Holmes.

The registration, which starts Monday, will take place in the Student Union Circle, Oct. 2-3; Southwest Mall, Oct. 4; Worcester Dining Hall, Oct. 5, and Franklin Dining Hall, Oct. 6.

More than 15,000 bicycles are stolen every day in the U.S. While 70 percent are recovered by law enforcement agencies, only two to three percent are returned to their owners because the bikes are unregistered, according to a brochure distributed by the McGruff Licensed Bicycle Registration Program.

— Amy H. Paradysz

For Your Information

FYIs are public service announcements which are printed daily. To submit an FYI, please send a press release containing all pertinent information, including the name and phone number of the contact person to the Collegian, c/o the News Editor.

Friday, Sept. 29

Community — Models of Jewish Leadership series, dinner with Harold Grinspoon and Diane Troderman from Springfield, $4 for students, $5 with Hillel Activity Card, all others $6.50, Hillel House, 7:15 p.m.

Community — Pre–Shabbat Yoga, Hillel House, 4:30 p.m.

Community — Shabbat Services, Hillel House, 6 p.m.

Community — Join Chabad House in celebration of the Shabbos, food, prayer, songs, and stories, all welcome, Chabad House, 7 p.m.

Community — Graduate and undergraduate students with children are invited to join Family Court Action to discuss issues of student family needs at the University, bring your kids, toys, books, complaints, wishes and demands, across from the Student Union Mini Store, 10 a.m.

Film — Drugstore Cowboy, directed by Gus Van Sant, Jr., $1.75, Campus Center Theater, AC, 7:30 and 10 p.m.

Film — Queer Nations/Multi Nations presents A Litany for Survival: The Life and Works of Audre Lorde, by Ada Gay Griffin and Michelle Parkerson, free and open to the public, accessible, Bowker Auditorium, 8 p.m.

Meeting — The Juggling Club is having a meeting, to learn, practice, perform, room 168C, Campus Center, 3–5 p.m.

Meeting — Fellowship meeting, praise, exalt and rejoice with the Alliance Christian Fellowship, with guest speaker Tim Landers talking on Friendship, for more information call Mark at 253–0361, Room 904, Campus Center, 7 p.m.

Theater — Slain in the Spirit: The Promise of Jim Jones, by Susan Yankowitz, an informal open rehearsal of Yankowitz's gospel opera, there may be no music, free, Theatre 14, SC, 8 p.m.

Reading — UM Irish Studies presents Irish Poet, Paul Muldoon, free and open to the public, room 104, Thompson, 8 p.m.

Saturday, Sept. 30

Community — Shabbos morning service, with traditional meal to follow, all welcome, Chabad House, 19 a.m.

GLBT Conference — Queer Nations/Multi Nations: Workshop Series on Identity, Intersections, free and open to the public, accessible, Rooms 805–809, 803, 811–815, Campus Center, 1–6 p.m.

Film — Drugstore Cowboy, directed by Gus Van Sant, Jr., $1.75, Campus Center Theater, AC, 7:30 and 10 p.m.

Music — Faculty Recital: Suites, Fantasies and Other Delights, Nigel Cove, pianist, works by J.S. Bach, Debussy, Bartok, and Chopin, in memory of Tom Malone, Bezanson Recital Hall, 8 p.m.

Theater — Slain in the Spirit: The Promise of Jim Jones, by Susan Yankowitz, Theatre 14, SC, 8 p.m.

Theater — Strawberries and Chocolate, an English language adaption of the play "El Homre Nuevo" about the friendship between a flamboyantly gay Cuban man and a young communist revolutionary, part of Queer Nations/Multi Nations presentation series, $6 for public, $3.50 for students, accessible, Bowker Auditorium, 8 p.m.

Sunday, Oct. 1

Community — Rides to church: GRC, FAC, and Southwest bus stops at 9:45 a.m., for contemporary worship at Christ Community Chapel in Amherst

Film — Twin Bracelets, about two women from a very traditional Chinese fishing village who fall in love with each other, $1–$2 donation requested, Mahar Auditorium, 7 p.m.

Monday, Oct. 2

Blood Drive — Red Cross blood drive on campus, call (800) 462–2229 for an appointment, room to be announced, walk–ins welcome

GLB Discussion — Queer families panel discussion, with a panel of gay, lesbian, and bisexual people who are parents as well as children of GLB parents, free, accessible, Room 804–808, Campus Center, 8 p.m.

Notices

Deadline — All UMass undergraduate and graduate students interested in applying to the Secondary Teacher Education Program for spring semester — the deadline for applications is October 12. Please contact the STEP Advising Office at 545–4397 for more information or drop by 125A Furcolo Hall for an application

GLB RA Matters — Residence Life Staff who identify as gay, lesbian, bisexual, transgendered or are questioning their sexual orientation are invited to attend GLB RA Matters. Meetings are every Friday in Mary Lyon from 12:30 p.m. to 2 p.m. For more information contact Dawn M. Bond 5–1506

Volunteers Needed — WFCR needs help sorting records for its Used Record Sale, food and drink is provided and volunteers get first dibs on records and CD's in WFCR's collection, help needed Monday, Wednesday, and Thursday, call Karin Obermeier at 545–0100 if you have time

Wanted — Graphic intern for the Residential Educational Alcohol Program. Includes design and productions of health promotion materials, credit toward graduation. Excellent opportunity for someone interested in health promotion (AIDS, STD's, and Alcoholism). Contact Sandra Withcomb 545–0137

Family Planning Services — HIV testing, pregnancy testing, birth control, medical tests, assistance for struggling families, the Family Planning Council of Western Massachusetts (800) 696–7752

Community — Jumaa Service, the Muslim Students Association holds Jumaa prayer service every Friday, at 1 p.m., Campus Center, for information call Utama at 256–8482

Auditions — Student Valley Productions is holding auditions for an Orgy of Talents. If you have an act or if you are in a University group that wants to perform, call 546–5725

Campus Police Log

Suspicious person
Sept. 27
Jonathan B. Kepke, 18, of 7 Hampshire Rd., Great Neck, N.Y., was arrested for larceny over $250 and possession of a Class D substance.
Miron Yaghoubi, 18, of 188 Kings Point Rd., was arrested for larceny over $250.

Burglary/Breaking & entering
Sept. 26
There were some University keys reported stolen from a state truck by the Physical Plant.
There was a lock cut off a door to the Forestry Building at Tillson Farm. There was a circular saw stolen.
A vehicle in Parking Lot 11 was broken into, but nothing was stolen.

Larceny
Sept. 26
There was a lock stolen from a display case in the Campus Center.
There was a bicycle stolen from Field Residence Hall.
Sept. 27
There was a bicycle stolen from Boyden Gymnasium.
There was a purse stolen from Machmer Hall.
There was a jacket and a wallet stolen from Stockbridge Hall.
There was a bicycle stolen from the Campus Center.
There was a bicycle stolen from Morrill Science Center.
There was a bicycle stolen from Brown Residence Hall.

Vandalism
Sept. 26
There was a windshield smashed on a vehicle in Lot 11.
There was a lock damaged on a vehicle in Lot 42.
Sept. 27
Racial graffiti was discovered in the men's bathroom in the Campus Center.

Annoying behavior
Sept. 26
There was a report, from the Mullins Center, of a lock on the 911 line. The phones were checked.

Injured person
Sept. 26
An individual with numbness in lower extremities was taken to Cooley Dickinson Hospital.

Alarm — fire
Sept. 26
An individual who activated an alarm in Butterfield Residence Hall will be summoned to court for causing a false fire alarm.

Assist agency
Sept. 26
There was an individual stuck in an elevator in Coolidge Residence Hall.

Noise complaint
Sept. 26
There was a complaint about some yelling in the Sylvan Residence Hall courtyard.
Sept. 27
There was a complaint of loud music in the Dwight Residence Hall parking lot.

Injured
Sept. 27
An individual who was vomiting was assisted back to his Residence Hall.
A person having a seizure in McNamara Residence Hall was taken to Cooley Dickinson Hospital.

Accident
Sept. 27
There was a two vehicle accident on Infirmary Way. The owners exchanged paperwork.

Disturbance
Sept. 27
A verbal disagreement in Cashin Residence Hall was resolved.

Write for Women's Issues
Contact Laura Schmidt or Aimee Schwartz
113 Campus Center
545-3500

10% off Dinner with Student I.D. ex. 10/31/95
ICHIBAN いちばん
Japanese Restaurant
TATAMI ROOM RESERVE FOR KARAOKE
SUSHI BAR
CATERING TAKE-OUT TABLE BARBECUE
1 Round House Plaza
Northampton, MA 01060
(413) 585-1185
Behind City Hall and next to bus terminal
OPEN 7 DAYS A WEEK

Collegian Open House

When: Friday, September 29, 1995
Noon- 4:00 p.m.

Everyone and your Mother is invited!!!
This means Non-staff, Staff, Faculty,
Amherst Community and Business University workers, your dog, your brother, etc.

Come see the staff
and facilities of New England's largest College Daily

* Free Food and Beverage *

Family Center holds annual Apple Harvest

By Gayle Dougherty
Collegian Staff

The Amherst Family Center, a project of the United Way and Child Care Focus, invites all to ring in the autumn season at the 9th Annual Apple Harvest and Crafts Festival this Saturday.

The festival, sponsored by Atkins Farms and WMAS, will be held on Amherst Town Common from 10 a.m.– 4:30 p.m. Shopping, entertainment and festive activities will be available all day, in addition to the homemade baked goods, lunch foods and apple treats that will be on sale all day.

Over 100 craft booths will provide an assortment of goods including unique jewelry, clothing, specialty foods, pottery, basketry, quilts and hand–crafted wood designs. Children can join in the celebration by decorating pumpkins, making candles and spin art, and participating in face painting and a scarecrow judging contest.

"The festival is advertised throughout Connecticut, Vermont and New Hampshire," said Liz Leibowitz, who runs the Amherst Family Center. "It will be one of the best we've had."

Leibowitz said about 16,000 to 20,000 people are expected to attend. The event, which takes place with the help of over 200 volunteers, is the center's major annual fundraiser.

After a year's planning, the center expects to raise one– third of their budget from the festival, she said.

In addition to crafts and activities, local artists will perform throughout the day.

The morning will feature musical storyteller Joan Robb and steel drum player Morgan Rael, who will offer a "Caribbean for Kids" performance. At 1:30 p.m., Jerry Bryant will perform traditional folk songs.

Raffle tickets will be on sale Saturday for a drawing on Oct. 10. Tickets are $1 each or $5 for a book of seven. Prizes include a $200 shopping spree at a store of the winner's choice, a getaway weekend, a "dream date," a dining tour, a pizza party, a one–month membership to Hampshire Fitness, a two–month membership to Kidsports and gift certificates to Lord and Taylor and Atkins Farm.

The Amherst Family Center is a drop–in center for parents and children from birth to five years, Leibowitz said.

"We're a family support center providing child-care, parent education workshops, family fun support groups, and information and resources," she said.

The center is open Tuesday–Thursday, 9 a.m.–12 p.m., at the North Congregational Church in North Amherst.

Professor discusses economy's impact on education

By Matthew Wurtzel
Collegian Staff

Professor Joseph E. Stiglitz, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, spoke about education and various other economic and political issues yesterday.

He commented on hot issues such as Speaker of the House Newt Gingrich's threat to default on bond payments.

"Gingrich is blackmailing the President by attempting to attach unrelated bills to the increased debt ceiling," said Stiglitz.

The increased debt ceiling must be passed in order to operate the government. The president is opposed to the bills the Republicans are attaching to the ceiling, so by vetoing the ceiling, the government will default on the bonds.

When a country or company defaults on a bond, they neglect to pay the interest which was promised to the lender.

"The whole idea [of defaulting on bonds] would be devastating," he said. "Doing this would make the deficit worse."

Stiglitz said people would lose faith in the security of the bonds, causing a decrease in demand, which would lead to higher interest on bonds. The higher interest would make the deficit worse, Stiglitz said.

There would be chaos in the financial markets because State Pension programs — a large buyer of government bonds — would no longer be able to buy bonds because they are barred from buying risky investments, Stiglitz said.

"This has occurred in the past, and been resolved," said Stiglitz. "So the problem will probably be adverted again."

Stiglitz also commented on a recent College Board report which said costs of attending a four year college have continued to skyrocket.

"The [Clinton] administration can't directly affect prices colleges charge, but we are trying to increase Pell Grants and loan programs," Stiglitz said.

The rate of increases in wages shows how much a family can afford to spend when they consider whether they can send a child to college, he said.

"The bottom 40 percent has seen wages stagnate," said Stiglitz. "So they are caught in a bind."

He said the Republicans have not helped lower–income families.

"The irony is [that] while the Republicans propose to lower taxes for higher income people, such as the capital gains tax, they are proposing to increase taxes in various other areas," Stiglitz said, who describes the Republican plan as an attempt to reshape taxes.

"They are reshaping taxes in a way where increasing on the most vulnerable, and reducing taxes on the higher income who have had a bonanza," Stiglitz said.

■ UMass

continued from page 1

such a high level.

"You are never a prophet in your own land," he said.

Computer science department Communications Director Karen Hayes said, "Our state representatives are now able to see our value to the Commonwealth. They are exposed to the fine quality of work here at the University."

Novak hopes that this recognition and visibility will attract more resources. With more investment, both junior and senior faculty members can be satisfied, she said.

Stemple said he knows that the computer science department can not keep the faculty members without continued support, and especially junior faculty support.

Do you like to write?
Do you like to see your name in print?
Do you like to meet interesting people and talk to them?
Well, then write for the News Dept.!
Contact Chris Conner
The Massachusetts Daily Collegian
113 Campus Center • 545-3500

Expand your world: write for Multicultural Affairs
545-35[illegible] 113 Campus Center

WMUA to "Focus" on rent control act

By Amy H. Paradysz
Collegian Staff

Until Question 9 was passed last November, Amherst was one of four Massachusetts cities that had rent control.

The "Community Empowerment Act," a law which is being proposed by initiative petition to give Massachusetts towns and cities more control, will be the featured topic on Sunday's edition of "Focus" on WMUA (91.1 FM), airing at noon.

Ken Mosakowski, head of the Amherst Housing Authority, will host the live 60–minute forum. His guests will be Ken Eisenberg, Anne Macaulay and Steve Orzack, all of whom are from the Cambridge–based group Political Action for Community Empowerment (PACE). PACE is attempting to get the "Community Empowerment Act" on the ballot for November of 1996.

The proposed law would enable cities and towns to respond to one of several types of "emergencies" with a two– thirds vote, as opposed to the three–fourths vote currently required, according to Eisenberg.

"The deck is always stacked against community," he said. "They should have the option to say 'no.'"

Those "emergencies" are: the overexpansion of tax–exempt institutions; speculative development of undeveloped land; over–extensive housing development that overwhelms local resources; the displacement of renter households by evictions, rent increases, or condominium conversion; the loss of small–scale businesses in town centers; the loss of federal and state support for housing low–income households and the loss of historically valued sites."

Cambridge, for example, has been concerned for decades with the encroachment of institutions, such as Harvard, according to Eisenberg. He said residents are displaced, not only by eviction, but, in some cases, by rent increases of up to 300 percent.

"They just kept acquiring land... and eventually they started pushing people out," Eisenberg said.

The infrastructures — fire departments, sewer and water systems, and school systems — of other communities "can't keep up with the increase in growth," Eisenberg said.

"Some communities are just being overwhelmed... and don't have the mechanism to slow it down" Eisenberg said. "By setting a cap on building permits, they would be enabled to do this."

Other communities, such as Woods Hole on Cape Cod, are opposed to franchises. However, according to Eisenberg, "It is very rare, when pressure is put on a planning board [or] a zoning board... that a neighborhood or community [resolution to downsize]... will be passed by a three–fourth vote of a legislative body."

Eisenberg said incentives for big business, such as jobs, "don't usually pan out in the long run."

■ Seewald

continued from page 1

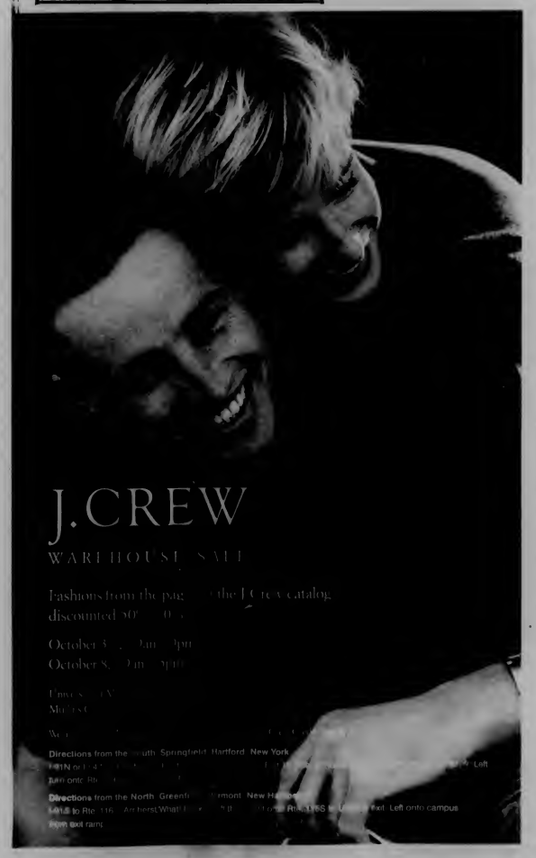
rience was a trip to Israel before her senior year of high school.

"I guess that was the first thing that really sparked my interest in doing things Jewishly," she explained. "Honestly it's really hard to put my finger on it. Being in a Jewish country with Jewish people... It was an incredible experience. I came back being really proud of being Jewish. It was an excitement that I didn't have as much before I went."

She continued to be involved at Emory, working as an intern at the Israeli consulate in Atlanta, as a student representative for Volunteers for Israel and being involved in pro–Israel activism.

After she graduated last year, Seewald went to Israel on a 10–month volunteer program called Project Otzma. From there she was hired to work as an outreach coordinator.

Seewald said she was thinking of going into Jewish communal service after her year at UMass or moving to Israel and teaching English.



"...it is about tapping an ocean of creativity, passion and energy that, as far as we can see, has no bottom and no shores."
Jack Welch, CEO

How would you describe GE's work environment? Open, inspiring, charged, fast-paced, non-bureaucratic, apolitical. We think you'll agree these are particularly appealing adjectives.

We believe in being "boundaryless." We've taken down walls that divide people, eliminated hierarchies and stripped out bureaucratic processes company-wide. And it's worked. We are a 60 billion dollar global enterprise whose extremely diverse range of businesses are number one or number two in their markets. Others look to us for management best practices and our financial results have shareholders cheering.

We want to hear from Bachelor's and Master's degree candidates. If you are bright, creative, passionate about your work and determined to make things happen, we want you to know we find these to be particularly appealing qualities.

We'll be on campus this Fall.
Please check with the Placement Office for more details.

Find out more. Contact GE University Recruiting, P.O. Box 55250, Bridgeport, CT 06610. Or visit us on the World Wide Web at: http://www.careermosaic.com/cm/ge

An Environment Without Boundaries

An equal opportunity employer

DAILY COLLEGIAN

113 Campus Center • University of Massachusetts Amherst, MA 01003 • (413) 545-3500 • Fax (413) 545-1592

Matt Vautour Editor-in-Chief Juan José Chacón Quiros de Quetzcoatl Managing Editor
Earl T. Martin Business Manager James P. Ganley Production Manager Ethan Bloomfield Advertising Manager
Natasha Kahn Advertising Production Manager Wendy Darling Senior Diversity Editor

Tara MK Connelly Arts & Living Editor Candice Flemming Sports Editor
Christopher Byrd Black Affairs Editor Ron Alpert Staff Artist
Matt Wurtzel Business Editor Laura Schmidt, Aimee Schwartz Women's Issues Editors
Syed Mohammed Ali Raza Developing Nations Editor Marni E. Helfner Editorial Production Manager
Geri Sahn Editorial/Opinion Editor Adam Chace Systems Manager
Wendy Darling Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Issues Editor A.J. Stewart Finance Manager
Jacob W. Michaels Jewish Affairs Editor Ryan Courtemanche Distribution Manager
Hernán Rozemberg Multicultural Affairs Editor Maureen Majerowski Assistant Operations Manager
Chris Taylor Conner News Editor Marty Pappas Classified Advertising
Daymion Smith Photography Editor Thomas F. Sweeney, Jr. Graphics Advisor/Instructor

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published Monday through Friday during the University of Massachusetts calendar semester. The Collegian is financially independent from the University of Massachusetts, operating solely on revenues generated by advertising sales. The paper was founded in 1890 as Aggie Life, became the College Signal in 1901, the Weekly Collegian in 1914 and then the Tri-Weekly Collegian in 1936. The Collegian has been published daily since 1967, and has been a broadsheet publication since January 1994. For advertising rates and information, call (413) 545-3500 weekdays between 8:30 a.m. and 3:30 p.m.

Opinion/Editorial

Measuring the wealth of nations

Conservation is usually identified with the preservation of natural resources. These resources can be narrowly defined as reserves of commodities that have an appreciable value to man.

For example, a person who owns property with timber resources may want to use the revenue generated from timber sales to build a farm or a factory, thus liquidating an asset. This scenario examines the net gain of all resources involved. However, this is not what nations do when measuring Gross Domestic Product (GDP), or the wealth of their country. They will calculate revenue from the factory, but not the loss of depleted forest reserves.

We all hold different attitudes about what constitutes wealth in a society. The notion of wealth, though relative across diverse cultures, is typically measured in per-capita income. Given this, the tiny South American nation of Suriname, with barely one-quarter the per-capita income of the United States, is extremely poor. However, there exists a new way of defining wealth that considers the aspects of Suriname's forests, iron-ore deposits, factories and human resources. By this measure, the small nation is nearly as prosperous, or wealthy, as the U.S.

Others argue we should leave the future the option or capacity to be as well off as we are. Unfortunately, there is no way to determine with certainty the tastes, needs and preferences of future generations.

Erin Barnes

Last week, the World Bank released a report entitled "Monitoring Environmental Progress," which showed that a nation's wealth includes much more than income, and providing for a sustainable future requires using all the elements of a nation's wealth — economic, social and environmental.

Much has been written about the dynamic, albeit vague, concept of sustainability. It is an idea whose time has come, yet a concept that is difficult to define and arguably impossible to execute. Some believe sustainability means leaving the water, air and soil as pure and unpolluted as before, although this definition precludes any production process. Others argue we should leave the future population the option or capacity to be as well off as we are now. Unfortunately, there is no way to determine with certainty the tastes, needs and preferences of future generations.

The World Bank study redefines the concept of sustainable development, arguing it has less to do with meeting present and future needs than with making sure future generations have as much or more capital to create jobs and income as they have now.

"This new system challenges conventional thinking by looking at wealth, and not just income, in determining the growth strategies of countries," according to Ismail Serageldin, the World Bank's vice president for environmentally sustainable development.

In addition to natural capital (the economic value of land, water, forests and natural resources) and human resources (the productive capacity of a nation's population), a nation's wealth derives from produced assets (factories and infrastructure) and social capital (the still unmeasured value of collective organizations like families and communities).

Based on this, Canada and Australia, with small populations and immense natural capital, are the world's wealthiest nations. However, countries like Japan and Switzerland, which have only modest endowments of natural capital, also rank high in wealth because they invest far more than most countries in human resources and produced assets.

The World Bank report challenges the view taken by many strict conservationists who say countries must preserve their natural resources at all costs. Conversely, the study argues that a prudent swapping of natural resources for revenue to invest in human resources and produced assets may increase a nation's wealth.

John O'Conner, the principle author of the report, wrote, "The drawing down of some natural resources is neither a positive or a negative phenomenon. It depends on what money from such sales is used for, buying imported luxury cars or educating girls." This idea means being less concerned with cash flow at any given moment and more concerned with sustaining and increasing a country's net worth.

Economic logic needs to be considered with conservation measures to some degree, as well as ethical concerns and biological and sociological perspectives, in order to sustain the overall wealth of nations. Measurements such as these are clearly a step in the right direction.

Erin Barnes is a Collegian columnist.

Get ready for the no good–niks

Well. It's that time again. Get your funny hats out of the closet, dust off those campaign buttons, and start hammering in those lawn signs. Election '96 has begun.

What? Don't think so? Think again. Straw polls are being conducted, the candidates are primping and preening for the cameras, and new front runners are being announced every day. Be afraid, be very afraid.

It's better if you think of it as a game. A spectator sport that's watched by the entire world. Consider the primaries and debates the regular season, the conventions as the playoffs, and the whole thing building up to a championship where the outcome actually means something for a change. Instead of a trophy, you get a four-year–gig with health benefits, a company car and a rent-controlled pad.

Bob Dunn

It's a game all right, but a game with no prize for second place. This one is for each and every last marble. The stakes are the highest there are. Winners wind up immortalized and remembered throughout history. Losers wind up as a Final Jeopardy! question no one gets right. Henry Clay, anyone?

So why bother? Why take the risk? One word: power. Henry Kissenger once called power, "the ultimate aphrodisiac." For that, otherwise rational, peace loving, sophisticated people, will turn into rabid, back–stabbing, lying, cheating, paranoid, hate mongers, who would stomp their own in order to get to the front of the line. They'll use every dirty trick in the book, and even make up a few new ones, to get the key to 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue.

This is where the American voter finds themselves in a bit of a quandary. We want a nice guy to be in charge, but unfortunately nice guys don't win federal elections. They get beaten to a pulp and cast by the roadside in such a state that even the vultures won't have anything to do with them.

You need the heart of a pit viper, the conscience of a killer, and the blood lust and battle savvy of a kickboxer to be the last one standing on election night. A quick look at elections past says it all. Where are the nice guys of yesteryear? Mondale? Dukakis? Anderson? They're doing the junior college lecture circuit or running for city council.

The sinister prevails where the amiable fail. Doing the "right" thing means you can't always do the "nice" thing. Don't forget that "nice guy" Bill Clinton sold his own brother down the river for his share of the pie when he was governor of Arkansas. The "nice" thing would have been to brush it under the rug, slap Roger on the wrist and forget about the whole thing. The "right" thing to do was let the Arkansas legal system have its way with that other Clinton boy.

The Republican party has their share of no-goodniks as well. Dole? Gramm? Wilson? Standing next to each other, these guys look about as friendly as the bounty hunters from The Empire Strikes Back, each one trying to out scowl the other.

But, what about, arguably, this years "nicest" potential candidate, Colin Powell? Don't let that polished, media–friendly image fool you. He's a pro, there's no doubting that. He certainly looks warm and cuddly schmoozing up to such TV news icons as Katie Couric and Larry King, but don't forget he's been doing this a long time and he's very good at it. He's served with two presidents and he knows how to play the game. He's also a career soldier and soldiers don't typically get prumoted for giving out a lot of warm fuzzys.

So, are all of these potential presidents bad? Should we ignore them all and just not show up to the polls in November? Hardly. Everyone above is qualified for the job. They've all been within the power structure long enough to know how it works. They have their contacts, their friends, their enemies.

They are all very intelligent. Cynical as I am, I still think they honestly believe in what they propose. It may be short–sighted, unrealistic, or downright wrong, but they believe it would work. Who knows? It might.

So, who to vote for? Well, we need not worry about that quite yet. It's a long year ahead and anything, anything can happen. All the names aren't even in the hat yet and they've only started slinging mud with the little shovels so far. Wait until they bring the big ones out — that's when the fun begins.

Watch these guys. Not out of paranoia or overt suspicion, but simply because they bear watching. They don't mind covering up, bending the truth, or lying outright in order to get a vote. When a candidate attacks something, think about what he's not attacking. When one is defending something, think about who would benefit, and who would be hurt by the outcome. When you hear the latest buzzword, think for a second about what phrases like "family values" really mean. And when all of America's woes are blamed on a single institution, group of people, or a ritual that is or isn't being conducted, think about how realistic that line of thinking is.

So, don't be afraid to tell the Emperor that he's got no clothes, or to peek behind the great and powerful Oz's curtain and see who's really turning the wheels and pulling the levers. Make some noise, shake things up, strap yourself in and keep your head and arms inside until the ride has come to a complete stop. It's the biggest, baddest game there is, and the winner is in charge until the 21st century.

Gentlemen, start your rhetoric.

Bob Dunn is a Collegian staff member.

The mighty powerful France

Five years ago, I was in Washington paying a visit to the French Consulate. It was two months before West and East Germany were to reunify, and there was said to be a certain level of anxiety in Voltaire's Republic that Germany's past aggression against France would resume.

"No, no, no," insisted the government's nervous spokesman, "We really like the Germans. In fact, they come and visit us every 30 years or so."

This defeatist, passive attitude about France's place in the world — a weakened, second–rate industrial democracy whose glory days were long past — had been the norm for several years, and continued to be so until just last fall. Who would have expected the bizarre emergence of a nationalistic, racially–frustrated, militarily belligerent France?

In a single day's edition earlier this month, the New York Times ran the following headlines: "A Wary France Cracks Down on Its Muslims," "France Expels 50 Illegal Aliens," "French Police Fight Rioters in Tahiti," and, at the center of all this, "Despite Wave of Protest, France Defends Pacific Nuclear Test."

Most Americans can never remember which five nations are considered nuclear powers by treaty. The United States, Russia, China — those are the easy ones. Israel, Pakistan, and India also have capability. But few think of fallen France as descrving nuclear might.

These new "tests" aren't about anything but the fact that President Jacques Chirac wants to remind the world that France has the ability to seriously damage its neighbors. Chirac's message: France is back.

The world became complacent about France during the 14 years of Francois Mitterand's bland version of socialism. Paris was content to take a back seat during the Cold War battles of the 1980s, and in the 1990s economic problems bogged down Mitterand, a man of limited talents.

Jacques Chirac, on the other hand, is best described as the Pat Buchanan of France. His rhetoric has always been anti– immigrant, anti–poor and anti–homeless.

Meanwhile back in Paris, Chirac took a hint from Buchanan and Pete Wilson and began arresting random immigrants. About 800,000 North Africans have been detained by French police so far, merely because of the color of their skin.

Peter Orvetti

While mayor of Paris, Chirac authorized draconian measures to "deal with" homelessness.

But he ran for president as a disciple of the Bob Dole Postulate: If you seek the presidency enough times, eventually you will become the frontrunner. In his third run for France's highest office, Chirac was polling last place among the major contenders. When the frontrunner's faltering coincided with the success of Chirac's hard–right oratory, Chirac shot into first place. Still, he was elected by a very narrow margin, given a majority by voters who were holding their noses.

Chirac immediately decided to ignore the country's economic crisis, and instead came up with a sideshow: he'd detonate some nukes near Tahiti. (The tests are also close to American Samoa, leading Samoa's Congressional delegate to call for full sanctions on all French goods.) Even 60 percent of French citizens oppose the tests. But the nukes did get their minds off their empty wallets.

When Tahitian protests turned violent on Sept. 6, French colonial police fired tear gas. The nuke tests were just the catalyst; Tahiti has long resisted the patrician French rule.

Meanwhile, back in Paris, Chirac took a hint from Buchanan and Pete Wilson and began arresting random immigrants. About 800,000 North Africans have been detained by French police so far, merely because of the color of their skin.

The official reason is fear of bombings. There is a civil war going on in Algeria, a former French territory. France's ties to Algeria were closer than any other colonial power to any colony, and people have continued to move back and forth between the two countries relatively freely, even after Algerian independence. Paris fears that Algerian militants will carry the war onto French soil.

A 21–year–old female art student was followed by police, surrounded in a train station, and detained for 15 minutes. "People were coming out of the station looking at me with three policemen with guns and sticks... I am sure they would not have stopped a blue-eyed blonde."

This woman was stopped because of her "dark complexion." That's how French newspapers describe the criteria for detainment. "If you come through an airport or a train station, all eyes are on you," said Mostafa Zerouaf of the Association for Algerian Friendship. "People are picked up according to their complexion or because they have frizzy hair."

Chirac, in 1995, has brought the world a Brave New France. Meanwhile, in the United States, 10 percent of Republicans say they will vote for Pat Buchanan to be our president in 1996.

Peter Orvetti is a Collegian columnist.

'96 could be the year

The U.S. government was overthrown a long time ago by means of bribery. Will Rogers said, "We've got the best government can buy." Our economic system is proof of this. We're playing under a set of rules bought with bribes.

If we were governing ourselves, would we let businessmen raise prices whenever they wish and fire us for demanding a raise in order to keep up? Would we let them close their factories and move away, leaving us without our pensions?

Would we let a few families accumulate fortunes of uncountable billions, then tell us that we still owe them $4 trillion in something called the "National Debt?" And is this the reason the richest country in the world doesn't have the money for school repairs, libraries or the social benefits that Europeans enjoy, such as National Health Insurance?

John Harrigan

Government of, by and for the people has perished from this earth, Abe. Yes, little kids, your social studies teachers are slingin' it. They'd get fired if they told you the truth about this country.

How did a rich minority of less than one percent take over the U.S.? They did it by dividing us up into white and colored, male and female, employed and unemployed, new immigrant and old immigrant, liberals and conservatives, jailed and non–jailed, pro–life and pro–choice, etc.

Jay Gould, the old briber whom Cornelius Vanderbilt called "the smartest man on Wall Street" said he could pay half the working people to lock–up the other half. Today we've got small towns all across America begging their state governments to locate a prison in their town because they need jobs.

Another way the rich took over was by bribing the news media and colleges to keep us misinformed and uninformed. What daily newspaper ever told us our government was conducting a terror campaign in Central America since 1954, torturing, killing and disappearing union organizers and other activists? What college told American workers how badly they have been flim–flammed by the economic "experts?"

The gap between rich and poor gets worse every year with no end in sight. Prices no longer have any relationship to cost of production. The Government has given the rich a blank check and we're paying for it.

Alright, so what to do? Well, we still have the vote. In the past we've let the rich select our candidates for president, senator and congressman and let their newsmedia sell them to us. For '96, we've got to ignore the propaganda on behalf of Clinton, Dole, Gramm, Wilson, Buchanan, Forbes, Perot, Powell, etc.

We have to form a group in each state and select our own candidates for president and congress. It would probably be best to run them as independents.

What do we have to gain by taking majority control of this government?

1. An end to U.S. terrorism in other countries.
2. Control of our economy.
3. Full employment.
4. An end to homelessness.
5. An end to inflation, depressions and recessions.
6. An end to the crime wave.
7. An end to torture, beatings and rape in U.S. prisons.
8. A government that has quality of life as its moving force — not money and power.
9. An end to domination by a few absurdly rich families.
10. Freedom for ourselves and our children.

This is what citizens in a Democracy would do.

John Harngan is a Springfield resident.

Arts & Living

~ PREVIEWS ~

Professor to hold tribute recital

By Nathalie Scriba
Collegian Correspondent

Professor Nigel Coxe will present a recital titled Suites, Fantasies and Other Delights this Saturday, at 8 p.m. in Bezanson Hall.

Coxe builds his recitals around a concept, in the process bringing together seemingly disparate composers. This year's theme is rooted in the influence that J.S. Bach exerted over later composers.

The program includes Bach's "French Suite No. 1," "Fantasy and Fugue in A minor," Debussy's "Suite Pour le Piano," Bartok's "Improvisations" along with Chopin's "Fantasie (Op. 49)" and "Nocturne (Op. 53)."

Prior to the performance of each work, Coxe will speak with the audience about the music, focusing on the historical significance, important musical features, and how he personally feels about the work. During these times, the audience will learn why these particular pieces were chosen for inclusion in the recital. For example, Coxe will demonstrate how Bach's "Fantasy" inspired Chopin's "Fantasie."

While Debussy's "Suite" pays homage to the Baroque period and Bach's work, it also looks forward to the Modern period. Also, Bartok's "Improvisations" contain an elegy to the memory of Debussy.

The concert is dedicated to the memory of Tom Malone, who studied piano with Coxe at the University of Massachusetts. Malone, a piano technician, worked with artists such as Leonard Bernstein and Malcolm Frager. He was also responsible for the care of pianos at Williams, Mount Holyoke and Amherst Colleges. A well–known piano tuner and craftsman, Malone published many articles, the most recent of which was in the Cavalier in May. Malone died in July at the age of 42.

Professor Coxe's recital will take place on Saturday, Sept. 30 at 8 p.m. in Bezanson Recital Hall on the Amherst Campus of the University of Massachusetts. The concert is open and free to the public, though donations can be made to a college fund for the son of Tom Malone.

Famed clarinetist coming to Bowker

By Jennifer Willard
Collegian Correspondent

The winner of the 36th International Competition in Munich and the youngest winner of the International Clarinet Society Competition, clarinetist Jon Manasse, will perform a rare program in Bowker Auditorium on Oct. 7 at 7 p.m.

Manasse has been hailed as one of the most talented clarinetists of his generation. Fanfare magazine reviewed Manasse's work as, "brilliant," saying, "He soars over difficult [pieces] crisply and smoothly, making it all sound so easy."

Manasse is a graduate of the Julliard School where he studied with David Weber. He distinguished himself at the school by winning two concerto competitions, in addition to being the recipient of the Walter N. Namburg Scholarship.

Manasse also received scholarships from the Aspen Institute, the Waterloo Music Festival and the Academie International D'Ete.

One of the most sought–after clarinetists in the nation, Manasse has played with the New York Chamber Symphony, New York Pops Orchestra, Orchestra of St. Luke's, Orpheus Chamber Orchestra, New Jersey Symphony Orchestra and Seattle Symphony.

Most recently, Manasse performed solo in New York City at the Lincoln Center for the Performing Arts, as well as Alice Tully Hall, The Spanish Institute, and the Town Hall. Manasse has toured Japan and Southeast Asia with the New York Symphonic Ensemble.

This season, Manasse is already booked for a performance at New York City's Lincoln Center with the Manhattan String Quartet.

With such a prize–winning and outstanding background, Jon Manasse will surely be a show that should not be missed.

Tickets for the performance are $15 and $10, with $5 tickets for Five–College students. Tickets for children 17 and under are $8. For more information or tickets, call 545–2511 or 1–800–999–UMASS.

COURTESY PETER SCHAAF

Clarinetist Jon Manasse will perform at Bowker

Ska sounds to rock Pearl Street

Acclaimed Boston band Bim Skala Bim perform tonight

COURTESY BIB RECORDS

Bim Skala Bim will play at Pearl St. tonight.

By Mike Burke
Collegian Staff

Are you ready for a night of dancing? Then venture over to Pearl Street where Bim Skala Bim will be heating up the autumn night with the skankiest ska tunes around.

This Boston–based band is one of the most acclaimed ska bands in the world. The esteemed New Musical Express went as far as to name them the best American ska act, for the last decade, the band has propelled their club–going audiences to skank it up on the dance floor, and tonight will be no different.

Almost 10 years ago, the band released their self–titled debut album. Since then they have gone on to release four more full lengths. Two years ago, the acclaimed "Live At The Paradise" hit the stores and became an instant hit with ska fans everywhere as the CD successfully captured the band's live feel.

Lead by vocalist Dan Vitale and trombonist Vinnie Nobile, the band has toured the United States almost endlessly. So far they have taken their ska attack to 25 states and 100 major cities. No small feat for a band that still releases their own records.

From 1988–1992, the band monopolized the ska scene in Beantown as they won the prize for "Best local reggae/ska act" at both the Boston Music Awards and the Boston Phoenix/WFNX best music poll. While the Mighty, Mighty Bosstones receive all the attention and praise, Bim Skala Bim are the true ska heroes from Boston.

With the recent popularity surge of both the Bosstones and Rancid, ska seems to be returning to the radio airwaves for the first time since the late 1970s when bands like the Specials and Madness rode their skanking tunes to stardom. Hear for yourself tonight why many consider Bim Skala Bim to be one of the best ska bands around anywhere. See you on the dance floor.

Bim Skala Bim play Pearl Street Nightclub in Northampton tonight. Doors open at 8:30 p.m. Tickets are $6 in advance from the Northampton Box Office. Call the club for more information.

Check out the funk in NoHo

By Aaron Brandes
Collegian Correspondent

You know Maceo Parker. Even if you don't think you know Maceo, you do. He is funk, but he is more than funk — Maceo Parker is music.

Maceo started his career playing with "The Godfather of Soul," James Brown. He occasionally blew the tenior saxophone for Brown's horn section from 1964 to 1973. Eventually he became the co–director of "The Godfather's" horn section. The two of them together helped shape the sound now called funk.

Maceo left the James Brown band to join up with a whole crew of the funkiest souls on planet earth. George Clinton, Bootsy Collins, and all the rest of "The P–Funk Allstars," had the privilege of hearing Maceo's sweet saxophone melt with theirs, creating an out–of–this–world groove. Maceo also joined George Clinton's "Mothership Connection" in 1975. Deee–Lite featured him on her premiere album. Tribe Called Quest, Arrested Development, Dr. Dre, and just about every other notable hip–hop musician samples Maceo Parker's "one chord groove–oriented sound."

Maceo is music, and he is still putting out solo albums with that same high quality funk he owned back in the day. In the spirit of James Brown or The P–Funk Allstars, Maceo's albums just do not do him the same justice as his live performance. To truly "free your mind so that your ass will follow," Maceo is a must–see.

So forget about eating, forget about sleeping, forget about studying, forget about everything except that Maceo Parker is going to be in Northampton. Get your tickets now and check out this living legend of funk and I'll be there to see you freaking your bodies to the ffffunk that only Maceo knows.

Maceo Parker plays Pearl Street this Sunday night. Tickets are $12.50 in advance and the doors open at 8:00 p.m. Call the club for more details.

Do you spend all of your time in front of the television?
Then get off your butt and write for the wonderful world of Arts & Living!
Stop by the Collegian and ask for Tara.

Introducing
From the people who brought you the Haunted Car Wash
The Ultimate Car Wash Experience
GOLDEN NOZZLE PRESENTS
LASERWASH
An Amazing Laser-Light Show in a Fully Functional Car Wash
"Good, Clean Fun"
"The best time you'll ever have in neutral"
"You won't believe your eyes"
September 20, 1995 - September 30, 1995
Sunday - Thursday 4pm - 8pm
Friday & Saturday 4pm - 10pm
Rt. 9 Hadley • Amherst line next to Super Stop & Shop
BP Shop is now Open 24 Hours 7 Days
Open on 29th All Night 1/2 Price Works free coffee between 9pm & 6am

STEINBECK
COLLISION REPAIR
&
AUTO BODY
53 S. Prospect St. Amherst Center
•Imports and other unibody vehicles are our speciality.
•Users of Sikkens paint products.
•Accepted by all insurance companies for collision repair or glass repair.
Remember
It's your car and your choice of repair facilities
256-8157 256-1385
Shop Reg # RS1212

Jewish Affairs needs writers!
If you have an interest in writing for and about the UMass Jewish Community,
Contact Jacob W. Michaels
113 Campus Center
545-3500

■ polo

continued from page 10

Amherst College's Alumni Gym gives Massachusetts (10-1, 4-0 EWPA) a boost as they head towards an important divisional tournament in the Bronx.

Boston College, on the other hand, falls to 3–4 overall and 1–3 in the Eastern Water Polo Association.

To the Eagles' credit they hustled and played hard the entire match, but they were overmatched and obviously intimidated.

The only bright spot for B.C. was the play of sophomore two-meter man, Steve Yap. Yap tallied four of the five Boston College points scoring one two-pointer and a pair of singles.

Brian Galdorisi, a sophomore driver, scored the Eagles' first goal of the match with 2:35 left in the third quarter. Yap followed up that with his first goal as B.C. controlled most of the third quarter after Yarworth emptied his bench.

When the victory was in hand, freshman Carlos Mendez scored five points on a pair of two-pointers and a nice touch shot that, at the time, made the score 17–4.

DAMION SMITH/COLLEGIAN

The UMass water polo team sank the Eagles of Boston College last night, 21–5.

■ horn

continued from page 10

an underachieving Patriots team, and an even worse one in Chestnut Hill.

I'll take pennant fever.

* * *

Comeback athlete of the Year? Tim Wakefield? Mike Tyson? Steve Emtman? None of them have anything on Ernie Irvan.

Forget about competing again, Irvan was given just a 10 percent chance of living after slamming into a wall during practice 13 months ago at Michigan International Speedway.

Irvan plans to get behind the wheel of the No. 88 Texaco-Havoline-Thunderbird Sunday in North Wilkesboro, N.C. at the Tyson Holly Farms 400, and complete a most improbable comeback.

The mental obstacles against getting back in any sort of motor vehicle after that horrific crash are tremendous. To do so and compete at the highest level epitomizes courage. NASCAR fans and backers alike should stand up and take notice. Courage of this level transcends sport. Whether he catches Jeff Gordon or finishes last, Irvan is a champion.

* * *

In no way, shape or form would I ever claim to be an expert on the NBA, but the Mark Price to Washington trade just makes no sense on the Cleveland side.

Price, when healthy, is the game's top three-point gun and free-throw king. In exchange the Cavs' will receive the Bullets No. 1 pick, but with a lineup that will feature Price, Chris Webber, Juwan Howard, Calbert Cheaney and Rasheed Wallace, the Bullets should turn heads this season and be competitive for the first time in eons. The draft pick will be worthless.

* * *

While I'm lingering in Landover, the Washington Capitals receive points for their new logo, but the color scheme has to go. A team that plays in Washington D.C. and calls itself the Capitals is practically obligated to wear red, white and blue.

Fine, change the inert logo and lose the stars, but blue, black and gold do not work here.

* * *

Now that the FleetCenter is open for business, the sole archaic stadium left in Beantown is the grand old park on Yawkey Way. On Wednesday, equally ancient manager Sparky Anderson said his final farewell to Fenway, which is also rumored to be on its way out.

Camden Yards might be a wonderful place that looks as if Babe Ruth might have played there, but there's a difference. He didn't. You could build every feature into a park, but you can't build a park that comes with history, Anderson alluded to this.

"This is Ted Williams' house and he was the greatest hitter who ever lived. What people love here is not the ballpark, but they envision the guys who have played here for the past 70 years. When they look out at this park, they remember the great ones who were out there. They'll never be able to get that in the new parks. You have to have them, but one part you lose is what you have here and at Wrigley Field and Detroit."

What is true for ballparks is true for arenas as well. The FleetCenter might have every luxurious feature imaginable, but Bobby Orr and Larry Bird never played there. It will never equal the old barn.

Leigh Torbin is a Collegian Staff Member.

Research Interviewers

Hiring Now For Evening and Weekend Hours

No Selling Involved

Interesting part-time telephone assignments to collect data on a variety of research topics. Absolutely no selling involved. Computer/typing skills required. Flexible hours, Monday–Friday, 5pm–10pm, Saturday 11am–5pm and Sunday 3pm–9pm. Must work a minimum of 20 hours per week. Start at $5.25/hour with paid training and earn up to $7.00/hour.

We're in the Mountain Farms Mall, which is a stop on the free bus line. Call between 9am–5pm, Monday–Friday: (413) 586-8635.

Abt Associates, Telephone Research Center, Mountain Farms Mall, Rt. 9, Hadley, MA 01035. An Equal Opportunity Employer.

Abt

Abt Associates Inc.

Men's tennis achieves landmark

By Jameson Heos
Collegian Staff

After never beating rival UConn before, Massachusetts men's tennis coach Judy Dixon expected a close match where her team would have to play their best to win. What she did not expect was a 6–1 drubbing of the Huskies to extend UMass' winning streak to five games.

"This was the best win that I have ever had as a coach at the University. This is my third year with the men's team and this is the best team we have ever beaten and we beat them decisively," she said.

Senior co-captain Justin Lynn and sophomore Alex Aller started the day off at No. 1 doubles by defeating Rich Saxe and Mitch Katz 8–3. Freshman Todd Cheney and junior Ryan Ginley followed at No. 3 doubles where their dominance ended as they lost 8–4 to Alex Orbanomski and Vinny Riccobono. Their record dropped to 5–1.

With the weight of the doubles point on their shoulders, Gregor Rummel and freshman Mike Skeels pulled out a close match at No. 2 doubles over Adam Tardif and Andy Graham by the score of 8–5 to secure the first point of the day.

"The doubles started us off in great shape," Dixon explained. "I have to say that it makes a huge difference in coming into the singles. They didn't play great but they refused to come off the court without a victory."

Lynn returned to No. 1 singles with a vengeance after playing No. 2 singles against Wheaton. He whipped Saxe off the court in less than an hour with a 6–1, 6–1 victory to improve his record to 4–2. Rummel continued in the same fashion at No. 2 by disposing Katz 6–1, 6–2 to bring his winning streak to five.

With only one more point needed to lock up the win, victory seemed imminent, but Dixon still felt that the match was in jeopardy.

"I knew we had three points, but I thought we could win this match 7–0 or we could lose it 4–3. It was that close because we were in a couple of three set matches and in two matches we were up a set, but down in the second set. This match was so close that we could come out of this with a huge score that looked like we just dominated or we could still lose."

In a surprise at No. 6 singles, freshman Jason Blind took over for Senior co-captain Darren Tow. Blind had defeated Tow the day before to warrant his slot in the lineup and he came through with a tough 7–6 (7–2), 6–3 victory over Drew Broderik in his first varsity match. At No. 5 singles another freshman, Todd Cheney followed with a 7–5, 6–4 struggle over Graham to leave his record at 5–1.

With the match in hand, Ankur Baishya fell in a grueling loss at No. 3 singles 6–2, 4–6, 3–6 to Eric Engstrom. In another three set match Aller battled Tardif at No. 4 singles. After being down 5–2 in the first set, Aller came back to take the set and go on to win 7–5, 4–6, 7–5 to keep his record unblemished at 6–0.

Dixon was ecstatic after the game and was confident heading into her final two matches of the fall.

"I think there is something about being confident and feeling that even if your down 5–4, you are still going to win and I think that is what I felt today. You can't underestimate their growing confidence right now."

The Minutemen look to improve their 5–1 record at New Hampshire on Monday at 3 p.m.

JAMES STANLEY/COLLEGIAN

Senior Justin Lynn readies himself for a return during his match at No. 1 singles Wednesday against UConn as UMass defeated the Huskies, 6–1.

sports notice

The UMass women's tennis team will also be in action this weekend at the Upper Boyden courts as they take on New Hampshire this Saturday at 1 p.m.

Minutewomen host three A-10 conference rivals

By Chris Stamm
Collegian Staff

This weekend, the University of Massachusetts women's volleyball team dives further into its Atlantic 10 schedule in a three match homestand in the Curry Hicks cage.

The Minutewomen (8–6) look to improve on their 1–1 A-10 record after meeting with mixed results in their conference opener last weekend.

Massachusetts got off on the right foot blanking St. Bonaventure, but later they were victims of a Duquesne upset.

On Friday at 7 p.m., the Minutewomen face fierce rivals, the Temple Owls (5–6). This match pits UMass coach Bonnie Kenny against her former college coach at the University of Tennessee, Bob Bertucci.

"We got annihilated by them last year at their place, then annihilated them at home, so I'm expecting a close match," Kenny said.

Once again, junior outside hitter Giza Rivera will have to watch from the sidelines.

Rivera, one of UMass' strongest impact players, both offensively and defensively, is injured with torn ankle ligaments and is expected to be out a minimum of one to two more weeks.

Despite the loss of Rivera, Kenny feels that the younger players on the team have stepped up their level of play. Freshman setter Katie Pearce has seen increased time on the floor and classmate Leslie Hartlen has had to move from the middle to the outside blocking slot.

It is versatility such as this which has allowed the Minutewomen to keep their edge while they are forced to play without Rivera.

"When you take someone out of the picture like Giza, there is not the comfort of knowing exactly where the ball is going," Kenny said. "We have to defend against the outside attack and control the ball, challenging them at the back court."

On Saturday, the Lady Rams (2–9) come to the Cage for a first ever UMass–Fordham match up.

"Physically, we're a little bigger and quicker at the net. If we play like we did against Northeastern, we should win, Kenny added. "We can't let someone come into our gym and work harder on defense."

As for Saturday evening's match against LaSalle (2–10), Kenny believes the key to victory is once again defense. The Minutewomen met the Explorers two years ago and blanked them in three games.

On paper, Massachusetts is bigger and deeper and hopes for a repeat of their last meeting.

■ Jordan

continued from page 10

when he has felt Ingoglia or Alessio needed a rest, and Jordan has responded.

In Jordan's first three career games as a Minuteman, he carried the ball 22 times and tallied 129 yards, including his first career touchdown.

"My role basically is to give them a rest when they need it, and when they need a bigger guy in there," Jordan said. "I'm not in there too much, but when I do get in there, I like to do my best and benefit the team any way I can."

Earning the carries from Hodges has given Jordan the confidence he needs to perform at the top of his game. After sitting out a year, Jordan washed away the cobwebs, and had a career day against Holy Cross. He nearly broke the 100–yard rushing mark in that game, with 92 yards on 15 carries including his ice–breaking first end–zone scamper.

"[The first touchdown] felt good. It was a long time coming after being out for a year. You get the worries about maybe you don't have what you had before, but I played pretty well against Holy Cross and scored that touchdown," Jordan said. "It was really neat, and I felt like a lot was lifted off my shoulders. I performed to the level I was capable of, but I had to prove to myself that I could."

Jordan is in a very desirable position for a rising back. He is a redshirt freshman with a year under his belt. He has three years of eligibility at UMass without featured back Ingoglia.

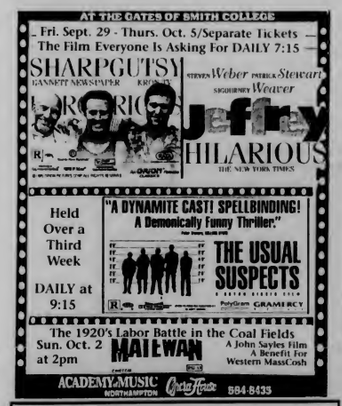
Also, with Ingoglia in his last year as a Minuteman, Jordan can take advantage of the education a potential NFL–er has to offer.

"[Ingoglia] is a big influence on me. He is a great leader and a great captain and when he's on the field he's always giving 110 percent," Jordan said. "That just rubs off on me."

Jordan is still in the learning process, but what he endures now is all beneficial to his future as a UMass football running back. Jordan looks to continue to work hard and does whatever is asked of him.

His performance as current back–up, and his work ethic could write his ticket to his most desired role.

"That's what I'm shooting for right now, to be the go–to guy somewhere down the road. When the ball is in my hands, I can do what I do best," Jordan said. "Right now, I'm pretty much satisfied with my role as a back–up, and do whatever I can."



AT THE GATES OF SMITH COLLEGE
Fri. Sept. 29 - Thurs. Oct. 5/Separate Tickets
The Film Everyone Is Asking For DAILY 7:15
SHARPGUTSY
GANNETT NEWSPAPER
Steven Weber Patrick Stewart
Jeffrey
HILARIOUS
THE NEW YORK TIMES
Held Over a Third Week
DAILY at 9:15
"A DYNAMITE CAST! SPELLBINDING! A Demonically Funny Thriller."
THE USUAL SUSPECTS
The 1920's Labor Battle in the Coal Fields
Sun. Oct. 2 at 2pm
MATEWAN
A John Sayles Film
A Benefit For Western MassCosh
ACADEMY OF MUSIC NORTHAMPTON
Cinema Treats
584-8435

The University of Massachusetts at Amherst presents
FAIR PLAY:
A Candid Conversation with MARTINA NAVRATILOVA
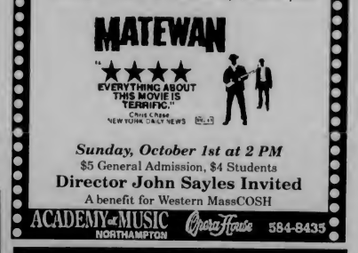
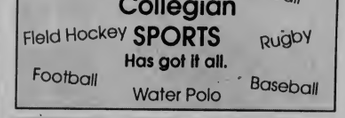
and
DAVE PALLONE
Dave Pallone, author of Behind The Mask, My Double Life in Baseball, written by Alan Steinberg
October 11, 1995, 8 pm
Mullins Center
Tickets are: General Public: $20 & $10; Students: $5
Tickets available in person at the Mullins Center Box Office, all Ticketmaster locations or charge by phone at (413)733-2500. Ticket sales for groups of 15 or more are available by calling Kerry Lynch at (413)545-3332.
Every effort will be made to assure accessibility. Please contact the Mullins Center at (413) 545-0505 by October 6, 1995, if possible, to arrange appropriate accomodations. Sign language interpreter services



AT THE GATES OF SMITH COLLEGE
A Film Written & Directed By John Sayles
MATEWAN
EVERYTHING ABOUT THIS MOVIE IS TERRIFIC."
Chris Chase
NEW YORK DAILY NEWS
Sunday, October 1st at 2 PM
$5 General Admission, $4 Students
Director John Sayles Invited
A benefit for Western MassCOSH
ACADEMY OF MUSIC NORTHAMPTON
Cinema Treats
584-8435



We Deliver
Kai Chi
To UMass
Chinese-American Cuisine
Restaurant & Bar
Mt. Farms Mall, Rt. 9 Hadley • 586-2774
Open Sun-Thurs 12-11 pm
Fri-Sat 12-2 am
DINNER SPECIALS
Save up to 30% OFF
Complete Dinners with your choice of Soup • Appetizer • Entree • Dessert
All For One Great Low Price!

Collegian Classifieds

113 Campus Center • University of Massachusetts • Phone: (413)545-3500 Fax: (413)545-1592

Personals Policy

1. All personals MUST be proofread by Collegian classified employees before payment and acceptance of the classified.
2. Last names MAY NOT be used in personals. ONLY first names and initials are allowed. The only exceptions are for birthday or congratulations personals, in which case the full name may be used.
3. Phone numbers are not allowed in personals. NO EXCEPTIONS
4. Addresses are not allowed in personals. this means dorm room numbers as well.
5. Personals of a threatening or derogatory nature are not acceptable. Personals of a vindictive or libelous nature are not acceptable. Personals may not be used for the purpose of harassment.
6. Profanity may not be used in personals.
7. The personals section is for personals only. The personals section may NOT be used to sell items, seek roommates, advertise meetings, etc.
8. All personals must have the name, signature, and UMass I.D. number of the student placing the as filled in on the insertion order. Non-students must provide a valid driver's license and the license number must be recorded on the insertion order. Use of false identification or misrepresentation is subject to penalties under the law.
9. The Collegian reserves the right to refuse or to edit any personal that does not meet the Collegian's standards in accordance with the statutes of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

Rates

$2.00 minimum/day

Students
20¢ per word/day

All others
40¢ per word/day

NO REFUNDS

Please write clearly and legibly. We are not responsible for errors resulting from illegible handwriting or type.

Standard Headings

Activities
Announcements
Apartment For Rent
Auto For Sale
Employment
Entertainment
For Sale
Found (2 days Free)
Happy Birthday
Houses For Rent
Instruction
Lost
Musicians
Miscellaneous
Motorcycles
Personals
Room For Rent
Room Wanted
Roommate Wanted
Services
Summer Sublet
To Sublet
Travel
Transportation
Wanted to Rent
Wanted

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Chinese Food Ka Chi restaurant now delivering to 3am Friday and Saturday. 586-2774.

Learn to bartend with University bartending. 1/5 the price of other schools. Classes in Amherst. Free info session Wed. Sept 27th @ 7:00 pm. Lord Jeffrey Inn or call 1-800-U-CAN-MIX.

News Anchor Auditions for UVCTV-16 UMass/Update Saturday Sept 30 10am at UVC station student union.

The sisters of Sigma Delta Tau would like to welcome our newest rebornette's Sherrie, Lynn, Brooke, Dawn, Shannon, Rebecca, Lisa, Christina, and Aimee!

To the sisters of Sigma Delta Tau Congratulations on a terrific rush! We're looking forward to a great semester! Keep up the good work! Love, Exec.

Zeta Psi We must learn to live together as brothers or perish as fools. Zeta Psi is having open rush for all university men. If interested call Mike at 549-1615

AUTO FOR SALE

1983 Chevy 10,000 original mileage very good condition. $700 or bo. 253-9017.

86 Subaru GL Hatchback 5 speed Runs well. 1 owner. $1100. 253-9295.

1986 Dodge Colt Turbo 5 speed, fast, sporty, reliable, economical $1250. 253-4012.

1988 VW Fox GL Needs some repairs $990. Please call 549-3828.

'82 Red Jeep Wrangler 5 speed soft top 27,000. CD player. Alarm. $12,000 or bo 413-256-8711.

1992 Toyota Celica GT, 5 speed, loaded. Red. 1 owner, mint, alarm, 52k miles $3000 below book. $10,700. 665-7219 Jen.

Blue '86 Subaru Wagon 4wd power windows, brand new brakes, muffler, water pump. $1450 or bo. Call 582-9105.

For Sale 1986 Hyundai Excel some work needed $500. 253-0878. Please call in evenings ask for Rachael.

Ford Taurus Wagon LX 88 Power, Everything, mint, great, air, condition $4700 256-4708.

Mercury Marquis 1984, 70K miles. Runs excellent. Power windows & doors. 1500 or B.O. Call JJ 549-8881.

EMPLOYMENT

Bart's Remeade Now hiring for part-time hours weekends a must. Apply at Amherst store. 253-9371.

BUILD YOUR RESUME
Come to the UMass Credit Union! September 18th or 19th at 6:30 pm to build your resume! Looking for new tellers for fall 1995! Stop by, call Christine at 545-2800.

Cruise Ships Hiring. Earn up to $2000+/month. World Travel. Seasonal & full-time positions. No exp necessary. For info. call 1-206-634-0468 Ext C500.

Drivers, waitresses and kitchen help wanted. KRETE RESTAURANT 586-8255.

Earn big $$$ leading college marketing firm is currently seeking part-time help. Multiple positions available throughout the fall semester. Flexible hours & great pay. $8-$10/hr. Will train, no experience necessary. Great resume builder. For more info, call Mark Egan @ (617) 266-8881 Ext 11.

Main Torah reader needed. Housing and salary. Congregation Rodphey Sholom, Hatfield 534-5352.

National Parks Hiring. Seasonal & full-time employment available at national Parks, Forests & Wildlife Preserves. Benefits and Bonuses! Call (206) 545-4804 Ext. N 5001.

Students wanted for work evenings and or weekends with adult M-R population. Have your time really count! We will train. Car a must. Call 549-7911 AA/EOE/ADA.

Want a real challenge? Live in position, room and board provided. In return you share responsibilities of care for elderly man. Experience with M-R / M-H population helpful. Extra pay hours available. Call 549-7911 AA/EOE/ADA.

$40,000 income potential Home typists/pc users. Toll free 1-800-898-9778 Ext T-1732 for listings.

$35,000 income potential Reading books. Toll free 1-800-898-9778 Ext R-1732 for details.

ENTERTAINMENT

Having Halloween bash on Oct 28th? Or 10/28? Get a huge house? Want a spooky band? You need vets and vets needs you! Call Jack at 367-9638.

FOR RENT

Fridge Rentals Free delivery. 253-9742 and Usurper Food Co-Op and Recipe.

FOR SALE

COMPUTERS
Mac computers power-books 165 @ 80 fax, comy case. $1195. Quadra 700 8/540 16" color monitor awesome graphics software $1995. Call 256-0080.

DJ EQUIPMENT
Soundcraftsmen power amplifier 1000 watts $700 or bo. EV speakers 300 watts $350 or bo. 3-piece system $200 or bo. 546-3498. Beeper 292-8010. Must sell.

Hockey skates CCM pumps, brand new call 549-7734.

IBM pc notebook comp world excel. Need $ for school. bo. 549-6061.

PJ Harvey Tix Oct 10 Mike 585-9186.

Rollerblades New Canada Mens & Womens 9 and knee, wrists pads $175/bo. Sheila 584-2575.

Tandy Computer & color mono w/ soft. Asking $275 or bo. Call 6-0540.

Toshiba 20" Stereo w/ remote 3yr old ask for $190/call 549-8563.

Used Professional Disk Jockey Equipment cost new over $13,000 ask my $3500. Demo available 413-527-3512 Evenings only.

Yamaha 870 Reciever DSP night club rock concert, jazz, dance hall movie built amp exciters more. Pioneer CLD-V630 laser karaokes w/ microphone LD CD. 8mmDisc & DSP. Call 546-8396.

12 string acoustic guitar w/ case. Price/ebay brand new? Call Mike 256-8190.

1985 Fender Fretless Jazz Bass good as new, asking $400 o.b.o. Call Aaron 549-408.

FOUND

Found two books in Bartlett on the 2nd floor. Call 545-1946.

Found Volkswagen key near LORT on Sept 26. Pick up at Collegian. 545-3500.

Silver ring at the Collegian. Please call 545-3500.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY

Happy Birthday Lori All our love MK Tom, Amy, Beth.

Happy Birthday Rob We Love ya! Love Kasie, Kenny, Warren, Eric, Karen and Donna.

Happy Birthday Stacy love Jen, Maura, Christine, Lauren, Tracy, Shawn & Brian.

Happy twenty-something birthday, Kayll! Don't think of it as getting older, think of it as getting better! Party it up! We love you! From your housemates.

Happy 21st Berkeley! We saved the best for last! You can run, but you can't hide! We'll turn uptown upside down! Love, your housemates & Zach the UPD!

INSTRUCTION

Guitar Lessons and classes by Kevin Collins. Beginning folk, classical. Free intro lesson. Hamp/Gspt 256-1733.

GUITAR LESSONS

Have fun this semester and earn 1 2/credits with a patient and supportive teacher. Spaces still available. Call Peter 253-5353.

Jazz piano teacher offering fall lessons, beginner or advanced. Call Stephen Page 253-3354.

MISCELLANEOUS

MODEM USERS
Call the Playground BBS! 256-6085. Over 4000 Files online! Twenty online games including registered L.O.R.D., B.R.E. and Usurper. Food Co-op and recipe bases, lots more! Stuff for everyone!

WEIGHT LOSS
Gained Willpower! Lose up to 30 lbs 30 day money back guarantee. Natural, doctor recommended. 323-4984.

MOTORCYCLES

MOTORCYCLES
'82 Honda Magna V-45 750 cc. V-4 Very fast and reliable. Re-reasonable offer refused. $1,600 bo. Page anytime 787-0065.

MUSICIANS

Needed: Funk drummer, singer, keys the Colonel Mustard Trio! Call Ryan Andy 549-1215.

Psychedelic garage band for hire. Dead Dylan Cream Stones. Perfect for parties. 256-1949.

ROOM FOR RENT

Room in house near Amytheist Br. Amherst $235/mo. No Lease! We need to rent to a female now! Call us at 253-9081.

PERSONALS

DAVE
Hey baby, wanna coddle? Love the groins.

DEB
Looking forward to the upcoming year and all the surprises and excitement it will bring. This is a pretty scary trip we have begun, but I am so glad it has Be secure, and enjoy the stress. Love Always, E Man.

ENLIGHTENMENT #2
I need religion like a fish needs a bicycle. What I want is to know other people who want to grow and will accept me as I am. Alliance Christian Fellowship, committed to people, friendship, learning, and spirit-filled fellowship. Info: Mark or Elizabeth 253-7706.

FRAT BOY
Carla: Ya know you're a cute kid! Thanks for making me smile. Love Jen 8/22/95.

Kelly, Happy 5th anniversary. You have been the greatest girlfriend and best friend anyone could ask for. Thanks for always being there. I Love You. Brian.

Nordberg, Congratulations on full back spot from your bro's.

Peasut, You are my sunshine, my only sunshine! I Love You xoxo Love, Your Princess.

UMass Women's Rugby Congrats on 2nd place! Good Luck in Boston! Jo & Tryna.

MEREDITH
Would you like to go out again? I promise I'll stay awake this time!

Are you a foreign student? Need help with your english? I am professionally-trained to teach ESL and can tutor you! Evenings and weekends. $10 an hour. Call Scott 665-7448.

SERVICES

Exotic nail airbrushing 549-1794.

Experienced babysitter available with references. Please call Alyssa 549-8885 for info.

Grants and scholarships available. Billions of $$$ in grants. Qualify immediately. 1-800-263-2425 (1-800-AID-2-HELP).

Pregnant? Need help? Call birthright of Amherst area for free testing and carrying assistance. 549-1906.

Questions about your lease | security deposit deductions? Questions about subletting/assigning leases? Questions about the condition of your new house or apartment? Contact the Student Legal Services Office. 922 Campus Center. 545-1995.

TRAVEL

FREE TRIPS AND CASH!**
Find out how hundreds of students are already earning FREE TRIPS and LOTS OF CASH with America's #1 spring break company! Sell only 15 trips and travel free! Choose Cancun, Bahamas, Mazatlan, or Florida! Call now! TAKE A BREAK STUDENT TRAVEL (800) 95-Break.

Spring Break Travel free with Sun Splash Tours. Highest commissions, lowest prices. Campus reps wanted! Sell Jamaica, Bahamas, Florida 1-800-426-7710.

Quebec weekend Dec 8 to Sun. $100, only $120 if paid by 10/21! 545-3437.

WANTED

WITNESSES
Trying to locate 4 students who helped an elderly woman who fell at Smith College, College Hall on January 30, 1995. Please call Attorney Susan Sachs 584-8134.

COLLEGIAN Classifieds... They Work! 545-3500

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING INSERTION ORDER

Client: Date: Taken By:

Date(s) to run: Headline:

Total Days: X Words: = X rate = Payment

Special heading ($2.50 extra): Authorized signature:

ADVERTISING COPY

1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9 10

Insert one character, space, or punctuation mark per box - use capital letters where they apply - Cost figured on each line of form used - see rate card

YOUR DAILY HOROSCOPE

ARIES (March 21–April 19): Avoid taking your frustrations out on other people who don't deserve it. Work is the best therapy for those feeling glum.

Taurus (April 20–May 20): A lack of rest could affect your outlook on life. Heed the advise of an old friend. Postpone signing contracts or agreements.

GEMINI (May 21–June 20): An early morning business appointment starts the day on a productive note, but an afternoon firing puts an end to that.

CANCER (June 21–July 22): Adding some touches of bright color to your home or attire will boost your spirits.

LEO (July 23–Aug. 22): Take care of business before turning your attention to outside activities.

VIRGO (Aug 23–Sept. 22): Although you are open to new ideas, a practical streak makes you shoot down pie-in-the-sky proposals.

LIBRA (Sept. 23– Oct. 22): Don't get out of bed today, your day is destined to suck. Hey, don't ask me, it's in the stars.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23–Nov. 21): New friends can quickly become close pals as old ties fade away. Nothing ventured nothing gained.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22–Dec. 21): Romance is in the air today. People with dark hair are especially desirable.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22–Jan. 19): A child helps you discover the type of person you want to be, but you have no chance of becoming that person.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20–Feb. 18): Everyone knows that these are the coolest people on the planet. Take the day off and drink all day and night.

PISCES (Feb.19–March 20): Look your best when attending an important business function. That way, they won't know that you're drunk.

Collegian Graphics

We're up all night putting together New England's largest daily college newspaper!

When our job is done – your day is just beginning.

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE

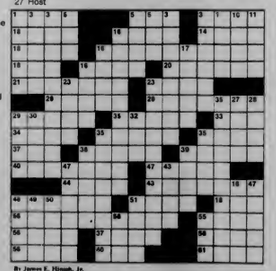
edited by Trude Michael Jaffe

ACROSS
1 Radar's outfit
5 Wicked
8 By means of, briefly
12 Whale of a swimmer
13 Caesar's co-star
14 Entertain the idea
15 Noted British film director
16 Breaking up
18 Formicary's denizen
19 Petty quarrel
20 Become known
21 Drum sound
23 Certain market
24 Usa pressure
25 Former mayor of New York
29 Seraglio
31 Oryx's cousin
33 Malapropo or Miniver
34 Seed integument
35 Minoan realm
36 Role for Roz or Angela
37 Tabard was one
38 Blemish
39 Bacchanalian creature
40 Straw hat
42 Campaign directive
44 Break —; good luck
45 Tottering
48 Colored crayon
51 Make money
52 Wade's adversary
53 Painting technique
55 Caprote's coin
56 Ely or Wight
57 Psalm
58 Part of a monogram, for short
59 Charbroil
60 Red and White
61 Sponsorship

DOWN
1 Bicuspid's neighbor
2 Cobo or Omni
3 A few here and there
4 Solo of "Star Wars"
5 Dhow or prau
6 Tread the boards
7 180th meridian, mostly
8 Pass through an eye
9 Legatee
10 Pealed
11 Impulse
13 Magpies' sound
16 Wrangle
17 Correct a text
19 From — to stern
22 Kerrigan feat
23 Attractive
26 Superficial knowledge
27 Host
28 Belgian river
29 "To a Skylark" opener
30 "Rule Britannia" composer
32 Actor Canou
35 Unmindful
36 Senator from Florida
38 Rental sign
39 Mennonites, for one
41 "Mad as a —"
43 Cod
46 Shinto gateway
47 Irish poet
48 Greek letters
49 Basilica section
50 Room, in a hacienda
51 Husky
54 Pooh's pal
55 Untruth

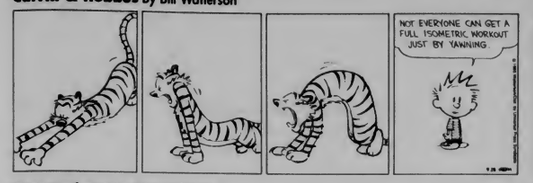
ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE:

S	I	R	E	D		O	D	E	S		S	P	A	S
A	D	A	G	E		K	E	P	I		T	E	N	T
D	E	M	O	N	I	A	C	A	L		A	C	N	E
E	S	P		I	D	Y	L		T	A	L	C	U	M
		S	E	E	S	A	W		V	I	A	L	S
L	U	S	T	R	E		R	E	M	A	N	D
A	C	H	E			D	E	L	O	S		I	M	P
G	L	I	T	T	E	R		T	I	T	U	L	A	R
S	A	L		A	M	A	S	S			E	L	S	E
		L	A	S	S	I	E		P	I	L	O	T	S
S	H	E	D	S		N	E	G	A	T	E
C	A	L	V	E	S		D	E	N	S		I	N	S
A	L	A	I		P	O	I	N	S	E	T	T	I	A
L	O	G	I	S		A	V	E	R		L	E	E	S
A	S	H	E		R	A	R	E		F	A	R	E	S

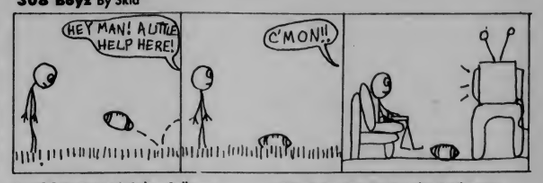


By James E. Hirsch, Jr.
© 1995 Los Angeles Times Syndicate

Calvin & Hobbes By Bill Watterson



308 Boyz By Skid



Generation X By Chris Lehman

SIR, I JUST COULDN'T DO MY 1000-WORD PAPER ON TIME. BUT I HAVE A GOOD START.
"The
WELL, YOU HAVE 999 MORE WORDS.
NO...1000! THAT'S THE START OF MY TITLE.
I SEE 'GOLDEN ARCHES' IN YOUR MIDDLE AGE.

Leold By Roger & Salem Salloom

I've noticed how unkind life can be to people. They don't have any real chance to change things for themselves.

They work hard. Others push them and they push themselves squeezing every useful minute out of each day. They try not to waste the smallest hand movement which they must make to earn a living.

They struggle.

They live quietly as a family in their homes on their streets. At night the men and women hug each other in bed trying to help. The children lie still, dreaming, not knowing what their fate really is.

I care about these people, but not too much.

Close to Home By John McPherson

The Amazing Spiderman By Stan Lee

YOU SAVED ME FROM THOSE MUGGERS!
UH-OH! WE'RE DRAWING A CROWD!
C'MON, SPIDEY! HUG MISS STEWART AGAIN!
GREAT! WHAT A SHOT!
OH NO! WHAT'S M-J GONNA THINK?!!

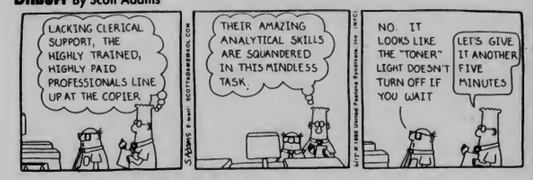
Lost Horizons By Douglas Cellineri

I DON'T UNDERSTAND WHY YOU LOVE NATURE SO MUCH.
BJ, THIS IS OUR ANCESTRY.
PEOPLE NEED TO BE RE-ACQUAINTED WITH THEIR PRIMAL ROOTS... NATURE IS OUR MOTHER.
WHO'S OUR FATHER?
OPPRESSIVE, PROFIT-MINDED CAPITALISM.
WELL, AT LEAST SOMEBODY IS GOT MARRIED IN THIS COUNTRY
MOM'S SUING FOR DIVORCE

Bruno By C. Baldwin

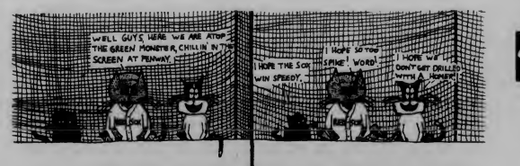
SO JEREMY, I'M STUCK BEING AN OVER-EMOTIONAL WRECK, OVER-AFFECTED BY EVERY LITTLE THING. I DON'T KNOW IF I CAN MAKE IT.
WELL...IT'S OBVIOUS THAT YOU CAN'T JUST BURY YOUR EMOTIONS.
HOW ABOUT IF I CONSTANTLY MANIPULATE MYSELF TO BELIEVE I FEEL DIFFERENTLY THAN HOW I ACTUALLY DO?
I'M NOT SURE IF THAT'S ETHICAL.
AM I HEARING A BETTER SUGGESTION?
WELL... BUT WHAT IF YOU FELT ONE WAY THAT WAS REALLY DEMEANING, BUT YOU BELIEVED YOU FELT OTHERWISE?
WELL... THEN I WOULDN'T NOTICE IT, NOW WOULD I?
OH YEAH, WON'T THAT THOUGHT FEEL WARM ON CHILLY NIGHTS.
DID ANYONE EVER TELL YOU YOU'D LOOK REALLY GOOD WITH A LIMP?
BUT ARE YOU REALLY FEELING HOSTILITY, OR HAVE YOU ALREADY BEGUN YOUR EMOTIONAL RE-FABRICATION?
HOPE, PRETTY SURE ABOUT THIS ONE.

Dilbert By Scott Adams



LACKING CLERICAL SUPPORT, THE HIGHLY TRAINED, HIGHLY PAID PROFESSIONALS LINE UP AT THE COPIER.
THEIR AMAZING ANALYTICAL SKILLS ARE SQUANDERED IN THIS MINDLESS TASK.
NO. IT LOOKS LIKE THE "TONER" LIGHT DOESN'T TURN OFF IF YOU WAIT
LET'S GIVE IT ANOTHER FIVE MINUTES

Loser Crow Comics By Mike Krozy



WELL GUYS, HERE WE ARE ATOP THE GREEN MONSTER, CHILLIN IN THE SCREEN AT FENWAY
I HOPE THE SOX WIN SPEEDY.
I HOPE SO TOO MIKE!
WORD!
HOPE WE'RE DON'T GET DRILLED WITH A HOMER!
CRACK
YEAH! THE YANKEES ARE UP!
IT'S A SUPERSTITIOUS GAME, HUH? MAYBE CLIFF SHOULD HAVE KEPT QUIET!

Small Potatoes By Jon Art

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY COLLEGIAN

Top 10 By Brian Marchionni

Top 10 Ways to Get Rid of Your Roommate

10. Stock the Microfridge with nothing but Dill pickles.
9. Frequently talk to your "little elf friends."
8. Insist that s/he call you "sunshine."
7. (Insert own masturbation joke here.)
6. Listen to Raffi 24 hours a day.
5. Give your room that "Smurf" motif.
4. Moan in your sleep.
3. Wave your arms in the air and run out of the room screaming every time s/he says "Hello."
2. Wake him/her up every night and ask if you can go to the bathroom.
1. Walk around the room wearing only socks, insist s/he do the same.

Today's Staff

Night Editor ..... Jacob W. Michaels
Copy Editor ..... Amy Paradysz
Photo Technician ..... Jeff DiGiovani
Production Supervisor ..... Joshua Grey
Production ..... Marc Dionne, Marianne Haner

Dining Commons Menu

SORRY- NO MENU
CALL 5-2626

GET EXPERIENCED

Write for the Collegian News Desk

Quote of the Day

"Intimacy is the principle source of the sugars with which this life is sweetened."

-Tom Robbins

Sports

Soccer programs take to the road to face their coaches' old teams

■ Men make trip to Palo Alto for Stanford Classic ■ Women head to sunshine state for 2 key games

By Mike Corey
Collegian Corespondent

The University of Massachusetts men's soccer team is looking to rebound today after a 4–1 defeat against Hartford on Tuesday. They are on the west coast for the weekend to play San Francisco this afternoon, and Stanford on Sunday.

The big story, however, is that the Minutemen will have to do without the services of senior midfielder Karsten Bremke, and junior defensive back Joe Jacobson. Neither players made the trip out west.

Bremke was injured in Tuesday's loss to Hartford when he caught a cleat from goaltender Christian DiGenova while attempting to score. Jacobson was inactive in the last two games for the Minutemen as he is nursing a torn tendon in his right arm.

Goalkeeper Eric Gruber is also questionable for this weekend's matches as he had to be helped off the field on Tuesday when he was clipped, and injured his left leg. Whether Gruber will start in goal this weekend depends on how he feels after practice.

Today, Massachusetts Coach Sam Koch will return to his old stomping grounds in Stanford, where he coached for six years before coming to UMass. Stanford comes into today's match with a mark of 3–4, while the Minutemen stand at 6–3–1. Stanford in not much of a scoring threat as they have only scored more than one goal once this season and also have been shut out once. They have given up 11 goals this season, while only scoring eight. Stanford is riding a three- game losing streak into today's contest.

On Sunday, the Minutemen will face the San Francisco Dons and coach Steve Negoesco, who, with 496 wins, is the winning–est coach in NCAA soccer history. San Francisco has a record of 3–2–1, scoring 16 goals and only giving up eight.

Chris McDonald is the player to take into consideration for the Dons. He has 10 points on the year with four goals, and two assists. The probability of a UMass victory will rest on playing good defense in shutting down McDonald, along with the rest of the San Francisco offense, which has four other players with five or more points.

UMass has outshot opponents 138–133 this season, and have scored 23 goals while allowing 17. Junior Dave Siljanovski, with six goals, leads the way in scoring for the Minutemen.

As UMass hopes to put the poor showing against Hartford behind them, defense will be the key. High scoring affairs this weekend is not to UMass' advantage as all of UMass' wins except one have come when holding opponents to one goal or less a game.

DAYMION SMITH/COLLEGIAN

Freshman Paul Corcoran and the UMass men's soccer team will try not to get pushed around this weekend when they travel to California to take part in the Stanford Classic.

By Candice Flemming
Collegian Staff

The Massachusetts women's soccer team surely will not have to worry about playing in rainy weather this weekend, as it heads to sunny Florida for two key match–ups.

The Minutewomen, who have played two of three home games in the rain, will play Colorado College on Saturday at 11 a.m. and Central Florida on Sunday at 1 p.m.

Neither team is nationally ranked, but both are expected to pose a formidable challenge to the Minutewomen. The two teams played each other yesterday, but the results were not available as of press time.

Colorado College, according to Massachusetts coach Jim Rudy, "is off to its best start in recent years," and because the Tigers played UCF yesterday in Orlando, they will be more acclimated to the weather than the Minutewomen.

Against CC, UMass will have to watch out for sophomore forward Martina Holan, who has three game–winning goals. On the season, Holan has eight goals and one assist for 17 points.

"She's a dangerous player," Rudy said. "She's rated as a very good one–on–one player."

Amy Snyder can also score for the Tigers, as she has four goals and three assists for 11 points.

In goal for Colorado could be either Robyn Bilski or Audrey Maxfield. Bilski started the first five games of the season, winning them all, while Maxfield started the last two, and lost them both.

Bilski was impressive in her five starts giving up only four goals for an 0.89 goals–against–average with two shutouts. In her three games of action, Maxfield shared a shutout.

UCF, the team which Rudy coached before he came to UMass in 1988, comes in with a 5–2–2 record.

Amy Jones is the leading scorer for the Golden Knights with 22 points on nine goals and four assists. Three of her nine goals are game–winners.

Also posing a threat to score for UCF will be Jennifer O'Connor and Kelly Stout. O'Connor is second on the team in scoring with 17 points (six goals, five assists) and Stout is third with 13 points (four, five)

In goal for the Golden Knights should be Alyssa O'Brien, who has started eight games. O'Brien has one shutout and sports a 1.66 GAA.

* * *

Minutewomen notes: Rebecca Myers, out since the George Washington game on Sept. 8 with a hamstring injury, should see action this weekend... Rachel LeDue and Erin Lynch were named to the Soccer America Women's National Team of the Week, for their outstanding play at the UMass Classic last weekend. LeDuc scored four goals and notched two assists over the weekend to improve her season total to 21 points (nine goals, three assist) while Lynch was named the UMass Classic Defensive MVP... The Minutewomen were ranked No. 6 in this week's Soccer News poll while remaining No. 11 in the Soccer America Poll.

DAYMION SMITH/COLLEGIAN

Erin Lynch (13) and Polly Hackathorn (19) hope to continue the high scoring trend for the Minutewomen this weekend in Orlando, Fla.

Football ready for Rams' air assault

Jordan learning, looking to future

By Mike Brown
Collegian Staff

College football teams fluctuate talent–wise from year to year. Some years, recruiting classes are more talented than others. Some years, recruiting talent remains consistent.

Six years ago, Jim Reid, who was then head coach at UMass, recruited running back Rene Ingoglia, who has broken just about every rushing record in school history.

In 1992, Mike Hodges took the helm of the Minutemen with the comfort of an All–American running back in his possession. When recruiting for the following season, he did not have to worry about the position.

At the conclusion of the 1993 season, Hodges began thinking about getting a young running back at UMass for the 1994 campaign. His vision was to bring in a young strong player, teach him the system and prepare him for a starting role.

Hodges recruited Matt Jordan from Derry, N.H. for the 1994 season. With Ingoglia and tailback Frank Alessio healthy and eligible for a couple more seasons, Hodges decided to redshirt Jordan for the 1994 season.

This year, Ingoglia is a senior and Alessio, a junior. Jordan steps in as a freshman with a year under the influence of the UMass offense. He has been able to fully comprehend the Minutemen ground attack, and learn from Ingoglia, the all–time UMass rushing leader.

"After a redshirt year, not playing any games, not having anything to look forward to, it's good to get out there and finally get into the thick of things again," Jordan said. "[Redshirting] gave me an opportunity to learn the offense, and to pick up the things I hadn't been associated with in high school. I just got bigger and stronger and learned the system here at UMass."

Jordan's role thus far is simple — go in there and do the best he can when the coach says the word. Hodges has given Jordan the word.

Turn to JORDAN page 7

THANG VO/COLLEGIAN

Freshman Matt Jordan has drawn a crowd with his play in the UMass backfield. Jordan and his mates travel to Kingston, RI, Saturday to take on the Rams.

Water polo rolls on; Beats outclassed Eagles

By Fred Hurlbrink, Jr.
Collegian Correspondent

Domination; Complete and total domination.

The University of Massachusetts men's water polo team simply was too good for a young and inexperienced Boston College squad as the Minutemen cruised to victory, 21–6.

UMass manhandled the Eagles from the beginning, scoring seven first–quarter points. The Limardo brothers accounted for five of the seven; Luis scored three straight to end the quarter, and J.C. scored off a rebound from a Greg Mention blast about halfway through the period — his shot counting for two points.

The Massachusetts fast break was clicking all night, keyed by aggressive defense and the long–passing of goalie Alex Mujica who blanked Boston College in the first half.

The UMass fast break led to four goals in the first half including a two–on–one break between Luis Limardo and Menton. Limardo made a nice steal and a terrific pass to a streaking Menton who blasted it by Eagles' goalie, freshman Marc Santaro.

Menton added another, as the Minutemen went into halftime with a 13–0 lead.

"I just told them I wanted them to pitch a shutout the first half, and they did," said UMass coach Russ Yarworth. The impressive victory in front of a modest crowd at

Turn to POLO, page 6

Pennant races still fun in old baseball homes

All those wild–card nay–sayers who claimed that it would effectively eliminate enthralling pennant races should hide their heads as baseball enters its final weekend with a division and a pair of wild–cards up for grabs.

Talk to baseball fans in Los Angeles, where not one, but both of their teams are engaged in a fierce playoff struggle that might not be decided until the final day of the season. The excitement is gripping.

Around the Horn
with Leigh Torbin

How could the Dodgers–Rockies pennant race be any less exciting with the wild–card. If anything it becomes more intense, because if the teams both go on losing streaks, one of them will have to cough up their berth in favor of a hungry and surging Astro team, which is just a game out of the playoffs.

The California Angels and Seattle Mariners created a solid race when the Angels started gagging after UMass alum Gary DiSarcina went down with a wrist injury. A slew of EMTs using the Heimlich maneuver couldn't even stop their choking now, as it appears that the Mariners will set sail for the post season for the first time ever.

To all wild–card bashers on the homefront, remember that under the old system, the Boston Red Sox would be 12 games behind the Indians, and long since eliminated from the playoffs. Instead of pennant fever gripping the hub, we'd be left to dwell on greedy. We've seen ODU before, but this time, we're both better."

Turn to HORN, page 6

Field hockey gets rematch with Old Dominion

By Brian Perillo
Collegian Staff

For the second time this season, the Massachusetts field hockey team will try to knock off rival Old Dominion when they travel to Storrs, Conn., Sunday for a rematch with the No. 6 Lady Monarchs at 1 p.m.

The Minutewomen fell to Old Dominion 2–0 Sept. 15 in Chapel Hill, North Carolina. During that contest, UMass goaltender Stacy Walker played with a sprained Medial Collateral Ligament.

"We learned last time that we can beat them," said UMass coach Megan Donnelly. "We match up very well with them. We have to understand that we have to play as well as we can play and not be concerned with how Old Dominion plays."

In the first contest, ODU's Danielle Chellew scored both goals for the Lady Monarchs on penalty corners. Chellew, who will probably be matched up against UMass' Kyle Rothenberger, leads Old Dominion with seven goals on 41 shots.

The Minutewomen are coming off a 3–1 loss at the hands of No. 7 Northeastern, and have a record of 3–6 on the season.

"Northeastern was not a case of a team beating us," Donnelly said. "We beat ourselves."

When UMass plays Old Dominion, however, you can throw records and ranks out the window, and Donnelly knows both teams will be ready for Sunday's contest.

"This is a big rivalry. We will be extremely fired up for this game and I know they are getting up for us. Nobody takes UMass lightly. Every team knows we can win any game at any time. That is what makes us a scary opponent."

The Lady Monarchs enter Sunday's game with a record of 5–4, fresh off a 3–0 win over William & Mary. All of ODU's losses have come at the hands of Top 15 opponents, including a 5–0 defeat at the hands of No. 1 North Carolina.

As for the Minutewomen, one thing they will have going for them that they did not have in their last encounter with Old Dominion is a healthy Stacy Walker.

"Stacy's mobility is back, along with her confidence," Donnelly said.

Forward Kate Putnam has also been a big plus. The freshman has stepped up and played exceptionally for the Minutewomen, scoring the last two UMass goals.

"She is fun to watch. She has great poise on the field," Donnelly said. "Her goal against Northeastern was the type of goal you expect from an upperclassman. It was just excellent."

As for UMass, they are still waiting for that one breakout win to get them rolling.

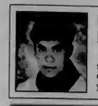
"This team is going to explode on somebody," Donnelly said. "We're capable of winning every game, but we're just not finishing. We need to start getting greedy. We've seen ODU before, but this time, we're both better."

The Massachusetts
DAILY COLLEGIAN
Volume CV Issue 19 New England's Largest College Daily • Founded in 1890 • Daily Since 1967 Monday, October 2, 1995

NATHAN MARTIN / COLLEGIAN

JazzoTree...

Richard Pleasant, lead performer of the band JazzoTree, sings his poetry last Thursday afternoon, during WMUA's "Voices of the Third World" radio show (see related story, page 5).



UMass, Walker blank ODU

Goalkeeper Stacy Walker made 18 saves as the Minutewomen field hockey team upset No. 6 Old Dominion yesterday (See Sports, page 10).

Giving kids a 'Head Start'

Local kids will now get the chance to attend Head Start due to an expansion in the Hampshire county program (see story, page 2).

Don't mess with Tizzy

Northampton's Tizzy opened up for UMass' own Mitchells at their record release party this past Thursday night (See Arts & Living, page 5).

Extended Forecast

The sun will be out today, with a high in the mid 70s. The cold weather returns tonight with a low in the 40s. Expect the sun with increasing clouds and a chance of rain tomorrow.

Today	Tuesday	Wednesday
HIGH: 77 LOW: 51	HIGH: 75 LOW: 50	HIGH: 70 LOW: 40

Two new bills make bicycling safer & easier

By Allison Connolly
Collegian Staff

State Senator Stan Rosenberg (D–Amherst) said yesterday that the Senate Ways and Means Committee has approved two bills that would improve bicycling in Massachusetts.

The two bills would provide for the Massachusetts Highway Department (MHD) to incorporate bicycle and pedestrian traffic in the planning, design, construction and maintenance of any project.

Rosenberg, a member of the Ways and Means Committee and co–sponsor of the bill, said the bills are important because the MHD does not have safe cycling routes in mind when constructing state roads.

"Basically, these two bills were designed to get the state Highway Department to do the work necessary to make bicycling safe," Rosenberg said. "It's an afterthought at best. They'll keep it in mind when building [certain] projects."

The bills would also provide for the MHD Commissioner to adopt a written policy on bicycling and to create roadway design guidelines to make it easier and safer.

"It's not easy to bicycle in a lot of places," Rosenberg said. "A lot of infrastructure was not created with it in mind."

The establishment of an MHD bicycling advisory board and a state bicycling office in the MHD was also recommended.

"Ensuring access to safe routes on state roads is an environmentally sound policy," Rosenberg said. "And it's important for the many cyclists who enjoy their bikes for recreation and commuting."

Rosenberg also acknowledged that cycling has become a way of life for people, rather than the leisurely hobby it used to be.

"Bicycling is an alternative to motor vehicle transportation," Rosenberg said. "It's an environmental improvement as well as an improvement for our own health. It's great exercise."

Rosenberg said the bills will be introduced to the senate within a couple of weeks from there it will go to the House Ways and Means Committee.

"The good news is, this one is making progress," Rosenberg said.

Smith College appoints first black president

By Jonathan Liberty
Collegian Correspondent

On Saturday, over 5,000 people rose to their feet to applaud Dr. Ruth Simmons as she entered the Smith College Indoor Track and Tennis Facility at noon to be inaugurated as the school's new president.

Simmons' entrance followed a 15 minute procession which lasted nearly 20 minutes. A multitude of Smith students, faculty and alumnae, as well as Simmons' friends and family, settled down as the ceremony to welcome Smith's first black president came to order.

An invocation was given by the Rev. Hugh Flesher, Dean of the Chapel and the Protestant Chaplain. Flesher proclaimed that this inauguration was a "celebration of the advent of leadership."

The Smith College Glee Club followed the invocation with a musical interpretation of Robert Frost's poem, "Choose Something Like a Star."

Simmons welcomed by many

Kate Belcher Webster, of the class of 1946, Chair of the Board of Trustees officially welcomed Simmons to the Smith College community.

"This is an opportunity to share our joy as we enter a new era here at Smith College," Webster said.

Smith professor of sociology and anthropology Peter Rose spoke on behalf of the faculty.

"We have chosen Ruth Simmons in order to preserve, protect, and enhance liberal arts education," he said. "The future of our institution and all of society depends upon it."

The president of the Student Government Association, senior Janice Y. Lee, said that the diversity of Smith's student population, which she said covers all 50 states, 73 countries and ages from 16 to 62, will only be bettered by Simmons' presence.

Several letters of greeting from Smith alumni were read by Jane Anderson Howard, Chair of the Staff Council and President of the Alumni Association.

Messages included were "Bravo! You have once again put Smith into the forefront of excellence," and "This is the largest gift I have ever given to Smith; it is because of the wonderful selection of Dr. Simmons."

Confidence from peers

Presidents from three other institutions, two of whom had connections to Simmons, were also on hand to congratulate Simmons on her new position.

First to speak was Hampshire College president Gregory Prince, Jr., who represented the Five–College Consortium. Prince stressed the importance of cooperation between the schools in the consortium, and their respective communities.

Johnetta B. Cole, President of Spelman College spoke next. Simmons served as provost of the historically black women's institution from 1990 to 1992.

"Sister President," Cole said, addressing Simmons. "It is with enormous pride and joy that Spelman salutes the appointment of Ruth Simmons to the helm of Smith College, a sterling institution for women."

The final speaker before Simmons herself took the podium was Harold T. Shapiro, president of Princeton University. Simmons served as an administrator at the Ivy League school from 1983–1992, and as vice–provost from 1992–1995.

Shapiro joked about the doubts throughout history about the role of women in higher education before offering a more serious message to Simmons.

"You are responsible for the spiritual and mental growth of your students," he said. "For transforming

Turn to SMITH, page 3

THANG VO / COLLEGIAN

Dr. Ruth Simmons speaks during the press conference after being inaugurated as Smith College's first African– American President.

Sophomore given four–months for sexual assault

By Amy H. Paradysz
Collegian Staff

University of Massachusetts sophomore Peter Hebenstreit began a four–month sentence at the Hampshire County House of Correction in Northampton Thursday after a jury found him guilty of sexual assault.

Hebenstreit allegedly assaulted a female in a University of Massachusetts bathroom stall last year, said Assistant District Attorney Winston Burt. The testimony "involved touching her breasts and having her touch his genital region," he said.

The testimony seemed to indicate that Hebenstreit "had been consuming alcohol" and "they were acquainted," Burt said.

Hebenstreit allegedly entered a toilet stall in a residence hall in the Sylvan Residential Area, where he found the victim, Burt said.

After a two–day trial, the jury found 19–year–old Hebenstreit guilty of one of the two counts of indecent assault and battery of a person under the age of 14, with which he was charged, according to Phil Cavanaugh, assistant director of the University of Massachusetts Police Department.

Assistant District Attorney Melinda Soffer was the prosecutor in the case, but she was unavailable for comment.

Burt was not able to specify which count brought Hebenstreit his jail sentence.

Hebenstreit requested a stay of the sentence in order to finish the semester, but "the judge didn't allow it," Burt said.

The judge ordered a one–year split sentence, with some direct jail time and some suspended jail time. One hundred and twenty days must be "direct time," Burt said.

The judge also recommended Howard Street, a Springfield rehabilitation facility for people "convicted of alcohol–related crimes," according to Burt.

"There is some doubt whether Mr. Hebenstreit is eligible to go there," said Burt who described the facility as "selective."

On June 13, Hebenstreit was charged with "assault and battery of a dangerous weapon," according to court documents. The "weapon" in that Amherst incident was a paintball gun. The charge was amended to "assault."

Expansion of lot 44 creates more spaces

By Amy Scott
Collegian Staff

Students, faculty and staff who park at the north end of campus are about to have 100 new reasons not to buy the expensive parking permits or to hike into campus from distant yellow lots.

University Parking Services will finish adding approximately 100 parking spaces, including about 20 metered spots, to purple lot 44 in a couple of weeks, "or at least before the snow flies," said Parking Manager Lynn Braddock.

Parking Services chose to expand lot 44 because of a need for parking at that location for all members of the University community, Braddock said.

Lot 44 is located behind Sylvan Residential Area and Mark's Meadow Elementary School, and is adjacent to the north athletic fields.

According to Braddock, complaints of overcrowding in lot 44 from permit holders sparked the project.

"We understood that people were having to park in yellow lots (which serve as overflow lots), so we identified a need for more spaces at that location," she said. "It's not so much that we needed [to sell] more spaces."

The new permit–regulated spaces provide inexpensive, convenient parking to those who live and work at the northeastern end of campus, Braddock said.

She also said students who live in Sylvan and Northeast Residential Areas especially needed such a parking option. The meters will provide visitors to that end of campus with a place to put their cars as well, she added.

Braddock said permit, meter and ticket revenue earned through Parking Services funded the new parking facilities.

University Facilities Planning designed the lot addition, drew up the contract with the company doing the work, and oversees the construction, Braddock said. Nobody at Facilities Planning was available for comment by press time.

The project, on which construction began early this month, has been in the works for a couple of years, Braddock said. She cited a "timing issue" as the cause for the delay — finding a time when Parking Services and Facilities Planning could work together on the project, for example.

Braddock added that clearing plans for the lot's water drainage with Mark's Meadow was time consuming.

"We didn't want to cause any problems with the children's play area" Braddock said."We wanted to make sure the water would run off properly."

Lenore Carlisle, principal of Mark's Meadow, agrees that Facilities Planning and Parking Services have been considerate of the school.

"They've been very attentive and thoughtful," Carlisle said. "We feel very good about this."

Carlisle said the workers are moving a fence so that the addition interferes with the school even less.

According to Carlisle, the construction isn't a distraction.

"We once had a roof installed while school was in session, so this isn't so bad," she said.

Braddock said that the project did not take land away from the elementary school. She said she believes the land was vacant before it became the site for the addition.

According to Parking Services regulations, any member of the University community may purchase a permit for purple lot 44. Those who have a permit for this lot may park in any other purple lot on campus, as well as at any yellow lot, at any time.

Campus Police Log

Liquor law violations

Sept. 28

Jeffrey R. Driscoll, 18, of 7 Realton Rd., West Roxbury, was arrested for possession of alcohol.

Dennis J. OBrien, 19, of 150 Melrose Ave., Needham, was arrested for purchasing and possession of alcohol.

Douglas D. Cierniak, 17, of 403 Musket Dr., Morrisville, Pa., was arrested for transporting alcohol.

Larceny

Sept. 28

There were two bicycles stolen from Washington Residence Hall.

There was a bicycle stolen from Hamlin Residence Hall.

There was a bicycle stolen from the W.E.B. DuBois Library.

Annoying behavior

Sept. 28

An individual reported that someone put a lock on her bike at Thompson Hall.

Sept. 29

An individual at Pierpont Residence Hall reported being threatened.

Restraining order service

Sept. 28

There was a restraining order imposed on an individual in the Campus Center.

Vandalism

Sept. 28

A vehicle in Parking Lot 43 was damaged.

Disturbance

Sept. 29

Jeremy T. Bolio, 18, of 224 Old Spofford Rd., Winchester, N.H., was arrested for disorderly conduct.

Gringrich criticized in national magazine

WASHINGTON (AP) — For the second time in less than two months, a major national magazine has published an extensive and highly critical profile of House Speaker Newt Gingrich.

Gingrich's political plans, beliefs and techniques take a beating in the Oct. 9 edition of The New Yorker, which goes on newsstands Monday.

The 26-page piece, entitled "The Politics of Perception," comes barely a month after Vanity Fair published Gail Sheehy's dissection of Gingrich's personal history and morality.

Gingrich's spokesmen were not immediately available to respond to The New Yorker article.

Connie Bruck, author of books on financier Michael Milken and the late Time Warner chief, Steve Ross, as well as a May 1994 New Yorker profile of Hillary Clinton, depicts Gingrich as a man so bent on sweeping away the old and keeping up appearances that:

• He has told associates that "eventually it would be better" if task forces replaced the congressional committee system, and one associate said the transition had already begun. Bruck says already there are up to 35 task forces operating on Capitol Hill; she quotes Barry Jackson, executive director of the House Republican Conference, as saying they function as "competing centers" to the committees. The groups are temporary and operate with little oversight.

• He wouldn't let a photographer take his picture until after victory on an important bill he wasn't sure would pass. "I did not want a picture in defeat," he told Bruck.

Bruck quotes conservatives and Gingrich associates as concerned about inconsistencies in Gingrich's policy positions. She quotes him as having replied to one of them, former Gingrich chief of staff Frank Gregorsky, "Saving civilization is hard. You have to be fluid."

The article notes a number of instances where Gingrich's words seem to be at odds with other accounts and impressions.

• Bruck quotes Gingrich as denying he had "anything do to with" the role of GOPAC, the national fund-raising apparatus he headed until recently, in the 1992 Georgia redistricting that assured him a safe, suburban GOP district. She said Gingrich aide Mel Steely was on the scene and Don Hill, the computer consultant for state Republicans, had told her Gingrich and his close adviser, Joe Gaylord, had taken part in numerous strategy sessions.

• Bruck builds up evidence of Gingrich's mastery of long- and short-term strategy, from issue-framing to campaign tactics to deciding which members to strong-arm and which to flatter.

Amherst expands Head Start

New building renovated for classrooms, increased enrollment

By Matthew Pottinger
Collegian Staff

The old North Amherst school building opened its doors to 36 Head Start pre-schoolers last Friday.

The building's first floor, which recently underwent extensive renovations, will replace the Bangs Community Center in Amherst as the site for the Head Start program.

The new building, which houses three classrooms, will mean higher enrollment and an expansion in the area served by the program. Whereas Amherst alone was served by the old site, families from four towns — Amherst, Belchertown, Hadley and Pelham — may now participate in the program.

According to Carol Bond, Director of Head Start for Hampshire County, a staff increase at the new location will permit the serving of 20 home-based children in addition to those enrolled at the center.

Together with the increase in enrollment afforded by the new location, the program's services have also been expanded from half-days to full-days.

The new center, which now employs 45 paid staff-members, is "always looking for volunteers; we love having them," Bond said.

Renovations on the facility, which include lead paint abatement, heating system replacement, handicapped accessibility and a new play area, were made possible by the combination of a $274,000 federal grant administered by the Town of Amherst, and approximately $90,000 from Hampshire Community Action Commission (HCAC).

Head Start is a nation-wide, federally funded program which prepares four-year-olds from income-eligible families for public school. Originally established as an eight-week summer program during the Johnson Administration, the program was transformed to run year-round, and has seen a consistent increase in funding over the last six years.

Described by Bond as "one of [America's] largest grass roots organizations," Head Start is currently being considered for limited budget cuts in Congress.

However, the Head Start still falls short of reaching all families eligible for participation in the program. According to Bond, of 880 age and income eligible children in Hampshire County, only 234 are being served by the program. She also estimated that only 15 percent of potential users in the four-town Pioneer Valley region are being served.

A celebration will be held on October 20 celebrating the opening of the new site and Head Start's 30th national anniversary.

For volunteer information, call 582-4206.

Attention Photo Staff!

There is a mandatory photo staff meeting today at 4:00. It is very important that you attend. All those interested in becoming Collegian staff photographers are also invited to attend.

What are the Most Powerful Words In Your Permanent Record?
(check one)
☐ Transcript
☐ Resumé
☐ Diploma
☑ The Wall Street Journal
For special student rates send in coupon below or for faster service call (800) WSJ-8614
7am-10pm Eastern Time Mon.-Fri.
☐ Send me a one-year subscription for $87.00
☐ I'd prefer a 15-week subscription for $33.00
Name
Address
City State Zip
School name Graduation date
☐ Check enclosed ☐ Bill me later ☐ Charge to my ☐ AMEX ☐ VISA ☐ MasterCard ☐ Diners Club
Card no Expiration date
Signature
THE WALL STREET JOURNAL
Mail coupon to: The Wall Street Journal 200 Burnett Road, Chicopee, MA 01020
©1995 Dow Jones & Company, Inc. All Rights Reserved. Offer good for a limited time and only in the continental U.S.
7567

STUDY ABROAD
Semester, Summer and Year Programs
Ecuador • Spain
England • France
Canada • Mexico
Costa Rica • Italy
INTERNATIONAL isa STUDIES ABROAD
817 W 24th St
Austin TX 78705
(800) 580-8826
•SINCE 1987•

Eating DisorderPrograms • 1995-96
Sponsored by University Health Services
Eating Disorder Assessment Program
For individuals - with Nutritionists, Mental Health Clinician, Physician and/or Nurse Practitioner. Mondays or Wednesdays - Confidentiality Assured.
Call 549-2671 x233, Clinic 4.
Friends and Family Group
Single sessions for those concerned about somebody with an eating disorder.
Call 549-2671 x233, Clinic 4.
Peer Support Group
For those struggling with anorexia, bulimia, or compulsive overeating. Mondays 4:30 - 6 pm, (except holidays) at the Campus Center. Room number posted by elevator. Confidentiality Assured.
Call 549-2671 x233, Clinic 4.
Peer Health Connections
A confidential phone line for help around eating disorders - yourself or someone you know.
Call 549-2671, ext. 168.

Judies
Munchie Madness
Monday - Friday 3 -6
1/2 Price Munchie Menu
Lite - Weight Potato Skins ~~$6.99~~ $3.50
Nachos ~~$5.75~~ $2.88
Gargonzola Buffalo Potatoes ~~$6.95~~ $3.48
And More!
51 N. Pleasant Street • Amherst • 253-3491

Don't just go to shows — Write about them!
Come join us at the Collegian Arts & Living department.
545-3500
113 Campus Center

Research Interviewers
Hiring Now For Evening and Weekend Hours
No Selling Involved
Interesting part-time telephone assignments to collect data on a variety of research topics. Absolutely no selling involved. Computer/typing skills required. Flexible hours: Monday-Friday, 5pm-10pm, Saturday 11am-5pm and Sunday 3pm-9pm. Must work a minimum of 20 hours per week. Start at $5.25/hour with paid training and earn up to $7.00/hour.
We're in the Mountain Farms Mall, which is a stop on the free bus line. Call between 9am-5pm, Monday-Friday; (413) 586-8635.
Abt Associates, Telephone Research Center, Mountain Farms Mall, Rt. 9, Hadley, MA 01035. An Equal Opportunity Employer.
Abt
Abt Associates Inc.

Cosponsored by:
Campus Activities
Chancellor's Office
Office of Human Relations
School of Education
Training and Development Unit
Monday, October 2, 1995
7:00-9:30pm
Mahar Auditorium
Premier Showing of
"Skin Deep"
A Video on College Students Talking About Race and Racism Which Features Two UMass Students
Filmmaker Frances Reid of Iris Films will introduce the video. Discussion groups follow the showing.

Walk on water.

ZUM
Amherst
Williamstown
Brattleboro

THANG VO / COLLEGIAN

Bpprruttz...

A young boy designs his own spin art at the 9th Annual Apple Harvest Festival, last weekend at the Amherst Common.

Talks, fighting continues in Sarajevo

By Srecko Latal
Associated Press

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina — U.S. envoy Richard Holbrooke took his peace mission to the third Balkan capital in as many days Sunday, trying to close the gap between the warring sides in the former Yugoslavia and forge a cease-fire.

But prospects appeared slim for a truce in Bosnia anytime soon, with government troops pressing an offensive in the west and rebel Serbs struggling to regain lost ground.

Holbrooke met Sunday in Zagreb with Croatian President Franjo Tudjman after inconclusive talks with the Bosnian government in Sarajevo and Serbian President Slobodan Milosevic, the main powerbroker in the Balkans.

"Every time we talk, each side clarifies its views a little."

Holbrooke said before leaving Belgrade, the Serbian capital, for Zagreb.

"But while both sides say they want to stop the fighting, they haven't agreed on how this would be done. We are working very intensively on it."

Holbrooke, an assistant secretary of state, is trying to build on what Washington considers the best prospects yet for ending the war. The warring parties agreed last week in New York on a power-sharing scheme for a future government, although tricky details have yet to be resolved.

Earlier, they agreed to keep Bosnia as a single state, divided roughly in half between the Bosnian Serbs and a Muslim-Croat federation. Specific territorial division will require tough negotiations.

"As we said many times, the distance separating the two sides is very large on all the basic issues," Holbrooke said.

Milosevic, in a statement, said a cease-fire was a prerequisite for any high-level peace talks, after which "the cease-fire should transform into a permanent peace."

Tudjman and Holbrooke discussed the last Serb-held land in Croatia, an eastern stretch bordering Serbia.

■ Smith

continued from page 3

them into leaders and even the saviors of humankind."

Simmons was then officially installed as President of Smith, as Webster presented her with the symbols of office.

"Women must be educated as if their very lives depend upon it," Simmons said at the start of her inaugural address. "And for most it will."

Shortly after the ceremony, Simmons stated her candid beliefs about the Smith experience.

"I have come from Princeton, and I see so many things that Smith does better," she said. "Why doesn't anyone know about it?"

Pesticides monitored in apples

Methods for managing pest & pesticides exhibited in Valley

By Bryan Schwartzman
Collegian Staff

Many students may not be aware that the University of Massachusetts Horticultural Research Center is the source of the apples eaten daily in dining commons across campus.

Located in Belchertown, the center hosted an apple growing demonstration last Saturday featuring Integrated Pest Management (IPM) techniques. These methods were developed in response to the overuse of pesticides by farmers in the 1960s.

IPM combines biological and cultural control methods along with traditional pesticides, a system designed to lead to better results and a safer environment.

"The point of this demonstration is to demonstrate to the public what farmer's are actually doing," said Craig Hollingsworth, UMass Extension Specialist, and Co-IPM coordinator. "When the public receives information about IPM, their confidence in agriculture practices improves."

One of the keys to this type of apple growing is extensive monitoring. Hollingsworth said they have to "monitor their pests in different ways so that they are only using the appropriate amount of pesticide."

Jenn Mason, who is in charge of the implementation of the research for the project said "monitoring is they key to our program."

Cultural control involves thinning and pruning which promotes air movement and faster drying leafs, which leads to less fungi.

The demonstration is part of a project done in conjunction with Connecticut, Maine, New Hampshire and Rhode Island to educate the public to the advantages of IPM.

Saturday's demonstration featured a tour of the IPM research center, and a comparison of traditional and IPM techniques. As a bonus, free home grown apples and cider were offered.

One of the most innovative insect traps displayed was a red croquet ball which insects mistake for an actual apple.

Both University students and local residents in attendance said they were pleased with the IPM demonstration.

Mitch Kovia of Willerbaum said the tips would help him with his "hobby" of growing apple orchards.

"Whatever [field] I go into will be effected by IPM," said Kristen Andersen, a junior plant and soil and environmental science major.

IPM research is done by comparing a block of apples grown in traditional pesticide method and a block grown with IPM.

According to the research, IPM uses 31.7 percent less pesticide than traditional methods. Due to cost factors, the block comparison was not a true scientific experiment, which would have compared techniques on trees in the same block.

For five years the project received $250,000 thousand a year from the United States Department of Agriculture (USDA). The program was introduced to Congress by the late Silvio Conti, a Republican representative from Western Massachusetts. When Conti died, the research was in trouble and in need of another "sponsor," said IPM coordinator and UMass extension specialist Bill Coli.

The void was filled by Senator Kennedy who always managed to get the project in the budget. Once the Republicans gain control of congress, the future of the project came into question. Coli called it "party politics, plain and simple."

However it was just announced two days ago that included the budget being sent to President Bill Clinton is $221,000 for the development of Alternative Agricultural Management Systems like IPM.

Saturday's demonstration featured a tour of the IPM research center, and a comparison of traditional and IPM techniques. As a bonus, free home grown apples and cider were offered.

"We would really like to thank Senator Kennedy and his staff for all their outstanding work in helping bring this funding to the university," Coli said. "This is the kind of money that helps us do the work we do."

Israel troops to pull out of West Bank

By Hilary Appleman
Associated Press

JERUSALEM — After 28 years of occupation, Israel will start withdrawing troops and shutting down the offices of its military government in the West Bank this month, Foreign Minister Shimon Peres said Sunday.

The impending transfer of power set off protests among Jewish settlers, who accused the Israeli government of abandoning them.

Peres, speaking to The Associated Press by telephone from New York, said the troop withdrawal from the West Bank would probably begin "in several weeks."

He said Israel also would shut down the 12 offices of its military government in the West Bank. Shlomo Dror, a spokesman for the military government, said the first four offices would be closed next week, and the others within six months.

Peres repeated Israel's intention to have its troops out of six West Bank towns by the end of the year.

This was part of a compromise worked out between Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin and PLO chief Yasser Arafat just before they signed an accord Thursday in Washington on expanding Palestinian autonomy in the West Bank.

Israel has until March 30 to redeploy troops in the seventh city, Hebron, where 450 Jewish settlers live among 120,000 Palestinians. The transfer of power in cities and villages will give the Palestinians control over almost a third of the West Bank, which Israel captured from Jordan in the 1967 Mideast War.

The Israel-PLO agreement faces stiff opposition from Jewish settlers in the West Bank. About 200 settlers burned tires and blocked traffic Sunday morning on the bypass road around Jericho and at an army checkpoint before the Allenby Bridge to Jordan.

Eighteen protesters were detained.

The settlers said they were protesting Israel's plans to remove army roadblocks and expand the area of Palestinian self-rule around Jericho. Jericho, in the Jordan Valley, and the Gaza Strip have been autonomous since May 1994.

"They lied to us," David Elhiani, head of the Jordan Valley settlers' council, told Israel radio. "We will not allow Palestinian police into the Jordan Valley. We will fight with everything we have."

Israel's parliament is scheduled to debate the Israel-PLO agreement on Thursday. Peres said he expects it to be approved.

The army is expected to withdraw first from the city of Jenin in the northern West Bank and surrounding villages, followed by Nablus, Tulkarem and Qalqilya, then Ramallah and Bethlehem and finally Hebron.

Dror, the military government spokesman, said Israeli and Palestinian officials would meet Sunday to work out the details of the transfer of authority.

The four offices that will be closed next week are in Salfit, near the city of Nablus; Kharbata, near Ramallah; Yatta, near Hebron; and Qabatiya, near Jenin.

While the Palestinians made strides toward greater self-rule, the limits of that independence were clear Sunday, when Israel extended the closure of the West Bank and Gaza Strip through Oct. 5 — after the Jewish Yom Kippur holiday.

The Gaza Strip has been sealed since Sept. 24 and the West Bank since Wednesday. The closure, which strangles a struggling Palestinian economy highly dependent on jobs in Israel, had been scheduled to end on Sunday.

Israel fears attacks by Islamic militants opposed to the Israel-PLO peace process.

HOT MAMA'S
The Valley's Favorite Salsa, Dips & Hummus Available at UMass People's Market
October Special
20% off
at Bread & Circus
Also Available at Stop & Shop & other fine stores throughout the Valley

Confirm Your FALL 1995 Course Schedule!!

Starting Wednesday, September 27, the Registrar's Office will mail to you, at your local address, your course schedule for Fall 1995. Your schedule will be accurate as of September 22, including any five-college classes you might have.

Please check your printed schedule carefully!

If you have questions about your course schedule, contact the Registrar's Office. If you never attended a certain class, or are enrolled in a class not on your schedule, contact your undergraduate deans office as soon as possible, but no later than October 10.

If you do not receive your schedule by Friday, October 6, contact the Registrar's Office to confirm both your course schedule AND your local mailing address.

WE WANT YOU!!!

to be a

HEARING BOARD MEMBER

If You...

-are interested in Campus Leadership
-wish to improve your communication and listening skills
-are a full time student
-have at least a 2.0 G.P.A.
-are not on Judicial Sanction

Apply now to be a Hearing Board Member:
Training Held - October 10,11,12
7:00 p.m. - 10:00 p.m.
9th Floor Campus Center

Applications available at
RESIDENTIAL CLUSTER OFFICES & THE DEAN OF STUDENTS OFFICE 227 WHITMORE

Deadline October 6, at 5:00 p.m.

ANY QUESTIONS?
CONTACT:
Paul Vasconcellos & Jen Cooper, Assistant Dean of Students
Dean of Students Office, Whitmore, 545-2684

DAILY COLLEGIAN

113 Campus Center • University of Massachusetts Amherst, MA 01003 • (413) 545-3500 • Fax (413) 545-1592

Matt Vautour Editor-in-Chief Juan José Chacón Quirós de Quetzcoatl Managing Editor
Earl T. Martin Business Manager James P. Gatley Production Manager Ethan Bloomfield Advertising Manager
Natasha Kahn Advertising Production Manager Wendy Darling Senior Diversity Editor

Tara MK Connelly Arts & Living Editor Candice Flemming Sports Editor
Christopher Byrd Black Affairs Editor Ron Alpert Staff Artist
Matt Wurtzel Business Editor Laura Schmidt, Aimee Schwartz Women's Issues Editors
Syed Mohammed Ali Raza Developing Nations Editor Marni E. Helfner Editorial Production Manager
Geri Sahn Editorial/Opinion Editor Adam Chace Systems Manager
Wendy Darling Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Issues Editor A.I. Stewart Finance Manager
Jacob W. Michaels Jewish Affairs Editor Ryan Courtemanche Distribution Manager
Hernan Rozemberg Multicultural Affairs Editor Maureen Majerowski Assistant Operations Manager
Chris Taylor Conner News Editor Marty Pappas Classified Advertising
Daymion Smith Photography Editor Thomas F. Sweeney, Jr. Graphics Advisor/Instructor

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published Monday through Friday during the University of Massachusetts calendar semester. The Collegian is financially independent from the University of Massachusetts, operating solely on revenues generated by advertising sales. The paper was founded in 1890 as Aggie Life, became the College Signal in 1901, the Weekly Collegian in 1914 and then the Tri-Weekly Collegian in 1958. The Collegian has been published daily since 1967, and has been a broadsheet publication since January 1994. For advertising rates and information, call (413) 545-3500 weekdays between 8:30 a.m. and 5:30 p.m.

Suckers for skin flicks

Call it male bonding, call it juvenile, call it being "typical male pigs," but when the much ballyhooed film Showgirls opened last Friday, there was absolutely no way I wasn't going to be there.

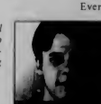
Yes, I felt pathetic. Yes, I felt like a degenerate. Yes, I knew that the movie was going to suck. Still, nothing was going to stop me from seeing the film when it finally hit the theaters. My reasoning? Plain and simple — seeing the girl from "Saved By The Bell" naked for two hours.

All of a sudden a rush of memories came flooding back from my youth. Memories of being 14 years old, having your parents out for the night and inviting a group of your buddies over to watch all those timeless '80s flicks, such as Spring Break, Hardbodies (I & II) and Private Resort.

* * * * *

"Hey, Bill."
"Hey, Matt."
"My parents are out. Want to invite all of our adolescent, immature friends over so we can rent some soft-core porn and pretend we know what the hell we're talking about when it comes to girls?"
"Be right over dude!"

* * * * *



Matt Audette

Ahh, the good old days.

Now those good old days were back. A movie that was sure to have no plot, terrible acting, some lame moral message and plenty of scantily-clad ladies, baring lots of flesh. This movie wasn't just an excuse to ogle, it was downright nostalgic. I called my friends, we set up a time, grabbed our IDs (NC-17 folks) and headed for the land of sweet degradation.

We arrived at the theater and took our place in the male- dominated line that extended way beyond the ticket office. You could almost feel the testosterone pumping. Showgirls— the word literally dripped from our lips along with the saliva which nicely set off our already glazed eyes.

I finally reached the ticket office, slapped my $3.50 down on the table, looked up and the strangest sensation came over me. There was the girl who was working at the ticket booth, staring at me, waiting for the word to come out of my mouth and I could barely speak.

I felt silly.

"What movie would you like," she asked.

"Showgirls," I muttered under my breath, as I handed her my money and ID, feeling unexplainably ashamed.

She handed me my ticket and I shuffled off, making sure that I made no eye contact with anyone until I safely reached my seat in the theater. I felt like the biggest loser on the planet. Right before the show started I took a quick around the packed theater and noticed all the guys decked out in baseball hats and flannel shirts suddenly realizing that we were all the biggest losers on the planet. Every single guy in that movie theater knew that Showgirls was going to terrible — and no one cared. Were we really that pathetic? Did a little nudity really warrant such mass hysteria? I sunk down low in my chair and the film began.

It sucked in ways never imagined.

It was possibly the worst movie I had ever seen. Elizabeth Berkley had obviously not developed much range since her "Saved By The Bell" days, the dialogue was laughably crude and the dopey "message" was a hoot. Even all the flesh that continuously paraded across the screen became nothing more than a bore. My memories of all those '80s skin flicks were shattered.

Throughout the film guys booted and hollered, throwing out cat-calls to the screen and cheering when ever an article of clothing was taken off and tossed away. My neck was killing me and I had a splitting headache. I left the theater with my friends and walked to the car. No one spoke. I think we all felt a tad dirty, a little stupid, but most of all — like the biggest suckers ever.

Matt Audette is a Collegian columnist.

Letters to the Editor

Issues brought up about Jamal's case

To the editor:

The Collegian headline of Sept. 12 erroneously stated that death row prisoner Mumia Abu-Jamal was being given a second chance. A correction was printed later that week, which I would like to amplify. In fact, on Sept. 15, Jamal's appeal for a new trial was denied by Judge Sabo. Sabo's decision is now being appealed before the Pennsylvania State Supreme Court. I am also concerned that there were other points in the article (and in a Sept. 13 Collegian) which would have misled readers, and I would like to address some of these.

There are many issues raised by Jamal's case. The most important, I feel, is that Jamal is on death row because of his critical journalism, his politics and because he is black. Not only did he not receive a fair trial, but his political views were explicitly used against him in court. There is an enormous amount of information available relating to Jamal's case.

I would recommend people read either the recently- published Race for Justice by Jamal's attorney Leonard Weinglass or some of the documents available at the world wide web site http://www.xs4all.nl /tank/spg- l/mumia002.htm. I'll review just a few important points here.

Jamal's current defense attorneys have obtained testimony and police records, which detail how evidence against Jamal was manufactured, and how other evidence, in his favor, was suppressed by the police, judge, and prosecution acting in collusion.

Witnesses — Two witnesses, called by the prosecution, identified Jamal as the shooter. Both were subject to police pressure. One was on probation for firebombing a school in exchange for pay, and the other worked as a prostitute. Each received special treatment form the police following their testimony. Each had changed their story from their initial police statements.

Four other witnesses were interviewed by the police, who independently said they had seen a person run from the scene immediately following the shooting. Their accounts were all consistent with each other, but their story was never followed up by the police. Their statements were withheld from the defense in the original trial.

In addition, the names and addresses of all the witnesses were kept from the defense, information which the police would routinely turn over during discovery. This, together with the lack of resources awarded by the court for investigation, prevented the defense from interviewing witnesses before the trial.

Ballistics — In the medical examiner's original report, the bullet was judged to be a .44 caliber, while Jamal's (licensed) gun was a .38. This information was kept from the defense.

The "Confession" — Jamal was also shot at the scene, then beaten by police officers, and taken to the hospital. The arresting officer, Officer Wakshul, kept detailed notes of what happened that night. In particular, he wrote his report that "the negro male made no statement" consistent with the testimony of medical personnel present.

Two months later, the police and prosecution claimed Jamal had in fact confessed to the shooting when brought into the hospital. When the defense attempted to call Officer Wakshul as a witness, they were told he was "on vacation." Judge Sabo refused the defense's motion for a continuation until Wakshul returned.

During the recent PCRA proceedings, it came out Wakshul was in fact in town and available at the time of the original trial, and that the "confession" was most likely manufactured during a "roundtable" meeting of the police and the D.A.'s office held two months after the shooting.

It is very instructive to see how the death penalty was decided on for Jamal. As defense attorney Weinglass has stressed, the crime Jamal was accused of was manslaughter, an incident that developed in a matter of seconds, rather than premeditated murder. If convicted of manslaughter, Jamal would be out of prison. The prosecution argued for first degree murder on the basis of Jamal's membership in the Black Panther Party as a teenager. The argument was that the Black Panther Party was about killing cops and that Jamal had been "waiting to kill a cop" since that time. Further, when during deliberations the jury requested information from Judge Sabo about manslaughter, Sabo instructed them on first degree and the death penalty.

When the conviction was appealed to the Pennsylvania State Supreme Court, one of the grounds was that the prosecution had used Jamal's political views to inflame the jury. The Court ruled that allowing Jamal's political views and associations to influence the jury's sentence was not the same as punishing him for them. The US Supreme Court refused to hear the appeal.

However, in 1992, the US Supreme Court overturned the death sentence of David Dawson, due to evidence submitted at sentencing about his affiliation with the Aryan Brotherhood, a white supremacist organization. The Court stated the evidence was used "simply because the jury would find these beliefs morally reprehensible." The court found that the first amendment rights of the Aryan Brotherhood must be protected.

Finally Jamal recently obtained FBI documents showing he has been under surveillance since the age of 16. The Philadelphia police are notorious for their collaboration with the FBI in suppressing black political activity. However they have refused to turn over their files on Jamal. Jamal later became known for his critical journalism, particularly his reporting on the police attack on MOVE in 1978. Following this, he was singled out by Chief of Police (and later mayor) Frank Rizzo during a press conference and told he would pay.

Why is Mumia's case so important? Internationally, people have been protesting to gain a new fair trial for Mumia. Obviously, it is important for us to work on a case which is widely seen as a political execution. But beyond that, if we look inside our prisons, we see that Mumia's case is not unique.

Dr. Jennie Traschen
Department of Physics, UMass

Letters to the Editor and Columns

The Editorial/Opinion page apologizes for not printing the letters that have been sent via e-mail. We are still learning how to "work the system."

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian welcomes and encourages letters to the editor. When writing, please TYPE your letter and keep it to a maximum of 400 words. We would much rather print several concise letters in the limited space available on the page.

All letters should include a name, address and phone number (for verification purposes only). Students should also include their year and major.

Opinion/Editorial

YOU MAY GROW UP TO BE PRESIDENT SOMEDAY.
MOTHER'S MILK: THE POLITICAL MONEY OF INFANCY.
TOLES
UNIVERSAL PRESS SYNDICATE DETROIT FREE PRESS BUFFALO NEWS
ARE YOU STILL HUNGRY?

Alcohol and making the grade

alcohol n: 1: the liquid that is the intoxicating element in fermented and distilled liquors. 2: any various carbon compounds similar to alcohol 3: beverages containing alcohol.

As I sit here writing this I am feeling the effects of what alcohol has done to my body after a night of drinking.

Alcohol is a part of campus and college life. But each year it's different. From first-years to seniors, everybody has a different experience.

Marni E. Helfner

FIRST-YEARS: First-years are almost exclusively underage. For most of them, this is the first time away from home, they have complete and total freedom and no parent watching over their shoulders. They will stay up all night, drink until they puke, have sex 24 hours a day and ditch class — just because they can.

They spend a lot of time doing the things they always wanted to do, and a lot of time doing the things they never thought they would. They will attend many Greek or "[insert color here] house" parties, pay $6 a cup and drink as much watered-down beer as possible before the keg is kicked. They have to do this, because most of them don't know anyone over 21.

In general, first-years will drink, drink, drink and drink, just because the alcohol is there and the opportunity exists. They spend a lot of time worrying that they will get caught, go to jail, or worse, someone will call their parents.

SOPHOMORES: Sophomores are cool, at least they think they are. They have one year of drinking experience under their belts and think they know all the ropes.

By now, they know everyone who lives on their floor who is over 21 and will buy for them. They often get ripped off by upperclassmen who will take their 20 bucks and get them a case of Golden Anniversary or Red, White and Blue. Sophomores will still attend Greek parties, but because someone's parents let them have a car this year, they have started drinking at parties off-campus where they will still pay $6 a cup for watered-down beer.

They will often laugh at first-years standing in the bus stops on North Pleasant Street waiting for the bus. They also really want a fake ID but either are too scared or don't know where to get one.

JUNIORS: Juniors have it made. Even if they don't turn 21 this year, they either know someone who is or has a fake ID.

They stop going to Greek parties unless they are Greek, and then they go to more Greek parties and serve $6 watered-down beer to first-years.

They start to become connoisseurs of beer and other types of alcohol and will start to drink Black Dog Ale, Harpoon, whiskey, vodka, rum and other mixed drinks. They will go uptown and drink and then hit Antonio's.

There will be a few times when they will drink enough to bow to the porcelain god and promise to never drink again, but the next week they will be back out drinking again.

The people with drinking problems will really start to show their alcoholism. Some students will drop out because alcohol has taken control of their life.

SENIORS: On their first day back at UMass, seniors will swiftly come to the conclusion that they have only ten months left to drink as much as possible. They realize that college is the only time in their lives where they can drink until they puke on a Tuesday night and ditch class on Wednesday.

Almost exclusively over 21, seniors will make drinking uptown and at friends' houses a regular occasion. They refer to parties that start at 2 a.m. as "after-hours," meaning after the bars close.

Seniors will play advanced drinking games like Golf and Cardinal Puff instead of Asshole. They will play 18 holes of Amherst Golf (start at The Spoke and have a drink at every bar on the "up-town strip", two drinks at what used to be Twisters, and then do it in reverse). They will play the "Melrose Place," "90210," "Seinfeld," or "Cheers" games.

You know, everyone picks a character from the show, and each time the character says something they take a drink. If the character kisses someone or gets laid, they have to finish the drink they have in their hand.

Seniors quickly learn to pick characters that do not appear often and are the horniest, loneliest characters on the show (No one wants to be drunk after a one hour show.).

Seniors will also often make themselves the friends of first-years and find it funny to get them drunk every night. My friend Chris comes to mind here.

It's common to spot a senior in a liquor store — they're the ones returning enough bottles to get a free case of beer.

Seniors will spend the last month of school as drunk as possible. They will drink for days on end and throw huge house parties. They will make jello shots and soak watermelons with vodka and gin. They may even be too drunk to make it to Spring Concert. The last week of classes, they may go to class drunk.

And in a lot of ways, they're just like first-years.

Marni E. Helfner is a Collegian columnist.

Yugoslavian conflict to spur change

The philosophers of the Italian-born stream of Modern art, Dadaism, viewed a war as the best medicine for any given society. Let us take a look at this thesis in the context of one modern war: the Yugoslavian conflict.

As a result of World War II, Yugoslavia becomes a socialist Eastern-European country, but not in a classic sense of the word. Ruled almost exclusively by Croatian native Joseph Broz Tito, a controversial figure but certainly a strong leader, Yugoslavia does not go the way Russia is going. While there is absolutely no private economy in Russia, Yugoslavian farmers and small private businesses are given a chance to survive independently.

This conceptual difference leads to a split and hostility between Tito and Stalin. Development of a strong army in Yugoslavia follows.

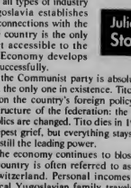
Yugoslavia, a Southern-European country, is very rich with natural resources; the climate is mild, and the soil is fertile. There is, however, very little oil, and the territory is too small to support all types of industry needed. And so, Yugoslavia establishes strong import-export connections with the West. For decades the country is the only Eastern Block market accessible to the Western businesses. Economy develops successfully, even too successfully.

Within the country, the Communist party is absolutely dominant. It is, in fact, the only one in existence. Tito has total power, deciding on the country's foreign policy, as well as on the inner structure of the federation: the borders between the republics are changed, Tito dies in 1980, his nation is in the deepest grief, but everything stays the same: Communists are still the leading power.

After Tito's death, the economy continues to blossom for a few years. The country is often referred to as the Eastern- European Switzerland. Personal incomes are extremely high, a typical Yugoslavian family travels all over the world, spends summers in Italy, Greece or Spain, and winters in the Swiss Alps. The many coffee houses and restaurants in Yugoslavian cities and towns are open all nights long. The cultural life of Belgrade, Novi Sad, and other major cities is very vivid. Only later, in 1991, does it become apparent that the economic well-being was supported by the massive loans that Yugoslavia took out.

Politically, however, Yugoslavia is still a part of the Eastern Europe. The Russian Perestroyka, initiated by Gorbachev in 1985, has as strong an impact on Yugoslavia as it has on the Eastern Germany or any other Eastern Block country. The stability in the region is lost, and radical changes are bound to follow.

Every part of the Socialist Federative Republic of Yugoslavia is headed by an individual, craving for personal power. The Serbian President Slobodan Miloshevich follows Tito's Communist tradition which no longer applies to the European conditions successfully. The Croatian leader Franjo Tudjman bases his power on a Radical, Nazi- resembling ideology. The Bosnian Alija Izedbegovich plays on the religious feelings of his Moslem nation. Once again, the area that was hardly ever stable throughout history becomes a center of a conflict.



Julia Stoyanovich

There is really nothing unusual in the fact that a few individuals appear in an unstable situation, and tend to use the conditions to gain power. It is also very well known that any nation is easy to manipulate in an unstable situation. The situation is not at all unusual, but it certainly is far from being desirable.

It is, in fact, not clear, whether the Yugoslavian society will be cured by the war, but it certainly will be changed.

Is there anything that could have been done to prevent the war, or to stop it once it has begun? I believe that this war is a logical consequence of the historical conditions. Is there a way to predict or to stop history?

Julia Stoyanovich is a UMass student.

Arts & Living

JazzoTree plants jazz, poetry seeds

By Juan Jose Chacon Quiros De Quetzalcoatl
Collegian Staff

"Remember...
if you
plant a seed in the fertile earth sun it with jazz
moisten it with poetry you have..."
JazzoTree"

JazzoTree will bring their unique blend of jazz, poetry and mostly political themes to the Blue Wall tonight at 7 p.m.

Members of JazzoTree have performed and opened for an interesting range of musicians such as Art Blakey and Luka Bloom and writers Jim Carrol and Joseph Walker. In the past they have played at the Knitting Factory in New York, the Cav in Providence, RI and the Iron Horse in Northampton.

According to the members of JazzoTree their intent "is to remain true to the tradition of combining jazz with poetry of Charles Mingus, Gil Scot-Heron and others." The poetry is written and performed by Richard Pleasant and the music is the inspiration of Michael Suter who plays the bass.

Pleasant's poetry is not afraid to deal with topics like violence, racism, abuse and even the emergence of the new right wing. "I grew up in the 60s, it's who I am ... things that come from the heart," says Richard Pleasant about his poetry.

If you like poetry that is strong and willing to say it all, look for pieces like "Mistakes are Made," "The Cycle" and the Valley classic "Tragically Hip."

The band, composed of six members, relies on bass, piano, percussion, flute, clarinet and at times even trombone to accompany the rich voice of Richard Pleasant.

The Band will release their first tape The Seed at a concert on Friday at the Black Sheep Cafe. JazzoTree will be appearing at the Blue Wall tonight. Admission is free and the show starts at 7:00 p.m.

Soccer Basketball
Collegian
Field Hockey SPORTS Rugby
Has got it all.
Football Water Polo Baseball

The Mitchells celebrate release of debut record

By Tara MK Connelly
Collegian Staff

THE MITCHELLS
The Fire and Water Café
Sept. 28, 1995

NORTHAMPTON — Sporting a delightful deep purple V- neck velour shirt tastefully trimmed with brown and gold cuffs, lead singer Caleb Wetmore welcomed the crowd to the Mitchells' debut single record release party.

"I can't believe how many people showed up," said Wetmore, "we're really thankful."

The quartet then broke into "Mr. Underground" followed by "Instant Party" and a 'brand spanking new' tune "Fighting For the Good Leggo Pieces."

Wetmore explained the song's long title by giving a brief talk on Leggos. "You know when you went to a friend's house and you had a long green piece and a curvy brown one and he was building a castle and you were building a lumber yard." Almost everyone in the audience understood and laughed.

One of The Mitchells best sounding songs was, "3rd Floor" a fast frantically paced number filled with tight drumming and tasty licks that had bassist Bill Smith shaking his head at an alarming rate and the rest of the member's following suit.

The band was given a short break when drummer Mike MacLean left his seat to come forward and speak to the audience.

"Hi. They don't let me come here and talk so I thought I'd seize the moment. We don't have that stage persona that like moves people," he said laughing. He was no Phoebe Summersquash, but he sufficed.

The songs that received the most accolades were the single's A side "Five Minutes" and B Side "Underwater." The former was littered with a fast funky bass layered over feedback provided by guitarist Kayvan Daruian who often broke into some intricate guitar solos that only added to the band's already original sound.

The evening was closed with "Tollbox," followed by a thank you from The Mitchells. The crowd responded with thundering applause and afterwards purchased many singles.

PATRICK MCNULTY / COLLEGIAN
The Mitchells held their record release party at the Fire & Water Cafe in Northampton last Thursday night.

Opening up for the Mitchells was a plethora of local bands who signed up to support their local Valley musicians. Tizzy (minus their bassist Joel), Pirate Jenny and Encyclopedia played along with Pup-up Book, a last minute addition comprised of members from The Mitchells, Sourpuss and Pollyanna.

Bim Skala Bim attacks Pearl St crowd

By Aaron Brandes
Collegian Correspondent

BIM SKALA BIM
Pearl Street
September 29, 1995

NORTHAMPTON — For the last decade, Bim Skala Bim have kept the ska tradition alive in the Bay State and last Friday, they tore down the walls of Pearl Street in Northampton.

Thanks to that bald, stocky, hornster Vinnie Nobile, Bim Skala Bim has earned a cult following around the Boston area.

The show last Friday night was no different than their past Boston gigs. The loyal NoHo crowd recognized each song after the first couple of notes — then the familiar frenzy of jumping bodies would begin. Jam packed with energy, each tune aimed to make the fans sweat just a little bit more. The electric shockwave of fun never ceased, but could have been prolonged as Bim Skala Bim gave a brief 90 minute set.

John Cameron has a gift — he blows beauty out of his saxophone and also plays the keys for the band. Bim owns this musical weapon, but they don't use him nearly enough. John and his sax were grossly underplayed throughout the entire show. He had the only solo all night— big mistake.

Bim's keyboards are used in an innovative way which most ska bands do not attempt; this gives the band an edge of individuality. But once again, the keys were not used prominently enough.

The band grooved though the entire set and at the end of the show the band brought the house down once again with more of those "in your face" upbeat ska grooves. The crowd walked away dripping with the sweat of satisfaction, because overall, these guys from Beantown gave us a phat show.

Do you like movies, television, music, concerts, artwork, photographs, magazines, books and just about anything in the world?

Well, it's all part of Arts & Living, something that you could be part of too. The Arts & Living desk is always looking for interested people (and interesting people for that matter) so come on down and write. Don't be shy. Arts & Living isn't just a desk, it's a way of life.

113 Campus Center • 545-1361

Reach your goal.
Study abroad.

The choices you make today build your prospects for tomorrow. Choose to study abroad. An experience in another country will help you to visualize, define and reach your goals. Take the first step and call for our free catalogs today. Specify Australia, Great Britain, Greece, Ireland, Austria, Mexico, or Peace Studies.

1.800.755.5607
http://www.beaver.edu/
cea@beaver.edu

BeaverCollege
Center for Education Abroad

J.CREW
WAREHOUSE SALE

Fashions from the pages of the J.Crew catalog discounted 50%-70%

October 3-7, 9am-9pm
October 8, 9am-5pm

University of Massachusetts at Amherst
Mullins Center (413) 545-0505

We accept VISA, MasterCard, American Express and J.Crew Credit

Directions from the South: Springfield, Hartford, New York
I-91N or I-84W to Hartford. I-91N through Springfield to Exit [illegible]. Left turn onto Rte. 116N to first exit (UMASS).

Directions from the North: Greenfield, Vermont, New Hampshire
I-91S to Rte. 116S, Amherst/Whately exit. Left then right [illegible] exit. Left onto campus [illegible] exit ramp.

Dexter's not his usual self.

You suspect the salsa.

So you call Dr. Nusblatt, your family vet back home.

The call is cheap.

(Too bad about the consultation fee.)

Live off campus? Sign up for AT&T True Reach Savings℠ and save 25% no matter who, how, when or where
you call in the U.S.

Life can be complicated. AT&T True Reach Savings℠ is simple. Save 25% on every kind of call on your AT&T phone bill–direct dial, calling card, directory assistance, local toll, cellular, fax and modem – when you spend just $25 a month*. No other plan gives you all these different ways to save. Just call 1 800 TRUE-ATT to sign up. Save on every call. That's Your True Choice.℠

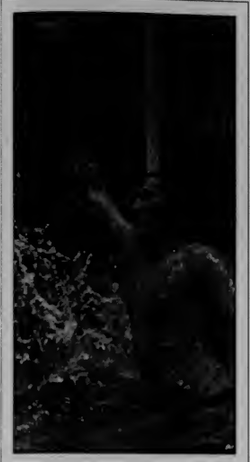
AT&T
Your True Choice

*Refers to long distance calls billed to AT&T home or AT&T Calling Card accounts. Discounts off AT&T basic rates. Certain exclusions apply. Subject to billing availability. Offer available to residential AT&T customers. Minimum spending requirement is per residential line. Compared to major long distance carriers.

© 1995 AT&T



DAYMON SMITH / COLLEGIAN

Knock it down!

Paul Engin reaches high to try to save a Boston College shot in a game last week at Amherst College.

■ volleyball

continued from page 10

cheer about, and we weren't giving it to them."

Rachel Sky led the way for the Minutewomen, with 19 kills and 20 digs, although five other teammates reached double figures in kills. Dionne Nash was one of them, totalling 17 kills.

Freshman Katie Pearce had a career-best 63 assists to go along with 11 digs.

"I think we played great defense and served the ball well and hard consistently," Sky said. "We played flat in games one and two, though.

"But coach Kenny just reminded us that [Temple] was coming into our arena and they wanted to win more."

UMass 3, Fordham 0 (15–3, 15–9, 15–13)

Junior outside hitter Susan Maga led the Minutewomen with eight kills against the Lady Rams, while sophomore middle blocker Leigh Readey had a strong showing with five kills.

Also playing well was María Dueño, the sophomore defensive specialist, who had nine digs.

"Everyone was able to play and contribute," Kenny said. "We had a lot of service errors, but everything else was very positive.

"I think Leslie Hartlen played well for us, as well as Katie Pearce and Susan Maga. Katie really distributed the ball excellently."

UMass 3, La Salle 0 (15–3, 15–1, 15–3)

The Minutewomen set a school record with a hitting percentage of .563 in this match, committing only one error in 48 total attacks.

Just as remarkable, the match lasted a mere 43 minutes.

Hartlen led the way with nine kills. "We really played well as a team today," Hartlen said.

"Teams like [Fordham and La Salle] we really have to put away in three games," Readey said. "And we did that, in a full-team effort."

"This match really served as a preparation for the tougher A–10 matches next week," Pearce said. "I'm happy with the way the whole team played."

■ womens soccer

continued from page 10

drive past CC's Audrey Maxfield to make the score 2-0. Freshman Karin Johnson and junior Sandy Shimogaki assisted on the goal.

Goaltender Danielle Dion only had to make three saves on the day, but all of them tested the sophomore, including a stop on a CC corner kick in the 23rd minute to keep the game scoreless.

Though his keeper was a big part of the victory, it was obvious that Rudy was extremely happy to see Myers back on the playing field.

"Rebecca was back," Rudy said. "She certainly made an impact."

• • •

Massachusetts 2, Central Florida 2

In the second game of the weekend set, Rudy was pitted against his old school, Central Florida. It was not quite the return Rudy would have liked as his Minutewomen ended up in a 2–2 tie to finish the weekend at 1–0–1 but it could have been worse, if not for Erin Lynch.

After regulation and the first overtime, UMass and UCF were tied at one.

Then, with just over five minutes left in the second overtime, Golden Knights leading scorer Amy Jones headed one past Dion and defeat seemed imminent for the Minutewomen.

Lynch would have none of it as the junior defender collected a Erica Iverson feed and knocked home the tying goal from 15 yards out, with just 45 ticks left on the stadium clock.

The Minutewomen had a decided advantage in shots (32– 10) but managed only two goals on UCF keeper, Alyssa O'Brien.

UMass took the early lead in the tenth minute when the Minutewomen converted on a corner kick. Julie Magid lofted the ball towards the goalmouth and Lynch was there for her first goal of the season.

Rudy is now 4–0–2 against his old squad.

The Minutewomen return to action this Wednesday when they will host Yale at Richard F. Garber Field at 3:30 p.m.

■ football

continued from page 10

offense, good defense, kicking game does well. You know, that's a good solid performance, that's what I like to see," URI coach Floyd Keith said.

"It was just clicking today," Butler said.

For the Rams (4–1 overall, 3–0 in Yankee Conference), Shyron Sanford, an 18–year old freshman fullback, carried the ball 16 times for 81 yards, 16 more than he had all of this season. The Ram defense had four sacks on the day, with Lou D'Agostino chalking up two. Butler returned six punts for 78 yards, and Matt Walker booted two field goals.

As for the Minutemen, who fell to 2–2 overall (1–1 in YanCon), they could not get anything established on the offensive side, and the defense was stymied by the potent Ram passing attack. As a result, the University of Massachusetts was shutout for the first time since the 17–0 loss to Holy Cross in 1983.

"It's embarrassing, that's what it is," UMass coach Mike Hodges said, "and I told the team that. We panicked when things didn't go well and didn't respond. There is plenty of blame to go around and I'm not excusing myself."

To add injury to insult, co-captains Rene Ingoglia, who rushed for a school and Yankee Conference record 313 yards last season against URI, and Vernard Fennell were sidelined during Saturday's blowout. Ingoglia, who was 24 yards shy of the UMass record for rushing yards prior to kickoff, aggravated his hamstring as he played in just the first three series'. Fennell injured his knee in the fourth quarter. He had an MRI yesterday, though the results were not available at press time. Fennell will definitely be out for this weekend's home game against New Hampshire.

With Ingoglia out, the Minutemen gained 131 yards, 165 less than their average per game prior to Saturday's tilt. Frank Alessio rushed for 54 yards, while Matt Jordan had 44 yards on five carries. Ingoglia or not, the UMass backfield lacked consistency on the afternoon.

The passing game had the same problem. Vito Campanile threw just three passes in the first half, and completed one, a seven-yarder to Brian Healy. Anthony Catterton relieved Campanile in the second quarter, and went on to throw for 30 yards on a 5–for–12 passing day.

Both QBs were used in the second half, mostly Catterton. Neither were effective in running the offense, as they went past the 50–yard line into URI territory just three times on the day. The closest they got was to the Ram 35–yard line in the fourth quarter.

"We played a football team that was quicker on all cylinders today. I give them great credit, they played very well. We couldn't take them out of anything offensively, and the first half defensively," Hodges said.

"They came out ready to play," Alessio said, "[and] we just came out a little flat."

Minutemen notes: Wide receiver Darryl Thomas and Kory Blackwell did not play on Saturday. Both starters, Thomas broke team rules and did not make the trip, and Blackwell returned home to Queens, NY, to deal with family matters ... URI beat the Minutemen for the first time since 1991, when it defeated UMass 17–14 in Amherst .. The Minutemen had the top scoring defense and total defense heading into Saturday's game.

■ UMass

continued from page 10

and Bobby Apgar. The light blue uniforms and dominant passing game had Rhode Island looking like Dan Marino and the Miami Dolphins. Ram quarterback Hixson threw to his two favorite receivers Butler and Apgar all day long. The pair responded in impressive fashion, with catch after catch.

To put into perspective just how much the Rams threw the ball, Hixson threw 33 times for 299 yards while the UMass quarterback platoon of Vito Campanile and Anthony Catterton, threw a combined 15 times for (gulp), 37 yards.

After just two seasons as the URI quarterback, Hixson is already the second leading passer in school history in both yards and touchdowns. Last season, he threw for 2,123 yards, despite missing the last two games of the season with injury.

"They've got great athletes playing the wide-out position and their quarterback has grown up a lot since the last couple years," UMass safety Jason Tudryn said. "We knew what we had to do and we didn't do it. Give them credit for coming in and playing their butts off."

It became habit for Hixson to repeatedly thread the needle. He would hit his receivers in stride on most occasions. There were times when the pass was so perfect, three UMass defenders exerting pressure could not stop the Rhode Island aerial assault.

Ram wide receiver Apgar was Hixson's go–to guy for long yardage. Apgar caught five balls for 153 yards and a touchdown. He also had a highlight reel–type, touchdown catch negated due to a Ram penalty.

"[Apgar] is a great player and he made some great catches. The pressure was right on him," Tudryn said. "You've got to give credit to the quarterback and credit to the receiver."

"Bobby Apgar is a legitimate big–time receiver and we couldn't handle him," Hodges said. "For whatever reason, we couldn't handle him."

On the other side of the field for Rhode Island was the 5– foot, 7–inch Butler, who hauled in seven passes for 116 yards. Butler, lacking size, made up the difference with his explosive speed and his ability to get open. "Butler is a good football player. I expect him to do those things. He always runs hard. We all run hard," Rhode Island coach Floyd Keith said.

The Minutemen lacked offense in this game, magnifying the play of the defense. Rhode Island's passing game is clearly above average. The Minutemen clearly would prefer to stop a running attack.

"We played a smooth game. I believe [UMass] was the No. 1 defense in the conference," Keith said.

HOT.
Burn, baby, burn – disco inferno.
MAC.
Not the burger, pal – the killer computer.
DEALS.
Cheap. Not as cheap as a taco, but hey.

Macintosh Performa* 636 w/CD
8MB RAM/500MB hard drive, CD-ROM drive, 15" color monitor, keyboard, mouse and all the software you're likely to need.

PowerBook* 520
4MB RAM/240MB hard drive.

RIGHT NOW AT YOUR CAMPUS RESELLER

Being a student is hard. So we've made buying a Macintosh* easy. So easy, in fact, that the prices on Macintosh personal computers are now even lower than their already low student prices. Unfortunately, they won't stay this low forever. So you need to forget about how hard your life is for a minute and start thinking about how easy it will be with a Macintosh. The computer that gives you the power any student can use. The power to be your best.* Apple

Stop By The University Store Computer Department For More Information

UNIVERSITY STORE ☆ Campus Center 545-2619 Mon - Fri 9-5 Sat 11 - 3

Product prices, product availability and sales taxes may vary. Offer expires October 13, 1995. ©1995 Apple Computer, Inc. All rights reserved. Apple, the Apple logo, Macintosh, Macintosh Performa, PowerBook, LaserWriter Select, Color StyleWriter and "The power to be your best" are registered trademarks of Apple Computer, Inc. Power Macintosh and Mac are trademarks of Apple Computer, Inc. CarePAQ Plus is a registered trademark of Hinduscope. All Apple® products are designed to be accessible to individuals with disability. To learn more (U.S. only), call 800-776-2333 or TDD 800-833-6223.

Sales of computer hardware are only available to University Faculty, Staff and Students

Collegian Classifieds

113 Campus Center • University of Massachusetts • Phone: (413)545-3500 Fax: (413)545-1592

Personals Policy

1. All personals MUST be proofread by Collegian classified employees before payment and acceptance of the classified.
2. Last names MAY NOT be used in personals. ONLY first names and initials are allowed. The only exceptions are for birthday or congratulations personals, in which case the full name may be used.
3. Phone numbers are not allowed in personals. NO EXCEPTIONS
4. Addresses are not allowed in personals. this means dorm room numbers as well.
5. Personals of a threatening or derogatory nature are not acceptable. Personals of a vindictive or libelous nature are not acceptable. Personals may not be used for the purpose of harassment.
6. Profanity may not be used in personals.
7. The personals section is for personals only. The personals section may NOT be used to sell items, seek roommates, advertise meetings, etc.
8. All personals must have the name, signature, and UMass I.D. number of the student placing the as filled in on the insertion order. Non-students must provide a valid driver's license and the license number must be recorded on the insertion order. Use of false identification or misrepresentation is subject to penalties under the law.
9. The Collegian reserves the right to refuse or to edit any personal that does not meet the Collegian's standards in accordance with the statutes of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

Rates

$2.00 minimum/day

Students
20¢ per word/day

All others
40¢ per word/day

NO REFUNDS

Please write clearly and legibly. We are not responsible for errors resulting from illegible handwriting or type.

Standard Headings

Activities
Announcements
Apartment For Rent
Auto For Sale
Employment
Entertainment
For Sale
Found (2 days Free)
Happy Birthday
Houses For Rent
Instruction
Lost
Musicians
Miscellaneous
Motorcycles
Personals
Room For Rent
Room Wanted
Roommate Wanted
Services
Summer Sublet
To Sublet
Travel
Transportation
Wanted to Rent
Wanted

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Chinese Food Ke- Chi restaurant now delivering till 3am Friday and Saturday 586-2774

Learn to bartend with University bartending. 1/3 the price of other schools! Classes in Amherst. Free info session Wed. Sept 27th @ 7:00 pm. Lord Jeffrey Inner call 1-800-U-CAN-MIX

News Anchor Auditions for UVCTV 19 UMass/Hadley Saturday Sept 30 10am at UVC station student union

The sisters of Sigma Delta Tau would like to welcome our newest ribbonette's Sherrie, Lynn, Brooke, Dawn, Shannon, Rebecca Lisa Christina, and Aimee!

To the sisters of Sigma Delta Tau Congratulations on a terrific rush! We're looking forward to a great semester! Keep up the good work! Love, Exec.

Zeta Psi "We must learn to live together as brothers or perish as fools." Zeta Psi is having open rush for all university men. If interested call Mike at 549-1615

AUTO FOR SALE

1983 Chevy 80,000 original mileage very good condition. $700 or bo 253-9017

86 Subaru GL Hatchback 5 speed Runs well. 1 owner. $1700 253-8795

1986 Dodge Colt Turbo 5 speed fast sporty reliable, economical $1750 253-4012

'82 Red Jeep Wrangler 5 speed soft top 27,000 CD player, Alarm, $12,000 or bo 413-256-8311

1980 Toyota Celica GT 5 speed loaded Red, 1 owner, mint, alarm, 53k miles $3000 below book, $10,200 665-7219 Jim

Blue 86 Subaru Wagon 4wd power windows, brand new brakes, muffler, water pump $1450 or bo Call 582-9105

For Sale 1986 Hyundai Excel some work needed $500 253-0676 Please call in evenings ask for Rachael

Mercury Marquis 1984 70K miles Runs excellent Power windows & doors 1500 or B/O Call 549-8881

86 BMW 325 excellent condition Red with Black int 5600 or B/O Mike@546-7467

Bart's Homeade Now hiring for part-time hours weekends a must Apply at Amherst store 253-9371

EMPLOYMENT

BUILD YOUR RESUME
Come to the UMass Credit Union
September 18th or 19th at 6:30 pm to build your resume! Looking for new tellers for fall 1995! Stop by, call Christine at 545-2800

Cruise Ships Hiring Earn up to $700/wk+month World Travel Seasonal & Full time positions No exp necessary For info call 1-206-634-0468 Ext C500

Drivers, waitresses and kitchen help wanted APETE RESTAURANT 586-8755

Earn big $$$ Leading college marketing firm is currently seeking part time help. Multiple positions available throughout the fall semester. Flexible hours & great pay $8 $10/hr. Will train, no experience necessary. Just resume builder! For more info call Mark Egan @ (617) 266-8861 Ext 11

Mole Torah reader needed Housing and salary Congregation Rodphey Sholom, Holyoke 534-5767

National Parks Hiring Seasonal & Full time employment available at national Parks, Forests & Wildlife Preserves Benefits and Bonuses! Call 1-206-545-4804 Ext N 50011

Students wanted to work evenings and or weekends with adult M R population Have your time really count! We will train Car a must Call 549-7911 AA/EOE/ADA

Want a real challenge? Live in position, room and board provided. In return you share responsibilities of care for elderly man. Experience with M.R./ M.H population helpful. Extra pay hours available Call 549-7911 AA/EOE/ADA

$45,000 income potential Reading books toll free 1-800 898-9778 Ext R 1732 for details

ENTERTAINMENT

Having Halloween bash on 10/28? Got a huge house? Want a spooky band? You need us!!! and we'll? needs you! call Jack at 367-9635

FOR RENT

Fridge Rentals Free delivery. 253-9742

FOR SALE

COMPUTERS

Mac computers powerbook 170 8/80 fax, carry case $1195 Quadra 700 8/540 16" color monitor awesome graphics software $1995 Call 756-0080

DJ EQUIPMENT

Soundcraftmen power amplifier 1000 watts $350 or bo tv speakers 300 watts $250 or bo 3 piece system $200 or b/o 545-3498 Beeper 292-8010 Must sell

Hockey skates CCM pumps, brand new call 549-3774!

IBM pc notebook comp word excel Need $ for school bo 549-6061

PJ Harvey is Oct 10 M-e 549-9186

Tandy Computer & color mont w/ soft Asking $275 or bo Carl 6-0540

Toshiba 20" Stereo w/ remote 3yr old ask for $190 call 549-8563

Yamaha 870 Reciever DSP night club, rock concert, jazz, dance hall, movie, built amp, ext amp, more Pioneer CLD V820 laser karaokas w/ microphone LD CD 8mmDac & DSP Call 546-6396

12 string acoustic guitar w/ case Practically brand new! Call Mike 256-8150

1985 Fender Fretless Jazz Bass good as new asking $400 or bo Call Aaron 549-408

Computer Desk For Sale barely used Call 7-1784 or 253-2564

Bread Machine Dak Turbo Baker II Asking $50 585-0975

Macintosh Classic Great for word processing $75 or B/O Call Brian Eves 584-9863

386 Computer For Sale Includes DOS & Windows 3.11, Microsoft Word, Nortons, Games VGA Monitor, 4megs of ram Asking $400 or best offer Call 6-0863

FOUND

Found two books in Bartlett on the 2nd floor Call 546-1940

Found Yalkswagon key near LGRT on Sept 26 Pick up at Collegian 545-3500

HAPPY BIRTHDAY

Happy Birthday Lori All our love MK, Tom, Amy, Beth

Happy Birthday Rob We Love ya! Love, Kevie, Kerry, Warren, Eric, Kieran, and Donna

Happy Birthday Stacy Love Jen, Maura, Christine, Lauren, Tracy, Shawn & Brian

Happy twenty-something birthday, Kay!! Dont think of it as getting older, think of it as getting better! Party it up! We love you! From your housemates

Happy 21st Bethany! We saved the best for last! You can run, but you can't hide! We'll turn uptown upside down! Love, your housemates & Zach (the UPD!)

INSTRUCTION

Guitar Lessons and classes by Kevin Collins Beginning folk, classical Free intro lesson Harm Grad 256-1233

GUITAR LESSONS
Have fun this semester and earn 1-2 credits with a patient and supportive teacher Spaces still available Call Peter 253-5283

Jazz piano teacher offering fall lessons, beginner or advanced, Call Stephen Page 253-3754

Performing Arts Division offers group and private instruction in music, theater and dance Registration for group instruction runs Sept 6-2, 1995, private instruction is ongoing We are located in 73 Bartlett Hall, UMass, (413)545-0519, for info

MISCELLANEOUS

MODEM USERS

Call the Playground BBS! 256 8085 Over 4000 files online! Twenty online games including registered L.O.R.D., B.R.E. and Usurper, Food Co-op and recipe bases, lots more! Stuff for everyone!

WEIGHT LOSS

Bottled Willpower! Lose up to 30 lbs. 30 day money back guarantee Natural, doctor recommended 323-4984

MOTORCYCLES

MOTORCYCLES

82 Honda Magna V-45 750 cc, V 4 Very fast and reliable No Reasonable offer refused $1,800 bo Page anytime 297-0065

MUSICIANS

Needed: Funk drummer, singer, keys The Colonial Mustard Trio! Call Ryan Andy 549-1816

Psychedelic garage band for hire Dead Dylan Cream Stones Perfect for parties 256-1949

ROOM FOR RENT

Room in house near Amythast Br, Amherst $225/mo No Lease! We need to rent to a female now! Call us at 253-8081

PERSONALS

DAVE
Hey baby, wanna cuddle? Love the girlies.

DEB
Looking forward to the upcoming year and all the suprises and excitement it will bring. This is a pretty scary trip we have begun, but I am so glad it has. Be secure, and enjoy the stress. Love Always, E Man

ENLIGHTENMENT #2
I need religion like a fish needs a bicycle. What I want is to know other people who want to grow and will accept me as I am. Alliance Christian Fellowship commited to people, friendship, learning, and spirit-filled fellowship Info Mark or Elizabeth 253-7208.

FRAT BOY
Carla: Ya know you're a cute kid! Thanks for making me smile Love Jen 8/22/95

Kelly, Happy 5th anniversary You have been the greatest girlfriend and best friend anyone could ask for Thanks for always being there I Love You, Brian

Nerdberg, Congratulations on full back hair from your bra's

Peanut, You are my sunshine, my only sunshine! I Love You xoxo Love, Your Princess

UMass Women's Rugby Congrats on 2nd place Good Luck in Boston - Jiz & Tonia

MEREDITH
Would you like to go out again? I promise I'll stay awake this time!

Are you a foreign student? Need help with your english? I am professional, certified to teach ESL and can tutor you! Evenings and weekends $10 an hour Call Scott 665-7448

To the Headsome Gentleman who held the door for me Thurs at the Campus Center Thanks for showing me chivalry still exists

A Friend and Hara-wanking to Tom Kippur services on Tues, Oct 3 at 6:30pm and Wed Oct 4 at 9:45am We would love to walk there in a group, and well come anyone to meet us at the tables outside the Munchy Store on the upper level of Hampden DC at those times to walk together Look for the dressed up people

Hey Jen & Ricky, Congratulations on a few years together (and on sprouting that fawth tooth too)! Love you guys! I.K.

It's Big Dog! 'cause you're wonderful Love always, Stephanie

SERVICES

Exotic nail airbrushing 546-1794

Experienced typesetter available w/ references. Please call Alyssa 549-8685 for info

Grants and scholarships available Billions of $$$ in grants. Qualify immediately 1-800-263-7435 (1-800-AID-2-HELP)

Pregnant? Need help? Call birthright of Amherst area for free testing and carrying assistance. 549-1906

Do you have questions about your rights? Do you think your civil rights have been violated? Find out! Contact the Student Legal Services Office. 922 Campus Center 545-1995

TRAVEL

Spring Break Travel free with Sun Splash Tours Highest commissions, lowest prices Campus reps wanted! Sell Jamaica Bahamas Florida 1-800 426-7710

Quebec weekend Dec 8-10 Ski & party only $120 if paid by 10/21! 545-3437

FREE TRIPS & CASH
Find out how hundreds of students are already earning FREE trips and lots of CASH with America s #1 Spring Break company! Sell only 15 trips and travel free! Choose Cancun, Bahamas, Mazatlan, or Florida! Call Now! Take A Break Student Travel (800) 95-Break!

WANTED

Trying to locate 4 students who helped an elderly women who fell at Smith College, College Hall on January 30, 1995. Please call Attorney Susan Sachs 584-8134

WITNESSES

YOUR DAILY HOROSCOPE
by Jean Dixon

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 – Feb. 19) You are a person deeply torn between love and lust. Figure it out before it's too late and you become another statistic or worse — married. Life is a highway, ride it all night long.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 – Jan. 19) Indecisive yet methodical, you have to work it to be on top in all aspects of your life baby!! Don't back down, but don't forget how-i- it could be in your head, but that's doubtful

PISCES (Feb. 19 –Mar. 20) When you swim with the big fish remember that sometimes people don't choose the Ziploc bag and the piranhas get loose. Watch your dorsal fin and everything will be ok.ok.

ARIES (Mar. 21 – Apr. 19) Strong and imperious, you have to learn to tone it down. However, because you are strong and imperious you will ignore this and do what ever you damn well please. Bravo, because life isn't run by horoscopes

TAURUS (Apr. 20 – May 20) Ever wonder why you're sign is that of a bull? Maybe it describes your head or maybe you method of presenting the truth. Either way, if you stick to the facts, lies sound even better.

GEMINI (May 21 – Jun 22) You will go to an educational experience, although you won't realize it until you get there What are you waiting for– hurry up and get married!!!

CANCER (Jun. 21 – Jul. 22) You dear crustacean are a control freak but every once in a while it's nice to hand over the reins to someone else To yield to a better is not a sign of weakness but the ability to tell when you're over your head

LEO (Jul. 23– Aug. 22) Did you know that your best bet for a good relationship is that with a Ram? Seek out a person under the sun and be sure they're wearing red Roar, Simba Mufasa is listening.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 – Sept. 22) You are a neat freak and a constant worrier. Usually very decisive, how can you make a decision if you can't decide what stance to take? Can you really afford to lose the love of your life? Oh, and go easy on the cash Money only grows on trees on your home planet

LIBRA (Sept. 23 – Oct. 22) Your love planet is Venus, but that doesn't matter because this isn't about love, but life. Be yourself and save the false pretenses for someone willing to get snowed. Wear something sexy and get arrested for indecent exposure

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 – Nov. 21) So what went wrong? You made a decision and now you're totally suffering from its consequences. Never despair, as long as you stand by your choice nothing can go wrong. Arrest is Libra

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 –Dec. 21) You are used to getting your way and liking it. People are in awe at your imposing self and bow to your superior knowledge. However, watch out because "my how the mighty have fallen" could apply to you — over confident Remember the little people

Collegian Graphics

We're up all night putting together New England's largest daily college newspaper!

When our job is done – your day is just beginning.

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE
edited by Trude Michael Jaffe

ACROSS
1 Treads
6 Aladdin's asset
10 Above
14 Fragrance
15 Madame Bovary
16 Way lead-in
17 Parts of a cloverleaf
18 The — State: 53 Across
20 Logjams
22 Slow tempos
23 Useful
24 Composer Franck
25 Christmas or Time
27 Marine mammal order
30 Entertainer Speaks and namesakes
31 Throw
32 — -shanter
33 TV accessory
34 Polka time
37 Salt
38 Bridge position
40 Ancient Arcadian city
41 Reposes
43 Antecedent
45 Band leader Lunceford
46 — circle
47 Mortar
48 One on a quest
50 Indian nation from 53 Across
53 16th state
55 In debt to
56 Tropical dog
57 Youngsters
58 Look after
59 Yeltsin negative
60 Roman date
61 Scots

DOWN
1 — mutuel
2 Composer Khatchaturian
3 School course
4 Understanding
5 Most pert
6 Flood barrier
7 Israeli author Oz
8 2050, to Caio
9 Actress Goddard
10 Fascinate
11 Mountains of 53 Across
12 Sandwich cookie
13 Feline comments: Var.
19 Magellan's org.
21 Type of camera: Abbr
24 Jai alai basket
25 Part of the eye
26 Highway to Fairbanks, once
27 Packer
28 Pine violin
29 Scandinavian
31 Hue
35 Aquatics equipment
36 Path of pleasure?
39 — -wing: America's Cup forecast
42 Authorize
44 Large knife
45 Montana of football
47 Board game
48 Ollie's partner
49 Slithery
50 Grant
51 Duck, in Dortmund
52 Personas
54 Comic Caesar

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE: 8/1/95

M	A	S	H			B	A	D		T	H	R	U
O	R	C	A			C	O	C	A		H	E	A	R
L	E	A	N		S	H	A	T	T	E	R	I	N	G
A	N	T		S	P	A	T			E	M	E	R	G	E
R	A	T	A	T	A	T		F	L	E	A
		E	X	E	R	T		L	I	N	D	S	A	Y
H	A	R	E	M		E	L	A	N	D		M	R	S
A	R	I	L		C	R	E	T	E		M	A	M	E
I	N	N		T	A	I	N	T		S	A	T	Y	R
L	E	G	H	O	R	N		E	L	E	C	T
			A	L	E	G		R	I	C	K	E	T	Y
P	A	S	T	E	L		M	I	N	T		N	O	E
S	P	A	T	T	E	R	I	N	G		L	I	R	A
I	S	L	E		S	O	N	G			I	N	I	T
S	E	A	R		S	O	X			E	G	I	S

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING INSERTION ORDER

Client: Date: Taken By:

Date(s) to run: Headline:

Total Days: X Words: = X rate = Payment

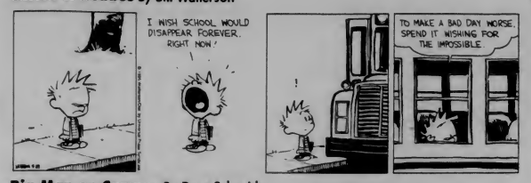
Special heading ($2.50 extra): Authorized signature:

ADVERTISING COPY

1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9 10

Insert one character, space, or punctuation mark per box - use capital letters where they apply - Cost figured on each line of form used - see rate card

Calvin & Hobbes By Bill Watterson



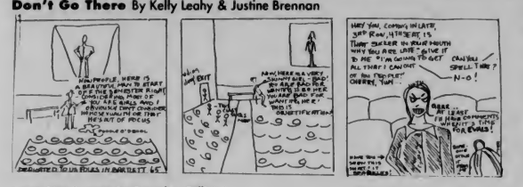
Big Man on Campus By Dave Schneider

YO, MAN... I'M SICK OF BEING THE ONLY ANIMAL AROUND HERE...
SO, TO RECTIFY THE SITUATION, I WENT OUT AND BOUGHT A FELLOW NON-HUMAN TO HAVE AS MY OWN PET
MEET... LARRY!
WHAT... YOU'VE NEVER SEEN A CAT MOONLIGHT BEFORE?

The Amazing Spiderman By Stan Lee

THANKS, SPIDER-MAN! THAT PUBLICITY WAS JUST WHAT I NEEDED
PUBLICITY? YOU MEAN YOUR MUGGING WAS A FAKE?!
DON'T BE ANGRY! AN ACTRESS MUST BE IN THE PUBLIC EYE!
I FEEL SO USED! SO TAWDRY!

Don't Go There By Kelly Leahy & Justine Brennan



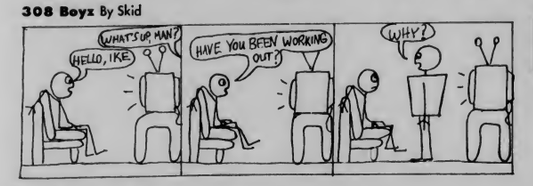
Lost Horizons By Douglas Cellirini

I'VE BEEN THINKING OF ASKING SOMEONE TO DANCE
HEY! WHO?
I DON'T KNOW MAYBE THAT GIRL OVER THERE
SHE LOOKS LIKE A NICE PERSON GOOD LUCK.
GOOD LUCK? WHAT'S GOOD LUCK? I NEED CONFIDENCE SHE WILL SAY YES SHE WILL DANCE WITH ME THINK SUCCESS, NEIL.
THE CALM BEFORE THE STORM. THE WRITES OF THEIR EYES. THE DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION SO WHY SCRATCH THAT LAST ONE.

Dilbert By Scott Adams

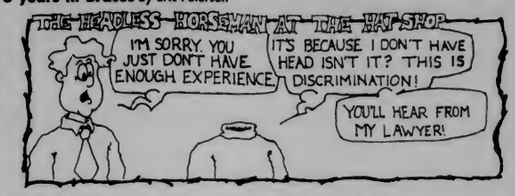
HOLD IT RIGHT THERE, BUDDY
THAT SCRUFFY BEARD THOSE SUSPENDERS THAT SMUG EXPRESSION
YOU'RE ONE OF THOSE CONDESCENDING UNIX COMPUTER USERS!
HERE'S A NICKEL, KID. GET YOURSELF A BETTER COMPUTER

308 Boyz By Skid



Buttah By Darling & the Buttah Community

8 years in Braces By Eric Peterson



THE HEADLESS HORSEMAN AT THE HAT SHOP
I'M SORRY. YOU JUST DON'T HAVE ENOUGH EXPERIENCE
IT'S BECAUSE I DON'T HAVE HEAD ISN'T IT? THIS IS DISCRIMINATION!
YOU'LL HEAR FROM MY LAWYER!

Leold By Roger & Salem Salloom

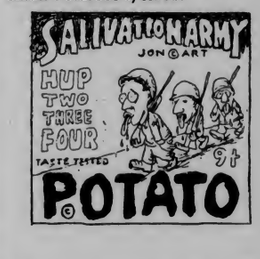
The police and my neighbors have the wrong idea about me. They think I am taking things from them. They know I always return the bicycles and the lawn chairs. I am not a thief. I am a communist. My uncle, Petain, thinks I will outgrow this, but he is embarrassed by me.

I am not only a communist, I am also an illusionist. There are very few of us left. I know it is hopeless to discuss this with the police when they catch me running through the backyards with several lawn chairs at 3 am. I phoned my dad from the station and he said it made him vomit.

I don't believe him because I know he has a very strong stomach.

Close to Home By John McPherson

Small Potatoes By Jon Art



Dining Commons Menu

LUNCH	DINNER
Duchess Meat Pie	Turkey Tenderloin
Grilled Cheese	Beef Bourguignon
BASICS LUNCH	BASICS DINNER
Sesame Noodles	Curried Chick Peas
Grilled Cheese	Falafel Pocket Sandwch

Today's Staff

Night Editor.....Marni E. Helfner
Copy Editor.....Tara MK Connelly
Photo Technician.....Thang Vo
Production Supervisor.....Tony Morse
Production.....Jeff Hodge
Daniel Bwrgeron

Quote of the Day

"People justify it– "I'm not going to promote finding a cure for it because it was started by these people and I don't like their sexual politics." –How do you tell that to a four-year old who has no sexual politics, who doesn't even know what a sexual politic is?

–Whoopi Goldberg

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY COLLEGIAN
Top 10 By Brian Marchionni

Top 10 Rejected Campus Activities
(You know, those things on the lawn near the pond where they give away free stuff...)

10. The underage drink–a–thon.
9. Freshman hazing celebration.
8. Barney storms campus!
7. Waning health week (sponsored by Philip Morris & Co.)
6. Polka–thon!
5. Verb conjugation celebration!
4. ExtravaGonorrhea!
3. Zit poppin' mania!
2. Post doctoral thesis proofreading day.
1. Spank–a–thon!

Jewish Affairs needs writers!

If you are interested in writing for and about the UMass Jewish Community, contact Jacob N. Meneses at 3 Campus Center 545-3500

Soccer Basketball
Collegian
Field Hockey SPORTS Rugby
Has got it all.
Football Water Polo Baseball

Keep your finger on the pulse of UMass and build your resume while you're at it.

Write for the Collegian News Department

Contact Chris Conner
113 Campus Center
545-3500

SportsWeekend

In tomorrow's Collegian.

- The men's water polo team posted three victories over the weekend, defeating St. Francis, Harvard and Fordham. Check out tomorrow's paper for the story.
- The women's tennis team remained undefeated over the weekend with its two victories over Providence, 6–1, and New Hampshire, 7–0. See story tomorrow.
- The men's soccer team faced off against Stanford last night but results were not available at press time. See how the Minutemen did tomorrow.

Field Hockey gains revenge, upsets Old Dominion

By Brian Perillo
Collegian Staff

STORRS, Conn. — In a sequel to a match-up from a month ago, the Massachusetts field hockey team upset No. 6 Old Dominion yesterday 1–0 on the turf of the Connecticut Field Hockey Stadium.

Freshman Erica Johnston blasted her first collegiate goal and the game's lone score, past Lady Monarch goalie Kim Decker with 29:32 remaining in the second half.

Massachusetts	1
Old Dominion	0

"It's about time," Johnston said. "For once, I just hit it, instead of trying to be too perfect."

Johnston's shot, taken off an assist from junior midfielder Kyle Rothenberger, was perfect however, as it flew past a diving Decker high and to the right.

"Erica needed that goal. This will get us going," Rothenberger said.

The win gives UMass some redemption as the team fell to ODU 2–0 in its meeting three weeks ago.

"This a great win," said Massachusetts coach Megan Donnelly. "Old Dominion is such a quality team. You beat an ODU team on turf and you can beat anyone. Now everyone knows why I keep saying that we are a good team."

UMass, who upped their record to 4–6 on the season, 1–0 in the A–10, turned on the defense after Johnston's goal and were able to withstand several assaults from the Lady Monarchs.

Goalie Stacy Walker, who played despite a knee injury the last time the two teams met, finally got a chance to face Old Dominion healthy.

"Today is very big," Walker said. "It's always special against ODU."

The big defensive play of the game for UM occurred with 2:04 remaining. ODU was given a penalty corner, their sixth in the last 12 minutes, and junior midfielder Danielle Chellew, who scored both goals against UMass in the last contest, had her initial shot deflected by a diving Walker.

The rebound bounced to Walker's right, and the ball stopped inches away from an unprotected net.

"It was like, 'Who is going to get there first?'" Donnelly said.

Fortunately for the Minutewomen, the first to reach the ball was sophomore Amy Ott, who fell to the ground and was able to deflect the ball out of bounds with her outstretched stick to preserve the 1–0 lead. "She showed a lot of hustle," Rothenberger said.

"I feel confident with Amy at the post," Walker said. "I had great defense in front of me today."

Walker turned in some stellar saves herself en route to the shutout. The UMass goalie thwarted 18 ODU shots, including eight second half penalty corners.

"Stacy's been key," Rothenberger said. "She had so many big saves."

"The defense on penalty corners today is a reflection of our true talent," Donnelly said. "We start feeling like nobody can score on us on corners."

UMass hopes a win over a Top 10 team will be just what it needs to get going.

"Old Dominion is such a big rival," Rothenberger said. "There is a little revenge factor there, but [the win] helps our confidence. Things are really starting to fall into place for us now."

The team that defeated Old Dominion yesterday, is the team that Donnelly hopes to see more of.

"Today we went in with the attitude that we were sure we belonged on the same field with them," Donnelly said. "A few times life gives you a second chance. Today we were able to take advantage of it."

DAYMON SMITH / COLLEGIAN

Erica Johnston (7), shown in action against New Hampshire with Melissa Sweeney (4), scored the game- winner in UMass' upset win over Old Dominion.

Men's soccer upsets SF

By Leigh Torbin
Collegian Staff

For the second time in a week, the Massachusetts men's soccer team has knocked off a well-respected national power.

Last Saturday it was Boston University, and on Friday night legendary coach Stephen Negoesco and the No. 20 San Francisco Dons fell 4–1 to UMass in the Reebok/Cardinal Classic at Stanford.

Massachusetts	4
San Francisco	1

The win, the 50th of coach Sam Koch's UMass career, upped the Minutemen to 7–3–1 on the season.

Junior midfielder Lee Marlow, who has made a major impact in a variety of roles for the Minutemen this season, scored his first two goals of the year, spurring UMass onto victory.

With the absence of last year's Atlantic 10 Rookie of the Year Karsten Bremke due to a leg injury, Marlow had to step up his play, which he did.

Marlow opened the scoring off of a Colin Johnson pass at the 26:37 mark. The Minutemen doubled their lead just under eight minutes later as Mike Butler scored off of a Dave Siljanovski feed.

Siljanovski had a pair of assists in the match and continues to remain among the national scoring leaders.

San Francisco's Chris McDonald brought the Dons to within one, just 1:01 later, but UMass took command of the game in the second half with Brad Miller and Marlow tallying to secure the much-needed victory.

Goalkeeper Eric Gruber held down the fort for the Minutemen making five saves. Gruber was hurt in Tuesday's match at Hartford, but was able to record the win.

The win was accomplished without starters Joe Jacobson and Bremke, both of whom are currently nursing injuries.

The milestone 50th victory was special for Koch as it came at Stanford, where he started his coaching career and coached for six years, before coming to UMass in 1991.

The 50 wins places him third on UMass' all–time list, and his .611 winning percentage (50–30–10) is unparalleled in school history.

Winning was important for UMass who had fallen badly Tuesday night at Hartford after knocking off BU last Saturday.

The Minutemen have had a propensity of playing to the level of the competition all season long. They defeated tough BU, but fell to lack–luster sides in Hartford, New Hampshire and Fordham.

With a tough challenge in San Francisco, the Minutemen rose to the occasion, and recorded their second earth–shattering win in seven days.

The Minutemen played last night against Koch's old school, and tournament host Stanford. Results were not available at press time.

The Minutemen will return home to Richard F. Garber Field this Friday for a 3:30 p.m. A–10 match against Duquesne.

Volleyball sweeps weekend matches

By Steven Grant
Collegian Staff

Thanks to the Massachusetts women's volleyball team, the floor of the Curry Hicks Cage is looking mighty spiffy.

The reason?

It was swept clean of Owls, Lady Rams and Explorers this past weekend by the Minutewomen, who improved their Atlantic 10 record to 4–1, and 11–6 overall.

By far the biggest story was Friday's match, when the University of Massachusetts took on the Temple Owls.

Down 2–1 and playing flat, the Minutewomen stormed out of the intermission to win the next three games, stunning the Owls and coach Bob Bertucci.

On Saturday, UMass, still without the injured Giza Rivera, played host to the Fordham Lady Rams (2–11 overall, 0–6 in the A–10) and the La Salle Explorers (2–12, 0–6).

By no means did the Minutewomen treat these two affairs as letdowns, as they summarily swept both opponents, getting the job done in less than an hour in both matches.

UMass 3, Temple 2 (8–15, 13–15, 15–13, 15–2, 15–12)

This match was truly unbelievable.

The difference in play of UMass after the second game was reminiscent of the Connecticut match, where the Minutewomen came back from being down 2–0 only to lose in the final game.

This time however, they actually prevailed, and by doing so won their first fifth game of the season.

"I told [the team] that we had a great crowd (351) on hand and that we were representing a great university," UMass coach Bonnie Kenny said of the locker room chat after game two.

"But we were not performing the way we should have been performing. The fans needed something to

THANG VO / COLLEGIAN

Dionne Nash and the Minutewomen had an impressive weekend posting Atlantic 10 victories over Temple, Fordham and LaSalle.

Turn to VOLLEYBALL, page 7

Myers returns to spark UMass

By Justin C. Smith
Collegian Staff

Looking for others to step up in the offensive attack has been a concern of Massachusetts women's soccer coach Jim Rudy.

The return of his All–America candidate center halfback from a strained hamstring was the cure on Saturday. Then Sunday, his other All–America candidate saved the day in what seemed to be an assured loss.

UMass 2, Colorado College 1

The first 35 minutes of the Massachusetts–Colorado College match on Saturday began just as the last four games had for the Minutewomen, with Rebecca Myers on the bench.

When the junior halfback took off her warm–up suit, stepped over the sideline and onto the field, her presence was felt immediately.

Less than four minutes after Myers returned from her two week hiatus, she served a ball near the goal mouth where senior striker scoring sensation Rachel LeDuc headed the ball just inside the right post for a lead that UMass would not relinquish.

"When [Rebecca] came in, she put a charge into our offense," Rudy said. "It was nice to see her be able to go out and play as if she hasn't missed a beat."

Myers made her return more memorable by scoring the game–winner at the 58–minute mark when she ripped a low line

THANG VO / COLLEGIAN

Freshman Karin Johnson assisted on Rebecca Myers' game–winning goal Saturday against Colorado College. Johnson now has four points on the season (one goal, two assists).

Turn to WOMEN'S SOCCER, page 7

URI disposes of Minutemen

By Andrew Bryce
Collegian Staff

KINGSTON, RI — The Massachusetts football team expected Rhode Island quarterback Chris Hixson to come out firing. He had 58 passing attempts when the two teams met last season, and he had already tossed 120 passes in the Rams' first three games this year.

Hixson did what he was supposed to, completing 19 of 33 passes for 299 yards. Bobby Apgar caught five of them for 155 yards, and Cy Butler had a seven catch, 116–yard afternoon. Nothing new, nothing shocking.

Rhode Island	34
Massachusetts	0

But the unexpected came out of the backfield ... and the defensive pressure was consistent throughout the day. Also, special teams scored a touchdown. The kicking game wasn't too shabby either. In other words, the rather surprising 34–0 Ram victory in front of the 5,005 in attendance at Meade Stadium was a rout from whistle to whistle, and the help came from various parts of the much–improved University of Rhode Island team.

"That's what you expect football to be like, and I saw

Turn to FOOTBALL, page 7

Potent passing attack spells trouble for UM

By Mike Brown
Collegian Staff

KINGSTON, RI.–The Massachusetts football team faced something they are not accustomed to on Saturday — a strong passing game.

The Rhode Island Rams utilized their potent passing attack to perfection, as the 34–0 drubbing at the hands of the Minutemen left the University of Massachusetts defense looking for answers.

"We played a football team that was clicking on all cylinders today and we couldn't take anything out of them offensively," UMass coach Mike Hodges said. "I'm embarrassed in the way we played, and in the way we panicked in certain situations."

UMass found no answers all afternoon due to three simple reasons being Chris Hixson, Cy Butler

Turn toUMASS, page 7

The Massachusetts

DAILY COLLEGIAN

Volume CV Issue 20 • New England's Largest College Daily • Founded in 1890 • Daily Since 1967 • Tuesday, October 3, 1995

Clemens to start Game One tonight
Roger Clemens will throw against Dennis Martinez tonight in the first game of the divisional playoffs at Cleveland (See Sports, page 12).

Everywoman's Center director speaks
Everywoman's Center director, Carol Wallace, talks on the organization, its past, present and future (See News, page 3).

"It's not so unusual ..."
Tom Jones bought his impressive self to Western Mass. as part of the Big E's last weekend entertainment line up (See Arts & Living, page 6).

Extended Forecast
Enjoy the nice weather while it is here. Today will be mostly sunny with a high in 70s, but expect rain on Wednesday. Look for mostly cloudy skies on Thursday.

Today	Wednesday	Thursday
HIGH: 70 LOW: 50	HIGH: 70 LOW: 50	HIGH: 65 LOW: 45

France conducts nuclear testing despite opposition

■ Local activist reacts to testing

By Michelle Lugo
Collegian Staff

At 7 p.m. eastern time Sunday, the French government detonated a 110 kiloton bomb, the second of 8 nuclear bombs being tested in the Pacific.

Yesterday afternoon Athena Lambrinidou, Greenpeace worker, sailor and activist who is enraged by these tests performed a ten minute street theater piece called "Mata Ara" next to the Student Union.

In the act Lambrinidou impersonated the different characters such as generals of the armed forces, doctors and priests brought to convince the Polynesian people that nuclear testing was "good" and safe.

Meanwhile, a large percentage of the population from these islands developed illnesses due to side–effects from nuclear radiation, which tends to concentrate in the lungs, liver, spleen, muscles and bones. For women this also includes the ovaries, said Lambrinidou emphasizing this fact by whispering the word "ovaries" instead of screaming it like she did with the other body parts.

According to Lambrinidou and accounts from the book Testimonies, many women give birth prematurely, bear babies without bones, babies whose skin falls off, or babies who turn black and die.

The act was based on true–life accounts written in a book by a French doctor titled Testimonies. Around the time the book was published around the mid '80s the French government had temporarily ceased testing, until this summer.

With songs, monologues and a simple paintings as a backdrop she explained a short history of nuclear testing. "In June 1995 Jacques Chirac the newly elected president of France announced that he had decided it was necessary for France's nuclear deterrent to explode 8 more nuclear bombs in the fragile coral atolls of Mururoa and Fangataufa (Polynesia). The tests are to take place in the period between September 1995 and May 1996," according to Lambrinidou.

Lambrinidou said she was surprised that the press coverage in the United States was minimal and suggested it is because French and American governments share nuclear information. In Europe about 70 percent of the people are protesting and it erupted into violence in some cases, she said.

Lambrinidou said she had already seen many forms of environmental destruction and that the nuclear tests were more than that. She said she had finally seen the "raping of colonialism" not in a book or in some prize–winning photograph but in front off her eyes.

Lambrinidou ended the demonstration with three suggestions for people who want to do more. She said to boycott french products, write letters to the French consulates or embassies explaining the boycotting of their products, or contact Greenpeace.

■ France intends to continue tests

By Sandy MacIntyre
Associated Press

PAPEETE, Tahiti — Emboldened by lukewarm reaction to its second nuclear test in the South Pacific, France reaffirmed its commitment Monday to press ahead with more underground blasts. The environmental group Greenpeace called Sunday's test beneath Fangataufa Atoll in French Polynesia "an enormous affront." Australia and New Zealand lodged formal protests with the French government, and New Zealand again called in the French ambassador there.

But the United States and other key allies merely expressed "regret" at the test, and Britain and Germany reacted with indifference.

"I haven't heard any demands — I've only heard regrets," Foreign Minister Herve de Charette of France said at a meeting of European foreign ministers in Luxembourg.

With no immediate political fallout at risk, Premier Alain Juppe said Monday that France will conduct up to six more tests and "be among the first" to sign a global test ban treaty next year. President Jacques Chirac of France has promised to sign the treaty after the tests, which he contends are safe and necessary to check France's nuclear arsenal and develop computerized simulation tests.

The test Sunday was more than five times stronger than the first one, the French Defense Ministry said Monday. The ministry, in a terse statement, said only that the blast was "less than 110 kilotons."

New Zealand seismologists estimated the blast was about 100 kilotons and produced a shock wave equal to a 5.9 magnitude earthquake.

The Sept. 5 test on nearby Mururoa Atoll measured less than 20 kilotons, slightly larger than the bomb dropped on Hiroshima in 1945. The tests are conducted about a half–mile below ground. The latest blast was widely believed to be a test of the TN–75 warhead for France's new submarine–launched nuclear missile. The Foreign Ministry repeated on Monday that France might shorten the series of tests, now planned to end by June, if it gets enough information from the first few blasts.

But environmental groups and the nations of the South Pacific have reacted angrily to the tests, which break a three–year moratorium. The world's other nuclear powers, except China, have not tested nuclear arms since 1992.

"It is a wrong call for France politically and it is irresponsible environmentally," said New Zealand's prime minister, Jim Bolger.

Sunday's blast also provoked swift condemnation from the prime minister of Australia and from the 16–nation South Pacific Forum of island states.

"The latest test will strengthen the

Turn to TESTING, page 3

DAYMON SMITH/COLLEGIAN

Athena Lambrinidou, a sailor for Greenpeace who is currently on leave, protested against the French nuclear bomb tests yesterday outside the Student Union.

Fair benefits local family center

By Humphrey Brown
Collegian Staff

Some 140 crafters from all over New England gathered on the Amherst Town Common on Saturday to sell and promote their goods at the Amherst Family Center's 9th Annual Harvest & Craft Fair.

Organized completely by volunteers, 80 percent of whom were five–college students, the fair is responsible for one– third of the Amherst Family Center's (AFC) annual budget.

Jessica Warcholic, a UMass freshman, is a volunteer fulfilling a community service requirement for her honors program, while lending a hand to the AFC. Even though she is receiving credit, Jessica said her motives aren't strictly school–related.

"I would've come to the fair even if I wasn't in the [honors] program," she said. "It's a very nice fair."

Family fun and support was the central theme of the festival and remains the focus of the Amherst Family Center. For ten years, the center has provided a place for parents and children to meet, have fun, take classes and receive support from one another.

In addition, the AFC acts as a safe haven for parents to bring their children and take a break from the often stressful duties of raising a family.

Located at the North Congregational Church in North Amherst, the center is funded solely on the donations of local businesses, religious & civic organizations and individuals.

The center also receives support from the United Way and WMAS radio, but the Apple Harvest & Crafts Festival remains it's largest central fundraiser.

To the majority of the people in the town of Amherst, the festival has become an effective means of getting together and meeting new faces, said AFC Chairperson Elaine Shumway.

"[The festival] is a warm and inviting place to meet people," she said.

Fellowship and community self help are what the Amherst Family Center strive for and what the Apple Harvest & Craft Fair promote, Shumway said.

THANG VO/COLLEGIAN

Amanda Luyster, a student volunteer at Amherst College, observes an unidentified youth playing "Apple Throw" at the 9th Annual Harvest & Craft Fair last Saturday, held on the Amherst Town Common.

Land mines center of arms debate

By Matthew Pottinger
Collegian Staff

Two speakers examined the impact of conventional weapons sales on developing nations last Thursday night at Mount Holyoke College.

The speeches were part of the Five College Program and World Security Studies (PAWSS) fall semester lecture series.

Charisse Adamson, senior researcher for the Project on Demilitarization and Democracy in Washington, discussed the impact of land mines on third world nations.

In describing the loss of economic productivity suffered by nations where mines are deployed, Adamson cited the high cost of land mine removal.

"Land mines can cost as little as $3 a piece, but to clear these land mines can cost between $300 and $1000 (per mine)," she said. "It's a painstaking, dangerous job."

"I was taken aback by how many people were missing a leg or an arm," she said in her description of civilians she saw on her way to a "de–mining" operation in Cambodia this past summer.

Adamson cited inadequate technology as a contributor to the difficulty of mine detection and removal.

"The United Nations estimates that there are 105 million land mines deployed in 62 countries," she said. "It will cost $200 to $300 billion [in 1995 dollars] to clear them."

Adamson characterized the use of land mines as offensive, rather than defensive, in third world conflicts.

"They are often deployed in areas which strike at the heart of the community's productive capacity. Land mines are often planted in civilian areas like agricultural fields and grazing lands," she said, also citing bush paths, roads and water wells as common sites for mine laying.

Africa burdened with mines

According to Adamson, Africa is the world's most heavily mined continent with "18 to 30 million mines laying in 18 countries."

Using Mozambique as a case study, she focused on the specific economic effects of land mines.

"Land mines were haphazardly ... placed by Renamo forces in civilian areas in order to terrorize and de–stabilize the civilian population," she said.

In response, the government laid mines around urban centers and important infrastructure to deter rebel attacks. This process of mine laying and counter–laying led to a what Adamson called a "critical mass" of mines.

The danger is compounded by the fact that virtually no records were kept as to the locations of the estimated 2 million mines laid in Mozambique. As a result, great numbers of citizens are driven from the mine infested countryside into overcrowded urban centers, causing the country's economy, which is 80 to 90 percent agricultural, to operate at only a fraction of its economic potential. Adamson also cited the increasing number of people dependent on food assistance, due to debilitating injuries incurred by mines, as a drain on the economy.

In addition, the dysfunctional state of railroads and highways as a result of land mines has cost the country an estimated $100 million each year in potential transport fees paid by Zimbabwe and South Africa for the use of Mozambique's main harbor.

U.S. leads in arms sales

According to Adamson, the major suppliers of land mines up until the end of the Cold War were Western and Communist countries. She cited Czechoslovakia, Italy, the former Soviet Union and Yugoslavia as the leading producers over the last decade, but added that Pakistan and China comprised a new league of major producers.

In the U.S., Senator Leahy (Democrat, Vt.) has lead the charge in anti–land mine legislation, including the 1992 passage of a moratorium on U.S. land mine exports. Another bill, which provides for a one year ban on the use of land mines by the U.S. military has also been passed in the Senate, but is expected to face stiff opposition in the House.

The military has lobbied strongly, arguing that land mines are an indispensable part of their arsenal.

Lora Lumpe, Director of the Federation of American Scientists' Arms Sales Monitoring Project, who spoke after Adamson, asserted that passage of the moratorium on exports was a victory in conventional arms control, though a largely symbolic one. She cited personnel land mines as one of only two conventional weapons whose export is being restricted. The rest, she claimed, "are up for grabs."

According to Lumpe, U.S. weapons exports, estimated at $15 billion each year, account for 50 to 75 percent of the world trade in conventional weapons, with 75 percent of the exports going to developing countries in the Middle East, South East Asia, Africa and Latin America.

Citing the greatest post–Cold War threat to the U.S. as "third world regional instability," Lumpe claimed that the United States' arming of developing nations is inherently contradictory since it leads to arms races, and the arming of possible future enemies.

The Code of Conduct on Arms Transfers, a piece of legislation which would qualify countries as recipients of U.S. arms exports only upon meeting several strict conditions, is in the process of House deliberations.

WMUA program examines Community Empowerment Act

By Amy H. Paradysz
Collegian Staff

Ken Mosakowski, head of the Amherst Housing Authority, hosted three members of a Cambridge–based political group behind the Community Empowerment Act on his WMUA radio program, "Focus," this past Sunday.

Ken Eisenberg, Anne Macaulay and Steve Orzack from Political Action for Community Empowerment (PACE), a group which is working to get the Community Empowerment Act on the ballot, explained what the act entails and why it should be passed.

The Community Empowerment Act would give Massachusetts towns and cities the freedom to respond to one of several "emergencies" with a two–thirds vote, as opposed the three–fourths vote currently required. If the act, which is being proposed by initiative petition, gets enough signatures, it will appear on the ballot in November of 1996, Eisenberg said.

The "emergencies" included in the proposal are "the over– expansion of tax–exempt institutions; speculative development of undeveloped land; overextensive housing development that overwhelms local resources; the displacement of renter households by evictions, rent increases, or condominium conversion; the loss of small– scale businesses in town centers; the loss of federal and state support for housing low–income households; and the loss of historically valued sites."

One reason why the proposal is of interest to Amherst is that the town was one of four Massachusetts cities that had some form of rent control before "Question 9," which eliminated rent control, was passed last year. Mosakowski said.

"This is not the imposition of rent control," Eisenberg said. "It's giving the choice back to the community to decide."

Eisenberg said he believes Amherst and Cambridge have unique problems because of their relationships to universities — the University of Massachusetts and Harvard.

"It's ... a community of the elite — the people who are the closest to the center of power," said Eisenberg. "When you're dealing with a major University town or city, that would be the students, the professors and the people that basically employ the graduates or the graduate students.

"You're dealing with ... finite geography ... There's no building out anymore... You can only put in so much vertical sprawl before basically the idea is to get the inessential elements of your community out ..." said Eisenberg.

Low–income residents will be pushed out, he

Turn to ACT, page 2

UMass Jewish students given more choices during Yom Kippur holiday

By Jacob W. Michaels
Collegian Staff

The High Holidays continue tomorrow as Jews across the world observe Yom Kippur, the Day of Atonement.

And on the Amherst campus of the University of Massachusetts Jewish students will have more of a choice about where to go to this year.

In addition to the usual services that have been done in the past on campus, Hillel is holding another traditional service in the Hillel House.

Yom Kippur, which is observed by fasting for the day, is one of the most important holidays on the Jewish Calendar.

According to Rabbi Saul Perlmutter, of UMass Hillel, Yom Kippur is special, in part, because it focuses on the individual and where they are going in their lives. It does not commemorate some past Jewish event like Chanukah and Passover."

Hillel is adding a traditional conservative service in the Hillel House to their usual service in the Student Union Ballroom.

"Basically what we're trying to do is provide for the many needs of our Jewish student community."

Turn to HILLEL, page 3

Campus Police Log

Traffic stop
Sept. 30
Kevin P. McBride, 19, of 83 North St., Medfield, was arrested for operating under the influence of alcohol and speeding.

Angel G. Melendez, 18, of 572 Chicopee St., Chicopee, was arrested for transporting alcohol.
Oct. 1

Jonathan M. Werner, 20, of 28 Lakeshore Dr., Westford, was arrested for driving with a suspended license and operating a motor vehicle with an equipment violation.

Christopher D. Ream, 22, of 511 Main St., West Haven, Conn., was arrested for operating a motor vehicle without a license.

Liquor law violations
Sept. 30
Brian L. Leblanc, 17, of 3 Burnham Rd., N. Billerica, was arrested for possession of alcohol and transporting alcohol.

Larceny
Sept. 29
There was an individual concerned that credit cards and a flight ticket may have been stolen from his mailbox in Dwight Residence Hall.

There was a bicycle stolen from the bike rack at Herter Hall.

An individual reported that four computer books were stolen from his vehicle.

There was a purse stolen from Moore Residence Hall.
Sept. 30
An individual left Massachusetts Ave. refusing to pay for tow service.

There was a purse stolen from Coolidge Residence Hall.
Oct. 1
There was a report of the Sunday newspaper being stolen from W.E.B. DuBois Library over the past few weeks.

Injured person
Sept. 29
A person who fell off her bicycle was taken to Cooley Dickinson Hospital.
Sept. 30
A person in Pierpont Residence Hall had some form of intestinal reaction.

An individual in Webster Residence Hall with severe back pain was taken to Cooley Dickinson Hospital.

An individual fell and injured his head. He was taken to Cooley Dickinson Hospital.
Oct. 1
A soccer player with a nose injury was taken to Cooley Dickinson Hospital.

An individual in Dickinson Hall with a stomach problem was taken to Cooley Dickinson Hospital.

An individual in Chadbourne Residence Hall with a leg injury was taken to Cooley Dickinson Hospital.

Burglary/breaking & entering
Sept. 29
There were locks broken on the Power Plant on Tillson Farm Road. Nothing was stolen.
Oct. 1
A vehicle was broken into at Parking Lot 33. The owner reported that nothing was stolen.

Health/safety hazard
Sept. 29
There was a burning odor from a light fixture in Dickinson Hall. An electrician was called.
Sept. 30
There was a water leak in a classroom in Hasbrouck Lab.
Oct. 1
Individuals who were stuck in an elevator in John Quincy Adams Residence Hall were extricated.

Vandalism
Sept. 29
There was a light smashed in a parking lot on Stadium Drive.
Sept. 30
There was a window smashed on a vehicle in Parking Lot 32.

There were some windows smashed on four parked vehicles in Parking Lot 12.
Oct. 1
There was a taillight broken on a vehicle in Parking Lot 33.

A vehicle in Parking Lot 44 was keyed.

There was a window broken at Mahar Auditorium.

There was a window smashed on a vehicle in Parking Lot 12.

Annoying behavior
Sept. 29
There was a report of a male individual looking into female shower stalls at John Adams Residence Hall.
Sept. 30
There was a shouting match between individuals outside of Cashin Residence Hall.

An individual in Marston Hall received an annoying e-mail message connected to a current restraining order.

There was a report of individuals drinking outside of a building on Clark Hill Road.
Oct. 1
An individual without ID attempted to enter Kennedy Residence Hall.

There were bottles being thrown from windows of Brooks Residence Hall.

Trash containers were thrown at the Southwest Mall.

There was a domestic problem between two individuals in John Adams Residence Hall.

There was a report of an individual masturbating on the seventh floor of W.E.B. DuBois Library.

Noise complaint
Sept. 30
There was a complaint about individuals yelling in the Bowl area on Orchard Hill Drive.
Oct. 1
There was a complaint about a drummer in Clark Memorial Garden.

Alarm - fire
Oct. 1
A poster burned on the second floor of Van Meter Residence Hall.

Animal complaint
Sept. 30
There was a raccoon trapped in a dumpster at Worcester Dining Hall. Environmental Health & Safety tipped the unit, freeing the animal.

Disturbance
Sept. 30
There were several individuals arguing on Stockbridge Road.

Officers responded to a large noisy party in Cashin Residence Hall.

For Your Information

FYIs are public service announcements which are printed daily. To submit an FYI, please send a press release containing all pertinent information, including the name and phone number of the contact person to the Collegian, c/o the News Editor.

Tuesday, Oct. 3

Meeting — Informational meeting for Circle K, the community service club on campus, all welcome, call 546-4332 for more information, Earthfoods, 7:30 p.m.

LBGA Info-Social — The LBGA will hold its weekly info- social, plans for National Coming Out Day Rally will be discussed, room 803, Campus Center, 7-9 p.m.

Support Group — The REFLECT group is open to any Five College Student who has experienced the death of a loved one, no pre-registration or long term commitment required, this week's topic is "What is grief," first floor, Tobin Hall, 7-8:30 p.m.

Notices

Deadline — All UMass undergraduate and graduate students interested in applying to the Secondary Teacher Education Program for spring semester the deadline for applications is October 12. Please contact the STEP Advising Office at 545-4397 for more information or drop by 125A Furcolo Hall for an application

GLB RA Matters — Residence Life Staff who identify as gay, lesbian, bisexual, transgendered or are questioning their sexual orientation are invited to attend GLB RA Matters. Meetings are every Friday in Mary Lyon from 12:30 p.m. to 2 p.m. For more information contact Dawn M. Bond 5-1506

Volunteers Needed — WFCR needs help sorting records for its Used Record Sale, food and drink is provided and volunteers get first dibs on records and CD's in WFCR's collection, help needed Monday, Wednesday and Thursday, call Karin Obermeier at 545-0100 if you have time

Wanted — Graphic intern for the Residential Educational Alcohol Program. Includes design and productions of health promotion materials, credit toward graduation. Excellent opportunity for someone interested in health promotion (AIDS, STD's, and Alcoholism). Contact Sandra Withcomb 545-0137

Family Planning Services — HIV testing, pregnancy testing, birth control, medical tests, assistance for struggling families, the Family Planning Council of Western Massachusetts, (800) 696-7752.

Community — Jumaa Service, the Muslim Students Association holds Jumaa prayer service every Friday, at 1 p.m., Campus Center, for information call Utama at 256-8482

Auditions — Student Valley Productions is holding auditions for an Orgy of Talents. If you have an act or if you are in university group that wants to perform call 546- 5725

Locker Space — Locker space for students and RSO's, located in the Student Union Building, $10 per academic year, contact Commuter Services and Housing Resource Center, 428 Student Union, 10 a.m.-5 p.m., Mon. - Fri.

Fund Raising Drive — The Newman Center annual fund rasing phonathon will be held from October 1 to October 19, volunteers are needed to staff the phones from 6:30—9 p.m., call 549-0300 for more information or to register

Holocaust Museum Trip — Tickets are now on sale until Oct. 13 at TiX for the Holocaust Museum trip on Oct. 22- 23. Prices are $45 for UMass students, $40 for Hillel members, limited number of tickets available, sponsored by Hillel House.

Correction

In the September 28 article "Medicare education spurs action", Medicaid and Medicare were confused with each other. Medicaid provides basic healthcare insurance for 33.5 million of the poorest people in the nation. It is a shared federal and state program. Medicare provided care for 37 million of the nation's elderly and disabled. These figures are as of July of this year. Natalie Jarmon, a UMass alumna quoted in the article, said the Republican led congress wants to privatize Medicare and turn Medicaid over to the states in the form of "block grants" that would take the legal responsibilities from the states to provide for their citizens.

act

continued from page 1

said.

In a phone conversation, Eisenberg said Cambridge residents are being displaced by rent increases of up to 300 percent, to make room for the expansion of Harvard.

Although Mosakowski reminded the audience that the Community Empowerment Act is about more than just rent control, the radio program focused on that topic.

PACE needs 65,000 signatures by Dec. 1, in order to get the proposal on the ballot, according to Mosakowski. Money is also a concern.

"We have to keep in mind that we barely lost last time ["Question 9"], even though the real estate [organization] spent $1,100,000," Eisenberg said.

The discussion indicated that opponents of "Question 9" were defending small property owners.

However, according to Eisenberg, "Owner occupied dwellings of no less than three and no more than ten units, would be exempt from any rent regulations."

"That could take away from the whole contention about small property owners who are just trying to pay the mortgage, or pay the taxes or pay for maintenance," Eisenberg said.

Macaulay, a grass roots organizer for PACE, has contacted the 35 most widely read newspapers in Massachusetts. She said hundreds of people fought "Question 9" last fall and have been working hard all year to get the Community Empowerment Act on the ballot.

"We're pestering our friends on the streets. We're pestering our neighbors," Macaulay said. "We're out there in a very big way."

Orzack said that when he talks to people on the streets and they hear that "none of this is imposed," he has been getting positive responses.

Save 22 cold breakfasts on a Macintosh.

Power Macintosh 6100 DOS Compatible w/CD
16MB RAM/500MB hard drive, Power PC 601 processor, CD-ROM drive, 15" color monitor, keyboard and mouse.

Macintosh Performa 636 w/CD
8 MB RAM/500 MB hard drive, CD-ROM drive, 15" color monitor, keyboard, mouse and all the software you're likely to need.

Personal LaserWriter 300
Toner cartridge and cables included.

It's as easy as pizza pie. Just visit your authorized Apple reseller today, and you can get a great deal on Macintosh computers. Because they're on sale. Which means now you can get everything—all the hardware, software and accessories—you need to improve your GPA, cruise the Internet, maybe even have some fun. And still have enough dough left over to score tonight's hot dinner, tonight's very late snack and tomorrow's very cold pie. No matter how you slice it, it's the cheapest way yet to get a taste of Macintosh power. The power to be your best.® Apple

Stop By The University Store Computer Department For More Information

UNIVERSITY STORE ☆ Campus Center 545-2619 Mon - Fri 9-5 Sat 11 - 3

Offers expire October 13, 1995. ©1995 Apple Computer, Inc. All rights reserved. Apple, the Apple logo, Macintosh and "The power to be your best" are registered trademarks of Apple Computer, Inc. CarePlus is a registered trademark of Mindscape. All Macintosh computers are designed to be accessible to individuals with disability. To learn more (U.S. only), call 800-600-7808 or TTY 800-755-0601

Sales of computer hardware are only available to University Faculty, Staff and Students

EWC director sheds light on organization

By Jane Oh
Collegian Staff

The Everywoman's Center, created in 1972, is a place where women can receive quality services, share information, support each other and work together in a comfortable multicultural environment. The mission of EWC is to provide leadership in promoting educational access and equity for women in higher education.

Carol Wallace is the director of the Everywoman's Center located at Wilder Hall and Nelson House.

Q: What exactly do you do at the EWC?

A: I'll be starting my ninth year as director of the EWC. I am responsible for overseeing the programs and services at EWC, as well as supervising the professional staff. I also do lots of other work on campus and in the community. For example, I co-chair the Faculty Senate Status of Women Council and serve on the Hampshire County Partnership for Health board. I do public relations work, including writing the annual report for FY 95, as well as grant writing. The EWC was awarded $500,000 for five years. I'm currently overseeing a five year plan to see how we can make the most in providing culturally diverse services as well as how we can restructure the EWC to strengthen its identity.

Q: Since you've been at EWC for quite a while, you've probably seen it grow and change throughout the years.

A: The EWC is one of the oldest and largest campus based women's centers in the country. The EWC has grown as a multicultural organization; it has grown in its ability to serve all cultures. We've diversified our funding as well, currently, one-third of our funding comes externally. We have also gotten better and better in terms of being a training site for students and volunteers. Last year, we employed 150 students and volunteers.

Q: What does the EWC symbolize to you?

A: The EWC symbolizes ensuring access and equity for women, empowering women to take full control of you include men?

A: I absolutely do. I believe that we need to work together in coalition, to be allies, to recognize allies and to develop allies. There is strength in numbers.

Q: Are you familiar with the notion that EWC dislikes men and does not welcome them? What do you think about that?

A: Yes. There are lots of stereotypes about women and women's centers. I know women who don't come here because they think it's for lesbians, women who don't come here because they think you have to be middle or upper class and colored women who don't come because they think you have to be white. There are also lots of stereotypes about feminists. We are not that stereotype. We are incredibly committed to doing outreach to everybody and providing resources to everybody. The reality is that we provide many services to men.

Q: What kind of services? Why would or should a man come to EWC?

A: The EWC has comprehensive referral services, if a man was looking for information for a friend, daughter, partner or himself. Even if we can't provide, we can refer. We also provide counseling for women and their partners. Also, our rape crisis services are available to any victim of violence. The Educator/Advocate Program does many workshops and trainings on violence against women. Last year, 188 workshops were conducted on violence against women. Typically, half of the participants are male.

RYAN TRZCINSKI/COLLEGIAN

Carol Wallace of the Everywoman's Center.

Q: Did you ever expect that you would be doing this kind of work?

A: Not really. I grew up in the '50s and '60s, in a time and place where sex role stereotypes were very ingrained. There weren't a lot of options for women. I felt stifled and I that by acting like a boy. In the late '60s and early '70s, I discovered women's movements and I discovered that there was nothing wrong with me but a lot wrong with society. That's the point I knew I wanted the focus of my life to be around "social-just" issues. In everything I did, how I raised my kids, who my friends were, those pieces were always integrated.

Q: Do you consider yourself a feminist? And what does that mean to you?

A: Yes, I'm a feminist and to me, it means that I have the same opportunities in this world as men. I want a world where everybody has equal access and opportunity. As a white person, I have privilege but as a woman, I lose it.

Q: Recently, there has been a lot of female activism, but do you think women really have made progress in the world?

A: Progress has been slow and isolated. I can sit here and look back to when I was a kid and know that I've had opportunities my mother never had, as well as know that my daughters will have opportunities I've never had. But when I look at the world, I know there's still a long way to go. There are pockets of places where women have made progress but many others where we haven't. For example, the United States is the only industrialized nation that has refused to ratify the 16 year-old United Nations Treaty on women's rights. We really don't have a tremendous to be proud of. Abortion is under assault, as is affirmative action. And the number of women in congressional seats is declining.

Q: Any final thoughts?

A: If you've never been to the EWC, please come check us out. We need to work together, all of us. Know that at the EWC, we appreci-

New welfare reform close at hand

Congress poised to crack down on immigrants on welfare

By Jennifer Dixon
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — If Republicans get their way, people who renege on promises to support immigrant relatives could be forced to repay the government for any public assistance those family members receive.

It's one way that Congress is trying to crack down on health and welfare benefits paid to more than a million non-citizens.

Lawmakers may go even further and decide to bar lower-paid Americans from bringing immigrant family members into the country — a problem for military personnel who marry while stationed abroad.

The crackdown on legal immigrants who wind up on welfare is part of a larger effort by Congress to cut federal spending by billions of dollars, undo the social programs of the New Deal and Great Society, and turn responsibility for the poor over to the states.

The House passed its welfare overhaul in March; the Senate followed in September.

Many specifics of the legislation must be worked out by House and Senate negotiators, but the bottom line is the same: millions of legal immigrants eventually will lose their right to receive a wide range of public benefits, from food stamps and cash to disability payments and non-emergency health care.

Under both bills, the families who bring these immigrants to the United States will be held to the promises they have made to support their relatives. Today, such promises are not legally binding due to court decisions.

People who sponsor an immigrant relative would be required, subject to a $5,000 penalty, to notify authorities whenever the sponsors move. The sponsors also could be held liable for the costs of any services or benefits provided to the immigrant by public assistance programs.

Congressional auditors estimate 1.4 million legal immigrants are enrolled in two welfare programs, Supplemental Security Income and Aid to Families with Dependent Children.

Hillel

continued from page 1

Perlmutter said.

It will be lead by Michael Wise, a graduate of Yeshiva University and Brandeis University. The service will take place in the Hillel House at 10 a.m. and is made possible in part by a grant from Koach, the conservative movement's college outreach program.

The service will be more traditional with more Hebrew and using a traditional prayer book without supplementary readings, Perlmutter explained.

There will also be the usual "egalitarian service" which uses a variety of sources in the Student Union Building at the same time, as well as at 5 p.m. The service is led by Perlmutter, who said "it will have somewhat more English and will use sources from many places, as well as the prayer book. It will also be fully egalitarian in terms of men and women's participation."

There will be also be traditional and non-traditional Kol Nidre services tonight at 7 in the Hillel House and Student Union Building, respectively.

Chabad will also hold its annual services, starting with Kol Nidre services at 6:15 p.m. today. The following day they will hold traditional services, led by Rabbi Chaim Adelman, in Hebrew at Chabad House at 10 a.m. and 4:15 p.m. Afterwards, they will break the fast with a light meal.

It is University policy that any student who misses class or an exam due to religious holidays should be able to make up the work without penalty. If students have any problem with professors about missed classes, they should contact the Onbuds office.

Both Chabad and Hillel will be building and decorating Sukkahs and students should contact them for more information.

testing

continued from page 1

region's resolve and damage further France's relations with Forum countries," Forum secretary-general Ieremia Tabai said in Suva, Fiji.

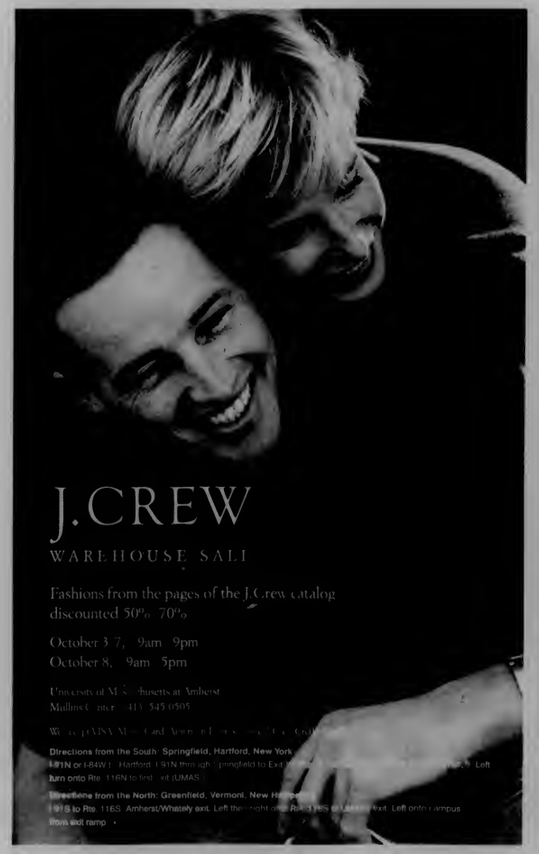
Japan, Russia, the United States and the European Commission merely expressed "regret." Britain — Europe's other nuclear power — and Germany carefully avoided criticizing the blast.

"If the French decide there is a need for tests before a comprehensive test ban treaty, that is a matter for them," the British Foreign Office said in a statement.

Riot police patrolled the streets of Papeete, capital of French Polynesia. But the streets were calm, devoid of the fierce rioting that followed France's Sept. 5 test. The test sites are 750 miles southeast of Tahiti.

A spokesman for the pro-independence Tavini movement said no rallies or protests were planned for fear they would end in violence. Instead, the movement will focus on the March election, he told the Australian Broadcasting Corp.

A Greenpeace founder blamed the United States for allowing the testing to go forward.



The Massachusetts
DAILY COLLEGIAN
New England's largest College Daily • Founded in 1890 • Daily since 1967

113 Campus Center • University of Massachusetts Amherst, MA 01003 • (413) 545-3500 • Fax (413) 545-1592

Matt Vautour Editor-in-Chief Juan Jose Chacón Quiros de Quetzcuat! Managing Editor
Earl T. Martin Business Manager James P. Gunley Production Manager Ethan Bloomfield Advertising Manager
Natasha Kahn Advertising Production Manager Wendy Darling Senior Diversity Editor

Tara MK Connelly Arts & Living Editor Candice Flemming Sports Editor
Christopher Byrd Black Affairs Editor Ron Alpert Staff Artist
Matt Wurtzel Business Editor Laura Schmidt, Aimee Schwartz Women's Issues Editors
Syed Mohammed Ali Raza Developing Nations Editor Marni E. Heffner Editorial Production Manager
Geri Sahn Editorial/Opinion Editor Adam Chace Systems Manager
Wendy Darling Guy, Lenhart, Bureaus/ Issues Editor A.J. Stewart Finance Manager
Jacob W. Michaels Jewish Affairs Editor Ryan Courtemanche Distribution Manager
Heman Rozemberg Multicultural Affairs Editor Maureen Majerowski Assistant Operations Manager
Chris Taylor Corner News Editor Marty Pappas Classified Advertising
Daymion Smith Photography Editor Thomas F. Sweeney, Jr. Graphics Advisor/Instructor

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published Monday through Friday during the University of Massachusetts calendar semester. The Collegian is financially independent from the University of Massachusetts operating solely on revenues generated by advertising sales. The paper was founded in 1890 as Aggie Life, became the College Signal in 1908, the College Week in 1909, the College Man in 1914 and then the Tri-Weekly Collegian in 1936. The Collegian has been published daily since 1967 and has been a broadsheet publication since January 1994. For advertising rates and information, call 413-545-3500 weekdays between 8:30 a.m. and 5:30 p.m.

Modern day cavemen

Over the past few years, I've heard literally hundreds of women complain about guys and the way they act. They ask me why guys do some of the things they do. After months of deliberation, I have finally come up with an answer. Guys act the way they do because of natural selection.

When it comes to natural selection and evolution, the most important adaptations are the ones which insure the survival of a particular species. Many of the adaptations we have made over millions of years are still with us today. If those adaptations hadn't been made by us, others would have made them and we would have surely perished.

Our ancestors, the cavemen, were primarily hunters and gatherers. In order to survive, a man had to kill animals and pick nuts and berries. If he was to have a home, he would hunt and gather around that cave. The surrounding area would become his territory.

Let's suppose another invader caveman was to start hunting and gathering in our caveman's territory, thereby reducing the food he could take in for himself, his mate and their cavekids. There would be a distinct possibility that he and his family would not be able to survive. Our caveman, not out of will, but need, would have to drive off or kill the intruder. In order to survive, a man had to be brave and, at times, violent.

Sometimes, he would join a band of friends who could together monitor an even larger area. The caveman soon learned that it was easier to survive amongst a group of buddies than to do it alone.

Many of the tendencies picked up by our caveman ancestors are still with us today. We can be territorial, violent and like to stick in groups of other men, but it's not really our fault. It's the way we have evolved.

Another way in which men have retained some of their caveman tendencies can be seen in the way they deal with women. Originally, while the men were hunter-gatherers, women were primarily child bearers. To keep the species going a caveman had to find a mate who was capable of bearing many children.

Cavemen developed a keen sense for detecting this kind of woman. Some of the characteristics that would make a good mate were youth, health and hips wide enough for child delivery. Not surprisingly, men nowadays look for the same qualities in a mate. They even tend to notice these qualities when they already have a mate.

Millions of years ago killing a large animal or lifting a boulder would suffice, but now men prove their worth by chugging beer, belching and punching other men in the arm. These habits may seem quite silly, but they have played a very important role in the evolutionary process.

Mark McGrath

Once a caveman found a woman who attracted him, he had to impress her to prove that he was deserving of her. Millions of years ago killing a large animal or lifting a boulder would suffice, but now men prove their worth by chugging beer, belching and punching other men in the arm. These habits may seem quite silly, but they have played a very important role in the evolutionary process.

When he found his mate, the caveman's instinct led him to try and propagate the species. Once he realized he was able to father more than one cavekid at a time, he looked for other women with whom he could reproduce. At that point, the quality of relationships wasn't the important thing, the quantity of relationships was. Now, many men are criticized for their fear of a serious relationship and their desire to cheat. This trait seems to have come directly from our caveman ancestors.

Over the past million years, we men have done quite a bit of evolving, but some of the tendencies that are hardest to suppress are the ones that have kept us surviving and thriving throughout that time period. When it all comes down to it, we are still cavemen and even though our actions may seem barbaric at times, they've come not without reason. We are creatures of instinct in a world where instinct no longer plays a part. Maybe, after another million years, we will evolve to the point where we will no longer be ruled by these primal instincts, but don't hold your breath waiting.

Mark McGrath is a Collegian columnist.

Letters to the Editor

Article full of ignorance

To the Editor:

"The government has been overthrown by bribery!" "A conspiracy by the rich has divided us!" "The media and universities are puppets of the well off!" "Democracy is dead!" Enlightened thinking or just another squabbling radical?

The editorial "96 could be the year" by John Harrigan in the Sept. 29 issue of the Collegian arguably falls under the latter, not the former. The article suffers from broad and unconvincing generalities about the 'hegemonic rich.' Despite popular belief, the top income bracket in this country did not divide us into warring factions, buy off the media and colleges to keep us misinformed, or select all of our candidates for elected office.

Last time that I checked, competing factions (i.e. pro-choice, pro-life, liberal, conservative etc.) where what promoted democracy, not detracted from it. Though the author of last Friday's article seems to support creating more democracy, he indirectly advocates just the opposite. The unity he seeks with the populace in regulating the economy, ending crime in America, and stripping power from the "rich" can only be fully achieved by means of a dictatorship. Is he really a fascist in disguise?

The arguments concerning the media and universities being bought off by the wealthy are absurd. Granted, the media has made errors of judgment by keeping vital information from the public that should not have been withheld. But media has also been instrumental in keeping citizens informed about some foreign wars (i.e. Vietnam) and has played a large role in keeping politicians more honest to the people. As for the charges against universities, I know of no other campus that encourages more debate and thought on a wealth of different issues than this one. If you feel devoid of information, you are not searching hard enough.

The real misinformed often breed ignorance, as last Friday's editorial clearly illustrates. The author of "'96 could be the year" should be more concerned with studying the issues he cares so much about and registering to vote than writing misdirected pieces on government.

Bob Letteney
John Adams

PhD program left out of article

To the Editor:

Your Sept. 29 story on campus doctoral programs that the National Research Council report rates among the best in the nation unfortunately did not mention the PhD program in German. Our doctoral program was ranked 19th in the United States by the NRC study (ahead of similar programs at the University of Illinois, the University of Michigan, UCLA and Georgetown, to name a few). I am proud of the ranking of our doctoral program. We should all, I think, feel a sense of pride in the solid achievement of so many of our departments during the budgetary distress of the last six years.

As the campus community congratulates itself on the success of its top-ranked programs, however, a word of caution is in order. As the heads of several other nationally ranked departments were cited as saying in your Sept. 29 story, continued investment in the academic enterprise is necessary. The Commonwealth must be persuaded to increase its appropriations to the University of Massachusetts over the coming decade. Otherwise, far fewer programs will rank in the "top 20" when the next NRC report is released.

Frank Hugus
German Department Head

Countries' goals misinterpreted

To the Editor:

Last Friday, I ran into one of my French fellows. He seemed pretty irritated, and without a word, handed me a copy of the Collegian, pointing at Peter Orvetti's column, "The mighty powerful France."

The first attack on France is about its relationship with Germany. I sure can't know much, as I am a native of such a lame country as France, but President Mitterand and Chancellor Kohl were among the two country leaders who met the most often. I am not judging, I am just stating facts — which probably makes me a much worse journalist than Mr. Orvetti.

Then there was the attack on France's place in the world. France is rated as the 4th most powerful country in the world, behind (in that order) Germany, United States and Japan. If being 4th out of some 170 countries makes France a "second-rate industrial democracy," then I guess there are as many as 80 rates in the world.

So let's now talk about the nuclear tests ran by President Chirac. Not agreeing with those tests is not enough to give President Chirac such motives as "reminding the world that France has the ability to seriously damage its neighbors." If these tests reminded Mr. Orvetti France was a nuclear power, fine. There are some educated people in this country — and elsewhere in the world — who never forgot France had the bomb. Calling President Mitterand "a man of limited talents" again shows Mr. Orvetti's lack of information. You can not deny the intelligence of the man, unless you want to deliberately insult the French people who elected him for 14 years, and I am sure this not the intention of Mr. Orvetti. Was it?

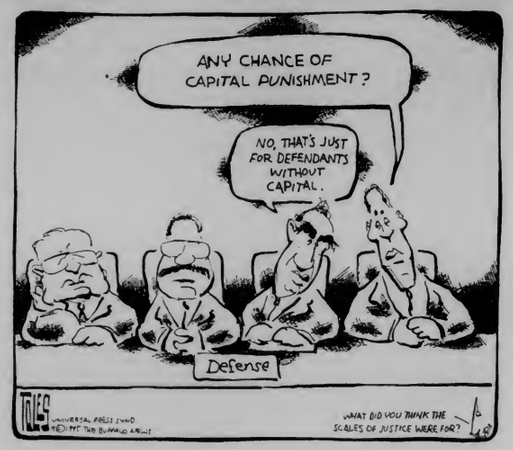
Mr. Orvetti describes President Chirac as being "anti-immigrant, anti-poor and anti-homeless." Such an opinion you might think would be supported by some evidence. Let's take the "evidence" of the anti-part: the arrest of "random immigrants." Reading Mr. Orvetti's paper, I felt like President Chirac just woke up one morning, deciding suddenly, "I'll have some arrests for breakfast today." I laughed at Mr. Orvetti's line, "the official reason is fear of bombings." Shall I remind Mr. Orvetti that more than 20 people were killed, over 150 people were injured, and four bombs exploded, while the police efforts managed to prevent two other explosions?

France is not living in fear of hypothetical events. France is taking measures to prevent these bombings to go on. Mr. Orvetti also forgot to mention that Algerians have brought war onto France's soil already, with the murder of a well- known Algerian while he was visiting France last July.

Is Mr. Orvetti counting every identity check in the "800,000 North Africans detained?" In that case, let me finish this way: my family being from Tunisia, I have such a "dark complexion," and I have been checked twice in Paris in August. And so what? The sketches described the supposed terrorists to be North Africans, and I'd rather be checked than feeling the government was not taking care of this problem. France has not decided to arrest random North Africans. France is defending its people. And I am proud of it.

Laura Bokobza
Prince House

Opinion/Editorial



ANY CHANCE OF CAPITAL PUNISHMENT?
NO, THAT'S JUST FOR DEFENDANTS WITHOUT CAPITAL.
Defense
TOLES
UNIVERSAL PRESS SYND
WHAT DID YOU THINK THE SCALES OF JUSTICE WERE FOR?

The inside to corporate maneuvers

Editor's note: This column is the first of two parts.

This has certainly been a summer for mergers and monopolies. I listened to National Public Radio every day and read the Boston Globe almost every other day. Companies such as Walt Disney and Capital Cities/ABC, IBM and Lotus, Westinghouse and CBS merged with other in corporate marriages. As I write this, many other mergers are in the making, waiting to unfold at a timely hour under scrutiny of the Department of Justice. Sort of.

Interestingly enough, each merger seemed invariably connected to a large reduction of their respective staff and employees. All these events made me look back on this long, hot summer and wonder just what was happening.

William Bailey- Eisenhauer

Starting after final exams in May, I worked for a company that I will never forget. In fact, with the assistance of a temporary staffing agency, I stumbled onto the doorsteps of a large fortune 500 company. I learned about the dynamics of corporate management and, invariably, decisions that affect large numbers of people. The company, which I will not name, decided to close down various distribution centers around the country.

The branch that I worked for was included in that death list. What was reason for the closings? Well, they gave me many different responses when I invoked the question. Outdated facilities, reducing costs, global and market competition and corporate downsizing were only a few of the reasons I heard from various "higher-ups."

The company was not in absolute financial straits: they were operating successfully, thriving according to statistical profit margins. Yet, despite the number-crunching research and multitudinous volumes of data fueling executive decisions, the ones who suffered the most were the average people who worked in the company. They became all too familiar with a concept I learned about during my summer job.

Out-sourcing

Out-sourcing is a way of contracting services to outside agencies to handle formerly internal company functions. For example, a company that no longer wishes to maintain an in-house accounting department out-sources it to an external agency. The accounting department no longer works directly for the company, but instead to contracted external agency.

The benefits of such out-sourcing are reduced costs for the company to their employees. The company and the employee bread the bond of legal union and mutual responsibility. The corporation out-sourcing their department no longer takes care of hiring complaints, discrimination suits, litigation or costly benefits such as medical care or life insurance.

The out-sourcing agency now controls all department functions as stipulated in the out-sourced agreement. All of this is conducive to lowering company liability/expenses. Out-sourcing is a component of an economic policy generally referred to as Downsizing. This measure is an overall cost-cutting technique used to reduce the expenses in a given industry.

Downsizing serves the immediate and projected long term goal of bolstering quarterly profits, improving capital revenue, reducing human or capital liabilities and thus improving stock-holder investment speculation. Downsizing in a corporate environment is a rational, no nonsense, statistical method of surviving cut-throat global competition.

But is it really?

In Japan, before the current (1990) economic policy of sloughing American workers from the work force began, the small island invested two to three times more in their worker than American companies did. Also, contradictory to Western thought, the Japanese continued to hire more people in the early 1990's while Western unemployment soared.

The reasons and explanations for this are varied, however, Eamonn Fingletons book Blindside: Why Japan Is Still on Track to Overtake the US by the Year 2000, makes some interesting comparisons between Western and Eastern economic traditions.

I remember reading in a Globe article that a CEO once stated, "I asked for a pair of hands and I get a human instead." What are the ramifications of out-sourcing policy? Well, at my summer job, a handful of people who worked at the company (some worked for the company for up to 40 years) decided to retire.

The company did not have a history of investing or allocating time or resources to improve its employees' technical background or computer related skills during their employment. Many of them struggle with the basics of a computer.

Those who are old enough and financially stable enough to retire leave the corporate retreat. They are the lucky ones. They retire cognizant of contemporary work force problems such as hiring ageism, racism or out-dated worker-ism that plague the employment sector today. Instead of fighting these "isms," they pursue a lifestyle outside of the mainstream and retire. They face a reduced quality of life that cannot be countered or assuaged entirely by social security or pension benefits.

William Bailey-Eisenhauer is a UMass student.

NBA visits Romper Room

The Minnesota Timberwolves should consider moving to Las Vegas. They're certainly willing to gamble.

On NBA draft day, the perennially cellar-dwelling Timberwolves passed on a multitude of proven college players, and selected Kevin Garnett, a 6' 9" forward from Farragut Academy in Chicago, with the fifth pick overall in the draft.

While most draftees were college grads in their early 20s, the teenage Garnett was barely a month removed from his high school prom.

The selection of Garnett sent shock waves through the entire basketball community. In the eyes of nearly every major scout, Garnett has sufficient skills. The issue at hand is how the basketball community will respond to Garnett's breaking the established status quo by bypassing college and heading directly to the NBA.

With the often exorboarnt salaries being paid to top NBA rookies, the temptation to leave college, or in this case to skip it all together is surging. Ten underclassmen were taken in July's draft, the most ever. None of the top five picks stuck along long enough to receive a degree.

Attending college has never been much of an issue in either hockey or baseball where prospects frequently bypass their eligibility in favor of the pros. This is not the case in football and basketball, the NCAA's top two revenue generating sports.

Kevin Garnett has taken a reasonably uncharted route in avoiding the mess that college basketball is becoming. He's simply averting the issue altogether and going directly to the professional ranks.

Leigh Torbin

The NCAA recently signed a new eight-year 1.725 billion dollar deal with CBS for the broadcast right to the NCAA men's basketball tournament. NCAA regulations prohibit a penny of that gargantuan sum from going to its student- athletes in excess of their scholarship.

Feeling used by schools, increasing numbers of student-athletes in both football and basketball have departed from college for greener pastures in the NBA.

For the student-athlete's sake, the advantages to staying in school are obvious. A college education, and a free one at that, is an opportunity extended to few in this country. The NBA and its gigantic dollar signs can be tempting to an inner-city athlete, gigantic enough to make them forgo their education for a shot at the big-time.

Suddenly the "student" is removed from "student-athlete," and the NCAA looks like a miser for insisting that its student-athletes be amateurs.

Paying student-athletes would be detrimental to the NCAA's founding purposes though, prostituting the organization at the hands of the almighty dollar.

A general principle of the NCAA (2.8) states that "[Student-athletes in] their participation should be motivated primarily by education and by the physical, mental and social benefits to be derived. Student participation in intercollegiate athletics is an avocation, and student-athletes should be protected from exploitation by professional and commercial enterprises."

College basketball is changing; less in the spirit of amateurism, and more as a warm-up for a professional career and the multi-million dollar contract that awaits top rookies in the promised land of the NBA.

Kevin Garnett has taken a reasonably uncharted route in avoiding the mess that college basketball is becoming. He's simply averting the issue altogether and going directly to the professional ranks.

His success or failure at the sport's highest level will prove to be a bench-mark for future top prep players. He could succeed, be rewarded with riches and fame, and thus encourage other top players to wrongfully shun college.

On the contrary, Garnett could either prove too immature or physically undeveloped to handle the NBA and become one of the biggest busts of the decade. He could suffer a career-ending injury and be left with no basketball, and no education.

High school seniors would come to realize the benefits of a college education and the intrinsic value of a college experience. The dollar value of an NBA contract would be minuscule next to the value of four years of school.

Here's hoping Garnett fails.

Leigh Torbin is a Collegian columnist.

Black Affairs

Tuesday, October 3, 1995

Roots & Culture

The world is Ours

1995:

"Brothers and Sisters there is a revolution going on. In 1995 we need the media to represent our existents. As far as I now we exist in masses. The Collegian is for you, too. We have moved from the police log to center stage. The Black society's future in the Five College campus area shines bright. The world is our's, can't a damn thing stop us!"

— Chris Byrd, Black Affairs Editor

1974:

"Brothers and Sisters involved in the various aspects of mass communications here on campus have been trying to bring about some effective change in the media here at UMass.

Since the Collegian is the most segregated and most white oriented media vehicle on campus (the Collegian has an almost all white staff) we have been mostly concerned with it rather than the radio station."

— Michael Patterson, Black News Service Commentator (April 16, 1974, 'Collegian')

After 21 years of Black Affairs, what now?
THE REAL. Coming Oct. 20
Jump on board the "full expression" staff.
545- 1851 or 546- 1612 Campus Center B11D@umass.student.edu

Arts & Living

Piano concert highlights Bach, Chopin & Bartok

By Nathalie Scriba and Wiebke Schweer
Collegian Correspondents

"SUITES, FANTASIES AND OTHER DELIGHTS"
Bezanson Hall
September 30

Professor Nigel Coxe enchanted the audience with his piano recital "Suites, Fantasies and Other Delights" this past Saturday night.

In an overcrowded Bezanson Hall, Coxe performed a program consisting of pieces by J.S. Bach, Claude Debussy, Bela Bartok and Frederic Chopin. The concert was dedicated to the memory of Tom Malone, who died in July at the age of 42.

Coxe recounted his first meeting with Malone 20 years ago, when Malone started his studies in Coxe's piano class saying that he was "a wonderful and conscientious student."

A born craftsman, Malone decided to work as a piano technician. He graduated in the Piano Technology Program at North Bennett Street School.

After receiving The Baldwin Fellowship, he began to work with pianos at Tanglewood. Malone also published many theoretical articles about piano.

"Many great artists such as Leonard Bernstein appreciated Malone as a professional and a private person," Coxe said. "Tom Malone had a wonderful sense of humor and wrote amusing short stories."

"I deeply share, together with Tom's family, his close friends and many artists, the grief over Tom's death," Coxe said at the end of his speech.

Coxe started his program with a brilliant performance of Bach's "French Suite No. 1 in D minor," followed by a powerful play of Bach's "Fantasy and Fugue in A minor."

"Debussy might seem far away from Bach, but his first piece "Pour Le Piano" is a homage to the Baroque era," Coxe said announcing the next composer.

The audience was very taken with Coxe's rousing performance of "Pour Le Piano" and answered with a longlasting applause. After the intermission Coxe continued with Bartok's "Improvisations on Hungarian Peasant Song."

"In his late twentieth century works, Debussy anticipated the music of Bartok. You can plainly hear his influence on the first movement of Bartok's "Peasant Songs," Coxe said, explaining the link between the two composers.

In addition to this he drew the attention of the audience to the folk elements in this music.

"You can really see little landscape pictures in these atmospheric pieces," he said.

Three pieces by Chopin formed the last part of the recital: "Nocturnes, Op. 27, No. 1 & 2" and "Fantasie, Op.49," which Coxe played in a very soft and dreamy way. He named Chopin the "tie of the apparently disparate composers of the program."

The audience was swept away by Coxe's excellent performance and thanked him with a standing ovation, Coxe returned the praise with an encore.

He ended his concert with a short, but tricky piece by Debussy. The performance was well-explained and performed. It was certainly a treat for all those who attended.

COURTESY DEPT. OF DANCE & MUSIC

Nigel Coxe entertained Bowker auditorium this past Saturday night.

Aging Tom Jones still excites at Big E

By Josh B. Wardrop
Collegian Correspondent

TOM JONES
Big E Main Stage, West Springfield
October 1

WEST SPRINGFIELD — Not too many folks can say they spent the first crisp evening of October watching a man in his late 50s shake his leather-clad booty. In fact, those who can were probably all in the same place — West Springfield at the Big E on Sunday night — where the booty shaker in question was the Prince of Wales himself, Tom Jones.

Jones is currently enjoying a mini-revival. He released a highly credible (and sometimes damn groovy) pop album, The Lead, And How To Swing It, late last year. He has also been seen on popular TV shows like, "The Fresh Prince of Bel-Air" and "The Simpsons," usually poking fun at his aging sex-god image.

In concert, Jones stage presence is the first thing that strikes his fans. It is really just like they say — women were screaming, swooning and whooping with delight every time he thrusted his crotch or caressed the size 12 tube sock he had crammed into his ultra-tight leather pants.

The second thing you notice is that the famous voice, richer and more soulful than any of his contemporaries, is still entirely intact. Be they old torch songs like "I Know I'll Never Fall In Love Again" or brand-new tunes like the Teddy Riley penned, "Fly Away," Jones pours every ounce of passion and longing in him into his act.

Jones is a consummate showman, knowing how to effortlessly work a crowd, and he didn't leave out any of the expected fan favorites. "It's Not Unusual," "What's New Pussycat?," "Delilah" and "Kiss" were all duly delivered.

The evening's high point had to be the first song of the encore, in which a blistering guitar solo led into Lenny Kravitz's "Are You Gonna Go My Way?" The song which Jones originally recorded for the Jerky Boys Soundtrack, rocked as hard as Kravitz ever did, perhaps a tad harder.

Tom Jones will probably always elicit giggles from the younger generation, and will never be a critically acclaimed, socially conscious brooding artist. Instead he'll continue to do what he's done for the past thirty years — take popular songs, and belt them out in his own inimitable style. What more could his fans ask for?

COURTESY MICHAEL LEVINE

Tom Jones graced the Big E Budweiser stage this week- end.

Queer love focus of play

Homosexuality, confusion discussed in plot

By Jennifer Willard
Collegian Correspondent

STRAWBERRIES AND CHOCOLATE
Bowker Auditorium
Sept. 30

"There's no cure for me," was probably one of the strongest messages sent out by main character, Diego, in the Cuban drama, "Strawberries and Chocolate," performed on Saturday, September 30, at Bowker Auditorium.

The auditorium was packed with an audience who laughed at all the right lines and fell silent when the actors tugged at their hearts with deep-felt political passions.

The Stonewall Center and New World Theater chose an impressive play to focus on and explain the clear and present struggle of the Gay, Lesbian and Bisexual communities need for sexual equality.

Josean Ortiz played Diego, and also adapted, produced and directed the play. From his first strut across the stage, Ortiz was certainly the star of the drama.

From what seemed a personal conviction, Ortiz portrayed Diego's feelings of injustice with such a fire that during some scenes he seemed to leave the stage of acting and become Diego, making the play conceivably his life.

Supporting characters Miguel and David were played by, respectively, Abdiel Gonzalez and Jorge Castillo.

The emotional depth, coupled with the extraordinary acting abilities, demonstrated by the actors made it clear that this play was more than just simply another way to pay the bills.

The set was simple and effective. Two metal chairs and a small metal table were sufficient to depict the ice cream parlor. The bedroom consisted of a platform raised of the ground about three inches, with a mattress and a wooden chair on top. The living room, slightly more elaborate, had two chairs, three or four hanging ferns, a bookcase and a railing for a make-shift balcony/window.

In the opening scene, David and Diego coincidentally end up sitting next to each other in the ice cream parlor. After lengthy coercion and flamboyant acting on Diego's part, David is persuaded to go back to his apartment. He leaves Diego in a haste, only to return a short while after.

The two men become friends, much to the disapproval of David's best friend, Miguel. Miguel hopes to have Diego exported, due to his own homophobia.

David and Diego continue to grow closer and their friendship blossoms. However, the play takes a critical turn when Diego gets exported and then has a violent confrontation with Miguel.

Diego and David share a heart-felt good-bye and Diego leaves. But not before he has touched the life of David and changed his attitude on people and what is and isn't important.

"Strawberries and Chocolate" was a play filled with thick Spanish-accents, good music, adventurous humor and touching lessons in love and respect for others.

Life of Agony headline weak mosh-filled show at Pearl St.

By Adam Dlugacz
Collegian Correspondent

LIFE OF AGONY & LORDZ OF BROOKLYN
Pearl Street
Sept. 28

NORTHAMPTON — It was not a night to remember at Pearl Street on Thursday. The mosh pit may have been steaming but the band's performances were as cold as ice.

Uranium 235 opened the show with their nauseating combination of mixing heavy metal with bad techno. Easily one of the worst bands that has graced this stage in some time. Pushbutton Warfare then took the stage with their brutal mosh-core sound. They were being passed off as a hardcore band but sounded too much like Slayer. The next band Pist On left most of the audience pissed off. They were a horrible heavy metal band who tried to impress the crowd by telling everyone they were from Queens, NY.

Lordz of Brooklyn then stormed the stage to the theme song from The Godfather. Their brand of hardcore rap was perfect after three lackluster opening bands. Imagine House Of Pain dressed as gangsters from the '30s rapping about drinking, American pride and barroom brawls. They had the crowd going crazy to their hits "Saturday Night" and "Bad Racket."

Finally after half an hour the headliner, Life Of Agony, took the stage. First off, Life Of Agony are no longer the hardcore band they once were. Now they are just a bunch of heavy metal sellouts — they even acted like total rock stars in their Kiss look alike t-shirts.

Life of Agony concentrated on tunes off of their new album Ugly. The songs "I Regret" and "Last at 22" were two heavier numbers that showed Life Of Agony's ability to write good hardcore songs. They did save a little bit of face by playing some songs off their impressive debut album River Runs Red.

All in all, save the Lordz of Brooklyn, this may easily be the worst show that has passed through this area in a long time. Hopefully we won't have to suffer again.

WE WANT YOU!!!

to be a

HEARING BOARD MEMBER

If You...

-are interested in Campus Leadership
-wish to improve your communication and listening skills
-are a full time student
-have at least a 2.0 G.P.A.
-are not on Judicial Sanction

Apply now to be a Hearing Board Member:
Training Held - October 10,11,12
7:00 p.m. - 10:00 p.m.
9th Floor Campus Center

Applications available at
RESIDENTIAL CLUSTER OFFICES & THE DEAN OF STUDENTS OFFICE
227 WHITMORE

Deadline October 6, at 5:00 p.m.

ANY QUESTIONS?
CONTACT:
Paul Vasconcellos & Jen Cooper, Assistant Dean of Students
Dean of Students Office, Whitmore, 545-2684

Collegian Graphics
We're Up All Night

Treat of The Week
Regular price 59.
Sale price 39.

ZAMA
Amherst
Williamstown

EXPERT AUTO BODY REPAIRS, AUTO PAINTING and GLASS REPLACEMENT

MARSHALL STEINBECK
PROFESSIONAL COLLISION WORK

- OVEN BAKED URETHANE FINISHES
- FREE ESTIMATES & CLAIMS ASSISTANCE
- INSURANCE APPROVED GLASS REPLACEMENT
- PROFESSIONAL UNIBODY REPAIR AND FRAME STRAIGHTENING

Shop Reg. #RS1212

256-8157 256-1385
53 South Prospect Street, Amherst, Massachusetts

Opera looks at lesbian life

By Rebecca Maloney
Collegian Correspondent

DERIVATIVE DUO
Unitarian Society, Northampton
Sept. 29

NORTHAMPTON — The Derivative Duo, Barb Glenn and Susan Nivert, performed in front of a primarily lesbian audience this past Friday night at the Unitarian Society in Northampton.

The Duo sang opera parodies that illuminated both the comic and bittersweet sides of lesbian/gay life while their tacky, thrift-shop costumes seemed to be a reaction to the stuffy formality and often blatant heterosexuality of traditional opera.

The music is real opera, but the words were all their own. These self-proclaimed "demented divas" and "lesbians in drag" rewrote the lyrics to operas for, as Nivert puts it, "discriminating audiences." Often feminist and lesbian in theme, some of their topics included PMS, gays in the military, Fabio and personal ads.

The audience roared with laughter when Nivert introduced "Ein Kline Visit from Mama" sung to "Ein Kline Nachtmusik" by Mozart by saying, "Gays and lesbians have developed a language all of their own — 'de-dike,' for example. My mother's coming to visit so I have to 'de-dike' the house."

While the Duo's repertoire is almost exclusively classical, they occasionally come across a pop tune that is just too good to resist. For example, they changed Billy Joel's "She's Always a Woman" to "She's More Than A Woman" with lyrics like "She's not just any Joe Schmoe/ She's got money to blow/ She's more than a woman to me."

The Sapphonics, an approximately 25 member a capella group from Amherst joined the Derivative Duo for "Party Panic," sung to the tune of "Merci, Jeunes Amies" from Verdi's opera "Les Vepres Siciliennes." The song is about 'lesbian spaghetti.' "To get 'lesbian spaghetti'," explained Nivert, " you take all the lesbians in a community and draw lines connecting everyone who has had a relationship with someone else."

The Duo received a standing ovation when they ended the show with "Ode to Greta Cammermeyer" sung to the "Toreador Song" from Bizet's opera, "Carmen." The song is a tribute to Col. Margarethe Cammermeyer, the highest ranking woman in the armed services until she was drummed out of the military for admitting her sexual orientation. The Derivative Duo put on a fantastic show that combined classical opera, comedy, cabaret and politics that could pierce even the thickets homophobic armor.

Maceo Parker blows funk into Noho

Parker proves once again why he has become legendary funkateer

By Aaron Brandes
Collegian Correspondent

MACEO PARKER
Pearl Street
October 1

NORTHAMPTON — This is no lie. This is truth. The heat from our sweat saturated, the condensation reached the ceiling and drops of water sporadically dripped on me as I grooved to the sounds! Management ordered Maceo Parker to take a break... they were afraid people might dehydrate! I apologize, but there will be none of this "criticism" stuff in this article. I truly believe that on Sunday night Maceo Parker gave me, as well as the rest of the Northampton crowd, a perfect show.

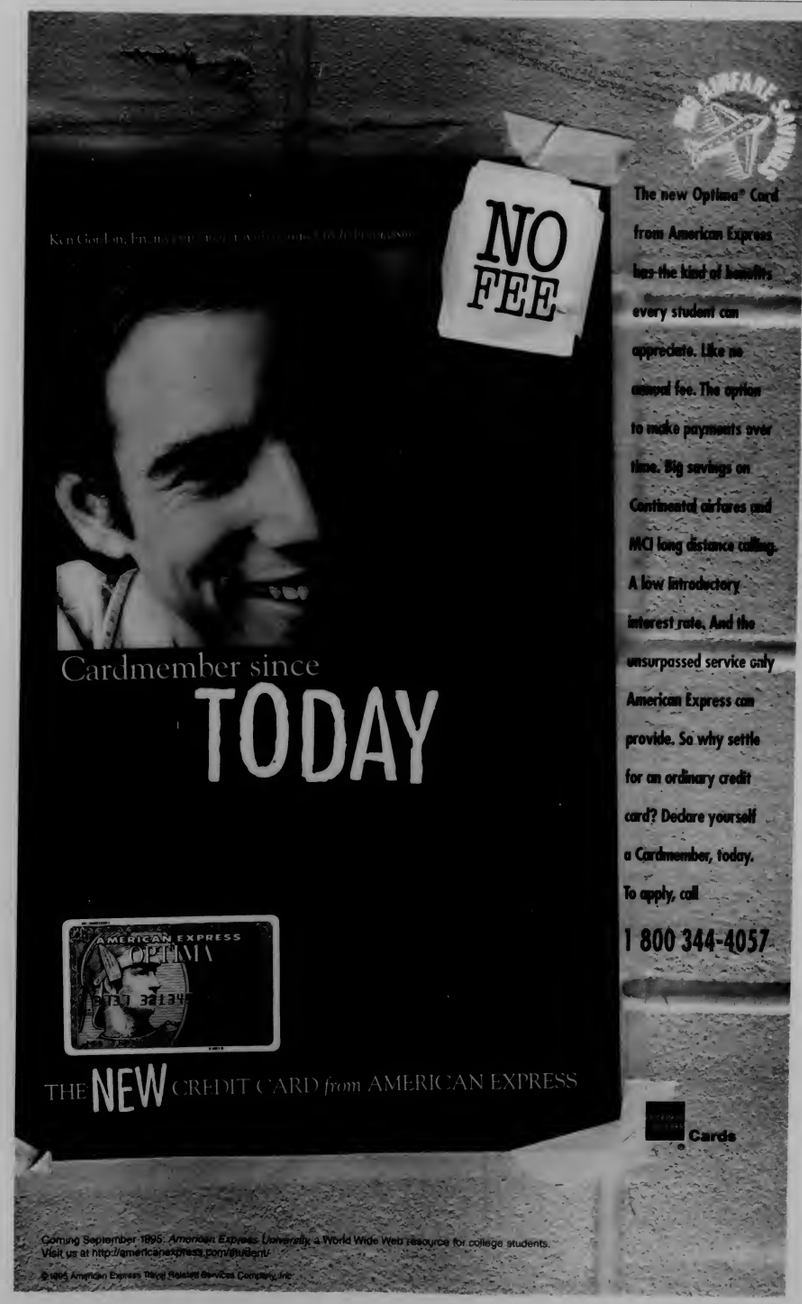
Maceo Parker and his entourage totally have their thang together. A band of true professionals. What else could we expect? Maceo is an original funk master, who has been in the business for over 30 years. His partner is no slouch either, Fred Wesley has been breathing beauty into his trombone right beside Maceo and his sax, since the early days, when they were playing in James Brown's funk crew. The moment these guys walk on stage you can feel it, you can feel the awe, you immediately realize that these guys on stage are the originals, the legends.

The concert starts, and after a few minutes of Maceo's back up band playing jazz rhythms, the theatrics start. "The Man" appears, the Noho crowd responds, a chaos of fun busts loose, then the funk starts. Maceo blows a little of that quality, we all know we'll be hearing for the rest of the evening. Between his jazzy sounds he greets the crowd with handshakes, smiles as big as the sun, and familiar "how do you do" glances that only Maceo's huge eyes can distribute. Pearl Street becomes "Maceo Parker's House" by the end of the first number.

Years and years of touring only lead to one conclusion, greatness. Maceo and his boys have created an intricate web of: funk, jazz, funk, blues, funk, soul, funk, rock, funk, funk and more funk. This ensemble has orchestrated the best funk you will ever hear, and these 20 minute melodies are so perfectly broken up by jazz, blues or soul tunes.

Hours of everlasting funk, and finally, this out of this planet concert performance was coming to a close. Maceo gave us two classic funk tunes, each in marathon proportions, James Brown's "Make it Funky," followed by Parliament's "Make My Funk a P-Funk." After those came 15 of the most intense minutes filled with wild music and cries of "We love you!" from Maceo and then the dream ended. Maceo himself told the story, saying, "this is one of the top ten crowds I've ever played.

Since the music revolution in the 1950's, genius' of our era have passed on, but there are a few that are still left, Maceo Parker is in this elite club. Maceo Parker is still here.



NO FEE
The new Optima® Card from American Express has the kind of benefits every student can appreciate. Like no annual fee. The option to make payments over time. Big savings on Continental airfares and MCI long distance calling. A low introductory interest rate. And the unsurpassed service only American Express can provide. So why settle for an ordinary credit card? Declare yourself a Cardmember, today. To apply, call 1 800 344-4057
Cardmember since
TODAY
AMERICAN EXPRESS OPTIMA
THE NEW CREDIT CARD from AMERICAN EXPRESS
Coming September 1995: American Express University, a World Wide Web resource for college students. Visit us at http://americanexpress.com/student/© 1995 American Express Travel Related Services Company, Inc.

MASSACHUSETTS DAILY COLLEGIAN
113 Campus Center
545-3500

The Top Ten Reasons to Use the UHS Eye Care Program and Contact Lens Service

1. We have a comprehensive contact lens program.
2. Emergency eye care delivered at UHS, is a covered benefit if you are a student plan member.
3. Savings on eyeglasses from participating opticians are available if you are a student and have a complete optometry examination at UHS
4. We can obtain almost any contact lens in the U.S.A.
5. On-site contact lens specialist.
6. Free sample start-up contact lens solutions.
7. Contact lenses can be mailed directly to you, free postage for normal delivery.
8. Same day replacement of contact lenses, in many cases, due to our large in house inventory
9. We take great pride in being able to fit many people who have had difficulty in the past wearing contact lenses
10. Convenient hours and location.

University Health Services
549-2671 X244

Mariners capture West in playoff

By Jim Cour
Associated Press

Mariners	9
Angels	1

SEATTLE — With a crowd of 52,356 wildly cheering for Randy Johnson as if it were the seventh game of the World Series, the Seattle Mariners finally got the opportunity to get there Monday. The Mariners reached the postseason for the first time in their 19-year history, winning the AL West title by beating the California Angels 9-1 in baseball's first one-game playoff since 1980.

Johnson (18-2), maintaining his menacing stare on every pitch, was perfect for 5 2-3 innings and finished with a three-hitter and 12 strikeouts. Leading 1-0, the Mariners broke open the game in the seventh when Luis Sojo's bases-loaded double — aided pitcher Mark Langston's throwing error — turned into a four-run play.

"I felt a little bit of weight on my shoulders," Johnson said. "But I thrive on that and it was probably my biggest game ever. I had a lot of emotion built up."

Johnson beat the Angels for the third time in four decisions, having lost to them the last time he faced them in Anaheim Aug. 1. In that game, the 6-foot-10 left-hander went 7 1-3 innings, giving up seven runs on 10 hits and two walks.

"The last time I pitched against the Angels, they roughed me up pretty good," he said. "And they've been extremely hot. But you have to rise to the occasion and I think I did."

The victory finished off a roller-coaster season for Seattle, which trailed California by 13 games on Aug. 2. The Mariners missed a chance to wrap up the division by losing Saturday and Sunday while California won twice for a tie.

"We were never a team that had a 13-game lead like the Angels," he said. "We were a team that was striving to be the wild-card team."

The Mariners will play wild-card winner New York in the best-of-5 first round. The series begins Tuesday night at Yankee Stadium with Chris Bosio likely to start for Seattle against David Cone.

Seattle was 9-4 against the Yankees, including a 3-3 mark in New York.

"When he stepped on the field today ... there was something about him," Mariners star Ken Griffey Jr. said of Johnson. "It was like, 'Give me one run and I'll take care of the rest." Johnson, who won on three days' rest, will not be ready to pitch until at least Game 3 Friday night at the Kingdome. The Mariners hoped to save their ace for Game 1, but needed him to win the most important game in franchise history.

Johnson, the leading candidate for the AL Cy Young Award, led the majors with 294 strikeouts. He walked just one, and lost his shutout when Tony Phillips homered to open the ninth.

The Kingdome fans were on their feet screaming and shouting encouragement from the first inning on, chanting "Randy, Randy, Randy," when he struck out the side in the third and fifth. Johnson struck out Tim Salmon for the fourth time to end the game, and then the celebration started. Johnson shot his arms in the air and hugged catcher Dan Wilson. Fireworks exploded overhead as he ran off the field with his arms still raised, and fans ran onto the field and tried to dig up home plate.

For the Angels and Langston (15-7), who was traded by Seattle to Montreal for Johnson May 25, 1989, the loss marked their final disappointment.

The Angels, who led the AL West by 11 games on Aug. 9 before one of baseball's biggest collapses, won their last five games to force the playoff.

The last time baseball needed a one-game playoff was in 1980, when Houston defeated Los Angeles for the NL West title. The last one-game playoff in the AL was 1978, when Bucky Dent's home run lifted the Yankees over Boston at Fenway Park for the AL East title. Lou Piniella, now the Mariners manager, made a key play in the outfield late in that playoff for the Yankees.

The key play in this, only the eighth one-game playoff in major league history, came with two outs in the seventh, the bases loaded and Seattle ahead 1-0.

Sojo hit a broken-bat grounder down the line that barely made it past fine-fielding first baseman J.T. Snow. The ball rolled into the bullpen as Mike Blowers and Tino Martinez scored, and Langston got the relay as Joey Cora approached the plate. Langston seemed to double-clutch and threw the ball past catcher Andy Allanson. The ball went to the backstop and Sojo never stopped running, beating Allanson's return throw to Langston at the plate. While Sojo and the Mariners celebrated, Langston lay on his back in the dirt with a pained look on his face.

Langston, who has played 12 years in the majors and never made it to the postseason, was pulled after the play. In the dugout, he sat with his head down as teammates tried to console him. The Angels have not been to the playoffs since 1986, and have never been to the World Series.

Colorado is ready to face tough Atlanta Braves

By John Mossman
Associated Press

DENVER — Now comes the hard part for the Colorado Rockies, a club that did not even exist three years ago: how to cope with playoff pressure and prepare for the Atlanta Braves, the team with the best record in the National League.

Besides having no playoff history, the Rockies have a dreadful record against the Braves, going 6-30 since the Rockies' inaugural season of 1993.

The best-of-5 series begins Tuesday night at Coors Field, where the Rockies compiled a 44-28 record this season - tying Atlanta and Cincinnati for the best home marks in the NL. That record wasn't built, however, on home wins against Atlanta.

The Rockies were only 2-4 against the Braves in Denver this year and are only 3-16 in three years.

If there is some comfort in those cold statistics, it is that Colorado won two of three games in the Braves' most recent visit, delaying the Braves' celebration of their eventual NL East title. "We gained some confidence playing them the last series here," Rockies left fielder Dante Bichette said Monday.

Added catcher Joe Girardi, "Now we know we can beat them more than once a year."

Right-hander Kevin Ritz (11-11) will get the start for the Rockies against Greg Maddux (19-2).

In his only appearance against Colorado this year, Maddux lost 6-5 on May 17 in Atlanta.

"We roughed him up a little bit the last time we faced him," Ritz said, "and that gives us some confidence facing him again."

Maddux has won a major-league record 18 road decisions in a row, but Rockies reliever Bruce Ruffin noted, "He hasn't pitched here yet. This place is different from anywhere else."

Rodman traded to Chicago Bulls

By Rick Gano
Associated Press

DEERFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Dennis Rodman, the flamboyant forward who led the NBA in rebounding the last four seasons but repeatedly exasperated San Antonio management, was traded Monday to the Chicago Bulls for center Will Perdue.

"I think it's great. I think he's excited, I think it's a perfect fit," Neil Draddy, Rodman's agent, said. "They need some work off the boards and the extra defense he will give them." Draddy said he did not anticipate Rodman having any off-court problems like the ones that have followed him during his nine-year career in Detroit and San Antonio.

"I know he's spoken to Phil Jackson, the coach) and Phil is comfortable with what Dennis is going to do. I think they will work out an arrangement between the two of them and the team, and everything will work out just fine."

Rodman, who's in the final year of his contract, will make $2.5 million this season.

Rodman, as usual, was the premier force under the boards this season. But the 34-year-old forward, who is partial to multicolored hairdos, assorted body piercings and late-night soirees with Madonna, proved a constant irritant to the Spurs' front office. He was suspended during the season for insubordination and would often miss practice, his whereabouts unknown, and remove his basketball shoes while on the bench during games.

"We are happy to acquire Dennis Rodman," Bulls general manger Jerry Krause. "We think he is the best rebounder in the game and the best defender at his position. He gives us a dimension we have lacked and enables us to take more advantage of the skills of Toni Kukoc."

The Bulls, who in all certainty made the move with the approval of Michael Jordan, also renounced rights to Pete Myers and Larry Krystkowiak.

In acquiring Perdue, a 30-year-old part-time center and marginal player, San Antonio made it all too clear it was simply intent on ridding itself of Rodman.

THANG VO / COLLEGIAN

Getting forward
Junior defender Erin Lynch and her women's soccer teammates will be playing Yale tomorrow at 3:30 p.m. at Garber Field.

So You've Got the Blues...
A support Group for people living with mood disorders

Skills For Combatting Depression
This six session group will focus on providing group members with essential coping skills and preventing relapse.

The group will meet on Thursday afternoons from 3:45 - 5:00pm beginning in late October and continuing until early December.

Pre-group interviews are required.
For information or to sign up for an interview call 545-2337, or stop by 127 Hills North, Monday - Friday 8:00am - 5:00pm.
Offered by the Mental Health Dream of University Health Services

Expand your world... write... Multicultural Affairs... 545-35... 113 Campus Center

Voted BEST in the Valley
FAMOUS FOR
2 BURGS 2 BUCKS
PETER'S DRIVE-IN
ROUTE 9
HADLEY, MA
YEAR 'ROUND

COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIEDS
THEY WORK 545-3500

Confirm Your FALL 1995 Course Schedule!!
Starting Wednesday, September 27, the Registrar's Office will mail to you, at your local address, your course schedule for Fall 1995. Your schedule will be accurate as of September 22, including any five-college classes you might have.

Please check your printed schedule carefully!

If you have questions about your course schedule, contact the Registrar's Office. If you never attended a certain class, or are enrolled in a class not on your schedule, contact your undergraduate deans office as soon as possible, but no later than October 10.

If you do not receive your schedule by Friday, October 6, contact the Registrar's Office to confirm both your course schedule AND your local mailing address.

The Massachusetts DAILY COLLEGIAN
New England's Largest Daily • Founded in 1890 • Daily Since 1967
Presents
Q
Gay, Lesbian & Bisexual Supplement
Tuesday, October 10
Look For It!

■ women's tennis

continued from page 12

Martin, 6-0, 6-1 in No. 1 singles. Sitton also combined with Caroline Steele in No. 1 doubles to defeat the duo of Martin and Gretchen Marquard, 8-4. Steele was also victorious in No. 5 singles, 6-2, 6-0.

Freshman Jackie Braunstein continued her impressive play in both singles and doubles play. In No. 3 singles, Braunstein battled off Monica Martinez to win, 6-1, 6-4. Alongside Lana Gorodetskaya, Braunstein helped capture the No. 3 doubles match, 8-6.

Junior co-captain Liz Durant dominated her first set in No. 4 singles play and held on to take the win over PC's Claire Curry. Durant cashed in on her second win of the day when she combined with freshman Marie-Christine Caron in No. 2 doubles, winning 8-4. Gorodetskaya was also a winner in No. 6 singles with an impressive 6-1, 6-0 win.

After the match, Dixon had nothing but compliments about her young and improving team.

"My overall feeling on the match was that we are a superior tennis team at this moment," Dixon said. "We now must be considered the favorite in almost all the matches we play, as well as being considered the favorite to win New England's."

After the Minutewomen's biggest victory of the year the day before, the squad didn't let up and went on to punish UNH 7-0.

Braunstein posted her sixth victory against no losses in singles, winning the No. 2 slot with ease, 6-0, 6-0. She also combined with co-captain Sitton to post a 8-0 shutout in the No. 1 doubles. Sitton won her No. 1 singles without losing a game, 6-0, 6-0.

UMASS MEDIA RELATIONS

Caroline Steele and the Minutewomen tennis team had a successful weekend sweeping Providence and New Hampshire.

Sophomore Noelle Orsini dominated her match against Tara Tarpley in No. 3 singles taking the win, 6-2, 6-2. No. 4 singles featured Durant controlling play over UNH's Becky Baran in a 6-0, 6-3 victory.

Other single winner's included Steele at No. 5, 6-0, 6-0, and Gorodetskaya at No. 6, 6-2, 6-1. Amy Sidran and Caron were also doubles winners.

Dixon once again spoke positively about her team, talking about their ability and potential.

"The UNH coach told me that we were the finest team he's played against, and that included some California teams," Dixon said. "I've been waiting for this team to play up to its potential and they certainly have." The Minutewomen will be facing Army this afternoon at 3 p.m., a team that Dixon has yet to defeat in her time at UMass.

■ men's tennis

continued from page 12

8-1 to improve their record to 6-1, at No. 3 doubles.

The doubles teams have lead UMass all year. In their only loss of the year, they lost the doubles point and in every win they have won the doubles point. Coach Judy Dixon likes to place the weight of the match on the doubles and the lower numbers because she feels her team's strength is in its depth. The doubles team has lost only five matches the entire year while carrying the Minutemen to one of their best seasons in recent years.

After losing to Fairfield on Sept. 23, Lynn has been outstanding at No. 1 singles by only dropping seven games in his last three matches. He defeated Luongo 6-2, 6-0 to leave his record at 5-2. At No. 2 singles, Rummel also remained unchallenged as he defeated Jason White 6-1, 6-1 for his sixth straight-set victory of the year.

Junior Ankur Baishya returned from his lose versus UConn to defeat Poisson 6-2, 6-0. With the victory Baishya improved his record at No. 3 singles to 5-2. At No. 4 singles Aller continued his sensational year where only one match has extended beyond two sets. His 6-1, 6-3 victory over Olszewski left his record at a team best 7-0.

Two freshman manned the bottom part of the order for UMass in their second straight match. At No. 5 singles, Cheney defeated Gibson 6-0, 6-2, and at No. 6 singles Jason Blind left Keith Levitsky baffled with his 6-1, 6-1 win. At the beginning of the season Dixon was reluctant to place freshmen into the starting rotation, but her philosophy has changed as Skeels, Cheney and Blind have played exceptional tennis to warrant action at the varsity level.

Cheney's 6-1 record at singles and doubles, along with Skeels 5-0 mark in doubles are tell tale signs that her decisions have been right on.

"I think that the team in general is being pushed by the freshman," Dixon said. "The exuberance of the freshman has really given the upper classmen a lot of intensity and it has been wonderful for our team. They have proven they can perform and their play has really lifted us past [our opponents]. They are the team of the future and I expect them to carry UMass tennis to another level."

In looking forward to Saturday's match versus Vermont, Dixon continued, "We have never beaten Vermont before and I hope our recent play can help us past them. They are very strong at doubles and their type of play is similar to [UMass'], where they look to their depth for victory. They are weak at the top so it will come down to how our lower players match up with theirs."

The Minutemen wrap up their fall season on Saturday versus regional rival Vermont on the Upper Boyden Courts at 1 p.m.

JAMES STANLEY / COLLEGIAN

Gregor Rummel won his sixth match in a row yesterday against New Hampshire as the Minutemen won 7-0.

■ NFL

continued from page 12

Fans in the stands were appalled and befuddled. Review has not been in place since the end of the season.

The use of instant replay was removed from the league in 1992 because of the time added to games by the review process and the imperfections of the communications from the press box to the field, and since then, the outcry for its return has grown larger with the passing of time.

It reached a fever pitch in the 1995 playoffs when three questionable calls were made in the San Diego/Miami Divisional playoff game. With the use of instant replay, two of them would clearly have been overturned. When a Charger running back scored from eight yards out, it gave the Chargers a lead they would not surrender. What went undetected by the line judge was the back stepping out at the three-yard line. The replay showed him out of bounds clearly, but the touchdown stood.

Miami lost by less than a touchdown and San Diego went on to the Super Bowl.

This 1995 regular season already has had its share of instances that would have been well-served to have instant replays. Pittsburgh coach Bill Cowher stormed onto the field and put a photograph in the referees pocket to show the fact that the officials made an incorrect call.

Most recently and importantly to local fans, Scott Zolak was pressured by the Atlanta's pass rush and attempted a pass with Darryl Talley hanging on his throwing arm. As Zolak's arm moved forward, the ball travelled about two feet in front of him.

The play was ruled a fumble.

Atlanta's defense pounced on the ball and the Falcons had the ball at the Patriot 45. 'Upon further review', the replay showed Zolak's arm was moving forward and the play should have been ruled incomplete.

This is not a knock on today's officials. The speed that today's game is played at makes it difficult to tell the correct call at times. Give them a little help, and the games will be called correctly. Here is my plan:

1. If the referees want to make sure of a call, they can ask for the replay official to review the play. A time limit of 40 seconds would be allowed for the review. If the over-rule is not clear right away, then the call should stand.

2. Each team would receive one "instant replay" timeout per game. It could not be used like the team's three timeouts they get each half. It would be specifically to review a play in question the coach feels warrants a second look.

3. The replay official should not be in the press box, rather in his own little booth on the sidelines as so the field referee can speak to him directly.

This may not be the way it is worked in the future, but come the start of 1996, there is a strong posibility replay will be in effect in some form.

• How about those Jacksonville Jaguars? They were trailing 16-10 with three minutes to play and it looked like there would be another loss for the expansion team. Then Darren Carrington recovered a Houston fumble, and rookie QB Mark Brunell hit Washington Redskin castoff Desmond Howard for the tying score. The extra point went through for a 17-16 lead, and the defense was able to hold the Oilers to a 52-yard field goal attempt which Al Del Greco missed wide left.

• Speaking of the Redskins, how about the gutty Gus Frerotte leading his troops over their arch rivals, the Dallas Cowboys. The seventh round draft pick has stepped in with the injury to Heath Shuler, and has kept them in every game. The question now is should coach Norv Turner give Shuler his job back when he is a 100 percent, or stay with Frerotte and have a $1.5 million backup QB.

• Can anyone explain to me the hype of 'The Shula Bowl?' Yes, it is terrific that father plays son, mortal plays mentor, but it was actually a high-powered Miami team with actual Super Bowl aspirations against a team of overachievers. Luckily for the advertisers, it turned out to be a better game than the teams matched up on paper.

Justin C. Smith is a Collegian Columnist.

■ water polo

continued from page 12

The Minutemen are now a perfect 6-0 in the Eastern Water Polo Association.

They look toward their biggest match of the year against Navy at the first annual Minuteman Invitational, Oct. 7-8.

Massachusetts will play three games next weekend against Navy, Richmond and Queens.

From poolside... Limardo and Stahl are still No. 1-2 on the team in scoring with 58 and 56 points respectively... As hot as Limardo is, he needs 61 more goals this season to break the UMass career goals record held by current assistant coach Javier Gonzalez...

Fourteen games in, senior goalie Alex Mujica has a goals-against-average of 5.12, .02 better than Pete Koback's UMass single season record set in 1989. He continues to extend his school career saves record, it is now up to 578.

Mujica is also closing in on the mark for quarters played in goal. He has now played 247 quarters, 16 behind Todd Larson's record, set between 1988-91...

Junior driver Ron Gonen has boosted himself into second place on the all-time UMass assist list with 96 (20 this season), behind Gonzalez's 106...

The flu may be going around the club as both Mujica and senior co-captain John Luviano have come down with mild cases.

Sports Notice
There will be a meeting for all sports staff Monday Oct. 9, at 6:30 p.m. All sports staff members should be in attendance. Anyone interested in writing for Sports is welcome. For more information, call Candice Flemming, Sports Editor, at 545-0719.

Collegian Graphics
Up all night to produce New England's BEST college daily

STUDY ABROAD
Semester, Summer and Year Programs
Ecuador • Spain
England • France
Canada • Mexico
Costa Rica • Italy
INTERNATIONAL STUDIES ABROAD
isa
817 W. 24th St.
Austin, TX. 78705
(800) 580-8826
•SINCE 1987•

UNIVERSITY BARTENDING™
•Professional Bartending and Bar Management Training as a function of the end of most schools
•Full certification in as little as six weeks
•Specific programs tailored to your specific needs
•T.I.P.S. ™ and Serv-Safe ™ certification available
•Approved by the National Restaurant Association®
1-800-U-CAN-MIX
Act now! Space is limited!!

TRAVEL SMART!
FROM NEW YORK
One Way / Roundtrip
LONDON $146 $292
PARIS $213 $426
SAN JOSE, COSTA RICA $220 $439
TOKYO $859 •Roundtrip
Scheduled flights. Fares to worldwide destinations. Eurailpasses Available.
Weekend surcharges may apply. Customs-immigration taxes apply. Fares subject to change without notice. INT'L student I.D. cards may be required.
PRISM TRAVEL
342 Madison Ave., NY, NY 10173
212-986-8420*
800-272-9676
*In NYC

THE BLACK SHEEP
79 MAIN ST.
AMHERST, MA
253-3442
10 % DISCOUNT TO STUDENTS ALL YEAR WITH UMASS ID.

the BLUEWALL presents
DISCO
Every Thursday
Boogie Down All Night Long
FREE ADMISSION
9:30 pm - 1:00 am
The 70's Meet the 80's
With D.J.s Billy Arnold and Robert Dwelley
Lighting and Sound By:
Audio Pro Media
Munson D. Lincoln Campus Center 25th Anniversary
"Because You Asked For It"

Collegian Classifieds

113 Campus Center • University of Massachusetts • Phone: (413)545-3500 Fax: (413)545-1592

Personals Policy

1. All personals MUST be proofread by Collegian classified employees before payment and acceptance of the classified.
2. Last names MAY NOT be used in personals. ONLY first names and initials are allowed. The only exceptions are for birthday or congratulations personals, in which case the full name may be used.
3. Phone numbers are not allowed in personals. NO EXCEPTIONS
4. Addresses are not allowed in personals. this means dorm room numbers as well.
5. Personals of a threatening or derogatory nature are not acceptable. Personals of a vindictive or libelous nature are not acceptable. Personals may not be used for the purpose of harassment.
6. Profanity may not be used in personals.
7. The personals section is for personals only. The personals section may NOT be used to sell items, seek roommates, advertise meetings, etc.
8. All personals must have the name, signature, and UMass I.D. number of the student placing the as filled in on the insertion order. Non-students must provide a valid driver's license and the license number must be recorded on the insertion order. Use of false identification or misrepresentation is subject to penalties under the law.
9. The Collegian reserves the right to refuse or to edit any personal that does not meet the Collegian's standards in accordance with the statutes of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

Rates

$2.00 minimum/day

Students
20¢ per word/day

All others
40¢ per word/day

NO REFUNDS

Please write clearly and legibly. We are not responsible for errors resulting from illegible handwriting or type.

Standard Headings

Activities
Announcements
Apartment For Rent
Auto For Sale
Employment
Entertainment
For Sale
Found (2 days Free)
Happy Birthday
Houses For Rent
Instruction
Lost
Musicians
Miscellaneous
Motorcycles
Personals
Room For Rent
Room Wanted
Roommate Wanted
Services
Summer Sublet
To Sublet
Travel
Transportation
Wanted to Rent
Wanted

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Chinese Food Kai Chi restaurant now delivering to 3am Friday and Saturday 586-7774

Learn to bartend in th University bar tending. 1/3 the price of other schools Classes in Amherst. Free info session Wed. Sept 27th @ 7:00 pm. Lord Jeffrey Inner can 1-800 U-CAN-MIX

The sisters of Sigma Delta Tau would like to welcome our newest ribbonette s Sherrie Lynn, Brooke Dawn Shannon, Rebecca Lisa Christina and Aimee!

To the sisters at Sigma Delta Tau Congratulations on a terrific rush! We re looking forward to a great Semester! Keep up the good work! Love Exec

Zeta Psi We must learn to live together as brothers or perish as fools." Zeta Psi is having corn rush for all university men. If interested call Mike @ 549-1515

The Sisters of Sigma Kappa would like to welcome our new pledges Lisa Napich, Beth, Julie Janine, Adereen Meghan, Christine and Jessica! Get psyched for a great semester!

AUTO FOR SALE

1983 Chevy 80,000 original mileage very good condition $700 or bo 253-9017

86 Subaru GL Hatchback 5 speed Runs well 1 owner $ 700 253-9295

1986 Dodge Colt Turbo 5 speed fast sporty reliable economical $1250 .253 4012

90 VW Golf Auto low miles 4 Dr $4900 253-5476

'92 Red Jeep Wrangler 5 speed soft top 27 000 CD player Alarm $12 000 or bo 413 256 6711

1992 Toyota Celica GT, 5 speed, loaded Red, 1 owner, mint, alarm, 52k miles $3000 or low book $10 700 665-7219 Jim

Blue '86 Subaru Wagon 4wd power windows brand new brakes muffler water pump $ 1450 or bo Call 582 9105

For Sale 1986 Hyundai Excel some work needed $500 .253 0676 Please call in evenings ask for Rachael

Mercury Marquis 1984 70K miles Runs excellent Power windows & doors 1500 or B O Call 323 5488 (

'86 BMW 325 excellent condition Red with Black Int 5600 or B O Mike@546 2467

EMPLOYMENT

Bart's Homeade Now hiring for part time hours weekends a must Apply at Amherst store 253-9271

BUILD YOUR RESUME
Come to the UMass Credit Union
September 19th or 19th at 6 30 pm to build your resume! Looking for new tellers for fall 1995! Stop by call Christine at 545 2800

Cruise Ships Hiring Earn up to $1000s/month World Travel Seasonal & Full time positions No exp necessary For info call 1 206 634 0468 Ext C500

Drivers, waitresses and kitchen help wanted 413 18 RESTAURANT 586 6755

Earn big $$$ Existing college marketing firm is currently seeking part time help Multiple positions available throughout the fall semester Flexible hours & great pay $8 $10/hr Will train no experience necessary Great resume builder! For more info call Mark Egan @ (617) 266 8861 Ext 11

Mails Torah reader needed Housing and salary Congregation Rodphey Sholom Holyoke 534 3262

National Parks Hiring Seasonal & Full time employment available at national Parks Forests & Wildlife Preserves Benefits and Bonuses! Call ( ) 206 545 4804 Ext N 5001

Students wanted to work evenings and or weekends with adult M R population Have your time really count? We will train Car a must Call 549 7511 AA/EOE/ADA

Want a real challenge? Live in position, room and board provided In return you share responsib lities of care for elderly man Experience with M R , M H population helpful Extra pay hours avaiable Call 549 7511 AA/EOE/ADA

$40,000 income potential Home typ ists/pc users Toll free 1 800 898 9778 Ext 1732 for listings

$25,000 income potential Reading books Toll free 1 800 898 9778 Ext R 1732 for details

ENTERTAINMENT

Having Halloween bash on 10/07 or 10/08? Got a huge house? Want a spooky band? You need yeP! and yeP! needs you! call Jack at 367 9636

FOR RENT

Fridge Rentals Free delivery 253 9742

FOR SALE

Brand new 486 Toshiba color laptop Unbeatable price 1 year warranty Must sell 367 0180

Brother Word Processor w/monitor for writing papers One year old $200 neF 253 4078

Compiere 486DX2 66 PC System w/8 megs RAM 2x speed CD ROM 16 bit sound 104 meg hard drive 14 4 floppy SVGA vid 14" monitor w/win 3 11 $1500 (413) 786 8628

COMPUTERS

Mac computers powerbook 170 8/80 fax, carry case $1195 Quadra 700 8/540 12" color monitor awesome graphics software $1995 Call 256 0080

DJ EQUIPMENT

Soundcraftmore power amplifier 1000 watts $250 or b/o EV speakers 300 watts $250 or b/o 3 piece system $350 or b/o 546 3498 Beeper 292 8010 Must sell

Hockey skates CCM pumps, brand new call 549 3741

IBM pc notebook comp world excel Neon $ for school bo 549 6061

PJ Harvey 1 Oct 10 Mike 585 5186

Teddy Computer & color mont w/ sont Asking $175 or bo Call 6 0940

Toshiba 20" Stereo w remote 3yr old ask for $180 call 549 8563

Yamaha 870 Receiver DSP right club rock concert jazz dance hall movie built amp ext amp more Pioneer CLD V820 laser karaokes w/ microphone LD CD BrimDisc & DSF Call 546 6396

2 Kicker Box Style Speakers 2x 200/rms $120 BRO Call Paul 546 6741

12 string acoustic guiter w/ case Practically brand new! Call Mike 256 8150

1985 Fender Fretless Jazz Bass good as new asking $400 or bo Call Aaron 549 4018

Computer Desk For Sale barely used Call ( ) 244 or 253 2504

Bread Machine Oak Turbo Baker II Ask $55 585 0975

Macintosh Classic Great for word processing $75 or B/O Call Brian Eves 584 9863

386 Computer For Sale Includes DOS 5, Windows 3 11, Microsoft Word, Nortons, Games VGA Monitor, 4megs of ram Asking $400 or best offer Call 6 0863

Found two books in Bartlett on the 2nd floor Call 586 1946

FOUND

Found Volkswagon key near LGRT on Sept 26 Pick up at Collegian 545 3500

Happy Birthday Lori All our love MX Tom, Amy Beth

HAPPY BIRTHDAY

Happy Birthday Rob We love ya! Love Kate, Kerry, Warren, Eric, Karen and Donna

Happy Birthday Stacy Love Jen, Maura, Christine Lauren Tracy Shawn & Brian

Happy twenty something birthday, Kayl! Don't think of it as getting older, think of it as getting better! Party it up! We love you! From your housemates

Happy 21st Bethany! We saved the best for last! You can run, but you can't hide! We'll turn uptown upside down! Love, your housemates & Zach the UPD!

Guitar Lessons and classes by Kevin Goines Beginning folk, classical Free intro lesson Hamt Grad 256 1233

INSTRUCTION

GUITAR LESSONS
Have fun this semester and learn 1 2 credits with a patient and supportive teacher Spaces still available Call Peter 253 5263

Jazz piano teacher offering fall lessons, beginner or advanced. Call Stephen Page 253 3354

Performing Arts Division offers group and private instruction in music, theater and dance Registration for group instruction runs Sept. 6-7, 1995, private instruction is ongoing. We are located in 73 Bartlett Hall, UMass. (413)545-0519, for info

LOST

Lost Matsudo Sunglasses in Georgia Armani case near Blue Wall or Hatch on 9/28 Call Alex at 549 6686 if found.

MISCELLANEOUS

MODEM USERS
Call the Playground BBS! 256 6685 Over 4500 files online! Teeming online games including registered L O R D , B R E and Usurper Food Co-op and recipe boxes, lots more! Stuff for everyone!

WEIGHT LOSS
Bottled Willpower! Lose up to 30 lbs , 30 day money back guarantee Natural, doctor recommended 323 6884

MOTORCYCLES
82 Honda Magna V-45 750 cc, V 4 Very fast and reliable No reasonable offer refused $1 800 bo Page anytime 292 0065

MOTORCYCLES

86 Ninja $900 in new parts asking $2300 467 2521 Travis

MUSICIANS

Needed: Funk drummer, singer, keys The Cotinel Mustard Trio! Call Ryan Andy 549 1018

Psychedelic garage band for hire Dead Dylan Cream Stones Perfect for parties, 256 1949

ROOM FOR RENT

Room in house near Amythest Br Amherst $725/mo No Lease! We need to rent to a female now! Call us at 253 9081

PERSONALS

DEB
Looking forward to the upcoming year and all the business and excitement it will bring This is a pretty scary trip we have begun, but I am so glad it has Be secure, and enjoy the stress Love Always, E Man

ENLIGHTENMENT #2
I need religion like a fish needs a bicycle What I want is to know other people who want to grow and will accept me as I am Alliance Christian Fellowship committed to people, friendship, learning, and spirit filled fellowship Info Mark or Elizabeth 253 7706

FRAT BOY
Carla, Ya know you're a cute kid! Thanks for making me smile Love Jen 8/27/95

Kelly, Happy 5th anniversary You have been the greatest girlfriend and best friend anyone could ask for Thanks for always being there I Love You Brian

Nordberg, Congratulations on full back hair From your bro s

Peanut, You are my sunshine my only sunshine! I Love You xoxo Love, Your Princess

UMass Women's Rugby Congrats on 2nd place Good Luck in Boston Jiz & Tyria

MEREDITH
Would you like to go out again? I promise I ll stay awake this time!

To the Handsome Gentleman who held the door for me Thurs at the Campus Center Thanks for showing me Chivalry still exists

A friend and I are walking to York 6 pour services on Tues Oct 3 at 6 30pm and Wed Oct 4 at 9 45am We would love to walk there in a group, and welcome any one to meet us at the tables outside the Munchy Store on the upper level of Hampden DC at those times to walk together Look for the dressed up people

Hey Jen & Ricky Congratulations on a few years togetha land on sprouting that fawth tooth too!! Love you guys! I K

ADAM D.
It's Big One! cause you're wonderful Love always, Stephanie

SERVICES

Are you a foreign student? Need help with your english? I am professionally certified to teach ESL and can tutor you! Evenings and weekends $10 an hour Call Scott 665 7448

BOXING LESSONS
For men and women with retired pro DanaBumpus 549 5752

Exotic nail girlpashing 545 1794

Experianced babysitter available with references Please call Alyssa 549 8885 for info

Grants and scholarships available Billions of $$$ in grants Qualify immediately 1 800 243 2435 (1 800 AID 2 HELP)

Pregnant? Need help? Call Birthright of Amherst area for free testing and carrying assistance 549 1906

Do you have questions about your rights? Do you think your civil rights have been violated? Find out! Contact the Student Legal Services Office, 922 Campus Center, 545 1995

TRAVEL

Spring Break Travel free with Sun Splash tours highest commissions, lowest prices Campus reps wanted! Sell Jamaica, Bahamas, Florida 1 800 426 7710

Quebec weekend Dec 8 10 Ski & party only $120 if paid by 10/21! 545 3437

FREE TRIPS & CASH
Find out how hundreds of students are already earning FREE trips and lots of CASH with America's #1 Spring Break company! Sell only 15 trips and travel free! Choose Cancun, Bahamas, Mazatlan, or Florida! Call Now! Take A Break Student Travel! (800) 95 Break!

WANTED

WITNESSES
Trying to locate 4 students who helped an elderly woman who fell at Smith College College Hall on January 30, 1995 Please call Attorney Susan Sachs 584 8134

YOUR DAILY HOROSCOPE
by Jeane Dixon

ARIES(March 21-April 19): A trip or timely phone call could be vital to the success of your business or romance plans A major purchase may be part of the deal Steer clear of an emotional outburst tonight Softspedal disagreements

TAURUS(April 20-May 20): Make health and nutrition your top priority Stock up on foods that boost your energy Aerobic, cycling or swimming will keep you trim Learn new skills by returning to school or enrolling in weekend seminars

GEMINI(May 21-June 20): Your heart could be about a million miles away from work today! Projects demanding an artistic touch should go well Take a highly original approach Short business trips enjoy favorable results

CANCER(June21-July 22):Complete old business during the morning hours Your warm personality and fun-loving nature continue to make you popular A partner has learned a valuable lesson Show your forgiving side

LEO(July 23-Aug 22) Hold constructive talks with loved ones and business associates If tempted to lash out at someone, call on your tremendous willpower Creative work and service to humanity can be sources of great fulfillment

VIRGO(Aug 23- Sept. 22): A budget revision will help reduce tension Be flexible Someone's advice can save you time and money Although your responsibilities could dampen your enthusiasm for an evening outing, you will probably have an exciting time

LIBRA(Sept 23-Oct 22): Serious discussions with employers, or other people important to your financial success, should go well The mail brings great news New friendships or group affiliations will prove valuable through time

SCORPIO(Oct 23-Nov 21): Questions involving budgets, transportation, bills and registrations come up today Luckily, you are ready to keep everything together Share lunch or late night diner with a loved one

SAGITTARIUS(Nov 22-Dec 21): Mentally and physically you are operating with greater efficiency now Interviews and auditions should go beautifully The up loose ends during evening hours

CAPRICORN(Dec 22-Jan. 19): Your earnings power improves when you study a language An urge to beautify or create spurs you to spruce up your surroundings Plan on taking a trip or pursuing a favorite hobby this weekend

AQUARIUS(Jan 20-Feb 18) Your enthusasm for an imaginative idea wins you new clients or an employer's approval Romance continues to show up in your stars Let go of old disappointments

PISCES(Feb 19-March 20): Theatrical and artistic work enjoys highly favorable influences Your flair for drama helps you attract new clientele Profits rise thanks to a business partner or financial backer's advice

Collegian Graphics

We're up all night putting together New England's largest daily college newspaper!

When our job is done – your day is just beginning.

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE
edited by Trude Michael Jaffe

ACROSS
1 Repeet
5 Land unit
9 Come before DDE
12 Diving bird
13 Cad
15 London district
16 Abdul Jabbar, to fans?
19 CIA predecessor
20 Innocent one
21 Protective screen
22 Wettable membrane
24 Constantine's birthplace
26 Tough trips
27 Game for Johann?
30 1972 Lemmon flick
32 Peeples or Long
33 First or foreign
36 Auditions anew
38 Gallivant
41 Cartoon shriek
42 Roman Rhea
44 Arctic quarters
45 Claude's fiscal motto?
46 Salts or Downs
51 Tiny
52 Has a bite
54 Coypu fur
56 Sicilian resort
58 Scull
60 Advantage for Cleo B
63 Feudal bondsman
64 Kilmer classic
65 Coward
66 Journey part
67 Bettor's concern
68 Spot

DOWN
1 City on the Humbolt
2 Seaboard
3 Natural ridge of sand or gravel
4 Washington bill
5 Mrs. Mahler
6 Partner of billing
7 Tough
8 Part of i e
9 Lena of song
10 Stun
11 Drinks too much
14 Canadian exclamatione
15 Diode in
17 Portrays
18 Plasm start
23 A Turner
25 In love, old style
28 Harass, in a way
29 Shriver of TV
30 Is doubled?
31 Victory sign
33 Eastern church liturgical book
34 Bar lead-in 35 -- Moines
37 Disgorge
39 Shining
40 A Chase
43 Took the helm
45 Jaguar-driving TV detective
46 Bypass
47 Saw to
48 Broadway conductor Lehman
49 Handbag
50 Gordon
53 Matthew Sumner
53 Fertinaceous meal
55 Astern
57 Monster's tooth
59 Depend on
61 Spanish pad
62 Serpent add-on

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE:

P	A	C	E	S		L	A	M	P		A	T	O	P
A	R	O	M	A		E	M	M	A		T	H	R	U
R	A	M	P	S		V	O	L	U	N	T	E	E	R
I	M	P	A	S	S	E		L	A	R	G	O	S
		U	T	I	L	E		C	E	S	A	R
F	A	T	H	E	R		C	E	T	A	C	E	A	N
O	L	E	T			C	A	S	T		P	A	W	D
V	C	R		T	W	O	S	T	E	P		T	A	R
E	A	S	T		A	L	E	A		R	E	S	T	S
A	N	C	E	S	T	O	R		J	I	M	M	I	E
		I	N	N	E	R		C	O	M	P	O
S	E	E	K	E	R		C	H	E	R	O	K	E	E
T	E	N	N	E	S	S	E	E		O	W	I	N	G
A	L	C	O	H	O	L	I	C	S		S	E	E	T	O
N	Y	E	T		I	D	E	S			E	R	S	E	S

6/2/95

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING INSERTION ORDER

Client: Date: Taken By:

Date(s) to run: Headline:

Total Days: X Words: = X rate = Payment

Special heading ($2.50 extra): Authorized signature:

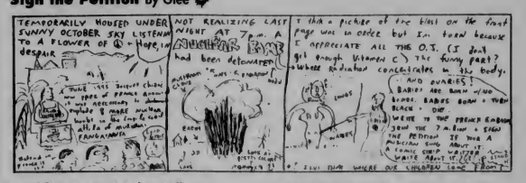
ADVERTISING COPY

1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9 10

Insert one character , space, or punctuation mark per box - use capital letters where they apply - Cost figured on each line of form used - see rate card

Calvin & Hobbes By Bill Watterson

Sign the Petition By Glee

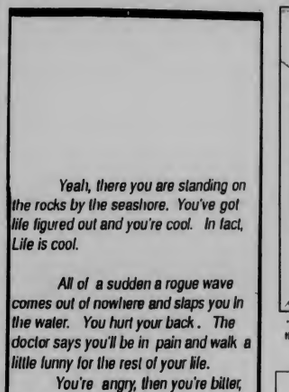


TEMPORARILY HOUSED UNDER SUNNY OCTOBER SKY LISTENING TO A FLOWER OF DESPAIR
NOT REALIZING LAST NIGHT AT 7 A.M. A PETITION had been detonated
I'M A PICKER OF THE BIKI ON THE FRONT PAGE WAS IN ORDER BUT I'M HERE BECAUSE I APPRECIATE ALL THE O.T. (I GOT $11 ENOUGH VITAMIN C) THE FUNNY PART? ROSE RELEASED CONCENTRATES IN MY BODY.
AND OUARIES!
BABIES ARE BORN WITH BONES. BABIES BORN WITH BLACK - DNF
WE'RE IN THE PRESS ENROLL SEND THE PETITION IF WAS A MISTAKE
WHERE OUR CHILDREN COME FROM?

The Amazing Spiderman By Stan Lee

I HOPE MJ DIDN'T SEE THOSE PICTURES OF ME HUGGING SANDRA STEWART!
I HOPE YOU HAD A GOOD TIME TONIGHT, MR. PLAYBOY!
WELL, SO MUCH FOR WASTED HOPES!

Leold By Roger & Salem Salloom



Yeah, there you are standing on the rocks by the seashore. You've got life figured out and you're cool. In fact, Life is cool.
All of a sudden a rogue wave comes out of nowhere and slaps you in the water. You hurt your back. The doctor says you'll be in pain and walk a little funny for the rest of your life.
You're angry, then you're bitter, then you party for a long long time. You start to feel better, even a little confident Maybe, you're even happy.
Before you know it, you've limped out to those same rocks by the seashore .....ready for more waves.

Close to Home By John McPherson

"Our metal detector is broken. Please lie flat on the conveyor with your luggage in front of you."

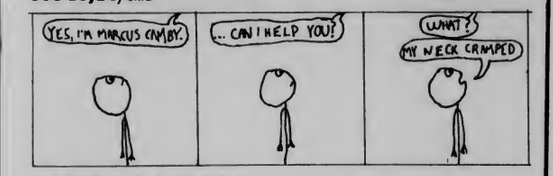
Dilbert By Scott Adams

I HIRED RENOWNED PSYCHOLOGIST DOGBERT TO HELP US ACHIEVE PEAK PERFORMANCE IN TEAMWORK
PEAK PERFORMANCE IS SOMEWHAT RELATIVE. YOU'RE A HIGHLY DYSFUNCTIONAL TEAM, SO WE MUST SET REALISTIC GOALS.
WHAT WOULD BE A REALISTIC GOAL FOR US?
I THINK I CAN POSTPONE CANNABILISM

Bruno By C. Baldwin

SO I'M GOING OUT TO MINNEAPOLIS TO VISIT MY FRIEND JIM, AND IT'S GOING TO BE SO GREAT. I HAVEN'T SEEN HIM IN SO LONG.
I HOPE IS THERE'S A LOT OF MEAT CULTURE HAPPENING IN THE TWIN CITIES.
UHH. EXCUSE ME! WHAT WAS THAT GRUNT? YOU'RE LOSING YOUR.....
OH, NOTHING.
GREAT! YOU GONNA SEE THE SIGHTS? THEATERS, MUSEUMS?
WELL, I'LL HAVE TO SEND PS POSTCARDS AND...
OHH KAAYY... SO SUSAN, YOU PROMISE TO WRITE WHILE YOU'RE AWAY?
I THINK I'M LOSING MY MIND
OH YEAH... I'LL KEEP IN TOUCH OF COURSE.

308 Boyz By Skid



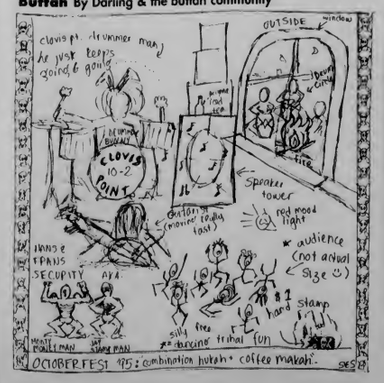
Lost Horizons By Douglas Cellineri

DON'T GET NERVOUS, NOW. JUST REMEMBER PAPA HEMINGWAY... "THOSE WHO FACE THEIR FEARS WITH DIGNITY HAVE COURAGE AS WELL."
AHEM!
UM...
NO YOU'RE UGLY GO AWAY!
I SHOULD'VE QUOTED MEL GIBSON

Loser Crow Comics By Mike Krozi

Hey Bob, I bet it would be pretty scary to wake up covered in spiders.
Have you been reading my journal?
I didn't know you kept a journal.

Buttah By Darling & the buttah community



MASSACHUSETTS DAILY COLLEGIAN
113 Campus Center
545-3500

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian
Top 10 By Brian Marchionni

Top 10 Things Overheard at the Movie "Show Girls"

10. "That Screech is a lucky man..."
9. "Mr. Herman, you're under arrest."
8. "Nice to see you again, chancellor."
7. "I hear that the 'NC' in 'NC-17' stands for 'nude chicks'."
6. "Uh-huh-huh-huh...she's naked...huh-huh."
5. "Yeah-yeah...heh-heh...NAKED!"
4. "Mom?!?"
3. "My girlfriend thinks I went to see 'A Walk In the Clouds'!"
2. "Eat your heart out Heffner!"
1. "Eat your heart out Heffner!"

Today's Staff

Night Editor ..... Matt Audette
Copy Editor ..... Mike Maclean
Photo Technician ..... Emily Reilly
Production Supervisor ..... Greg Iafrate
Production ..... Dimitry Abramson
Amy Paradysz

Dining Commons Menu

LUNCH	DINNER
Hot Heros!	Cavatelli Supreme
Grilled Chicken Sand.	N.E. Lite Style Cod?
BASICS LUNCH	BASICS DINNER
Lentil Chili	Black Eyed Peas
Grilled Chicken Sand.	Lite Fish w/ Crumbs

Small Potatoes By John Art

Write for the Collegian News Department
Come down to the Collegian
113 Campus Center basement and contact Chris Conner

Quote of the Day

"My evening visitors, if they cannot see the clock should find the time in my face.

–Ralph Waldo Emerson

Sports

Roger Clemens will start tonight as Sox face Indians

By Jimmy Golen
Associated Press

CLEVELAND — Aaron Sele, Vaughn Eshelman, Erik Hanson and Tim Wakefield have all taken turns as the Red Sox ace this season. But when the time came to pick the starter for the first game of the playoffs, the job was Roger Clemens' once again.

"In my heart, as long as I saw good things out of Roger, I was going to start (him)," Boston manager Kevin Kennedy said Monday before Boston worked out at Jacobs Field.

"He's proven to us that he's completely healthy. And he's been through it before," Kennedy said. "And I think he's the right guy because of that."

Roger Clemens

Clemens has been to the playoffs three times before, first in 1986 when he led the Red Sox to the World Series and won the AL Cy Young and MVP awards. Boston won the division again in '88 and '90, but got swept both times by Oakland. So at 33, Clemens still wants that World Series ring. And he wants it now.

In spring training, he vowed to retire if Boston won it all. (He has since retracted that.) When the Red Sox started splitting up the playoff money, he said he would put his back in the pot so everyone could get better rings.

When Boston won the division, Clemens celebrated with everyone else. But moments later, in a champagne-soaked clubhouse, he was reminding everyone that nothing less than a World Series title will do. "I've been able to enjoy every postseason since '86 even more," Clemens said Monday. "I think being so young and green in the first one, it went by so fast."

Clemens would like to make these playoffs last a lot longer. But the regular season couldn't go fast enough.

He reported to spring training nursing problems in his shoulder and calf and stayed in rehab until June. When he came back, he wasn't the overpowering pitcher that had carried the Red Sox in the past.

Sele made the Opening Day start — the first one Clemens missed in eight years - but soon came down with tendinitis that ended his season in May. Eshelman, who had won his first three starts, went down the day after Sele.

The Red Sox called up Wakefield, the star of the 1992 playoffs who had revived his knuckleball under the tutelage of the Niekro brothers. He won three games in eight days and started off 14-1. The Cy Young award and the first start in the playoffs were all but his; then he lost seven of his last nine decisions.

Hanson won his first six and led the league in ERA. He finished 15-5 (4.24 ERA) and was Boston's most consistent pitcher throughout the year. But with Clemens finishing strong, that's only good enough to start Game 2.

After starting 3-3 with a very un-Clemens-like 5.81 ERA, Clemens went 7-2 with a 2.88 ERA in August and September. So much for the talk about converting him into a finesse pitcher, or a reliever. "It took some time for Roger to catch up," Kennedy said. "He wasn't in pitching shape when he came back. He was going through spring training against major-league hitters during the competition of the season." "But if you've seen him his last three or four starts, I think you've seen a pretty good fastball. Perhaps he doesn't throw as hard consistently as he did a few years ago. But he's still a very effective pitcher and a true competitor."

***

A look at the best-of-5 playoff series between the Boston Red Sox and Cleveland Indians:

Schedule: Game 1, Tuesday night at Jacobs Field; Game 2, Wednesday night at Jacobs Field; Game 3, Friday night at Fenway Park; Game 4 (if necessary), Saturday night at Fenway Park; Game 5 (if necessary), Sunday night at Fenway Park. Season Series: Cleveland won, 7-6.

Volleyball hosts first place URI tonight

By Chris Stamm
Collegian Staff

They're on fire! The Massachusetts women's volleyball team's four game home win streak is nothing short of impressive.

However, a decisive win over first place University of Rhode Island would be a huge step toward an Atlantic 10 Conference Championship for UMass.

Tonight at 7 p.m., the Minutewomen get that chance as they play their last match of a five game homestand against URI in the Curry Hicks Cage.

Last weekend, UMass coach Bonnie Kenny's squad routed Temple, Fordham and LaSalle bringing its record to 11-6 overall, 4-1 in the A-10. However, with the exception of a five game heart-pounding victory over Temple, the competition of Fordham and LaSalle was far from challenging.

Just look at the stats. UMass crushed Fordham in three games, 15-3, 15-9 and 15-13. The match against LaSalle was only slightly more challenging than the summer's end Tyson-McNeely fiasco. The Minutewomen only allowed seven points scored against them in their three game sweep.

Rhode Island is not Fordham or LaSalle. The Rams, 12-3 overall, 5-0 in the A-10, are in front of a close field. Trailing behind URI is both George Washington and Virginia Tech, both 5-1 in A-10 play.

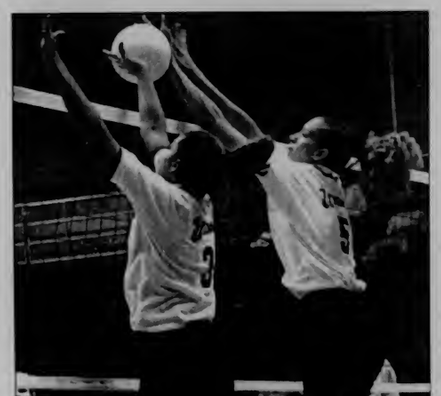
Those of you who have escaped either of the two gen-ed math requirements, pay attention. If the Minutewomen beat URI the playing field is leveled, as the top four teams in the conference would all stand at 5-1.

To do this, UMass has to play tough volleyball from the start of the match. The Minutewomen cannot do what they did against Temple, where they dropped the first two games of the match 8-15 and 13-15, only to regain momentum and win the next three.

Momentum has been a key factor in UMass' play lately with junior outside hitter Giza Rivera out with an ankle injury. With this key link out of the lineup, Kenny has been forced to rearrange her game plan.

As of late, the Minutewomen have gotten used to playing without Rivera, and in fact, some of the younger players have been forced to step up. Sophomore middle blocker Michelle Paciorek and classmate outside hitter Lesley Nolan have provided the offensive pizazz on the court. Nolan sat out Saturday but is expected to play tonight.

In addition, freshman Katie Pearce has gotten considerable time on the floor as setter recently and earned the distinction of A-10 rookie of the week.



JAMES STANLEY / COLLEGIAN
Lesley Nolan (3) and Michelle Paciorek (5) are facing the first place Rhode Island Rams tonight at the Cage.

Co–captain Fennell to miss rest of season

By Andrew Bryce
Collegian Staff

Vernard Fennell, senior defensive end for the Massachusetts football team, will miss the rest of the season because of a knee injury he sustained in last Saturday's game at Rhode Island.

A co–captain along with Rene Ingoglia, Fennell injured his right knee in the fourth quarter of a 34-0 loss to URI. He was the Minutemen leader in quarterback sacks with five, and had 20 tackles after the first four games (sixth on the team).

The 6-foot, 5-inch, 247-pounder was reportedly sparking up interest from NFL scouts. The injury in his senior year puts a damper in those plans, but there's still the four game tapes to show from this season.

Fennell was injured in last year's URI game as well, fracturing his left fibula. He returned to action for the final game of the 1994 season against Connecticut.

That hamstring again — Ingoglia aggravated his hamstring, the same one that has been bothering him all season. He went out after just three series' and 13 yards. Ingoglia's still needs 11 yards to break Garry Pearson's school record for rushing yardage. The other co–captain with Fennell, Ingoglia is questionable for this weekend's home game against New Hampshire (1–3 overall, 0–3 in Yankee Conference).

Minuteman Notes

In other injury news, sophomore defensive tackle Shaun Williams suffered a concussion in the URI game, and is doubtful for the UNH tilt ... Middle linebacker Mike Valentino may play for the first time this season on Saturday. An off-season knee injury has forced Valentino to miss the first four games this season ... Junior tight end Erik Henry should hit the practice field this week. He is recovering from knee surgery, which repaired cartilage.

Keeping the punter busy — If there's one player coach Mike Hodges and staff did not want to keep busy, it was freshman punter Andy Maclay. He ended up punting 11 times and amassing 387 yards on the day against the Rams, with both being close to school records. The number of punts was one behind the record set by William Wamock against Buffalo in 1968. The yardage was just 30 behind the 417–yard school record effort of John O'Neil in 1971 against UConn.

Defense still tops in YanCon — Despite allowing URI QB Chris Hixson to air it out for 299 yards last Saturday, the Minutemen defense still ranks first in the conference in total defense. Opponents have been able to chalk up just 287.5 total yards per game so far this season.

In fact, in the last three games, the defensive corps has not let an opposing backfield over the 100–yard rushing mark.

Men's soccer ties with Koch's old team

By Mike Corey
Collegian Correspondent

On Sunday night, darkness put a end to a chance for the Massachusetts men's soccer team to run away with two wins on a west coast trip to California.

UMass and Stanford were forced to end their match in a 2–2 tie after regulation when the night rolled in, preventing overtime.

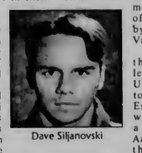
The Minutemen took care of No. 20 San Francisco on Friday afternoon by the score of 4–1 in the first game of the Reebok/Cardinal Classic.

UMass coach Sam Koch earned his 50th victory as coach of the Minutemen.

On Sunday night, UMass was hoping to make it two in a row, and they got off to a great start in their attempt.

At the 1:38 mark of the game, Mike Butler picked up a feed from Brad Miller for his fifth goal of the season and second of the tournament.

Early in the second half, Dave Siljanovski increased the UMass advantage with his team–leading seventh goal of the year, as he dribbled by a Cardinal defender and beat goalie Jon Bruck for a 2–0 Minutemen lead.



Dave Siljanovski

However, the lead would be cut in half as Stanford finally got on the scoreboard at the 69:11 mark with a score off a penalty kick by Eric Vandevelde.

Then with less than one minute left in the match, UMass was unable to hold on as Ryan Estevez tied it up with a header off a cross pass from Aaron Jones. With the tie the Minutemen record goes to 7–3–2 on the year while Stanford posts a record of 3–5–1.

UMass was outshot by the count of 12–11, with goalie Eric Gruber making one save and Bruck recording two.

Gruber was one of them, playing hurt nonetheless from a leg injury last Tuesday, and he was also named the Tournament MVP.

Gruber made six saves between the two games and only gave up three goals. Butler was also named to the team, as was Siljanovski, who leads the Minutemen in goals and assists.

On Friday, Oct. 6, the Minutemen return home at Richard F. Garber Field as they will host Atlantic 10 foe Duquesne at 3:30 p.m.

Water polo sweeps three matches over the weekend

By Fred Hurlbrink, Jr.
Collegian Correspondent

Water polo mania is hitting the Massachusetts campus!

Well, not really, but it should be since the Minutemen are off to a 13–1 start and had another perfect weekend, including a 24–9 victory over St. Francis, the No. 19 nationally ranked team in the country.

"I had the kids jacked up and ready to play," said UMass coach Russ Yarworth. "St. Francis has some experienced players. We just came out and took them out of the game early."

The Minutemen scored early and often all weekend. They jumped out to a 7–2 first quarter lead against St. Francis and in the first half, outscored their three opponents, 37–7.

Playing hurt, freshman Brian Stahl led the scoring for the No. 13 Minutemen with four goals and two assists in the first match.

As always, senior co–captain Luis Limardo was on the top of the score sheet, tallying three goals and three assists while 10 Minutemen lit the proverbial lamp.

UMass scored 18 points in each of its other two matches easily handling Harvard and Fordham.

The Minutemen started off relatively slow against a tough Crimson squad, as Harvard scored first and was able to convert four of six man–up situations.

Massachusetts pulled away late in the first quarter and didn't look back, as it went on to win with ease, 18–7.

"I wasn't real pleased after the Harvard game. We were a little flat after [the St. Francis match]," Yarworth said.

Solid defense and an impressive offense prevailed once again in the final match, as Yarworth's bench saw a lot of action in UMass' easy victory over host Fordham.

Massachusetts held the Rams scoreless in the first half while it tallied 12 scores.

Led by Limardo, sophomore Marc Staudenbauer and freshman Gabriel Marrero, each scoring three goals, the Minutemen cruised, 18–4.

Turn to WATER POLO, page 9

UMass tennis teams shine

Minutemen beat UNH

By Jameson Heos
Collegian Staff

The Massachusetts men's tennis team continued to roll as it won its sixth straight match over New Hampshire yesterday 7–0. The Minutemen swept the doubles point for the fourth match in a row to leave their record at 6–1.

Senior co–captain Justin Lynn and sophomore Alex Aller led the team at No. 1 doubles by defeating Greg Luongo and Darryl Poisson 8–4, followed by junior Gregor Rummel and freshman Mike Skeels dispatching of Bill Olszewski and Carey Langley 8–5, at No. 2 doubles. Fresham Todd Cheney and junior Ryan Ginley rebounded from their only defeat of the season at the hands of UConn to beat Tucker Gibson and Greg Faltin

Turn to MEN'S TENNIS, Page 9

Women beat PC, UNH

By Jay Warner
Collegian Correspondent

Massachusetts women's tennis coach Judy Dixon could not wait until her team faced Providence College this past Friday.

"I've been waiting for this match for a year," Dixon said, referring to their meeting last year in which PC escaped with a one–point victory.

In what was anticipated as a close matchup against last year's New England champions, UMass cruised to a surprisingly easy 6–1 victory. The Minutewomen followed up the next day by crushing a weak University of New Hampshire team, 7–0.

Liesl Sitton lead the way against PC, disposing of Christina

Turn to WOMEN'S TENNIS, Page 9

Upon further review, replays needed

When instant replay was instituted for the late '80s, it in concept, was a good idea. The main purpose was to make sure that the calls officials made on the field were accurate, and if human error occurred, (and yes, the men dressed like zebras make their share of mistakes) the wrong would be righted. Or so the league thought.

JUSTIN SMITH on the NFL

If errors were made by the officials on the field, then they will happen to the replay officials as well.

Different replay officials had different interpretations of "the review was inconclusive" and let plays stand that in other cases would have been overturned. Even when the upstairs official changed the call on the field, the referee on the field couldn't get it right.

Flashback 1991. Arrowhead Stadium. Kansas City vs. L.A. Raiders. A touchdown is the call by the back judge for the Raiders, though the receiver fails to get both feet in bounds. The call goes upstairs, where the replay official views the replay on his TV, while the Chiefs fans watch on the big screen.

Everyone, including the replay man, saw the receiver's second foot hit the sideline. The fans cheered because they knew the call would be waived off. The announcers proclaimed that type of play was the very reason the NFL should have instant replay. The replay official called the correction down to the field, "No touchdown."

But for some reason, the referee did not hear the "No" in over the telephone, turned on his microphone and said, "The play stands as called, touchdown."

Turn to NFL, page 9

The Massachusetts
DAILY COLLEGIAN
Volume CV Issue 20 New England's Largest College Daily • Founded in 1890 • Daily Since 1967 Tuesday, October 3, 1995

A three–ring success
Lenny Kravitz's latest album Circus looks to be another hit for the continually rising star. (See Arts & Living, page 7)

Students react to verdict
People throughout the University of Massachusetts campus give their opinions on the O.J. Simpson verdict in Campus Perspectives.

Volleyball falls to Rhode Island
Sophomore Michelle Paciorek and the volleyball team played big against Rhode Island last night but it wasn't enough, as they fell in four sets. (See Sports Page 12.)

Extended Forecast
The sun will go into hiding for most of the rest of the week as overcast skies will prevail. Temperatures will dip a little and the mercury will peak at about 70, today and tomorrow

Today	Thursday	Friday
HIGH: 70 LOW: 60	HIGH: 70 LOW: 60	HIGH: 55 LOW: 65

O.J. Simpson not guilty on all counts

■ Eight month trial concludes in acquittal of famous defendent

LOS ANGELES (AP) — They came to take their place in history, to experience the verdict of the century.

It came Monday without warning. As the judge brought in the jury, two-thirds of the hottest seats in town were empty, two of the leading attorneys in the case weren't even present, and most of the media - not expecting such a swift verdict - were upstairs in the press room.

"Is that correct?" Ito asked the forewoman, a black woman in her early 50s who was chosen by her colleagues last week after just three minutes.

"Yes," she said.

Jaws dropped. People gasped. Simpson appeared stunned, as did his attorney, Carl Douglas, a second-stringer on the legal team assigned the mundane task of sitting next to Simpson while testimony was reread.

Jurors spent about an hour listening to a court reporter read back testimony from a limousine driver who took Simpson to the airport on the night of the slayings.

The jurors, who had been sequestered for nine months, heard only testimony that prosecutors suggested they review: driver Allan Park's descriptions of phone calls he made to his boss and mother and his efforts to summon a response from Simpson by ringing a bell at the gate to his Rockingham Avenue estate.

The verdict capped a legal journey as surreal - and at times as slow - as Simpson's bizarre Bronco flight from justice.

As the case moved onto one side street after another, it often seemed irrelevant that two young people were slashed to death one June night in Brentwood more than a year ago.

The case wasn't just about murder. It was about fame and wealth, love and hate, fragile egos and misdirected power. It was about the judicial system, the media, domestic violence, racism, sexism and crass opportunism.

America couldn't get enough if it.

The star, of course, was Orenthal James Simpson, who made it from the housing projects of San Francisco to the mansions of Brentwood with charm, good looks and a pair of feet that could run like the wind.

His public life was the object of envy: glory on the football field at the University of Southern California and for the Buffalo Bills, fame as a commercial pitchman for Hertz, pop culture status for his "Naked Gun" movie roles.

His private life was something else. Prosecutors said Simpson was a man whose outward strength of body and personality hid psychological weakness. He was, they said, racked by jealousy, plagued with anger, bent on control in every situation. He was a time bomb.

The bomb exploded, according to prosecutors, on June 12, 1994. There was never any testimony about where Simpson was for 78 critical minutes that night, from when his house guest Brian "Kato" Kaelin last saw him to when he was next seen by the limousine driver.

Simpson's defense rested on the simple premise that the one place he wasn't that night was 875 S. Bundy Drive a few miles away, where the throats of Ms. Simpson and Goldman were slashed. A neighbor was led to the bodies by Ms. Simpson's dog, Kato, named after Kaelin, the trial's first 15-minute celebrity. Police arrived, and soon so did the media, which pitched Camp O.J. and never left.

The evidence against Simpson mounted. At the crime scene were bloody footprints in his shoe size, 12, and blood drops bearing his genetic markers. Near the bodies was a glove in his size - and of a style identical to that of gloves his ex-wife bought him which he wore at televised football games.

At Simpson's house was the glove's apparent mate, smeared with incriminating evidence: blood with the genetic markers of him and the two victims. Also on it was a hair similar to Ms. Simpson's and fibers almost identical to those in the carpeting of Simpson's Bronco.

There was Simpson's blood on his driveway, Simpson's blood in the foyer, and a pair of bloody socks in his bedroom. The sock blood contained Ms. Simpson's genetic markers, as well as Simpson's.

In the Bronco, there was more blood: on the steering wheel, the door, the center console and the carpeting.

The trial spanned more than a year from jury selection to closing arguments. Jurors were locked down in a hotel to protect them from media contamination, corruption and compromise.

The prosecution case consumed nearly six months. Without a known eyewitness or a murder weapon, prosecutors spun a circumstantial evidence case built on the theory that Simpson had the motive and opportunity to kill, and left a literal trail of blood from the crime scene to his house.

The defense was simple: O.J. didn't do it.

Just who did do it - and why so much of the evidence pointed to Simpson - were more problematic for the Simpson camp, which crafted a two-prong defense: Simpson was a victim of a combination police frame-up and police bungle-up.

The defense argued that the glove at Simpson's house was planted by a racist rogue cop named Mark Fuhrman, who has wanted to nail Simpson since 1985, when Fuhrman - an alleged hater of interracial couples - responded to a domestic violence call between Simpson, who is black, and Ms. Simpson, who was white.

It all boiled down to a classic reasonable doubt defense, with a racial spin. The jury was urged to acquit Simpson to send a message that police corruption and racism would not be tolerated.

NATHAN MARTIN / COLLEGIAN
Junior Dana Welch watches news reports on the O. J. Simpson trial with dismay yesterday afternoon after a "not guilty" verdict was rendered by the jury in the year long trial.

DAYMON SMITH / COLLEGIAN
UMass students in the Bluewall Cafe react to the "not guilty" verdict in the O. J. Simpson trial. Over 500 hundred students crowded in to watch the decision yesterday afternoon.

■ Nation pauses to watch suprising conclusion

By Mitchell Landsberg
Associated Press

It was as if an entire nation was holding its breath and, in an instant, let it go in a sigh, a gasp, a whoop and a curse.

"Oh my God!" shouted a factory worker in Toledo, Ohio. "Yes!" exclaimed an airport worker in Chicago. "I just can't believe this!" said a YMCA staffer in Concord, N.H.

Fifteen months after the slow-motion chase of a white Ford Bronco stopped Americans in their collective tracks, a national obsession came full circle Tuesday when a Los Angeles jury pronounced O.J. Simpson innocent.

Once again, people stopped what they were doing. Once again, they turned to television or radio. And once again, what they saw and heard seemed almost too much to believe.

"Wild, absolutely wild," declared Mike Bailey, a clerk at the federal courthouse in Oklahoma City, who listened to the verdict read over the radio. He had been left alone to guard the courthouse counter after other workers - from clerks to judges - streamed into a jury assembly room to watch the verdict on television.

Few events have so held the nation in thrall as the Simpson trial, and few events have brought the country to such a standstill - if only for a few minutes - as the reading of the verdict. The normally tumultuous trading floors of Chicago's giant commodity exchanges grew still as traders turned to TV and newswire screens. At Hill & Barlow, a prestigious law firm in Boston's financial district, more than 120 people - nearly half the firm's employees - filled a lunch room to watch.

Offices in New York's Rockefeller Center emptied as hundreds of people gathered in the street outside NBC's "Today" show studio to watch the news on 10 large outdoor monitors.

At a pizza restaurant in Springfield, Mo., a hospital in Grants Pass, Ore., a state office building in Albany, N.Y., a high school in Albuquerque, N.M. - in short, almost everywhere - ordinary business stopped while people watched the verdict.

■ UMass campus reacts to O.J. Simpson verdict

By Tracy Geekie
Collegian Staff

The verdict is in — O.J. Simpson is not guilty. Closure to the "trial of the century" followed fifteen months after the slain bodies of Nicole Brown Simpson and Ronald Goldman were discovered outside her upscale Los Angeles home.

News of this long–awaited outcome stirred mixed emotions in students and faculty at the University of Massachusetts.

At any of the television sets in the Student Union, numerous on–lookers watched the post–verdict analysis.

Brad Davidson, a junior Afro–American Studies/Legal Studies said, despite the jury's finding, he believes Simpson is guilty.

"My first reaction was surprise," he said. "I didn't expect every juror to find him not guilty."

Also watching the coverage was Sharon Murphy, a senior Journalism major, who said she had predicted a long trial but a quick jury deliberation.

"I was in the dining commons and one of the workers came out and said 'not guilty,'" she said. "A lot of the African–Americans cheered. I swore he was guilty based on the DNA evidence."

Murphy said she didn't think the announcement of the verdict would end the coverage of the ordeal.

"I don't think the Goldman family is going to let this go," she said.

Alison Jones, a sophomore French major, brought up the issue of O.J.'s celebrity status. She said that even though she is an avid football fan, she doesn't let his athletic success sway her opinion of him.

"I'm sure that [his fame] was a factor in the verdict," she said.

Arlene Avakian, an associate professor in Women's Studies, raised concern about the issue of domestic violence.

Although she accepts that the jury had enough "reasonable doubt" to reach a not guilty verdict, she personally had a difficult time rationalizing the defense team's portrayal of Simpson as an upstanding father.

"One can only conclude that there was sufficient doubt on the part of the jurors."

"A good father does not beat his children's mother," she said. "O.J. Simpson is a batterer. But we also know that all batterers don't kill."

Joyce Berkman, a history professor, echoed the same sentiment.

"One can only conclude that there was sufficient doubt on the part of the jurors," she said. "He certainly deserves to be punished for [domestic abuse]."

President Sherry Penney makes case for UMass

By Tracy Geekie
Collegian Staff

Interim President Sherry H. Penney is on a mission to "get the word out" about the value of higher education.

"What I want to do with the University is what I call 'Making the Case for UMass,'" she said. "To go talk to whomever I can talk to in the legislature, business community, and in the broader community about the community."

Penney makes a strong argument for the University in her report also titled "Making the Case for UMass." She distributed the six–page report at the Sept. 21 Faculty Senate meeting, at which time she spoke in detail about its contents.

The report uses a series of charts and graphs to illustrate trends in education. It also compares the University of Massachusetts to other state and private institutions in various categories.

By "getting the word out," Penney said she aims to make the state aware of the value of the University and its impact on the economy of Massachusetts. She defines this as "meeting state needs."

"The major way in which we meet state needs is serving the students," she said. "And we serve about 60,000. The second thing that we do to serve the state is a great variety of outreach activities."

She cited several examples including UMass' involvement in economic development and its collaboration with education, starting with Kindergarten and continuing through high school.

"We will eventually have done a map," she said, "It has the five campuses with big stars on them and then it has little bullets all over the state for everything else the University is doing. It's very impressive."

The report describes these outreach programs in more detail. Under the heading "Resources to Attract Major Investment," it lists several favorable points.

One contribution it cites is the University's "cultural and athletic [events] that attract hundreds of thousands of visitors to campuses and communities each year."

It also itemizes other benefits to the state such as the "10,000 citizens served through Continuing Education and Worker Assistance Centers" and "educating primary care physicians and nurses."

Penney said committees are currently working on several projects concerning the University.

"I have a variety of task forces in place working on everything from fundraising to enrollment management, to faculty rewards," she said. "They're trying to work closely with our constituents, the Board of Trustees, legislative leadership, and the people in the Governor's office to again talk about the University and answer the questions that they may have."

"A course for UMass"

Chancellor David K. Scott believes Penney's experience as a chancellor gives her an edge in understanding the situation of each campus.

"I think you will see that President Penney is very sensitive to the needs of the individual campuses," he said. "Her approach will be to listen very carefully."

In a statement from the President's Office dated

Turn to PRESIDENT, page 2

Tech. writing program offers new career choice

By Amy M. Scott
Collegian Staff

Before she found out she landed a well–paying co–op with a large national company this summer, Maura O'Leary figured she would continue to work at her office job.

She said she never thought the technical writing classes she took last year would provide her with such lucrative opportunities.

"I went to the interview thinking it would be good interview experience, and that would be the end of it," O'Leary said of the eight job interviews she had at three Digital Equipment Corporation facilities in two states last May. "They convinced me to work there. It paid well. Two groups were interested in hiring me, so I got to work for both [consecutively]."

A friend had informed O'Leary about the Professional Writing/Technical Communication Program (PW/TC), a young scion of the UMass English Department that teaches writers how to relay new information to readers in simple terms, shortly before she was due to graduate from UMass with a bachelor's degree in sociology in 1994.

She said she decided to enroll

Turn to WRITING, page 3

For Your Information

FYIs are public service announcements which are printed daily. To submit an FYI, please send a press release containing all pertinent information, including the name and phone number of the contact person to the Collegian, c/o the News Editor

Friday, Oct. 6

Dance Party — Sponsored by University Productions and Concerts with DJ Clue, tickets sold prior to the show at Tix Unlimited, $7 for students, $8 for non-students, $8 and $10 at the door, Bluewall Cafe, 9:30 p.m.

Lecture — Simplicity Itself: The Spirit of Vegetarianism, by local spiritual master and guide Eon, a discourse from a spiritual vantage point, free, Munson Memorial Library, South Amherst Common, 7:30 p.m.

Meeting — Graduate and undergraduate students with children are invited to join the Family Court Action weekly meetings, to discuss issues of student family needs at the University, bring your kids, toys, books, complaints, wishes, and demands, across from the Mini Store, Student Union, 10 a.m.

Poetry Slam — Patricia Smith, winner of the National Poetry Slam 1995, and Michael Brown, author of "The Falling Wellenda's", win $10, sign up list at the door, Cafe Mediterranean, 1 E. Pleasant St., Amherst, 8 p.m.

Saturday, Oct. 7

Dance Workshop — Scandanavian Couples Dance Workshop, beginners and singles welcome, taught by Arna Desser with Ban Kaynor leading on the fiddle, $5 each or barter, call 549-1913 for more information, Munson Library, South Amherst, 6:30-8 p.m.

Dance Workshop — English Country Dance, taught by Helen Davenport with Van Kaynor, Laurie Castellano and others providing music, beginners come early, singles welcome, $5 each or barter, call 549-1913 for more information, Munson Library, South Amherst, 8 p.m.

Notices

Scarecrows Wanted — Help non-profit organizations raise money by participating in the Village Commons of South Hadley scarecrow competition. First prize is $250, second is $100 and third prize is $75. There is no fee to enter and the Commons will supply the stand to build the scarecrow. All entries must be received by Oct. 14, and winners will be announce on Halloween. Call 532-3600 for more information or to register. Limited to no more than 30 scarecrows.

Deadline — All UMass undergraduate and graduate students interested in applying to the Secondary Teacher Education Program for spring semester the deadline for applications is October 12. Please contact the STEP Advising Office at 545-4397 for more information or drop by 125A Furcolo Hall for an application

GLB RA Matters — Residence Life Staff who identify as gay, lesbian, bisexual, transgendered or are questioning their sexual orientation are invited to attend GLB RA Matters. Meetings are every Friday in Mary Lyon from 12:30 p.m. to 2 p.m. For more information contact Dawn M. Bond 5-1506

Volunteers Needed — WFCR needs help sorting records for its Used Record Sale, food and drink is provided and volunteers get first dibs on records and CD's in WFCR's collection, help needed Monday, Wednesday, and Thursday, call Karin Obermeier at 545-0100 if you have time.

Family Planning Services — HIV testing, pregnancy testing, birth control, medical tests, assistance for struggling families, the Family Planning Council of Western Massachusetts, (800) 696-7752

Community — Jumaa Service, the Muslim Students Association holds Jumaa prayer service every Friday, at 1 p.m., Campus Center, for information call Utama at 256-8482.

Auditions — Student Valley Productions is holding auditions for an Orgy of Talents. If you have an act or if you are in university group that wants to perform call 546-5725.

Volunteers Needed — The Asian Dance and Music Program at the Fine Arts Center is seeking ten volunteers to help with food and craft vendors for the Festival of Lights celebration on Oct. 21 at Stockbridge Hall. Help is needed from 2 p.m. to 7 p.m., with a prior meeting on Friday Oct. 20 at 4 p.m. in Bowker Auditorium. All volunteers will get a free Indian dinner. Call the Asian Dance and Music Program at 545-1980 for more information.

Locker Space — Locker space for students and RSO's, located in the Student Union Building, $10 per academic year, contact Commuter Services and Housing Resource Center, 428 Student Union, 10 a.m.-5 p.m, Mon. - Fri.

Fund Raising Drive — The Newman Center annual fund raising phone-a-thon will be held from October 1 to October 19, volunteers are needed to staff the phones from 6:30--9 p.m., call 549-0300 for more information or to register.

president

continued from page 1

May 19, 1995, Penney discusses her appointment.

"I want to make one thing clear about this transition," she said. "We have charted a course together for UMass and we will stay that course. At UMass, it is full-steam ahead. During this period I am committed to maintaining the progress and momentum we have made to date, and will do everything I can to insure that this course is pursued."

Chancellor Scott said Penney's appointment has not created much discontinuity in the overall direction previously established.

"She shares the general direction and goals that were worked out with President Hooker and the Trustees," he said. "She continues to support these."

Illustrious career for Penney

Penney's position as Chancellor of UMass-Boston is only one highlight in her career which spans decades. Prior to being Chancellor, she had already accumulated 15 years in educational administration.

As the first woman appointed to president of the five- campus system, Penney said she felt no pressure.

"I've been the first woman so many other times, it's easy," she said. "I've been the first woman vice-chancellor of the biggest system in the country at SUNY. I was the first woman president of Plattsburg. I was the first woman chancellor of the Boston campus, so that's not even an issue. I've already done that. I've already worried about that.

"In fact, I don't feel anywhere near as much heat or pressure as I did the first year I came to Boston. I came to Boston with a five-million dollar cut the first week."

Penney's views on education are considered revolutionary by some. Several students spoke openly about their opinions of her ideas.

Some of her ideas include promoting interactive learning over the traditional lecture method and challenging the effectiveness of the typical academic year. She also supports across-the-board computer literacy.

"For a long time we have seen [lectures] as the major mode of teaching," she said. "The lecture with the professor as the all-knowing person, who gives you the knowledge. We know that another way of teaching which is perhaps more effective is interactive teaching where you and the professor work together finding information. You are an active participant."

Students currently enrolled in lecture classes sided with Penney's idea of reducing this type of teaching.

Renee Schaiman, a sophomore Biology major, said she prefers smaller classes where the professors know her by name. Schaiman transferred from Keane State College where she said the largest class she had was 45 students.

"I just came from a 540-person lecture," she said, "If I'm trying (to listen) and the person behind me is talking, it's difficult."

Craig Deininger, a graduate student in English, also supports more interactive teaching. He referred to lectures as simply packing his short-term memory and said he remembers nothing from them.

"That's definitely the way to go," he said. "The only time the lecture is good is if you get someone who puts on a good show."

Full-time academics

In an article written for the American Society of Newspaper Editors, Penney takes a stand on restructuring the academic year.

"We're definitely moving toward the year-round school year," she wrote. "Students won't take the summer off. What we do today is inefficient."

Asked about this statement, Penney elaborated on its meaning.

"We have let ourselves think that there's something magic about going for four years in a particular time-frame and taking a course for 15 weeks," she said. "What we need to think about in the future is How long does it take to learn something?"

"It maybe possible to learn the same amount of information or material in three years that are concentrated. In some cases it may take five."

Penney also favors computer literacy for graduating students.

"I foresee technology playing a much larger role in higher education," she wrote in her article. "I would hope that every student who graduates from [UMass] is computer literate."

Pamela Sequeire, a graduate student in International Education, said that computers aren't necessarily the answer for everyone.

"I'm against a lot of technology," she said. "People have their phobias about computers."

Though Penney admits her views and approach to teaching may not be traditional, she said she does spend considerable time thinking about her role in leadership.

"I am quite convinced that in the future we can not look to a great leader to take care of us or save us," she said. "We're only going to be strong as a university or state or nation when we all get together.

"I guess that's one of the reasons I'm happy to do this, and work with the other chancellors, and work with the faculty and the students, to try to figure out how we can work together. One individual leader isn't going to do that anymore."

Correction

The phrase "colored women" in Tuesday's edition of the Collegian was incorrectly attributed to the Everywoman's Center director, Carol Wallace.

The phrase that she used was "women of color" not "colored women."

Also, several of the questions and answers were cut out throughout the article.

The Collegian regrets the errors.

J.CREW
WAREHOUSE SALE
Fashions from the pages of the J.Crew catalog discounted 50% - 70%
October 3-7, 9am - 9pm
October 8, 9am - 5pm
University of Massachusetts at Amherst
Mullins Center (413) 545-0505
We accept VISA, MasterCard, American Express and J.Crew Cre
Directions from the South: Springfield, Hartford, New York
H91N or I-84W to Hartford. I-91N through Springfield to Exit turn onto Rte. 116N to first exit (UMASS).
Directions from the North: Greenfield, Vermont, New H
Rte. 116S, Amherst/Whately exit. Left then right exit ramp.

Winona RYDER
Anne BANCROFT
Ellen BURSTYN
Kate NELLIGAN
Alfre WOODARD
There's beauty in the patterns of life.
HOW TO MAKE AN AMERICAN QUILT
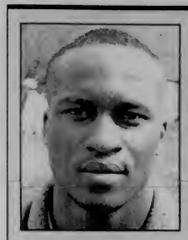
UNIVERSAL PICTURES PRESENTS AN AMBLIN ENTERTAINMENT PRODUCTION A JOCELYN MOORHOUSE FILM A SANFORD PILLSBURY PRODUCTION
"HOW TO MAKE AN AMERICAN QUILT" MAYA ANGELOU KATE CAPSHAW LOREN DEAN SAMANTHA MATHIS DERMOT MULRONEY DERRICK O'CONNOR
JEAN SIMMONS LOIS SMITH RIP TORN MYKELTI WILLIAMSON
LAURIE McDONALD DEBORAH JELIN NEWMYER
PG-13 PARENTS STRONGLY CAUTIONED
A UNIVERSAL PICTURE
Visit the Universal Pictures Internet site at (http://www.mca.com)!
OPENS FRIDAY, OCTOBER 6TH AT THEATRES EVERYWHERE

Campus Perspectives

Compiled by Chris Taylor Conner• Photos by Suzanne Garb

What is your opinion of the O.J. Simpson verdicts?



"I'm personally glad he was found not guilty because no one — black, white, Jew or gentile — needs to be convicted of something they didn't do. I think the defense team did an excellent job."

DAN LIZANA
junior, history
Springfield

"Basically, I feel like it's a Catch-22. Even though these jurors, who are majority black, made a conclusive decision, the decision is still being questioned on a rhetorical level. I'm thinking if it were a predominantly white jury, would the media still ask these questions?"

SHANNAN MAGEE
senior, STPEC/Afro-American Studies
Gulfport, Miss.

"I think it's ridiculous actually. There's so much overwhelming evidence against him that for it to be something other than a hung jury or a guilty verdict is ridiculous."

AMY GRIFFIN
senior, photography
Bridgewater

"I think that he was probably guilty but the way the trial was handled and the controversy with Mark Fuhrman made the prosecution screw up. He might have done it but the prosecution didn't prove it beyond a reasonable doubt. If they can't prove he was 100 pereent guilty, then he shouldn't have to spend the rest of his life in jail."

DAVID EHRLICH
senior, biologySuffern, N.Y.

"My own personal opinion is that he was guilty but that trial shows what money can buy in our society. In this case, it bought O.J. innocence. Without money for his defense team, he would not have gotten off."

DANA HARRINGTON
junior, psychology
Johnston, R.I.

"If the ref doesn't see it, it isn't a foul."

MICHAEL MASONE
senior, exercise science
Norton

writing

continued from page 1

in the program as a non- degree graduate student for the 1994-95 academic year because there seemed to be job openings in technical writing, but not in sociology.

"If I were to look [for a technical writing job] in Eastern Mass, I probably would be able to make more money than I would have otherwise," O_Leary said.

Until recently, the engineers who created the technology wrote the manuals, leading to confusing material inside the manuals.

In an article printed in the New York Times on May 5, 1994, Peter Jordan, a technical writer for Sony, said that his lack of engineering experience actually made him perfectly qualified for the job.

"They hired me because I was not a technical sophisticate," Jordan said to the Times. "They wanted me to work with their engineers. I translated their really awful prose into something people could understand."

History of the program

Professor John R. Nelson, Jr. of the UMass English department started PW/TC in 1990. He said students approached him regularly throughout the 1980s, wanting to learn about technical writing. Since he worked as a consultant for a technology corporation on the side at the time, he would take students with him whenever he went.

"I sort of set them on my shoulder and showed them what I was doing," said Nelson, who is known to his students as "Uncle John." "I gave them some things to do which gave them some internship experience. There were no real courses."

One of these students landed a co-op at Digital in the late 1980s, Nelson said. The student_s supervisor, Dick Howard, formed a partnership with Nelson. According to Nelson, Howard wanted to get involved with teaching, so he recruited several technical writers with assorted specializations to lecture Nelson_s students for one class period a year. In return, Nelson would provide students that Digital could train as technical writers through co-ops.

At the time, Nelson said, UMass offered a basic technical writing class to engineers only. Nelson joined up with its instructor, Jerry Allen, and together they implemented technical writing classes for English majors and other students with strong writing skills.

Howard is no longer involved in the program and Allen retired last spring, Nelson said, but PW/TC still keeps close ties to several professional technical writers.

A program in turmoil

The program currently offers four classes for non- engineers, graduate and undergraduate. Seven graduate English students are teaching the technical writing classes for engineers, Nelson said, but he now teaches the 12-credit, one-year program by himself. According to Nelson, the English Department does not plan to replace Allen in the near future.

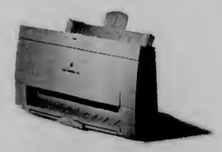
Nelson added that student interest in the program is high, but resources are low. He said that the program focuses on computer software manual writing because of a widespread need for software manual writers, but he can not offer computer training classes. He cited large classes and lack of help as reasons, adding that he cannot accept any more students until another technical writing professor is hired.

Bob McIntosh is one of the seven graduate student teachers in PW/TC this semester. McIntosh took PW/TC last year, and got a technical writing job at Data Views in Northampton this summer through Nelson.

"I think and John thinks we need more professors to teach the classes," he said. "Given the technical writing program_s ability to help people find internships and jobs. That would be a good case for expanding the program. If you want to find English majors jobs, the quickest and most effective way of doing that is through technical writing."

HOT.
Burn, baby, burn—disco inferno.
MAC.
Not the burger, pal—the killer computer.
DEALS.
Cheap. Not as cheap as a taco, but hey.

Power Macintosh® 6100 DOS Compatible w/ CD
16MB RAM/500MB hard drive, Power PC 601 processor, CD-ROM drive, 15" color monitor, keyboard and mouse.



Color StyleWriter® 2400 w/CardShop Plus®
Ink cartridge and cable included.

RIGHT NOW AT YOUR CAMPUS RESELLER.

Being a student is hard. So we've made buying a Macintosh® easy. So easy, in fact, that the prices on Macintosh personal computers are now even lower than their already low student prices. Unfortunately, they won't stay this low forever. So you need to forget about how hard your life is for a minute and start thinking about how easy it will be with a Macintosh. The computer that gives you the power any student can use. The power to be your best.® Apple

Stop By The University Store Computer Department For More Information

UNIVERSITY STORE ☆ Campus Center 545-2619 Mon - Fri 9-5 Sat 11 - 3

Product prices, product availability and sales taxes may vary. Offer expires October 13, 1995. ©1995 Apple Computer, Inc. All rights reserved. Apple, the Apple logo, Macintosh, Macintosh Performa, PowerBook, LaserWriter Select, Color StyleWriter and "The power to be your best" are registered trademarks of Apple Computer, Inc. Power Macintosh and Mac are trademarks of Apple Computer, Inc. CardShop Plus is a registered trademark of Mindscape. All Apple® products are designed to be accessible to individuals with disability. To learn more (U.S. only), call 800-776-2333 or TDD 800-833-4333. Sales of computer hardware are only available to university faculty, staff and students.

DAILY COLLEGIAN

113 Campus Center • University of Massachusetts Amherst, MA 01003 • (413) 545-3500 • Fax (413) 545-1592

Matt Vautour Editor-in-Chief Juan José Chacón Quirós de Quetzacoatl Managing Editor
Earl T. Martin Business Manager James P. Gartley Production Manager Ethan Bloomfield Advertising Manager
Natasha Kahn Advertising Production Manager Wendy Darling Senior Diversity Editor

Tara MK Connelly Arts & Living Editor Candice Flemming Sports Editor
Christopher Byrd Black Affairs Editor Ron Alpert Staff Artist
Matt Wurtzel Business Editor Laura Schmidt, Aimee Schwartz Women's Issues Editors
Syed Mohammed Ali Raza Developing Nations Editor Marni E. Heltner Editorial Production Manager
Gen Sahn Editorial/Opinion Editor Adam Chace Systems Manager
Wendy Darling Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Issues Editor A.J. Stewart Finance Manager
Jacob W. Michaels Jewish Affairs Editor Ryan Courtemanche Distribution Manager
Hernan Rozemberg Multicultural Affairs Editor Maureen Majerowski Assistant Operations Manager
Chris Taylor Conner News Editor Marty Pappas Classified Advertising
Damion Smith Photography Editor Thomas F. Sweeney, Jr Graphics Advisor/Instructor

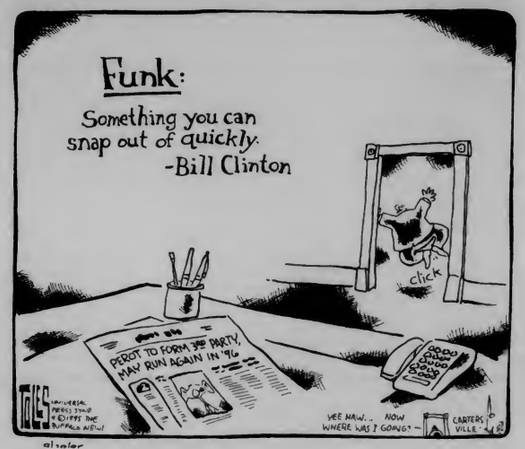
The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published Mondays through Fridays during the University of Massachusetts calendar semester. The Collegian is financially independent from the University of Massachusetts, operating solely on revenues generated by advertising sales. The paper was founded in 1890 as Aggie Life, became the College Signal in 1901, the Weekly Collegian in 1914 and then the Tri-Weekly Collegian in 1956. The Collegian has been published daily since 1967, and has been a broadsheet publication since January 1994. For advertising rates and information, call (413) 545-3500 weekdays between 8:30 a.m. and 3:30 p.m.

Opinion/Editorial



Simpson case a complete buffoonery

"It's nice to live in a country where life, liberty, and all the rest of it, still stand for something." Nicole Kidman, To Die For.

Not Guilty. O.J. Simpson acquitted on all counts. As you read these lines, O.J. Simpson is no longer a defendant, no longer an inmate, no longer a deranged passenger of A.C. Cowlings, but a free man. He has been cleared of murder charges in the trial of the century. At long last the circus is over.

Realistically, this was not the trial of the century. Intense marketing notwithstanding, Nuremburg was much more important. Nor was it the crime of the century, as it pales in relation to the Lindbergh case. What O.J. means to America, though, and what this trial has meant to a nation's collective conscious, is where this charade assumes significance.

Look at all the household names that little picture tube has beamed into our living rooms. Lance Ito, Marcia Clark, Kato Kaelin, Johnnie Cochran, Mark Furhman, Robert Shapiro, Christopher Darden. This list is by no means exhaustive. And really, there is no reason for the public at large to know these people. As way of example, who is your local District Attorney? How many Massachusetts judges can you name? These people have all become famous in their own right through the fame of one O.J. Simpson.

We have been subjected — no, bombarded — with information, speculation, argumentation and vilification. CNN and the other media outlets have sold ads, peddled papers and eagerly profiteered as a direct result of a murder trial. T-shirt salesmen, late night comedians, Kato Kaelin and countless others have used the two deaths as springboards for their own advancement. Countless "talking heads" have spouted their expertise, trying daily to assess the progress of the case and prolong their fat paychecks. The Simpson trial demonstrated that America is culturally, ethically and morally depraved.

We are fixated with fame. It doesn't seem to matter where that notoriety derives from. People seek out autographs and handshakes from everyone even remotely involved with O.J. Every night since the murders in June of 1994, some O.J. tidbit made the nightly news broadcast. The Boston Globe, in deference to the swarm of public interest surrounding all things Simpson, started a Sunday column entitled "All O.J., All The Time." That pretty much sums up the disgust many people have experienced suffering through this endless process.

I can't help feeling that if I had to spend a year in Antarctica, last year would have been an ideal choice, if only to avoid Johnnie Cochran's smug pontifications or updates of Marcia Clark's new hairstyle. We have seen people on the side of the highway holding placards exhorting the fleeing O.J. to keep driving in that white Bronco.

Ninety-five million people watched in amazement that night, and many have stayed close to their televisions monitoring every last movement. I find this fascination disturbing. I am more convinced than ever that people are willingly herded and easily distracted by the most ridiculous events. When the new breed of political theorists and philosophers make the case for dictatorship in the future, all they need is point to the rabid stupidity of O.J. watchers everywhere. It should be readily apparent these people are hardly fit to govern.

When the new breed of political theorists and philosophers make the case for dictatorship in the future, all they need is point to the rabid stupidity of O.J. watchers everywhere. It should be readily apparent these people are hardly fit to govern.

A.J. Stewart

In the final analysis, O.J. didn't make anyone a passive observer, or a greedy opportunist, or a morally bankrupt voyeur. The underlying values were already in place and discernable to those who were willing to look. But the Simpson trial has publically exposed our buffoonery, our susceptibility to the perverse and our willingness to advance ourselves at every opportunity. But that is what American culture has evolved into. We have no core principles, honor or nobility. The trial has been a groping for the lowest common denominator, which in this age is quite small.

So rejoice all you O.J. lovers, maybe your new found friends will make sitcom cameos and infomercial appearances to whet your appetite for the morose and famous. Until then, you can weep that your new TV friends must go. Their world stage has been swept away. What will you do without a daily dose of Ito? Or that nasty racist Furhman? Or the best defense team money can buy? These questions will take time to be resolved. Hopefully it will be far away from the glare of spotlights and finally put to bed. But for now, thankfully, there is some closure. And the juice is Loose.

A.J. Stewart is a Collegian columnist.

A huge injustice

Not Guilty?

How could he be not guilty?

As I watched the verdict being read, I was sure O.J. Simpson was going to be convicted. But incredibly, he was found not guilty.

How could this happen?

I am just so outraged.

As I stood there and watched O.J. smile after the reading of the verdict, I wanted to throw up. And then to see Ronald Goldman's family so shocked and choked up. His sister was so upset that she couldn't control herself. It had to be one of the worst things I've ever seen. I really can't imagine what they were feeling. I don't want to know what they are feeling.

And then to hear people cheering about the verdict out on the streets and in the Bluewall. What is that? How can people cheer about such an injustice? It makes me sick. What is wrong with people today?

When I watched Fred Goldman, the victim's father, during the press conference afterwards, tears were coming to my eyes. Losing your child is the worst thing. But when your child is murdered, and then the person, who all the evidence is pointing to, is found not guilty, it has to be just horrible. Horrendous.

This entire trial was ridiculous. It completely mocked the entire judicial system. The trial lasted over eight months, but the deliberation lasted just under four hours.

Four hours?

How can the jury go through all the evidence in that short of a time? The jurors must have just wanted to get the hell out of there, because there is no way the jury could have thoroughly gone over all of the evidence in that time.

The evidence was there. This man was on a 911 tape screaming and yelling at Nicole Simpson. There was evidence that he had beaten her before, more than once, in the past. That right there is proof that if he could beat her, then he could certainly kill her. That's proof enough for me.

There was DNA evidence linking him to scene. How can you dispute that? There was blood on his Bronco. There were two bloody gloves, one at the scene of the crime and one at O.J.'s house. There was so much evidence. I don't think it can take just four hours to make that kind of decision.

At the press conference after the trial, defense attorney Johnnie Cochran said, "All we had to prove was that there was a reasonable doubt, and we did that."

So basically, what he's saying is that he didn't prove that O.J. didn't do it, but just that there was reasonable doubt. That is just ridiculous.

I think this case should be used as an example of why the judicial system should be re-examined. I also think that the reactions to the verdict should serve as a wake-up call to America.

It's just disgraceful that I heard people cheering and saw people smiling. O.J. was seen in the courtroom pumping his fist, hugging all of his sleazy lawyers. The camera was following O.J. once again on the freeway in another white vehicle, but this time he wasn't fleeing the police. He was heading home.

But where he should have been heading was back to jail, where he belongs. Because in my mind, the evidence was too overwhelming to ignore.

A huge injustice has occurred because the Juice should have been put on ice.

Candice Flemming is a Collegian columnist.

The vicious cycle of corporations

Editor's note: this is the second part to yesterday's column "The inside to corporate maneuvers."

Other employees are looking to squeeze back into the workforce once they are laid-off. They have a limited severance pay and a questionable placement service paid for by the company. The placement service is a contracted (out- sourced) organization that assists the employee in writing resumes, finding jobs, making contacts, etc.

The soon to be laid-off employee struggles to re-educate themselves before they run out of time and money. They hope to attain new computer and technical skills before they run out of money and severance benefits. The fortunate laborer might get lucky and find something in the service, food or retail industry. However, they will suffer a grievous reduction in pay from what they previously earned.

A few talented middle-aged employees find out they are "overqualified" for entry level positions in the corporate trenches. They are turned away at the door or in the mail with a note claiming they have too much experience for the position they applied for. Thus, the overqualified employee must engage more time and limited financial resources seeking a job that is either filled already or unattainable with their current educational background. In other words, they do not have the right credentials or qualifying skills to maneuver into a middle management position.

The average earning employee must either join the ranks of the technologically advantaged, or swim the tide and flow of shifting economic globalization. Be careful of the undertow.

As I look back on my job, I paint a skeptical, if not somewhat dismal, picture of corporate shifts in the face of international global competition. The people I worked for became dismally aware of the ineffectual representation and unionization power available to them when the corporate Directors make a final decision. Once when I was driving home from work, I had a strange, imaginative thought. I envisioned an entity that comprised of America's largest conglomerates and trust-bust proof industries. I imagined this monstrosity gyrating, dancing, moving about in a display of horrific splendor, courting and cajoling foreign monopolies and themselves.

Below the feet of the amalgamated mass I saw a more horrible scene. I saw hundreds of thousands teeming masses moving underneath, many of them hoping to be carried away by this cavorting giant.

William Bailey-Eisenhauer

Below the feet of the amalgamated mass I saw a more horrible scene. I saw hundreds of thousands of teeming masses moving underneath, many of them hoping to be carried away by this cavorting giant. Many who were noticed were frowned upon and summarily crushed underneath a giant heel.

I hope the United States can re-establish a better relationship with its people. We need a socio-political agenda that moves beyond a renewed contract with America, and reaffirm an obligation. That obligation should acknowledge a commitment not solely based on corporate expansionism, but tied inexorably to the rights of the working peoples. The nation of America and its collective states must support the social, political, and economic opportunities and determinism of the citizens over that of the corporate individual.

Furthermore, I believe that if the general public can no longer function in an economy centered around shifting monopolistic and quasi-autonomous corporations, then the ideology of American as a united nation will be lost to global cannibalism. The U.S. will appear more as a conglomerate of merchant or technical states bound by mutual capitalist interests. The U.S. of the Northeast, Midwest, South and West will replace that of the America.

The ideas of capitalist growth or global expansion are not absolutely tyrannical, but they should not consume those who helped flower its growth. People such as Franklin Roosevelt and Woodrow Wilson were acutely aware of the problems of capitalist monopolies and thus sought to minimize its abuses. When the industrial corporate maneuvers are detrimental to the survival of its citizens, the people have a manifest duty to challenge their relationship with the state.

Hence, the raison d'etat should not become inimical to the individuals who comprise it. Just as people call for absolute economic freedom, they must answer to absolute economic inequality.

I don't lay blame to any individual corporation, nor is my vision limited to that of the U.S. More importantly, I don't seek solutions by pointing the finger — it often rotates in a vicious circle. All I do know is that the internal machinations of corporate cost cutting techniques makes life somewhat nasty, brutish and disconcerting.

In the end, in some world court of multi-national preeminence, the corporate cartels/monopolies will have to answer to the collective majority and hope their people will exonerate or absolve them.

William Bailey-Eisenhauer is a UMass student.

Letters to the Editor

Policies can be more problematic

To the Editor:

Last Friday, Collegian columnist Erin Barnes presented us with a column describing how poor countries could increase their wealth by exploiting their natural resources. Her concern with the welfare of poor nations was touching, but the policies she promotes will do more harm than good. I will critique her argument in three major ways.

First, her use of the word "resource" to describe nature implies that the environment has no intrinsic value of its own and that, in the spirit of neoclassical economics, it is only an "asset" to be "liquidated" for human consumption. This anthropocentric attitude leads us to ignore the many virtues of the environment besides its value as a raw material for industry.

Second, the exploitation of rain forests and mineral deposits not only threatens the balance of life on the planet, but poses a direct threat to the thousands of indigenous people who depend on the natural areas of countries like Surinam (Barnes' example) for their survival.

In Guyana, which is also in the northeast region of South America, many species of plants and animals have been destroyed by transnational timber companies.

The rivers are being dredged and poisoned with mercury by transnational mining corporations in the hunt for gold, an act of conquest that is not only reminiscent of colonial times, but exclusively benefits the industry tycoons. This leads to my third point.

The use of "natural resources" in poor nations will produce wealth, but only a tiny fraction of it will ever reach the populations of these countries, and certainly not enough to compensate for the loss of the forest-dwelling plants and animals and the poisoning of drinking water with mercury and cyanide.

Under the World Bank policies that Barnes seems to advocate, debt-burdened countries like Surinam will continue their service role as supplies of raw materials and cheap labor for private industry which gives virtually nothing in return.

Many mainstream policy advocates, like Barnes, think only in westernized Amerocentric terms and lack the theoretical analysis to see the full impact of World Bank and IMF policies of Structural Adjustment. They must analyze the structure of the world economy which keeps power in the hands of private industry and prevents "developing nations" from making their own decisions about how to use their resources.

Without doing this, they will not see what the true benefits and losses of these policies have, do and will continue to bring to the Third World.

Sam McAfee Brett

France's gov't. not second-rate

To the Editor:

In Peter Orvetti's column on Sept. 29, he took the opportunity afforded by President Jacques Chirac's decision to allow nuclear testing in the South Pacific irl order to mount a general attack on French political and social life.

I certainly agree that Chirac's decision is an arrogant Gaulist gesture that deserves the world-wide condemnation it is receiving. But to describe contemporary France as "a weakened, second-rate industrial democracy" is to display a disturbing ignorance of contemporary reality outside the United States.

France is usually ranked the world's fifth industrial power in terms of gross domestic product.

It exports a far higher percentage of that product than does the U.S. and for many years it has had a very healthy trade surplus that is in marked contrast to our own huge trade deficits. It has an inflation rate of around two percent, which is also below ours.

The most significant negative economic figure is an unemployment rate of over 11 percent, a figure that is, however, not very far above the European Community average (Spain's is 22 percent). France's standard of living is one of the highest in the world (far higher than it ever was in what Orvetti refers to as its "glory days") and suffers less than the U.S. again from the gross disparity of wealth and income between average wage earners and the very rich.

France also has a mass transportation system that makes Amtrak and the New York subway system look positively Third World. It has a higher education system that is virtually free to all those who pass the baccalaureate; a first-class, universal health care system; and a national system of well-run creches or nursery schools that enable working mothers to leave their children with trained professionals at very little or no cost from the age of a few months on.

I understand your columnist's outrage at Chirac's nuclear tests. But "a weakened second-rate industrial democracy?" We should be so lucky!

Dennis Porter
Chair of French and Italian departments

Developing Nations

Wednesday, October 4, 1995

Cuba: The Cold War's last battle

Luis Alvaro Jaloma

In October 1992, the United States Congress approved resolution 4168 from the House of Representatives, called the Cuba Democracy Act, also known as Toricelli's law. This law pretends to isolate the Cuban regime and includes sanctions for third countries and divisions of any US company doing business with the island. Unfortunately for Cuba, this resolution adds up to the results of all Soviet economical, technical and military help being suspended since 1990. These days, Cuba struggles to keep its fragile economy afloat.

The US-Cuban embargo began with a geopolitical situation that nowadays is non-existent. Cuba has stopped its support for subversive movements. Its troops have left Angola, Somalia, Ethiopia and other African countries and has stopped the covert operations in Latin America and the Caribbean. The island is no longer a military threat to the US or its neighbors and its allies. The Cold War is over; and yet, Cuba's society has to bear the consequences of policies that are not in accordance to the actual geopolitical situation.

It has been said by many international scholars and organizations (the UN, the Rand Corporation, the Army War College) that the embargo, far from supporting economic reform and change, is doing the contrary. At this point in time, the Cuban Democracy Act has stopped being a feasible option for the island. Havana has taken the economic and social damage done by the world events and blamed it on the US; making resolution 4168 backlash at the US by awakening images of a small, heroic country against the hostile Goliath, among the population.

The main objective of the Torricelli's Law is to force Fidel Castro to leave his office by destroying Cuba's economy. The questions that need to be answered are: Does not the embargo make the island's social and economic stability harder to achieve? Does the US want a neighboring weak economy prone to the proliferation of anarchy? What happens when the Cuban exiles oppose to those that live on the island? Nobody in Congress has paid attention to these matters.

Many critics of resolution argue that even though the US is using free trade and other forms of economic incentives to help develop democracy in Vietnam, China, the former Soviet Union, and Eastern European countries, it does not want to do so with Cuba. This line of action is already starting to affect the leadership position the US has among the Latin American countries. The only reason for the delay in policy changes has been the fear of massive return from Cuban exiles to the island, leaving the state of Florida with a debilitated economy.

The Cuban-American community has strongly contributed to the political campaigns of the last five administrations; and so far, it's the only ethnic group that supports the embargo. Other reason for Congress' behavior is the intense emotions directed at Fidel Castro. Representatives of Castro say that the embargo is the result of a private vendetta against him, started by JFK who was believed to have investments in the island.

So far, Cuba is starting to make changes in its laws regarding foreign investments. These laws make it possible for companies to completely own their Cuban subsidiaries. This is an excellent offer that unfortunately US companies will not be able to take advantage of. However, other countries are starting to settle in the island. The government has even said that it would allow "maquiladora like" projects, as ones in Mexico.

What follows are three possible scenarios of what could be an initiative for US policy towards Cuba: 1. Indefinitely keep resolution 4168, until democracy is restored in Cuba; or Fidel Castro dies. 2. Lifting the embargo, without any conditions attached and wait for further negotiations. 3. Lifting the embargo, given the diplomatic initiatives and dialogue, and easing the tension between both administrations. The results of lifting the embargo would prevent illegal immigration, promoting political tolerance, and set the pace to solve other issues not dealt with yet.

Lifting the embargo is the only way to avoid further deterioration of Cuba's economy and social structure. Not doing this, would eventually backlash at the US, mainly with more illegal immigration, and welfare expenses, that hurt the taxpayer's pocket. In the end, both countries would benefit from a change in policy. The moment for change and reform is now. Nothing guarantees that lifting the embargo will create an immediate socio-political redirection, but not lifting it creates a new geopolitical scenario, more complex and hard to deal with, since it will include other countries. There is no certainty of the effectiveness of lifting the embargo, but after 35 years of Cuban isolation, it's well worth a try.

Luis Alvaro Jaloma is a UMass student.

Why is it so dark?

Another day in the darkness
Another day without sunlight

No sound no color no shape
A step forward, a step backward
Left right

Panic confusion
Afraid of making the wrong step
Afraid of making the wrong choice

Why don't we cry, why don't we scream, for help

Afraid of the echo of our voices
Afraid of being betrayed once again by our friends
Afraid of being killed by our own people

No other option left than Staying still, silent
And pray for a better day

The day that the sun will shine for us again
The day that our country, our nation will receive the light of change, of unity, of prosperity
And the light of hope for a better Tomorrow

Pierro Arthur Elysee is a UMass student

The Phillipines Inc.

Zaw Min Oo

Fidel V. Ramos handles daily operations at one of the new trendy firms that have more interest in the growth of the overall firm rather than to intensify the improvements piece by piece. Mr.Ramos aspires to initiate the Philippines Incorporated on a rampant economic competitiveness while trying to maintain the factors of this process at a steady-state equilibrium.

Mr. Ramos is an idealist that is at the helm of The Philippines Inc., a firm that has leapt into the economic bandwagon before the new century. The terminology Incorporated represents a country branching itself into the sea of giant conglomerates.

The Philippines is situated in the sizzling southeast Asian region, where competition exists every step of the way. Its neighbors: Thailand, Malaysia, and Indonesia are at the forefront of industrializing themselves to reach the stage of a Newly Industrialized Country(NIC). Being a kitten in a club of cats, how does the Philippines compete?

What has always plagued the Philippines are internal disputes that have contorted the advancement of the country. From 1961–1986, Ferdinand Marcos held an iron fist at the development of the modern Philippine nation. During this time, the Islamic southern island of Mindanao felt it was not an entity of the predominantly Roman Catholic country. Mindanao wanted to break apart because it was becoming a backwater that did nothing but take orders from the capital, Manila.

Appearing precedent all over the country was Manila centricism like this Mindanao dilemma, influenced by the deceitful tactics of red-tape (corruption) and the emergence of greed.

By the first quarter of 1986, the People Power revolution took place. The six years that followed after became an era of ill-fated reforms by President Corazon Aquino and her administration. There were about 60 million people left to satisfy from Marcos' legacy.

Most problems that Mrs. Aquino faced were a monumental task, that by any means would not have been solved in her six year presidential term. In 1992, Fidel Ramos won the presidential elections on a plurality, as many candidates flocked to challenge the dilemmas facing the country.

Ramos has tried to undermine the improvements for the entire country. He is not a miracle worker or a strategist. Ramos is a saint that understands charity and pragmaticism. His reforms are geared toward human development. He can be noticed on media airwaves and newspapers cheering "the Filipino can."

Ramos' human development scheme is engulfed by the economic recovery which are both interwoven. Human and economic development are factors to the Ramos plan of competitiveness in the region. It is hard to fully understand the genuine intents especially in handling a country. Let us briefly glance at a case of development in the Philippines.

To develop the Filipino mind would unleash a potential because the Filipino mind is exonerate; just that the ability to improve has been given more leeway. Regulations have been reduced and intellectual freedom has been allowed to curb former failures.

Industrial estates all over the country have been constructed in order to bring in needed foreign investment. Foreign investment means international cooperation and a shift of technology from the investors to the Filipinos. Technology can be used in harnessing economic development, making use of the low wages in the country.

Economic development will improve the standard of living and ultimately, human development will bloom. Note that human development is the overall amassment of social development (ex: education) and living conditions (ex: health).

This theoretical jargon finds light in the correlation between human development and economic development. Both of these developments are like complementary goods. As one increases in demand, the other would likewise.

Is Ramos really smiling? His scheme is a basic idea that does not end so easily. There are problems that are evidently affecting the Phillipine development scene. Three basic points concerning demographics are to be addressed. 1. Sixty-five million people now inhabit an archipelago of over 7000 islands, with about half of its land on a slope of 18 percent or greater. 2. Migration to the cities continues. 3. About 40 percent of the population is under 14 years of age.

The combination of these three points translates into a population problem. Human and economic development are both directly affected by population, so Ramos is now under the heat. To handle the problem would be to implement plans that add up to the general picture. His neighbors are having similar problems and yet are developing rapidly. Could this single problem be solved for the Philippines?

Answer: Fidel V. Ramos takes a hint from the examples in Thailand, Malaysia, and Indonesia. He sends a message to the world: Think what you think; We are The Philippines Inc. and we are open for business!

Zaw Min Oo is a Collegian staff member.

Hafez-Al-Asad wants you to
WRITE FOR DEVELOPING NATIONS
For more information contact Syed Mohammed Ali Raza • 113 Campus Center • 545-1851

La Operación: A true nightmare

Adithi Rao

It was very politically correct to screen La Operación, a documentary on the operation sterilization that has swept through the U.S. occupied territory of Puerto Rico since World War II. An operation that has rendered 35 percent of the female population of the island incapable of conceiving children now or ever again.

It was also politically correct to denounce the United States for its role in financing the entire operation, ostensibly to help this underdeveloped territory with it's population problem, but really just to increase the female labor force in the factories it has opened in Puerto Rico. The fact that women in factories are easily manageable (which is to say that they are willing to work longer hours on lesser wages) makes it desirable to have them in factories behind sewing machines, rather than at home taking care of the children.

The documentary interviewed several Puerto Rican women upon whom the sterilization process had been carried out. Most of the time this was done with lies and half truths that only explained the benefits of the surgery against other tedious and expensive birth control measures, but almost never revealed the fact that the process is irreversible. To a culture where children and family are top priority, this is nothing short of a catastrophe.

La Operación also revealed that in the early days of the pill as a contraceptive, it was brought into Puerto Rico and tested on women without their knowledge or consent. There was even the use of life threatening contraceptives in an attempt to control the fast growing population of Puerto Rico, and the documentary included in graphic detail of a tubal ligation in progress.

After the documentary, the audience was treated to a completely unprepared, amateurish talk by one of the organizers of the event on the various methods of birth control. The floor was then thrown open to the audience. The most entertaining of all was the opinion of one gentleman, sprawled on the floor with a child asleep in his lap. He launched on a voluble theory about the Earth being big enough and well enough equipped to support the population, even without any sort of checks on its growth.

His solution to all the problems of the third world nations was simply to reclaim lands that had been lost in the past, and also to prevent concentration of land in the hands of a few, through redistribution among the poorer, landless sections of the population. While this was a perfectly utopic solution, it was offensive to those of us from third world countries. Underdeveloped nations, almost all of which have serious population problems at the root of their troubles, are the countries that were colonized by the white imperialists looking for raw materials and markets during the Industrial Revolution.

Most of these countries remained colonized through both the World Wars. Some, like Puerto Rico, are still under the "protection" of larger, developed nations like the U.S., and certainly even those who have managed to purge their oppressors from their homes are still reeling from the impact of centuries of colonization and exploitation.

Here we have governments which have little or no contact with the most rural sections of the population, let alone redistributing land among them. For anything like redistribution to work, the government would have to form committees at different levels and delegate work.

However, even if the intentions are good, it would take nothing less than a miracle to cut through the red tape of bureaucracy that would loom high at every turn. Not to mention the vast sums of money that would never make it past the various levels.

To make a long story short, governments of the third world nations, in fact, have little touch with the poor masses, who make up the largest sector of its population. Besides, if people were to start reclaiming their lost land, the Indigenous tribes of America would lead the mission.

I want to make it clear here that by no means do I support what is going on in Puerto Rico. But as a citizen of a third world country I do recognize the need for population control, of course with a great deal more of discretion than is being used in Puerto Rico. Certainly not by wiping out families by ensuring that a woman never has even one child, that too though means that takes advantage of people's ignorance.

In view of this, some white person sitting in an air- conditioned room in the United States, spewing out sweet sounding, completely impractical solutions for countries, where people are dying even as he speaks, is flippant. And his flippancy is offensive.

What was called for was a larger group of people from the third world, who would have had at least something more intelligent to contribute to the discussion. Certainly it was shocking to find not even one Puerto Rican among the audience, despite the fact that there is a large Puerto Rican population at UMass and in the Five College area, and a Puerto Rican student association (Boricuas Unidos) on campus.

Unfortunately, someone did not do their homework. For at 7 p.m. on Sept. 12, Room 904 of the UMass Campus Center was filled with a solid group of white Americans, and incidentally, three others from third world countries, not one of whom was from Puerto Rico itself. Apparently there was virtually no publicity at all, for if a decent attempt had been made at publicizing the event, doubtless it would have generated a more international audience. But RAIL, The Alliance for Student Power and MIM, the co-sponsors of this event, seemed to have contented themselves with a tiny ad in the UMass Daily Collegian.

It is no wonder that, when we expressed our irritation to the organizers after the talk, they were extremely apologetic and also rather uneasy, perhaps due to the presence of two Collegian staff members. I am sure they were pleasantly surprised to find no coverage of their event. I must admit that I too was surprised, and not pleasantly so, at the lack of response from the Collegian.

So a documentary was screened on the horrific goings on in Puerto Rico. The "right thing" had been done, and like everything else that is politically correct, this event too fell flat on its face.

Adithi Rao is a Smith College student

In view of this, some white person sitting in an air– conditioned room in the United States, spewing out sweet sounding, completely impractical solutions for countries, where people are dying even as he speaks, is flippant. And his flippancy is offensive.

Arts & Living

Check out the new music

JON SPENCER BLUES EXPLOSION
Experimental Remixes: Extended Playing
Matador

Jon Spencer didn't have enough energy to give us a full album so he did the next best thing and produced an album full of remixes of tunes from his most recent album, Orange.

But don't think that he put any less effort or energy into this five-song mix of funk, blues distortion and noise.

Jon Spencer comes on as hard as ever, opening it up with "Bellbottoms." Dubbing it the 'old rascal mix,' the Blues man proves that something can be better the second time around. Other tracks that follow suit are "Flavor" part one and two, and "Greyhound" part one and two.

All of the tracks blend together but remain separated by their own distinct sound that Spencer delivers beautifully and makes you feel like you're listening to something new every time. A (Tara MK Connelly)

THE VERONICA CARTWRIGHTS
One Careless Match
Chunk

COURTESY OF STEPHEN APICELLA-MITCHCOCK
Liz Phair releases new album

Could 1995 be the year that the local music scene hits the big time? Several years ago, Billboard Magazine named Northampton as a musical hotspot and since then, few bands have received much recognition outside the local press. But that is slowly changing largely due to the excellence of Chunk Records in their effort to document the scene.

Trax On Trax Off

Their latest release is the full length debut by Hadley's own The Veronica Cartwrights. Led by Jeff Lloyd, the band nicely fits into the ever growing group of locals who grew up with a bit too much of J Mascis. Even Lloyd's vocals are a near replica of Mascis' famous voice. It must be the local drinking water.

Throw together some Dino Jr, Neil Young and a bit of traditional country and you have the Cartwrights'. They hardly hide their influences by naming one song, "Neil Young Blues." The band's beauty shines on ballads such as "Freezing Reign", while the band's rockin' side comes out on tunes like, "20 x 20 x 20" that are filled with deliciously catchy hooks. The band may not reinvent rock n' roll, but they will certainly keep you singing in your sleep.

To add to the band's spice, Lloyd is helped out on songwriting by his band-mates, Josh Belknap and Les Labarge. All three regularly switch instruments, much like old Sebadoh.

Fortunately you can see the band on a regular basis at local clubs as they have become a popular live attraction. At the least, this release will just add to the growing number of strong local albums released this year. B (Mike Burke)

LIZ PHAIR
Juvenilia
Matador

One word comes to mind when you listen to Liz Phair's short collection of remixes and unheard tracks: Why. Why would such a wonderful songwriter and musician tarnish her impressive career with such a bad collection of songs?

To be fair, the feisty songstress does have one redeeming track; unfortunately it's "Jealousy" and chances are if you buy this album you probably already own Whipsmart so that can't be a plausible excuse.

"Turning Japanese" has to be the scariest sounding track followed by "California" and "Batmobile." The last two were old tracks that were previously unreleased — they should have stayed that way.

Turn to NEW MUSIC, page 7

Keaton's directorial debut a tearjerker

By Laura Stock
Collegian Staff

UNSTRUNG HEROES
Directed by Diane Keaton with Andie MacDowell, John Turturro, Michael Richards
Playing at Mt. Forms Four

In the sentimentally sweet tradition of Little Man Tate and Searching For Bobby Fischer comes Diane Keaton's directorial debut, Unstrung Heroes.

Just as with its predecessors, Unstrung Heroes is the bittersweet tale of a young boy trying to cling to his childhood, all the while some life-altering tragedy is forcing him to grow up quickly. Keaton's film fits into the formula perfectly, and although it may not be an original plot, audiences are entertained nonetheless.

The boy who suffers innocence lost is 12-year-old Steven Lidz, played delightfully by Nathan Watt (even with the star-studded cast, he's the reason to see this film). It is the 1960's, and Steven is dealing with adolescent problems like delivering a speech for class president in his junior high school elections, and being teased by his peers because his father is supposedly, "from another planet."

Steven's father, Sid (played by John Turturro of Quiz Show) is emotionally distant, but not from outer space. Sid is a scientist who does everything methodically, but there is no limitation to his creativity. Steven's mother, played by Andie MacDowell (Four Weddings and a Funeral), becomes terminally ill and thus Steven's confusion ensues.

In an angry attempt to escape the household dilemmas, Steven runs away to live with his emotionally troubled and eccentric uncles Danny (Michael Richards — Kramer from "Seinfeld") and Arthur (Maury Chaykin). You know the type — they don't have a grasp on reality, and therefore see the world through children's eyes. Steven can relate to them better than his ultra-serious father, and (surprise) they learn from each other.

Perhaps the reason why movies like Unstrung Heroes capture the hearts of Kleenex-toting moviegoers time and time again is that the sadness in the story is very gently imposed upon the viewer. We are not frightened by this tale, but rather we are touched. We can sniffle on the way out of the door, feel better, and forget about it later.

Based on the novel by Franz Lidz, Unstrung Heroes is a satisfying movie. It is all wrapped up, nice and neat — no need for deep concentration here. Where the plotline goes limp, adequate acting and fine directing pick up the slack. It is a heart warming story, but unfortunately, not one that leaves a lasting impression. B

COURTESY OF MELINDA SUE GORDON
Andie MacDowell and John Turturro star in Diana Keaton's directorial debut, " Unstrung Heroes."

The Distinguished Visitors Program at the University of Massachusetts Presents

CANCELLED

An Evening with Dr. Deepak Chopra

Lecture/Discussion/Booksigning

Wednesday, October 4th
7:00-10:00 p.m.
at the
University of Massachusetts
Fine Arts Center

Free to UMass Undergraduates with valid I.D.
$5.00 for UMass Graduate and 5-College Students
$10.00 General Public • Reserved Seating
413/545-2511

- Haircutting
- Hair Color
- Permanent Waving
- Tanning
- Extensive Professional Products Available

REGENCY HAIRSTYLISTS
253-9526
189 N. Pleasant St., Amherst

ARTS & LIVING
It's a cool section. With cool topics. And cool people. So get off your cool butt. And come write for us.

the BLUEWALL presents
DISCO
Every Thursday
Boogie Down All Night Long
●
FREE ADMISSION
9:30 pm - 1:00 am
The 70's Meet the 80's
With D.J.s Billy Arnold and Robert Dwelley
Lighting and Sound By:
Audio Pro Media
Murray D. Lincoln Campus Center 25th Anniversary
"Because You Asked For It"

Confirm Your FALL 1995 Course Schedule!!

Starting Wednesday, September 27, the Registrar's Office will mail to you, at your local address, your course schedule for Fall 1995. Your schedule will be accurate as of September 22, including any five-college classes you might have.

Please check your printed schedule carefully!

If you have questions about your course schedule, contact the Registrar's Office. If you never attended a certain class, or are enrolled in a class not on your schedule, contact your undergraduate deans office as soon as possible, but no later than October 10.

If you do not receive your schedule by Friday, October 6, contact the Registrar's Office to confirm both your course schedule AND your local mailing address.

Kravitz's new album shines

By Josh Wardrop
Collegian Correspondent

LENNY KRAVITZ
Circus
Virgin Records

Visiting an antique shop you are liable to see such an organized mishmash of many diverse articles — articles of different eras, materials, styles, shades and colors, yet all seeming to utterly belong together. Listening to Circus, Lenny Kravitz's fourth album, is the aural equivalent of visiting an antique shop.

The album contains as many unexpected delights and unabashed celebrations of the past — while never losing sight of its contemporary audience. It may be Kravitz's best album to date, and at the very least, Circus should finally put Kravitz on par with the vastly overrated R.E.M. and U2 as a global phenomenon.

Circus* starts off with a bang, "Rock and Roll Is Dead." Set upon a killer guitar riff, the song is a mocking denunciation of poseurs in the rock industry. The subject to whom the song is addressed, "can't even sing or play an instrument" and is in it all for the, "diamond rings and coke spoons ... and 500 women in your bed." The song may have been more relevant in the late 80's when Kravitz started his career, however, with its proliferation of hair-metal bands and lip-synchers. (Hello, NKOTB!)

Kravitz has drawn a great deal of flak from critics because he refuses to hide his influences. This writer belongs to the opposite camp, feeling that Circus carries the weight it does partially because Kravitz is so adept at creating a distinct mood and feeling for each song, as he embraces so many different styles.

Take "Magdalene," for example. Kravitz takes this Bowie- esque tale of a little girl seeking fame and fortune (who ultimately grows up too fast) and adds a more soulful voice to the artificial glam-rock.

Beneath all the fuzzy Hendrix-type guitars and thumping John Bonham like drums, the individual soul of the artist shines through clearly in lyrics. Songs like "Don't Go and Put A Bullet In Your Head" and "Thin Ice" show Lenny's passionate concerns for his brothers living daily with inner-city desperation.

Kravitz's other main lyrical obsession is his fervent belief in God. While the reverence of "God Is Love" may be too pious for some (and too trippy for others), "In My Life Today," a love song directed at God, is perhaps the finest track on the album. Kravitz's double-track harmonies on the refrain are a double-good, chocolate sprinkles on Easter morning treat, He can even be forgiven for using the "wonder/thunder/asunder" rhyme in the song.

"The Resurrection," is another overtly religious tune and an album ending that Led Zeppelin could smile upon with pride, with its "Kashmire" like drums and its mandolin playing furiously in the background.

The sum of his influences, more than just the spiritual son of Lennon and George Clinton, shows that he is a constantly evolving vital artist who looks to the past for inspiration. A talented musician (Kravitz plays guitar, bass, synthesizers, organ, drums, and more on the album) who is unafraid to acknowledge that which went before; a contemporary star who doesn't think "retro" is a dirty word. A

COURTESY OF RUMEN ATANASOV
Lenny Kravitz does his own thing on new album.

Clarinetist excites sold-out audience

By Jennifer Willard
Collegian Correspondent

JON MANASSE
Bowker Auditorium
October 1, 1995

Fifteen minutes before the show began, people were still trying to get tickets to the sold-out performance of clarinetist Jon Manasse last Sunday at Bowker Auditorium. The auditorium was packed, and even though the show started almost 20 minutes late, it was well-worth the wait.

Manasse was flawless as he hit every note with the precision and timing of a clock. With an unparalleled passion for playing, Manasse proved why he is one of the greatest clarinetist of his generation. He moved with the music as if it was coming from inside of him and not merely from his instrument. It was as if the instrument was an extension of his soul.

The mix of light-hearted and soft concertos, along with some deep and heavy pieces, brought the audience into a realm of Jon Manasse, where it was just himself and his music.

Manasse will make a week's residency here at UMass, and then it is on to Buffalo, New York, Hofstra University, and Slyvia and Danny Kaye Playhouse at Hunter College in New York.

It seems hard to comprehend that one instrument could create such incredible and fulfilling music to listen to, but, after listening to Jon Manasse, I'm now a believer.

■ new music

continued from page 6

Tepid, lukewarm but never managing to come to a full boil like many of the tracks on Exile to Guyville or Whipsmart, one could chalk this up to bad timing and hope that she redeems herself with her next release. D (T.M.K.C.)

THE CHARLATANS UK
The Charlatans UK
Atlantic

The Charlatans UK, who are known for their Beatle-esque Manchester sound, have influenced a genre of music that has gotten some serious airplay — most notably Oasis. On the Charlatans' new self-titled album they bring forth their usual formula, only adding in more eclectic influences including the Beach Boys, The Rolling Stones, Dylan, The Beastie Boys and a bunch of techno music.

COURTESY OF MIRROR RECORDS
The Chesterfield Kings.

Seventies-style organs and funk drums are prevalent throughout the album, giving it a funk oriented sound. High points are the Steve Miller sounding "Just Lookin," "Bullet Comes," and "No Fiction", with its mean guitar riffs reminiscent of the Stone Roses.

For the most part, the Charlatans UK made a great sounding record without writing the greatest of songs. With all of the albums interesting recording techniques and influences, the songs still tend to loose focus leaving the listener at times bored. C- (Jason Flax)

DOC HOPPER
...Ask Your Mom
Ringing Ear Records

The almighty Doc Hopper is back with a new album full of their own brand of hardcore/punk. The first thing about this album is that it's much faster and nosier then Aloha, their debut album.

The first three songs "Figoli," "Dakota," and "Melior" are in- your-face, fast paced, and fun. On "Oswald" they revert to their complex song structure that the band is known for. "Spicoli" the best song on the album starts off fast, throws in a nice little mosh part, and then gets hectic before you have time to finish your snapkick.

This album is filled with melodic punk, personal lyrics, and has no slow ballads, just straight ahead punk rock. Doc Hopper also puts on one of the best live shows these eyes have ever seen. A (Adam Dlugacz)

CHESTERFIELD KINGS
Let's Go Get Stoned
Mirror Records

Upon first glance, one might mistake the Chesterfield Kings' album Let's Go Get Stoned for the more famous Aftermath album by the Rolling Stones. Looking past the album cover, it soon becomes blatantly obvious that the Chesterfield Kings made every effort to be likened to the infamous band by mi-Mick-ing more than the band's cover art.

In addition to two bonafide Stones covers, "Street Fighting Man" and the more obscure "Can't Believe It," the rest of the album is filled by original compositions which sound like half-baked Stones out-takes. The band struggles to perfect that whole Stones image, and in a somewhat ironic twist, ex-Rolling Stone Mick Taylor guests on one of the album's fourteen tracks. Two tracks in particular: "Long Ago, Far Away" and I'm so Confused" go as far as copping the beginnings of Stones' classics "Sympathy for the Devil," "Monkey Man" and the psychedelic "2000 Light Years from Home".

The Chesterfield Kings come off sounding like a Rolling Stones tribute band rather than other Stones influenced bands like The Black Crowes, who use their idols as an inspiration rather than a basis for their work. Instead of being angered at the blatant theft of their work, the Jagger/Richards team would undoubtedly laugh at their fans' adulation reminiscent of their early Chuck Berry laden efforts. Let's Go Get Stoned is a fun album by a poor man's Rolling Stones. To see what all the fuss is about, check out real thing. C+ (Michael McCloskey)

IT DOESN'T JUST SAY, "I LIKE BRUEGGER'S." IT SAYS, "HEY, PAL, I'M SICK AND TIRED OF THE FROZEN, STALE, WARMED-OVER SOCIETY WE LIVE IN AND I'M DOING SOMETHING ABOUT IT BY GOING TO BRUEGGER'S WHERE THEY'RE ALWAYS MAKING HOT, FRESH BAGELS AND GETTING THEIR NIFTY NEW TRAVEL MUG FILLED WITH 22-OUNCES OF THEIR HOT, DELICIOUS COFFEE FOR JUST 99¢ FROM A COMPANY THAT I KNOW IS REALLY OBSESSED WITH FRESHNESS AND QUALITY AND ALL OF THE THINGS THAT WERE GOOD ABOUT THE AMERICA WE ONCE KNEW AND THE AMERICA WE CAN KNOW AGAIN, DARN IT." BUT ALL OF THAT WOULDN'T FIT ON THE SIDE OF THE MUG, SO WE JUST PUT A LOGO AND A REALLY NEAT PICTURE ON IT.

BRUEGGER'S BAGEL BAKERY
TOTALLY COMPLETELY OBSESSED WITH FRESHNESS
Open at 6 am, 7 Days A Week
96 Main Street, Northampton, MA
170 N. Pleasant Street, Amherst, MA

EL ACUÑA
TEX-MEX CANTINA
Don't Be A Conehead!

HEAD ON OVER TO
EL ACUNA
WEDNESDAY NIGHT IS 10¢ WING NIGHT (UNTIL 11:30 PM)
Also . . .
$1.50 Drafts
$2.50 Shooters

The Magic Lantern
THE BEST IN ADULT ENTERTAINMENT

Amateur Night
Fall Season
Every Wednesday Night 8 pm
$500 Cash First Place
Plus Runner-up Prizes
Cash Door Prize $200.
Free Admission With Ad.
Interested Contestants Call 283-9275
Giveaways & Audience Participation
Only 30 Minutes from the UMass Campus: Rte. 9 east, to Rte. 181 south, to Rte. 20 west for 1.5 miles
Open 6 days Closed Sundays 12 pm to 1 am Boston Rd. Rte. 20 Palmer, MA (413) 283-9275

~ MOVIES ~

New film tacky and cheap

Patrick Stewart, Steven Weber star in movie about homosexual love

By Michael Pessah
Collegian Staff

JEFFREY
Directed by Paul Rudnick
with Patrick Stewart, Steven Weber, Bryan Batt
Playing at Academy of Music

Steven Weber is unquestionably the happiest looking guy in the world. The beams of elation that project from his dimpled cheeks and twinkly eyes are so warm that they nearly drown out the animated M&M's that appear alongside him in a current T.V. commercial. He is a logical choice to play Jeffrey, the protagonist of the film adaptation of the Paul Rudnick play.

Jeffrey opens with Weber addressing the camera and speaking at length about why he has decided to stop having sex. He explains that the AIDS crisis has taken "all the fun out of being gay," and that he hopes to direct all of his sexual energy towards his career (he is an actor).

We follow Jeffrey into a gym, where he (surprise) bumps into Steven, the dream guy (played by the hunky Bryan Batt). Jeffrey is unable to resist his carnal impulses and asks Steven to spot him, resulting in a scene played entirely for cheap laughs.

Intent on keeping his pledge of celibacy, Jeffrey gives Steven the slip and runs off to visit his interior decorator friend (Patrick Stewart). Stewart is living with his HIV positive lover Darius (Michael T. Weiss) who is a dancer in Cats. Jeffrey tells them of his dilemma and they give him shallow fashion advice.

Jeffrey's situation becomes even more serious when he discovers that Steven is also HIV positive. The movie, however, never loses its sophomoric tone. The drama is intercut with several Hollywood Shuffle style fantasy sequences. These fantasy sequence include a gay "Jeopardy!" and a talk show hosted by Sigourney Weaver. The difference, however, between Jeffrey and Hollywood Shuffle is that the sequences in Hollywood Shuffle are seen through a critical framing device, while the sequences in Jeffrey are simply gratuitous skits. Hollywood Shuffle made a point of portraying exaggerated black stereotypes so it could later debunk them. Jeffrey embraces the stereotypes as real and plays them off for cheap jokes.

Not that Jeffrey is all "National Lampoon" style humor. Throughout the movie it attempts to bring the events into a serious light. Unfortunately, the dramatic scenes come off as shallow and tacked on. Even the audience was laughing at an unnecessary and humorous gay bashing scene.

There were several genuinely disturbing moments to Jeffrey, however. None of them were intentional. The film is unhesitantly negative about women. All of the female performers in the movie are ridiculed (with the exception of Sigourney Weaver) and homosexuality is widely celebrated as a triumph of men over women. I suspect that if the genders were reversed, Jeffrey would have received widespread criticism.

Additionally, the movie's primary message is that Jeffrey needs to lose his inhibitions and go have sex with someone who is HIV positive. I think that is dangerous.

Jeffrey is a self-congratulatory, wink wink, nudge nudge type of movie designed to make it's audience laugh while they pat themselves on the back for their open-mindedness. Though it contains a few silly laughs, and a couple of amusing cameos, most of it comes off as a gay minstrel show. Steve Weber sure is cute though. C

HALLOWEEN: THE CURSE OF MICHAEL MYERS
Directed by Joel Cheppell with Donald Pleasance
Playing at Hampshire Six

The new Halloween movie doesn't make much sense. There are gaping plot holes, conspicuous loose ends, incoherent plot and babbling dialogue. But it does have two or three genuinely scary set-pieces.

For those of you that have just crawled out of a large precipice, the Halloween series documents the murder stylings of Michael Myers. It was never made clear what exactly Myers was, but he is presumably some type of evil demon that must kill everyone that lives in a particular house. Myers' arch-nemesis is the police psychiatrist, played by Donald Pleasance.

The original Halloween film was a scary, low budget thriller from a then unknown John Carpenter. Halloween was so successful that every other low-budget director (including Carpenter) decided to rip it off — giving birth to the slasher genre.

As the 80's waned to a closed, the slasher craze finally stopped. Instead of slasher movies, filmmakers started to make self-righteous, mumbo jumbo gorefests such as Hellraiser and The Prophesy. These films removed the trashy violence of slasher movies and substituted gory mysticism. Instead of being a guilty pleasure, these movies were like taking your medicine.

Halloween: The Return of Michael Myers is a return to the slasher genre. Like all true slasher movies, it never strays from the "slasher formula". As a critic, I feel that it is my journalistic responsibility to divulge the "slasher formula". Here is the abbreviated version:

1. Have expository chatter about the secrets of boogeyman (in this case Michael Myers).
2. Find a way to get a character alone.
3. Send boogeyman after the character.
4. Shock viewers by having a cat, ironing board, or repairman jump out at them.
5. When audience recovers, send boogeyman at them for real.
6. Repeat for 90 minutes.

The beauty of slasher movies is that the audience already knows the formula, and a movie is judged on it's ability to throw the audience off. Rated on this scale Halloween: The Curse of Michael Myers is one of the best in years. The camera angles are wonderfully tight and claustrophobic, and there are three or four genuinely scary surprises.

Halloween: The Curse of Michael Myers even has an excuse for it's incoherent plot. Donald Pleasance died in the middle of the filming, so for once it isn't the writers fault that the story doesn't resolve properly.

If you really need something to efficiently and effectively scare the pants off you, go out and see Halloween: The Curse of Michael Myers. In these lean times, slasher movies are few and far between. C+

DAYMON SMITH COLLEGIAN

Servin' it up

The Massachusetts women's tennis team served up their seventh straight win as it rolled over Army, 5-2. See tomorrow's Collegian for how they did it.

■ playoffs

continued from page 12

few minutes. ... Pettitte was 1-1 against the Mariners this season. Benes got a no-decision in one start against the Yankees.

DENVER (AP) - Greg Maddux wasn't at his masterful best. Chipper Jones, however, was.

As for Don Baylor, the Colorado manager ran out of position players with two outs in the ninth and the bases loaded.

The result was a 5-4 victory by the Atlanta Braves on Tuesday night in the opener of their NL playoff series, the first postseason game in Rockies history.

Jones' second solo homer broke a 4-4 tie in the ninth to win it for Atlanta. But the Braves had to sweat out this victory when the Rockies loaded the bases with one out in the bottom of the inning. Closer Mark Wohlers retired the first batter, then gave up back-to-back singles to Mike Kingery and Bichette. Wohlers walked Larry Walker to fill the bases and fanned Andres Galarraga. Baylor, who had played all five of his substitutes, was forced to pinch-hit Lance Painter, one of 12 pitchers on the Colorado roster and the starter for Game 2 on Wednesday night. He struck out as well, and the Braves made their great escape.

With two outs in the top of the ninth, Jones homered to right-center off Rockies closer Curtis Leskanic. Jones also homered in the sixth during a rally that produced a 3-3 tie.

Dwight Smith's two-out, pinch-hit single in the eighth gave the Braves a 4-3 lead, but Colorado countered on Ellis Burks' RBI double in their half.

Rockies reliever Mike Munoz retired the first two batters in the eighth but surrendered a single to Ryan Klesko. Darren Holmes replaced Munoz and gave up a single to Javy Lopez. Smith, batting for Jeff Blauser, singled to right for a 4-3 lead.

Dante Bichette drew a leadoff walk off Greg McMichael in the Rockies half. Walker singled to right, with Bichette taking third on right fielder David Justice's bobble. Jones made a diving stop of Galarraga's shot down the third-base line and threw out Walker at second, with Bichette holding at third. Alejandro Pena then served up the RBI double to Burks.

Maddux, the best pitcher in the majors with a 19-2 record and 1.63 ERA this season, wasn't masterful. But he was artful in in escaping repeated jams thanks to 14 groundouts, ineluding four double plays. Maddux lasted seven innings, allowing nine hits and three runs.

Colorado's Kevin Ritz nursed a 3-1 lead into the sixth, when the Braves scored twice to tie.

Vinny Castilla, a former Braves prospect, hit a two-run homer for the Rockies, while Marquis Grissom and Jones had solo homers for the Braves.

Maddux's best feat was escaping a bases-loaded, one-out predicament in the seventh. He got pinch-hitter John Vander Wal, who set a major league record with 28 pinch-hits this season, to bounce to the mound. Maddux threw home for one out, and Lopez's relay to first cut down Vander Wal.

Grissom's two-out solo homer off Ritz gave the Braves a 1-0 lead in the third.

The Rockies countered with three runs in the fourth, highlighted by Castilla's two-run homer. With one out, Walker walked and went to third on Galarraga's single that ricocheted off the wall in right-center. Burks then brought Walker home on a short sacrifice fly, with Walker beating Justice's high throw.

■ Perillo

continued from page 12

M's will be throwing Andy Benes (7-2, but with a hefty 5.86 ERA) and Chris Bosio against Yankee ace David Cone, an 18 game winner, and Jack McDowell.

Donny Baseball and Wade Boggs do not have the pop in their bats that Tino and Edgar Martinez do, but this series will come down to pitching.

The Bombers staff isn't deep, but the front line is talented. Cone, McDowell and rookie Andy Pettitte will have to deal with the devastating Seattle lineup, which will win one game by itself. However, with Johnson only able to hurl once in the series, the newly found baseball fever in Seattle may not last much longer.

Prediction: New York three games to two.

Braves vs Rockies: First of all, kudos to Colorado for making it this far, but this is where the expansion express gets derailed. Colorado's lineup boasts some impressive statistics, even if they are amplified by playing at Coors Field. Kevin Ritz is the only Rockie hurler with over 10 wins (his record is 11-11), and their team ERA of 4.97 (6.17 at home) reflects the fact that Denver is a hitter's city.

The Braves on the other hand have baseball's best pitching, and I don't care if ace Greg Maddux is pitching underwater, he'd still be unhittable. The Tomahawk Choppers have No. 2 and 3 starters that would be aces on many other clubs (Glavine 16-7, 3.08 and Smoltz 12-7, 3.18) and enough hitting to put the Rockies away quickly.

Credit Colorado's offense with one win in Denver, but that will be all she wrote.

Prediction: Atlanta three games to one.

Reds vs. Dodgers: The Dodgers have one thing going for them. They finished strong in a late season pennant race with the Rockies and have some momentum. Their pitching is solid with Ramon Martinez, Hideo Nomo, Kevin Tapani and Ismael Valdes, while Mike Piazza is by far the best receiver in the game.

The Reds win using a balanced attack. Barry Larkin, Reggie Sanders and Ron Gant lead a potent lineup that should give LA some trouble. Their pitching has been effective as well.

Pete Schourek won 18 games, John Smiley has had an excellent season and David Wells, when healthy, has found a life away from Detroit.

This series should be a close one, but Cincy's hitting advantage outweighs LA's slight pitching advantage. Also, the homefield advantage actually means something when you look at the Reds 44-28 record at Riverfront.

Prediction: Cincinnati three games to two.

World Series: The Tribe beats up on the wild card Yanks in six games, and heads to south to start the series. The Braves pitching gets them by Cincy in the second round, four games to one. Maddux and co. now have to get ready for the All Native-American series, and the best lineup in baseball.

As the old saying goes, good pitching will beat good hitting every time, and it holds true this year.

The Braves, led by the best pitcher of our generation, stifle the Cleveland bats, and Chipper and the Crime Dog figure out Orel Hershiser and Dennis Martinez.

Holyoke native Mark Wohlers is on the mound to close out the game when the Braves finally clinch a series victory in Georgia.

Prediction: Atlanta over Cleveland, four games to two.

Bran Perillo is a Collegian columnist.

Sports Notice

There will be an all sports staff meeting Monday Oct. 9, at 6:30 p.m. All sports staff members should be in attendence, any one interested in writing for Sports is welcome. Any questions, call Candice Flemming at 545-0719.

■ Brown

continued from page 12

a curveball the Sox are doomed, Sox, it's not this year. (I look to send the almighty jinx.)

Prediction: Cleveland in four.

Yankees vs. Mariners:

The Mariners are a great team. They have a lot of enthusiasm up there in the city where it never stops raining. I mean they even have Jay Buhner buzz-cut day. They have put together the best season in Mariner history.

However playing the Yankees in the post season is intimidating as hell. The Bronx Bombers thrive on post- season baseball. Look in any baseball history book and the Yankees appear over and over again.

The Mariners have Ken Griffey Jr. back, the 1995 A.L batting champ Edgar Martinez, and a solid pitching staff which includes Randy Johnson, Chris Bosio, and Andy Benes. But them Yanks, they'll show up the Sox and advance to face the Tribe. Why? Because David Cone is dominant on the hill, Darryl Strawberry is coming around, Ruben Sierra will regain his stroke, and Wade Boggs...., well he'll play third base.

There is one thing however, which can help New York, and one thing which can hurt them. Andy Pettitte helps, and he is on fire. He can carry the Yanks stall with Cone if he has to.

Don Mattingly hurts, he is New York's modern day, post- season curse.

Prediction: New York in five

Braves vs. Rockies:

I love this match-up. Atlanta's Greg Maddux is the best pitcher in baseball and will win all his starts. The Braves also has a very solid line-up with Fred McGriff, Marquis Grissom and Chipper Jones. But this one's my upset.

The Colorado Rockies are riding the momentum. Bret Saberhagen, Kevin Ritz, and Bill Swift are capable starters. It will prove to be the Rocks mountain 30 homerun club which will swing them past the Braves. Andres Galarraga, Vinny Castilla, Larry Walker, and Dante Bichette will provide the necessary offense.

No tomahawk chop this season, it's getting Rocked at Coors Field. Interpret how you like.

Prediction Colorado in five.

Reds vs. Dodgers:

Cincinnati's Ron Gant and Reggie Sanders are great players and have both had excellent seasons, however Los Angeles is just too tough this year. Mike Piazza had a career season, smacking 32 homeruns and batting .346. Those are unbelievable numbers for a catcher. Eric Karros also belted 32 homers, and knocked in 105 runs this season. The two of them carry the offense. The first Japanese player since the 60's is the other reason for Dodger success.

Pitcher Hideo Nomo, and his unorthodox delivery of the baseball struck out the most batters in baseball this season. that statistic shall include post-season.

Prediction: Los Angeles sweeps

When all is said and done, the Indians will have disposed of the Yankees and the Dodgers will have knocked off a young Colorado team.

The World Series will be between the Cleveland Indians and the Los Angeles Dodgers. Dodger Manager Tommy Lasorda will have more weight- loss commercials lined up due to his renewed fame in the series, but will not have the horses on the field.

Cleveland cannot be stopped for the same reasons the Red Sox won't beat them. Major League III will be based on a true story.

Mike Brown is a Collegian columnist

COLLEGIAN GRAPHICS
When our job is done - your day is just beginning.

So You've Got the Blues...
A support Group for people living with mood disorders
Skills For Combatting Depression
This six session group will focus on providing group members with essential coping skills and preventing relapse.
The group will meet on Thursday afternoons from 3:45 - 5:00pm beginning in late October and continuing until early December.
Pre-group interviews are required.
For information or to sign up for an interview call 545-2337, or stop by 127 Hills North, Monday - Friday 8:00am - 5:00pm.
Offered by the Mental Health Division of University Health Services

UNIVERSITY BARTENDING™
•Professional Bartending and Bar Management Training at a fraction of the cost at most schools
•Full certification in as little as six weeks
•Specific programs tailored to your specific needs
•T.I.P.S.™ and Serv-Safe™ certification available
•Approved by the National Restaurant Association®
Classes Start Wednesday, Oct. 4 7:00 p.m. Lord Jeffery Inn
Shop around and compare
1-800-U-CAN-MIX
Call for more information
Act now! Space is limited!!

Conflux is Here!
Brought to You By:
Capitol Records and Ticketmaster
Win Bigtime prizes by logging onto Ticketmaster Online (http://www.ticketmaster.com), including:
•20,000 CDs featuring leading Capitol acts such as Blind Melon, Spearhead and Cocteau Twins
•An all expense paid trip for two to see Blind Melon in concert
•Special Prizes from the House of Blues
•And the Grand Prize . . . A FREE concert on your campus by Everclear-hosted by the student who submits the most creative entry

JUDICIAL ADVISORS WANTED!
Advisors:
• Provide Support.
• Disseminate information to students.
• Accompany students to judicial hearings.
Eligibility for being an advisor:
• Must be a full-time undergraduate or have a graduate student status.
• Must have at least 2.0 GPA.
• Must attend two Advisor/Advocate training sessions.
APPLY TODAY!
Pick up your applications at either 227 Whitmore or 432 Student Union
Applications Due:
October 16, 1995 by 5:00 pm
Questions? Contact:
James Musmon at 545-1272
Coordinator of Judicial Advisors Program
Paul Vasconcellos at 545-2684
Assistant Dean of Students

What are the Most Powerful Words In Your Permanent Record?
(check one)
☐ Transcript
☐ Resumé
☐ Diploma
☑ The Wall Street Journal
For special student rates send in coupon below or for faster service call (800) WSJ-8614
7am-10pm Eastern Time Mon.-Fri.
☐ Send me a one-year subscription for $87.00
☐ I'd prefer a 15-week subscription for $33.00
Name
Address
City State Zip
School name Graduation date
☐ Check enclosed ☐ Bill me later ☐ Charge to my: ☐ AMEX ☐ VISA ☐ MasterCard ☐ Diners Club
Card no. Expiration date
Signature
THE WALL STREET JOURNAL.
Mail coupon to: The Wall Street Journal 200 Burtett Road, Chicopee, MA 01020
©1995 Dow Jones & Company, Inc. All Rights Reserved. This special offer is limited to new and renewal subscriptions in the continental U.S. 7N47

UNDERGRADUATE RIGHTS & RESPONSIBILITIES
OFF CAMPUS STUDENTS:
The 1995-96 Rights and Responsibilities booklet is now available at the:
*CAMPUS CENTER INFORMATION DESK
*DEAN OF STUDENTS OFFICE (227 WHITMORE)
*INFORMATION DATA BANK (2ND FLOOR LOBBY WHITMORE)
THE BOOKLET CONTAINS INFORMATION ON:
Academic Regulations
Alchohol policy
Code of student conduct
Sexual Harrassment Policy
Grading System
Smoking Policy
...and everything else you need to know about campus regulations
ALL STUDENTS ARE RESPONSIBLE FOR KNOWING THE REGULATIONS AND POLICIES IN THIS BOOKLET.
University of Massachusetts at Amherst

34th Annual Study in Spain Program
Spring Semester
SPANISH in VALLADOLID
▪ college level courses taught in spanish
▪ homestays with spanish families
▪ spanish faculty
▪ field trips
▪ permanent resident director
▪ earn up to 18 lup credits
For further information contact:
Director, Valladolid Program
Department of Spanish & Classical Languages
Indiana University of Pennsylvania
471 Sutton Hall
Indiana PA 15705-1087
IUP

TIME OUT
Michelob Light Night Tonight
T-Shirts, Hats & Other Prizes
Free Antonio's Pizza
Fun Starts at 10pm
37 N. Pleasant Street
Proper I.D. Required

Macintosh® or IBM® it's your choice
with this coupon
$2 off per hour on computer rentals
One coupon per customer. Not valid with other offers. Good only at the Kinko's listed. Expires October 15, 1995.
kinko's the copy center
AMHERST: 220 N. Pleasant St. 253-2543 Open 24 Hours
NORTHAMPTON: 34 Bridge St., 585-5000 (Across from the Post Office) Open 24 Hours

UPC presents:
DJ CLUE
LIVE at the Bluewall Cafe!
October 6, 9:30
tickets are sold before show at Tix Unlimited
$7 for students, $9 for non-students day of show, $8 for students, $10 for non-students

Understanding Eating Disorders:
Strategies for Friends and Families
Wed. October 18 room 174 or Tues. November 14 room 804
6:30 - 8 p.m. - Murray Lincoln Campus Center, UMass
I think my roommate has an eating disorder.
How can I be sure? What should I do?
I think my sister is anorexic and she isn't getting any help.
How can I convince her to see a professional?
Who should I suggest.. Where should she go?
I'm concerned about my friend who has bulimia.
She says it's under control, but I don't think it is.
I'm really afraid... What can I do to help?
If you are concerned about someone who you know or suspect is struggling with an eating disorder, come to this informal workshop to explore how you can help and cope with these issues.
For more information, please call University Health Services 549-2671, Clinic 4 - ext. 233 or 234

Research Interviewers
Hiring Now For Evening and Weekend Hours
No Selling Involved
Interesting part-time telephone assignments to collect data on a variety of research topics. Absolutely no selling involved. Computer/typing skills required. Flexible hours. Monday-Friday, 5pm-10pm, Saturday 11am-5pm and Sunday 3pm-9pm. Must work a minimum of 20 hours per week. Start at $5.25/hour with paid training and earn up to $7.00/hour.
We're in the Mountain Farms Mall, which is a stop on the free bus line. Call between 9am-5pm, Monday-Friday: (413) 586-8635.
Abt Associates, Telephone Research Center, Mountain Farms Mall, Rt. 9, Hadley, MA 01035. An Equal Opportunity Employer.
Abt
Abt Associates Inc.

Collegian Classifieds

113 Campus Center • University of Massachusetts • Phone: (413)545-3500 Fax: (413)545-1592

Personals Policy

1. All personals MUST be proofread by Collegian classified employees before payment and acceptance of the classified.
2. Last names MAY NOT be used in personals. ONLY first names and initials are allowed. The only exceptions are for birthday or congratulations personals, in which case the full name may be used.
3. Phone numbers are not allowed in personals. NO EXCEPTIONS
4. Addresses are not allowed in personals, this means dorm room numbers as well.
5. Personals of a threatening or derogatory nature are not acceptable. Personals of a vindictive or libelous nature are not acceptable. Personals may not be used for the purpose of harassment.
6. Profanity may not be used in personals.
7. The personals section is for personals only. The personals section may NOT be used to sell items, seek roommates, advertise meetings, etc.
8. All personals must have the name, signature, and UMass I.D. number of the student placing the as filled in on the insertion order. Non-students must provide a valid driver's license and the license number must be recorded on the insertion order. Use of false identification or misrepresentation is subject to penalties under the law.
9. The Collegian reserves the right to refuse or to edit any personal that does not meet the Collegian's standards in accordance with the statutes of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

Rates

$2.00 minimum/day

Students
20¢ per word/day

All others
40¢ per word/day

NO REFUNDS

Please write clearly and legibly. We are not responsible for errors resulting from illegible handwriting or type.

Standard Headings

Activities
Announcements
Apartment For Rent
Auto For Sale
Employment
Entertainment
For Sale
Found (2 days Free)
Happy Birthday
Houses For Rent
Instruction
Lost
Musicians
Miscellaneous
Motorcycles
Personals
Room For Rent
Room Wanted
Roommate Wanted
Services
Summer Sublet
To Sublet
Travel
Transportation
Wanted to Rent
Wanted

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Chinese Food Kosher restaurant now opening in Northampton. Call Saturday 586-2121

Learn to bartend with University bartending. 1-10 classes of other schools classes available. Free info session! We'll train in 2 1/2 days. Lord Jeffrey Inn on Rte. 9 in Amherst.

The sisters of Sigma Delta Tau would like to welcome our newest pledges to the family with Bridge, Dawn, Shannon, Debbie, Jen, Jessica and Aimee!

To the sisters of Sigma Delta Tau Congratulations on a fantastic rush! We're really excited to have a great semester! Love, the pledge army! Love, Exec.

Zeta Psi We must learn to live together brothers! Especially as hosts. Zeta Psi is recognized as the university men of tomorrow. May 'all say so.

The Sisters of Sigma Kappa would like to welcome our new pledges: Lisa Nadal, Burn, Jaime, Adelee, Meghan, Christine and Jessica! Get psyched for a great semester!

AUTO FOR SALE

1983 Chevy 86,000 original mileage very good condition $1,000 or best offer. 253-9011

84 AUDI 5000 S 5 spd, 81,756 E, 256-8348

1985 MAZDA GLC $900 BO

86 Oldsmobile Firenza Runs great high miles $1000 or best offer 256-8667

86 Subaru GL Hatchback 5 speed Runs well. Power. $1700. 253-9295.

1986 Dodge Colt Turbo 5 speed fast sporty reliable economical $1750 253-4[illegible]

90 VW Golf Auto Low miles 4 Dr $4900 253-5709

'82 Red Jeep Wrangler 3 speed soft top 77,000. CD player. Alarm. $12,000 or bo 413.256.6711

1992 Toyota Celica GT, 5 speed, loaded, Red, 1 owner, mint, alarm, 53k miles, $3000 below book, $18,200. 665-7279 Jon

Blue 86 Subaru Wagon 4wd power windows, stereo, new brakes, muffler, water pump, $4900 or best. Call 587-9185.

Honda Accord EX-90 70K CON Auto $4400 or best 665-8602 SUNG

Mercury Marquis, 1984, 70k miles, Runs excellent. Power windows & doors $1500 or best. Call 253-549-8881

86 BMW 325 excellent condition Red with Black Int. 56000 or B.O. Mike@546-2467

EMPLOYMENT

Babysitter Needed for 3 year old Wed and Fri 7:40-3:20 Call Michele at 256-8632

BUILD YOUR RESUME
Come to the UMass Credit Union
September 18th or 19th at 6:30 pm to build your resume! Looking for new writers for fall 1995! Stop by, call Christine at 545-2800

Cartoonist wanted for commercial work Call Roberta 545-0419

Cruise Ships Hiring Earn up to $2000+/month World Travel. Seasonal & Full-time positions. No exp. necessary. For info call: 206-634-0468 Ext. C5[illegible]

Drivers, waitresses and a kitchen help wanted APPLY IN PERSON AT LAURAN'S 586-8250

Earn big $$$ reading college marketing term paper. Currently seeking part-time help. Multiple positions available throughout the fall semester. Flexible hours & great pay. $6.[illegible]/hr. Will train, no experience necessary. Great resume builder! For more info, call Mark Egan @ (617) 266-[illegible] Ext.[illegible]

Mole Torah reader needed. Hours during library. Congregation Rodfey Shalom Hebrew 538-9262.

National Parks Hiring Seasonal & full-time employment available at national Parks, Forests & Wildlife Preserves. Benefits and Bonuses! Call (1-206-545-4804 Ext. N 50017

Students wanted to work evenings and or weekends with adult MR population. Have your time really count! We will train. Car a must. Call 549-7911 AA/EOE/ADA

$35,000 income potential Real estate courses. Toll-free 1-800-[illegible]-[illegible] ext. [illegible]

Hockey skates (EM pumps) brand new, call 648-[illegible]

IBM pc notebook comp word asst. Need $ fm school. 549-6061

PJ Harvey live Oct. 10. Mike 585-9186

Tandy Computer $ since most w/ soft Avail. $ 20s to be. Call 8-0540

Toshiba 20" Stereo w/ remote 3yr old paid $1,[illegible] asking $[illegible]. 549-8063

Yamaha 870 Reciever 120 watt club rock concert jazz dance hall movie built amp extremely more. Pioneer CLD v870 laser karaoke w/ microphone LD CD 8mm 8 w $950. Call 546-8396

2 Kicker Box Style Speakers 2 x 10s, new $130, sell for $70. 549-6181

12 string acoustic guitar w/ case. Practically brand new! Call Mike 256-[illegible]

1965 Fender Fratless Jazz Bass good as new, was $500 now $[illegible]. Lee Aaron 549-8887

Computer Desk For Sale Barely used Call 7[illegible]-[illegible]64

Bread Machine Oak Turbo Baker II Asst. $[illegible] 549-0976

Macintosh Classic Great for word processing, 2MB 40 Gig Hard Drive, Ethernet 584-9861

386 Computer For Sale Includes DOS 6, Windows 3.1, Microsoft Word, Norton's, Games, V/A Monitor, Amiga 4[illegible] Asking $400 or best offer. Call 6-0883

ENTERTAINMENT

[illegible]-3722 for details.

Having Halloween bash [illegible] hire/fill-ian a huge house? Wanna spooky band? You need yeh! and yeh! needs you! call Jack at 367-9635.

FOR RENT

Fridge Rentals Free delivery. 253-9742

FOR SALE

Brand new ABS Fat Tire Cruiser. Aerobic. Unbeatable price! 1 year warranty. Must go. 367-7[illegible]

Compaq 486/33 66 MHz, Setsystem 8 megs RAM, 3x speed CD ROM, 16 bit sound, 104 meg hard drive, 14 meg SVGA w/ 14" monitor, was $[illegible] (4-3) 786-4678

COMPUTERS

Mac computers powerbook 170 8/80 hd, carry case $1795. Quadra 700 8/540 hd, 13" color monitor, awesome graphics software $1995. Call 256-0080

DJ EQUIPMENT

Soundscrafmen power amplifier 1000 watts $700 or b/o. 15 speakers 300 watts $250 or b/o. 3 pole system $200 or b/o. 546-3498. Beeper 252-8600. Must sell!

FOUND

Bracelet: found 10/2 2:30 pm near the Showmut ATM on Campus Center. Contact Georgian to identify/claim 545-3500

Found Volkswagon key near LGRT on Sept 28. Pick up at Collegian 545-3500

HAPPY BIRTHDAY

Happy Birthday Gene Wish you a very special day. Love, Lynn

Happy Birthday Jeremy Werdwell!!! With love from the best birthday present you've ever had!!!!

Happy Birthday Lori All our love! MK, Tom, Amy, Beth

Happy Birthday Rob We love ya! Love, Kaine, Kerry, Warren, Eric, Karen, and Donna

Happy Birthday Stacy love Jen, Maura, Christine, Lauren, Tracy, Shawn, & Brian

Happy twenty something birthday, Kayll. Don't think of it as getting older, think of it as getting better! Party it up! We love you!! From your housemates

Happy 21st Bethany! We saved the best for last! You can run, but you can't hide! We'll turn uptown upside down! Love your housemates & Zeta Psi (UPD!)

Hola Carina Mia! Happy birthday Nena hot queens mucho! Kainas a la domir.

INSTRUCTION

Guitar Lessons and classes by Kevin Collins. Beginning folk classes! Free introlesson. Hamp Grad 256-1233

Performing Arts Division offers group and private instruction in music, theater and dance. Registration for group instruction runs Sept. 6-7, 1995; private instruction is ongoing. We are located in 73 Bartlett Hall, UMass. (413)545-0519 for info.

LOST

One Soccer Cleat Last Thur near Boyden. 585-8309

Lost Manoelo Sunglasses in Georgian Atrium case near Blue Wall or Hatch on 9/28. Call Alex at 549-6686 if found.

MISCELLANEOUS

Free furniture Single size mattress, full-size futon with a wooden frame. Coffee table. Call 549-5344 (After 3:30 pm)

Have the secret heart of Jesus be adored, glorified, loved and preserved throughout the world now and forever. Sacred heart of Jesus pray for us. St. Jude, helper of the hopeless, pray for us. Thank you St. Jude. M.M.

MODEM USERS

Call the Playground BBS! 256-6085. Over 4000 files online! Twenty online games including registered L.O.R.D., B.R.E. and Usurpation. Food Co-op and recipe bases, lots more! Stuff for everyone!

A Friend and I is looking to Yom Kippur services on Tues., Oct. 3 at 8:30pm and Wed., Oct. 4 at 9:45am. We would love to walk there in a group, and welcome anyone to meet us at the tables outside the Munchy Store on the upper level of Hampden. DC at those times to walk together. Look for the dressed up people.

Hey Jax & Ricky. Congratulations on a few years together and on spreading that fawth tooth tooth! Love you guys! I.K.

ADAM D.
It's Big Dee! I know you're wonderful. Love always, Stephanie

WEIGHT LOSS

Bottled Wellpower! Lose up to 30 lbs 30 day money back guarantee. Natural, doctor recommended. 323-4984

MOTORCYCLES

MOTORCYCLES
'82 Honda Magna V-45 750 cc. V-4. Very fast and reliable. No reasonable offer refused. $1,800 bo. Page anytime 787-0065

86 Ninja 3000 m new parts asking $2,300 467-2521 Travis

MUSICIANS

Needed: Funk drummer, singer, keys. The Colonel Mustard Trio? Call Ryan Andy 549-1018

Psychedelic garage band for hire. Dead Dylan Cream Stones. Perfect for parties. 256-1949

PERSONALS

Congratulations Jodi, Cathy, Jess M., Jess P. and Kathy! Welcome to Tri-Sigma Sigma Love, the sisters

DEB
Looking forward to the upcoming year and all the surprises and excitement it will bring. This is a pretty scary trip we have begun, but I am so glad it has. Be secure, and enjoy the stress. Love Always, E.Mon

ENLIGHTENMENT #2
I need religion like a fish needs a bicycle. What I want is to know other people who want to grow and will accept me as I am. Alliance Christian Fellowship, committed to people, friendship, learning and spirit filled fellowship. Info: Mark or Elizabeth 253-7200.

FRAT BOY
Carlo: Ya know you're a cute kid! Thanks for making me smile. Love Jen 8/27/95

Kelly, Happy 5th anniversary. You have been the greatest girlfriend and best friend anyone could ask for. Thanks for always being there. I love you. Brian

Peanut, You are my sunshine, my only sunshine! I Love You xoxo. Love, Your Princess

UMass Womea's Rugby Congrats on 2nd place. Good Luck in Boston. Jiz & Tyna

ROOMMATE WANTED

Female needed for own fully furnished room in 3 bedroom apt. Fall semester only. On bus route 253-1734

SERVICES

Are you a foreign student? Need help with your english? I am professionally certified to teach ESL and can tutor you! Evenings and weekends. $10 an hour. Call Scott 665-7448.

BOXING LESSONS
For men and women with retired pro. Dual[illegible] 549-5752

Exotic nail airbrushing 546-1794

Experienced babysitter available with references. Please call Alyssa 549-8885 for info.

Grants and scholarships available. Billions of $$$ in grants. Qualify immediately. 1-800-243-7425 (1-800 AID-2-HELP)

Pregnant? Need help? Call birthright of Amherst area for free testing and carrying assistance. 549-1906

TRAVEL

Spring Break Travel free with Sun Splash Tours. Highest commissions, lowest prices. Campus reps wanted! Sell Jamaica, Bahamas, Florida. 1-800-426-7710

Quebec weekend Dec 8-10 Ski & party only $120 if paid by 10/2!!! 545-3433

WANTED

WITNESSES
Trying to locate 4 students who helped an elderly woman who fell at Smith College, College Hall on January 30, 1995. Please call Attorney Susan Sas 584-8134.

Needed: Calculus tutor needed 548-7376

YOUR DAILY HOROSCOPE
by Jeane Dixon

ARIES(March 21- April 19) Put your heart into your work. A creative project will flourish thanks to your efforts. Now is the time to be seen and heard, make a statement.

TAURUS(April 20-May 20) A proposal needs to be thoroughly investigated before you commit yourself. Do not rely on other's help in getting over rough spots. Good news about an impending birth brings joy to your family.

GEMINI(May 21-June 20) A financial settlement could ease your mind considerably. An agreement reached now proves well-timed. Say no to someone who makes you uncomfortable.

CANCER(June 21-July 21) Do whatever you can to stretch your hard-earned dollars. Bargains abound if you look carefully. Save time by avoiding crowded shopping areas.

LEO(July 23-Aug 22) Your integrity could be questioned by someone who does not know you well. Make sure your conduct is above reproach. Meet deadlines on time.

VIRGO(Aug 23-Sept 22) Contacting former business buddies could prove very beneficial. You locate a lost item or receive payment for an overdue loan. Art, music and writing are lucky for you.

LIBRA(Sept 23-Oct 22) Act on your principals and your self esteem will soar. A delightful new romantic script takes you by surprise. Talks with elders will provide valuable financial insights.

SCORPIO(Oct 23-Nov 21) Others may be less than candid. Redouble you efforts to check out promises, guarantees, and references. Try not to come unglued if romantic partners blow hot and cold.

SAGITTARIUS(Nov 22-Dec 21) Tend to essential correspondence and phone calls before lunch. Your mood may take a turn in the afternoon.

CAPRICORN(Dec 22-Jan 19) Take a realistic approach to any financial problems. Do not allow extravagance or wishful thinking to undermine domestic harmony or the family budget.

AQUARIUS(Jan 20-Feb 18) Talk over practical matters with people whose opinion you respect and value. Their ideas could balance your own in a practical way.

PISCES(Feb 19-March 20) Dealings with authority figures and professional advisors should produce solid financial gains. A sociable, perhaps romantic, evening is indicated. Take charge of planning a special celebration.

Collegian Graphics

We're up all night putting together New England's largest daily college newspaper!

When our job is done – your day is just beginning.

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING INSERTION ORDER

Client: Date: Taken By:

Date(s) to run: Headline:

Total Days: X Words: = X rate = Payment

Special heading ($2.50 extra): Authorized signature:

ADVERTISING COPY

1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9 10

Insert one character, space, or punctuation mark per box - use capital letters where they apply - Cost figured on each line of form used - see rate card

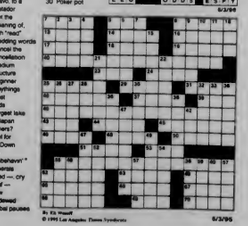
DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE
edited by Trude Michael Jaffe

ACROSS
1 London gallery
5 Earth-a-one
8 Wheel's wedge
13 "Metamorphoses" poet
14 Synthesizer name
16 Jacob Abbott's boy hero
17 Ridicule
18 "__ give — and nobody will come" Sandburg
19 Desert commander
20 Where bluebirds fly
23 Chagall's study
24 North Sea feeder
25 Honshu port
29 Street's runners
31 Cheese city
39 Playtime
37 "The game— WS
39 Bravo, to a matador
40 Get the meaning of, with "read"
43 Wedding words
44 Cancel the cancellation
45 Stadium structure
46 Beginner
48 Playthings
50 Must
51 Feds
53 Largest lake in Japan
55 Miners?
62 Trial for 36 Down
63 "— Misbehavin' "
64 Minerals
65 Shed — ory
66 Graf —
67 Flow
68 Mildewed
69 Verbal pauses
70 Pass catchers

DOWN
1 Matador's foe
2 "Ile —"
3 Wasters' ado and flow
4 River in Hesse
5 Normandy Beach
6 Oars
7 Swine
8 Rubberneck
9 Man, in Madrid
10 Nondairy spread
11 Ball of yarn
12 Divided country: Abbr.
15 Like a cloudy day
21 Back combs
22 Published
25 Discovery's path
26 Run-down
27 Role player
28 Gardens in Greater London
30 Poker pot
32 "— disturb"
33 Attu resident
34 Sad, in Siena
36 Hunting hound
38 Like an outlet
41 Sign substance
42 "But — on forever" Tennyson
47 Group of eight
49 Dinosaurs

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE:

E	C	H	O		A	C	R	E		H	I	S	T
L	O	O	N		L	O	U	S	E		S	O	N	O
K	A	I	R	E	E	M	O	T	T	H	E	C	R	O
O	S	S		N	A	I	F		B	O	N	N	I	E
	F	E	L	A	N	I	S		T	R	E	K	I	S
		R	A	C	E	C	A	R		M	O	N	O
A	V	A	N	T	I		N	I	A		A	I	D
A	E	C	A	S		S	T	A		T	R	A	I	P	S	E
E	E	K		S	O	P	H		T	O	U	C	O	S
		M	O	N	E	T	T	A		L	A	S
I	P	S	O	M		W	E	B		B	A	I	T	S
N	U	T	R	I	A		E	N	N	A		O	A	R
O	R	I	S	T	O	R	D	E		W	E	L	L	E
E	S	N	E		T	R	E	E	S		N	O	S	E
L	E	D			O	D	D	I	S		E	S	P	Y



Calvin & Hobbes By Bill Watterson

BOY, I HATE SCHOOL ASSIGNMENTS! MISS WORMWOOD IS OUT TO DESTROY MY LIFE!
WHAT DO YOU HAVE TO DO?
MAKE A LEAF COLLECTION! WHAT A DUMB WASTE OF TIME!
HOW MANY LEAVES DO YOU NEED?
50! I GOTTA COLLECT 50 LEAVES!
AND JUST WHEN I THOUGHT OF A LOOPHOLE, THE TEACHER SAID EVERY LEAF HAS TO BE A DIFFERENT KIND.
SHE'S GOT YOUR NUMBER

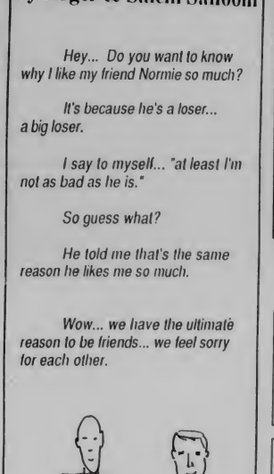
One Less Comic By Glee

I WAS WANDERING AROUND HOMELESS,
MY FRIEND CHRIS SAID I COULDN'T BUY MY WAY OUT OF A DUMPSTER
THAT PAIN ME LAUGH tho. I heard this kid talkin about Petty little shit. That made me laugh too
OSCAR

Lost Horizons By Douglas Cellineri

REJECTION EMBARRASSMENT SOCIAL BANANA PEEL
THE WALK OF SHAME. THE LONGEST WALK KNOWN TO MAN. MAYBE NOBODY NOTICED
SO FAR, SO GOOD. NO FINGER POINTING. NO RIDICULE. NO
LAUGHTER.
HA! HA! HO! HA! HEE! HO!

Leold By Roger & Salem Salloom



Leold
by Roger & Salem Salloom
Hey... Do you want to know why I like my friend Normie so much?
It's because he's a loser... a big loser.
I say to myself... "at least I'm not as bad as he is."
So guess what?
He told me that's the same reason he likes me so much.
Wow... we have the ultimate reason to be friends... we feel sorry for each other.

Close to Home By John McPherson

"Get rid of them?! On the contrary, Mr. Westford. Because the geese have begun to nest here, your pool has been declared a protected wetland, requiring that no human activity take place within 150 feet."

The Amazing Spiderman By Stan Lee

MAYBE MJ HAS GOTTEN OVER MY HUGGING SANDRA STEWART BY NOW!
GOOD MORNING, CASANOVA! DID YOU SEE THE PAPER?
the Gossip Corner
TONGUES ARE WAGGING ABOUT THE ACTRESS AND THE SUPERHERO!

Loser Crew Comics

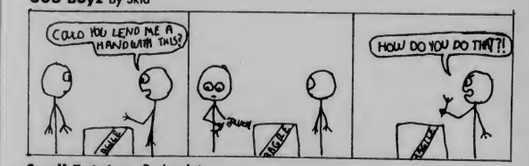
Bruno By C. Baldwin

WELL, SEE YOU AGAIN, BUT YOU CAN'T SEE HERE. THIS IS ONLY A DREAM.
BUT I FEEL THIS IS MORE THAN JUST A VACATION. GET AHOLD FOR A BIT.
LISTEN, BRUNO, MAYBE YOU SHOULD TAKE A VACATION. GET AHOLD FOR A BIT.
OKAY, BUT BY GOD I DON'T FEEL CRAZY WHEN I WAKE UP!

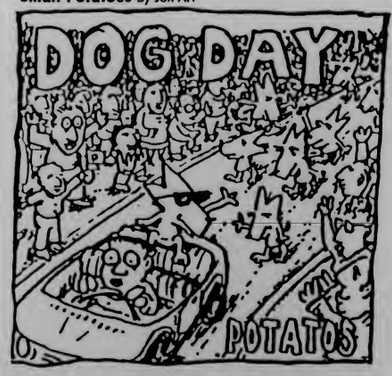
Dilbert By Scott Adams

DYSFUNCTIONAL TEAM
I'D LIKE EVERYBODY TO TURN TO THE RIGHT AND SAY WHAT YOU ADMIRE ABOUT THAT PERSON
I ADMIRE YOUR LEATHERY SKIN, ALICE
I ADMIRE YOUR ABILITY TO FIGURE OUT WHICH SIDE IS YOUR RIGHT IN ONLY TWO TRIES
I ADMIRE YOUR ABILITY TO GET PAID FOR THIS
DESPITE THE FACT YOUR FACE SCARES CHILDREN, I ADMIRE YOUR CO-WORKERS

308 Boyz By Skid



Small Potatoes By Jon Art



Today's Staff

Night Editor ..... Matt Vautour
Copy Editor ..... Allison Connolly
Photo Technician ..... Daymion Smith
Production Supervisor ..... Jim Canley
Production ..... Dave Voldan
Marni Helfner

Dining Commons Menu

LUNCH	DINNER
Three Cheese Pizza	Barbecued Chicken
Hamburger	Corned Beef & Cabbage
BASICS LUNCH	BASICS DINNER
Three Cheese Pizza	Tofu & Snow Peas
Hamburger	Barbecued Chicken

Quote of the Day

If the glove don't fit, you gotta acquit.

–Johnnie Cochran

Collegian Graphics

we're up all night to make sure that your friendly neighborhood Collegian is waiting for you bright and early. So sit back, relax, eat your Cheerios and read New England's largest college daily.

When our job is done, your day is just beginning.

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY COLLEGIAN

Top 10 By Brian Marchionni

Top 10 Good Things About Whitmore

10. It almost sounds like it could be a dirty word.
9. It's the next best thing to spending a day at the DMV.
8. Sometimes, late at night, you can catch Chancellor Scott riding his bike through the hallways.
7. You get an invoice with every happy-meal.
6. Contrary to popular opinion, it has nothing to do with the food at the DC.
5. You only need six forms of ID, a letter signed in triplicate by your biological parents, a passport, and a two page essay that is subject to public inquiry two weeks prior to you visit in order to get a transcript.
4. Mickey and Minnie Mouse usually entertain while you wait in line.
3. It isn't a crack den.
2. If you throw a violent tantrum you can usually get to the front of the line.
1. It's Whitmore–iffic!

Sports

Soccer America Poll

1 No Carolina	6 SMU	11 N C State	16 Villinova
2 Portland	7 Virginia	12 Duke	17 Texas A&M
3 Hartford	8 Santa Clara	13 Clemson	18 UC Irvine
4 Notre Dame	9 Stanford	14 William & Mary	19 Oregon St
5 UConn	10 Maryland	15 Massachusetts	20 Rutgers

UMass can't keep up, falls to Rhode Island

By Chris Stamm
Collegian Staff

One of the key components of winning an athletic contest is tempo. Last night the Massachusetts women's volleyball team struggled in this department, losing a four game battle to the University of Rhode Island.

This was a crucial match for the Minutewomen as they entered the Cage 4-1 in Atlantic 10 play, 11-6 overall. The Rams were sitting on top of the A-10 with a 5-0 conference record, 12-3 overall. Trailing close behind were George Washington and Virginia Tech, each at 5-1 in conference play. A UMass win would knot the first place spot between four teams. Unfortunately for them, they couldn't do it.

The Minutewomen dropped game one of the match 15-12. Massachusetts and the Rams were deadlocked in a point for point battle. While UMass played aggressively to win the side-out, they just couldn't capitalize when they had possession.

Sophomore middle blocker Michelle Paciorek was deadly up front, taking advantage of Rhode Island's inability to adjust to her left handed spiking. Senior middle blocker Rachel Sky tripped up the Ram's defense by slowing the ball down and simply hitting it where they were not.

However, the URI defense was not completely shut down. The one-two blocking combination of Carrie Gangl and Kris Normandin seemed to step up play with each Massachusetts counter attack.

"We beat ourselves mentally, making unforced errors, not making good shots at the right moment and hitting into the block. I think we were a better team," Sky said.

In game two, the Minutewomen were clearly out for revenge, winning 15-12. Again, Paciorek was an offensive force for coach Bonnie Kenny's squad, confusing the Rams as she had in the first set, tallying 10 kills for the match. As in game one, Sky did her share on offense as well as earning 11 kills for the game.

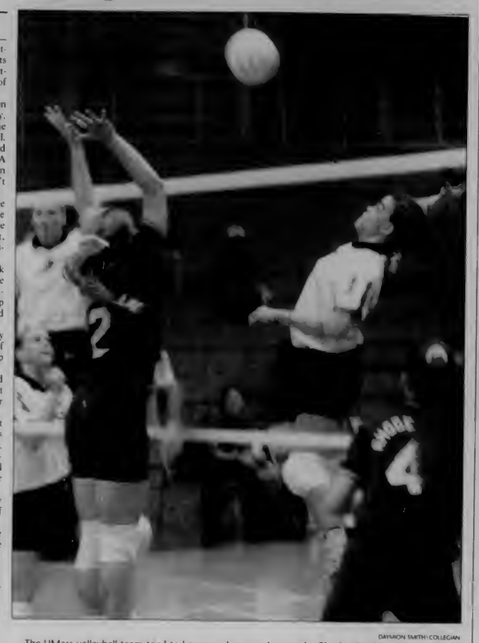
During the second set, Kenny was given a yellow card for arguing with the officials after a series of questionable calls.

The clutch player in this set was junior outside hitter Dionne Nash who stepped up play in the backcourt, keeping Massachusetts alive when they needed it the most.

In addition to stepping up the defense, Nash did her share up front as well tallying 13 kills for the night, the second highest for the night. When sophomore outside hitter Lesley Nolan smashed the final point home on an ace, it seemed as though UMass had the momentum on their side.

Kenny's troops couldn't keep the up tempo for game three as they dropped it 15-10. Again, it was Sky and Paciorek leading the way for the Minutewomen, but they couldn't seem to keep their tempo up and control the ball.

"Our tempo fluctuated, sometimes we played flat, sometimes we were up," Sky remarked. "We dug ourselves into a hole and tried to get out, but it was too late."



DAYMON SMITH/COLLEGIAN

The UMass volleyball team tried to hammer down a win over the Rhode Island Rams but fell a bit short, lossing in four sets.

Massachusetts had to produce in game four, yet this was where URI put the nail in the coffin. Junior outside hitter Susan Maga stepped to the floor for the first time and brought a brief offensive charge with her. However it was not enough.

Part way into the set, Kenny became extremely upset with the net official after an evening which had an abundance of questionable calls.

The deciding factor was tempo.

"They sped it up, we slowed it down. The first two games our middle was unstoppable," Kenny said. "You have to keep the middle in the match. We got passive and let them be aggressive, come into our gym and beat us."

Red Sox, Tribe tied late Yankees down Mariners

After nine innings of play in Cleveland the Red Sox and Indians were tied 3-3. The Red Sox were carried by a two- run homer by John Valentin and a solo-shot by Luis Alicea.

The tie combined with two rain delays pushed the game past press time.

• • •

NEW YORK — Don Mattingly and the New York Yankees would not be denied, despite the greatness of Ken Griffey Jr.

The wild-card Yankees overcame Griffey's two home runs and beat the Seattle Mariners 9-6 Tuesday night in their AL playoff opener. A standing, stomping crowd of 57,178, the largest at Yankee Stadium since it was remodeled for the 1976 season, saw David Cone pitch New York to a 1-0 lead in the best-of-5 series.

Mattingly, playing in the postseason for the first time in his 14-year career, delivered an RBI single and a double. Playoff veterans Wade Boggs and Ruben Sierra both homered and Bernie Williams doubled home the go-ahead run during a four-run seventh inning that made it 8-4.

Griffey went 3-for-5, drove in three runs and scored three times for the Mariners, who arrived at their New York hotel shortly before 4 a.m. EDT Tuesday. They were delayed because of Monday's playoff win over California at the Kingdome, a victory that meant ace Randy Johnson will not be able to face the Yankees until Game 3 at the earliest.

Seattle scored twice in the ninth off John Wetteland before he retired Jay Buhner and Mike Blowers with two runners on base to end the game.

Griffey highlighted Seattle's first postseason game with a solo homer off the upper-deck facade in the fourth inning and a long, two-run homer in seventh that tied it 4-4. His performance was reminiscent of George Brett's three home runs at Yankee Stadium for Kansas City in a 6-5 loss to New York in Game 3 of the 1978 AL playoffs.

Still, it was not enough to stop the Yankees in their 35th year of postseason play, most in the majors, and first since 1981. New York broke the 4-4 tie in the seventh against loser Jeff Nelson and two other relievers, keyed by Williams' RBI double and Sierra's two-run homer. Williams singled home another run in the eighth with his third hit.

Cone, 9-2 since the Yankees got him from Toronto, pitched eight innings and allowed four runs and six hits.

Rookie Andy Pettitte will pitch for the Yankees against Andy Benes in Game 2 Wednesday night in New York.

Randy Velarde was hit by a pitch from Nelson to start the seventh and Boggs, out of action since leaving last Wednesday's game with a sore left hamstring, singled off Bobby Ayala for his third hit.

Williams followed with a drive that turned around Griffey in center field and hopped off the wall for a double that made it 5-4. After Paul O'Neill had a sacrifice fly, Sierra homered to deep right-center.

Mattingly hit an RBI single with two outs in the sixth that put New York ahead 7-2. After Chris Bosio allowed another hit, Nelson relieved and Mike Stanley singled home another run.

Griffey, who had three hits in five at-bats, tied it in the next half-inning.

Boggs showed no ill effects from his injured hamstring when he gave New York a 2-0 lead with his first home run since Aug. 9. Boggs was a .322 hitter in 15 AL playoff games for Boston. Dan Wilson drew a bases-loaded walk on a full-count pitch from Cone with two outs in the sixth, tying it at 2.

Notes: Joe DiMaggio threw out the ceremonial first ball. ... Mariners reliever Bill Risley was hit in the left ear by a ball while shagging flies before the game. He was down for about five minutes, was helped off the field and then taken on a stretcher in the clubhouse. He was OK, and wound up pitching. ... Seattle left fielder Vince Coleman hurt his hand trying to catch a foul fly in the fourth, delaying the game for a

Turn to PLAYOFFS, page 9

Powell, Magid take center stage in Myers absence

JAMES STAKELY/COLLEGIAN

Junior Amy Powell was solid in the middle of the field during the absence of regular starter Rebecca Myers.

By Justin C. Smith
Collegian Staff

On the road to any sort of successful season, there are usually some bumps along the way that must be avoided.

When Rebecca Myers suffered a strained hamstring three weeks ago in practice, the Massachusetts women's soccer team would be without the standout center halfback for two to three weeks. Her loss could have been a stumbling block for the Minutewomen's post-season run.

"It could have been a disaster without Rebecca," junior Amy Powell said. "But we all adjusted well and played our game."

Powell, normally a starter at a flank halfback spot with fellow junior Julie Magid on the other side, was inserted into the middle of the field with the absence of Myers. Powell's style is a sharp contrast to that of the regular starter in the middle of the UMass attack.

Myers was the leading point getter last season for the Minutewomen and plays an attacking, offensive style, using her height (5-foot-9) to her advantage. Powell and Magid, who are used to playing on Myers side, are capable scoring threats as they stand second and fourth on the team in scoring.

The difference in styles has affected the team according to Massachusetts coach Jim Rudy.

"Amy plays it a bit more conservative," Rudy said. "She doesn't gamble as much as Rebecca does in the attack.

"Rebecca is a presence in the middle of the field with her height, but what we lost in the air and offensive attack, in return we got a high level of success controlling the ball at midfield."

Powell, though improving every game, was not adept at playing balls in the air as Myers was, and that is where Magid's presence in the middle was felt most.

"Julie is quite effective in the air," Rudy added. "The percentage of balls winning balls stayed the same."

Moving Powell into the middle with Magid did not confuse the players in terms of playing styles. This is their third year together on the field and that helped in knowing what each other was thinking.

"I like to attack on offense so normally Julie stays back and covers the middle," Myers said.

"Now if Julie makes a run, I will stay back in support," Powell added. "And if I make a run Julie covers. We communicate well."

With the communication and different look that the Minutewomen showed without Myers, they learned a lot about themselves as well as bringing more players into the game.

"The way the two of them in the middle distributed the ball around," Rudy commented. "It brought our outside defenders, Nikki Ahrenholz and Erica Iverson, into the play more.

"Liz Rutherford has benefited from the extra playing time and done a nice job for us. We had to learn how to play without her."

Overall, in her absence the team went 3-1 with its only loss coming to 14th ranked William & Mary, UMass' first game without Myers.

Her return over the weekend came from off of the bench, but it seems she will make her first start since sitting out today. Myers had praise for her teammates who had stepped it up in her absence, but was anxious to get off the sidelines and onto the field.

"They covered it well," Myers said. "They really stepped it up. I think they did an awesome job. I think they pretty much completely dominated the middle of the field while I was out.

"But I'm ready to get back in there."

The 15th ranked Minutewomen return to action today as Yale invades Richard F. Garber field at 3:30 p.m.

COLLEGIAN STAFF PHOTO

Junior Julie Magid play in the air was a key contribution to the Minutewomen's cause without Myers in the lineup.

Tribe, Braves in the final powwow

BRIAN PERILLO on Baseball

The regular season has ended with a bang. Everyone was watching the National League West race, but it was a one game playoff between the Angels and Mariners that put an exclamation point on this season.

The playoff atmosphere was evident for the first time ever in a sold out Kingdome, and when they sell out in Seattle, nobody can complain about fans not coming back to the game.

With baseball's first postseason in two years beginning, it is time for me to take a look at the matchups, and tell y'all exactly what is going to happen.

Red Sox vs. Indians: The Sox have lived through a dream season, and it will be put to the test immediately when they face off against the mighty Cleveland Indians. Everybody is talking about the potent lineup of the Tribe, and for good reason. Albert Belle smacked fifty homers in a strike shortened season, an amazing feat. Cripes, even the Indian's No. 8 hitter, Paul Sorrento, smacked 25 homers this season. Scary.

In all the hoopla about the Indians hitting, however, nobody talks about the pitching. The Indians starters have been solid, if not flashy, and the bullpen, led by an unhittable Jose Mesa, is one of the best in baseball.

As for the Sox, their lineup is nothing to laugh at. John Valentin, Mo Vaughn and Jose Canseco could be the best 2- 3-4 combo in the league. Roger Clemens has been waiting for a long time for another chance at the playoffs, but the Sox pitching has been erratic at best.

Tim Wakefield, Erik Hanson (3-0 vs. Cleveland) and Clemens each have been dominant at some point this year, and for the Sox to have a chance, they will all have to return to that form.

If not, then the Tribe will feast on Boston pitching, and the curse of the Bambino will linger on....

Prediction: Cleveland three games to two.

Yankees vs Mariners: The M's are riding high after defeating the Angels and are now heading to the post season for the first time in their 19 year history. However, Seattle had to hurl ace fireballer Randy Johnson on the last day of the season just to assure that they made the playoffs. That could hurt them in the long run. The bats don't stop.

The tribe's pitching staff is consistent. Dennis Martinez and Orel Hershiser have mountains of experience and know what it takes to win. They have back-boned the Indian staff all season. They also have a very hot closer in Jose Mesa. Never mind Mesa's fastball, his slider moves around 89 m.p.h.

The Red Sox have had a great season. They deserve tons of credit for bringing in great players, and doing the things they have done for their fans. They got shafted, period. It is totally unfair that the Sox play the Indians in the first round. They should be playing the Mariners but they are not.

Roger Clemens is not what he used to be, he still needs to drop 15 pounds. Tim Wakefield's luck has seemingly run dry, and if Erik Hanson cannot produce homeruns.

Turn to PERILLO, page 9

Indians and Dodgers to play for it all

MIKE BROWN Baseball

For the first time in two years, post-season baseball is back. I will be planted in front of my television for the duration and loving every minute of it.

What I want is a Sox-Rocks World-Series between my cursed Boston team and the Colorado, (what a story for a two year old expansion team), Rockies.

I would like to be as accurate as possible with my picks, so I will not glorify the Red Sox and ignorantly pick them to win the World Series.

If I honestly thought they had a chance to win it, I would predict it. So here it is, and don't go throwing big bucks on my picks, because my luck with NFL football picks has not been so good lately.

Indians vs. Red Sox:

Let's face it. The Cleveland Indians have fielded the best team in the nineties. They are solid at every position and have not been afraid to hit homeruns at will. Albert Belle has 50 dingers, Jim Thome has 25, Manny Ramirez has 31 and even Paul (who?) Sorrento has 25

Turn to BROWN, page 9

The Massachusetts

DAILY COLLEGIAN

Volume CV Issue 21 • New England's Largest College Daily • Founded in 1890 • Daily Since 1967 • Thursday, October 5, 1995

Iverson scores first career goal

Sophomore Erica Iverson scored the first goal of her career as the women's soccer team beat Yale 5-0 (See Sports, page 16).

Women making waves

An increase of women in the corporate world: a bill to help new mothers and other news (See Women Making Waves, page 3).

"How much do I love thee ..."

The Valley is an excellent source for many cultural events, but one aspect of the art world remains a hidden treasure (See, Arts & Living, page 5).

Extended Forecast

Today expect light winds and a hight chance of thunderstorms in the evening. Friday, showers will taper off into the afternoon with mostly cloudy skies on Saturday.

Today	Friday	Saturday
HIGH: 60 LOW: 50	HIGH: 55 LOW: 45	HIGH: 60 LOW: 55

O.J. verdict angers battered women

By Katherine Webster
Associated Press

BOSTON — A juror said Wednesday the O.J. Simpson case wasn't about domestic violence; it was about murder.

Juror Brenda Moran called the prosecution's presentation of evidence that Simpson battered his wife "a waste of time."

But battered women said Simpson's acquittal just showed that most people don't understand or care about victims of domestic violence.

"I'm speechless almost, that this was brought out into the public and I thought we would have a voice, and the public just doesn't care," said one battered woman in a telephone interview from a shelter in Cambridge.

The acquittal left her and other victims of domestic violence more afraid than ever that their abusive husbands or boyfriends could get away with murder.

"I already testified against my abuser at one trial and he was found not guilty," said a woman at a shelter in Fall River, who also spoke on condition of anonymity. "Maybe I should go back to him and maybe I shouldn't testify against him."

She said she did not trust the courts or the police to protect her.

"He said if I ever went back to court he would kill me, and if he didn't, one of his friends would kill me," she said. "I'm fearful when I'm with him ... but I'm more fearful when I'm not with him."

Shannon Booker, who served six years in prison for killing her abusive husband, said she was numb after hearing the O.J. Simpson verdict.

"I don't know if he's guilty or not guilty of the murder, but he's guilty of beating on that woman," Booker said Tuesday, just after watching Simpson's acquittal on television.

"We have women across the nation that are sitting in prison for defending their lives against their batterers, and we have a victory today? No, I don't think so," she said.

Battered women and their advocates said that whether or not Simpson was guilty of murdering his ex-wife, he was certainly guilty of abusing his wife, who was failed by the legal system and society at large.

"O.J. Simpson was a batterer who was not held fully accountable for his use of violence and threats — by a judge who allowed counseling by phone, by police who applied a double standard, and by employers like Hertz and NBC who ignored an arrest for a violent crime," said Judy Rex, head of the Vermont Network Against Domestic Violence and Sexual Assault.

Simpson pleaded no contest to spousal abuse charges in a 1989 incident and was allowed to receive counseling over the phone — a decision District Attorney Gil Garcetti called "a horrible joke" after Simpson's arrest.

In the Westwood neighborhood of Los Angeles, where Ms. Simpson and her friend Ronald Goldman were slain, an estimated 1,500 people held a vigil Tuesday night to protest the verdict in an event organized by the National Organization of Women.

They carried flashlights, candles and banners and chanted "Guilty," "We remember Ron and Nicole," and "Stop the party O.J."

"I think this is a big message telling us women and children are not protected," said Ms. Simpson's sister, Denise Brown. "You can rape, you can stalk, you can kill and it's quite all right."

In Boston, Booker said she was angry at the example Simpson set for other black men.

"It's making it OK for our young brothers to go out there and beat on women," she said.

Some advocates said battered women should not be discouraged from confronting their abusers in court or seeking shelter, because the jury's verdict was a condemnation of racism and sloppy work in the Los Angeles Police Department — not a judgment on domestic violence.

"It would be devastating for battered women ... to conclude from this acquittal that there is no help for them and that there are no sanctions for their batterers," said Mary Trinity, executive director of the Rhode Island Coalition Against Domestic Violence.

Skin Deep tries to blur racial lines

By Gregory Casimir
Collegian Staff

The Monday premiere of the documentary, Skin Deep in Mahar Auditorium is one step in Chancellor David K. Scott's promise to plan a series of events geared towards lessening campus discrimination.

At the beginning of the academic school year, Scott issued a memo in which he emphasized a continued commitment towards creating a school environment where the students would be respected, no matter what their individual race, color or creed may be.

Skin Deep was directed and produced by Frances Reid, Academy Award nominee and winner of the Black Filmmaker's Hall of Fame Award. During Reid's 20-year career as a filmmaker, she has become known for her provocative films about social situations and injustices.

In 1992, she received the Black Filmmaker's Award for her video, The Faces of AIDS, a documentary about the impact of AIDS in Africa. Later in 1994, she received an Academy Award nomination for her work, Straight From the Heart, a documentary about parents trying to understand their children's homosexuality.

UMass makes the film

The premiere of the movie was met with great anticipation at the University of Massachusetts because the school was the first chosen by Reid for the research that spanned four colleges.

During the opening presentation, Bailey Jackson, Dean of the School of Education spoke of, "the need to have conversations about racial issues."

"We have to take a moment and try to push against our racial prejudices," he said.

When Reid was introduced, she was greeted with warm applause. Her first remarks centered around explaining her reasons for making such an important film.

"Making this film was a way to communicate about race," said Reid. "Communication is the only way to solve the problem. Today there is a paradox between the need for integration versus self-definition."

Students offer feedback

The two University students who participated in making the film, Brian Allen and Marc Mazzone, were also present at the premiere. After the film was shown, both spoke about what their participation the film meant to them.

Allen, who graduated last year, said there was a sense of urgency and responsibility tied to the project.

"I tried not to think about it," Allen said. "I had to do it because there is a difference between living and surviving. Right now blacks are just surviving. If blacks fall, all other people will be affected."

Senior communications major Mazzone said he was overwhelmed by the entire experience.

"It was shell shock," he said. "I was used to one way of life and when I took part of this project, it was like getting slapped in the face with reality. There was no television or radio. It was nothing but people and dialogue ... it was a rollercoaster. Emotions built up. People wanted to fight, cry and hold hands."

Reid said she felt the need to make Skin Deep because of her involvement in the Civil Rights movement in the 1960s. She described herself as an "unabashed integrationist."

"I feel it's been so long the assumption that only people of color should open up conversation about race," Reid said. "White people have a responsibility as well to open up discussions."

After the showing of the movie, discussion groups were held in Herter Hall and in the School of Management to get some student reactions to the film.

Rick Townes, vice chancellor for Student Activities, commented on what impressed him the most about the film.

"The release of emotions was compelling," he said. "It took energy to contain my own angry emotions. I was touched by them."

EMILY REEY/COLLEGIAN

Students Marc Mazzone (left) and Brian Allen (right) helped Academy Award nominee director Francis Reid (center) in her documentary "Skin Deep."

Stereotypes confronted in film

Michelle Hillman
Collegian Staff

Academy award nominated filmmaker Frances Reid presented her film Skin Deep Monday which addressed the attitudes of college students on subjects such as race and ethnicity.

Students were selected from the University of Massachusetts, Texas A&M, Chico State and University of California Berkeley to participate in a three day workshop to discuss self-segregation on campus, discrimination and the students responsibility for making a difference.

The film began introducing each student individually, asking questions about their backgrounds, families and college

Turn to MOVIE, page 3

Navratilova and Pallone to discuss gays in sports

By Allison Connolly
Collegian Staff

Internationally renowned tennis star Martina Navratilova and former major league umpire Dave Pallone will visit the University of Massachusetts to conduct a dialogue called "Fair Play: A Candid Conversation." The speakers will discuss the social justice issues confronting homosexual athletes by drawing from their own careers.

Massachusetts professor Pat Griffin will serve as moderator of the event. An associate professor of education, Griffin teaches graduate classes on social justice issues which concern "-isms", like racism, sexism, heterosexism.

The format of the forum will be an informal conversation between Navratilova and Pallone talking about their own experiences as a lesbian tennis player and a gay professional baseball umpire.

"The discussion will range from sexism to gender roles and gender equity as well as touching on other issues," Griffin said. "My hope is that they'll not just be talking [within] the sports contexts but really helping us all understand how those issues touch the larger culture as well."

This is the first one of its kind for Navratilova and Pallone. They are not scheduled to speak at any other schools as of yet, providing a "ground breaking" event for Massachusetts, Griffin said.

Last Spring, the Chancellor's office put on a similar program featuring Nobel Peace Prize winner Elie Weisel and award-winning poet Maya Angelou.

"The Chancellor's office is very interested in sponsoring dialogues on campus," Griffin said. "We're interested in continuing that sort of format for different social issues."

Speaking from experience

Dave Pallone's agent is the same one who set up the dialogue last spring. Spurred on by the success of the first, Pallone asked Navratilova if she would be interested in conducting a similar dialogue with him, and she agreed.

One of the things Navratilova is interested in doing, according to Griffin, is speaking to young people in college and high school audiences about her life and social justice issues. In particular, she wants to be a positive role model as an athlete and a lesbian.

"I think it's also a time in Martina's career where she's making a transition from being an active competitor to figuring out what's next in her life," Griffin said.

Griffin is in the midst of writing a book on lesbians in sports. She conducts workshops around the country for different athletic departments on the topic of homophobia in sports. She is also involved in the Massachusetts Safe Schools Program for high school students.

The forum has been in the works for some time now. A committee has been meeting since the summer to organize the event. Griffin said she was more than pleased when Deputy Chancellor Marcellette Williams asked her to moderate the discussion.

"I think it's going to be an exciting event," Griffin said. "Martina is a legend. She's one of the few people that when you say her first name, everybody knows immediately who you are.

Turn to PALLONE, page 3

Not all UM buildings handicap accessible

By Amy H. Parodysz
Collegian Staff

Continuing Education student Alicia McDunna wants to go to the Stonewall Center, but a curb and a few stairs are in her way.

McDunna is one of 15 students who have to get around the University of Massachusetts campus, which is considered to be handicapped accessible, in a wheelchair.

Although the University adheres to the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA), disabled students have to wait for assistance when using freight elevators in buildings — such as the Fine Arts Center — which are considered to be handicapped accessible. Also, "people in chairs," as McDunna calls them, often find locked bicycles blocking ramps to buildings that otherwise would be accessible.

REBECCA PETERSON/COLLEGIAN

Christina Zizza

Other places, such as the Stonewall Center, are just plain inaccessible.

"There's no way for the person to get up there unless they get picked up and carried, and then the chair gets carried," said Julie Kazmarek, a graduate student who befriended McDunna after they met at Rao's Coffeehouse downtown.

McDunna, who describes herself as an independent person, made a complaint to Housing Services and Physical Plant about the curb and step five weeks ago.

However, the ADA does not always apply to existing facilities. Crampton was built in the late 1960s, before the legislation was passed.

"The Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA) requires public accommodations to remove architectural and communications barriers (including barriers which are structural in nature) in existing facilities if such removal is "readily achievable," according to ADA Guidelines. Cost and safety are factors in what is considered "readily achievable." "Such decisions must be made on a case-by-case basis."

A discouraged sports fan

Christina Zizza, a junior political science major employed by Disabilities Services, transferred here from Northeastern University two-and-a-half years ago.

"The difference between that University and this University, in terms of accommodation, is like night and day," she said. "The University is operating under ADA guidelines."

For example, Zizza is pleased that it only takes a day or so to get her classes changed to accessible buildings. At Northeastern, however, it took a week or more.

Also, she lives in an accessible residence hall that houses nine students with wheelchairs.

But there are difficulties, nonetheless.

When Zizza goes to the Curry Hicks Cage to get a ticket for UMass sporting events at the Mullins Center, she is given a "student" ticket. But she can't sit in the student seating area. So she sits in the handicapped seating area, until a Mullins Center employee tells her that those seats belong to season's ticket holders. The ticket vendors said she must talk to someone at the Mullins Center.

Also, Zizza is involved with the Peer Mentor Network, a registered student organization, but she has never been to the office which is on the second floor of the Student Union.

"I have not, as of yet, been able to get a key," Zizza said. There's an office in the Campus Center that has the keys, but she said they were closed every time she went there.

"I have been on this campus two years and I've never seen the upstairs of the Student Union," Zizza said.

Obstacles and independence

"I'm finding this campus to be much more accessible than any other campus," said 49-year-old McDunna, who is a quadriplegic.

Still, she and her friend Kazmarek, who is not physically handicapped, know all the obstacles on campus.

For example, McDunna said, "The Everywoman's Center involves every woman." She can't get in the building.

When she can get into buildings, McDunna has a hard time reaching some of the higher elevator buttons and opening the heavier doors.

Turn to ACCESS, page 3

Tale of two accents fails to amuse Senator Bob Dole; Gramm's New Hampshire comment draws GOP heat

WASHINGTON (AP) — What's In an accent?

A campaign issue, if you believe Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole.

Dole's camp fired off an indignant press release chiding GOP presidential rival Phil Gramm for saying that folks in the leadoff primary state of New Hampshire "talk funny."

The Texas senator often contrasts his twang with a New England accent in stressing that he agrees with New Hampshire residents on the fundamental issues even if they talk differently.

Speaking in that vein during an appearance Monday on CNN's "Inside Politics," Gramm said the "people of New Hampshire talk funny and therefore they think I talk funny."

Dole's campaign quickly issued a statement in which Rep. Bill Zeliff (R N.H), said Gramm's comment was "an insult to New Hampshire."

"We may sound funny to Phil Gramm, but here in New Hampshire our traditions are no laughing matter," Zeliff said, and demanded "a Texas-size apology."

No way, said Gramm spokesman Gary Koops. He said Gramm's comment was an example of his "self-deprecating humor" and called the criticism a "silly tactic to cloud Dole's backpedaling on tax cuts."

Gramm has been pounding Dole for suggesting Sunday that the Senate might not be able to reach its goal of $245 billion in tax cuts. On Monday, Dole reaffirmed that $245 billion over seven years was his goal.

For Your Information

FYIs are public service announcements which are printed daily. To submit an FYI, please send a press release containing all pertinent information, including the name and phone number of the contact person to the Collegian, c/o the News Editor.

Thursday, Oct. 5

Community — Sukkah building party, Hillel House, 2 p.m.

Community — Speaker's Bureau Training, led by Jennifer Fasulo, anyone interested in joining the Stonewall Center's Speaker's Bureau must attend a training session, sponsored by the Stonewall Center, free, not accessible, Stonewall Center, Crampton House/SW, 7 p.m.

LBGT Lecture — LBGT Studies Lecture Series. "Current Trends in GLBT Studies," a panel discussion with Bunnie Strickland, Deborah Carlin and USA Henderson, free, accessible, Rm. 803, Campus Center, 12 p.m.

Friday, Oct. 6

Dance Party — Sponsored by University Productions and Concerts with DJ Clue, tickets sold prior to the show at Tix Unlimited, $7 for students, $8 for non-students, $8 and $10 at the door, Bluewall Cafe, 9:30 p.m.

Lecture — "Simplicity Itself: The Spirit of Vegetarianism," by local spiritual master and guide Eon, a discourse from a spiritual vantage point, free, Munson Memorial Library, South Amherst Common, 7:30 p.m.

Meeting — Graduate and undergraduate students with children are invited to join the Family Court Action weekly meetings, to discuss issues of student family needs at the University, bring your kids, toys, books, complaints, wishes and demands, across from the Mini-Store, Student Union, 10 a.m.

Poetry Slam — Patricia Smith, winner of the National Poetry Slam 1995, and Michael Brown, author of "The Falling Wellenda's," win $10, sign up list at the door, Café Mediterranean, 1 E. Pleasant St., Amherst, 8 p.m.

Social — The Black Graduate Students' Association is having a social gathering, Graduate Lounge, 6 p.m. - 9 p.m.

Saturday, Oct. 7

Dance Workshop — Scandinavian Couples Dance Workshop, beginners and singles welcome, taught by Arna Desser with Ban Kaynor leading on the fiddle, $5 each or barter, call 549-1913 for more information, Munson Library, South Amherst, 6:30 p.m. - 8 p.m.

Dance Workshop — English Country Dance, taught by Helen Davenport with Van Kaynor, Laurie Castellano and others providing music, beginners come early, singles welcome, $5 each or barter, call 549-1913 for more information, Munson Library, South Amherst, 8 p.m.

Music — High Tide at Michael's Billiards, 9:30 p.m.

Notices

Scarecrows Wanted — Help non-profit organizations raise money by participating in the Village Commons of South Hadley scarecrow competition. First prize is $250, second is $100 and third prize is $75. There is no fee to enter and the Commons will supply the stand to build the scarecrow. All entries must be received by Oct. 14, and winner will be announce on Halloween. Call 532-3600 for more information or to register. Limited to no more than 30 scarecrows.

Deadline — All UMass undergraduate and graduate students interested in applying to the Secondary Teacher Education Program for spring semester the deadline for applications is October 12. Please contact the STEP Advising Office at 545-4597 for more information or drop by 125A Furcolo Hall for an application.

GLB RA Matters — Residence Life Staff who identify as gay, lesbian, bisexual, transgendered or are questioning their sexual orientation are invited to attend GLB RA Matters. Meetings are every Friday in Mary Lyon from 12:30 p.m. to 2 p.m. For more information contact Dawn M. Bond 545-1506.

Wanted — Ten UMass employees and students wanted to be a part of the Chancellor's Civility Grant for Community Conflict Resolution, to participate in nine hours of free mediation/conflict resolution training, and to work as a team to help at risk youth Oct. 21, 9 a.m. - 4 p.m., Oct. 28, 9 a.m. to 12 p.m., and 16 hours of volunteer service. To be held in Grayson 104, call Leda Cooks at 545-2895 or 549-6527 for more information.

Volunteers Needed — WFCR needs help sorting records for its Used Record Sale, food and drink is provided and volunteers get first dibs on records and CD's in WFCR's collection, help needed Monday, Wednesday and Thursday, call Karin Obermeier at 545-0100 if you have time.

Community — Jumaa Service, the Muslim Students Association holds Jumaa prayer service every Friday, at 1 p.m. Campus Center, for information call Utama at 256-8482.

Auditions — Student Valley Productions is holding auditions for an Orgy of Talents. If you have an act or if you are in university group that wants to perform call 546-3725.

Volunteers Needed — The Asian Dance and Music Program at the Fine Arts Center is seeking ten volunteers to help with food and craft vendors for the Festival of Lights celebration on Oct. 21 at Stockbridge Hall. Help is needed from 2 p.m. to 7 p.m., with a prior meeting on Friday Oct. 20 at 4 p.m. in Bowker Auditorium. All volunteers will get a free Indian dinner. Call the Asian Dance and Music Program at 545-1980 for more information.

Locker Space — Locker space for students and RSO's, located in the Student Union Building, $10 per academic year, contact Commuter Services and Housing Resource Center, 428 Student Union, 10 a.m. - 5 p.m., Mon. - Fri.

Fund Raising Drive — The Newman Center annual fund raising phonathon will be held from October 1 to October 19, volunteers are needed to staff the phones from 6:30 p.m. - 9 p.m., call 549-0300 for more information or to register.

Volunteer HIV/AIDS Instructors — The Springfield Science Museum is looking for volunteers who have had training in HIV/AIDS instruction to interact with the public at the "What About AIDS?" exhibit from Nov. 2 - Jan. 28, 1996. Volunteers needed for two-hour shifts on Wednesdays through Sundays between noon - 4 p.m. All volunteers will be given a thorough orientation to the exhibit and provided with information about HIV/AIDS services in the area. Call (413) 733-1194 for more information.

Holocaust Museum Trip — Tickets are now on sale until Oct. 13th at TIX for the Holocaust Museum trip on Oct. 22 - 23. Prices are $45 for UMass students, $40 for Hillel members, limited number of tickets available. Sponsored by Hillel House.

Convention — The Council of Jewish Federations will hold its 1995 General Assembly on Nov. 15 - 17, in Boston. The title of the conference is "A Century of Change, Heritage, Action, Innovation" and will focus on the pressing issues facing the American Jewish community. Subsidy money is available. The registration deadline is fast approaching. Call Hillel House at 549-1710 for more information.

Campus Police Log

Drug law offenses
Oct. 4
Thomas L. Collupy, 19, of 730 Winter St., North Andover, was arrested for possession of a Class D substance with intent to distribute, as well as possession of alcohol.

Disturbances
Oct. 3
There was a domestic argument in Parking Lot 25.

Vandalism
Oct. 3
An individual reported that his vehicle in the Campus Center garage was damaged.
There was a broken window in John Adams Residence Hall.
There was a window smashed on a vehicle in Parking Lot 22.

Larceny
Oct. 3
There was a bicycle stolen from Presidents Drive.
There was a bicycle stolen from Kennedy Residence Hall.
There was a bicycle stolen from Melville Residence Hall.

Medical emergency
Oct. 3
An individual fell on the side walk between Munson Whitmore Halls. She was taken to University Health Services.
An individual at Cance Residence Hall sustained a head injury when she fell. She was taken to Cooley Dickinson Hospital.

Accident – Property damage
Oct. 3
There was a two-vehicle accident on Massachusetts Ave. The owners exchanged paperwork.

Burglary/breaking & entering
Oct. 3
There were pry marks and other damage to a locking device on Goessmann Lab door. No entry was made into the room.

One in three black men in jail

Recent study shows dramatic increase in sentencing

By Connie Cass
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Almost one in every three young black men is serving a criminal sentence — either prison, probation or parole, according to a study by an advocacy group.

That's a dramatic increase from five years earlier, when the proportion was one in four.

The statistics released Wednesday are sure to fuel arguments about whether blacks are treated fairly by the criminal justice system — a theme that permeated the O.J. Simpson trial. It also is an issue cited by organizers of a national black men's march for unity and atonement.

"If one in three young white men were under criminal justice supervision, the nation would declare a national emergency," said Marc Mauer, co-author of the study by The Sentencing Project, a research group that supports alternatives to prison.

The report argues that the mandatory minimum sentences and stepped up enforcement that began with the 1980s "war on drugs" have fallen disproportionately on blacks and women.

The report says that explains why blacks accounted for 24 percent of all drug arrests in 1980, but the figure climbed to 59 percent in 1993.

Blacks make up 12 percent of the U.S. population. A Justice Department spokesman, John Russell, said the department "has no quarrel" with the report's numbers.

But he disputed the suggestion that blacks are more likely to be prosecuted under federal drug laws than whites accused of the same offense.

The numbers, said Russell, probably "reflect the social and economic factors that have a disproportionate affect on the African American community."

Black leaders supporting the Oct. 16 march planned by Nation of Islam leader Louis Farrakhan, and those who oppose it, have been united in declaring a crisis of black men.

"The figures in our report are evidence of that crisis," Mauer said.

Using U.S. Justice Department statistics, the report estimates that on any given day this year, 32 percent of black men ages 20 to 29 are serving a criminal sentence.

That's 827,400 young black men in jail or prison, or on probation or parole. It doesn't include those who are awaiting trial or who served time before they turned 20.

The estimate was based on 1994 figures, which show 30.2 percent of young black men serving criminal sentences last year, compared with 6.7 percent of young white men.

Among black women, the figure was 4.8 percent, and among white women, 1.4 percent.

Although the women's convictions remain much less frequent than men's, they have been growing at a faster rate since the 1989 report.

The number of young black women under criminal justice supervision increased 78 percent by 1994; 40 percent more white women are serving sentences. Black men doing time increased 31 percent, and white men 8 percent.

It's unclear how closely the changes reflect an increase in crime among the different demographic groups.

The report focuses almost entirely on blacks, though it does note that rates for both Hispanic men and women increased 18 percent. In 1994, 12.3 percent of young Hispanic men and 2.2 percent of Hispanic women were under criminal supervision.

For many black men, the statistics back up a conviction that police and courts don't dispense equal justice for black Americans.

They cite the beating of Rodney King and the racial epithets of former Los Angeles police detective Mark Fuhrman that surfaced during the Simpson trial.

"The only thing unique about Rodney King is there was camera," said Joseph Lowery, president of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference. "The only thing unique about Mark Fuhrman is there was a tape recorder."

DISTINGUISHED TEACHING AWARD NOMINATIONS

DEADLINE: MONDAY, NOVEMBER 6, 1995

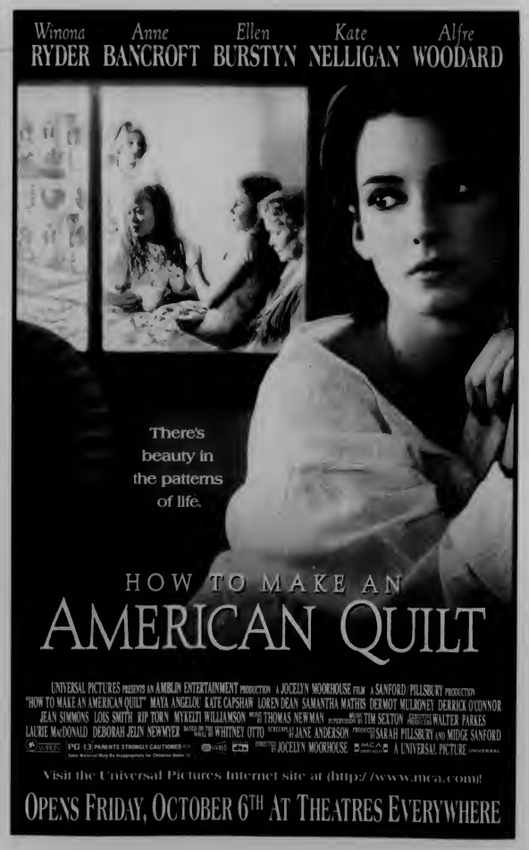
If you know

A FACULTY MEMBER OR TEACHING ASSISTANT/ASSOCIATE WHO IS TRULY OUTSTANDING AND DESERVES RECOGNITION, SUBMIT A SIGNED NOMINATION IN WRITING WITH A BRIEF DESCRIPTION OF WHY YOUR NOMINEE DESERVES THE AWARD.

ALUMNI AND CURRENT UNDERGRADUATE/GRADUATE STUDENTS MAY NOMINATE.

For More Information Contact::
Lori Baronas at 545-5278 or
E-Mail Address: l.baronas@dpc.umassp.edu

TO: Distinguished Teaching Award Committee
Office of the Graduate Dean
Room 514 Goodell
Fax 413-5453754



Winona RYDER
Anne BANCROFT
Ellen BURSTYN
Kate NELLIGAN
Alfre WOODARD
There's beauty in the patterns of life.
HOW TO MAKE AN AMERICAN QUILT
Visit the Universal Picture's Internet site at (http://www.mca.com)!
OPENS FRIDAY, OCTOBER 6TH AT THEATRES EVERYWHERE

WOMEN making WAVES

More women found on corporate boards

A Sept. 28 New York Times article said a growing number of women are joining corporate boards and about a third of the nation's largest companies now have more than one female director.

Catalyst, a nonprofit consulting and research group, said despite the growth in their numbers, women directors hold only 9.5 percent of the 6,274 corporate board seats. This was up from 8.7 percent last year and 8.3 percent in 1993.

Sheila Wellington, president of Catalyst, said the perception that there are not enough qualified women in business still exists.

Catalyst, which works with business to effect change for women, first conducted the survey of directors in 1977, when there were 46 women serving on boards. Statistics were not collected again until 1993.

NAACP chairman to register new black voters

Myrlie Evers-Williams, chairwoman of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, was in Jackson, Mississippi this past weekend. Her goal was to attempt to kick off a nationwide drive by the NAACP by registering one million new black voters in time for the 1996 elections.

According to figures compiled by the Census Bureau, black turnout in the 1994 elections declined by about 2 percent compared with the last midterm elections in 1990. The bureau's numbers also show a hefty decline of 21 percent among voters with yearly incomes of less than $15,000. Both groups have traditionally voted Democratic and the low turnout was considered a major factor in the Republican sweep last year.

NAACP officials say they hope mobilizing black voters and increasing turnout will help rest the House from Republican control or force it away from its current right-veering path.

If mobilizing black voters is, as Evers-Williams asserts and the New York Times reported, crucial in stemming the conservative tide, it is also perhaps the only way for the NAACP to regain stature and demonstrate that it is still relevant after the last two years of turmoil.

It was in Jackson, Miss. that Evers-Williams's first husband, the civil rights leader Medgar Evans, was murdered. Evers-Williams' goal to round up black voters by a white supremacist in the Ever's front yard in 1963.

If it seems ambitious, it is she maintains, crucial both for blacks and for her still-beleaguered civil rights organization, said the Times.

"We don't seem to know what power is all about. And, as others have said here today, if we don't use what we have, then we deserve what we get," Evers-Williams said

Bill to insure 48-hour maternity stays

Senator Bill Bradley, from New Jersey, is attempting to force health insures to pay for at least 48 hours of hospital care for newborn babies and their mother.

In the last two weeks alone, Bradley's office has received more than 10,000 forms printed in the October issue of Good Housekeeping magazine, which were clipped and sent by readers to show support for the newborn's and mother's health protection bill, something he initiated and is co- sponsoring with Senator Nancy Landon Kassenbaum, a Republican of Kansas.

■ Pallone

continued from page 1

talking about. There aren't too many people who are like that in our society."

From hardship to triumph

Navratilova defected from her native Czechoslovakia, coming to the United States on her own to become a citizen while leaving family and friends behind.

Since then, her 161 career singles titles outnumber those of any male or female tennis player. She won six straight Grand Slam titles from 1983 Wimbledon to 1984 U.S. Open. In 1991, she became the oldest female finalist in U.S. Open history. Her 18 Grand Slam singles titles make her third among all female players.

Griffin points to Navratilova's triumph over hardships that has made her an inspiration to all athletes.

"I think it's a really worthwhile opportunity to hear someone who has an incredible personal history," Griffin said. "She's always been an important role model for all women in sports.

"Martina has always been outspoken. She is not a person who minces words. We are looking forward to a very frank and open discussion on a wide range of issues."

Griffin hopes Navratilova will talk about her famous rivalry with Chris Everett Lloyd.

"Chris represented the ultimate image of feminity and heterosexuality and she was a terrific athlete," Griffin said. "Martina was a different kind of athlete because she was a lesbian and she doesn't represent what we think of as a traditionally feminine-looking woman. She's very strong- looking and in fact revolutionized women's tennis because she went on a training schedule that was far beyond what most women professionals have ever done before. She completely elevated the game through her own excellence."

Pallone experienced similar obstacles in his lifetime. He was ostracized by other umpires for crossing the picket lines from the minor leagues during a major league umpire strike. Pallone may also be remembered for his 1988 stand-off with Pete Rose, which led to rose's 30-day suspension and Pallone's loss of a World Series assignment.

He was later forced to resign as a National League umpire after it became known that he was gay. Pallone has written a book, "Behind the Mask," which describes the double life he led in baseball.

"In his 10-year career in the major leagues, he showed a lot of courage in sticking with it," Griffin said.

Upon purchasing their tickets, people were invited to submit questions that would help to identify themes for the discussion. The questions will be proposed by Griffin after the conversation.

"They both have some interesting stories to tell about their experiences being gay and lesbian in professional sports."

The forum will be held on Oct. 11. Tickets are still available at the Mullins Center Box Office. Student tickets are $5. Non-student tickets are $10 and $20.

Associate Professor Pat Griffin will moderate a discussion between tennis star Martina Navratilova and former major league umpire Dave Pallone on Oct. 11

■ movie

continued from page 1

experience.

The students featured in the film included Italian- Americans, Latinos, Native Americans, African-Americans and Vietnamese-Americans. Each participant defended different positions.

In the film and at the weekend conference, tensions were high. The students discussed their most personal feelings and views about what it is like to experience racism and prejudice on a first hand basis.

Students got together to break down some of the stereotypes that exist about different ethnic groups. In one exercise they vocalized what they wanted the group to know.

Some of the students corrected common stereotypes.

"I want you to know that Latinos join gangs because they are not taught history," and "I want you to know that not all Asians are quiet," said students in the film.

As the workshop continued, white students got together to discuss their feelings about the conference. Many felt that they were being attacked personally for some of the prejudice the other students had endured over the course of their lives.

Another issue discussed in the film was the pressure students of mixed cultures felt about choosing between two heritages. For example, two students, both of mixed decent, felt that they did not want to have to choose between carrying two different passports, they wanted to carry both.

One UMass student involved in the conference, Marc Mazzone, had a difficult time dealing with prejudice within his own traditional Italian family. Mazzone who had joined a gospel choir prior to the workshop, was afraid to tell his father that he had joined the choir because it was predominantly black.

Mazzone grew up in a predominately white neighborhood and coming to UMass felt there were "thousands" of minorities, while Brian Allen, another UMass student felt "there were not a lot of minorities" following interviews in their resident halls before the conference.

One black student gave an example of how African- Americans are all lumped together when something negative occurs. "When one black person does something, we all suffer," he said.

Towards the end of the three day conference, everyone learned to get past colors, races, stereotypes and were able to talk openly about their experiences without fear of offending each other.

"In order to change anything life has to become 'a have to.' In other words, we have to interact. Don't believe in stereotypes, blacks aren't niggers, Asians don't study all the time and Indians aren't drunks," said Allen. "One of the major problems is that people try to ignore ethnicity. If you have a question just ask."

"Everyone can and everyone should try to discuss issues of racism," Mazzone said.

■ access

continued from page 1

"Independence is the most important thing," said Abby Cutler McDunna's home health aid. "[She] is able to do things, even [have] someone else has to help, is part of a disabled person's physical and mental health." Colon said.

Kazmarek suggested that UMass hire students, in addition to current drivers, to escort handicapped persons around campus.

Initially, McDunna said, "I don't like that at all. I'm an independent person and I don't appreciate [it] being taken away from me."

Yet, McDunna thought that some of the handicapped students on campus, including herself, would take advantage of that service if it were available.

Collegian News

BECAUSE YOU CAN NEVER HAVE ENOUGH INFORMATION

Arts & Living

"It's a dream come true
A haven from the hustle and bustle of UMass life
A mecca for everything real
A place to visit your hustla thang
A way to be creative
A chance to show your stuff
In short
A really cool place to be"

Save 22 cold breakfasts on a Macintosh.

Power Macintosh 6100 DOS Compatible w/CD
16MB RAM/500MB hard drive, Power PC 601 processor, CD-ROM drive, 15" color monitor, keyboard and mouse.

Macintosh Performa 636 w/CD
8 MB RAM/500 MB hard drive, CD-ROM drive, 15" color monitor, keyboard, mouse and all the software you're likely to need.

Personal LaserWriter 300
Toner cartridge and cables included.

It's as easy as pizza pie. Just visit your authorized Apple reseller today, and you can get a great deal on Macintosh computers. Because they're on sale. Which means now you can get everything — all the hardware, software and accessories — you need to improve your GPA, cruise the Internet, maybe even have some fun. And still have enough dough left over to score tonight's hot dinner, tonight's very late snack and tomorrow's very cold pie. No matter how you slice it, it's the cheapest way yet to get a taste of Macintosh power. The power to be your best.® Apple

Stop By The University Store Computer Department For More Information

UNIVERSITY STORE Campus Center 545-2619 Mon - Fri 9-5 Sat 11 - 3

Offers expire October 15, 1995. ©1995 Apple Computer, Inc. All rights reserved. Apple, the Apple logo, Macintosh and "The power to be your best" are registered trademarks of Apple Computer, Inc. CardShop Plus is a registered trademark of Mindscape. All Macintosh computers are designed to be accessible to individuals with a disability. To learn more (U.S. only), call 800-600-7808 or TTY 800-755-0601.

Sales of computer hardware are only available to University Faculty, Staff and Students

DAILY COLLEGIAN

113 Campus Center • University of Massachusetts Amherst, MA 01003 • (413) 545-3500 • Fax (413) 545-1592

Matt Vautour Editor-in-Chief Juan Jose Chacón Quiros de Quetzcoatl Managing Editor
Earl T. Martin Business Manager James P. Gurley Production Manager Ethan Bloomfield Advertising Manager
Natasha Kahn Advertising Production Manager Wendy Darling Senior Diversity Editor

Tara Mk Connelly Arts & Living Editor Candice Flemming Sports Editor
Christopher Byrd Black Affairs Editor Ron Alpert Staff Artist
Matt Wurtzel Business Editor Laura Schmidt, Aimee Schwartz Women's Issues Editors
Syed Mohammed Ali Raza Developing Nations Editor Marni E. Helfner Editorial Production Manager
Geri Sahn Editorial/Opinion Editor Adam Chace Systems Manager
Wendy Darling Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Issues Editor A.J. Stewart Finance Manager
Jacob W. Michaels Jewish Affairs Editor Ryan Courtemanche Distribution Manager
Hernan Rozemberg Multicultural Affairs Editor Maureen Maciowski Assistant Operations Manager
Chris Taylor Conner News Editor Mary Pappas Classified Advertising
Daymion Smith Photography Editor Thomas F. Sweeney, Jr. Graphics Advisor/Instructor

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published Monday through Friday during the University of Massachusetts calendar semester. The Collegian is financially independent from the University of Massachusetts, operating solely on revenues generated by advertising sales. The paper was founded in 1890 as Aggie Life, became the College Signal in 1901, the Weekly Collegian in 1914 and then the Tri-Weekly Collegian in 1936. The Collegian has been published daily since 1967, and has been a broadsheet publication since January 1994. For advertising rates and information, call (413) 545-3500 weekdays between 8:30 a.m. and 5:30 p.m.

Opinion/Editorial

Pre–packaged blackness

Patrick Belizaire

Do you often get a hard time by black people who are assuming that you are trying to be black? Well if you do, let me try and shed some light as to why this happens. First off, I would like to say these reasons I am about to present are my own views and opinions, based on observing, interlining, conversing with others and my experiences as a black person. I am not representing the views of any race, including my own.

I spoke to a young lady in my dorm who said while sitting in a classroom (before the class officially started) she was harassed by a young black woman. The young white lady told me the young black woman said, "why are you trying to be black, bitch you can never be black." To say the least, the young white woman was terrified.

The young white lady asked me why was she being harassed for her style and the way she is. I told her it all came from what she was wearing and possibly the way she was talking. She was wearing symbolized expressions of blackness in her urban style dressing and she was giving off the indication that she was trying to be something she is not.

First off, let's analyze what is considered black in the fashion industry. Nothing. Yes, certain styles of clothing and the way they are worn are embodied by blacks, particularly urban blacks. Styles of clothing often come from one's geographic location and an assessment of what is being shown on television and music videos. Blacks do wear their clothes a certain way, but not all blacks wear their clothes like this, and too often these styles follow stereotypes.

People think if they wear their pants hanging half way down their ass, with Timberland boots untied, walking with a strut or a swagger and speaking slang, (which often sounds like they are mocking someone) they are embodying something that is black.

In actuality, they are not. They are embracing the stereotypes of what black is. The above description is not what black is and speaking in fragmented sentences is not what black is.

There is no problem in someone enjoying what another culture has to offer, and we, in this society, do not do that enough. I think those who portray the stigmatism of black stereotypes are truly mislead. The reason I think a lot of black individuals may react with discontent at those who uphold these stereotypes is because it is not easy to be black in this society. So when people who are not black, try to dress "black" and talk "black," (and some even think they are black) it is an insult to black people, and it is upsetting as well.

It is upsetting because those people who do the above are saying this is what being black is: it is simple and easy; but it isn't. Another reason stems from the fact that it feels like a mockery. Being black in this society is a task in itself, so if a person, who is not black, wants to be black, then they should get the brunt of everything that goes with being black — all the pain, all the anger and all the negative stereotypes that is enough to drive one insane.

They must learn what it is like to try and maintain their sanity everyday of their life. They must question everyday "why am I here putting up with this, and why is this world such an awful place." I do not think there is one day I wake up and there is not something which invokes out of me the reminder that I am a black man in America.

When Arthur Ashe, the black tennis player who won Wimbledon and numerous other tournaments, was asked "was finding out you were dying of AIDS the most difficult issue you ever had to deal with?" he answered "no, being a black man in America is the most difficult issue I ever had to deal with."

People's lives are not easy especially if one is black. Being black almost certainly guarantees you a struggle, if nothing else in this life. To say that one who is not black knows the black experience is to simplify our struggles. Yes, everyone's experience is unique within itself, but when it comes to being black we all share something that bounds us together in the most profound meaning of the word.

Patrick Belizaire is a Collegian columnist.

A new way to create a Utopia

Evan Young

A couple of days ago, I was watching the Discovery channel. Most of the program that was on dealt with the evils mankind has inflicted on nature and the dire consequences that will be paid by the entire human race if we don't change some of our environmental policies. Overall, the show was interesting and it achieved its end effectively — I was full of guilt being a human being.

Damnable corporations which I have probably given money to at some point in my life were completely destroying plant and animal life in what used to be fertile regions in Africa. Even now, at this very moment, trees are being chopped down, and human and animal life is being forced into living in poor, unnatural conditions.

So many different people have ideas about what can be done to correct the ecological problems we have created for ourselves that it seems as if it is now difficult for anyone to figure out the true solution. There are just too many conflicting ideas and variables surrounding environmental issues. Parallel to this is the fact the problems we have created in the environment itself are also so full of variables and questions that no one can really be an expert.

Recently, though, I have come up with some of my own ideas. Often, the solutions people have, for any issue, only put a band-aid on the problem and not the cause of the problem. People think the big businesses that are chopping down the trees are the ones at fault. Other people think there aren't enough laws governing these businesses. Still, others blame it on a complete lack of an environmental code of ethics. After all, isn't that at the root of all human (or at least American) problems — a twisted lack of ethics in just a few of the people who hold the power? Lately, it seems many Americans have come to this realization.

So here are some of my ideas:

Most of the problems we deal to the environment can be traced back to overpopulation. Right now, the world is on the road to becoming completely overpopulated to the point where there will simply be too many people for the earth to feed. There will be mass starvation around the globe and the comfort of life will significantly drop in each corner of every continent.

So, we can start a few new policies in America to prevent this from happening.

First, everyone who reaches the age of 65 should not only retire, but be summarily put to death. It can be made sure they have all the comforts that mass funerals can provide, such as comfortable grave-ditches. Eventually, the 65th birthday of a family member would become a day of revelry, dancing and wine consumption.

So many different people have ideas about what can be done to correct the ecological problems we have created for ourselves that it seems as if it is now difficult for anyone to figure out the true solution. There are just too many conflicting ideas and variables surrounding environmental issues. Parallel to this is the fact the problems we have created in the environment itself are also so full of variables and questions that no one can really be an expert.

Second, there should be a daily life lottery. Everyone in the upper class, all the rich and overly wealthy people will automatically be entered in the lottery, and if you win, you are executed, no questions asked. This will barely help to cut down on the population density among the rich, yet should keep the middle class happy.

Which brings me to my next idea. The middle class now becomes the well-to-do lower class (and the only other class to worry about) because there will be no lower class in the United States anymore. All of them will be completely wiped out.

Legalize all drugs and promote the harder and more lethal drugs, like crack and heroin. The government can then get involved in the drug trade between Cuba and some of the other Central American drug–suppliers, trading military hardware for drugs, thus enriching the economy.

Legalize all semi–automatic and full–automatic weapons, and sell them out of liquor stands on every store in the ghettos of America. Also, sell those rhino–killing bullets, along with grenades and other destructive weaponry.

Now, all the country would have to do is sit back, wait a few months (maybe a year), then move back into these ghettos. Kill any stragglers that might be hanging around, then knock down or otherwise destroy every remaining building to make room for brand new multiplex developments. Then, some of the now very rich "lower class" can move out of the crowded suburban areas and into those newly-renovated ex–ghettos.

After that, the government should work to promote homosexuality in the education curriculums of all schools, starting at the elementary school level. Gradually, good heterosexual values would become foreign and strange while homosexuality would become the saving grace of humanity through their natural methods of un–procreation.

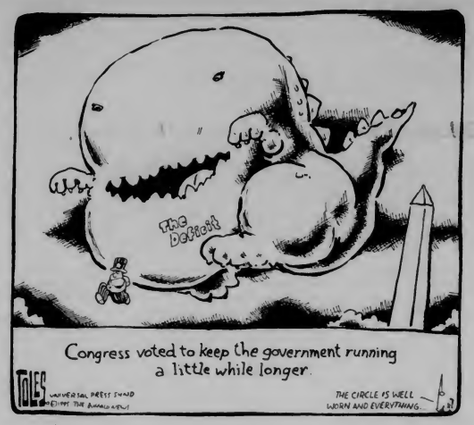
All of the major religions should alter their basic orthodoxies to fit these new lifestyles. For a year, every fifth religious heterosexual should be crucified live on television, to serve as an example to others.

Now, once the population of America has thinned out, good things will begin to happen. Diseases and poor living conditions will become a thing of the past, because no longer is there overcrowding in any area of the country. The economic system will flourish, and with the new power that the revitalized United States has behind it, it can start building up a massive air force.

With this air force, we can then carpet–bomb those Central American countries and Cubans who sold us drugs, effectively wiping out that business. We can then turn our attentions to the rest of the world and completely destroy all life in those countries or places no one really cares about. Greenland and Canada would come first, then Australia, the Philippines, Madagascar, India (put all those poor people out of their misery, once and for all) and most of Russia. Both of the polar regions should go as well, so the Eskimos don't feel left out, then a few select areas in Eastern Europe and Central, Eastern and Northern Africa.

After enough room is made for the remaining inhabitants of the earth, we can clear out the dead, reconstruct all the bombed areas, plant some trees, restock the rivers with fish and do all the pleasant things that would revitalize the planet's ecology. Humans would then be at peace with the global environment and every form of animal and plant life would prosper.

Evan Young is a Collegian columnist.



The Deficit
Congress voted to keep the government running a little while longer.
TOLES
THE CIRCLE IS WELL WORN AND EVERYTHING.

Always hunting for a bargain

Andrew Bryce

"You gotta' be kidding me," I said in a burst of laughter.

I was on the phone with my father, and we were swapping laundry stories. I told him I spent an obscene amount of money to do wash, and he then told me his laundry tale.

"I was washing my clothes the other day," my father says, "and I realized I have ... Ange, guess how many short– sleeved button down shirts?"

"I don't know, Dad. Knowing you, probably lots."

My father laughs. "I have 22 short–sleeved button–down shirts. I have assorted colors, but I have 22 different ones."

I didn't laugh. "You're serious ..."

"Yes. And I have two pairs of pants."

This time, I can't help but laugh, because I am disgusted even more than I was when I realized he had almost a quarter century of the same type of shirt. And I laughed because you have to know my father to understand what's going on up there.

He's a bargain hunter. He's a avid coupon user. He's the two–for–one king. He's the reason the scan saver method is now used at the supermarket. He's the one who makes sure he gets the coffee card, where the waitress punches holes for every cup he has and when ten holes are punched, he gets a free one. He's the one who gets to know the waitress so that she punches more than one hole each time. He's the one who prefers cafeteria over cuisine, quantity over quality.

"Can't go wrong," my Dad says just too much. "Can't beat it," comes out of my Dad's mouth too often.

My father and I went out to lunch one day this summer. I asked him for a Cert, because I saw a package in his console.

"Suuuurrreee," he said rather obnoxiously. When we reached the restaurant, he said he wanted to show me something in the trunk. Sitting in there, in a huge pile, was about a 100 packages of Certs.

At least a 100 packages ... with ten packs in each.

He's a bargain hunter. He's a avid coupon user. He's the two–for–one king. He's the reason the scan saver method is now used at the supermarket. He's the one who makes sure he gets the coffee card, where the waitress punches holes for every cup he has and when ten holes are punched, he gets a free one.

"Big sale at Douglas Drug," my father said with a proud smile. "Can't go wrong."

There it is.

And as he revealed to me his apparent mild obsession for breath mints, I knew it wasn't just the Certs that got my father all jacked up. He's done this with shampoo, there'd be a sale on Suave and he purchases just too many bottles. He even tried to water it down so that he truly stretch it.

And pencils, those mechanical ones? He's been supplying me with those since my sophomore year in high school and all of those he and I have used over the past five years was from the same sale.

If there was a personal bio on my father, it'd read, "Likes: big sales, Sunday newspapers (for coupons), Building 19, Ocean State Job Lot, buffets. Dislikes: regular prices, newspapers from Monday through Saturday (for not having coupons), any department store that doesn't have a sale on men's clothes, expensive one plate dinners with little on the plate."

My father is not alone. I know some of his bargain charisma has filtered into my head. I did buy 24 Ramens at the market, because they were six for a dollar. In the same boat as "Cert Mania," I did buy a box of 24 packages of Austin peanut butter crackers, with six in each pack. I have bought more pairs of underwear than I need, so I don't have to do as many washes.

I mean, what is too much? Maybe it is quantity. My buddy thinks there is nothing better than a buffet, and he's hit every one in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts. He's the same guy who brought up all of his Playboys to school. Not just one to look at, or a few to slobber all over. He brought a crate full.

As for myself, I brought all of my CDs. I listen to, at the most, 20 of 'em, yet I brought over a 100. You know, if I ever get a Vanilla Ice craving, or I want to break out my ol' Cavaricci–imitation baggy pants and cut up some rug to M.C. Hammer, I am able to. The near–complete collection of Poison CDs comes in handy just as much as that Sept. of 1982 Playboy issue does for my buddy, or that fifth pink short–sleeved button down shirt does for my Dad.

It's either getting a good deal, or having something just in case. What it comes down to is a matter of quantity. That "you can never have too much of a good thing" phrase?

Try telling that to my father at a clearance sale.

Andrew Bryce is a Collegian columnist.

Being a victim of segregation

David Chan

You have the Asians, the Latinos, the Blacks and other racial minority groups on the campus. You have the Vietnamese, the Koreans, the Chinese, etc. You have the Puerto Ricans, the Mexicans, etc. You have the African– Americans, the Africans, the Pacific Islanders, etc. This University is racially segregated.

You can see the line between black and white, hear the language barriers and feel the fears around you. Is there a clear reason why this is so prevalent in this University? In our pursuit of multiculturalism, we have actually segregated ourselves from each other in this process.

Let's paint a common picture of this University. If Simon were to walk into a peak public gathering area of our campus, let's say the Worcester Dining Commons, and say, "Simon says anyone who is not sitting at a table with people of his/her own race, please move and do so." How many people would have to move?

Not many. It is like blotches of different colors on a large white canvas.

Is this what we want? As multicultural as this University likes to boast, places like the dining commons reveals an awakening contrast. What are the causes that make these invisible dividers so visible? I don't know why, but I can make some guesses.

Well, there are some who just don't like to associate with groups outside their ethnic group. So is it an ethnic pride thing, "my people are better than your people." Or is it peer pressure, "Yo, why were you sitting with them? Why do you talk to them so much?" Could it be because of their parents and their upbringing?

That's a sad reason because after 12 years of schooling, Mommy and Daddy still pick their friends for them. Some people may have been victims of racism in the past. "A big group of Blacks scare me. Look at that ugly and goofy group of Asians." Sound pretty shallow?

Maybe it's the language barriers. But are there any real barriers at all? Most students of various ethnic backgrounds are not restricted to their own native language. In fact, for many of them, it's not even the language they speak best.

But nevertheless, many of them choose to exclusively surround themselves with their fellow brothers and sisters. And on the flipside, people are afraid to talk to them. "But you just can't approach someone. Maybe I feel uncomfortable. If I try to hang out with them, would they laugh in my face?"

I can't answer for everybody, but as we all know, you'll never know unless you try. When you hang out with a group of Asians or Blacks, do you think to yourself, "I'm hanging out with some of my Asian/Black friends." Can it just be "I'm hanging out with these people because I think they're cool ... we're friends."

A friend of mine gave me another possible theory of the cause of segregation. He calls it the "Hungry Hungry Hippo Theory." It's just like the classic game we all played. You have several different colored hippos trying to grab as much of the riches and funds of our campus. He compared the hippos to the ethnic Registered Students Organizations of the campus.

Everybody is out for themselves thus fostering tension and animosity between groups. Could this be a cause? Is it possible to have just an organization for everybody? An organization that would help anybody who wants it?

What can segregation be a product of? Maybe it's because we're labeled from the start by college administration. When you fill out that application, you are asked to check a label. Did you come in here thinking, "I didn't get any financial aid because I'm white." Or on the flipside, "I got hooked up with aid big time because I'm a minority."

It's nothing to blame each other for. International students can not receive financial aid anyway. But besides that, it would be shallow to blame groups of people for what administration chooses to do. Most minorities don't approve of affirmative action anyway. It hurts more than it helps now.

But there are the pioneers out there. There are the individuals that are color blind and possess no fears. They don't know every language either. You don't have to. In simplistic terms, they're merely hanging out with friends.

It's not that they're not proud of their own ethnicity, it's probably they're proud of the opportunities they have to just meet people. Sound corny? So is segregation.

David Chan is a Collegian columnist.

Film • Music • Theatre • Lifestyles • Books • Art

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

ARTS & LIFE

Thursday, October 5, 1995

Weekend Edition • Volume CV Issue 21

Venting on this week's shows

Tube Notes
By Seema Gangatirkar

Checking out television this week, I realized that there is a morbid fascination with all things bloody and violent. NBC led the pack with the "based on a true story" movie, "Fight For Justice: The Nancy Conn Story."

Just imagine a deranged Doug Savant (yes, that Doug Savant from "Melrose Place") biting his fingernails until they bleed and you'll get the general idea.

In a departure from his usual nice–guy character on "Melrose Place," Savant played a murderer who kidnaps, assaults and tortures two women and then leaves them for dead. Marilu Henner portrayed Nancy Conn, who survives the vicious attack to bring her assailant to justice.

Speaking of general craziness and viciousness, hop on over to FOX and take a look at "Melrose Place." It seems that the writers are still on summer hiatus with minor details just slipping by. Last season's cliffhanger ended with Kimberly (Marcia Cross) blowing up the apartment complex. All of the residents miraculously escaped without major injuries (if you don't count Allison's blindness which lasted all of two episodes). And then there was Jake's fall from a ten–story building. It boggles the mind how Jake can walk away without a scratch while poor brother Jess bites the dust.

Weirdness prevails as Jack Wagner returns as Dr. Peter Burns. After trying to murder Amanda (Heather Locklear), the good doctor is back as Kimberly's doctor.

Turn to TUBE NOTES, page 8

Two roads diverged,

The Pioneer Valley is famous for music, education and diversity, but what most people don't know is that it is also a haven for poetry...

UM profs do more than just teach

By Marni E. Helfner
Collegian Staff

Being a professor is a full time job. Being a poet is a full time job. Somehow, three University of Massachusetts professors find the time to do both.

Martin Espada, Paul Mariani and Ron Welburn all manage to teach a full load of English courses and are successful poets at the same time. Although three very different people, all share a common bond in their love for teaching and their love for writing.

The trio have been at UMass and teaching for varying amounts of time. Mariani began teaching in 1968 at UMass and is now in his 28 year at the University. Espada has been teaching for several years and is now in his third year at UMass. Welburn has been teaching at UMass since January 1992 and has been teaching in general for the past 23 years.

Although constantly busy the three professors always manage to have time to talk about their duel roles as both teacher and poet.

Martin Espada:

Espada, born and raised in New York, and has spent his life

Turn to PROFESSORS, page 9

Amherst's best known poetess

By Mike Burke
Collegian Staff

Perhaps the most famous export from this town of Amherst is the world renown poet Emily Dickinson.

Throughout her 55 years of life she reformed lyrical poetry like no one before her as she ignored her contemporary peers to write in her own unique style that went on to influence poets such as John Keats and Ralph Waldo Emerson.

Born in Amherst on Dec. 10, 1830, Dickinson never left this quaint town, but since her death, her poems have been read in many languages across every nation.

She was born into an upper class family with political power; her father, Edward Dickinson, was a member of Congress as well as the treasurer at Amherst College.

The poetess was educated at the Amherst Academy. Upon graduation she attended Mount Holyoke Female Seminary in South Hadley for one year — this was the longest time she ever spent away from home. Due to sickly health she returned to her home where she spent the rest of her life. At the time she was just 17 years–old.

It is not known as to when Dickinson began her lauded poetic

Turn to DICKINSON, page 10

By Marni E. Helfner
Collegian Staff

The Pioneer Valley is famous for many things, but one seldom talked about is poetry and poets.

Sure, most people would expect that an area with four colleges and a university would have tons of poets and a wealth of poetry, but most people don't know what it is or where to look for it.

As far back as the 19th century, Amherst has had a history of poetry. Emily Dickinson and other local poets planted the first seeds of stately verse. Dickinson wrote more than 1,700 poems in her lifetime, but only published seven.

Coming into the 20th century, University of Massachusetts has become a place where poetry and poets can prolificate. From UMass professors who do double duty as poets and professors to the multitude of journals for students to publish in, the growth of poetry in the Valley has increased each year.

Even though most people don't recognize it, poetry is part of everyday lives. In songs, TV commercials and rap, the art of poetry as an oral art form can be found anywhere. Students can also enjoy the oral art form from professors and local poet readings in Amherst. Plenty of places in Amherst and Northampton offer budding poets the opportunity to read at poetry slams and open mike readings.

Whether one looks for poetry in a text for class, such as Yeats or Angelou, or finds it in the pages of Spectrum, poetry can be found, loved and experienced all over the Pioneer Valley.

Getting published at UMass

By Tara MK Connelly
Collegian Staff

Many students want to become published poets but just don't know where to start. Here are four publications that students can submit their works to — the best thing is that they're all located on campus.

THE SPECTRUM
Published Yearly

The Spectrum is a fine arts and literary magazine for the University of Massachusetts undergraduate and graduate students. The magazine is printed yearly and included poetry, prose, art work and photos.

According to Dan Chase, a sophomore BDIC major and production editor of the magazine, The Spectrum began in 1967.

"Next year will be the 30th anniversary. It started as a UMass journal and originally incorporated undergrads and grads to some degree," said Chase.

Anyone can submit prose, poetry, art or photography. For prose and poetry there is no page limit but submissions are limit-

Turn to PUBLICATIONS, page 10

Places to get yourself heard

By Seema Gangatirkar
Collegian Staff

If the literary and poetry journals aren't enough for you, you can always check out poetry readings at local venues.

One of the more popular locations for students to read poetry is at the Fire And Water in Northampton. Every Wednesday evening at 8 p.m. an open reading is held called "Word." After the open reading, a featured poet will present their work. People interested in reading their poetry must sign up in person starting at 6:30 p.m. Fire And Water is located at 5 Old Street in Northampton. Please call 586–8336 for more information.

On Friday, the Café Mediterranean will hold the Amherst Poetry SLAM. The event, which will take place on the first Friday of every month, is a national contest that consists of three parts. The first part is an open reading. Everyone is welcome to come and share their poetry. The second part will feature Boston Globe columnist Patricia Smith and Mt. Ida College Professor Michael Brown. Both Brown and Smith were the Boston Globe team that placed third at the National SLAM competition. Smith

Turn to READINGS, page 10

...and I took the one less travelled by.

Layout & Design by Marni E. Helfner & Tara MK Connelly

SHORT CUTS

Edited by Tara MK Connelly

Quotes of Note

"I never felt like a star, a hunk or a har–throb — I don't even know how to pronounce it." — Antonio Banderas

"Boy is my mom going to be mad." — John Popper after being arrested for possessing illegal weapons and driving with an expired registration.

"If you really want to hurt your parents and you don't have the nerve enough to be homosexual, the least you can do is go into the arts." — Kurt Vonnegut

COURTESY MCA RECORDS
Banderas

People and Pop Culture in the News

Here's some news bigger than O.J.'s acquittal and just as shocking. The love birds with the three names: Tiffani– Amber Thiessen and Brian Austin Green have ended their two year romance. As People Weekly so nicely put it, "9–0– 2–1–Over!" That's almost as good as "The Juice is Loose."

And as long as we are in the land of FOX, Andrew "my–character–has–no–backbone" Shue and finacée Jennifer Hageney will wed this Saturday in Montana. Sob, sigh — get over it.

Tori Spelling's little brother will make his acting debut in the two–hour NBC pilot for the beach romance "Malibu Shores!" Randy. 16, will play a Valley dude named Flipper. Will his virginity be a show topic? If God is merciful — no it won't.

Does anyone find "Melrose's" Brooke (Kristin Davis) annoying? Well, you can laugh your head off this week when she plays the daughter of a extraterrestrial murder victim on "Alien Nation: Body and Soul." She gets to wear veils, has no hair and resembles Neelix from "Star Trek: Voyager."

"Friends" star Jennifer Aniston was recently seen sitting on Counting Crows' singer Adam Duritz's lap in a trendy Los Angeles restaurant. Does Ross know?

George Clooney will play Quentin Tarantino's vampire brother in December's From Dusk Till Dawn. Directing the moonlight madness will be Robert Rodriguez (Desperado).

Gloria Estefan is awfully accident prone. It has been a few years since her tour bus was side swiped and the songstress rallied from multiple injuries. Now, it seems that an out of control jet ski slammed into Estefan and husband Emilio's 30 ft. powerboat killing the driver and injuring its passenger.

Paul Reisar and wife Paula are the proud parents of Ezra Samuel born six weeks ahead of schedule. Not to worry, the baby is fine.

Blues Traveler John Popper was arrested for possessing illegal weapons and driving with an expired registration. He was caught with a knifelike object and a box full of hollow– point bullets. The Traveler pleaded not guilty.

"Central Park West" is slowly floundering and CBS is looking for ways to boost ratings. Is anybody sick of seeing rich and beautiful people sleep around, back stab, snarl, prance and basically sicken a general population in which no real person is ever represented or (big breath) if they are, only rewarded with five second walk–ons to diversify the show? Hey, maybe that's the problem! Material for this column has been compiled from various news and wire services by Tara MK Connelly.

Editors' Cuts

Clothes J. Crew

J. Crew.

What is it about that over priced place that has people panting and rushing to the Mullins Center. Classes have been skipped, papers forgotten, books left unopened and many a credit card company is now laughing in glee.

It's a good thing, this warehouse sale. I admit that I am one of those people running, leaping and gliding to the bins full of mislabeled items and wading through the general mass confusion searching for the ultimate purchase.

And there are many a thing to purchase from sweaters, bathing suits ($5?!!!!), shirts, boxers, T–shirts, jeans, pants, PJ.s, ties, socks, shoes, flip flops, belts, scarves, vests, jackets — in short it's a J. Crew–aholics dream come. It's also a compulsive buyers worse nightmare, but that won't stop any one from going. Runs right on through the weekend until 5:00 p.m. on Sunday.

— Tara MK Connelly

Show Hampshire College

Music lovers rejoice.

Hampshire College has consistently brought talented underground rock bands to the local area. Last year some of the bands that played were Team Dresch, Huggy Bear, Syrup, Weston, Kaia and Tuscadero.

Friday night marks the return of shows at Hampshire. Appearing tomorrow night will be the Queers and Huffy.

The Queers are a local legend from New England. For the past 10 years they have been spewing out their own form of homo–core punk rock that has gained them national fame. Their most recent record was released on Lookout Records the famed California label.

Huffy is one of the best new bands hailing from Burlington, VT. And no they don't sound a bit like Phish.

It is a night that will surely be the first of many great shows at Hampshire this year.

— Mike Burke

Video Pulp Fiction

On Sept. 12, Tarantino's Academy Award–winning, pop– cultural phenomenon Pulp Fiction was released on video. Just a warning for those of you who venture into the video store this month — especially for you die–hard Quentin Tarantino fans.

This eagerly awaited release (which finally freed up the screens of small movie theaters) is sure to make for a Friday night tug–of–wars in the smaller video stores who only shelve about 20 copies.

However, a word of advice: do not be tempted to pick up Tarantino's acting venture, Destiny Turns on the Radio, which comes out on video this week. Haven't heard about it? Probably because it lasted about one week in the theaters last spring. Just because he can direct, doesn't mean he can act (and boy, did he pick a bad movie to explore his Thespian feelings in).

— Laura Stock

Farm-Aid joins bands together in Kentucky

By Rob Stevens
Oct 1

FARM-AID
Ky.

LOUISVILLE — The 10th Anniversary of Farm-Aid was held on Sunday in Louisville, Ky., the site of the original Farm-Aid held in 1985. This year's show was played in front of the biggest audience ever, a sold out show of over 45,000 people.

The show featured a wide variety of performers ranging from original Farm–Aid members to new and up and coming country–rock acts. Most of the performers were artist who have been able to stretch the label of "country" music into the world of mainstream. Over 10 acts were brought to Kentucky to help the plea of thousands of southern farmers who have been hit by hard times.

The first few acts of the concert dragged. From about 4 p.m. to about 7 p.m. the show displayed straight country acts. Bands called the Supersuckers, Blackhawk and solo artists such as John Conlee and Willie Nelson took the stage. The Kentucky crowd which consisted of people mostly from Kentucky, Indiana, Illinois and Tennessee, enjoyed the opening performers and more traditional sounding music.

The real musical events did not happen until about 7 p.m. when the Dave Matthews Band took the stage. This band took the show from a ho–hum atmosphere to a state of sheer energy and musical explosion. Ripping out the Bob Dylan's rock classic "All Along the Watchtower," Dave Matthews Band fully awakened the packed crowd and brought people to dance in music bliss.

The explosion of Dave Matthews was followed by the heart and soul of Hootie and the Blowfish. These guys delivered the goods. Playing in front of 45,000 people is not the easiest task, but Hootie and the boys mastered it. With a whole entourage of pop hits to play, Hootie belted out his vuice with power and emotion and his band played equally well.

The next two acts were the two Southern–rock icons who are highly respected and treated basically as gods: John Mellencamp and the pioneer of all rock, Neil Young.

Mellencamp came first playing to the delight of all the Kentuckians. His show was a powerful electric performance that made fans shake their booty. Hats flew in the air and boots stomped as he pulled out a greatest hits set list that kept everyone singing and dancing. After the Mellencamp fire Neil Young came out solo with his acoustic guitar.

Neil performed a sweet set that featured classics like "Heart of Gold" and "Sugar Mountain." Young's set was deep and raw. Standing up their all alone, he showed the crowd his roots and guts, acoustic guitar.

Unfortunately his set was too short and only was able to play about ten songs before the show ended at 11 p.m. The crowd got to see a living god play a rare gem and also got to view numerous other artists who it their all as well and it was, all in the honor and devotion to one cause, Farm–Aid.

COURTESY JOHN FALLS
The Dave Matthews Band helped raise money for Farm– Aid in Kentucky.

Career Fair
October 12, 1995

America's Full Service Discount Broker℠ is looking for motivated people to establish a career in the stock brokerage business.

OLDE offers:
4-12 month paid training program
Potential six-figure income
Excellent benefits

To possess excellent communication skills, market knowledge and the desire to excel, visit the Career Fair on October 12, 1995.

If you are unable to attend the Career Fair call:

1 800 937-0606

or send resume to:
OLDE Discount Stockbrokers
National Recruiting
751 Griswold Street
Detroit, MI 48226

OLDE DISCOUNT STOCKBROKERS
Member NYSE and NFA

An Equal Opportunity Employer

COLLEGIAN GRAPHICS
When our job is done - your day is just beginning.

DON'T "FALL" FOR THE REST... OUR PRICES ARE THE BEST
LIQUORS 44
BEERS WINES LIQUORS

MILLER GENUINE DRAFT & LIGHT $9.29 + DEP. 24 PK 12 OZ BAR BOTTLES
LABATTS ALE, BEER, ICE 12 PACKS BOTTLES $7.99 + DEP.
NATURAL LIGHT 12 PK 12 OZ CANS $8.29 + DEP.
ICEHOUSE & RED DOG $6.99 + DEP.
SHIPYARD BREWING PRIDE ALE, MOOSE BROWN ALE, BLUE HEN STOUT, PORT ISLAND LIGHT 6 PACK BOTTLES $4.99 + DEP.
BERKSHIRE BREWING STEEL RAIL PALE ALE $1.79 + DEP. 22 OZ. BOTTLES

WINE OF THE MONTH
CYPRESS CHARDONNAY, CABERNET SAUVIGNON 750 ML $4.49
VENDANGE ALL FLAVORS 1.5L $5.69
CARLO ROSSI ALL FLAVORS 4 0L $6.99
KENDALL JACKSON CHARDONNAY 750 ML $8.49
LINDEMAN'S BIN 65 CHARDONNAY 750 ML $4.99

POPOV VODKA 1.75L $9.99
GILBEYS GIN 1.75L $11.49
BACARDI LIMON 750 ML $8.99
JIM BEAM 1.75L $12.49
GLENLIVET 750 ML $18.99

We Accept All Cans and Bottles for Redemption
AT THE STOP & SHOP PLAZA
HADLEY Campus Plaza/Route 9 253-9344
NORTHAMPTON 238 King Street 586-3007
HOLYOKE 30 Lincoln Street 534-4555
SALE PRICES THURS. 10/5/95 THRU WEDS. 10/11/95
NOT RESPONSIBLE FOR TYPOGRAPHICAL ERRORS

LEADERS.
You've seen them at UMass.
W. EDWARDS DEMING.
PHIL CROSBY.
TOM PETERS.
PETER SENGE.
NOW YOU'LL WANT TO SEE
The School of Management
1995 Nirenberg Lecturer on Leadership
GARRY WILLS
"Where Have All The Leaders Gone?"
Fine Arts Center - UMass Amherst
October 10th - 7:30pm
$5 General Admission
Students FREE with ID
Group Rates Available
(413) 545-2511
Come Early.
Discover the School of Management Accelerated MBA
INFORMATION SESSION
5:30-7pm
Fine Arts Center Lobby

Hughes brother's Dead Presidents fails to deliver bill of goods

By Jon Lupo
Special to the Collegian

DEAD PRESIDENTS
Directed by Albert & Allen Hughes with Larenz Tate, Keith David
Playing at Mt. Farms Four (opens Friday)

Of all the black filmmakers that came on to the scene in the early '90s, each with their own considerable fanfare, only the Hughes brothers' Menace II Society seemed to deliver on the hype.

Unlike John Singleton's wildly over–praised Boyz N the Hood (which now plays limp and dated) and Matty Rich's feckless Straight Out of Brooklyn, the lacerating visual style and prickly narrative of Menace announced the arrival of filmmakers with true talent — not only were the Hughes brothers audaciously adept with the camera, but the characters in Menace superseded ghetto archetypes (even when they were, in a way, reinforcing them).

Of course, all that can change with a new filmmaker's second picture. Quentin Tarantino's success with Pulp Fiction notwithstanding, there's a reason why there's a phrase like "sophomore slump." John Singleton became self– important and humorless with Poetic Justice (the Best Direction Oscar nomination most definitely going to his head).

Matty Rich directed the toothless teen comedy The Inkwell and even the Hudlin brothers weren't able to match the success of their original House Party. So, what's the verdict with Dead Presidents? Is it Dead on arrival? Is it time to impeach these Presidents?

Not so fast. Call Dead Presidents the Hughes brothers' sophomore so–so. The good news is that Albert and Allen haven't lost their keen visual sense nor their intriguing riffs on familiar characterizations. What they don't have is a satisfying or even relevant final act. And it's a shame, for the majority of Dead Presidents is eloquently successful at toying with audience expectations of both its subject matter (a Vietnam veteran returns from the war to face a different old neighborhood) and the Hughes brothers' treatment of the particular era. The problems come when the story abruptly shifts gears in its last section — indeed, it actually seems to become another movie. And what begins as an engrossing character and historical study ends up a derivative heist picture; it's as if the last act of Goodfellas was directed — without irony and plenty of shaky moral posturing — by Bob Dole.

The worst part is, you never see it coming. Dead Presidents opens confidently in the Bronx of 1968. Anthony (Larenz Tate, Menace's O–Dog) has just graduated from high school and decides to enter the Marine Corps instead of following in the footsteps of his college–educated brother. He leaves behind a surrogate father figure in Kirby (Clockers' Keith David), a low–level crook, and his girlfriend Juanita (Rose Jackson) and her sister, Delilah (N'Bushe Wright). His friends, Skip (Chris Tucker) and Jose (Freddy Rodriguez), initially skeptical of Anthony's choice, soon join him in Vietnam.

After two tours of duty and four years later, Anthony returns to find a country that not so much finds him a hero but more like a dupe. He reunites with Juanita (who has had their child conceived before he left) to find she's accepted the monetary help — and the charms — of a smooth local criminal, and to a now nearly powerless Kirby.

Anthony gets a job working at a butcher shop but is let go when the store closes. Desperate, he joins forces with Kirby, Skip, Jose, Delilah (now a revolutionary and gun aficionado) and a Marine buddy turned preacher to rob an armored truck containing old cash — the dead presidents of the title — slated to be burned in Washington.

In Menace II Society, the narrator tells us of Caine, the film's drug–dealing protagonist that he's "America's worst nightmare: he's young, he's Black, and he doesn't give a f." The film went on to deepen that remark, delivering a fascinating ambiguous hero/villain/victim. Dead Presidents doesn't have that same acute link to its characters, but it does have an allegiance to them that allows the directors to peek behind the stances of their characters.

Anthony's disillusionment when he returns from Vietnam is not handled in some sort of overblown, Oliver Stone–ish way as a Tragic Loss of Idealism. Rather, it occurs when he refuses help of Juanita's former lover out of pride and he is thrown down the stairs for his "rudeness." It's not as if the rules changed when he was in Vietnam — in fact, he's just beginning to learn them.

Stylistically, the Hughes brothers trade in the feral, ferocious camerawork of Menace for more moody, atmospheric rhythms (both films were lensed by Lisa Rinzler). And they're equally confident whether cueing in on the erotic pulse of a party by lighting each room a different color of by transforming the wilds of Florida into the jungles of Vietnam (whether by necessity or on purpose, the tight shooting is effectively claustrophobic).

The music, as one would expect, is filled with tunes by period artists. But instead of siphoning off obvious Motown standards and including a token rap remake, the film uses affecting works by Sly & the Family Stone, Barry White, Al Green as well as Isaac Hayes' haunting "Walk on By," which was used in the trailer and to eerie tenor throughout the film.

The heist sequence, densely directed and obviously obsessed over (it recalls the passionate set–piecing of Brian De Palma, though it's not in the same league), is announced with a full–screen title card; the effect is jarring, much like the ghostly white painted faces of the characters. But when the movie continues on, the sensory impact of the sequence becomes more and more dissipated as the plot grinds into familiarity. The characters begin to settle for the cliches that the film just spent its previous time subverting and gently humanizing. (This is seen in the scenes immediately preceding the heist sequence, when it takes all of one scene and five minutes to reunite, her to reveal her knowledge of guns and to agree to join the conspiracy).

In a recent interview Michael Pessah and I conducted with the Hughes brothers, Albert and Allen were defensive when asked about the abrupt shift in the last act. They called the ending a recognition of the "unpredictability of life" and questioned why they were being called on and criticized on their ending while Quentin Tarantino can be simultaneously praised for manipulating narrative presumptions in Pulp Fiction. Bemoaning the audience's ignorant thirst for a typical three–act structure, the Hughes brothers see their ending as a jolt intended to shake the viewer out of his/her complacency regarding film storytelling.

Nice try, but did they have to completely gut their characters of individuality just to pull a stunt as lame and as uninspired as the ending here? It makes the preceding hour and a half seem like an elaborate come–on — promising foreplay for an ultimately unconsummated final act. In this way, it casts the whole film in a cynical light, and the Hughes brothers as shell–game directors.

A "good" ending or even a logical ending isn't about giving the audience what they want or what they've merely come to expect; it's simply about what's best for the story. The deepest thrills and the most potent surprises come from within the plot and refract from the characters, not merely in what amounts to a filmic about–face.

Dead Presidents features some terrific performances, most notably by Larenz Tate, so good last year on TV's ill–fated "South Central" and by veteran character actor Keith David. But the real stars here are Albert and Allen Hughes — talented but neophyte directors whose unfortunate miscalculation has left them with a movie that shoots itself in the proverbial foot, big–time. But enough of the film works to prove that the Hughes brothers are headed for good (maybe even great) things — if only they take better aim the next time around. B–

Jon Lupo is the former Collegian film editor.

COURTESY E C BARTY
Dead Presidents tells the sad tale of a Vietnam Vet unable to cope with the real world after the war.

WRITE FOR DEVELOPING NATIONS!
CONTACT SYED MOHAMMED ALI-RAZA
113 CAMPUS CENTER
545-1851

8 BALL
LIVE BAND! Friday 10 - 6 John Street
MICHAEL'S BILLIARDS
• 60" Big Screen T.V.
• 8- 9 ft. Tables
• Mon. Night Pool League
• Pool $5 per/hr Unlimited Players
EVERY SUNDAY 2:30pm
Single "Cash" Tournament
No Handicap - $5/person
$1 Cover • Over 21
10A Belchertown Road • Amherst, MA 01002 • 256-8284

~ REVIEW ~

Jazzotree makes political, musical statements

By Adithi Rao
Collegian Correspondent

JAZZOTREE
Bluewall
Oct. 2

If you were in the Murry D. Lincoln Campus Center this Monday night you may have heard the sound of rich poetry mingled with strains of jazz music, filling the Bluewall between 9 p.m. and 11:30 p.m.

The sound was Jazzotree, a political jazz band that is fast becoming famous around the Valley, because of its rather unusual style of music. The group uses poetry as its lyrics and puts it to music that picks up the meaning of the words and enhances them.

The themes were political, with the exception of a few numbers, as the band is mainly concerned with issues of racism, injustice, sexism and homophobia.

"Basically things that suck ... that aren't right about society," said Richard Pleasant, the band's lead singer. It is Pleasant who provides the poetry, while the music is composed by double bassist Michael Suter.

However, it is the thoughts and experiences of the collective members of the band contributions that shape the overall music repertoire of Jazzotree. One piece, "Mistakes are Made," is about the death warrant of Abu–Jamal. The band handed out pamphlets and literature calling for his release. The song "I Remember" recounted a time in Pleasant's life when he went traveling in the South with some friends where he was told to "talk funny and all that stuff." The song is about slavery and he wonders how many of his forefathers had died working on those large fields he saw through the bus windows.

The band also played a piece that hadn't been performed before titled "How Blind America." The song generated a foot–tapping response as did the universal favorite "Tragically Hip!" played by popular demand.

John Sprague on the electric woodwind was particularly animated in his response to the music, being supple of body and mobile in his facial expressions. This helped keep the mood lively until the final sing, "Mysterio." Then the rest of the band left, leaving Suter and Pleasant alone on the stage, playing a truly moving number that has much significance for Pleasant. He had written it for his mother and sister both of whom died recently.

"The music makes you move, and the words make you sit and listen," Pleasant said.

And that is what Jazzotree is about. The songs had a catchy beat, yet they never trivialize the impact of the poetry. Gib Scott–Heron, a political jazz poet since the '60s, is their leading guru, and it is in his footsteps that Pleasant and his band have followed, speaking out against he problems that exist in our society, in the way that they know how. They are racially mixed group and Richard said, "We share the stage because we share the world."

Collegian Sports
The Collegian sports page needs writers. If you want to write sports, then come down to the Collegian offices at 113 Campus Center basement or call Coacher Flemming at 545-0714

Spirit Haus
Specialty Beverage Center

Bud & Bud Lt $2.49/4-pk 16 oz Bottles
Molson Golden & Ice $7.99 12 pk Bottls
Guinness $6.99/six
Pete's Wicked (Ale, Lager, Red, Honey Wheat) $4.99/six
Jack Daniels 750 ml $11.99
Southern Comfort 750 ml $7.99
Tanqueray 1.75 liter $22.99
Goldschlager 375 ml $8.99
Captain Morgan 750 ml $8.49
Keg Special* Pete's Wicked (Ale, Red, HoneyWheat, Summer) 1/2 KEG $75.00

Micro-Brewed Beer Kegs in Stock
Wine Coolers • Ice • Mixers • Mini Kegs • Beer Glasses
FULL REDEMPTION CENTER
Rt. 9 East College Street - 253-5384
one mile east of Amherst Center on Rt. 9E
VISA – MASTERCARD – DISCOVER Accepted

50,000 EYES WILL LOOK AT YOUR AD IF YOU PLACE IT IN THE COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIEDS. FOR YOUR CONVENIENCE, LOOK FOR OUR TABLE ON THE CAMPUS CENTER CONCOURSE ON THURSDAYS.

Don't just go to shows — Write about them!
Come join us at the Collegian Arts & Living department.
545–3500
113 Campus Center

Assistant
Finance Manager
We are looking for:
•Ambitious •Responsible
•Organized
SOPHOMORES
with good communication skills
Business majors Preferred
EXPERIENCE
is a must to be successful in gaining the competitve edge in today's Business World
Applications are available at the Collegian
113 Campus Center and must be submitted by
Monday October 16th.

Books feature a murder mystery by Higgins Clark

By Seema Gangatirkar
Collegian Staff

RICHARD NORTH PATTERSON
Eyes of a Child
Alfred A. Knopf

Secrets, passion, love and betrayal are juxtaposed together in Eyes of a Child, the new novel from best-selling author, Richard North Patterson (Degree of Guilt).

A fiercely psychological and suspenseful novel, the plot is built around the triangular relationship between Teresa Peralta, her husband Richie and her lover, Christopher Paget.

Teresa, who left her husband for Christopher, is embroiled in a custody battle for her only child, Elena. Facing the loss of her daughter and trying to cope with the new changes in her life, Teresa is forced to confront the demons from her past. Added to the stress, Richie accuses Paget's son, Carlo, of molesting Elena. As Richie continues to push for custody (and it becomes more and more clear that he will win despite major character flaws), Teresa and Christopher flee to the quiet sanctuary of a vacation in Italy.

Upon their return, Richie Peralta's body is discovered, very dead. Suspicion falls immediately on Christopher. With no alibi and a very personal motive, Christopher makes a perfect suspect. Strong evidence and political agendas also make for a case against Christopher.

Added to the brilliant attorney, Caroline Masters, Christopher sets out to prove his innocence. While the evidence against Christopher continues to grow, Teresa and Christopher find themselves doubting each other, not quite sure who killed Richie.

As Teresa continues her journey into the past and desperately tries to help her daughter, Christopher struggles not only to keep his freedom as well as the woman he loves.

Eyes of a Child is masterfully told. Deeply riveting and detailed, with a shocking ending, it is a book that is hard to put down. A

MARY HIGGINS CLARK
Let Me Call You Sweetheart
Simon & Schuster

Kerry McGrath is the heroine of Let Me Call You Sweetheart, the latest mystery thriller from Mary Higgins Clark (Remember Me). A successful District Attorney, Kerry is on the fast track for a judgeship. Then Kerry's daughter, Robin, is in a car accident and Kerry takes Robin to see a famous plastic surgeon, Dr. Charles Smith. While in the doctor's office, Kerry sees a beautiful woman who looks vaguely familiar and then a week later, she sees a different woman with the same features.

Strangely disquieted, Kerry suddenly recalls that the original "face" belonged to Suzanne Reardon, the victim in the famous "Sweetheart Murder Case" that took place nearly ten years before.

With fierce determination, Kerry digs deep to find out exactly what happened on the night Suzanne was strangled to death, her body covered with dozens of red roses.

Suzanne's estranged husband, Skip, was convicted of the crime. After spending 10 years behind bars protesting his innocence, Skip is on the brink of despair.

Kerry teams up with Skip's attorney, Geoff Dorso, only to realize that no one, including her ex-husband and especially her boss who prosecuted Skip 10 years before, really cares about what really happened. As the truth unravels, Kerry finds herself and more importantly, Robin, in danger.

As usual, Higgins Clark makes the most out of psychological suspense, but the writing tends to be dry and sometimes tedious. There are times when details seem glossed over which makes the story slightly annoying at times. Overall, this isn't one of Mary Higgins Clark's better novels, but it certainly is worth a look. B/C

Collegian News
BECAUSE YOU CAN NEVER HAVE ENOUGH INFORMATION

~ MOVIE REVIEW ~

Denzel Washington a big disappointment in latest

Carl Franklin neglects development of interesting plotline, too much emphasis on setting

By Laura Stock
Collegian Staff

DEVIL IN A BLUE DRESS
Directed by Carl Franklin with Denzel Washington, Tom Sizemore, Jennifer Beals
Playing at Mt. Farms Four

Directors like Carl Franklin who can cinematically transport moviegoers back in time are often lauded for their ability to create a suspension of disbelief. With Devil in a Blue Dress, however, Franklin focuses so greatly on achieving an authentically 1948 setting, he neglects developing the already dull story.

Based on the novel by Walter Mosely, Devil is the story of Ezekiel "Easy" Rollins — an out of work, World War II veteran who is struggling to pay his bills and make a good life for himself. Easy (Denzel Washington) takes great pride in owning a home in Los Angeles, and fearing he may lose it because he can't pay his mortgage, he takes on a job even though he has qualms about it.

It sounds simple enough: Easy gets $200 dollars up front to snoop around some of the clubs he frequents and find a mysterious girl named Daphne Monet (Jennifer Beals). Apparently Daphne has been known to cavort on the wrong side of town, with the wrong sort of people (in this racially discriminatory time, the "wrong" people are blacks).

Easy is hired by a seedy-looking guy named Dewitt Albright (Tom Sizemore). Dewitt is a man who simply "does favors for people." With all sorts of naivete, Easy takes the money and gets a location on Daphne. Only after all of his friends and connections start dropping like flies does Easy realize that he has become trapped on a merry-go- round of crime that won't let him off.

It's not only a game of murder, but also of blackmail and dirty politics, all directly related to racism. It is ironic that Easy, who is himself abused and blackmailed by the police because he is black, is the man who has an iron in everybody's fire and everyone relies on him.

Ultimately, it all comes down to two men who are running for mayor — Matthew Terell (Maury Chaykin) against Todd Carter (Terry Kinney). Both of the candidates (or the miscreants working for them) want Daphne bad enough to kill anyone in their way and to throw money at Easy, literally left and right.

The film is slow moving and Washington does nothing to liven up the screen at all. His performance (like in The Pelican Brief, Crimson Tide and Philadelphia) leaves you with the feeling that he is just not acting to his full ability.

Although Washington has landed several diverse roles in his career, he has that same bland enthusiasm level in each performance. Producers know Washington is a safe bet when they need a black male lead — he has that "like-ability" that will sell movie tickets. What is happening to Washington though, is that having "like-ability," which often correlates to "familiarity," is giving him too much exposure (you know, the kind that threatens to destroy Tommy Lee Jones' acting career.)

COURTESY TRI-STAR

Denzel Washington plays Ezekiel "Easy" Rawlings in the mystery thriller Devil In A Blue Dress.

Devil is a film that leaves you frustrated. The story is a good one, but it is left to flounder in the hands of the actors. You can scrutinize the setting for things that shouldn't belong in the 1940's time period (and you will be bored enough to), but you won't find any anachronisms on the hazy white screen.

It is almost as if Franklin knew how boring the film was becoming, so he makes a feeble attempt at adding comedy by introducing some bizarre characters. Easy's crazy neighbor who pushes around a wheelbarrow and tries to chop down everyone's trees is a prime example.

Legend tells us that the Devil is an immortal entity, but the Devil in the Blue Dress will probably die at the movie theater pretty quickly. C–

■ Tube Notes

continued from page 5

Now, if you were checking into this hospital, would you want Dr. Burns as your doctor? I didn't think so. Come to think of it, what do any of those doctors do there anyway?

NBC's Thursday fine-up has two new comedies, one of them being "The Single Guy." Fortunately, the show is sandwiched between the hit shows "Friends" and "Seinfeld" in that much coveted 8:30 p.m. time slot. Unfortunately, "The Single Guy" features a basic premise that grows stale in about three seconds. Jonathan Silverman (remember Weekend at Bernie's?) is hopelessly single, much to the chagrin of his close and very married friends. The friends played by Mark Moses, Jessica Hecht, Joey Slotnik and "ER"'s Ming-Na Wen have nothing better to do than to set Jonathan up on dates that are bound to fail for one reason or another.

So follows a parade of eccentric women, none of whom fit Jonathan's standards. Clever things could be attempted with this show, but when the best side-plot the writers can come up with is a groin injury, you know it's time to change channels.

And speaking of groin injuries (sorry, Rick Aguilera), the soggy Red Sox game, the first of the Division series, lasted until 2:30 a.m. Wednesday morning. The bags under the eyes of students revealed the most faithful of Sox followers (or you Cleveland traitors). Rain delays and endless pitching changes contributed to the lengthy game, not to mention the fact that it was tied at three, then at four, for the last six innings or so (it is all a sleep-deprived blur). Those of you who fell asleep before the end, don't feel bad. Injury was added to insult as the Sox were beaten by Tony Pena's homerun (why does that name sound familiar?)

Another show in need of major surgery is "Sisters." The long-running NBC drama used to be about the semi-realistic lives of the four Reed sisters. It seems though that the show has deteriorated into something close to chaos ever since George Clooney got himself blown up in order to join the cast of the highly successful "ER." Julienne Phillips (Frankie) departed last season, leaving the morose and utterly boring duo Swoosie Kurtz and Patricia Kalember to bobble along, aided by only Emmy award–winning actress, Sela Ward.

Then, in what has to be the weirdest casting move, Jo Anderson (Charlie) was replaced by "L.A. Law"'s Sheila Kelley. The new Charlie is hard to take seriously as a doctor; she looks like she just graduated high school and the syrupy sweet voice, so grating on the nerves, hardly inspires confidence. Overall though, the whole show seems to struggle through the hour. With Georgie (Kalember) falling in love with a much younger man and Teddy (Ward) getting shot, "Sisters" seems to be heading towards the netherworld of convoluted storylines and shoddy scripting. This is one show that needs to say its good–bye, quickly and gracefully.

Laura Stock actually left the movie theater long enough to contribute to this article.

Confirm Your FALL 1995 Course Schedule!!

Starting Wednesday, September 27, the Registrar's Office will mail to you, at your local address, your course schedule for Fall 1995. Your schedule will be accurate as of September 22, including any five-college classes you might have.

Please check your printed schedule carefully!

If you have questions about your course schedule, contact the Registrar's Office. If you never attended a certain class, or are enrolled in a class not on your schedule, contact your undergraduate deans office as soon as possible, but no later than October 10.

If you do not receive your schedule by Friday, October 6, contact the Registrar's Office to confirm both your course schedule AND your local mailing address.

The Massachusetts
DAILY COLLEGIAN
New England's Largest Daily • Founded in 1890 • Daily Since 1967
Presents
Gay, Lesbian & Bisexual Supplement
Tuesday, October 10
Look For It!

Rusted Root
plus special guest
Joan Osborne
OCTOBER 16
7:30 PM
ON SALE NOW
SPRINGFIELD SYMPHONY HALL
TICKETS AVAILABLE AT THE SPRINGFIELD CIVIC CENTER BOX OFFICE, CIVIC CENTER CHARGE BY PHONE (413) 787-6600 AT ALL OUTLETS INCLUDING TOWER RECORDS, FILENE'S, ANN & HOPE & PHONE CHARGE
(617) 931-2000 • (413) 733-2500
EVENT DATE AND TIME SUBJECT TO CHANGE
PRODUCED BY JIM KOPLIK / JOHN SCHER / METROPOLITAN ENTERTAINMENT GROUP

■ professors

continued from page 5

Martin Espada

FOOTNOTES:

Title: Associate Professor of English, since 1993
Birthplace: Brooklyn, NY, 1957

Education: B.A. in history, University of Wisconsin at Madison, 1981
J.D., Northeastern University School of Law, 1985

Books: Imagine the Angels of Bread, 1996
Poetry Like Bread: Poets of the Poets of the Political Imagination from Curbstone Press, editor, 1994
City of Coughing and Dead Radiators, 1993
The Blood That Keeps Singing: Selected Poems of Clemente Soto Vélez, trans., 1991
Rebellion is the Circle of a Lover's Hands, 1990
Trumpets from the Islands of Their Eviction, 1987, 1994
The Immigrant Iceboy's Bolero, 1982, 1986

Greatest achievement to date:
"The fact that I'm still breathing."

Who Burns for the Perfection of Paper

At school, I worked after high school hours at a printing plant that manufactured legal pads
Yellow paper
stacked seven feet high and leaning as I slipped cardboard between the pages,
then brushed red glue
up and down the stack.
No gloves: fingertips required for the perfection of paper, smoothing the exact rectangle.
Sluggish by 9 pm, the hands would slide along suddenly sharp paper and gather slits thinner than the crevices of the skin, hidden.
Then the glue would sting,
hands oozing
till both palms burned
at the punchclock.

Ten years later, in law school
I knew that every legal pad was glued with the sting of hidden cuts, that every open lawbook
was a pair of hands
upturned and burning.

doing all sorts of work, from bouncer to lawyer to English professor.

It's this variety of experiences which aids Espada in the development of his work as a poet. Over the past 14 years, Espada has translated one book of poetry, published one anthology and written four books of poetry. A fifth will be be released by Norton in the spring of 1996.

"My writing has changed in terms of how my language has become more grounded — grounded in the senses, image–based, more economical, more concise," said Espada. "I pay more attention to the music of the language. It's shifting towards more autobiographical, more personal.

"Being a poet involves a very individual experience of one's imagination and is fueled by a collective experience."

Espada said his Puerto Rican background is very important to him and is often a tool used to help define his poetry.

"My work is distinctly Puerto Rican and distinctly political ... and that has not changed," Espada said.

One of the few people of color in the English department, Espada often gives back to the Asian, Latino, African Native American community.

"I feel a certain responsibility to teach certain courses and to engage certain students and do outreach to certain communities that may not happen [otherwise] without me," Espada said. "It's not a burden — I want to do it so it's a responsibility. A responsibility to reflect that community to this campus."

Espada said students are his favorite part of teaching at UMass.

"It's the best thing about working here. I like my students. They're intelligent and I expect that. They're also resourceful, inquisitive and courageous. This is an important time of life and defining the self and I enjoy helping students to do that."

Teaching creative writing also helps Espada with his own writing.

"People of all walks of life write poetry and poets need attention," Espada said. "Sometimes my teaching provides me with a certain inspiration. I will scrutinize myself more closely because I scrutinize others."

Some of the challenges in balancing a career as a full-time professor and as a working poet involve giving readings, writing and working on publishing. When asked how he balances these two parts of his life, Espada comment ed, "I don't. It's chaos. It's like any busy life. Things are not in balance — not in flux, but apparently, that's the way I want it. Although it doesn't always feel this way."

Like the other two professors, Espada teaches a variety of courses including regular courses like "Latino Poetry and Social Issues," "Creative Writing: Poetry" and seminars such as "Multicultural Visions," and "The Work of Pablo Neruda in translation."

Ron Welburn:

Ron Welburn became an English professor for may reasons one of them was because he believed he could incorporate both teaching and writing easily.

"I started out with the realization and assumption that being in the teaching profession was the best of both worlds as a writer ... it would allow me to support myself."

Welburn, a native of Pennsylvania, writes about his experiences as a blend of rural and semi-urban upbringing and his "... awareness of the natural environment, history, music of various kinds including American Indian, jazz, salsa, classical and even country & western."

His Native American heritage also plays a large part in Welburn's life.

"I wrestle with the facets of heritage that I can document back into the late 18th century," Welburn said. "I am interested in the Indian and how they became Indianized." My poems try to fight the Indianization."

Welburn said his influences for writing included "... my mother and father who told stories in different ways, the aunts and uncles [and] the poets I read while developing my style."

One of only five faculty members who is Native American, Welburn is often called on to represent his community.

"Sometimes, it's a burden when you're the only one — in my case one of five," Welburn said. "I try to keep a balance with the Native American literature courses. I'm looking at ways around bringing balance of perception to studies — not exclusively around writers of color."

Welburn, can often be found giving readings of his work through out the Valley. He wishes he had the time to do more.

"I hunger for more opportunities to read. I'm always writing and I never have enough places to read," he said.

Paul Mariani:

Paul Mariani grew up in Astoria, Queens. When Levitown opened, his parents moved to the suburbs. The oldest of seven kids, Mariani takes the experiences of his life and applies them to his work.

Mariani, an anomaly at UMass, has been teaching at UMass since he got his doctorate in 1968. Mariani credits his 28 years of service to the fact that, "... I love the students and I like the faculty. I don't like the way the state's treating the University, ... it's painful to see the way Boston treats us."

Holding a doctorate that specializes in Victorian literature, Mariani applied to teach at UMass and was offered a spot if he could teach modern and contemporary poetry. According to Mariani, that was what he wanted to get his doctorate in the first place.

Mariani has taught first–year writing, British literature, world literature and masterpieces and various seminars on Gerard Manley Hopkins, William Yeats, Hart Crane and William Carlos Williams.

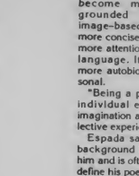
"It's a poetry I try to make accessible to a large audience," Mariani said, "It deals with family drama — what it means to be a father, a son."

"I find my work is filled with people in situations which are elegiac, funny, comic, tough — in terms of the situations it recalls, the dramas, the losses, the disappointments," Mariani said.

Although most of Mariani's work is free verse, Mariani said he finds he is, "using more and more form, but retaining a recognizable American form — you can hear a person speaking."

Mariani did not start to write poetry until he was into his early 30s. As for combining careers as poet and professor, Mariani holds

Paul Mariani



FOOTNOTES:

Title: Professor of English, since 1968
Birthplace: Astoria, NY, 1940

Education: B.A. in English Manhattan College 1962
Preceptor, Colgate University, 1962–1964
Ph.D. in English, CUNY, 1968

Books: Poetry: The Great Wheel, 1996; Salvage Operations: New & Selected Poems, 1990; Prime Mover, 1985. Crossing Cocytus, 1982; Timing Devices, 1979; Biography: Lost Puritan: A Life of Robert Lowell, 1994; Dream Song: The Life of John Berryman, 1990; William Carlos Williams: A New World Naked, 1981; Criticism: An Usable Past: Essays on Modern and Contemporary Poetry, 1984; William Carlos Williams: The Poet and His Critics, 1975; A Commentary on the Complete Poems of Gerard Manley Hopkins, 1970

Greatest achievement to date: "I've had three types of success. First, the success of my family — we've raised three sons and they're doing good things. Second, I've written all the books I wanted to write; I've accomplished that. Three, is my teaching. I feel like my focus has shifted and that I'm really teaching — students, people. I'm leaving a legacy

The Gods Who Come Among Us In the Guise of Strangers for Charlie Miller

Late—again, with our mail months dropping to the streams & the shadows of the Old Grove.
Reining across the TV screen, suddenly,
there would be Charlie's unquestioned shock of white hair, followed by the heart–stopping shock
of greeting, just passing through, he'd say, and ... seeing as the light was on — thought we might have ourselves a talk.

Don't ever have time enough for Charlie!
Usually not. The story of my life.
All the one–at–Choices' boys of someone, who seems always busier than he is.
Then abruptly & disarmingly,
death put a stop to Charlie's visits
Summer moths collect still at the windows
Then leaves & winter set. Then summer moths again. Each year, old ghost, I seem to miss you more and more: your youth spent with Auden & the Big Ones, words — theirs, yours — helping you survive a brutal youth. Too late I see now how you honored me like those hidden gods of old who walk among us like the dispossessed, and who, if you are among the lucky ones, top at your window when you least expect to ask you for a cup of water and a little of your time.

AWARD WINNING LOCAL SERVICE
• Full Service Autobody Insurance Approved
• Full Selection of genuine GM Goodwrench parts.
• Mass. State Inspection Station #3243
• Fine selection of new and used cars & trucks.
• Ask about our FREE 18 point maintenance check.
PAIGE'S CHEVROLET Amherst Geo
DICKINSON ST. • BETWEEN RT. 9 & MAIN ST. • 253-3444 • PARTS LINE 253-5920

ARTS & LIVING
It's a cool section.
With cool topics.
And cool people.
So get off your cool butt.
And come write for us.

Hu Ke-Lau
Frank Santos
R-Rated Hypnotist
9pm Seating - 10pm Show
Adults Only! Don't Delay!
Tickets On Sale now
705 memorial Dr.
Chicopee, MA
(413) 593-5222

Soho Hot
Steve Madden Shoes
Downtown Amherst

☆ Anthony's ☆
The Best in Adult Entertainment
Sunset Thomas
Oct. 13 & 14
The Original Wicked Woman Adult Film Star
Nikki Dial
Oct. 27 & 28
Penthouse Centerfold, Adult Film Star
4 Shows Daily
6pm, 8pm, 10pm, 12am
Tuesday is College Night - $2 off Cover
Special Seating For 18+ Positive ID Required
Now Hiring New Entertainers "Join the best team around for BIG $$$
MON - WED: 4pm–2am
THURS - SAT: 12pm–2am
CLOSED SUNDAYS
500 New Ludlow Rd., South Hadley
Exit 5 MA Pike to 33 North. Take right at Jiffy Lube, 1/2 mile on left.
413 536-0502

The University of Massachusetts at Amherst presents
FAIR PLAY:
A Candid Conversation with MARTINA NAVRATILOVA
and
DAVE PALLONE
Dave Pallone, author of Behind The Mask: My Double Life in Baseball written by Alan Steinberg
October 11, 1995, 8 pm
Mullins Center
Tickets are: General Public: $20 & $10; Students: $5
Tickets available in person at the Mullins Center Box Office, all Ticketmaster locations or charge by phone at (413)733-2500.Ticket sales for groups of 15 or more are available by calling Kerry Lynch at (413)545-3332.
Every effort will be made to assure accessibility. Please contact the Mullins Center at (413) 545-0505 by October 6, 1995, if possible, to arrange appropriate accomodations. Sign language interpreter services

TRAVEL SMART!
FROM NEW YORK
One Way / Roundtrip
LONDON $146 $292
PARIS $213 $426
SAN JOSE, COSTA RICA $220 $439
TOKYO Roundtrip $859
Scheduled flights.
Fares to worldwide destinations.
Eurailpasses Available.
Weekend surcharges may apply.
Customs–immigration taxes apply.
Fares subject to change without notice. Int'l. student I.D. cards may be required.
PRISM TRAVEL
342 Madison Ave., NY NY 10173
212-986-8420
800-272-9676
In NYC

THE BLACK SHEEP
79 MAIN ST.
AMHERST, MA
253-3442
10 % DISCOUNT TO STUDENTS ALL YEAR WITH UMASS ID.

Ron Welburn

FOOTNOTES:

Title: Associate Professor of English, since 1992
Birthplace: Berwyn, Penn., 1944

Education: B.A. in English and psychology, Lincoln University, 1968
M.A. in creative writing, University of Arizona, 1971
Ph.D. in American studies, NYU, 1983

Books: Blue Winter Night, 1978
Heartland, 1981
Council Decisions, 1991

Greatest achievement to date:
"My being able to maintain, to hold onto a Native heritage and affirm an Indian identity no matter how it was compromised by growing up in the urban northwest."

Peopling Winter

Ice winds and snow
are not imposed upon us.
Abiding winter completes the circle
we need and makes wind other realities, its metaphors examined
by wary tropical sensibilities abducted from the cranial island's magic songs.

Strongest of our two bloodstreams is the one peopling winter
in the mountains beneath Ga'lunlati, from Otsiningo, and in the wigwams, strong to realize that the snow blankets our Mother, that we will hear crows first after dawn, that cardinals pumping through cedars and spruces remind us how strength fans out to the blood.

Even unsuspecting on city streets,
our shadows of winter live as hunters
on snowshoes, following the tracks of wolves.
Shadows of snowsnake games and the old stories still comfort us like blankets of snow and remind us to whose land we are

■ readings

continued from page 5

actually won first place.

After the featured poets (approximately 40 minutes), eight people will be chosen to compete. Those chosen to compete must submit their own original works. Random people will be selected from the audience to judge the competition which will last three rounds. The winner of the competition will take home $10.

University of Massachusetts junior, Danielle Carriveau, who will host Friday's event, stresses that the SLAM is "low pressure and it's for fun." The Café Mediterranean is located in downtown Amherst. Sign up for the Amherst Poetry SLAM is at 8 p.m. Call 549-7122 or 546-5155 for more information.

The Amherst Writers sponsor about 20 workshops a year. On Oct. 10, the group will hold a big reading at the Jones Library in Amherst. Sue Walker, editor of Negative Capabilities and Pat Schneider, editor of Peregine, two national literary magazines, will read their poetry from 7 p.m. – 9 p.m., followed by a reception at a location to be announced at the readings. Also at the Jones Library, "A Celebration of Emily Dickinson" will take place on Sunday, Oct. 15. The event will feature poems by the Recluse of Amherst, music composed by Leo Smit and Rosalind Rees.

The Jones Library is located on Amity Street in Amherst. For more information about the Schneider/Walker readings, please call the Amherst Writers at 253-3307. Tickets for the Celebration of Emily Dickinson are $7 adults, $5 children. Tickets are available at the Jones Library. For more information, call the Jones Library at 256-4090.

On campus, the Augusta Savage Gallery will present the first event in a two-part series entitled: "Black and Puerto Rican: Images/Multiple Forms" on Oct. 18 at 7 p.m. Brenda Marie Osbey from Loyola University in New Orleans and Professor Martin Espada of the University of Massachusetts English Department will read their published and soon-to-be published poems.

Osbey's poems are about the presence of African- Americans, particularly women, in her native town of New Orleans. Many of Espada's poems reflect the political solidarity by members of society's underclass.

The Augusta Savage Gallery is located in the New Africa House on the University of Massachusetts–Amherst campus. The performance is free and open to the public. For more information, please call 545-5177.

■ Dickinson

continued from page 5

career. A mere five poems are dated from before 1858. These poems were written solely for the reading of her friends. One of these poems was published without Dickinson's approval in the Springfield Republican in 1852. It is believed it wasn't until 1858 when she realized the immense amount of talent she had in her pen.

During her lifetime only seven of her poems were published and all of them had been butchered by editors who failed to see the genius behind her words. Her writing was greatly influenced by Thomas Wentworth Higginson, a writer whom she had admired. Although she only met him once in her life, Higginson went on to become her "safest friend." She once wrote to him stating he saved her life by helping her deal with years of emotional crisis. Higginson refused to edit her work but discouraged her from publishing.

Over the next eight years, from 1858 – 1866, Dickinson wrote over 1,100 poems dealing with four major subjects, love, death, nature and God. These were also the toughest years of her life as she had several emotional breakdowns. Most of her time was spent in seclusion in her bedroom where she wrote and wrote and wrote.

From 1866 until her death in 1886, Dickinson wrote less than 50 poems due to her failing physical health and family problems. She had great trouble with her eyes hindering her sight. Also, her workload in the home increased greatly.

Her father passed away in 1874 and just a year later her mother was disabled with a stroke that left her an invalid until she died in 1882. Dickinson suffered another breakdown following the death of her close friend, Judge Otis Lord. On May 15, 1886 Emily Dickinson died of nephritis.

During her lifetime, Dickinson stored all of her poems in an beautiful ebony box that was inherited by her sister Lavina Dickinson. Since then Emily Dickinson's work has been published in numerous collections and anthologies. Through this her work has gained her much posthumous fame.

Through her lifetime, Dickinson wrote 1,775 poems, only seven of which were published during her life. Much has been written about the effect her seclusion from the real world had on her writing. By living almost entirely in Amherst her worldly experiences were severely hindered. But to make up for this, Dickinson was a studious reader of her family's library which contained over 1,000 works.

Due to the sporadic publishing of her poems, Dickinson did not receive a great amount of literary praise until 50 years after her death. Over the past 50 years her popularity has soared and now she is recognized as one of the top American poets ever. In 1955 a definitive anthology of Dickinson's poems was published in three volumes, edited by T.H. Johnson. Three years later, Johnson edited a collection of her letters.

Located at 280 Main Street, the Emily Dickinson Homestead has become one of the most popular tourist attractions in town. Visitors may visit selected rooms in the poet's home and see the bedroom where she spent years in seclusion. Until the end of October tours are held at 1:30 p.m., 2:15 p.m., 3 p.m. and 3:45 p.m. on Wed. – Sat. There is a $3.00 admission fee and reservations are encouraged due to limited space. Call the Homestead at 542-8161 for more information.

■ publications

continued from page 5

ed to five by each author. Art work is accepted in either slide or photo form and limited to ten submissions.

Photography is limited to no more than three color submissions and six black and white. No negatives are accepted.

"We get tons of stuff," said Sarah Gillis, an undeclared sophomore and Spectrum photo editor. "Anyone can submit. We really try to represent artists at UMass. Last year we really tried to include everything that was submitted."

The pieces that are submitted are looked over by individual editors from each category. The amount of editors for each category varies according to Gillis.

Even though Chase and Gillis are pleased with the amount of material passe din they feel more should be entered.

"We don't get as much as we should," said Gillis. "We advertise and post flyers but a lot of people don't know about us and we've been here for 30 years."

The Spectrum is holding a general intrust meeting today from 6 p.m. – 8 p.m., in Campus Center Rm. 163. Staff positions include art, photography, poetry, prose and production. Everyone is welcome.

JABBERWOCKY
Published Yearly

Beginning last year the UMass Undergraduate English Club publishes their annual literary magazine, Jabberwocky. The magazine was creates last spring. Five hundred copies were distributed the first day it came out. This year the magazine was made into a two semester project allowing more time to be given for writers to submit their work. Each submission was reviewed anonymously by the 14 member board. This year the printing was doubled for even more distribution and greater notoriety.

NOMMO NEWS AND DRUMS SUPPLEMENT
Publishes randomly throughout the year

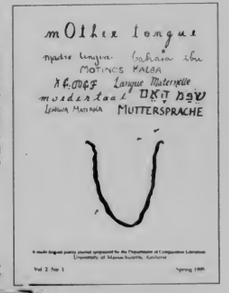
Another way students, especially those in the Asian, Latin, African and Native American community, can submit art work, prose, poetry and photos is by participating in the "Nommo News and Drums Supplement."

The supplement's deadline is Oct. 20. Any ALANA student who is interested in writing poetry, short stories, editorials, personals and anything else of interest to the ALANA community could contact Charran at 6-2363 or Chinedu at 6-5562.

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY COLLEGIAN
Published Daily

Yes, that's right. The Collegian can be a place to publish poetry, prose and other works of art. Local and student artist who have shows at various galleries around campus can submit to the paper a press packet on the exhibit. Photos are encouraged along with times that the artist is available for a possible interview.

There has been an influx of capable writers this semester who are interested in covering art works. It's a nice way to attract attention and it looks good in a future press packet.



"Because I Could Never Stop For Death" by Emily Dickinson

Because I could never stop for D...
He kindly stopped for me;
The carriage held but just ourselves
And immortality.

We slowly drove, he knew no haste
And I put away
My labor, and my leisure too,
For his civility.

We passed the school where children played,
Their lessons scarcely done;
We passed the fields of grazing grain,
We passed the setting sun.

We paused before a house that seemed
A swelling on the ground;
The roof was scarcely visible,
The cornice but a mound.

Since then 'tis centuries; but each
Feels shorter than the day
I first surmised the horses' heads
Were toward eternity.

Celebrating a decade of Night Life
Pearl Street Nightclub
WEDNESDAY
GAY NIGHT
With Special Guest D.J.'s
THURSDAY
18+ DANCE PARTY
Hosted by Nick Danger of Today's Wknd
The Area's Biggest Dance Party,
Music by Spin, Inc.
FRIDAY
RETRO NIGHT
Music From the 70s 80s & 90s
With D.J. DENNIS
9:00 pm - 1:00 am
"FREE ADMISSION WITH THIS AD"
SATURDAY
CLUB NIGHT
RETRO TO TECHNO
Playing the Best Dance Music from the 80's & 90's
SUNDAY
Sun. Oct. 8 - 8:00 pm - 11:30 pm
Teen Dance Party
Ages 16-20 Welcome
LIVE MUSIC...
Thur., Oct. 5 - 7:00 pm All Ages
DAR WILLIAMS
Peter Mulvey
Fri., Oct. 6 - 8:30 pm
Live Album Recording
JOHN SHELDON & BLUE STREAK
Sat., Oct 7 - 6:30 pm 18+
FILTER w/ Everclear
Downstairs 9:00 pm 18+
POSSUM DIXON w/ Miss Reed
Free Admission w/ Filter Ticket
Sun., Oct. 8 - 7:30 pm All Ages
BIG MISTAKE
Gratitude / Big Lick / Accidental Birth
Mon., Oct. 9 - 8:00 pm 18+
MIKE WATT
Six Finger Satellite / Swish
Thurs., Oct. 12 - 7:30 pm All Ages
MURPHY'S LAW
Thermos
Fri., Oct. 13 - 8:30 pm 18+
Pink Floyd Tribute
THE MACHINE
Sat., Oct. 14 - 8:30 pm
TEXAS FLOOD
Sun., Oct. 15 - 7:30 pm
MARIANNE FAITHFULL
Tues., Oct. 17 - 8:00 pm
LITTLE FEET
COMING
10/19 JILL SOBULE 18+
10/20 THROWING MUSES 18+
10/21 JAWBREAKER / JAWBOX All Ages
10/22 FREDDY JONES BAND 18+
10/24 SOUTHERN CULTURE ON THE SKIDS 18+
10/27 MONSTER MAGNET / KYUSS up All Ages
10/27 BETTY / downstairs
10/28 G. LOVE & THE SPECIAL SAUCE 18+
10/30 JIM ROSE CIRCUS SIDESHOW 18+
10/31 MACHINEHEAD All Ages
11/6 ROBBEN FORD / SONNY LANDRETH
11/7 SOUNDGARDEN All Ages
Tickets for all shows available at Ticketmaster Box Office 586-5666, Radio The Rock, Strawberries, For the Record in Amherst, About Music in Greenfield
10 Pearl Street, Northampton
413-586-7777

A HUGHES BROTHERS FILM
DEAD PRESIDENTS
THE ONLY COLOR THAT COUNTS IS GREEN.
HOLLYWOOD PICTURES presents a CAUSAN PICTURES / UNDERWORLD ENTERTAINMENT production HUGHES BROTHERS
"DEAD PRESIDENTS" LARENZ TATE KEITH DAVID CHRIS TUCKER N'BUSHE WRIGHT FREDDY RODRIGUEZ BOKEEM WOODBINE DANNY ELFMAN BARRY POSTER
ALLEN + ALBERT HUGHES MICHAEL HENRY BROWN MICHAEL HENRY BROWN THE HUGHES BROTHERS
R RESTRICTED
Distributed by BUENA VISTA PICTURES DISTRIBUTION INC. HOLLYWOOD PICTURES COMPANY
Coming October To Theatres Everywhere

UNDERGRADUATE RIGHTS & RESPONSIBILITIES

OFF CAMPUS STUDENTS:

The 1995-96 Rights and Responsibilities booklet is now available at the:
*CAMPUS CENTER INFORMATION DESK
*DEAN OF STUDENTS OFFICE (227 WHITMORE)
*INFORMATION DATA BANK (2ND FLOOR LOBBY WHITMORE)

THE BOOKLET CONTAINS INFORMATION ON:

Academic Regulations
Alchohol policy
Code of student conduct
Sexual Harrassment Policy
Grading System
Smoking Policy
...and everything else you need to know about campus regulations

ALL STUDENTS ARE RESPONSIBLE FOR KNOWING THE REGULATIONS AND POLICIES IN THIS BOOKLET.

University of Massachusetts at Amherst

Atlanta, Cinncinati inch closer to meeting in NLCS

Braves escape again, head home up 2–0

By John Mossman
Associated Press

DENVER —Yet again, the Atlanta Braves made a great escape against the Colorado Rockies.

For the second straight game, the Braves could not put away the Rockies until the ninth inning, winning 7-4 Wednesday night and going home with a 2-0 lead in the NL playoff series.

Braves	7
Rockies	4

The latest bit of theatrics came courtesy of Fred McGriff and Mike Mordecai, who hit RBI singles in the ninth for Atlanta. The Rockies compounded their troubles by allowing two more runs on an error. On Tuesday night, the Braves won 5-4, with the Rockies loading the bases in the ninth and forced to use a pitcher to pinch hit in their final at-bat.

Larry Walker's three-run homer and Andres Galarraga's RBI single had given Colorado a 4-3 lead going to the ninth Wednesday night, overcoming a pair of solo homers by Marquis Grissom, who increased his series total to three.

But Chipper Jones led off the inning by slicing a double down the left-field line off Curtis Leskanic.

Mike Munoz then gave up a bloop single to McGriff, which scored Jones. David Justice flied out and Darren Holmes struck out Javy Lopez.

Mike Devereaux then singled to center, with McGriff taking second, and Mordecai — batting for pitcher Alejandro Pena — lined a single to center to drive home the go-ahead run. Mordecai took second on the throw home. Rafael Belliard then hit a routine grounder to second, but Eric Young's throw to first was low and wide.

Pena got the win for the second straight night, and Mark Wohlers pitched a one-hit ninth for his second save of the series. Munoz was the loser for the Rockies, in the playoffs in just their third season. The series now goes to Atlanta. In Game 3 on Friday night, John Smoltz (12-7) is scheduled to pitch for the Braves against Bill Swift (9-3).

Braves starter Tom Glavine breezed through the first five innings, giving up just two hits and one walk. But then in the sixth, Ellis Burks reached base on shortstop Jeff Blauser's throwing error, and Dante Bichette produced his second pop-fly hit. Walker then homered to right-center, a 442-foot drive.

Atlanta, which stranded 12 runners, left the bases loaded in the seventh. With one out, Bruce Ruffin allowed a single to Jones and a walk to McGriff. Justice then blooped a single to right, with Jones stopping at third. Ruffin, however, struck out Lopez and retired pinch-hitter Mike Devereaux on a groundout.

Pinch-hitter Dwight Smith doubled with one out in the eighth but was stranded when Curtis Leskanic struck out Grissom and got Lemke on a fly ball.

Colorado finally went ahead after Bichette doubled off Steve Avery in the eighth. Avery, who came in to start the inning, was making his first relief appearance since the 1992 NL playoffs against Pittsburgh. Walker struck out, and Galarraga greeted Pena with a double just over the glove of Justice at the base of the wall in right. Grissom's first homer came off Lance Painter's fastball down the middle and traveled 428 feet to right-center.

Mark Lemke and Jones opened the third with singles and Justice walked with one out, loading the bases. Lopez then hit a long sacrifice fly to left.

Grissom connected again off Painter in the fourth, golfing a low pitch 388 feet to left to make it 3-0.

Blauser and left fielder Ryan Klesko narrowly averted a collision while chasing Bichette's pop fly, which fell for a double in the first. Blauser injured his right ankle but remained in the game. Burks was shaken up and left the game after diving for Smith's double in the eighth. Burks appeared to hit his chin and sustained a mild concussion.

Notes: In what could be the final game at Coors Field this season, the Rockies drew a sellout of 50,063 — the largest paid crowd in the ballpark's brief history and 23 more than Tuesday night's previous record ... The Braves won 25 games in their last at-bat this season.

Reds handed victory, take series lead 2-0

By John Nadel
Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — The Cincinnati Reds took advantage of Giveaway Night at Dodger Stadium.

The Reds, handed scoring chances and runs all evening, beat the Los Angeles Dodgers 5-4 Wednesday to take a 2-0 lead in their NL playoff series.

Reds	6
Dodgers	4

Eric Karros homered twice for the Dodgers, who outhit Cincinnati 14-6. But Los Angeles could not overcome a key error, a botched pitchout and three walks that led to the eventual winning run. The Dodgers also lost right fielder Raul Mondesi, ejected after the seventh inning.

Karros hit a two-run homer with one out in the ninth, making it 5-4. But Jeff Brantley retired Tim Wallach and Delino DeShields for a save.

Cincinnati's first two runs, on a homer by Reggie Sanders, were set up by a throwing error by shortstop Chad Fonville. Then, with the score 2-2, a wide throw by catcher Mike Piazza on a pitchout led to another run.

The Reds added two more in the ninth on only one hit, a two-out RBI single by Mariano Duncan, who scored an inning earlier on Larkin's hit.

The rest of the best-of-5 series is in Cincinnati, starting with Game 3 Friday night. Hideo Nomo (13-6, 2.54 ERA) will pitch for the Dodgers against David Wells (6-5, 3.59 ERA).

The game was played before a paid crowd of 46,051 — about 10,000 below a sellout. A crowd of 44,199 attended Tuesday night's game, won by the Reds 7-2.

This game was one of missed opportunities for the Dodgers. They had 14 hits — four by Fonville — and stranded 11 runners, eight of them in the fifth, sixth and seventh innings. Piazza, second in the NL with a .346 average, finished 0-for-5.

They also missed Mondesi, ejected by plate umpire Bob Davidson after the seventh inning. Mondesi was the on-deck hitter when DeShields fouled out with the bases loaded to end the inning, and was tossed for apparently making remarks to Davidson.

Duncan singled with one out in the eighth off loser Antonio Osuna. With Larkin was batting, Duncan stole second on an 0-2 pitch, beating Piazza's wide throw. Larkin followed by looping a single down the right-field line.

The Reds combined three walks, three steals and Duncan's single to score twice in the ninth. Mark Lewis had an RBI grounder. Dave Burba, the second of four Cincinnati pitchers, earned the victory with one scoreless inning of relief.

Dodgers starter Ismael Valdes retired the first 11 batters before Ron Gant reached second with two outs in the fourth on a wild throw by Fonville.

Sanders made the Dodgers pay for the mistake with a home run to center for a 2-1 lead. Fonville took over at shortstop in the last month for All-Star Jose Offerman, who made 35 errors.

The Dodgers tied it in a hurry as Karros hit John Smiley's second pitch in the bottom half over the fence in center, close to where Sanders' ball went out.

The Dodgers had taken a 1-0 lead in the first on a lead-off single by Brett Butler, a sacrifice by Fonville and a two-out double by Karros.

The Dodgers didn't score in the fifth, sixth and seventh despite getting a total of seven hits and a walk in the three innings. Piazza fouled out with two runners on to end the fifth and Valdes flied out with the bases loaded to finish the sixth. The Dodgers reloaded the bases with one out in the seventh, but Wallach grounded into a forceout at the plate and DeShields fouled out on a 3-2 pitch.

Smiley was lifted after six innings. He allowed nine hits and walked none. Valdes went seven innings, allowing just three hits and no unearned runs.

Notes: Dodgers manager Tom Lasorda is the fifth manager in baseball history to manage the same team to the playoffs in three different decades.

■ Sox

continued from page 16

know Mo Vaughn has done so much to get us here," he said. "I guarantee you one thing: Friday night, Mo will be batting third and Jose will be fourth.

"We're going to live and die by it."

Series Notes: Third base umpire Don Denkinger had to leave the game after twisting his knee on a play at third in the first inning. A crew of five — no right field umpire — worked the rest of the game ... Before the game, the AL put Albert Belle's sawed-off bat on display for reporters and photographers. The Red Sox had asked that it be inspected because they suspected it was doctored, but it was found to be clean ... Belle was named AL player of the month on Tuesday for the second straight month. He hit 17 home runs, tying Babe Ruth's record for September, and drove in 32 runs with a .938 slugging percentage ... The crowd of 44,264 was the largest in Jacobs Field's two-year history, beating Tuesday night's 44,218 ... When the Red Sox hit three home runs in Tuesday night's series opener (John Valentin, Luis Alicea, Tim Naehring), it was the first time they hit three in a postseason game since Fred Lynn, Bernie Carbo and Carlton Fisk homered in Game 6 of the 1975 World Series against Cincinnati ... The Indians won the regular-season series from Boston 7-6 this year. Cleveland has won the last four season series, after Boston won every season series from 1983 to '91.

Red Sox notes: Aguilera listed as day–to–day

By Jimmy Golen
Associated Press

CLEVELAND — Rick Aguilera was a big reason why the Red Sox made the playoffs and he was supposed to be the key to getting past Cleveland in the first round.

But Aguilera was not available on Wednesday night because of a pulled hamstring muscle and he may not be in the bullpen for Game 3 on Friday, either.

Aguilera was injured in the 11th inning of Tuesday night-Wednesday morning's game when he slipped on the wet mound during his follow through.

"Anything can happen on a wet field," Red Sox manager Kevin Kennedy said Wednesday before Game 2 of the best-of-5 series against Cleveland. "And unfortunately it happened to our big guy last night."

Aguilera was examined by team doctor Art Pappas after the game and again Wednesday. Pappas said the reliever had a slight pull of his left hamstring and is day-to-day.

"I don't see this as a major, long-term concern at this point," Pappas said.

But every game without Aguilera is a concern for the Red Sox. When they played Cleveland without him in May, they blew three late leads.

That series led to the demotion of closer Ken Ryan and forced Boston to trade top pitching prospect Frankie Rodriguez to Minnesota for Aguilera.

"We realized then that we couldn't wait any longer," Kennedy said before Game 1. "He's been outstanding for us and we wouldn't be here right now if we didn't make that trade."

Since then, Aguilera has been successful in 20 of 21 save attempts.

"When you lose a guy that's been a horse for you down the stretch, yeah, it hurts," catcher Mike Macfarlane said. "But we've got some guy with closer experience."

• Kennedy said he will use everybody else to fill in for Aguilera. Mike Stanton, who has allowed one earned run in 23 2-3 post-season innings, is a likely sub after resting from his 2 1-3 inning performance in Game 1.

Stan Belinda and Joe Hudson have also been closers in the past "I'll use everybody," Kennedy said.

Willie McGee, who has been in the World Series four times, got the start in right field for Game 2 in place of Lee Tinsley. "Willie is a veteran and he has some experience," Kennedy said. "He's faced Orel Hershiser in the national League. Orel is a great pitcher and I want some experience out there tonight. Lee has been hurt a lot in September, and I want to get a veteran in there tonight."

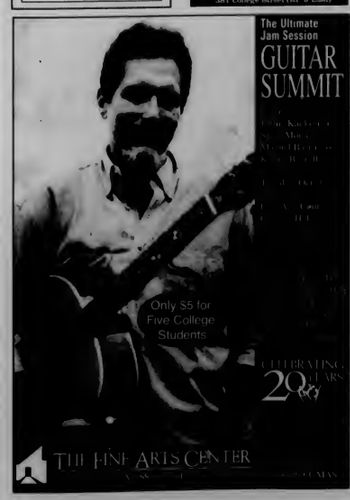
Tinsley played most of the season in centerfield, but he lost his starting job to Dwayne Hosey. Boston's usual right fielder is Troy O'Leary, but he developed a stiff back on the eve of the playoffs and was left off the roster.

Tinsley went 0-for-5 in Game 1 with two strikeouts. He is also 0-for-6 against Cleveland starter Orel Hershiser in his career. O'Leary was feeling better Wednesday and will hit off a tee on Friday to prepare in case Boston makes it to the second round, Pappas said.

UMASS ARTS COUNCIL
GRANT DEADLINE
Friday, Oct. 20
Grants for:
• Visual Art & Design
• Literature, Theater, Performance Art
• Film & Video
• Music
• Artistic components in multicultural programs
PROPOSALS ARE ENCOURAGED FROM STUDENT GROUPS
Applications, guidance & information: Campus Activities Office Student Union or the Arts Council 101 Hasbrouck 545-0202

AMHERST SUNSHINE CARWASH
Automatic wash/wax
Daily 9 a.m.- 5 p.m.
Self Service
Open 24 Hours
Soap / Rinse / Wax
Bubble Brush / Tire Cleaner
Engine Degreaser, Vacuum Cleaners & Bill Changers
381 College Street (Rt 9 East)

AT THE GATES OF SMITH COLLEGE
Held Over Thru Oct. 12
Daily at 7:15
(Tickets from 6:30)
STEVEN Weber PENELOPE Stewart
BIGOUDINET Weaver
Jeffrey HILARIOUS THE NEW YORK TIMES
MOVING FUNNY ELLE DAILY NEWS
Separate Tickets Daily at 9:15 (Tickets from 8:30)
"A Deliciously Complex Crime Story."
THE USUAL SUSPECTS
A BRYAN SINGER FILM
ACADEMY OF MUSIC NORTHAMPTON Cinema Center 584-8435



• Weekly Specials on Regular Beers • Fine Wines
R&P Liquors
• Largest Selection of Micro-Brews in S. Amherst • Fridge Rentals
253-9742
Minutes from Mill Valley, The Brook, & The Boulders
505 West St. • South Amherst

MIKE'S WESTVIEW CAFE
Beer of the week
16 oz ICE HOUSE BOTTLES $1.50
Cocktail of the week
16 oz Margaritas

Understanding Eating Disorders:
Strategies for Friends and Families
Wed. October 18 room 174 or Tues. November 14 room 804
6:30 - 8 p.m. - Murray Lincoln Campus Center, UMass
I think my roommate has an eating disorder.
How can I be sure? What should I do?
I think my sister is anorexic and she isn't getting any help.
How can I convince her to see a professional?
Who should I suggest.. Where should she go?
I'm concerned about my friend who has bulimia.
She says it's under control, but I don't think it is.
I'm really afraid... What can I do to help?
If you are concerned about someone who you know or suspect is struggling with an eating disorder, come to this informal workshop to explore how you can help and cope with these issues.
For more information, please call University Health Services 549-2671, Clinic 4 - ext. 233 or 234

We Deliver
Kai Chi
To UMass
Chinese-American Cuisine Restaurant & Bar
Mt. Farms Mall, Rt. 9 Hadley • 586-2774
Open Sun-Thurs 12-11 pm Fri-Sat 12-3 am
Enjoy HALF PRICE APPETIZERS
9 pm - Close • 7 Days a Week
31 Selections!
Ex. Pu Pu (for 2) Reg. $11.99 Now $5.99
No other promos apply • EAT IN ONLY

Bud & Bud Light
75¢ 12oz. Drafts
($4 Pitchers)
Every Wednesday 10¢ Wings
Every Friday between 4-6
1/2 off All Appetizers
OCMP Member
55 University Drive • 549-5700

■ soccer

continued from page 16

the pass and the ball bounced into the Eli backfield. LeDuc had a clear shot at collecting the ball and heading in for the breakaway, but instead motioned to Rutherford to come on from the opposite side. Going in alone on Haist, Rutherford made no mistake, serving the ball into the far corner of the net. It was her second tally on the year.

"I will remember that forever," Rudy said of LeDuc's unselfish play.

LeDuc had two assists on the day, the other coming off a free kick. Lynch lofted the ball into the penalty box where LeDuc flicked it to Myers, who headed it into the net for her second goal of the game. It was her third goal since returning form a strained hamstring.

At halftime the UMass lead was two, but Rudy knew that the game could be decided in the second half. Goalie Danielle Dion made the save of the game when she denied a close range Yale shot when Amanda Thompson slipped on the wet turf.

"The key thing that we told them at halftime was," Rudy explained, "if you let them get one in here it is going to be a long day and Dion made the save. That was big time. Absolutely big time. If she doesn't make that save we are probably in overtime right now."

DAYMON SMITH / COLLEGIAN

Sophomore forward Liz Rutherford scored the fourth goal of the day on an assist from Rachel LeDuc.

Notes from the press box: In 10 meetings with the Elis, UMass is now 10-0 and has outscored Yale 32-1, with the only goal against coming in the first meeting between the teams in 1978 ... When Myers' first goal went up on the scoreboard, history was on UMass' side. In games played at Garber Field, when the Minutewomen score at least two goals, their record is 85-0. ... UMass returns to action Saturday night at 7 p.m., when they take on Atlantic 10 rival Rhode Island in West Springfield.

■ tennis

continued from page 16

team hits the ball with no pace, throwing the ball back on your side and dares you to miss."

Despite the change in style, senior co-captain Liesl Sitton cruised to an easy win at No. 1 singles, 6-1, 6-1. She also played a role in capturing the doubles point by combining with Caroline Steele to defeat Army's No. 1 doubles pair, 8-2. Steele also was victorious in her No. 5 singles match against Sara Snyder, 6-1, 7-5.

Dixon pointed to Lana Gorodetskaya as being one of the bright spots on the day. Gorodetskaya won her No. 6 singles match 6-2, 6-4, while also combining with Jackie Braunstein to assure the doubles point for UMass, winning the No. 3 doubles, 8-3.

Despite some surprising defeats of key Minutewomen players, Dixon felt the match had a positive effect on the whole team.

"We've been winning our matches so handily. I think we needed to be shaken up a little bit," Dixon said. "I think we learned more from our difficulties than if we had just rolled to an easy victory."

If the Minutewomen wish to continue their success, a vital element will be their ability to accept the role of the favorite. When asked if her team underestimated Army, Dixon said, "Absolutely. We aren't used to being the favorite. We've always been the underdog."

UMass faces the University of Connecticut today, a team which beat the Minutewomen 4-3 last year. Dixon feels they are not as talented as last year, but certainly can not be taken for granted. UConn is one of the few teams Dixon has yet to defeat in her campaign at UMass.

■ Otto

continued from page 16

everywhere all over the field. I'm really happy that my change helped benefit the team.

"I just want to be part of the team and help the team win."

While the position change was a big transition, it paled by comparison to the switch from freshman to veteran that took place.

"Even though I am a sophomore, I feel I am a team leader," she said. "I enjoy stepping up and taking the challenge of working hard and being someone who is looked upon with respect."

Ott's intensity has helped her adapt to that role.

"When I'm out there, I don't like to put up with anyone's crap. I want everyone to do their jobs, and if they're not, I holler at them," she said.

One of the things Ott gained as a freshman and has carried over, is respect for the tradition that surrounds the Massachusetts field hockey program.

"The tradition of field hockey here is a program of work ethic and determination and doing all the fundamental aspects of field hockey," she said. "It's gained people's respect and it's obviously led to success here over the years. I really am honored to be part of the program. I think everyone on the team is. We try to carry on the tradition."

Coming from the field hockey rich state of Pennsylvania, Ott is friends with several talented players throughout Division I field hockey, but according to her, those friendships are ignored when game time comes around.

"I'm friends with a lot of people on other teams, but when you're out there, it's all business," she said. "I'll push them. They mean nothing to me. After the game I'll say hi, but during the game it's all business."

Ott and the rest of the Minutewomen will look to be all business this weekend, when they take on Syracuse and James Madison University.

The JMU game will hold special significance for the team because not only are the Dukes ranked No. 4 in the nation, but the game will be held in Philadelphia, which is close to home for Ott and several of her teammates.

"I know that my family and a lot of my friends will be there to support me," Ott said. "I know we're going to have a big crowd because a lot of our team is from [Philadelphia]."

■ NHL

continued from page 16

Whalers will probably be just that.

Montreal Canadiens — St. Patrick is aging, offense is questionable. The combination translates into a down year for the Habs.

Ottawa Senators — It seems like every year that the Senators might get better with their new additions, but let's face it — to conjugate the verb: Ottawa stinks. They have stunk and most likely will continue to stink.

Atlantic Division

Philadelphia Flyers — The Legion of Doom needs help. There is no question about it, but that line will carry them to at least to an impressive regular season record. They need to make some additions to be a real threat in the postseason.

New Jersey Devil — New rules and the lack of Claude Lemieux will keep the defending champs from retaining that title.

New York Rangers — The team is aging, and there are question marks up and down the roster. See also Montreal.

New York Islanders — The addition of one of the league's premier character guys in Wendel Clark will be beneficial in the rebuilding process. Having a guy like Clark around can really rub off on some young players.

Washington Capitals — Jim Carey has fewer talented people around him than his namesake did in Once Bitten. The only thing keeping the Caps from last is the Sunshine State.

Florida Panthers — See Washington, except John Vanbiesbrouk is not as good or as young as Carey.

Tampa Bay Lightning — "I'll take teams with no redeeming qualities for $500, Alex."

Western Conference

Central Division

Detroit Red Wings — Well, the Red Wings have been a great regular season team for years and will continue to be, but they will need to get tougher to knock off an Eastern Conference team for the Cup.

Chicago Blackhawks — The Hawks have some talented veterans on both offense and defense. Barring injury this team will challenge Detroit and could make some noise come Springtime.

St. Louis Blues — Could Dale Hawerchuck be the center Brett Hull needs? That remains to be seen, but the Blues underrated defense could carry them. But the lack of a solid goalie will hinder them considerably.

Toronto Maple Leafs — Someone needs to tell GM Cliff Fletcher that it's time to start the rebuilding process.

Winnipeg Jets — The Jets have three of the league's top forwards in Teemu Selanne, Keith Tkachuk and Alexei Zhamnov, but from the blue line backward, the team has more obscure players than a USA's "Up All Night" movie.

Dallas Stars — Maybe they should change their name to the Dallas "Star," because after Mike Modano, they don't have any.

Pacific Division

Vancouver Canucks — To beat the Canucks, you've got to be able to catch them, and with the group of forwards that they have in their stable, that won't be an easy task. Adding Mogilny to a team with Pavel Bure and Trevor Linden will make Vancouver a contender.

Colorado Avalanche — If any of Colorado's netminders can have a solid year, then this team will be in the thick of things throughout. The Avalanche forwards can and will play with anyone.

Calgary Flames — Last year's overachieving bunch will have trouble keeping the pace over a full season, but Trevor Kidd is a talent and this team won't be too bad.

Edmonton Oilers — With Curtis Joseph in the mix watch for the Oilers to deal Bill Ranford to a team (Philly?) in need of a goalie. It won't be this year and probably not likely next year, but the Oilers appear to be on their way back.

San Jose Sharks — Is there a more overrated player anywhere than Arturs Irbe? Somebody has to step up or the Sharks will be battling the California natives for the cellar.

Anaheim Mighty Ducks — Until they change their mascot, the Ducks are going to remain in or near the cellar in this bad division.

Los Angeles Kings — The difference perhaps between the Kings and the Ducks is that one is a lousy team with an annoying front office, while the other is a lousy team with a shady front office.

* * *

If they eliminated hockey in both Florida or California it might be a great season, and even still, it might be anyway.

Matt Vautour is a Collegian columnist.

Scott's LIQUORS

FALLow your friends down to Scott's for Great Savings!

Thank You For Your Patronage

Quantity Discounts Available

Red Dog & Icehouse 24-16oz Bottles $13.99 +dep

Southern Comfort $8.99 750ml

After Shock Hot & cool cinnamon liqueur $15.99 750ml

Natural Light 24-12 oz cans $8.79 +dep

Harpoon $4.99 + dep

Spaten Octoberfest & Heineken Tarwebok $5.49 + dep

Bud, Bud Light Mich Light 1/2 Kegs $39.99 + dep

WE'LL GLADLY SPECIAL ORDER ANY KEGS, BEERS, LIQUORS OR WINES FOR YOUR SPECIAL EVENT!

MasterCard VISA MasterCard Tele-Check for your personal check

We Want To Be Your Favorite Liquor Store!

6 University Drive at Newmarket Center, Amherst

Collegian Graphics
We're Up All Night

So You've Got the Blues...
A support Group for people living with mood disorders

Skills For Combatting Depression
This six session group will focus on providing group members with essential coping skills and preventing relapse.

The group will meet on Thursday afternoons from 3:45 - 5:00pm beginning in late October and continuing until early December.

Pre-group interviews are required.
For information or to sign up for an interview call 545-2337, or stop by 127 Hills North, Monday - Friday 8:00am - 5:00pm.
Offered by the Mental Health Division of University Health Services

Come Enjoy our all new delicious
BUFFET
Over 20
Different Items To Choose
Served 7 Days A Week Lunch & Dinner
Lunch Buffet • $5.95
Dinner Buffet • $8.95
"Bringing The Tradition To You"
CHINA DYNASTY
RESTAURANT AND LOUNGE
Delivery thru Delivery Express 549-0077
Route 9 & University Drive in Amherst
256-8800
OPEN DAILY: 11:30 AM-10 PM • FRI. & SAT. TILL 11 PM • SUN 12-10 PM

Kaelin LANGE KASTLE SALOMON DYNASTAR
Experience The Tradition • 26th Annual Event
The Great UMass
SKI SNATCH
. . . is Back!!
Over $1,500,000. Worth of Merchandise
October 15, 16 & 17
at the
Student Union Ballroom
Open From Noon to 9PM
Snowboards by Burton, Ride, Sims, K2 and Krazy Creek • Rollerblades and Cross Country Equipment
Savings Up to 50% On Ski & Snowboard Gear & Apparel
SPONSORED BY: UMASS SKI CLUB

Men's cross country heads to Invitational

By Jason Rubin
Collegian Correspondent

The Massachusetts men's cross country team began the season with expectations of success in the tough Atlantic 10 Conference.

The University of Massachusetts opened their season at the Boston College Invitational, facing the likes of Michigan, Iona and Brown University, three teams that are perennial NCAA top 25 contenders.

The Minutemen ran well, placing fifth out of nine teams overall. Their next test was a dual meet between Vermont and Maine. The team dominated the meet, easily winning by 27 points, led by strong finishes from juniors Matt Behl and Mike Macieko who placed first and second, respectively. Facing top competition, the Minutemen have proven that they can run with the best teams in the nation.

After two meets, the team has more than lived up to the expectations of coach Ken O'Brien. Finishing in the top five in the BC Invitational was a tremendous boost for the program. Following it up with a victory in the dual meet with Maine and Vermont was even more of a confidence booster.

"It was a tough way for us to start, but we had some outstanding results," O'Brien said.

The Minutemen must continue this trend in the Paul Short Invitational Tournament on Oct. 7.

The Paul Short Invitational has a long and prestigious history behind it and has been the host of numerous NCAA championships. The meet is a grueling competition and it is comprised of over 6.2 miles of road, not the usual distance of five miles. Paul Short is a great test of how the team will perform at the NCAA qualifying and championship meets.

The layout of the course is the least of the Minutemen's worries. In the past, the tournament has drawn the nation's finest teams. This is the case once again. Georgetown, Pennsylvania State, Villanova, Iona and Providence will all be competing. All of these teams were either in the Top 25 last year or have reached those ranks this season. Virginia Tech, Massachusett's chief A-10 rival, will also be there.

UMass is well rested and unusually healthy for the most part. In order to be successful, seniors Pat Murphy and Mark Bufone, along with junior Tim Bullard, must follow up their strong performances last meet.

With the top-notch running of All-Conference runners Behl and Macieko, the Minutemen are a legitimate threat to win the meet.

Nearing the middle of their season, the Minutemen are looking to build on their early success and make a push towards the final stretch. A strong performance at the Paul Short would be a perfect lead into the New England Championships next week, which will be a homecoming of sorts for some of the members of the team who are from the Boston area.

This weekend is going to be a valuable test for the team as they determine their potential and could be the turning point towards a successful second half of the season.

■ football

continued from page 16

State and Keyshawn Johnson of Southern California.

Johnson was on the cover of Sports Illustrated this past summer and has been "en fuego" ever since. Johnson set an NCAA record this past weekend against Arizona State, catching 13 passes for 171 yards. That marked the 12th consecutive game in which Johnson had over 100 yards receiving. Twelve games, that's an entire collegiate season. Impressive stuff. In four games for the Trojans, Johnson has caught 38 passes for 583 yards.

Despite sitting out the fourth quarter in the Buckeye's first three games of the season, George has still been able to put up some impressive numbers. He rolled for big yardage against Boston College in the "Kick-Off Classic" and pounded Notre Dame for 207 yards last Saturday. George currently ranks third in the nation in rushing with 640 yards on 109 carries, despite the late game action he has missed because of Buckeye blowouts.

Another huge factor that helps both players is that they play for winning teams. Heisman voters love to see big numbers by a player who is aiding his team in the quest for the national title, take the Gino Torretta example. Both the University of Southern California and Ohio State are undefeated and are tied for fifth in the AP Top 25 Poll.

The second tier of Heisman hopefuls features a potpurri of quarter backs and running backs. This year's group of QBs is impressive. Danny Wuerffel of Florida highlights this group. He ranks third in the nation in passing. The best of the rest features Danny Kanell (Florida State), Tommy Frazier (Nebraska), Peyton Manning (Tennessee) and the injured Koy Detmer (Colorado).

Not to be out done are a solid group of running backs. Statistically, the best of this group is a relative unknown from Iowa State, Troy Davis. Davis leads the nation in rushing with 912 yards, a 6.9 yards per carry average. He also has an average of 228 yards rushing per game for the Cyclones. Leeland McElroy of Texas A&M and Warrick Dunn of Florida State are also possible contenders for the trophy.

• This week's AP Top Five is virtually a repeat from last week. The idle Seminoles hold the top spot again, followed by Nebraska, Florida, Colorado and a tie at fifth between Ohio State and Southern Cal.

Last week provided some interesting results: Ohio State, Colorado and Alabama all posted easy victories over quality opponents. The upset of the week would have to be the loss of Penn State. Joe Paterno's Nittany Lions fell to the Badgers, 17-9. The Badgers win broke Penn St.'s nation- leading win streak of 20 consecutive.

Now for a look at this week's notable games.

• Miami at Florida State

In the late 1980's and for much of the 1990's this game was always dubbed "The Game of The Century." Not this year. The Canes come into this game with a 1-2 record. A loss would give Miami three losses and would force the Canes to win at least five, if not six, of their last seven games to be considered for a bowl game.

A Problem for Miami is they have a banged-up QB in Ryan Collins and will likely have to go with Ryan Clement. Another trouble spot for Miami is their defense, while it is capable, they will be challenged all day.

The 'Noles come into the game a 17-point favorite, and with Kanell and Dunn, they have a good chance to cover that spread. The FSU defense will yield some points, but the offense will score a bundle. The drama in this one is seeing how many penalty yards these teams rack up for taking their helmets off after big plays. FSU 44, Miami 21.

• Ohio State at Penn State

One word has to describe the mindset of the Buckeyes. Revenge. Last year in Happy Valley the Nittany Lions rolled OSU for a 63-14, led by Kerry Collins and Kitana Carter. The Buckeyes haven't forgotten that one.

Coach John Cooper's team has a world of confidence heading into this ballgame. They are 4-0 and their offense has been phenomenal. George, QB Bobby Hoying, and wide-out Terry Glenn lead an offense that is responsible for wins over Notre Dame, BC and Washington.

Defensively the Buckeyes aren't great. They gave up 447 yards to ND last weekend, but they have some decent personnel in linebacker Matt Finkes and defensive back Shawn Springs.

Joe Paterno's team has to be a little low on confidence following last week's poor show against Wisconsin. Penn State is talented on offense. QB Wally Richardson is capable and wide-out Bobby Engram is a tremendous talent.

The defense is weak for Paterno and that will be exposed big time by the Buckeyes. OSU takes sweet revenge. Ohio State 36, Penn State 24.

• Florida at Louisiana State University

The Gators head to Baton Rouge ranked No. 1 in the nation and have Heisman hopeful Wuerffel ranked in the top three in the country in passing efficiency. Wuerffel threw three touchdowns last week in a Gator win over Mississippi.

The LSU Tigers are riding into this one on the heels of a 20-20 tie with South Carolina. Join Howard threw a TD pass with just over a minute remaining to set up the tie.

LSU's strength is their defense. They led the South Eastern Conference a year ago and returned seven starters.

The Tigers stunned Auburn at home earlier this season and will be looking for a little of that magic against Steve Spurrier's team. Unfortunately for the Tigers, Wuerffel will work a little magic of his own. Florida 37, LSU 23.

Greg Corey is a Collegian Correspondent

PARADISE CITY ARTS FESTIVAL
NORTHAMPTON, MASSACHUSETTS
CRAFTS TO FIRE THE IMAGINATION
160 Juried Exhibitors
FEATURING
Fine art and contemporary crafts for collecting and gift-giving
Jewelry Furniture
Wearables Glass
Ceramics Sculpture
Functional and Whimsical Pieces for the Garden
Children's Activity Tent
Gourmet Food Tent
Craft Demonstrations
COLUMBUS DAY WEEKEND
October 7th & 8th 10AM-6PM
October 9th 10AM-4PM
$6 Adults $2 Children
(413) 586-6324 SHOW INFORMATION
(413) 584-1900 PARADE INFORMATION
DIRECTIONS: The Tri-County Fairgrounds just off Interstate 91: From I-91 South take exit 20; from I-91 North take exit 19. From the Mass Pike take exit 4 onto I-91 North to exit 19. From RT 2 take I-91 South to exit 20. Under two hours from Boston and southern Connecticut, under 3 hours from New York City, 50 minutes from the Berkshires; 45 minutes from Brattleboro, Vermont, and an hour from Albany.
SPONSORED IN PART BY Valley Advocate

January Intersession Study in Cuernavaca, Mexico
These programs emphasize firsthand learning through guided group activities and intensive individual study. Each program provides room, board, and local transportation. Please call for application deadlines and other details.
Call now! 617 287-7915
Division of Continuing Education
UMass Boston
Mexico Today: Politics and Society
January 2-27
Three credits
Spanish Language and Mexican Culture
December 27-January 27
Up to six credits

JUDICIAL ADVISORS WANTED!
Advisors:
• Provide Support.
• Disseminate information to students.
• Accompany students to judicial hearings.
Eligibility for being an advisor:
• Must be a full-time undergraduate or have a graduate student status.
• Must have at least 2.0 GPA.
• Must attend two Advisor/Advocate training sessions.
APPLY TODAY!
Pick up your applications at either 227 Whitmore or 432 Student Union
Applications Due:
October 16, 1995 by 5:00 pm
Questions? Contact:
James Musmon at 545-1272
Coordinator of Judicial Advisors Program
Paul Vasconcellos at 545-2684
Assistant Dean of Students

the BLUEWALL presents
DISCO
Every Thursday
Boogie Down All Night Long
FREE ADMISSION
9:30 pm - 1:00 am
The 70's Meet the 80's
With D.J.s Billy Arnold and Robert Dwelley
Lighting and Sound By: Audio Pro Media
Mulroy O. Lincoln Campus Center 25th Anniversary
"Because You Asked For It"

Green Day
LIVE IN CONCERT with special guest
THE RIVERDALES
November 13
7:30 pm
SPRINGFIELD CIVIC CENTER
General Admission
ALL TICKETS ONLY $15*
TICKETS ON SALE
THIS SATURDAY AT 10:00 AM
AT THE SPRINGFIELD CIVIC CENTER BOX OFFICE,
CIVIC CENTER PHONE CHARGE (413) 787-6600
OUTLETS: TOWER RECORDS • FILENE'S • ANN & MORE
PHONE CHARGE: (413) 733-2500 • (617) 931-2000
• DOES NOT INCLUDE SERVICE CHARGE EVENT DATE & TIME SUBJECT TO CHANGE
PRODUCED BY METROPOLITAN ENTERTAINMENT GROUP
Green Day Insomniac available on Reprise CDs and cassettes

Collegian Classifieds

113 Campus Center • University of Massachusetts • Phone: (413)545-3500 Fax: (413)545-1592

Personals Policy

1. All personals MUST be proofread by Collegian classified employees before payment and acceptance of the classified.
2. Last names MAY NOT be used in personals. ONLY first names and initials are allowed. The only exceptions are for birthday or congratulations personals, in which case the full name may be used.
3. Phone numbers are not allowed in personals. NO EXCEPTIONS
4. Addresses are not allowed in personals. this means dorm room numbers as well.
5. Personals of a threatening or derogatory nature are not acceptable. Personals of a vindictive or libelous nature are not acceptable. Personals may not be used for the purpose of harassment.
6. Profanity may not be used in personals.
7. The personals section is for personals only. The personals section may NOT be used to sell items, seek roommates, advertise meetings, etc.
8. All personals must have the name, signature, and UMass I.D. number of the student placing the as filled in on the insertion order. Non-students must provide a valid driver's license and the license number must be recorded on the insertion order. Use of false identification or misrepresentation is subject to penalties under the law.
9. The Collegian reserves the right to refuse or to edit any personal that does not meet the Collegian's standards in accordance with the statutes of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

Rates

$2.00 minimum/day

Students
20¢ per word/day

All others
40¢ per word/day

NO REFUNDS

Please write clearly and legibly. We are not responsible for errors resulting from illegible handwriting or type.

Standard Headings

Activities
Announcements
Apartment For Rent
Auto For Sale
Employment
Entertainment
For Sale
Found (2 days Free)
Happy Birthday
Houses For Rent
Instruction
Lost
Musicians
Miscellaneous
Motorcycles
Personals
Room For Rent
Room Wanted
Roommate Wanted
Services
Summer Sublet
To Sublet
Travel
Transportation
Wanted to Rent
Wanted

ANNOUNCEMENTS

CHINESE FOOD

Learn to bartend [illegible]

UMASS MEN'S RUGBY

Looking for a few good men (and [illegible] to have a [illegible]

AUTO FOR SALE

84 AUDI 500S [illegible]

1985 MAZDA GLC [illegible]

86 BMW 325 [illegible]

86 Oldsmobile Firenza [illegible]

90 VW Golf Auto [illegible] $4900

1990 Ford Probe [illegible]

1992 Toyota Celica GT. [illegible]

Bleu 86 Sabaru Wagon [illegible]

EMPLOYMENT

Cartoonist wanted for commercial work. Call Roberta 585-0419

Cruise Ships Hiring Earn up to $2000+/month World Travel. Seasonal & full-time positions. No exp necessary. For info call 1-206-634-0468 Ext C500

Earn big $$$ Leading college marketing firm is currently seeking part-time help. Multiple positions available throughout the fall semester. Flexible hours & great pay $6-$7/hr. Will train- no experience necessary. Great resume builder. For more info call Mark Egan @ (617) 266-8887 Ext 11

Help Wanted! Easy work. Excellent pay. Assemble products at home! Call 1-504-429-6217 Ext 5016 or 24 hrs.

Janitors & Seniors Private residential school is seeking enthusiastic & committed weekend staff for our weekend program. Duties include supervision of students on campus & off campus trips. You stay on campus overnight for coverage of dorms. Duty begins Fridays @ 4:00 pm and concludes on Sunday @ 5:00 pm. Call Mr. Kevin Driscoll @ (413) 477-6087 ext 235.

Looking for mature & ambitious individual with management experience to manage Barts concessions at Mullins Center. Flexible student necessary. Apply at Barts 103 N. Pleasant St Amherst

Looking for friendly ambitious individuals to sell Barts ice cream at Mullins Center. Flexible schedule necessary. Apply at Barts 103 North Pleasant St. Amherst

Main Torah reader needed. Housing and salary. Congregation Rodphey Shalom. Holyoke 534-5262.

National Parks Hiring Seasonal & full-time employment available at national Parks, Forests & Wildlife Preserves. Benefits and Bonuses! Call 1-206-545-4804 Ext N 5001

Park Rangers! Game warden, park police $6-$20 per hour. Year round positions for men and women. Call 1-504-429-5731 Ext 5016 P41

$300 to $500 weekly Full/Part time processing simple paperwork in your area. Own hours. No experience necessary. Call 1-504-429-9233 Ext 5016 D41 24 hrs.

ENTERTAINMENT

Having Halloween bash on 10/27 or 10/28? Got a huge house? Want a spooky band? You need us!!! Jeff and Jeff needs your call Jack at 367-9636

FOR RENT

Fridge Rentals Free delivery 253-9742

FOR SALE

Brand new 486 Toshiba vitor laptop. Unbeatable price. 1 year warranty. Must sell 367-0180

Complete 486DX2-66 P.C. System w/8 megs RAM 24 speed CD ROM 16 bit sound 104 meg hard drive 1.44 floppy SVGA vid. 14 monitor w/win 3.11 $1500 (413) 786-6629

PJ Harvey in Oct 10 Mike 585-9186

Tandy Computer & color mont w/ soft Asking $275 or bo. Call 6-0540

2 Kicker Box Style Speakers 2x 200/rms $100 BRO Call Paul 546-6741

1985 Fender Fretless Jazz Bass good as new, pristine $400 or bo. Call Aaron 549-4087

Computer Desk For Sale barely used Call (413)584-2553 7654

Macintosh Classic Great for word processing. 275 or B/O Call Brian Even 584-9863

386 Computer For Sale includes DOS 6 Windows 3.11 Microsoft Word Norttons Games VGA Monitor Amegs of ram Asking $400 or best offer. Call 6-0863

Used Stereo Equipment VCR Laserdisk/CD player 2R Mitsubishi monitor TV Tube guitar amps Lap steel 12 string bass amp/cabinet 8 channel mixer/amp much more All guaranteed Must sell. Cheap! 253-5312

FOUND

Bracelet found 10/2 2:30 pm near the Sheamut ATM on Campus Center. Contact Collegian to identify/claim. 545-3500

Found a set of keys near campus pond on Oct 3. Has an alarm and a UMass Bottle opener on it. If yours call Angie at 549-5285

HAPPY BIRTHDAY

Hola Carissa Mia! Happy birthday. Nena ve quieres mucho! Vamos a la dormir

Guitar Lessons and classes by Kevin Collins. Beginning folk, classical. Free intro lesson. Harm Grad 256-1233

LOST

Lost gold digital watch of sentimental value please contact owner at 413-546-2606

Our Soccer Cleat Last Thur near Bowden 585-6309

MISCELLANEOUS

Free furniture Single size mattress full size futon w/m a wooden frame. Coffee table. Call 549-5344 (After 3:30 pm)

MOTORCYCLES

'86 Ninga $900 or new parts asking $2300 467-2521 Travis

MUSICIANS

Psychedelic garage band for hire. Dead Dylan Cream Stones. Perfect for parties. 256-7949

PERSONALS

ENLIGHTENMENT #2

I need religion like a fish needs a bicycle. What I want is to know other people who want to grow and we'll accept me as I am. Alliance Christian Fellowship. committed to people friendship, learning, and spirit-filled fellowship. Info: Mark or Elizabeth 253-7206

Jeffrey, Time flies. November already? Hecka Flick today boy. It's your birthday! Love Plant Praline Pecan, Peanut and Pens

ROOMMATE WANTED

Female needed for own fully furnished room in 3 bedroom apt. Fall semester only. On bus route 253-1734.

BOXING LESSONS

For men and women with retired pro. Dpitudumpool 549-5752

SERVICES

Exotic nail airbrushing 546-7134

Grants and scholarships available. Billions of $$$ in grants. Qualify immediately. 1-800-243-2435 (1-800-AID-2-HELP)

Pregnant? Need help? Call birthright of Amherst area for free testing and carrying assistance. 549-1906

TRAVEL

FREE TRIPS AND CASH

Find out how hundreds of students are already FREE TRIPS and LOTS OF CASH with America's #1 Spring Break company! Sell only 15 trips and travel free! Choose Cancun, Bahamas, Mazatlan or Florida! Call now! Take a Break Student Travel (800) 95-BREAK

WANTED

Babysitter Needed for 3 year old Wed and Fri 1240-320 Carl Michele at 256-8632

Reach 50,000 eyes a day for just 20c a word.

Help Wanted
Personals
Rooms for Rent
For Sale
Travel
Happy Birthday

It's all in the Collegian Classifieds.

Let them work for you!

Classifieds Work !
113 Campus Center
545-3500

YOUR DAILY HOROSCOPE
by Jeane Dixon

ARIES [illegible]

TAURUS [illegible]

GEMINI [illegible]

CANCER [illegible]

LEO [illegible]

VIRGO [illegible]

LIBRA [illegible]

can be trying. Plans for the future occupy your days and night. Chances are you are considering a new alliance. An older person provides the data you need.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) An unexpected windfall requires careful handling. Take advantage of the services of an image-maker. A friend shares a fascinating confidence. You will enjoy managing your own money. A child gets a lesson in finance.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) Your services are in great demand today. Eliminate the superfluous. Concentrate only on the absolute necessary. Risky or expensive ventures should be avoided even if your intentions are the best. Revive a former relationship.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Changing circumstances motivate you to consider new ideas. Look for attractive alternatives while avoiding difficult people and no-win situations. Shoppers need to keep a close eye on their cash and belongings. Be alert.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) A lull in activity gives you an opportunity to think and plan. Be aware that a conservative financial policy can pay big dividends. You make steady progress towards a long-sought career or business goal.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) You get a chance to display your special abilities now. Fall back on your training and experience. The decision to remain close to home is a wise one. Active minds always find things to do.

Collegian Graphics

We're up all night putting together New England's largest daily college newspaper!

When our job is done – your day is just beginning.

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE
edited by Trude Michael Jaffe

ACROSS
1 Siren
5 Reduced the budget
10 Melville captain
14 Inland sea
15 More than pudgy
16 Silent star Theda
17 Relax
19 War god
20 Intended
21 "— Miserables"
22 Pierre's at.
23 One of the "Odd Couple"
25 fer. neighbor
26 Sound of laughter
30 "— Boot"
31 Batted first
34 Morning sound
36 State: Ger
38 Pique
39 Pester
41 Confident bettor
43 Terminus
44 Puccini heroine
46 Spruce up
47 Lincoln cabinet member
49 Ball-and-socket joint 51 Extends
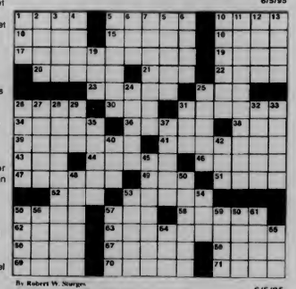
52 Sugary suffix
53 Gemologist's word
55 Watering holes
57 Literary monogram
58 Dunkin' pastry
62 Enjoy
63 Cautionary phrase
66 Frankfurt's river
67 Shakespearean sprite
68 G.I.'s need
69 Defect
70 Oster group
71 Throaty sound

DOWN
1 Vintner's vessel
2 Name in a Saroyan title
3 — a living
4 Beg
5 Made ceramics
6 Penny's profile
7 Pragmatist, perhaps
8 County of SE England
9 Actress Susan et al
10 Lowered in prestige
11 Tough
12 Region
13 Luxuriate
18 Foot soldier's abbr.
24 Endures
25 Slacken
26 Abominates
27 "Home —"
28 Toiler
29 Ulna's limb
31 Native of Thailand
32 Liberated
33 Flowerless plants
35 Measurement, in Dover
37 Famed firefighter Red
40 Auction action
42 Bikini top
45 Ford's frame
48 Affirm
50 Ping-Pong racket
53 Mild cigar
54 Also
55 Huff and puff
56 Radames' beloved
57 Gather
59 Close to
60 Ike's alma mater
61 A Cratchit and others
64 Conformist's word
65 Pot, spun around?

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE:

T	A	T	E		O	R	B		C	H	O	C	K
O	V	I	D		M	O	O	G		R	O	L	L	O
R	I	D	E		A	W	A	R		A	M	E	E	R
O	V	E	R	T	H	E	R	A	I	N	B	O	W
				E	A	R		Y	S	E	R
O	S	A	K	A		S	K	I	S		E	D	A	M
R	E	C	E	S	S		I	S	U	P		O	L	E
B	E	T	W	E	E	N	T	H	E	L	I	N	E	S
I	D	O		S	T	E	T		D	U	G	O	U	T
T	Y	R	O		T	O	Y	S		G	O	T	T	O
			O	M	E	N		O	M	I
	U	N	D	E	R	G	R	O	U	N	D	E	R	S
S	P	O	O	R		A	I	N	T		O	R	E	S
A	T	E	A	R		S	P	E	E		T	I	E	R
M	O	L	D	Y			E	R	S		E	N	D	S

6/5/95



By Robert W. Sturges
© 1995 Los Angeles Times Syndicate

6/5/95

Collegian Classifieds
They Work!
545-3500

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING INSERTION ORDER

Client Date: Taken By:

Date(s) to run: Headline:

Total Days: X Words: = X rate = Payment

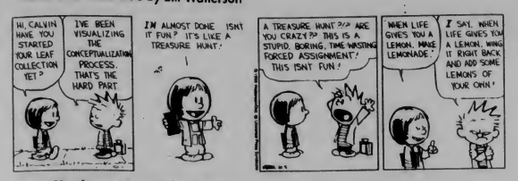
Special heading ($2.50 extra): Authorized signature:

ADVERTISING COPY

1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9 10

Insert one character , space, or punctuation mark per box - use capital letters where they apply - Cost figured on each line of form used - see rate card

Calvin & Hobbes By Bill Watterson



HI, CALVIN. HAVE YOU STARTED YOUR LEAF COLLECTION YET?
I'VE BEEN VISUALIZING THE CONCEPTUALIZATION PROCESS. THAT'S THE HARD PART.
IN ALMOST DONE. ISN'T IT FUN? IT'S LIKE A TREASURE HUNT.
A TREASURE HUNT?! ARE YOU CRAZY?! THIS IS A STUPID, BORING, TIME-WASTING FORCED ASSIGNMENT! THIS ISN'T FUN!
WHEN LIFE GIVES YOU A LEMON, MAKE LEMONADE.
I SAY, WHEN LIFE GIVES YOU A LEMON, WING IT RIGHT BACK AND ADD SOME LEMONS OF YOUR OWN!

One Less Comic By Glee

I WAS WANDERING AROUND HOMELESS...
MY FRIEND CHRIS SAID I COULDN'T BUY MY WAY OUT OF A DUMPSTER
That made ME LAUGH. Then I heard this kid talkin about Petty little shit. That made me laugh too.

Lost Horizons By Douglas Cellineri

HEY! YOU JUST SPILT DECAF ON MY PANTS! APOLOGIZE!!
NO I DIDN'T. YOU DID THAT YOURSELF!
I SAID SHUT UP AND APOLOGIZE!
B- BUT I DIDN'T DO ANYTH...
THAT'S IT!! WELL, SETTLE THIS OUTSIDE!
SOMETHING TELLS ME I SHOULD'VE JUST APOLOGIZED.
CARE TO DANCE?

Leold By Roger & Salem Salloom

I have only one friend named BRAD.

I guess that's because the rest were killed during the great BRAD purges of 1953, '62 and '74.

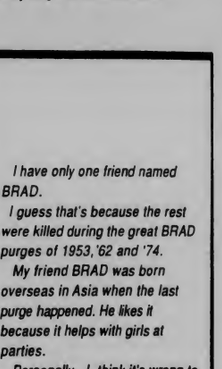
My friend BRAD was born overseas in Asia when the last purge happened. He likes it because it helps with girls at parties.

Personally, I think it's wrong to take advantage of his rare name.

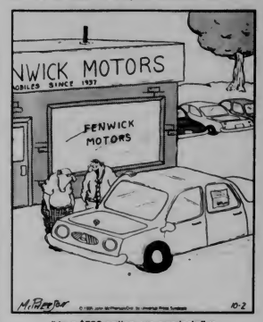
But I'll bet he's always looking over his shoulder for potential BRAD bigots.

I think people should be on guard against anti-BRADISM creeping subtley into their soul.

It's everywhere especially among the ignorant. I'm so glad I live in a college town where everything is less obvious.



Close to Home By John McPherson



"As a $700 option, we can install a windshield that's customized to match your glasses prescription."

The Amazing Spiderman By Stan Lee

BETTER EAT FAST, ROMEO. NO TELLING HOW MANY MORE ACTRESSES ARE WAITING FOR YOU TODAY!
AW, HONEY, YOU'VE GOT IT ALL WRONG!
LAST NIGHT WAS JUST A PUBLICITY STUNT! YOU'RE THE ONLY ONE FOR ME!
WELL, I WANT TO BELIEVE YOU...

Loser Crow Comics By Mike Krozy

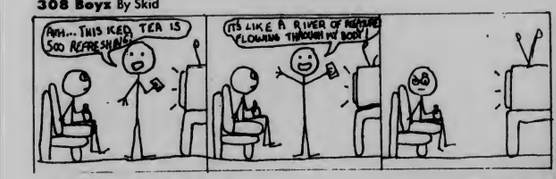
Bruno By C. Baldwin

BRUNO, I CAN'T GO TO MINNEAPOLIS, MY AUNT JUST PASSED AWAY AND I KNOW YOU'RE GOING STIR-CRAZY. PLEASE, HAVE MY TICKET.
I DON'T KNOW. SHOULD I GO ANYWHERE IN MY CONDITION? WHAT IF I LOSE IT WHILE I'M THERE?
WHAT IF I TOLD YOU I SECRETLY BELIEVED THAT THE CHEESE FELL OFF YOUR CRACKER LONG AGO?
HMMM... BLOWS THE SPARSE REMAINS OF MY FRAGILE SELF-IMAGE TO BITS, BUT RELIEVES ME OF JUSTIFYING NOT GOING. SURE I'LL GO.

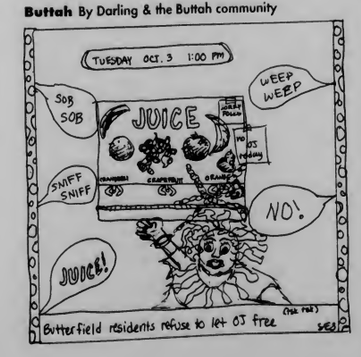
Generation X By Chris Lehman

THIS WEEK SO FAR, I FOUND A $100 BILL OVER BY HERTER HALL.
I WON TICKETS TO A CONCERT, AND MY TEST WAS CALLED OFF THIS WEEK!
WOW! YOU MUST BE THE LUCKIEST GUY IN THE WORLD!
NO... O.J. SIMPSON IS.

308 Boyz By Skid



Buttah By Darling & the Buttah community



MASSACHUSETTS DAILY COLLEGIAN
113 Campus Center
545-3500

Collegian Graphics

We're up all night putting together New England's largest college daily newspaper.

When our job is done – your day is just beginning.

Today's Staff

Night Editor ..... T.J. White
Copy Editor ..... Tara MK Connelly
Photo Technician ..... Shin Suzuki
Production Supervisor ..... Marni E. Helfner
Production ..... Matthew M. Audette
Tara Connelly, Candice Flemming

Dining Commons Menu

LUNCH	DINNER
Clam Roll	Roast Top Round of Beef
Chicken Burrito	Cheese Spinach Strudel
BASICS LUNCH	BASICS DINNER
Clam Roll	Hearty Latin Stew
Cauliflower Casserole	Cheese Spinach Strudel

Quote of the Day

"Oh! I know the problem. I'm stupid!"

– Overheard at a chemical engineering study session

Top 10 Things That O.J. Did Yesterday
By Brian Marchionni

10. Got off.
9. Bought a new pair of gloves.
8. Gave Kato Kaelin a beatin' he'll never forget.
7. Asked the jury if they preferred cash or check.
6. Threw a major kegger with Cochran.
5. Drove up and down streets of L.A. with head out of windows shouting "suckers!"
4. Began filming for new ABC mini-series about trial.
3. Started writing new book "How To Beat The American Judicial System."
2. Killed his wife (oops ... that was eight months ago ...)
1. Asked Judge Ito if he could get his knife back.

Sports

Minutewomen spread scoring around, trounce Yale

By Justin C. Smith
Collegian Staff

A tired Massachusetts women's soccer team, coming off a long road trip, had to play a well-rested Yale squad in yesterday's matchup on a rain-soaked Richard F. Garber field. Yale was heading into the match coming off two wins over off two highly regarded teams — Brown and Dartmouth.

It was a prime opportunity for an upset, but the University of Massachusetts defense would not let it happen.

After a slow first 10 minutes of the match, sophomore fullback Erica Iverson worked a perfect give-and-go with Liz Rutherford and launched a 30 foot bomb from her left foot that found the back of the Yale net for an early 1-0 UMass 7-1-1) lead. It was Iverson's first-ever collegiate goal.

"I love hitting the ball with my left foot," Iverson said of the play. "The defender ran behind me and I was able to kick it over to my left foot and nothing but net."

The goal was extra special for Iverson as the woman she beat, Catherine Haist, was the goalkeeper she played with back at home. She also assisted on Karin Johnson's goal off a set play.

From there on out, the defense and midfield of UMass controlled the play in the middle of the field, never allowing the Yale offense to get on track. The superior ball control the Minutewomen displayed not only kept the ball out of their defensive third of the field, but set up countless scoring opportunities.

"I love our defense," Iverson said of her teammates. "We all feel confident in one another playing like that. Last year, I didn't have my confidence ... I didn't want the ball as a freshmen. Now we are comfortable with each other and know what each other is doing."

Just three minutes after the Iverson blast, junior midfielder Sandy Shimogaki beat two Yale defenders in the corner and fed a perfect pass to Rebecca Myers at the top of the box, who unloaded a cannon on Haist, which the keeper stopped.

"Their goaltender had the potential to make big saves," Massachusetts coach Jim Rudy said. "Which she did on one here. That ball that Rebecca hit was a bomb and she stopped it. So there was no rebound to finish."

The Eli netminder denied Myers on this occasion but would not be as successful later in the match.

Erin Lynch collected an Amy Powell throw-in and made a run toward the penalty box. From about 20 yards she let go a shot that Myers, who was cutting left to right across in front of Haist, redirected into the net for a 2-0 lead.

The throw-in was set up on the tenacious play of Rutherford, who forced the Yale player to send the ball out of bounds rather than retaining possession of the ball and moving downfield. Rutherford's hustle was later rewarded with what was an entirely unselfish play by UMass' leading scorer Rachel LeDuc.

As the Minutewomen cleared the ball to the left side of the midfield and the Yale defense was looking to send it back upfield, LeDuc blocked

Turn to SOCCER, page 12

DAYMION SMITH / COLLEGIAN

Sophomore defender Erica Iverson, who scored her first collegiate goal, dribbles by Yale's Jenna Hodge (11) and Blanca Framm (6) in yesterday's 5-0 drilling at Richard F. Garber Field

Versatile Ott steps up in 1995 season

DAYMION SMITH / COLLEGIAN

Sophomore Amy Ott has matured since last year and is one of this year's team leaders, either at sweeper or the midfield.

By Matt Vautour
Collegian Staff

When the Massachusetts field hockey team pulled off the two upsets that defined its season a year ago, then freshman Amy Ott was on the bench. She celebrated with her teammates, but it wasn't the same. After being a starter for the first part of the season, she had lost her spot and had to watch as her teammates had their moments of glory.

"I was devastated," she said. "I ended up sitting the bench for the University of North Carolina game and the James Madison game, the two games that were the highlights of our season. I was devastated."

Fast forward one year.

Massachusetts is leading No. 4 Old Dominion University 1-0, and trying to preserve the upset. An ODU attacker fired a shot at University of Massachusetts goalie Stacy Walker, who made the save. The rebound however rolled dangerously out of Walker's reach. Now sophomore Amy Ott outsprinted two Monarch forwards to knock the threat aside to clinch the UMass upset.

This year has been a 180 degree turnaround for Ott. When the Minutewomen pulled off this season's big upset, Ott was not only on the field, but she saved the game.

"It was really an awesome feeling to know that you stopped off that field and you were a big part of that win," she said. "I got chills. I said to myself, 'Oh my god, I'm so excited.' You can't stop smiling. You know you did something right and you belonged out there."

There really is a decided difference between the 1994 and 1995 version of Amy Ott.

The Shwenksville, Penn. native came to UMass after meeting then coach Pam Dixon at the National Field Hockey festival in Irvine, Calif. She visited UMass on a recruiting visit and knew it was the place for her.

"I loved it," Ott said. "It felt like I would fit in. The team seemed really nice."

Ott came to UMass and earned a start in her first collegiate game and tallied her first collegiate goal in only her second game.

But after a strong start, her play tailed off as she dealt with some personal problems and self-imposed pressure.

"I had a lot of personal problems throughout last season. I was trying to prove myself," she said. "I was never one to like sitting on the bench. I hate it. I was pushing myself to the point that my grades started to suffer. I learned my lesson."

Heading into the final stretch of the regular season, Ott let loose and found herself as a field hockey player again. She scored the game-winning goal in UMass' 1-0 win over St. Joseph's in the final regular season game and finished the year with an exceptional Atlantic 10 Tournament.

"I just think that by the end of the season, I talked myself into believing what do I have to lose?" Ott said. "I decided to open up, let loose and have some fun."

Ott used that strong finish as a springboard toward her 1995 season, and it has paid off.

During the summer Ott took part in the U.S. Olympic Festival, where versatility became part of her repertoire.

Her coach Leslie Lyness, an assistant at UNC, needed a sweeper for the Festival squad. Taking her speed and hitting power into consideration, Lyness decided to try Ott at the position.

It paid off as Ott thrived at sweeper throughout the festival. When she returned to UMass, the sweeper position was vacant there as well, so Dornelly penciled in Ott.

After playing well there for the early part of the season, the Massachusetts offense had become stagnant, as it had trouble creating in transition. Donnelly looked down her roster and found the versatile Ott and moved her again, this time to the left midfield position.

Again the change created immediate dividends. When the Minutewomen beat Temple 1-0 on Sept. 23, the offensive attack looked very different and Ott was a major factor. Her speed and ball skills helped the Minutewomen offense control the midfield which proved to be a key to the victory.

"At each position, the responsibilities are so different," she said. "At sweeper, I was so much more relaxed. I could see the whole field, so I had time to react. At midfield, it's so sporadic. You're constantly sprinting

Turn to OTTO, page 12

Prairie View sets a dubious record

Congratulations are in order for Prairie View A&M, or maybe not. Prairie View was able to achieve an NCAA record this past weekend against Grambling, a record in futility. The Panthers lost to Grambling 64-0, marking their 51st consecutive defeat. The loss breaks the old record of 50 consecutive losses, formerly held by Macalester of Minnesota (Division III). Way to go Prairie View!

• Speaking of Grambling, Coach Eddie Robinson will look to take another step into the record books this weekend against Mississippi Valley State Robinson will be in search of victory No. 400 of his coaching career.

Four hundred wins is an amazing achievement and deserving of respect. But even more deserving of respect is the way Robinson has run his program and conducted his players. Discipline, integrity and respect are all words that define his program and his players. Regardless of the accomplishments in terms of victories, Robinson has done so much as a teacher and a coach.

This man is nothing short of a legend.

• As we inch closer to the mid-way point of this college football season, the race for the Heisman trophy continues to heat up. The front runners at this point would have to be Eddie George of Ohio

GREG COREY on College Football

Turn to COLLEGE, page 13

B's could contend; Ottawa stinks

Well it's October, but unlike a year ago, there is an NHL season set to begin.

The 1995-96 season looks to be a top heavy one with some really good teams and a heck of a lot of bad ones. Here's a look how this year's regular season should stack up.

Eastern Conference

Northeast Division

Boston Bruins — If the talent mixes into strong chemistry, the B's could contend with any team in the league. The addition of Rick Zombo and the potential inclusion of Al Iafrate (about as likely as the federal deficit being paid off in our lifetime) will solidify a young defense. The forwards are stronger than they have been in recent years and several of them will benefit for the more spacious FleetCenter. The team could be a realistic Cup contender.

Matt Vautour on the NHL

Pittsburgh Penguins — The Pens will be offensively exciting with the return of Mario Lemieux to complement Jaromir Jagr. Defense and goaltending could be questionable, but the Pens can survive in shootouts.

Buffalo Sabres — Shaky defense, an injury prone squad and the fact they gave Alexander Mogilny away will keep the Sabres from doing much.

Hartford Whalers — Hate to be optimistic with the Whales, but they aren't that bad. A great year from Sean Burke will be essential, but in reality the Forever .500

Turn to NHL, page 12

Women's tennis beats tough Army

By Jay Warner
Collegian Correspondent

With a six match winning streak on the line, the Massachusetts women's tennis team entered Tuesday's contest against Army with a great deal of confidence, perhaps too much confidence.

In a match that it was favored to win, the University of Massachusetts struggled at times. Despite their difficulties against a mentally strong Army squad, the Minutewomen came out on top, 5-2.

Facing a style of tennis they were not familiar with, UMass stumbled through some early matches. It was junior co-captain Liz Durant who clinched the match overcoming an early mental lapse, winning at No. 4 singles 3-6, 6-0, 6-0.

"We've faced a number of teams that hit the ball hard," UMass coach Judy Dixon said. "The Army

Turn to TENNIS, page 12

Red Sox lose, down 2-0

By Jimmy Golen
Associated Press

CLEVELAND — When Jose Canseco and Mo Vaughn are both hitting well, they can be devastating. When one of them is slumping, you've got a pretty good chance the other will be hot.

There's only one way things can go wrong.

"You don't want to both go cold at the same time," Vaughn said Wednesday night. "We did these last two games. And it's hurt us."

Vaughn and Canseco went hitless for the second consecutive night and the Red Sox lost 4-0 to the Cleveland Indians to fall behind 2-0 in the best-of-5 series.

The two Boston sluggers — who had 63 homers and 207 RBIs in the regular season — are a combined 0-for-20 in the playoffs. Vaughn has struck out five times; Canseco two.

"It hasn't been a good two days for me or Mo," Canseco said.

Canseco tried for a little extra luck by pulling his pants up to reveal more of his sanitary socks, a technique he also tried during the season. He has also spent some of his time between at-bats in the video room watching tapes.

There, he saw Orel Hershiser curveballs that drop too late to adjust to, and other pitches that were too well-placed to hit.

"You can't press too much. They shut us down, that's the bottom line," he said. "They say good pitching shuts down good offense. I definitely believe that 100 percent."

Boston manager Kevin Kennedy said he thought Vaughn might be trying too hard because it is his first experience in the playoffs. It probably doesn't help that Vaughn is lined up against his chief rival in the AL MVP race, Albert Belle, and Belle is hitting great.

To rub it in, Vaughn's failures are also being tabulated by a Cleveland fan whose cardboard sign now reads "Mo-fer 10."

"We see some anxiety there," Kennedy said. "We see guys that want to do it so badly. I feel for them, I really do."

Vaughn disagreed.

"I'm not trying to do anything. I'm trying to get a single," he said. "When I get a single Friday night I'm going to grab the ball. We both will."

Kennedy is also confident both players will snap out of it. "We

Turn to SOX, page 11

The Massachusetts
DAILY COLLEGIAN
Volume CV Issue 22 | New England's Largest College Daily • Founded in 1890 • Daily Since 1967 | Friday, October 6, 1995

Catterton takes over starting QB job
Anthony Catterton will be the starting quarterback tomorrow as the UMass football team hosts New Hampshire (See Sports, Page 10).

Marines accused of raping 12-year-old
Tensions are high in Okinawa as three U.S. Marines face charges of raping local girl (See story, Page 3).

Hey man, nice show
Fitter brings their techno-rock grooves to Pearl St. on Saturday night (See Arts & Living, page 5).

Weekend Forecast
Friday will have showers with a chance of a late day clearing. It will cool off in the evening. Saturday has a chance of showers with highs in the 70s. Sunday will be clearer and cooler.

Today	Saturday	Sunday
HIGH: 75 LOW: 55	HIGH: 75 LOW: 55	HIGH: 65 LOW: 50

SGA members sworn in at first meeting as president sets agenda

SHIN SUZUKI / COLLEGIAN

SGA president Christine Lopes (left) presented her agenda on Wednesday night.

By Allison Connolly
Collegian Staff

On Wednesday, the legislative agenda for the new year was introduced and new senators and area government officers were sworn in at the first meeting of the Student Government Association.

The agenda was presented by SGA President Christine Lopes. She raised three issues which she plans to present on the floor in the upcoming weeks.

First, Lopes hopes the assembly will pass a motion to make the SAT optional for admissions criteria at the University of Massachusetts. Lopes stressed that the SATs should not be the sole indicator of a student's accomplishments.

Their overall GPA, class rank, course difficulty and life experiences should carry heavier weight than the SATs if the student chooses, according to Lopes.

"It's giving students the choice," Lopes said. "If there are students who feel the SATs are not the sole content of their accomplishments, they should have other options. There are many criteria that go into acceptance and everything should not be put into the SATs."

The motion also accused the SAT of being biased against students of color, low income students and women. If passed, the legislature will make the SATs optional in the undergraduate admissions process.

Lopes said she also wishes to reform campus meal plan restrictions. Students on the 10-meal plan are not allowed to eat on weekends at the dining commons. Lopes said the rule was "ridiculous" because it discriminates against students who cannot afford the 14-meal plan which extends to Saturday and Sunday.

Lopes also tackled the lack of accessibility of academic advising which personally affected her as a freshman. She said the administration needs to provide experience advising about being at college rather than just academic advising.

"I feel that students need to play a role in that," Lopes said. "Students need to be at the forefront saying 'We want change' in order for changes to happen."

The SGA wishes to be a part of the process in reviewing the advising systems across campus. They are particularly concerned with making sure the undergraduate undeclared students are not neglected or misinformed, Senate Speaker Dan Castellano said.

In other orders of business, newly elected area government officers and senators were sworn in by Chief Justice Christopher Lang.

The tie-breaking vote for Orchard Hill Area Governor was decided in favor of Thomas Daly, a first-year resident.

The assembly also confirmed the nomination of Massachusetts Rep. Christopher J. Hodgkins for the 1995 Student Government Association Legislator of the Year award.

Hodgkins is being recognized for his work to lobby for an increase of $10 million in state appropriations for the University in the fiscal year 1996.

Student tells of importance of black love and communication

By Rosemarie Bryan
Collegian Correspondent

The often overlooked topic of black love was discussed in a forum in John Adams Residence Hall on Tuesday night.

A "Black Love and Unity" program was held by Chinedu Ogbuike, a senior psychology/English major at the University of Massachusetts. His agenda for the program was relationships, black love, unity, social issues, and other topics of interest.

Ogbuike started off the program stating how a couple interacts plays a significant part in how they associate with their friends. Communication, he said, is the key.

"People of color cannot have unity without communication," said Ogbuike, who is the Resident Assistant for the second floor of John Adams.

According to Ogbuike, too often people of color divide themselves by the shade of their skin.

"If people of color are to grow, we must first look inside of ourselves," he said.

According to Ogbuike, unity comes from within and before people come together as one, they must learn to communicate and understand others.

The main concern of Ogbuike's program was the topic of defining black love, and whether it can really be defined. Ogbuike said black love is "love of yourself and your people."

Ogbuike said he believes black men should stay with black women. He believes that black men owe a debt to the females of their race.

"Black men, in a sense, are the property of black women," he said.

Ogbuike questioned the modern relationship between the black man and the black woman. Specifically, he asked why the relationship starts off well, but deteriorates as soon as either or both parties enters the college scene, when the relationship falls far apart.

One controversial explanation Ogbuike gives is the fact that there are "more white females than black females on campus."

The result of this ratio, in his opinion, often leads black men to white women. Ogbuike said that black unity must be stressed.

"You've got to come back to the community," he said.

Newbury Comics to open in Amherst

By Matthew Wurtzel
Collegian Staff

Another chain store will open in downtown Amherst later this month following in the footsteps of McDonalds.

Boston's Newbury Comics will be opening at 30 Main Street in the old Buffalo Bill's restaurant, next to the Atticus Allyon book store.

In addition to selling comic books, Newbury Comics sells compact discs, tapes, records, books, posters, and various other decorative and entertainment merchandise.

Tina Fehl, executive vice president of Newbury Comics, said Amherst will be the chain's newest store, and furthest west.

She said Amherst was chosen over Northampton because the University of Massachusetts is home to about 18,000 students.

"It was[basically based on demographics for choosing Amherst," said Fehl. "We do very well with college students."

The Amherst store will be 1400 square feet which is about half the size of the average Boston area store.

Fehl said they intend to use "guerilla marketing" in the Amherst market. She defined the term as less reliance upon mass media, and more on word of mouth.

Newbury Comics in Boston is well known for having low prices, and a wide selection of hard-to-find CDs. Fehl said prices may very well depend upon competition.

Another practice they will bring to Amherst, according to Fehl, is in-store performances by musicians to promote new albums.

Fehl said the store will be very successful, but Wylie Smith, manager of For the Record in downtown, said they are in for a big surprise.

"They are over-estimating business in town," said Smith who has worked at For the Record for 25 years. "They won't be here in three years."

Smith said the Amherst market is nothing like the Boston market, nor is it like the one in the suburbs of Boston.

Another chain like Newbury Comics tried to open in downtown 12 years ago, and closed less then a year after opening, according to Smith.

He also cited Strawberries' initial attempts to enter the Amherst market a few years ago when they opened next to Price Choppers (which is now Big Y).

He said when they reopened a year later in the Super Stop and Shop plaza, they had changed their focus from the UMass students to the community at large.

For the Record has competitive prices with Newbury Comics, but Smith said he expects sales might drop.

Newbury Comics was founded in 1978 by Michael Dreese and John Brusger when they were students at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Fehl said when the two opened the store, they had $2,000 and a comic collection, and today it is a large New England chain. Dreese and Brusger still own the chain today.

Faculty raises may be approved

Not all professors believe Trustees will follow through on plan

By Tracy Geekie
Collegian Staff

A milestone, reached in connection with the faculty contract negotiations, was announced at yesterday's Faculty Senate meeting. This progress follows on the heels of on-going debate, which at times evoked anger in faculty members.

Chancellor David K. Scott addressed the senators in Herter Hall where, just two weeks ago, protesting faculty staged a picket line.

"Outside of the collective bargaining, the campuses will take 2 percent of their operating budgets and will devote that to an additional salary increase in the base beyond what is collectively bargained in Fiscal Year 1997," Scott said.

The Administration and Finance Committee will recommend to the University of Massachusetts Board of Trustees that this change take effect July 1, 1997.

A memo from the committee indicates the base rate increases would be "to reward meritorious performance and/or to effectuate the recommendations of relevant studies of employee classifications."

According to Scott, the recommendation should be reviewed soon.

"I would think they would probably take it out to the members next week or as soon as they can schedule a meeting," he said. "Usually if the Union leaders and bargainers have reached an agreement, then it would probably be unusual for the membership to vote it down."

Asked if he thought this would assuage the protesting faculty, Scott said, "Once an agreement looks like it's being reached and there are going to be salary raises, I think that faculty will feel that the issue has been addressed. But not probably to everyone's satisfaction."

One Senator who spoke out was Dr. Richards of the Massachusetts Society of Professors (MSP). He urged faculty to continue their pursuit of the contract issue.

"Our Trustees a year ago in September signed a document that they didn't deliver on," he said. "Given that history, you always have to remember, 'words are cheap.'"

He reiterated the argument he voiced at the previous meeting.

"They signed a contract which provided 15 percent over three years and they weren't able to get the Governor to back their agreement," he said. "Normally when the person who appoints you doesn't back you, you either fight or resign. They did neither."

Aside from the contract negotiation update, several other topics were discussed including Strategic Planning.

The strategic plan was outlined in a hand-out provided by the MSP.

"This plan acknowledges four points that arose out of our discussion and reading of task force reports and unit plans," it states.

It begins with a strategy of investing the University's resources, which calls for "maintaining strength where it already exists and devoting new resources that complement and buttress that strength."

The second point deals with the numerous research centers which focus on a variety of economic, social, and scientific problems. It states that these centers are the result of the grassroots efforts of the faculty or colleges involved, and is an indication of their commitment to Massachusetts.

The plan also calls attention to promoting interactive teaching, emphasizing that learning is an activity which both students and faculty can share.

"The drama and excitement in the classroom and consequently the impact of the material on the student is immeasurably greater when the teacher is also the one making discoveries," it states.

Lastly, the plan acknowledges the importance of faculty morale and the need for an atmosphere in which to conduct research and teaching.

"The faculty are the seedcorn. You eat it now in the depths of winter and it won't be there when you need it in

Turn to SENATE, page 2

DAYMION SMITH / COLLEGIAN

Don't worry, it will shrink!
Jessica Dumas of Colrain and Katie Formals of Shelbon take advantage of the J Crew sale at the Mullins Center.

Campus Police Log

Accident
Oct. 4

A vehicle that was passing stopped vehicles at the intersection of Massachusetts Avenue collided with a second vehicle. There were no injuries and both operators were able to drive away from the scene. One driver was issued a citation.

A vehicle parked in Parking Lot 22 was damaged by an unknown vehicle.

A vehicle which was leaving Fearing Street collided with a vehicle on University Drive. Richard Shanley of North Pleasant St., complained of pain and was taken to Cooley Dickinson Hospital. One operator was issued a citation.

Medical emergency
Oct. 4

An employee at Worcester Dining Hall lacerated her finger and was taken to University Health Services.

Annoying behavior
Oct. 4

There was a domestic incident between two individuals at Belchertown Adams Residence Hall.

There was a roommate dispute at McNamara Residence Hall.

An individual wanted to speak with an officer regarding a letter she received.

Larceny
Oct. 4

There was a Walkman and some books stolen from Thoreau Residence Hall.

There was a report that a fanny bag and two knives were stolen from Greenough Residence Hall.

There was a bicycle stolen from WEB. DuBois Library.
Oct. 5

There was a bicycle stolen from Crabtree Residence Hall.

Suspicious person/vehicle
Oct. 4

An individual who was shooting at the bottom of Mass. Circle Hall was removed from the building.

Vandalism
Oct. 4

[illegible] Hall [illegible] glass [illegible] Orchard Hill [illegible] Mass. Hall [illegible] Commonwealth [illegible]

Trespassing
Oct. 5

A [illegible] was issued a citation [illegible] Thompson.

A [illegible] Baldwin Hall [illegible] trespass.

■ Senate

continued from page 1

the spring," it states. "Less metaphorically, what this means is that unless substantial efforts are made to improve faculty morale by providing an adequate infrastructure ... both buildings and people — for their research and teaching, by offering competitive rates of pay, by retaining new faculty and by following consistent and widely shared criteria for tenure and promotion, then the strength of this university will drain away."

CORRECTION

In yesterday's [illegible] the story entitled "UM prefers more than just books," Professor Ron Welburn was misquoted as saying, "I am interested in the Indian and how they became 'Indianized.'" My comments to fight the 'de-Indianization.' The quote should have read: 'I am interested in the Indian and how they became 'de-Indianized.' My poems try to fight the de-Indianization."

The Collegian regrets the error.

For Your Information

FYIs are public service announcements which are printed daily. To submit an FYI, please send a press release containing all pertinent information including the name and phone number of the contact person to the Collegian, c/o the News Editor.

Friday, Oct. 6

Community — Shabbat service, all welcome, Hillel House, 6 p.m.

Dance Party — Sponsored by University Productions and Concerts with DJ Clue, tickets sold prior to the show at Tix Unlimited, $7 for students, $8 for non-students. $8 and $10 at the door. Bluewall Cafe. 9-30 p.m.

Film — Monster on the Campus, directed by Jack Arnold, $1.75, Campus Center Theater, AC, 7:30 and 10 p.m.

Lecture — Simplicity Itself: The Spirit of Vegetarianism, by local spiritual master and guide Lou, a discourse from a spiritual vantage point, free, Munson Memorial Library, South Amherst Common, 7:30 p.m.

Meeting — Graduate and undergraduate students with children are invited to join the Family Court Action week ly meetings, to discuss issues of student family needs at the University, bring your kids, toys, books, complaints, wishes, and demands, across from the Mini Store, Student Union, 10 a.m.

Poetry Slam — Patricia Smith, winner of the National Poetry Slam 1995, and Michael Brown, author of "The Falling Wellenda's", win $10, sign up list at the door, Cafe Mediterranean, 11 Pleasant St., Amherst, 8 p.m.

Social — The Black Graduate Students Association is having a social gathering, Graduate Lounge, 6-9 p.m.

Talk — China Talk: Divorce, Remarriage, and the Changing Family Structure in China, five college students are welcome to join the discussions of current affairs and use to train their ears for the Chinese language, accessible, room 126b, Adele Simmons Hall, HC, 7:30-10:30 p.m.

Saturday, Oct. 7

Community — Shabbat morning service followed by a free lunch, Hillel House, 10 a.m.

Dance Workshop — Scandinavian Couples Dance Workshop, beginners and singles welcome taught by Arna Dosser with Bas Kainer leading on the fiddle, $5 each or barter, call 549-1913 for more information, Munson Library, South Amherst, 6:30-8 p.m.

Dance Workshop — English Country Dance, taught by Helen Davenport with Van Kainer, Family Contra dance and others providing music, beginners come early, singles welcome, $5 each or barter, call 549-1913 for more information, Munson Library, South Amherst, 8 p.m.

Film — Monster on the Campus, directed by Jack Arnold, $1.75, Campus Center Theater, AC, 7:30 and 10 p.m.

Music — Teddy's Music works closely by the Composers Society, Inc., $5, $2.50, UMass students free with valid ID, Bezanson Recital Hall, 8 p.m.

Music — High Tide at Michael's Billiards, 9:30 p.m.

Sunday, Oct. 8

Community — Hillel Sukkah decorating party, Hillel House, 1 p.m.

Community — Sukkot services followed by dinner in the sukkah, $4 for students, $6.50 for general public, tickets available in advance, Hillel House, 6 p.m.

Monday, Oct. 9

Community — Sukkot service with Jewish Community of Amherst, followed by a free lunch, Hillel House, 10 a.m.

Notices

Scarecrow Wanted — Help earn profit as well as raise money by participating in the Village Commons of South Hadley scarecrow competition. First prize is $250, second is $100 and third prize is $75. There is no fee to enter and the Commons will supply the stand to build the scarecrow. All entries must be finished by Oct. 14, and winners will be announced on Halloween. Call 532-5600 for more information or to register. Limited to the first 30 scarecrows.

Deadline — For all UMass undergraduate and graduate students interested in applying to the Secondary Teacher Education Program for spring semester, the deadline for applications is Oct. 12. Please contact the STEP Advising Office, at 545-4359 for more information or drop by 125A Thatcher Hall for an application.

GLB RA Matters — Residence Life Staff who identify as gay, lesbian, bisexual, trans/gender or are questioning their sexual orientation are invited to attend GLB RA Matters. Meetings are every Friday in Mary Von from 12:30 p.m. - 2 p.m. For more information contact Dawn M Bond, 545-1486.

Wanted — Two UMass applicants and students wanted to be a part of the Chancellor's Civility Grant for Community Conflict Resolution, to participate in 9 hours of free mediation conflict resolution training, and to work as a team to help at risk youth Oct. 21, 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., Oct. 28, 9 a.m. to 12 p.m. and 10 hours of volunteering. Call Tic Tac Toe in Common 104 Call Leila Cooke at 545-2895 or 549-6027 for more information.

Volunteers Needed — WFCR needs help setting up tents for Fall Festival Sept. 30th and help in pumpkin patch Oct. 7th and 8th, also needs CDs to WFCR for auction. Help needed Monday, Wednesday and Thursday call Karen Ottenheimer at 545-0100 if you have time.

Congregation — Jumaa Service, the Muslim Students Association's [illegible] prayer service every Friday at 1 p.m. Campus Center for information call Utama at 256-8462.

Tradition — Southern Valley Productions is holding auditions for an Irish Theatre Production and/or if you are a performing group that wants to perform call 546-5725.

Volunteers Needed — The Asian Dance and Music Program in the Fine Arts Center is looking for volunteers to help with book fair on Oct. 21 at Southwest. Help is needed from 2 p.m. to 7 p.m. with a prior meeting on Friday Oct. 20 at 4 p.m. in Bowditch Auditorium. All volunteers are invited to attend Central Asian Dance and Music Performance 545-0900 for more information.

Locker Space — Locker space for students and RSO's. Contact Student Union Building, $10 per academic year, contact Commuter Services and Housing Resource Center 422 Student Union, 10 a.m.-3 p.m. Mon.-Fri.

Food Bartley Distress — The Newman Center annual food drive for the needy will be held from October 11 to October 13, containers are provided to stock the pantries from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. call 549-6369 for more information or to register.

Volunteers HIV/AIDS Awareness — The Springfield Science Museum is looking for volunteers who have had training in HIV/AIDS issues to come in contact with the public at the Wake Up to AIDS" exhibit from Nov. 2 through Jan. 28, 1996. Volunteers must be free two hour shifts on Wednesday through Sunday between 12-4 p.m. All volunteers will be trained through a workshop to the exhibit and provided with information about HIV/AIDS services in the area. Call 413-733-1194 for more information.

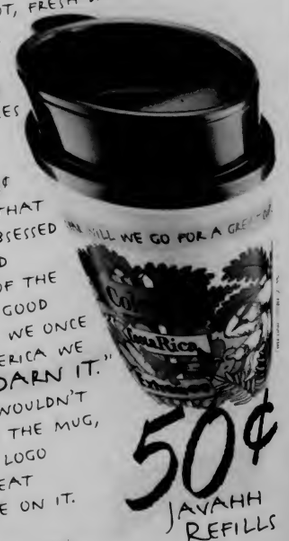
Holyoke Museum Trip — Tickets are now on sale until Oct. 13th at HX/50 the Holyoke Museum trip on Oct. 22. 23. Prices are $45 for UMass students, $40 for HX/50 members, limited number of seats available, sponsored by Hillel House.

Immigration — The Council on Jewish Federations will sponsor [illegible] Associates on Nov. 15-17, in Boston. The title of the conference is "A Century of Change, Heritage, Action, Empowerment" and will focus on the pressing issues facing the American Jewish community. Scholarship money is available. The registration deadline is fast approaching. Call Hillel House at 549-1710 for more information.

WRITE FOR DEVELOPING NATIONS!

CONTACT SYED MOHAMMED ALI-RAZA
113 CAMPUS CENTER
545-1851

IT DOESN'T JUST SAY, "I LIKE BRUEGGER'S." IT SAYS, "HEY, PAL, I'M SICK AND TIRED OF THE FROZEN, STALE, WARMED-OVER SOCIETY WE LIVE IN AND I'M DOING SOMETHING ABOUT IT BY GOING TO BRUEGGER'S WHERE THEY'RE ALWAYS MAKING HOT, FRESH BAGELS AND GETTING THEIR NIFTY NEW TRAVEL MUG FILLED WITH 22-OUNCES OF THEIR HOT, DELICIOUS COFFEE FOR JUST 99¢ FROM A COMPANY THAT I KNOW IS REALLY OBSESSED WITH FRESHNESS AND QUALITY AND ALL OF THE THINGS THAT WERE GOOD ABOUT THE AMERICA WE ONCE KNEW AND THE AMERICA WE CAN KNOW AGAIN, DARN IT." BUT ALL OF THAT WOULDN'T FIT ON THE SIDE OF THE MUG, SO WE JUST PUT A LOGO AND A REALLY NEAT PICTURE ON IT.



50¢ JAVAHH REFILLS

BRUEGGER'S BAGEL BAKERY
TOTALLY COMPLETELY OBSESSED WITH FRESHNESS

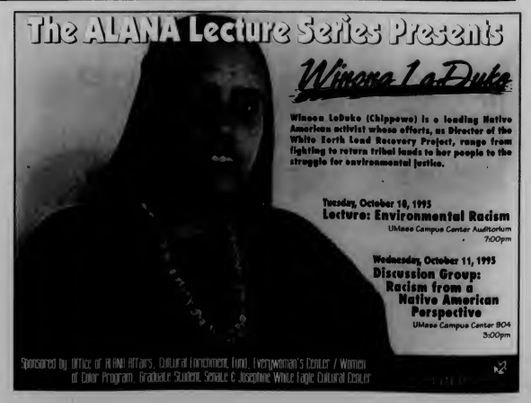
Open at 6 a.m. 7 Days A Week
96 Main Street, Northampton, MA
170 N. Pleasant Street, Amherst, MA

Assistant
Finance Manager

We are looking for:
•Ambitious •Responsible
•Organized
SOPHOMORES
with good communication skills
Business majors Preferred

EXPERIENCE
is a must to be successful in gaining the competitive edge in today's Business World

Applications are available at the Collegian
113 Campus Center and must be submitted by
Monday October 16th.



The ALANA Lecture Series Presents
Winona LaDuke
Winona LaDuke (Chippewa) is a leading Native American activist whose efforts, as Director of the White Earth Land Recovery Project, range from fighting to return tribal lands to her people to the struggle for environmental justice.
Tuesday, October 10, 1995
Lecture: Environmental Racism
UMass Campus Center Auditorium
7:00pm
Wednesday, October 11, 1995
Discussion Group:
Racism from a Native American Perspective
UMass Campus Center 804
3:00pm
Sponsored by: Office of ALANA Affairs, Cultural Enrichment Fund, Everywoman's Center / Women of Color Program, Graduate Student Senate & Josephine White Eagle Cultural Center

Marines reflect on crime as Okinawans protest

By Eric Talmadge
Associated Press

TOKYO — The U.S. Marine Corps commandant lead his troops on Okinawa in a day of reflection yesterday over the rape of a 12-year-old schoolgirl, an attack in which three American servicemen have been charged.

Thousands of Okinawans, meanwhile, marched to demand that the forces be removed from their island, while U.S. and Japanese officials in Tokyo debated the pact governing the 45,000 American troops in Japan.

Gen. Charles Krulak, the Marine commandant, visited bases throughout the day, lecturing thousands of grim-faced troops dressed in green battle fatigues. Usual base activities, such as jet training exercises, were suspended.

Krulak stressed that the rape was an aberration and that most U.S. troops do not violate the law.

"There are over 20,000 Marines and sailors stationed on Okinawa who dedicate enormous time and energy to defending the national security interests of the United States and Japan," Krulak said. "What you don't hear about are the unsung heroes who are doing their job — and receiving very little attention — every day."

Okinawan officials said they were baffled that Krulak did not plan to meet with them.

About 4,000 demonstrators turned out yesterday for peaceful marches and pickets in front of two U.S. military facilities on Okinawa.

"Anger over the incident will never vanish," said Nobuko Karimata, a local union leader.

Okinawan officials told a high-ranking defense official yesterday that the prefecture, comprising Japan's southernmost islands, will not force reluctant landowners to renew leases to U.S. bases. The central government can still override Okinawa, but the clash has demonstrated how high tensions are running.

In Tokyo, a U.S.-Japan panel of military and civilian experts held their second meeting yesterday to discuss possible improvements in the bilateral security agreement.

The panel, established after the rape, aims to work out some sort of revision in time for U.S. Defense Secretary William Perry's visit next month.

The three suspects in the Sept. 4 rape — Marine Pfc Rodrico Harp, 21, of Griffin, Ga.; Pfc Kendrick Ledet, 20, of Waycross, Ga.; and Navy Seaman Marcus Gill, 20, of Woodville, Texas — were handed over to Japanese authorities last Friday after weeks in U.S. custody.

Pope speaks to UN; calls for solidarity

By Louis Meixler
Associated Press

UNITED NATIONS — Saying intolerance can lead to "a true nightmare of violence and terror," Pope John Paul II warned the nations of the world yesterday of the dangers of extreme nationalism and called for solidarity between rich and poor.

"In an authentic family, the strong do not dominate; instead the weaker members, because of their very weakness, are all the more welcomed and served," the pope told the 185-member United Nations General Assembly.

"When millions of people are suffering from a poverty which means hunger, malnutrition sickness, illiteracy and degradation, we must ... remind ourselves than no one has a right to exploit another for his own advantage."

John Paul also warned that "fear of 'difference'... can lead to a true nightmare of violence and terror."

"We must ensure that extreme nationalism does not continue to give rise to new forms of the aberrations of totalitarianism," he said.

"Unhappily, the world has yet to learn how to live with diversity, as recent events in the Balkans and central Africa have painfully reminded us," he said, referring to Bosnia and Rwanda.

The pope's address during the U.N.'s 50th anniversary year came as the global organization is running out of money and its role is being increasingly questioned by the U.S. Congress.

The United Nations "needs to rise more and more above the cold status of an administrative institution and to become a moral center where all nations of the world feel at home," the pope said.

The pope spoke in all six U.N. languages. His speech included portions in English, French, Russian and Spanish and he ended his address with greetings in Arabic and Chinese.

The pontiff did not include large parts of his prepared text as he spoke, including an appeal to oust corrupt dictators and an attack on fundamentalism. Vatican spokesman Joaquin Navarro said the cuts were made to save time.

Security at the United Nations was extremely tight during the papal visit. Police wearing white gloves stood outside the building and police patrol boats cruised the East River, which flanks the building.

As the pope entered the building, workers chanted "John Paul II, we love you." During his four-hour visit, the pope praised U.N. staffers for promoting peace and human rights.

"Your contribution as staff members of the United Nations Organization is indispensable," John Paul said, dedicating a plaque to the memory of U.N. employees killed while serving in peacekeeping and humanitarian missions.

Some 60 fifth graders of the United Nations International School Choir greeted the pope in the U.N. lobby, many wearing costumes reflecting their ethnic background.

One girl handed the pope a bouquet of flowers. Yuan Zhou, 10, handed the pope a papier-mache dove.

The pope, looking frail, lifted the dove and asked the children to "pray for ... humanity." The pope later kissed the tops of the children's heads.

JEFF CROWNSHIELD | COLLEGIAN

Soup on a rainy day

Senior philosophy major Ryan Smerillo ponders truth and relativism over a cup of clam chowder.

The Price is Right!
$2 COVER
DRAFTS
WELL DRINKS
"The Best Party in Town"
Race St. Pub
286 Race Street
Holyoke
532-1422
Now Hiring Dancers
Excellent Money
FOOTBALL GAME IN SPORTS LOUNGE
Free Munchies until 9 p.m.• VIP Private Dancing
Sports Lounge• TV • Pool Table
Credit & Bank Cards Accepted • Lighted, Fenced Parking/ Police onDuty

Bud & Bud Light
75¢ 12oz. Drafts
($4 Pitchers)
Every Wednesday 10¢ Wings
Every Friday between 4-6
1/2 off All Appetizers
OCMP Member
55 University Drive • 549-5700

Collegian Graphics
Up all night to produce
New England's BEST
college daily

Save 22 cold breakfasts on a Macintosh.

Power Macintosh® 6100 DOS Compatible w/CD
16MB RAM/500MB hard drive, Power PC 601 processor, CD-ROM drive, 15" color monitor, keyboard and mouse.

Macintosh Performa® 636 w/CD
8 MB RAM/500 MB hard drive, CD-ROM drive, 15" color monitor, keyboard, mouse and all the software you're likely to need.

PowerBook® 520
4MB RAM/240MB hard drive.

It's as easy as pizza pie. Just visit your authorized Apple reseller today, and you can get a great deal on Macintosh® computers. Because they're on sale. Which means now you can get everything — all the hardware, software and accessories — you need to improve your GPA, cruise the Internet, maybe even have some fun. And still have enough dough left over to score tonight's hot dinner, tonight's very late snack and tomorrow's very cold pie. No matter how you slice it, it's the cheapest way yet to get a taste of Macintosh power. The power to be your best.® Apple

Stop By The University Store Computer Department For More Information

UNIVERSITY STORE
Campus Center
545-2619
Mon - Fri 9-5
Sat 11 - 3

Offers expire October 13, 1995. ©1995 Apple Computer, Inc. All rights reserved. Apple, the Apple logo, Macintosh and "The power to be your best" are registered trademarks of Apple Computer, Inc. CardShop Plus is a registered trademark of Mindscape. All Macintosh computers are designed to be accessible to individuals with disability. To learn more (U.S. only), call 800-600-7808 or TTY 800-755-0601. Sales of computer hardware are only available to: University Faculty, Staff and Students

DAILY COLLEGIAN

113 Campus Center • University of Massachusetts Amherst, MA 01003 • (413) 545-3500 • Fax (413) 545-1592

Matt Vautour Editor-in-Chief Juan José Chacón Quirós de Quetzcoatl Managing Editor
Earl T. Martin Business Manager James P. Ganley Production Manager Ethan Bloomfield Advertising Manager
Natasha Kuhn Advertising Production Manager Wendy Darling Senior Diversity Editor

Tara MK Connelly Arts & Living Editor
Christopher Byrd Black Affairs Editor
Mari Wurtzel Business Editor
Syed Mohammed Ali Raza Distributing Nations Editor
Geri Sabo Editorial/Opinion Editor
Wendy Darling Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Issues Editor
Jacob W. Michaels Jewish Affairs Editor
Herman Rozenberg Multicultural Affairs Editor
Chris Taylor Corner News Editor
Daymion Smith Photography Editor

Candice Flemming Sports Editor
Ron Alpert Staff Artist
Laura Schmidt, Anna Schwartz Women's Issues Editors
Maria I. Heliner Editorial Production Manager
Adam Chase Systems Manager
N.J. Stewart Features Manager
Russ Courtemanche Distribution Manager
Maureen Majerowski Assistant Operations Manager
Marty Poppin Classified Advertising
Thomas F. Sweeney, Jr. Graphics Advisor/Instructor

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published Monday through Friday during the University of Massachusetts academic year, except during vacations and exam periods. The Collegian is financially independent from the University of Massachusetts, operating solely on revenues generated by advertising sales. The paper was founded in 1890 as The Index, it became the College Signal in 1901, the Weekly Collegian in 1914, and then the Tri-Weekly Collegian in 1958. The Collegian has been published daily since 1962, and has been a broadsheet publication since 1994. For advertising rates and information, call (413) 545-3500 weekdays between 8:30 a.m. and 5:30 p.m.

Opinion/Editorial

The joke party of Perot

Bob Dunn

Well, the odds makers take a beating again. Just when everyone had counted him out, written him off, and filed him away with other novelties such as pet rocks, skinny ties and leather pants, H. Ross Perot is making another go at American politics.

Perot made the announcement last week that he had plans to create a third party, to fill the void left by the Republicans and Democrats. What Ross seems to have forgotten somewhere along the line, though, is that there's already a third party, the Libertarians, making Perot's party a fourth at best.

Presumably this party would be formed from the loosely organized remnants of the "United We Stand" party he formed, abandoned and rejoined in his ill-fated run for the Presidency in 1992. The name itself begs the question, "stand for what?" Perot has the easiest job in politics, that of the opposition, and he makes the most of it. He doesn't have to, and doesn't, come up with any solutions, he just needs to sit back and crab about what he thinks is wrong. His job is made all the more simple because he thinks everyone is wrong... except him.

He's given us some entertaining moments before, though. From the "you people" fiasco, to his paranoid theories about unnamed parties trying to blackmail him, to his disastrous showing during the NAFTA debate, Ross has always been a hoot. A Perot campaign is like a paisley diaper. Plastic, uncomfortable and chafing, but colorful.

He made the '92 campaign exciting. He made politics fun again. I can still remember him getting up on stage and spouting out his fiery rhetoric, sounding less like a contender and more like Will Rogers on a really mean whiskey drunk.

Perot isn't a politician, he's a showman. He has no platform, no issues and no party, and that is a major problem. If Perot, or a candidate picked by him, should get into office, who could they count on? Clinton, even with all of his problems these past couple of years, can still usually count on the Democrats in congress. The Republicans are just as good at toeing the party line, but who's going to back up Ross? The Republicans, whom he stabbed in the back when he paraded them around like show horses a little while back, just so he could find their weak spot and exploit it? Or the Democrats who would have lost their man in office?

Neither, he'd be on his own, and if he's displeased with the way things run now, imagine the House and the Senate running on their own without an anchor in the White House.

Let's face it, if it wasn't for the size of his checkbook, Perot would be nothing more than an irascible old man, delivering his platform from a lawn chair in a trailer park, in between reruns of The People's Court and Matlock, with a six pack by his side, to an audience of pink flamingoes and U.F.O. abductees.

If not Ross, then who? No one with any sense. Perot has alluded that he'd like Colin Powell or someone of his stature to run with his party, but I think he's got more sense than that.

Teaming with Perot is political suicide. It would immediately undermine any credibility that candidate may have had. It would be like if Gene Hackman made a guest shot on Baywatch, it would be slumming.

So, what do we do with him? Well, if (and it's a big if) he manages to actually get his party registered, then he may very well become a factor, if not actually getting someone elected, then by at least splitting the vote. This vote split may have helped Clinton take office the last time around. If he doesn't get his party registered, then we have about a year of temper tantrums from him about how the system is wrong and the rules are unfair and how it's all a conspiracy, etc. etc. ad nauseam to look forward to.

When all is said and done, it turns out Ross is little more than a Franken-candidate, put together from bits and pieces the other parties have left behind, and he's all bought and paid for. For all those who think he may be a Godsend, and the answer to all of our political prayers, be careful what you wish for, you just might get it.

Bob Dunn is a Collegian columnist.

SURVEY SAYS ONE OF EMPLOYERS' PROBLEMS WITH GROWING USE OF TEMPORARY OR 'CONTINGENT' EMPLOYEES IS THEIR 'LACK OF COMMITMENT.'
TOLES
UNIVERSAL PRESS SYND.
YOUR MANUAL SAYS 'EMULATE THE BOSS.'
Duh

Send the jury system to prison

They let him go.

As the only newspaper columnist in the country to have completely ignored The People vs. Orenthal James Simpson, I must admit I feel like I'm selling out to the mass media. But that's fitting, since that is exactly what happened in Los Angeles on Tuesday morning. The verdict was such a blatant miscarriage of justice that I can't resist the temptation.

We have a jury system in America, which is what keeps us a democracy. I've defended unpopular juries, like in the case of Mumia Abu Jamal, and even juries I didn't agree with, like in the Rodney King case in 1992. And the jury system still stands after O.J. — even though this verdict was plainly the wrong one.

When it was reported that the jury had reached a verdict in just under four hours, nearly every commentator, whether person on the street or CNN analyst, said Simpson would be spending the rest of his life in prison. Why? Because there was so much evidence to convict that that was the only logical quick call.

Any honestly-considered acquittal would have taken weeks. A quick decision could only mean that all 12 jurors stared at the hard facts and couldn't get around them.

O.J. Simpson beat his wife. We know that. O.J. Simpson insisted on controlling her finances, her friendships, and even whom she could keep company with. We know that. O.J. Simpson had been reported to 911 time and again for domestic abuse. We know that.

When Nicole Brown Simpson and Ronald Goldman were slain, O.J. Simpson tried to leave the country. He had a gun, a disguise, and thousands of dollars in cash. Investigators found bloody evidence at his house. They found blood in the hotel room in Chicago, where he went for less than 24 hours after the murders. DNA testing showed that only five or six people on the whole surface of the planet matched that blood — one of them O.J. Simpson.

We know that.

Over the past 16 months, the trial had become a frivolity. America turned on Simpson or Ito or Kaelin and gagged between its giggles. This is understandable; the O.J. Show was on 24 hours a day, in your face.

But on Tuesday we all realized just how much the case mattered. It wasn't just fodder for Leno and Letterman. It was the Lindbergh case of our time — an example of celebrity justice that law students will still debate a hundred years from now.

We saw every minute. We heard every bit of innuendo and rumor. Because he was famous, Simpson's trial was a national fascination. Because he was rich, Simpson bought himself the most capable — and least ethical — lawyers he could dig up. They built a case by creating outlandish conspiracies and cynically playing off black against white. They never provided an alibi. They never provided an motive for any other killer. They never said O.J. didn't beat Nicole; they never said he didn't do it.

Because he was rich, Simpson bought himself the most capable — and least ethical — lawyers he could dig up. They built a case by creating outlandish conspiracies and cynically playing off black against white. They never provided an alibi.

Peter Orvetti

Now acquitted, Simpson returns to a society where his reputation is shattered. As well it should be. Faith in the jury system stems from the idea that the jury knows more about the facts of a case than the public at large. But in this trial, we all saw everything. And a majority of Americans know that, on June 12, 1994, Orenthal James Simpson murdered his ex-wife Nicole and her friend Ron.

Why he was let free, we'll never know. Fear of riots? (Post-verdict graffiti opined that O.J. owed his freedom to the threat of racial violence.) Too much love and emotion for a sports icon to send him to the slammer? Or the Democrats who would have lost their man in office?

Whatever the reason, he'd be on his own, and if he's displeased with the way things run now, imagine the House and the Senate running on their own without an anchor in the White House.

Let's face it, if it wasn't for the size of his checkbook, Perot would be nothing more than an irascible old man, delivering his platform from a lawn chair in a trailer park, in between reruns of The People's Court and Matlock, with a six pack by his side, to an audience of pink flamingoes and U.F.O. abductees.

If not Ross, then who? No one with any sense. Perot has alluded that he'd like Colin Powell or someone of his stature to run with his party, but I think he's got more sense than that.

Teaming with Perot is political suicide. It would immediately undermine any credibility that candidate may have had. It would be like if Gene Hackman made a guest shot on Baywatch, it would be slumming.

So, what do we do with him? Well, if (and it's a big if) he manages to actually get his party registered, then he may very well become a factor, if not actually getting someone elected, then by at least splitting the vote. This vote split may have helped Clinton take office the last time around. If he doesn't get his party registered, then we have about a year of temper tantrums from him about how the system is wrong and the rules are unfair and how it's all a conspiracy, etc. etc. ad nauseam to look forward to.

When all is said and done, it turns out Ross is little more than a Franken-candidate, put together from bits and pieces the other parties have left behind, and he's all bought and paid for. For all those who think he may be a Godsend, and the answer to all of our political prayers, be careful what you wish for, you just might get it.

Bob Dunn is a Collegian columnist.

Notes from the basement

Matt Vautour

Wow. What appeared to be over 500 people overflowed out of the Bluewall anxiously awaiting the verdict of what was dubbed the "Trial of the Century."

Similar scenes materialized anywhere a television could be found up to 45 minutes before the verdict was handed down.

Debates raged.

"He has to be guilty, if the decision came that fast," said one cramped observer in the Bluewall.

"No way," responded his friend. "There would have been at least one jury member that would have held out. There would've had to been."

What people were in agreement on was their disbelief of how quickly the decision was made. It seemed nearly impossible that unanimity could be found that quickly.

When the verdict was finally handed down, the reaction was eerie. Some people's mouth's just hung open in disbelief. Other looked up in appalled anger, not only at the verdict, but at the others around them cheering.

It's hard to imagine that October 3, 1995 will be a day soon forgotten by anyone.

* * *

Staying with the Bluewall...

For all of you still trying to solve the mystery of what ever happened to Hatch Pizza, you need to look no further.

The limp, greasy slices can now be found in the Bluewall.

To be fair though, the new deli/pizza/other stuff cafeteria in the back of the Bluewall is a pretty good alternative to the other lunch options available.

* * *

Staying on the subject of pizza

Are they really moving an Antonio's to the Southwest Munchy Store?

While this may be good because it will limit the lines that currently exist as the original site, it takes something away from what makes Antonio's special.

Antonio's is different. Since 1991, Students have enjoyed weird combinations on their pie. It is not common to be able to enter a pizza parlor and grab a slice of taco, chicken parm or any combination of edible substances for a meal.

Antonio's in the Munchy store is definitely a step up from the Southwest pizza which one needed a cast iron stomach to keep down and digest.

But having Antonio's anywhere else detracts from what has made it great. While the pizza is the best in the Pioneer Valley, hands down, it is about more than just pizza.

In an area where everyone delivers, Antonio's doesn't. It is pizza by the slice. It is long lines of drunks on weekends in that tiny spot on North Pleasant Street.

So for good pizza, there's another spot, but be sure it just won't be the same.

* * *

This week was an interesting study in what is effective and what isn't effective in a protest.

On Monday afternoon, a woman working on behalf of Greenpeace performed a one-actress play at the Southeast end of the Campus Pond.

In a peaceful yet powerful way, the woman performed "Mata Ara," a play she wrote in protest of the French nuclear testing.

People gathered around and listened. When she was done people signed a petition and walked away informed.

On the other hand Tuesday afternoon there was an example of how not to protest.

A man, wearing a mask of a cat, stood to the side to the Student Union screaming at people walking by him, even berating and swearing at them.

People did stop to listen, but instead of being moved to action, they laughed at his buffoonery. After people left him they remembered the crazy guy screaming, not what he was screaming about.

Matt Vautour is a Collegian columnist.

Letters to the Editor

Best wishes for player's future

To the Editor:

I am writing this letter to comment on an editorial printed in Tuesday's Collegian. The editorial by Leigh Torbin, "NBA visits Romper Room," deeply lacked many facts related to the story of Kevin Garnett. Being affiliated with the New York Knicks, not to mention an avid basketball fan I have read many opinions on this issue. Although I agree with Mr. Torbin on the fact that the game of college basketball has changed, using Garnett's story was a poor example.

Obviously there is an issue here. The NCAA is concerned that if this trend continues, the amateur image of college hoops we once had will be permanently shattered. However, there is another question to be asked. Can Garnett adjust to being a "boy" in a man's world? For those who are wondering, this is where (ex-Celtic great) Kevin McHale comes in.

McHale, one of the most respected citizens of the NBA, has taken precautionary measures in this matter. He has enlisted the help of Clem Haskins, who is the head coach at the University of Minnesota. Haskins will allow Garnett to spend time with his players so that Garnett does not fall prey to NBA-primadonnas Christian Laettner and Isiah Rider. McHale has also arranged for Garnett's mother and his best friend to move to Minnesota to better insure Garnett's stability.

I was appalled that Mr. Torbin wished failure upon Kevin Garnett. He has the opportunity of a lifetime and I personally hope he surpasses all expected of him. His boyish enthusiasm will be a refreshing change to the Derek Colemans of the world.

Darren Cohen
Southwest

A deeper meaning to the trial

To the Editor:

Today, most of us are making our judgement about the outcome of the O.J. Simpson trial. Some of us think he is guilty, while others think he is innocent. I perceive the outcome of this trial quite differently. Instead of judging, I am pondering about the reality that it reveals about policemen that most of us rely on for protection. They are those in whom the judges and jury believe in. This trial, however, projects a light on some of their practices, which are abusing power and trust. Do you remember the Rodney King video tape?

The question whether O.J. was framed or not can only be answered by Mark Furhman. But there is evidence that the police have framed people in the past. The difference is their previous victims were average people like you and I who could not afford a dream team of lawyers to challenge the evidence brought against them. Consequence: "After reviewing all the compiling evidence brought against you by the police department, we, the jury find the defendant guilty of ... The court is adjourned."

"It's better to set a guilty person free than to jail an innocent one." That's what set O.J. free. Whether he is guilty or not will probably be known.

Pierre Arthur Elysee
UMass student

The importance of childhood

Tara Ruelle

I stumbled into work the other day to find a strangely familiar sight. In the back room there stood three, scared looking pre-teen girls. One fat, mall security guard and two very pissed-off looking mothers. My theories were confirmed by my supervisor's poor attempt at trying not to laugh at them — the aforementioned teeny boppers were nailed for shoplifting.

I could sit back now and laugh as I listened to the big, out-of-shape mall cop berate them with, "Yeah, you know it only takes one time, then you could land in the slammer, girls." The scare tactics were over the top, but effective; been there, done that, bought that T-shirt (in a manner of speaking).

It was almost a rite-of-passage in my junior high school to come into school bragging about the cool, "rubber-band that you could stick the middle finger up on keep chain" you stole the other day at Stuart's. Most of my friends had a host of cheap makeup and other souvenirs to tout that they had stolen.

I was pretty much a wuss, although easily persuaded. I knew that I'd be pretty lame if I couldn't pull off the big steal, so of course I went to Stuart's to make a name for myself. I have always been blessed with this "just do it" attitude and a conscience that just doesn't cooperate.

The conscience has much to do with the fear that my 4- foot-10 mother has successfully instilled in me as an impressionable young adult. She never yelled, but was always "disappointed."

Every time I would go to do something without much thought of consequence, I could feel her motherly intuition suffocating me. Nevertheless, my friends approval was of slightly more importance at the ripe age of 13, so I took the plunge into delinquency anyway.

I walked into Stuart's with my stomach in my throat and sweat-drenched hands clutching onto my silver pocket-book. If I could just snag a simple, purple, Wet-n-Wild lipstick, I'd be good to go.

I had studied the techniques of my cohorts and decided the best way to go about it was to remove the lipstick from the package and swiftly slip it into my glove — if I could've only stopped my mother's eyes from burning the back of my head.

Fifteen minutes into my ordeal, my friend had already wiped out half of the makeup counter and was motioning for me to hurry up. Luckily, my super fear-driven trouble radar was on alert; just as I was about to succumb to the peer pressure I noticed a man behind the riser staring at us. It seemed no coincidence to me so I ditched the lipstick all together and grabbed my friend to head for the door.

Much of what happened after that is unimportant; various cosmetic items were thrown from my friend's mittens as we bolted for the door. Eventually we were not too kindly hauled off by an unsightly fellow who read us our rights, along with an equally unattractive partner.

I, again being the wuss, was firmly convinced of my pending incarceration and proceeded to cry the whole way home. I could barely force out the words to my parents when I arrived bearing the mood news.

It didn't really go over too well at home, but I achieved minimal success at school. I hadn't actually gotten anything for the aggravation, but became a legend in my own right for just not being allowed in Stuart's anymore without the accompaniment of an adult. It certainly wasn't "America's Most Wanted," but close enough for the junior high notoriety.

I can't help but find amusement when I see someone younger making the same stupid mistakes I made. I think a lot of these ridiculous endeavors need to be made in order to learn anything about yourself.

I'm not saying if I had successfully stolen the lipstick I'd be holding up gas stations right now, but I do think I would have listened to my friends more than people who actually knew what they were talking about.

Getting caught always sucks, but it makes for some great educational advice later. I'm sure Al Gore's daughter will look back at cracking her first beer at 16 in front of the entire nation and chuckle pretty heartily some day.

Tara Ruelle is a Collegian columnist.

Arts & Living

Provocative show at Iron Horse

COURTESY CATHERINE MCCANN

Diamanda Galas brings her haunting melodies to the Iron Horse next week.

By Mike Burke
Collegian Staff

"Centuries from now, if anything is left, as texts are poured over and studied for a clue as to whether or not any people of this era had one, Diamanda Galas will likely stand out as not only an immense talent but a truth teller and a visionary." Strong words indeed to describe the most undescribable artist of our time.

Galas emerged on the international music scene in 1979 at the Festival d'Avignon where she was spotted by composer Vinko Globokar. Soon Galas played the lead in Globokar's opera, Un four Comme Une Autre. From there, she continued her solo career.

In 1984, Galas began the piece of work that has made her an international acclaimed star. Her piece Plague Mass was revolutionary as its main theme was AIDS, years before the disease became CNN news. For years later Galas toured the world performing Plague Mass as a one woman show. The high-light performance took place at a most unusual venue — Cathedral Saint John the Divine in New York City — the second largest cathedral in the world.

The Plague Mass continued it's world tour with performances in Barcelona at the 1990 Olympic Festival. After a performance in Italy, part of the Italian government condemned her for committing blasphemy against the Roman Catholic Church.

Besides her Plague Mass, her most well known piece, Galas has written other pieces including Vena Cava, Insekta, Judgement Day and Sporting Life.

At the Iron Horse on Monday and Tuesday night, Galas will be performing Insane Asylum. This solo performance will feature songs by herself as well as Johnny Cash, Phil Ochs and Willie Dixon.

Tingles will surely go up your spine when Galas screams out with her demonic voice that has a haunting three and a half octave range. Her live show was best described as, "Frightening, provocative... unlike anything one will ever see in a life-time of concert-going."

Diamanda Galas will perform at the Iron Horse Music Hall on Monday and Tuesday night. Both shows start at 7:00 p.m. Tickets are available in advance at the Northampton Box Office.

Techno, rock coming to Pearl St.

By Rob Stevens
Collegian Staff

Filter, the semi-electronically enhanced rock band, brings its tour to Pearl Street this Saturday night.

This summer Filter hit it big with their widely successful smash-hit, "Hey Man Nice Shot," and the band has continued to get lots of radio and video play with their more recent singles. State-of-the-art guitar technology and loud, distorted, sonic-feedback describe the band's music repertoire. What they bring to their live show can only be contemplated.

Filter is not the most musically talented of bands — their debut album Short Bus does not even have one guitar solo on it. Evidently, technically-challenging music is not the band's forte. Instead, thick, distorted power chords and sonic catchy hooks turn their sound into melodic abrasiveness.

One of the members, Brian Liesegang is a former member of Nine Inch Nails. Often striking similarities to NIN can be heard, but a NIN sound is not easily duplicated. Filter are their own band with their own sound. Their sound is full of energy, passion and soul.

Three key ingredients to rock'n'roll.

The true test will be tomorrow night at Pearl Street, since much of Short Bus is processed by the band's own Macintosh PC. Will Filter be able to reproduce the same waves and feel that Short Bus holds, or will they just turn out to be a bad band with a lot of expensive electronic equipment?

No one will know until the mosh pits flow, but if the fact that the band has been touring since the release of their CD indicates anything about the band's live show, the audience exiting Pearl Street on Saturday night will be happy to have lent their pounding ear drums to the noisy sounds of Filter.

Filter will appear this Saturday with Everclear at Pearl Street. Doors open at 6:30. Tickets are $10 in advance and are available at Tix Unlimited and the Northampton Box Office. Call the club at 584-7810 for more details.

COURTESY PAUL MCMENAMIN

Filter will perform at Pearl St. tomorrow night.

PARADISE CITY ARTS FESTIVAL
NORTHAMPTON, MASSACHUSETTS
CRAFTS TO FIRE THE IMAGINATION
160 Juried Exhibitors
FEATURING
Fine art and contemporary crafts for collecting and gift giving.
Jewelry Furniture
Wearables Glass
Ceramics Sculpture
Functional and Whimsical Pieces for the Garden
Children's Activity Tent
Gourmet Food Tent
Craft Demonstrations
The Tri-County Fairgrounds, indoors and undercover
Rain or Shine
COLUMBUS DAY WEEKEND
October 7th & 8th
10AM-6PM
October 9th
10AM-4PM
$6 Adults
$2 Children
(413) 586-6324
SHOW INFORMATION
(413) 584-1900
TRAVEL INFORMATION
DIRECTIONS: The Tri-County Fairgrounds just off Interstate 91. From I-91 South take exit 20, from I-91 North take exit 19. From the Mass Pike take exit 4 onto I-91 North to exit 19. From RT 2 take I-91 South to exit 20. Under two hours from Boston and southern Connecticut, under 3 hours from New York City, 50 minutes from the Berkshires, 45 minutes from Brattleboro, Vermont, and an hour from Albany.
SPONSORED IN PART BY Daily Hampshire Gazette
Advocate

Taipei & Tokyo
Chinese & Japanese Restaurant
ADVOCATE ★ BEST ★ OF THE VALLEY READERS POLL 1995
★1995★ Best Chinese & Japanese Restaurant Business West
Dine in or Take Out • We Deliver
Gift Certificates Available
(413) 582-1888 • OPEN 7 DAYS
18 Main Street, Northampton, MA 01060

Merrill Lynch
Opportunities
Interviewing in the Amherst area on November 30 & December 1.
Resumes will be accepted through October 31st
On the Merrill Lynch Fast Track
For decades Merrill Lynch has been the leading U.S. brokerage firm. One in five affluent American investors name Merrill Lynch as their brokerage firm. Total assets under management now exceed $500 billion globally.
We at Merrill Lynch have built our leadership position through a client-driven marketing strategy. We stay abreast of changes in world demographics and investor needs, then respond with new products and services well before the rest of the marketplace.
Now Merrill Lynch invites a small group of outstanding 1996 college and MBA graduates to share in that success by pursuing a unique career opportunity in its Private Client organization.
The Private Client Development Program offers challenging positions in one of the Merrill Lynch Private Client business units (units key to maintaining our competitive edge – where your contribution to our success is significant).
Under the guidance of a senior manager, you work in product development, marketing or finance areas. You meet with senior management to discuss firm strategy and participate in task force projects to aid various business units in meeting their strategic objectives. Formal classes address career development issues and enhance your leadership skills. You are given responsibility, accountability, and the experience needed to help you succeed throughout your Merrill Lynch career.
Candidates for the program have outstanding records of academic, extracurricular and work experience achievement. They are interested in the challenge of the fast-paced financial services industry and want to be recognized for their accomplishments.
The Merrill Lynch Private Client group is offering an unequaled opportunity to excel. If you have the talent, creativity, energy and commitment to be a winner, this is an opportunity that can make a difference in your career.
The difference is Merrill Lynch.
For more information, write us:
Private Client Development Program
Merrill Lynch
PO Box 9027 Dept UM
Princeton, NJ 08543-9027
We are an Equal Opportunity Employer

Explosive new album Revs it up

By Wayken Shaw
Collegian Staff

MERCURY REV
See You On The Other Side
Work/Sony

Words like "eclectic" and "experimental" are pretty cliche nowadays, but Buffalo's Mercury Rev could not be better described.

Taking as much from the drug-inflected space-rock of Pink Floyd and orchestral excursions of the Beatles as well as their own unearthly sensibilities, Mercury Rev pick up from 1993's eccentric Boces and create the equally unusual and challenging See You On The Other Side.

Trimmed down to a quintet with the departure of David Baker, vocalist on the band's previous two records, the band loses no sense of unity or space in all its incoherence. The band's pretensions have mellowed a bit but has proved to meld things into a more listenable fashion.

"Sudden Ray of Hope" starts off with a jazzy groove which quickly interchanges with blasts of computer noise. Suzanne Thorpe's flute soothingly holds everything together until the song breaks into a funky bridge complete with horns and shades of British soul music.

"Empire State" similarly meanders from dreamy soundscapes to a chaotic frenzy of sounds fueled by manic trumpet underpinnings.

On the more straightforward trip are "Riding the Tide," which is a mellow slice of Pink Floyd, and "Young Man's Stride," a hard rocker that never lets up.

See You On The Other Side is obviously a call to break through the confinements of conformity. It isn't exactly easy listening, especially to those unfamiliar with the band, but surprises are abound even to the most fervent of fans. This is just further proof that Mercury Rev are the new mad scientists of rock.

Marvelous A-

The continuing saga of the Red Sox

Mike's MENTAL Stew

So the Red Sox have made it to the playoffs again and, of course, it seems to be all that is on the minds of New England sports fans.

On Tuesday, former Sox Tony Pena burnt our beloved team with a gut-wrenching homer to win it for the Indians in game one. Even though it was only game one, the looks on the faces of the Sox and the Cleveland fans only served to give the impression that the series was, for all intents and purposes, over.

Sure it was just another chapter in the book of chokes for the Sox in post-season play, added to the names Buckner, Dent and Eckersley. But through it all the fans in Boston continue to tune in time after time. But why?

I can remember as a kid going to Fenway, the building that concealed a hidden treasure inside. In some weird way I think many people in New England, once the leaves begin to drop, start to recall their own youths and are magnetically drawn to their sets, not to see if the Sox will lose, but rather how they will lose.

Sound pessimistic? There is some truth underneath this theory. Boston has found almost every way possible to lose, short of forfeiting due to a hangnail epidemic. Mental errors, fluke home runs, fans on the field, passed balls, missed grounders — you name it, and it has undoubtedly happened to the Red Sox at one time or another and possibly several times.

Fine, you might say, so they always choke — life is full of losers and the Sox just happen to be a team of them. But one also has to take into account the irony. What irony? Well just look the aforementioned Tuesday night.

As soon as Pena entered the game I'm sure a slew of fans turned off their sets for the simple fact that they knew. And in the tradition of Ruth, Fisk (and come to think of it about one third of the 1988 Oakland A's line-up), Pena delivered, and I wasn't surprised at all.

A friend summed it up pretty well when he told me that the Red Sox were just like the O.J. Trial — in the end, the shock of the event was never there, but the disappointment in the institution remained.

Yet I get the feeling that I will keep watching, and hoping, as the generations before me have done, that the Sox may one day win the big one. And a little voice inside keeps telling me that they will, but that afterwards the mystique of the Sox will be gone.

Did you know that if you take the four numbers that have been retired in Red Sox history and line them up you get 9–4–18? This happens to be the date of the night of the first game of a World Series the Sox actually won. Pretty ironic huh?

Mike MacLean is a Collegian Staff member.

UMass bikers hope to ride over foes

By Jason Woll
Collegian Correspondent

Some of the finest collegiate bikers in the country will be racing on the Massachusetts campus tomorrow.

Students can come and watch some of the best that the UMass Cycling Club has to offer, or give it a shot themselves in one of the novice races. There are five different categories to compete in.

For women, there are two classes — A (difficult) and B (novice), and for men there are three classes — A (difficult), B (intermediate) and C (beginners).

The racing will go from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. With this being the first mountain bike race held by UMass, tomorrow is an ideal time to support the team and learn more about one of the fastest growing club sports today.

Registration opens at 8 a.m. with the racing set to begin at 10 a.m. (men's class C), 11 a.m. (women's B), noon (men's B), 1:30 p.m. (women's A) and 3 p.m. (men's A).

All those interested can register up to 15 minutes before their categories race. There is a $10 entry fee and a $5 one- day license fee. Helmets are required to participate.

Checks should be made out to the UMass Bicycle Racing Club, 416 Student Union Bldg. Box 82, Amherst Ma 01003.

History of UMass Cycling Club

The UMass Cycling team has been around for about 10 years. They have been Eastern Collegiate Cycling Champions for five of those years. Former members of the club have gone on to qualify for the National Championships of which only 200 collegiate cyclists qualify for.

Up until two years ago the team only consisted of road bikes. However the mountain biking aspect of the team is growing and has a lot of potential. Expectations are positive for the club and not only for road racing as in the past but off the beaten path as well.

Like any other mountain bike race the UMass mountain bike racing trail has its tough spots, its' Heartbreak Hill, or Hills in this case. The trail's length is two miles from start to finish.

"Throughout the course there's many different types of terrain including, a couple of rolling hills, a technical uphill, and some fast downhill areas," according to the club's vice president, Jeff Chu.

"First year student Zack Easton has a pretty good resume. He won the junior expert Pedro Series, two years ago. He raced again this year and he's still considered a junior racer, but he raced with the senior men," Chu said.

To find out more about the club or the race contact Dan Coady or Chu at 256-8175 or if you just want to bike with the team to see if this sports for you.

■ football

continued from page 8

dropping the football."

When the Minutemen take the field against the Wildcats, they will have a new quarterback calling out the plays. Sophomore Anthony Catterton replaces the bumped and bruised Vito Campanile as the starter, looking to spark the UMass offense.

"We feel Anthony Catterton is moving our offense the best right now," Hodges said. "[Campanile] is hurt a little and his play is affected."

UMass looks to get back on track Saturday at McGuirk Stadium, with kickoff at 1 p.m. The game can be heard on 91.1 WMUA FM Radio, with Anthony Guido on play-by-play, and John Patterson providing color commentary.

Minutemen Notes:

Fullback Rene Ingoglia, who is 11 yards shy of the all-time UMass rushing record, re-injured his hamstring and is questionable for Saturday. Senior co-captain Vernard Fennell is out for the season with a knee injury, he will have surgers to repair the damage. Senior cornerback Breon Parker heads into tomorrow's game fifth on the all- time UMass pass break-up list with 24.

V-ball plans to step it up as they face A-10 rivals

By Steven Grant
Collegian Staff

Hoping to bounce back from Tuesday's home loss to Rhode Island, the Massachusetts volleyball team heads south this weekend to face a couple of strong Atlantic 10 opponents, George Washington and Virginia Tech.

Both the Colonials and the Hokies are tied for second in the league, with 5–1 records. GW has an overall record of 13–4, while Virginia Tech is 12–4. UMass (11–7, 4–2) will start off with the Hokies tonight at 7:30, and then travel to GW for the Saturday affair which also begins at 7:30 p.m.

With Giza Rivera out with injury, teammates Rachel Sky Lesley Nolan, Susan Maga, Katie Pearce and Dionne Nash, among others, have been able to step it up a notch. So far, they have passed some tests without her, and failed others.

The match against the Colonials, who were picked by league coaches to win the championship this year, will be no cakewalk. GW is in the middle of a three game winning streak, losing just a total of one game in its matches against American, Xavier and Dayton. It has played a tough schedule, including the number one ranked team in the country, Nebraska, whom they lost to in three straight games.

The Colonials are led by Svetlana Vturina, who has a team-high 450 kills and a whopping 7.377 kills a game average. The Minutewomen should also keep their eye on Megan Korver (2.783 K/gm, team-high 1.25 blocks per game) and Jill Lambert (2.323 k/gm, team-high 3.129 digs per game).

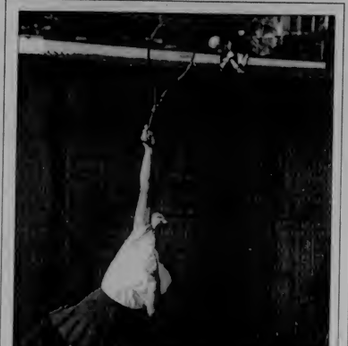
Virginia Tech is no slouch, either. In fact, it was the team that handed the Colonials their only A-10 loss. The Hokies, coached by Stephanie Hawbecker, boast a well-rounded attack offensively.

Senior middle blocker Jennifer Schmidt leads a field of five teammates with over 100 kills on the season, with 168. The other four include Terrie Zubert, Megan Barnes, Jennifer Arbuckle and Carrie Bundy. Zubert, a sophomore outside hitter, leads the team in digs per game with 3.0, while Barnes, a sophomore middle blocker, is the head Hokie in the blocking department, with 1.37 a game.

"We're playing a couple of really good teams," sophomore middle blocker Leigh Readey said. "We're going to have to step it up if we're going to be successful. The Rhode Island loss was tough, but if we play the way we're capable of playing we should be able to overcome it and have a good weekend."

The upcoming matches are crucial for the Minutewomen, who need to stay in contention for the A-10 crown. Last year, the front six out of the eight teams in the league qualified for the post-season tournament. This year, there are twelve teams. And only four make it. Combined with the fact that UMass is hosting the tourney (as well as the national championships), the pressure is on.

UMass will travel to cross-state rival Boston College on Tuesday, before starting a five game homestand on Friday.



DAYMON SMITH/COLLEGIAN

Looking for sunny skies

The UMass women's tennis team's match with UConn was cancelled due to rain. They will return to action this weekend against Rutgers and Fordham.

Women's X–C to run in Paul Short Invitational

By Casey Kane
Collegian Staff

After starting the season with a record of 7-0-1, the Massachusetts women's cross country team will travel to Bethlehem, Pa., this weekend, for a tough mid-season test.

Running in the Paul Short Invitational, the Minutewomen hope for a strong showing and top performances as they head into the championship stretch of their schedule.

The season started with many questions for the Massachusetts squad, having had to redshirt star Melissa Langevin. All those questions have been answered, however, as UMass has convincingly run away with victory.

Led by sophomore Rebecca Donaghue and senior Jen Wagner, the Minutewomen have already posted wins over a number of New England teams. Cruising to victory in every meet, the Minutewomen's only challenge has come from Connecticut, whom they tied.

"My women are running well, and they're in good spirits coming into this meet," UMass coach Julie LaFremiere said.

At the Paul Short Invitational, Massachusetts will get a chance to look at some of their competition for the upcoming Atlantic-10's, New England's, and ECAC's.

Traditionally the Paul Short has showcased some of the best collegiate cross country talent on the eastern seaboard. This year's meet will feature many of the nation's elite programs including last year's Paul Short champion Providence, undefeated A-10 power St. Joseph's, Princeton, Georgetown, Buffalo, as well as others.

"There is going to be some great talent at this meet, and we'll have to step it up a notch and run well," LaFremiere said.

UMass will have several runners playing key roles in this weekend's meet. Christy Martin, Kristin Donaldson, and Katie Greenia have rounded out the UMass top five throughout the season, and will have to improve on last year's performances for UMass to place well. Cheryl Lyons will also be called upon to perform well for the Minutewomen.

"I'm looking for definite improvements from my women. They are capable of turning in some very good times, and as a team we should be right there," LaFremiere said.

KLEIN'S ALL★SPORTS
SKI & WINTER SPORTS
Columbus Day SALE
Complete Cross Counry Packages Starting At $89.99

COMPLETE SKI PACKAGES

ELAN 797SRC SKI, SALOMON 577 BINDING, SALOMON SX40 BOOT, POLE, MOUNTING — ADULT DOWNHILL $249.99

K2 SELECT 7.2 SKI, QUADRAX 5 BINDING, SALOMON SX5.0 BOOT, POLE, MOUNTING — ADULT DOWNHILL $319.99

ELAN LIGHTNING SKI, SALOMON QUADRAX1 BINDING, SALOMON SX25 BOOT, POLE, MOUNTING — JR. DOWNHILL $179.99

ALPINA APPROACH SKI, NNNII BINDING, ALPINA 102 BOOT, POLE, MOUNTING — ADULT X-COUNTRY $149.99

SNOWBOARD PACKAGES

NALE ZEKE BOARD, NALE BINDING, DALBELLO DUNE BOOT — ADULT PACKAGE $439.99

AVALANCHE P99 OR P109, RANGER BINDING, DALBELLO JR. QUEST BOOT — JR. PACKAGE $379.99

TUNE-UP SPECIAL! EDGE SHARPENING & HOT WAX $7.99 W/COUPON • EXPIRES 11/15

FREE SKI PASS TO GORE MOUNTAIN With Purchase Of Any Complete Downhill Ski Package *SOME RESTRICTIONS APPLY • VISIT STORE FOR DETAILS

HOCKEY

TITAN TSM 13SR ADULT STICK $14.99; CHRISTIAN 2000II JR. JR. STICK $14.99

CCM 152 TACK SR. $119.99

Cooper SK2000 HELMET $56.99

CLOTHING

SKI JACKETS $69.99 $150 Value

ALL SKI CLOTHING 20-50% OFF

CB TRAINING SHELL $49.99

EVERY BODY WINS KLEIN'S ALL★SPORTS HAMPSHIRE MALL, HADLEY

AT THE GATES OF SMITH COLLEGE
Held Over Thru Oct. 12
Daily at 7:15 (Tickets from 6:30)
Separate Tickets Daily at 9:15 (Tickets from 8:30)
STEVEN'S Weber MARCIA Stewart
BIGOUDENE'S Weaver
Jeffrey HILARIOUS THE NEW YORK TIMES
MOVING FUNNY PEOPLE DAILY NEWS
"A Deliciously Complex Crime Story."
THE USUAL SUSPECTS A BRYAN SINGER FILM
ACADEMY-MUSIC NORTHAMPTON Cinema Showplace 584-8435

TRAVEL SMART! FROM NEW YORK

	One Way	Roundtrip
LONDON	$146	$292
PARIS	$213	$426
SAN JOSE, COSTA RICA	$220	$439
TOKYO		$859

Scheduled flights. Fares to worldwide destinations. Extra/passes Available. Weekend surcharges may apply. Prices subject to change without notice. Int'l. student I.D. cards may be required.

PRISM TRAVEL 342 Madison Ave., NY, NY 10173 212-986-8420* 800-272-9676 *in NYC

LEADERS.
You've seen them at UMass.
W. EDWARDS DEMING.
PHIL CROSBY.
TOM PETERS.
PETER SENGE.
NOW YOU'LL WANT TO SEE
The School of Management
1995 Nirenberg Lecturer on Leadership
GARRY WILLS
"Where Have All The Leaders Gone?"
Fine Arts Center - UMass Amherst
October 10th - 7:30pm
$5 General Admission
Students FREE with ID
Group Rates Available
(413) 545-2511
Come Early.
Discover the School of Management
Accelerated MBA
INFORMATION SESSION
5:30 - 7pm
Fine Arts Center Lobby

amc THEATRES
$2.50 (TWI-LITE) SHOW DAILY LIMITED TO SEATING
MT. FARMS 8 (Hampshire Mall) HADLEY 584-9153
Call Theatre For Showtimes
DEAD PRESIDENTS* (R)
UNSTRUNG HEROES (PG)
DEAR JOHN, I REGRET TO INFORM YOU* (PG-13)
HOW TO MAKE AN AMERICAN QUILT (PG-13)
HAMPSHIRE 6 (Hampshire Mall) HADLEY 584-7566
Call Theatre For Showtimes
SEVEN (R)
TOM AND HUCK* (PG)
ASSASSINS* (R)
HALLOWEEN: THE CURSE OF MICHAEL MYERS (PG-13)
VITAL SIGNS (R)

We Deliver
Kai Chi
To UMass
Chinese-American Cuisine Restaurant & Bar
Mt. Farms Mall, Rt. 9 Hadley • 586-2774
Open Sun-Thurs 12-11 pm Fri-Sat 12-3 am
Enjoy HALF PRICE APPETIZERS
9 pm - Close • 7 Days a Week
31 Selections!
Ex. Pu Pu (for 2) Reg. $11.95 Now $8.99
No other promos apply - EAT IN ONLY

Soho Hot
Steve Madden Shoes
ZAMA
Downtown Amherst

STEINBECK
COLLISION REPAIR & AUTO BODY
53 S. Prospect St. Amherst Center
•Imports and other unibody vehicles are our speciality.
•Users of Sikkens paint products.
•Accepted by all insurance companies for collision repair or glass repair.
Remember
It's your car and your choice of repair facilities
256-8157 256-1385
Shop Reg # RS1212

So You've Got the Blues...
A support Group for people living with mood disorders
Skills For Combatting Depression
This six session group will focus on providing group members with essential coping skills and preventing relapse.
The group will meet on Thursday afternoons from 3:45 - 5:00pm beginning in late October and continuing until early December.
Pre-group interviews are required.
For information or to sign up for an interview call 545-2337, or stop by 127 Hills North, Monday - Friday 8:00am - 5:00pm.
Offered by the Mental Health Division of University Health Services

Research Interviewers
Hiring Now For Evening and Weekend Hours
No Selling Involved
Interesting part-time telephone assignments to collect data on a variety of research topics. Absolutely no selling involved. Computer/typing skills required. Flexible hours: Monday-Friday, 5pm-10pm, Saturday 11am-5pm and Sunday 3pm-9pm. Must work a minimum of 20 hours per week. Start at $5.25/hour with paid training and earn up to $7.00/hour.
We're in the Mountain Farms Mall, which is a stop on the free bus line. Call between 9am-5pm, Monday-Friday (413) 586-8635.
Abt Associates, Telephone Research Center, Mountain Farms Mall, Rt. 9, Hadley, MA 01035. An Equal Opportunity Employer.
Abt Associates Inc.

HU KE LAU
Frank Santos
R-Rated Hypnotist
9pm Seating - 10pm Show
Adults Only! Don't Delay! Tickets On Sale now
705 memorial Dr.
Chicopee, MA
(413) 593-5222

Let's get down to business.
Consider FIDELITY.
We're almost there. Fidelity Investments will be on campus on Tuesday, October 10th. This could be the first step in your terrific career path. Intrigued? We hope so. If you're a dynamic, hard-working individual with an entrepreneurial spirit, there could be a place for you at Fidelity. If you're interested, come talk to us.
Fidelity Accounting and Custody Services (FACS)
Management Development Program
Information Session
Tuesday, October 10 at 7:00 p.m.
CC805
Business Casual Attire
Fidelity Accounting and Custody Services, a division of Fidelity Investments, provides fund accounting and custody services for Fidelity mutual funds. We are seeking Accounting, Finance, Economics, or Business Management majors for several opportunities.
Accounting Analysts analyze and evaluate portfolio and general ledger activity, net asset values (NAVs), mil rates, and yields for all funds under management. They act as liaisons with custodian banks, fund accounting services, portfolio management, and custody operations to provide key information to our internal and external clients. Qualified candidates will be completing a bachelor's degree in one of the above majors and have general knowledge of accounting principles, with 6-12 months of related work experience, a general understanding of the mutual fund industry, and strong analytical and PC skills.
Operations Analysts ensure the safeguarding of securities and cash for all funds under management by accurately performing various operational functions/analysis. They analyze and manage the information flow from various sources such as custodian bank network, portfolio management, trading, fund accounting and broker dealers to diminish operational risk. In addition to a bachelor's degree in one of the above areas, qualified candidates will have work experience in financial services, strong analytical and PC skills, and good communication and interpersonal skills.
Fidelity Investments
Fidelity Investments is committed to creating a diversified environment, and proud to be an equal opportunity employer.

Collegian Classifieds

113 Campus Center • University of Massachusetts • Phone: (413)545-3500 Fax: (413)545-1592

Personals Policy

1. All personals MUST be proofread by Collegian classified employees before payment and acceptance of the classified.
2. Last names MAY NOT be used in personals. ONLY first names and initials are allowed. The only exceptions are for birthday or congratulations personals, in which case the full name may be used.
3. Phone numbers are not allowed in personals. NO EXCEPTIONS
4. Addresses are not allowed in personals. this means dorm room numbers as well.
5. Personals of a threatening or derogatory nature are not acceptable. Personals of a vindictive or libelous nature are not acceptable. Personals may not be used for the purpose of harassment.
6. Profanity may not be used in personals.
7. The personals section is for personals only. The personals section may NOT be used to sell items, seek roommates, advertise meetings, etc.
8. All personals must have the name, signature, and UMass I.D. number of the student placing the as filled in on the insertion order. Non-students must provide a valid driver's license and the license number must be recorded on the insertion order. Use of false identification or misrepresentation is subject to penalties under the law.
9. The Collegian reserves the right to refuse or to edit any personal that does not meet the Collegian's standards in accordance with the statutes of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

Rates

$2.00 minimum/day

Students
20¢ per word/day

All others
40¢ per word/day

NO REFUNDS

Please write clearly and legibly. We are not responsible for errors resulting from illegible handwriting or type.

Standard Headings

Activities
Announcements
Apartment For Rent
Auto For Sale
Employment
Entertainment
For Sale
Found (2 days Free)
Happy Birthday
Houses For Rent
Instruction
Lost
Musicians
Miscellaneous
Motorcycles
Personals
Room For Rent
Room Wanted
Roommate Wanted
Services
Summer Sublet
To Sublet
Travel
Transportation
Wanted to Rent
Wanted

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Aaphis is holding rush for one more night! Tues. Oct 10 @ 10pm. Meet us in the DW horseshoe @7:45 for more info contact Lindsey or Stacey 549-8333

CHINESE FOOD
Ka-Oh restaurant now delivering to 3am Friday and Saturday. 586-2774

Learn to bartend with University bartending. 1-2 the price of other schools. Classes in Amherst. Free info session Wed. Sept 27th @ 7:00 pm. Lord Jeffrey Inner call 1-800-U-LEARN-MA

The sisters of Sigma Delta Tau would like to congratulate and welcome it's new members Sherine Lynn, Brooke, Dawn, Sharon, Rebecca, Lisa, Christina, and Aimee.

The sisters of SDT would like to send birthday wishes to an those with October birthdays Laurissa Kim and Tara

UMASS MEN'S RUGBY
Looking for a few good men Get in shape, learn a new sport, and have a great time! Call Dana 549-2640.

AUTO FOR SALE

84 AUDI 5000S $1700 B/O 256-8348

1985 MAZDA GLC $500/BO

86 BMW 325 excellent condition Red with Black Int 5600 or B/O Mike@545-7467

1986 Dodge Colt Turbo 5 spd fast sporty Reliable Economical $1750 253-4017

86 Oldsmobile Firenza Runs good high miles $500or b/o Call x 256-8667

'86 VW Golf Auto Low miles 4 Dr $4500 253-5176

1990 Ford Probe Red sunroof Ac 5spd 756-4502

1992 Toyota Celica GT, 5 speed loaded Red 1 owner, mint, alarm, 53k miles $9000 brenw sonk $10,200 665-8719 6pm

Blue '86 Subaru Wagon fwd power windows, brand new, tires, muffler, water pump, $1450 or b/o Call 567-3668

Honda Accord LXi/ Blk Cloth Auto $8400 / 5m 665-8601 LVMSG

Loaded Mazda 626s Call Nina 549-1556 Excellent condition pw/ sunroof cass 253-3784

EMPLOYMENT

Campcounsel wanted for commercial work Call Roberta 545-1614

Cruise Ships Hiring Earn up to $700/wk/month World Travel. Seasonal & full time positions available at national Parks, Forests & Wildlife Preserves. Benefits and Bonuses! Call 1-206-545-4804 Ext N-5001

Earn big $$$ Leading college marketing firm is currently seeking part-time help. Multiple positions available throughout the fall semester. Flexible hours & great pay. $8-$10/hr. Will train, no experience necessary. Great resume builder! For more info. call Mark Egan @ (617) 756-8861 Ext 11

Help Wanted! Easy work! Excellent pay! Assemble products at home! Call 1-504-646-1700 Ext. 5016 H 24 hrs.

Juniors & Seniors Private residential school is seeking enthusiastic & committed weekend staff for our weekend program. Duties include supervision of students on campus & off campus trips. You stay on campus overnight for coverage of dorms. Duty begins Fridays @ 4:00 pm and concludes on Sunday @ 6:00 pm. Call Mr. Kevin Driscoll @ (413) 477-6087 ext 735.

Looking for mature & ambitious individual with management experience to manage Barrs concession at Mullins Center. Flexible section necessary. Apply at Barrs 113 N. Pleasant St. Amherst

Looking for bravely ambitious individuals to sell Barrs ice cream at Mullins Center. Flexible schedule necessary. Apply at Barrs 113 North Pleasant St. Amherst

Main Town reader needed. Housing and salary. Evenings at on Rodney Shalom Hoheke 538-9282

National Parks Hiring Seasonal & full time employment available at national Parks, Forests & Wildlife Preserves. Benefits and Bonuses! Call 1-206-545-4804 Ext N-5001

Park Rangers! Game warden, park police $6-$10/ per hour. Year round positions for men and women. Call 1-504-429-5931 Ext 5016 P61

Personal Care Attendant for male quad for overnights and Sat mornings & evenings $7.85/hr Call 549-0666

$300 to $500 weekly Full/Part time processing simple paperwork in your area. Own hours. No experience necessary. Call 1-504-429-9223 Ext 5016 D41 24 hrs.

$$$Translate into Chinese at your home (413) 747-5801 Tom

ENTERTAINMENT

Having Halloween bash on 10/27 or 10/28? Got a huge house? Want a spooky band? You need yeP! and yeP! needs you! call Jack at 367-9636

FOR RENT

Fridge Rentals Free delivery. 253-9742

Take over lease on January 1 or Putton Village MT.MW included. 549-7055

FOR SALE

Brand new 486 Toshiba color laptop Unbeatable price, 1 year warranty. Must sell. 367-0180

Complete 486DX2 66 P.C. System w/8 megs RAM. 2x speed CD ROM. 16 bit sound, 104 meg hard drive, 1 MB floppy SVGA int. 14" monitor w/win 3.11 $1500 (413) 786-4628

K2 Skiis 200cm barely used marker m31 bindings. Excellent condition $250/bo call Don 549-8748

PJ Harvey is Oct 10 Mike 585-9186

Tandy Computer & color mono w/ soft Asking $275 or b/o Carl 8-0540

2 Kicker Bas Style Speakers 2x 200/rms $100 BRO Call Paul 546-5741

1985 Fender Fretless Jazz Bass good as new asking $400 or b/o Call Aaron 549-4087

Computer Desk For Sale barely used Call 7-1744 or 253-2554

Macintosh Classic Great for word processing. 2/5 or B/O Call Brian Eves 584-9863

386 Computer For Sale includes DOS 6, Windows 3.11, Microsoft Word, Nortons, Games, VGA Monitor, 4megs of ram Asking $400 or best offer. Call 6-0883

Used Stereo Equipment VCR, Cassette/CD player, 26" Mitsubishi monitor TV. Tube guitar amps. Lap steel, 12 string bass amp/cabinet, 8 channel mixer/amp, much more. All guaranteed. Must sell! Cheap! 253-5312

FOUND

Bracelet found 10/2 2:30 pm near the Shawmut ATM in Campus Center. Contact Collegian to identify/claim 545-2500.

Found a set of keys near campus pond on Oct 3. Has an alarm and a limass. Bottle opener on a 4 wheel drive. Call Angie at 549-5265.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY

Happy Birthday Jill & Carolyn!!! Lots of love, Lori, Tem, Heather, Shaun, Kristen, Michelle

Happy Birthday Maria Mia! Happy birthday Nena hye querro mucho! Vamos a la dormir

INSTRUCTION

Guitar Lessons Enjoy your semester earning 1-2 credits Call Peter 253-5263.

Guitar Lessons and classes by Kevin Collins. Beginning folk, classical. Free intro lesson. Hartt Grad 256-1233

LOST

Lost gold digital watch of sentimental value please contact owner at 413-546-2600

One Soccer Cleat Last Thur near Boyden 585-8309

MOTORCYCLES

86 Ninga $800 in new parts asking $7300 467-2521 Travis

MUSICIANS

Psychadelic garage band for hire Dead Dylan Cream Stones. Perfect for parties. 256-1948

PERSONALS

ENLIGHTENMENT #2
I need religion like a fish needs a bicycle. What I want is to know other people who want to grow and will accept me as I am. Alliance Christian Fellowship committed to people, friendship, learning, and spirit-filled fellowship. Info: Mark or Elizabeth 253-7206

Jeffrey, Time flies; November already? Hecka Flock today, boy. It's your birthday! Love, Plant Prairie, Pecan, Peanut, and Penis

ROOM WANTED

Can you help me? Responsible 21-year old woman seeks housing in exchange for house/yard work, childcare, etc. or for low rent. Please call 586-9830 after 5, or 253-4971 M-T-TH-F-12-5 Ask for Celia

ROOMMATE WANTED

Female needed for own fully furnished room in 3 bedroom apt. Fall semester only. On bus route. 253-1734

SERVICES

BOXING LESSONS
For men and women with retired pro Dana Bumpus 549-5757

Exotic nail airbrushing 546-1794

Grants and scholarships available. Billions of $$$ in grants. Quality assistance. 1-800-243-2425 (1-800-AID-2-HELP)

International students. Visitors Div-1 greencard program. by US immigration lawyer. Services Tel 818-772-7168, 70231 Stagg St. Georgia Park CA 91306

Legal Questions? The Student Legal Services Office offers free legal assistance to all fee paying students. Contact us at 922 Campus Center. 545-1995.

Pregnant? Need help? Call birthright of Amherst area for free testing and carrying assistance. 549-1906

TRAVEL

FREE TRIPS AND CASH
Find out how hundreds of students are already EARNING FREE TRIPS and LOTS OF CASH with Americas #1 Spring Break company! Sell only 15 trips and travel free! Choose Cancun, Bahamas, Mazatlan, or Florida! Call now! Take a Break Student Travel (800) 95-BREAK

WANTED

Babysitter Needed for 3 year old Wed and Fri 1240-320 Call Michele at 256-8632

Collegian News

BECAUSE YOU CAN NEVER HAVE ENOUGH INFORMATION

Not Everyone is Straight and neither is the Collegian

Write for GLB Issues

Let your voice be heard

Contact Wendy Darling

113 Campus Center 545-3500

YOUR DAILY HOROSCOPE by Jeane Dixon

ARIES (March 21–April 19): Misunderstandings could arise this morning. Ask for further clarification.

TAURUS (April 20–May 20): An unconventional business approach or the hiring of a talented newcomer could take your work in a more profitable direction.

GEMINI (May 21–June 20): Take a breather of sorts. Get caught up on paperwork and important phone calls. Neither force the pace or dawdle.

CANCER (June 21–July 22): Take a gamble on yourself or your ideas. Your timing is excellent, your reasons sound and mature.

LEO (July 21–Aug. 22): You have the ability and confidence to make your dreams come true. Take a calculated risk.

VIRGO (Aug. 23–Sept. 22): Activity and lively conversation will boost your spirits. Use the phone to check up on loved ones at a distance.

LIBRA (Sept. 23–Oct. 22): A gamble or splurge could put your savings at risk. Consult a well informed friend.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23–Nov. 21): Postpone making an important decision until the latest facts and figures are available.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22–Dec. 21) Tallying your many fine qualities is the best way to rise against self-doubt.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22–Jan. 19): A private setting is conductive to heightened communication.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20–Feb. 18): Quiet reflection could bring powerful new insights.

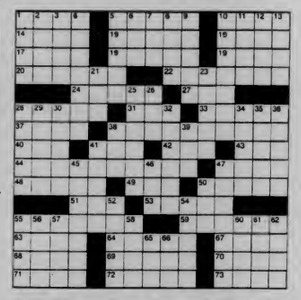
PISCES (Feb. 19–March 20): Access to key people fuels your hopes. You draw closer to a prized goal.

Collegian Graphics

We're up all night putting together New England's largest daily college newspaper!

When our job is done – your day is just beginning.

CROSSWORD



ACROSS
1. Marines
5. Sleight of hand
10. Fluid rock
14. Oil cartel acronym
15. Buddy, south of the border
18. Physical, e.g.
17. Tear's partner
18. Eagle's claw
19. State bird of Hawaii
20. Tijuana blanket
22. Lives
24. Military priest
27. Cash's boy of song
28. Genuflect
31. Suspended transports
33. Small drum
37. Signs of assent
38. Greeting
40. Rosary bead
41. Machine part
42. Sprinkled
43. Solution leached from ashes
44. Aired out
47. Petticoat junction?
48. Lanchester et al.
49. Nothing
50. In a frantic way
51. %, abbr.
53. Synthetic fiber
55. Leary advice (2 wds.)
59. ____ Girl" (Billy Joel)
63. Indian queen
64. Devoid of originality
67. Drug plant
68. Sun disk
69. Bikinis, for one
70. Evergreens
71. Ice formation, informally
72. Medieval sleeves
73. Long times

DOWN
1. Impresses
2. Duelist's weapon
3. First word in letters
4. Clears the windshield in winter
5. Paired up
6. MD's gp.
7. ____ Bles"
8. Opera prince
9. Traffic markers
10. Magnanimous
11. Fired, informally
12. It shows which way the wind blows
13. The Cyclones' home
21. "____ Joey"
23. Actress Saint James
25. Oval Office jellybean fan
26. Building addition
28. Tart stealer
29. New
30. Barbara and Anthony
32. Indeed
34. Fart ill
35. Shade of blue
36. Moriarty, to Holmes
38. Sum: Sp.
39. Playwright Mosel
41. Whitefish
45. Knocking
46. Badge metal
47. U.S. vacation mecca (2 wds.)
50. Janitorial tool
52. Large instruments
54. Quiet times
55. Lacking pizzazz
56. Classify
57. Unique thing
58. Gallery abounding in Turners
60. Medley
61. Frayed
62. "Untouchable" Eliot
65. Oslo's land: abbr.
66. TV ET

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING INSERTION ORDER

Client: Date: Taken By:

Date(s) to run: Headline:

Total Days: X Words: = X rate = Payment

Special heading ($2.50 extra): Authorized signature:

ADVERTISING COPY

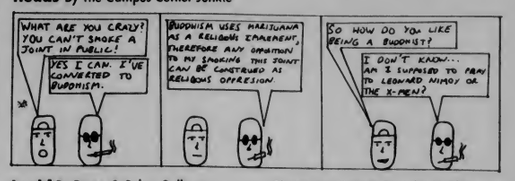
1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9 10

Insert one character, space, or punctuation mark per box - use capital letters where they apply • Cost figured on each line of form used - see rate card

Calvin & Hobbes By Bill Watterson

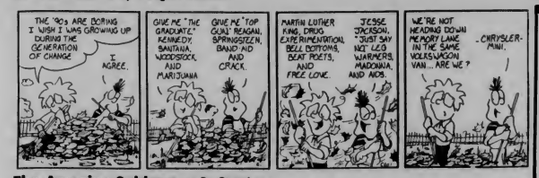
OUR LEAF COLLECTIONS AREN'T DUE FOR A WEEK YET! HOW COULD YOU POSSIBLY BE ALMOST DONE?!
I MAKE IT A GAME. I PRETEND IT'S A CONTEST TO SEE HOW MANY LEAVES I CAN FIND EACH DAY. THAT WAY, IT'S NOT AN ASSIGNMENT, IT'S FUN.
DID YOU KNOW THAT'S ONE OF THE TEN WARNING SIGNS OF HOPELESS OVERTHINK?
I'LL BET ANOTHER SIGN IS MOVING TO THE NEXT GRADE EACH YEAR.

Heads By The Campus Center Junkie



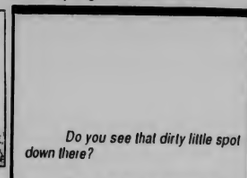
WHAT ARE YOU CRAZY? YOU CAN'T SMOKE A JOINT IN PUBLIC!
YES I CAN. I'VE CONVERTED TO BUDDHISM.
BUDDHISM USES MARIJUANA AS A RELIGIOUS SACRAMENT, THEREFORE ANY OPPOSITION TO MY SMOKING THIS JOINT CAN BE CONSTRUED AS RELIGIOUS OPPRESION
SO HOW DO YOU LIKE BEING A BUDDHIST?
I DON'T KNOW... AM I SUPPOSED TO PRAY TO LEONARD NIMOY OR THE X-MEN?

Lost Horizons By Douglas Cellineri



THE '90s ARE BORING. I WISH I WAS GROWING UP DURING THE GENERATION OF CHANGE
I AGREE.
GIVE ME "THE GRADUATE," KENNEDY, SANTANA, WOODSTOCK, AND MARIJUANA
GIVE ME TOP GUN, REAGAN, SPRINGSTEEN, BAND AID AND CRACK.
MARTIN LUTHER KING, DRUG EXPERIMENTATION, BELL BOTTOMS, BEAT POETS, AND FREE LOVE.
JESSE JACKSON, "JUST SAY NO" LEG WARMERS, MADONNA, AND AIDS.
WE'RE NOT HEADING DOWN MEMORY LANE IN THE SAME VOLKSWAGON VAN... ARE WE?
CHRYSLER-MINI.

Leold By Roger & Salem Salloom



Do you see that dirty little spot down there?
That is where the insurance industry and the health care providers meet.
Some other people meet there too.
It's certainly a dirty little spot.

Close to Home By John McPherson

WHOEVER ANSWERS THE NEXT QUESTION CORRECTLY WILL BE ALLOWED TO DO THIRTY EXTRA HOMEWORK PROBLEMS.
TOMORROW'S HOMEWORK: Problems 1-135 except #7 and #46

The Amazing Spiderman By Stan Lee

LOOK, HONEY, STEAK AND CHAMPAGNE FOR DINNER!
YOU SURE MAKE IT HARD FOR A GIRL TO STAY MAD AT YOU!
THAT'S THE IDEA! NOTHING'S TOO GOOD FOR MY FAVORITE WIFE!
ENJOY THE MOMENT WHILE YOU CAN, PETER, BECAUSE...
HELLLP!

Generation X By Chris Lehman

TODAY ON RICKI LAKE: THE DANGERS OF OVER-PATRIOTIC MILITIAMEN.
MY SPECIAL GUEST WILL BE ATTORNEY GENERAL JANET RENO.
WE WILL DISCUSS THE TRAGEDIES OF WACO AND OKLAHOMA CITY.
AND THEN I'LL GIVE JANET A MAKE-OVER!
YAAAY!

Bruno By C. Baldwin

MOM, DAD, I'M GOING TO MINNEAPOLIS ON MONDAY. WOULD YOU BRING ME TO THE AIRPORT?
WHY ON EARTH WOULD WE DO THAT?
I FIGURE YOU BROUGHT ME INTO THIS WORLD, HOW MUCH FURTHER IS THE AIRPORT TO THAT?
DIFFICULT, SO UNLIKE OUR MODEL DAUGHTER.
OF COURSE WE WILL, YOUR FATHER IS JUST BEING...
DIFFICULT? OH YES...
OH THANK YOU SO MUCH FOR THE COMPASSION, KING LEAR.

Dilbert By Scott Adams

IN THIS TEAM-BUILDING EXERCISE YOU WILL MAKE PAPER DOLLS WHILE BLINDFOLDED
THIS MAY SEEM ABSURD BUT SOON, COGNITIVE DISSONANCE WILL SET IN AND YOU'LL CRY AND HUG AND THINK YOU LEARNED SOMETHING ARE YOU SURE WE'LL CRY AND HUG?
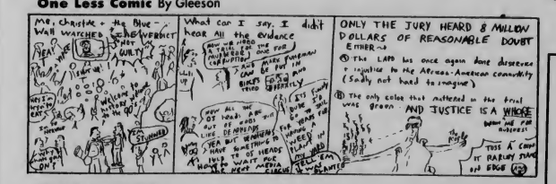
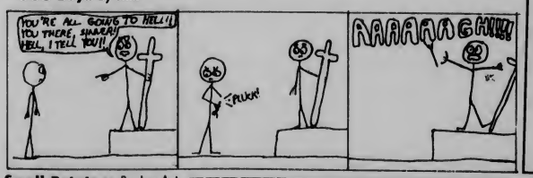
ACTUALLY, HUGGING IS IFFY.

One Less Comic By Gleeson



Mr. Christie + the Blue-Wall watched
What can I say, I didn't hear all the evidence
ONLY THE JURY HEARD 8 MILLION DOLLARS OF REASONABLE DOUBT

308 Boyz By Skid



Small Potatoes By Jon Art

RUSH ΒΘΒ

The only fraternity on campus that lets you haze yourself!

- Beta Theta Beta - 103 Campus Center

Today's Staff

Night Editor.....Jacob W. Michaels
Copy Editor.....Andrew Bryce
Photo Technician.....Jeff DiGiovani
Production Supervisor.....Joshua Grey
Production.....Dmitry Abramson, Marianne Haner

Dining Commons Menu

LUNCH
Tuna Noodle Casserole
Tacos
BASICS LUNCH
Tuna Noodle Casserole
Vegetable Taco

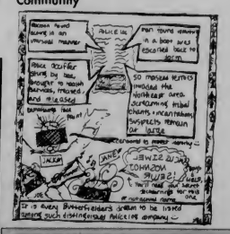
DINNER
Chicken Tenders
Linguini/Sweet Sausage
BASICS DINNER
Chicken Tenders
Ratatouille

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY COLLEGIAN
Top 10 By Brian Marchionni

Top 10 Ways to Make Yourself Appear More "Manly"

10. Put out cigarettes on your forehead (Camel straights of course...)
9. After sex, remove condom with razor blade... blindfolded.
8. Catch all of your meals.
7. Start hangin' with Chancellor Scott and his "posse."
6. Turn to the dark side of the force.
5. Pierce your torso.
4. Breakfast? Two live squirrels.
3. Brush your teeth with an SOS pad.
2. Drink grain alcohol like water.
1. Two words: Steel briefs.

Buttah By Darling & the Buttah Community



ALICE IN
SO MASSIVE WASTED AMOUNTS OF ENERGY AND RESOURCES WERE EXPENDED TO BRING ABOUT SUCH ESSENTIALLY MINOR CHANGES
JEWISH AFFAIRS NEEDS WRITERS

Quote of the Day

"I may not agree with what you say, but I will defend to the death your right to say it."

–Voltaire

Jewish Affairs Needs Writers
Come Down To The Collegian And Ask For
Jacob W. Michaels
113 Campus Center 545-3500

8 Days and counting!

Midnight Madness will take place on Saturday, Oct. 14 and tickets are now available. Students can pick up a maximum of two tickets free of charge at the UMass ticket office located in the Curry Hicks Cage.

Sports

Sports Notice

There will be an all sports staff meeting Monday Oct. 9, at 6:30 p.m. All sports staff members should be in attendance, any one interested in writing for the sports is welcome. Any questions, call Candice Fleming at 545-0719.

First ever Minuteman Invitational to begin

By Fred Hurlbrink, Jr.
Collegian Staff

DAYMON SMITH/COLLEGIAN

The UMass water polo team will be hosting the Minuteman Invitational this weekend, where it will try to avenge their only loss of the season to Navy.

Columbus Day weekend has always been big, but never quite like this.

The UMass water polo team gears up to host the first annual Minuteman Invitational in the Alumni Gymnasium pool at Amherst College this weekend.

Coach Russ Yarworth and the Minutemen are looking forward to this event to showcase the power behind their 13-1 record. They also look to avenge their only loss of the season — a 9-7 defeat by Navy on Sept. 2 — in the feature match at 7 p.m. on Saturday.

"Do you want to see real water polo? Come watch [the Navy] match," said the enthusiastic Yarworth.

Being two of the top teams in the country, they waged war in Massachusetts' second match of the season. The Minutemen fell behind early, a problem for UMass until recently, and couldn't get back into the game despite a late second half surge.

UMass has rolled since then, winning 12 consecutive matches, beating two ranked teams, and scoring an average of 19 goals per match while allowing just 7.6 on outing.

On top of these impressive numbers, the Minutemen seem to be hitting their stride at exactly the right time of the season.

The hot streak began at Brown when UMass throttled the Bears 12-2. In the same weekend they beat two club teams — Winter League Champion, New York Athletic Club and Metro Boston.

They have posted four victories since then, including a win in their first home match, a 21-6 annihilation of an inexperienced Boston College squad.

After a three-game sweep of St. Francis, Harvard, and Fordham at an Eastern Water Polo Association North Division Tournament, the Minutemen are a perfect 6-0 in the EWPA.

Yarworth and his charges have no doubt concentrated a great deal on their match with Navy, but they have two other dishes on the menu — Richmond and Queens.

UMass has played two matches already this season against Richmond. The Minutemen won the first convincingly, 18-5, and six days later edged the Richmond squad 16-14 in one of the most competitive matches of the season. The Minutemen have crossed Queens' path just once this season, doubling-up the 18th ranked team, 16-8.

It all starts at high noon tomorrow when the Minutemen go up against Richmond.

"I expect a good crowd," Coach Yarworth replied when he was asked if he expected a good turn-out this weekend.

Men's soccer to challenge Duquesne, GW this weekend

By Mike Corey
Collegian Correspondent

To many coaches, coming off a two game road trip without a loss is very satisfying. But not to University of Massachusetts men's soccer coach Sam Koch.

The Minutemen gave up a second half two goal lead in their game with Stanford this past Sunday.

"Its disappointing that we tied at Stanford," said Koch. "We had a 2-0 lead and we lost it, I'm not pleased with that."

Coming off a tremendous victory against No. 20 San Francisco on Friday, the Minutemen looked like they were on their way to a perfect weekend with a 2-0 lead against Stanford. However, with 3:34 left in the match, Ryan Estevez tied up the game with a header of a cross pass.

Today at 3:30 p.m., the Minutemen are at home playing Duquesne in an Atlantic 10 Conference matchup. This is the first year that Duquesne is playing in the Atlantic 10. In the minds of many that may sound like an easy victory, but Koch denies that completely.

"We have to play our game, be focused and be ready," Koch said. "Duquesne can, and will, beat you if you aren't ready to play them. They are 3-0-1 in their last four games, they are well organized, and have some experienced players."

"We have to be more disciplined on defense," Koch said. "We have to be intense, stay compact, and stay focused, no matter what the score."

All UMass victories this season, except one, have come when holding opponents to one goal or less. Defense is the key in whether the Minutemen will engineer victory.

"In two games this season we have given up four goals, and that's not acceptable," Koch said.

The Minutemen have their share of injuries to deal with this week again as Karsten Bremke, and Bennie Sheally are both out. Defender Joe Iacobson will likely be back for today's match after missing the past four. Goalie Eric Gruber is also back at close to 100% as he has recovered from a leg injury he suffered playing against New Hampshire.

UMass is going to be looking for production, and other players to step up in the absence of Bremke and Sheally.

"The freshman have really stepped it up greatly," said Dave Siljanovski, team leader in goals and assists. "That's why we did well in California, because of those guys."

"Everybody has to continue to play their roles," Koch said. "We can't let outside influences get us off our game."

The Minutemen come into today's game with a record of 7-3-2, (3-1-1 in the Atlantic 10) while Duquesne is at 3-6-1, (2-1-1 in the A-10). Sunday, UMass will tackle George Washington in another conference matchup at Richard F. Garber Field at 1:00 p.m.

Catterton takes reins of offense as UMass hosts Wildcats

By Mike Brown
Collegian Staff

As Columbus Day weekend arrives, it sends many packing for a weekend at home. The same holds true for the Massachusetts football team, as they return home to Warren McGuirk Alumni Stadium for Saturday's matchup with the New Hampshire Wildcats.

After two weekends on the road, the Minutemen are more than happy to be playing in Amherst after two hectic games away from their home turf.

"It will be nice to play at home and play well," UMass coach Mike Hodges said. "Playing on the road is difficult, especially with a young team. We're looking to play better football."

Two weeks ago, UMass was victorious at Northeastern in a game involving some strange, game-ending occurrences. A huge Northeastern drive that included a fumble was converted into a Husky touchdown. The score brought Northeastern within two, but an unsuccessful two point conversion attempt, had the Minutemen celebrating.

There was no celebrating last Saturday, as the Minutemen were handed its worst defeat this season and its first shutout in five years. UMass was unable to contain a powerful Rhode Island passing game, falling 34-0.

Coming home with a 1-2 Yankee Conference record is not the most desirable scenario for the Minutemen. They take a New Hampshire team Saturday, who has not won a conference game this season. UMass looks to bump its record back to .500.

The Wildcats are the defending Yankee Conference champion, but have failed to carry the momentum into this season. New Hampshire has turned the football over 15 times already this season, a number they did not surpass all of last season. They are winless in the conference, but coming off a big non-conference 35-14 victory last Saturday over Lehigh.

"Don't be fooled by that record. [New Hampshire] is 1-3, but not typical for a 1-3 team," Hodges said. "They are an excellent team having some problems. They keep

Turn to FOOTBALL, page 6

THANG VO/COLLEGIAN

The Minutemen return home for the first time in three weeks as they look to tackle the Wildcats of New Hampshire tomorrow at Warren McGuirk Alumni Stadium.

Minutewomen set to clash with Rams

By Candice Flemming
Collegian Staff

If Massachusetts women's soccer midfielder Rebecca Myers performs like she did last year against Rhode Island, the Rams had better watch out.

In last year's game at Providence, Myers scored a hat trick in the first 20 minutes to lead the Minutewomen to a 6-0 drilling.

This season, the two teams will meet up in West Springfield for a 7 p.m. match-up tomorrow night.

The Rams will head into the game with a not-so impressive record of 2-6-2, 1-1 in the Atlantic 10.

One of their wins came against Yale, a team who has beaten Northeast Region powers Brown and Dartmouth. However, the Minutewomen disposed of the Elis 5-0 Wednesday at Richard F. Garber Field.

Myers got off to a slow start this season as she missed four games due to a hamstring injury. Yet the junior standout looks to be heating up as she showed no ill effects against Yale, scoring two goals. On the season, Myers has nine points with three goals, three assists.

Containing Myers and Rachel LeDuc, while also trying to figure out the UMass defense, is key for the Rams if they want a chance at victory.

The Minutewomen defense has been stingy, holding opponents to just seven goals. Junior Erin Lynch has been the anchor and she's been doing it offensively too. Against Yale, Lynch notched three assists to bring her season total to six. On the season, the Austin TX, native has 10 points. Erica Iverson is another defender who has been getting forward lately. The sophomore tallied her first collegiate goal in the Yale game.

UMass keeper Danielle Dion has been solid, and made an outstanding diving save in the Yale game.

Only four URI players have scored a goal this year and one of them is Sarah Moon, also a goalkeeper. Moon has started seven games in the net and has compiled a 1.26 goals-against average with one shutout.

Her counterpart, Jennifer Frost, has a .783 GAA in four games played (three started) along with a shutout.

Portea Norman (two), Shannon Russell (two) and Sarah Villa (one) round out the goal-scoring for the Rams.

After tomorrow, the Minutewomen will head into two tough match-ups. On Wednesday, UMass will travel to Hartford looking for revenge as the Hawks were the team that eliminated UMass from the NCAAs last year.

Then on Oct. 17, the Minutewomen face Dartmouth, another team that defeated UMass last year. On Thursday, Dartmouth beat Hartford 2-0 at Dartmouth.

DAYMON SMITH/COLLEGIAN

Junior Rebecca Myers and the UMass women's soccer team takes on Rhode Island tomorrow at 7 p.m. at West Springfield H.S. Myers scored a hat trick last year against the Rams.

Field hockey to face top 20 foes

By Matt Vautour
Collegian Staff

With last weekend's upset of Old Dominion fresh in their minds, the No. 18 Massachusetts field hockey hopes to continue the trend this weekend when it battles No. 16 Syracuse and No. 4 James Madison.

The Minutewomen will head to Syracuse this afternoon to an afternoon battle with the Orange, and will head to Philadelphia to play JMU in a neutral site (Temple) battle on Sunday.

The No. 18 ranking is UMass' first spot on the weekly poll in weeks, after falling out of the poll following a stretch in which the Minutewomen lost four out of five games. The upset of the No. 4 Old Dominion, however, vaulted UMass back into the top 20.

"[The poll] doesn't really matter," said Massachusetts coach Megan Donnelly. "Of course you want to be in there somewhere. Beating ODU was important. Now that they put us in there, we're in a position if we take care of things, the poll will take care of itself."

James Madison should prove to be Massachusetts' toughest opponent since they took on No. 1 North Carolina several weeks ago. The Dukes are the defending National Champions from a year ago, but were upset by the Minutewomen along the way.

JMU enters this year's game at 9-2 and are reeling from a recent loss to Penn State.

"The way they are playing right now, I don't think they are even thinking about last year," Donnelly said. "They've been up and down, but they are obviously a very talented team. They are trying to find a consistent level of play."

The Dukes are led by arguably the best player in the country, Senior midfielder Carole Thate is leading James Madison with 18 goals and four assists, figuring in over half of the Dukes goals this season. The skills of the Netherlands native are not lost on Donnelly.

"Carole Thate is probably the premier player in the country," Donnelly said. "When you have a player with international experience, its always dangerous."

The game will have some bragging right implications, as well. Donnelly and JMU coach Christy Morgan are former teammates and good friends, and have a friendly rivalry surrounding their teams' encounters.

"Christy is a good friend," Donnelly said. "It's one of those games that I always enjoy playing. It's a lot of fun. There are usually lobster dinners involved."

In the first game of the weekend, the Minutewomen will battle the always feisty Syracuse Orangewomen. The Orange enter the contest ranked No. 16 with a record of 5-5.

They are led by seniors Jodi Carter (seven goals, one assist) and Heather Chase (five goals and two assist) on offense, while fellow senior Cheri Herr has carried the load in net boasting an impressive 1.52 goals against average. All five of Syracuse's losses have come against Top 20 opponents.

"Syracuse is a good team," Donnelly said. "They always play us well. We expect it to be a very intense game. They'll be ready."

The trip to Philadelphia will be a homecoming of sorts for some of the Minutewomen. Senior captain Streya Volla (Gladwyne) and sophomore forward Missy Sweeney (Malvern) are both from the Philly area. Four other Minutewomen, Amy Ott (Shwenksville), Kyle Rothenberger (Gilbertsville), Laura Phelan (Mountain Top) and Jana Benscoter (Hanover) all reside in the Keystone State.

"The Philly trips are fun because we get a lot of fans," Donnelly said. "They're knowledgeable fans which makes for a very fun atmosphere. I enjoy the Philly trips a lot.

"Philly isn't even really a road trip."

The Massachusetts

DAILY COLLEGIAN

Volume CV Issue 23 New England's Largest College Daily • Founded in 1890 • Daily Since 1967 Tuesday, October 10, 1995

Ingoglia sets career rushing record
Rete Ingoglia broke Garry Pearson's career rushing record but the Minutemen lost to New Hampshire, 32-29 (See Sports, page 16).

GLB supplement explores various
Special GLB supplement takes a look at issues that concern the GLB students and community (See GLB, pages 7-10)

The British Are Coming
Blur returns to the music world with The Great Escape, their follow-up to the acclaimed Parklife (See Arts & Living, page 5).

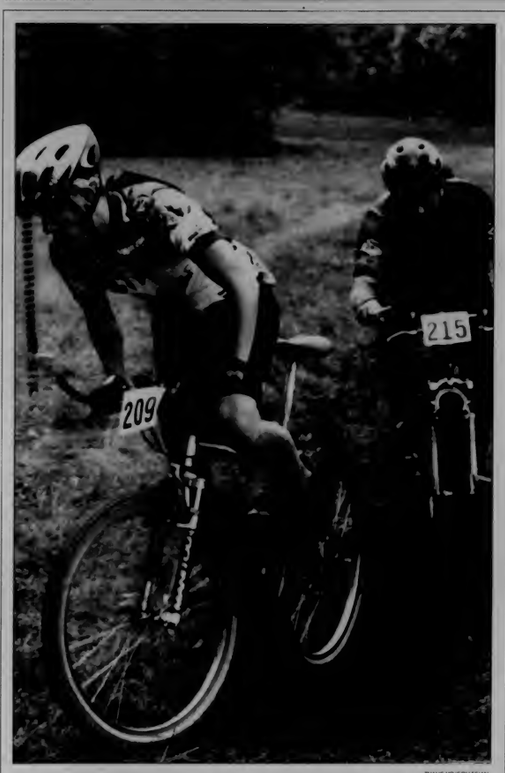
Extended Forecast
Today it will be sunny and pleasant with highs in the high 60s. Sun will give way to a few clouds later on but the weather should remain comfortable night through Thursday

Today	Wednesday	Thursday
HIGH: 70 LOW: 40	HIGH: 70 LOW: 40	HIGH: 65 LOW: 40

Columbus holiday the focal point of local protesters' discussions

By Amy H. Paradysz
Collegian Staff



THANG VO/COLLEGIAN

One more lap...

Jason Leslie, from Skidmore College, and Michael Brown, from Plymouth State, competed in "The B Race," a mountain bike race, which was held in Orchard Hill this past Saturday, sponsored by the UMass Bicycle Racing Club.

A member of the Revolutionary Anti-Imperialist League (RAIL) stood in front of The Lord Jeffery Inn, holding a sign that read, "Naming a day after Columbus is like naming a town after Jeffery Amherst."

Various people who would not identify themselves — because they fear the FBI would put their names on lists for being anti-American, according to "Robert" — held an anti-Columbus Day vigil on Amherst Common Sunday afternoon.

"Columbus started the genocide that has sort of been the foundation of America," Robert said. "He was a vassal to the king of Spain sent to get slaves, bring back gold and forcibly convert the heathens to Christianity."

According to Robert, when Columbus came to land, he would plant a cross in the ground, unfurl the Spanish flag and make an announcement that people already there must convert to Christianity and pledge allegiance to the king of Spain. The alternative was death.

As for Lord Jeffery Amherst, "He was famous for giving blankets infested with smallpox to the Indians," said Robert, who called the practice "biological warfare."

Robert played a song he wrote for the holiday, "Columbus joined the KKK," he sang with a young woman. "He practiced white supremacy, but called it Christianity."

"The main point," said Robert, "is not what Columbus did, but what America is still doing today."

The other student who seemed to be in charge of the vigil — "Chris" — was from the Maoist International Movement (MIM), a Leninist party in North America. He held a sign that read, "From Columbus to Vietnam, to death camps in Peru, 500 years of white supremacy must stop."

Occasionally someone walking through the common would stop and listen or to take part in the discussion.

One such person, an African-American male who gave the alias "Luther Robinson," said, "It [Columbus Day] should be commemorated because it marked a major turning point in world history."

"The date must always be marked on the calendar one way or the other... whether we want to use the day to glorify Columbus or whether we want to use the day to remember indigenous people who were conquered," said Robinson. "I really can't see Columbus as a hero no matter how hard I try."

Although Robinson suggested renaming the holiday "New World Day," he said, "I think keeping Columbus' name on the date keeps it in its proper historical perspective."

"But it doesn't sound like you're condemning him," Chris said in response to Robinson's suggestion, which was intended to be all-inclusive.

"I'm more concerned with getting rid of the death penalty in Peru than in changing the name," Chris said. "It is important that people actually care about ending oppression... Clinton's getting away with it."

A group of four people in discussion came to the conclusion that if there was to be a holiday, it ought to be a day to remember — not celebrate — and to remember not only Columbus, but also all those who came after him.

"We want to include Pizarro, Cortes and also Richard Nixon and Clinton [in the blame]," Chris said. "When you see injustice you have to protest it."

When Chris used the Gulf War as an example, Robinson said, "I protested that war and I regret it. I said the U.S. was a murderer... but I shouldn't have taken sides with Suddam Hussein, because he is also a murderer."

That's why the Columbus of textbooks is neither a hero nor a murdering, white supremacist, said Robinson, who recommended looking at all sides of an issue because making a judgement.

"But you have to say what Bill Clinton is doing in Haiti or Peru is killing people, [and protest]," Chris said. "Otherwise, you're letting Clinton act."

Activist looks at Native American issues

By Jane Oh
Collegian Staff

As Native Americans struggle to regain their long-lost lands, a spirited young woman named Winona LaDuke has proven to be their strongest voice.

From her peaceful home on the Anishinabe tribe's White Earth Reservation, 220 miles northwest of Minneapolis, leading Indian activist LaDuke has been waging a two-sided battle: to reclaim the vanishing lands and culture of her Anishinabe people and to protect the greater environment that lies at the culture's spiritual core.

And the 35-year-old, part Ojibwe, part Russian Jew and Harvard-educated LaDuke, is willing to do just about anything to ensure that.

For example, in October 1994, LaDuke chained herself to the front gate of a Los Angeles phone book printing plant to protest the use of timber in making paper.

"I just don't believe that something that has been standing for 1,000 years should be cut down and made into a phone book," LaDuke said.

An 1867 treaty had granted LaDuke's people, one of 7 Anishinabe tribes in northern Minnesota, 837,000 acres for their reservation. Over the past few decades, however, the reservation has reduced to less than one-tenth of its original size, because of questionable sales and foreclosures due to unpaid government land taxes. LaDuke's solution? Buy the land back, one acre at a time.

With the $20,000 awarded to LaDuke by Reebok for her human rights activism, she began to buy the land back. She has already purchased more than 1,000 acres and is determined to but the rest.

According to LaDuke, each of the 5,000 indigenous cultures that exist in the world has its own culture. Although some of them have kept with the same traditions since the time of memorium, through the assimilation of the American value system and social structures, many of these traditions have become extinct.

LaDuke believes that in the industrial society, individuals are instilled with the belief that man is a superior entity to nature and that nature exists to serve man. Native Americans, however, believe that the law of nature is the highest law, she said.

"This country would do well to fashion itself to the laws of nature," LaDuke said, "because industrial society has based itself on the ideas of conquest, we have seen it destroyed by genocide."

LaDuke's passion and respect for her homeland has traditional roots, as well. Her late father, Vincent LaDuke, was an Anishinabe spiritual thinker and writer under the name SunBear. Her mother, 61-year-old Betty LaDuke, is an art professor, painter and activist. A nonpracticing Jew, Betty encouraged her daughter to identify with her Native American heritage.

LaDuke's activism heightened during her freshman year of college after hearing Cherokee activist and artist Jimmy Durham at a lecture. Inspired by his words, LaDuke immediately began working for him, researching the health impact of uranium mining on Navajo reservations. After graduating from Harvard University in 1982, LaDuke returned home and accepted a job as high school principal at White Earth.

Currently, LaDuke serves as project director for the White Earth Land Recovery Project in Minnesota, is president of the Indigenous Women's Network and coordinates the Moose Factory Environmental Task Force and Representative of the Third World Coalition.

Furthermore, LaDuke has frequently been called for expert testimony: she spoke at the Commission of Human Rights in Geneva, Switzerland, International Council of Indigenous Women's Third International Conference in Norway and Samiland.

LaDuke has also given lectures at colleges around the world including Smith, Harvard, Dartmouth, London Polytechnic Institute and University of Scotland (Edinburgh).

In her first visit to UMass, sponsored by the ALANA Affairs Office, the Josephine White Eagle Cultural Center, Everywoman's Center Women of Color program, Graduate Student Senate and the cultural enrichment fund, LaDuke will address such issues tonight in the Campus Center Auditorium at 7 p.m.

On Wednesday, October 11, LaDuke will again address UMass in a discussion entitled, "Racism from a Native-American Perspective." The discussion will be held in room 904 of the Campus Center and will begin at 3 p.m..

Nelson Acosta, director of the Office of ALANA affairs, hopes LaDuke's visit will allow the "community to hear some pearls of wisdom from a Native American perspective."

Local Project helps to build low-income housing duplex

By Amy H. Paradysz
Collegian Staff

University of Massachusetts students, along with other volunteers, are building a duplex in Amherst for two low-income families.

The project, which is coordinated by Habitat for Humanity, a nonprofit ecumenical Christian housing ministry, is on Charles Road in Amherst, behind Victory Supermarket.

Four students from the building materials, technology and management department, are acting as construction managers. As part of their 4-credit Independent study, they order materials and coordinate subcontractors, as well as doing actual construction.

"They get to apply all the theory and business practices they learn in class," said Paul Fisette, a professor who encouraged students to do independent studies through Habitat for Humanity. "It's not until you get out there and get into the field that you learn how complicated and unpredictable some of the things can be."

"We have to get the whole inside of the house done by November 18," said student manager Scott Trottier. "We're behind schedule right now."

Turn to PROJECT, page 3

THANG VO/COLLEGIAN

UMass students with Habitat for Humanity help build a house on Charles Road, behind Victory Market, in Amherst.

Thatcher house shifts cultural gears

By Julia Stoyanovich
Collegian Correspondent

Multilingual students now have a residence hall in the Northeast area of campus specifically designed to foster an international environment.

Thatcher Residence Hall has changed its name this semester, and is now called Thatcher Foreign Language- International House. The International Living Program that has existed in Thatcher since 1989, and the Foreign Language Suite Program in Brown House, founded in 1986, were combined and expanded successfully into a house, where "everyone is dedicated to the importance of the idea of knowing more than one language," said assistant director of residential academic programs Terese Pasquale.

The first floor of the house was turned into German Studies Center, and is supported by a grant from the Max Kade Foundation. The other programs are financed by Residential Academic Programs (RAP), International Programs and Housing Services.

The program of the house currently consists of German, Japanese, French and Spanish "language houses," as well as the International Program.

According to Pasquale, the Foreign Language Program, that formerly existed in Brown was confined by the suite set-up, and lacked flexibility in admitting groups of students who failed to fit the gender breakdown imposed by the suite environment.

Moving the program to a small size residential hall provided both the flexibility and public space for the kinds of social-academic gatherings that are typically part of living-learning language programs, according to the proposal for the new house.

The Inaugural Reception for Thatcher Foreign Language-International House and The Max Kade German Studies Center will take place on Wednesday at 5 p.m. in Thatcher Residence Hall.

Several administrators, including Chancellor David K. Scott, and the chairs of the language departments, are expected to attend.

Campus Police Log

Rape
Oct. 5
A rape was reported at Health Services. The alleged incident occurred on Sept. 29 between midnight and 1 a.m., in an upper Central residence hall. The 18-year-old victim is a student. This alleged incident, which has been classified as an acquaintance rape, is under investigation by police officers in the Community Disorders Unit.

Vandalism
Oct. 5
There was a broken window and ignition damage to a vehicle in Parking Lot 33.

Medical emergency
Oct. 5
An individual with stomach cramps was taken from North Village Apts. to Cooley Dickinson Hospital.

An individual who was reported to have been ill since the previous day was taken from Coolidge Residence Hall to Cooley Dickinson Hospital.

An individual sustained a head injury by falling on some stairs in Thatcher Residence Hall, and was taken to Cooley Dickinson Hospital.

Larceny
Oct. 5
There was a report that an employee's toolbox was stolen from Boyden Gymnasium.

There was a report that a wallet was stolen from Hills House.

• There was a stereo stolen from a vehicle in Parking Lot 11.

There was a bicycle seat stolen from Melville Residence Hall.

There was a conference table stolen from the basement of Worcester Dining Hall.

Burglary/breaking & entering
Oct. 5
A vehicle in Parking Lot 11 was broken into and vandalized.

Accident
Oct. 5
There was a five vehicle accident on University Drive. There were no injuries.

Correction

Last Monday's article about Peter Hebenstreit incorrectly stated that the victim of the indecent assault was under the age of 14. She was over the age of 14. The Collegian apologizes for the error.

HCAC celebrates anniversary

Members gather, reflect upon 30 years of community service

By Roseann Cohen
Collegian Correspondent

Thirty years ago, when Lyndon Johnson was launching a war on poverty, a small but committed group of 11 Hampshire County residents came together to launch their own war on poverty.

Last Thursday night, at the Northampton Center for the Arts, the Hampshire Community Action Commission (HCAC) celebrated 30 years of service to low-income communities and commitment to the preservation of personal self-esteem and respect within the system.

The HCAC reflected on the success of many of its programs during the event, during which staff members were recognized for 10 years of service or more. These achievements include Headstart, fuel assistance, a housing program aiding tenant/landlord mediation and daycare provisions.

Included in the festivities was food donated by the area restaurants and a performance by two dance troupes comprised of members of the Hampshire Heights youth program.

Brenda Delgado, the choreographer of Unity dance troupe, spoke on the significance of the youth program.

"One girl had been involved with gangs and drugs and we tried to take her out of that environment and get her into dancing," she said. "And now she is doing real good."

Dance program unites

Bridging cultural gaps is also an important component of the Unity program, according to 15-year-old Ruthie May Thurren.

"We don't just learn about dancing, we learn about our backgrounds and our cultures," she said. "That's what Unity is for. When we go to Unity it's like a home for us."

There are several different races represented in the salsa/merangue dance troupe, with members ranging in age from 10 to 15.

"We used to hang out a lot, with nothing to do, and get in trouble," said 15-year-old Ebony Timothy. "Now that we have dancing we have something to do. We stick together."

The youth program in Hampshire Heights is one of the most recent developments for HCAC and serves people in the low-income housing program. Gary Richards, the director of the youth program, expressed the need for teens to have a sense of pride and belonging.

"We have healthy gangs, we want them to feel like a gang, and see what a group can do when they work together," he said. "We take that and use it to show them how they can change their world. They can take steps to change their community and how they are treated."

Programs "under attack"

Organizing community members is a vital focus of the HCAC. According to HCAC, the goal is to include low-income people in the decision-making processes that shape their lives. The diminishing availability of information, education and services has left many low-income people with no means of creating change.

In a recent press release, Rep. Richard Neal and various other local, state and federal politicians spoke about the "irony of the times" in Washington D.C.

Rep. John Olver (D-Mass) also voiced his concern in a press statement over the failures of the capitol to address the needs of low-income people.

"Every program that is a benefit for low income families, working families, is under attack," he wrote. "The new Congress is raising taxes on low income working people in order to give more money in tax reductions for families making over a hundred two hundred thousand dollars a year."

The HCAC promotes social change through the dedication of its staff, the participation of the community, respect and multiculturalism, as Sen. Stan Rosenberg (D-Mass) pointed out by quoting a proverb.

"To love one child, it is as though we have lost the whole world," he said. "But to save one child is as though we have saved the entire world."

COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIEDS
THEY WORK 545-3500

EXPERT AUTO BODY REPAIRS, AUTO PAINTING and GLASS REPLACEMENT
MARSHALL STEINBECK
PROFESSIONAL COLLISION WORK
• OVEN BAKED URETHANE FINISHES
• FREE ESTIMATES & CLAIMS ASSISTANCE
• INSURANCE APPROVED GLASS REPLACEMENT
• PROFESSIONAL UNIBODY REPAIR AND FRAME STRAIGHTENING
Shop Reg. #RS1212
256-8157 256-1385
53 South Prospect Street, Amherst, Massachusetts

So You've Got the Blues...
A support Group for people living with mood disorders
Skills For Combatting Depression
This six session group will focus on providing group members with essential coping skills and preventing relapse.
The group will meet on Thursday afternoons from 3:45 - 5:00pm beginning in late October and continuing until early December.
Pre-group interviews are required.
For information or to sign up for an interview call 545-2337, or stop by 127 Hills North, Monday - Friday 8:00am - 5:00pm.
Offered by the Mental Health Division of University Health Services

Falcetti MUSIC MALL
VISIT THE DRUM SHOP
• Acoustic Drums (over 20 sets on display)
• Dalin Percussion
• Electronic Drum Kits
• Drum Accessories
SOUND REINFORCEMENT/ RECORDING SHOP
• D.J. Equipment
• Amps, Mixers Speakers Recording Equipment
KEYBOARD SHOP
• Synthesizers
• Samplers (over 50 on hand)
• Software
GUITAR SHOP
• Acoustic, Electric, Bass Guitars (over 300 in stock)
• Effects, Amplifiers
MUSIC SHOP
• Music Sheets & Books (over 2000 to choose from)
• Musicol Accessories
• Musical Gifts
• Videos & Karaoke Tapes
1755 BOSTON ROAD SPRINGFIELD • 413•543•1002

NEWMAN CENTER
THE ROMAN CATHOLIC CHAPEL ON CAMPUS

L. to R. - Sr. Kathleen Keough, SSJ; Fr. J. Joseph Quigley.
Back row, L. to R. - Fr. Francis P. Lavelle, Director, Sr. Christine Methe, SSJ; Fr. Norman Bolton

You are invited to meet Fr. Brian Barrons, M.M., a Maryknoll priest who has worked in Tanzania and will be visiting Campus this weekend. He will preach at all the Masses and will also be available to meet with students on Monday during the day. Fr. Barrons will give a presentation entitled "African Tribal Conflict" on Monday at 7:00 p.m. in the Sunken Lounge. Everyone is welcome.

Daily Masses: Mon. - Fri.: 8:00 a.m., 12:15 p.m.; Sat. and holidays: 9:00 a.m.
Lord's Day Masses: Sat.: 5:00 p.m., Sun.: 8:00 a.m., 10:30 a.m., 7:00 p.m., 9:30 p.m.
Center Hours: Sun. - Fri.: 7:00 a.m. - 10:30 p.m.
Cafeteria Hours: Mon. - Wed.: 7:00 a.m. - 10:00 p.m.; Thurs.: 7:00 a.m. - 9:00 p.m.; Fri.: 7:00 a.m. - 4:00 p.m.; Sat.: 8:00 a.m. - 4:00 p.m.; Sun.: 8:00 a.m. - 9:00 p.m.

Corner of Massachusetts Ave. and N. Pleasant St. 549-0300

Go for it!
Study abroad.

One aspect of college life is the array of challenges you meet and surmount. With each new challenge met, you prepare yourself a little more for "the real world." One challenge you won't want to pass up is study abroad. Because there's nothing like living in another country to teach you how to "go for it." Call us for our 1996-97 program catalogs. Specify Australia, Greece, Great Britain, Ireland, Austria, Peace Studies or Mexico.

1.800.755.5607
cea@beaver.edu
http://www.beaver.edu/
Beaver College
Center for Education Abroad

Husband, wife set to give lecture at UMass on effects of oil exploration in the rain forests

by Michelle Lugo
Collegian Staff

The President of the Organization of Indigenous Secoya of Ecuador, Sr. Elias Piyahuaje Payahuaje, and his wife, Isolina Saturia Siquihua Machos, arrive today at UMass for the first of a four lecture series on the effects of oil exploration in the Ecuadorian rain forest.

"Environmental and Cultural Consequences of Oil Exploration in the Amazon: An Indigenous Perspective" will be at 4:00 p.m., in room 165-169 of the Campus Center.

According to the press release, it is expected that Piyahuaje Payahuaje and Siquihua Machos will lecture on issues such as the right to clean water, the right to uncontaminated fish, and the right to clean land. The couple will also concentrate on issues concerning the preservation of Secoyan self-sufficiency.

The couple will lecture on the "abuse" of international agreements by the oil industry, the effects of oil exploration, the colonization of humans and the native culture, and on the resulting damage to the ecosystem's health.

"Oil exploration and development have unleashed vast environmental devastation. Traditional sources of food -- fish, birds and game animals are disappearing. Furthermore, the construction of the oil roads has opened up the area to colonization and the Secoya people face additional pressure on their land and on their culture. The seductions of the market economy and western goods lure individuals into arrangements with short-term individual benefit but long- term community and environmental detriment," according to the proposal by Herb Bernstein, Professor of Physics at Hampshire College, written to acquire funds from different organizations at the Five Colleges.

The proposal offers a short background of the Secoya people as, "a culturally unique group of people. For generations upon generations they have lived semi- nomadically in the rain forest practicing their traditional fishing, hunting, gathering, and shifting cultivation economy."

The Institute for Science and Interdisciplinary Studies (ISIS) a non- profit organization located at Hampshire College, is the official sponsor. A local grassroots organization called Friends of the Amazon Secoya, cosponsored the event. Piyahuaje Payahuaje and Siquihua Machos with partial funding by the New England Biolabs Foundation. The proposal written by Bernstein won the support and contribution of other Five College organizations scheduled with the sponsoring.

The speakers will lecture at the following locations: Thurs. 12, Amherst College at 7:00 pm in Stirn Auditorium; Mon. 19, Hampshire College at 7:30 pm in the Main Lecture Hall; Franklin Patterson Hall; Weds. 25, Smith College at 4:30 pm in Wright Hall-Common Room.

Pryor family remembers tragedy

By Robin Estrin
Associated Press

WAYLAND, Mass. — It was exactly 10 years ago on a sunny, clear October day — much like Monday — when 9-year-old Sarah Pryor disappeared while playing near her parents' home.

For her family and the investigators who have been searching for her and her kidnapper, it might as well have been yesterday. Her memory is still painfully fresh.

"The most difficult thing for me is the fact that we've missed the past 10 years with Sarah," said her brother, Roger, who was a high school junior when she disappeared. All that she could have been, we'll never get to see.

More than 100 members of the Pryor family, friends, neighbors, prosecutors and police gathered in Hannah Williams Park at 4 p.m. Monday — the precise time 10 years ago when Sarah Pryor failed to walk — to dedicate a playground to her memory.

"Whoever took Sarah may have taken her body, but they have not taken her spirit ... and her family, Barbara Pryor said. "Her spirit is here and it will live for generations ... Sarah will become ... The station will be located at the corner of the park ... a castle, gazebo and ... [illegible] ... and [illegible] down slides. The park is just a few miles from the Pryors' old home.

The sculpture, scheduled to be completed next spring, will portray a child pulling an empty sled. Barbara Pryor said Sarah's dog, Katie, and her sled were her favorite possessions.

The Pryors have children still living at home.

That is really the way I remember Sarah as the 9-year-old girl who was just full of life," said her father, Andrew Pryor. "She'd be the type that would go and climb all over it. Artist Norman Schatt, who made the Make Way for Ducklings" sculptures in the Boston Public Garden ... [illegible] ... by [illegible] ... [illegible] ... $500,000.

■ project

continued from page 1

"We'd like to get the roof on before it snows," said Mike Paulsen, the student manager in charge this past Saturday.

Habitat for Humanity writes a proposal for each project, outlining how it will be connected to academic learning, according to Fiselle. He said students can get many different types of experience, including management, clerical, carpentry and communication skills.

The students work with area professionals, such as Hobie Iselin, who has worked in construction for 22 years.

The professional volunteers are like a "Who's Who" list of construction in the area, said Paulsen.

However, they still need volunteers.

Sophomore nursing major Susan Martinson was there Saturday, "carrying heavy piles of wood and hammering." The volunteers that day — including several from UMass and Amherst College — were starting to frame the roof.

"No experience is necessary," said Steve Marcil, a senior with a double major in Environmental Administration and Building Construction Management. "The more the merrier."

"If you come, you're going to learn something — how to use a hammer, how to measure things, what a two by four is..." Marcil said.

The group works every Saturday, 8:30 a.m. - 4 p.m. However, volunteers may work for shorter periods of time.

Habitat for Humanity requires workers to wear boots. Tools and materials, including optional hard hats, are provided.

The inhabitants of this new home are required to put "500 hours of sweat" into this project, according to various workers at the site.

In order to be eligible for a Habitat home, the family has to make under $20,000 per year.

"Habitat houses are affordable because there is no profit involved in the sale and no interest charged on the mortgage," according to a Habitat for Humanity brochure.

Also, local businesses have donated materials or given discounts on supplies.

Peter Massa, a volunteer for the Habitat for Humanity, and Mike Paulsen, a junior BLDE major, working on the roof of the house.

COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIEDS
THEY WORK!
113 Campus Center 545-3500

HOT.
Burn, baby, burn—disco inferno.
MAC.
Not the burger, pal—the killer computer.
DEALS.
Cheap. Not as cheap as a taco, but hey.

Macintosh Performa* 636 w/CD
8MB RAM/500MB hard drive, CD-ROM drive, 15" color monitor, keyboard, mouse and all the software you're likely to need.

PowerBook* 520
4MB RAM/240MB hard drive.

RIGHT NOW AT YOUR CAMPUS RESELLER
Being a student is hard. So we've made buying a Macintosh* easy. So easy, in fact, that the prices on Macintosh personal computers are now even lower than their already low student prices. Unfortunately, they won't stay this low forever. So you need to forget about how hard your life is for a minute and start thinking about how easy it will be with a Macintosh. The computer that gives you the power any student can use. The power to be your best.* Apple

Stop By The University Store Computer Department For More Information
UNIVERSITY STORE
Campus Center 545-2619
Mon - Fri 9-5
Sat 11 - 3
Sales of computer hardware are only available to university faculty, staff and students.

Product prices, product availability and sales taxes may vary. Offer expires October 13, 1995. © 1995 Apple Computer, Inc. All rights reserved. Apple, the Apple logo, Macintosh, Macintosh Performa, PowerBook, LaserWriter Select, Color StyleWriter and "The power to be your best" are registered trademarks of Apple Computer, Inc. Power Macintosh and Mac are trademarks of Apple Computer, Inc. CareerWay Plus is a registered trademark of Mindscape. All Apple products are designed to be accessible to individuals with disability. To learn more (U.S. only), call 800-776-2333 or TDD 800-755-0601. Sales of computer hardware are only available to University Faculty, Staff and Students.

DAILY COLLEGIAN

113 Campus Center • University of Massachusetts Amherst, MA 01003 • (413) 545-3500 • Fax (413) 545-1592

Matt Vautour Editor-in-Chief Juan José Chacón Quirós de Quetzacoatl Managing Editor
Earl T. Martin Business Manager James P. Gaules Production Manager Ethan Bloomfield Advertising Manager
Natasha Kahn Advertising Production Manager Wendy Darling Senior Diversity Editor

Tara MK Connelly Arts & Living Editor Candice Flemming Sports Editor
Christopher Byrd Black Affairs Editor Ron Alpert Staff Artist
Mari Wurtzel Business Editor Laura Schmidt, Aimee Schwartz Women's Issues Editors
Syed Mohammed Ali Raza Developing Nations Editor Marni E. Heffner Editorial Production Manager
Geri Sahn Editorial/Opinion Editor Adam Chace Systems Manager
Wendy Darling Guy, Lesbian, Bisexual Issues Editor A.J. Stewart Finance Manager
Jacob W. Michaels Jewish Affairs Editor Ryan Courtemanche Distribution Manager
Herman Rosenberg Multicultural Affairs Editor Maureen Majerowski Assistant Operations Manager
Chris Taylor Conner News Editor Marty Pappas Classified Advertising
Daymion Smith Photography Editor Thomas F. Sweeney, Jr. Graphics Advisor/Instructor

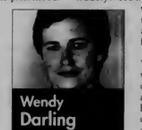
The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published Mondays through Fridays during the University of Massachusetts calendar semester. The Collegian is financially independent from the University of Massachusetts, operating solely on revenues generated by advertising sales. The paper was founded in 1890 as Aggie Life, became the College Signal in 1901, the Weekly Collegian in 1914 and then the Tri-Weekly Collegian in 1956. The Collegian has been published daily since 1967, and has been a broadsheet publication since January 1994. For advertising rates and information, call (413) 545-3500 weekdays between 8:30 a.m. and 3:30 p.m.

Let's talk about sex

Too many people are hung up about sex. And I don't mean the ones who have decided to wait until marriage or just don't like it, I mean people who just have a problem with it in general. As in, no matter who does it, it's bad, it needs to be covered up, there's no proper place for it except in fantasy, never in reality, so just shut up and join the priesthood.

Perhaps it's because I came onto sexuality at the ripe old age of 18, but for me, sex and sexuality constitute something as natural as breathing, as much a part of human beings as their skin, as ageless as a beautiful sunset or a bright full moon.



Wendy Darling

Sex is also one of the most pervasive elements in the world. It draws people together, helps beget children, and drives great art. Sadly, it also sells cars, inspires violence and, gets people really uptight.

Growing up I never realized this. Locked into an essentially asexual role in my daily life, I thought sex was the cool thing. It seemed obvious. I saw enough of it on television, heard enough people talking about it, knew enough people who'd engaged in it or were at least interested in it. So I figured the world was a very sex-positive place — it had to be, with all the talk.

Of course my life was outside that world, but eventually I would become part of the grand celebration. I would know the pleasures of sex and everybody would slap me five and congratulate me. Yet, it was not to be. Sex was not as cool as I thought it was.

Suddenly, everything I had assumed exploded in my face. It was okay to talk about sex, but not to enjoy it or have too much of it. And even when you talked about it you had to be careful. Nothing too homoerotic, nothing too detailed, and forget talking about anything other than vanilla sex without turning off three quarters of your audience. Oh, and no kissing on the subway and don't go to sex shops. And always remember what happened to those homosexuals who happened to enjoy sex — struck down by God, they were!

Working outside of this framework the world seems like a pretty ridiculous place. Why is prostitution illegal? Why do there have to be laws against nudity? How do sodomy laws stay on the books when clearly they all violate human rights? How in the world could talking about masturbation get Jocelyn Elders fired?

The answer to all these questions? Well, obviously sex is bad. The world's worst nightmare, too low to be discussed in any kind of rational way or alluded to in the most vague terms. It has to be controlled with sodomy laws, outdated age of consent laws, and chains and clamps and ropes and all these things that give people the wrong idea.

But what in the world is wrong with sex?

When I tell people I am a "sexual person," they get the wrong idea. They think, ah, she likes sex, so therefore she must have it a lot. Not so. You can live in Nebraska and still love the ocean. You can look down to the bottom of a swimming pool without jumping in yourself.

You can be in love with sex and sexuality without being a sex-obsessed maniac or a slut or a whore or any of those other nasty terms society has given to people who don't toe the party line. You can just be you.

So what does being a "sexual person" mean? To me, it means falling into a natural pattern, ripping off the harness, and doing and thinking what pleases me and won't do anyone any harm. It means taking a part of myself that I and the rest of the world was born with and taking advantage of it. Sex happens.

Wendy Darling is a Collegian columnist.

Strange days have found me

Last year I hooked up with this chick. Late at night, she started whispering to me how she knew I was bi-sexual and how I could have all these guys.

I didn't say anything to this. I guess I just hoped she would say her peace, get it out of her system and shut up.

Maybe I thought if I kept quiet and indulged her in her little fantasy it might help her achieve some taboo state of ecstasy, where physical pleasure melts into deep, black subconscious and the whole world ceases to be under the waves of pleasure that God shines his love-light through...

We started talking and she told me there was something I should know. She told me she used to be a man, that Gudran was Gunther, and she only played up that naive thing for kicks.

Jeremy Hurewitz

She definitely enjoyed herself, but I don't know if she exactly reached Nirvana.

This summer I stayed at a youth hostel in Barcelona. It was filled with young travelers and everyone got drunk and hooked up.

I hooked up with Gudran. She was blond, Norwegian and naive. She didn't drink and couldn't get over the fact I'd gotten high before. I told her I did it as often as I could.

With a few other couples we walked down to the sandy Spanish beach under a full moon and a starless sky. Gudran and I left the other couples and wandered down the beach together.

We sat down on the soft, brown sand and talked. After a little while I tried to kiss her and she pushed me away. I said "What's up with that?" In her thick Scandinavian accent she answered me "I cannot kiss every boy I meet." She went on to tell me that although she found me attractive, and it was a very romantic setting, she didn't believe in kissing random dudes.

I was bummed. She was cold so I gave her my shirt and got up and started throwing rocks at the black Mediterranean. She watched me curiously. We talked a little more and I honestly gave up any thought of hooking up. In my concession some vibe came full circle and that first electric spark both of us felt when we first locked eyes returned.

We started flirting and I straddled her and started teasing her about how naive and conservative she was. She laughed reluctantly and we drew closer together and more intimate. I started gently kissing her neck.

She didn't stop me but got real still and breathless. Soon she started breathing heavy, but still resisted my hints at kissing. Then she wrapped her legs around me and started thrusting me into her. She passed over some threshold and we kissed passionately.

This whole scene quickly picked up steam until one of the enormous beach combing machines came along and snared us in its headlights. It threatened to run us over if we didn't flee. So we ran.

When we got off the beach and hit the pavement she took my hand and said we should go back to the hotel because she was cold.

We walked back hand in hand. I was shirtless and the opaque clouds drizzled rain on us. We started talking and she told me there was something I should know. She told me she used to be a man, that Gudran was Gunther, and she only played up that naive thing for kicks.

I didn't say a word. What do you say to something like that?

I drew my hand from hers and we kept walking silently. I wasn't really angry, just surprised. I just felt blank. She seemed now to have no gender to me, completely ambiguous, and I saw her solely as a Human being. It was rather pleasant. I felt no revulsion perhaps because not much happened between us. Despite these strange circumstances I had no great cosmic revelations or anything; I just basically thought "whatever. I'm tired," and I went to sleep.

This semester I hooked up with some Southwest chick. She was short with dark hair and she wore a black spandex top tucked into tight blue jeans. When we went back to her room and started fooling around she said, "You're gonna think I'm a freak." I thought "oh shit." She went on. "I'm sort of sexually adventurous and ..." "And what," I said. "And I have these glow in the dark condoms I really want to try." I smiled and took a deep breath of relief.

In the morning she giggled and said,"Do you think I'm a freak?" I laughed and said "I've seen a lot freakier."

Jeremy Hurewitz is a Collegian columnist.

Letters to the Editor and Columns

Attention all columnists: Please come down, at your convenience to set up an appointment so get your pictures taken. If you have any questions, please call Geri Sahn.

The Editorial/Opinion page apologizes for not printing the letters that have been sent via e-mail. We are still learning how to "work the system."

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian welcomes and encourages letters to the editor. When writing, please limit your letter and keep it to a maximum of 400 words. We would much rather print several opinions instead of the limited space available on the page.

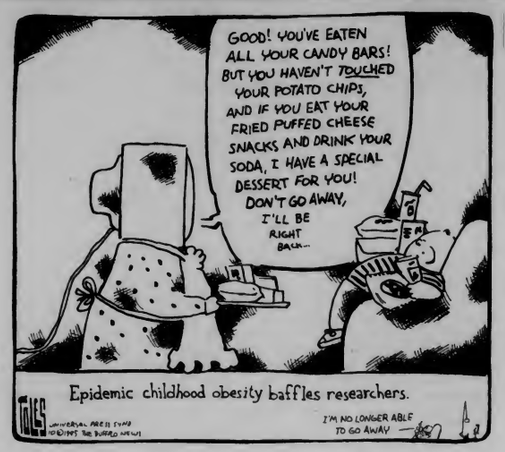
All letters should include a name, address and phone number (for verification purposes only). Students should also include their year and major. The Collegian reserves the right to edit submissions for grammar, style and length.

Send all letters to the Ed/Op page c/o the Collegian, 113 Campus Center, UMass.

Letters to the editor may also be sent through our e- mail account letters@olt.umass.edu.

The Ed/Op page is also always looking for columnists. If you are interested in writing a column for the Collegian, come down to the office, or call at 545-1491, and ask to speak to Geri Sahn.

Opinion/Editorial



GOOD! YOU'VE EATEN ALL YOUR CANDY BARS! BUT YOU HAVEN'T TOUCHED YOUR POTATO CHIPS, AND IF YOU EAT YOUR FRIED PUFFED CHEESE SNACKS AND DRINK YOUR SODA, I HAVE A SPECIAL DESSERT FOR YOU! DON'T GO AWAY, I'LL BE RIGHT BACK...
Epidemic childhood obesity baffles researchers.
TALES
I'M NO LONGER ABLE TO GO AWAY

The mind of white America

The verdict is in and White America howls.

From the White House to the Blue Wall, the near unanimous horror felt by White Americans at the acquittal of O.J. Simpson has been expressed in wailing, gnashing of teeth and rending of garments, a veritable white riot.

This outrage, hardly less savage than hurricane Opal, serves as a telling register of the current mentality of the majority White community in the United States, coming as it does straight from the collective guts.

A brief foray, therefore, inside the guts, and minds, of White America.

O.J. got off, it is believed, because he is Black. Not because most of the evidence was handled by a law enforcement system which employs, promotes and coddles Nazis, but because the case against him was far from meeting the burden of reasonable doubt, but simply because he is Black.

The verdict is being received by a White America increasingly galvanized by a "backlash" version of racism — the view among White Americans that African-Americans benefit from their racial identity, and when Blacks want to gain an unfair advantage or avoid responsibilities, all they have to do is "play the race card."

"Playing the race card" can constitute any reference to existing racial attitudes or historical events that constitute the racial context of –American society.

Most White Americans remain oblivious to the extreme inequity and discrimination in American society, such as the almost total segregation in housing nationwide. And they bristle at the notion that their families, neighborhoods or society are in any way racist.

Recognition of the asymmetries and inequalities in almost every aspect of society here, chronicled in numerous simple paperbacks such as Andrew Hacker's Two Nations, give way, instead of self-serving fantasies of multiculturalism served up by everyone from Bill Clinton to Rush Limbaugh to Chancellor Scott.

There is outrage that, for once, a Black man had sufficient resources to challenge the state and expose the nature of the system that accused him.

Hussein Ivish

The historical context and actual realities are felt as an affront, an imposition, an attack. It's cheating. "not fair," to discuss or remind anyone of slavery, Jim Crow and racism.

That's why, for so many White Americans, exposing Mark Fuhrman's intense racism seemed unjust, beside the point, diversionary or cheating — even though not to do so would have constituted gross malpractice on the part of the defense.

Herein lies the outrage at the verdict, the assessment that O.J. unfairly benefitted from his racial identity by unfairly pointing out his accusers just happen to be Nazis. There is outrage that, for once, a Black man had sufficient resources to challenge the state and expose the nature of the system that accused him.

These attitudes set up another fascinating process in the looking-glass world inside the mind of White America — the creation of extraordinary, but revealing, double standards.

Contrast the response to the O.J. Simpson acquittal to the acquittal of the police officers who beat Rondey King a few years ago.

That acquittal, in a case infinitely more clearcut in terms of who had done what to whom, was met mainly with surprise and interest, but with little outrage by White America. Platitudes about the sanctity of the legal system and the inherent wisdom of juries predominated.

There was no breastbeating about what's wrong with the legal system that such a travesty of justice could occur. There was no revaluation of the role and nature of the law enforcement system.

Furthermore, the fact the King beating was conducted by a group of police officers against a Black man seemed to only justify the act, rather than promote outrage. There were no calls for "our hearts" to go out to the victim and his family after the verdict.

Or contrast the riot on Cortex Street in Whitebrainsville, U.S.A. now occurring after the O.J. verdict with the reaction to the Fuhrman tapes. The revelations about the insane savagery of at least some cops and their ability to function well as respected officers raised hardly an eyebrow.

Sheikh Omar Abdel Rahman may have been convicted recently, and on a far weaker case than that against O.J. Simpson, but that's what you get, I suppose, for working for the CIA, as he did for years. But, he can go to his prison cell with a blissful smile, knowing that the biggest explosions in this country are self-inflicted.

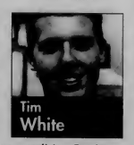
For the Simpson trial, and the racial dynamics it exposed, remind us that, like Los Angeles, America itself is still waiting for "The Big One."

Hussein Ivish is a Collegian columnist.

Avoiding the Bar Patrol

I started working in bars three years ago back home as a barback. Barbacks are the poor schmucks that you see behind the bar at dance clubs who can't serve you drinks when you ask them. But, they do all the grunt work like replacing liquor and hauling kegs.

I then moved up to bartender and enjoyed the better "pay" that comes with that.



Tim White

Last year I got a job in a bar up-town. Because it's a college area, it is very difficult to start right in with a bartending shift, so they put me on the door. I am now starting to get a couple of shifts behind the bar.

Working in bars for a few years combined with my two older brothers — who have labored in them for around eight years — I have a few stories to tell. But, I'm going to turn them into advice ... call it "True Stories from the Bar Patrol."

First, from the door: OK, we don't keep you waiting in line because it gives us a thrill. Where I work, I get a cut of the tips, so the more people in the bar, the more money I make.

But we do have a capacity we have to adhere to, if we get caught over that number, we would probably lose our job and the bar would get shut down for a while — then I wouldn't make any money.

So, when you're waiting in line, don't say things like "Come on man, only three people, what the hell?" It will not get you in any faster. As a matter of fact, being a jerk might cause you to wait even longer.

If there is a line and you are already in the bar, don't come up to the bouncer and say, "hey dude, can I just go outside and snag a slice and then come right back?" Nope. If there is a line, you will be waiting in that line again — watching someone cut makes other people very disgruntled.

Carding: you have to have an I.D. That is the bottom line. We will not remember you from the night before, we don't care what your friend says and a note from mom saying "Dear Mr. Bouncer-guy, my son Billy is 21, I swear to God, love Billy's mom," won't work either.

Plus, If you have an out-of-state I.D., have a picture back- up. That does not mean a credit card or your yearbook picture with your name written on the back.

Speaking of out-of-state I.D.s, I feel bad for all of you New Jersey people out there. You might have noticed that you have gotten a little heat from bars around here and getting in can sometimes be difficult. The only thing you can do is find the person out there making the fake New Jersey I.D.'s, and lynch him. It would definitely make my job easier.

When it hits 1 a.m., you have to be out of the bar. We don't care who you are hitting on, how bad you have to go to the bathroom or who you know.

Bye-bye.

When Filene's closes, you don't hang around trying on pants, so don't try to get "just one more" from the bartender.

From behind the bar: here is a warning. If you don't tip regularly, expect to be shut off early. That does not mean you have to tip awesome every single drink, but if you consistently don't leave anything, your beers will have a very, very healthy head on them.

And much to many people's chagrin, throwing up in a pitcher does not mean you can stay. It is just as bad as lobbing one on the bar or on the floor.

Bartenders do not know every single drink out there. "Hey man, can I have a Flaming Turnip?"

Especially in a college town, shooters change so much. If the bartender doesn't know, tell him or her what's in it (unless it is crazy busy). If you don't know what's in it ... well, I would never drink something that I didn't know what was in it.

I like going out as much as every one else does — bars can be a really good time. Go out, have a rockin' time, see your buddies and just plain let loose. But don't think you own the place.

Tim White is Collegian columnist.

Arts & Living

Blur bows while Harper soars

BLUR
The Great Escape
Virgin

When this British pop sensation swept the country last year with their fourth album Parklife, people couldn't get enough of their catchy melodies, quaint harmonies and gutsy English accents. Blur's "Girls and Boys" could be heard on every station and in every club with it's 80's sounding beat and biting nonsensical lyrics.

Soon Oasis and Elastica began to rid the waves created by this dynamic quartet. Now they are releasing their fifth album on their new label, Virgin. Many people however who are looking for the same type of explosive energy are deemed to be disappointed.

While The Great Escape keeps up with he band's catchy tunes and devil may care attitude, the album sounds come off like a tarnished reflection of Parklife. the songs all sound remarkably repetitious, something sadly unexpected form a band who has made so many albums and constantly vying for attention.

A few songs stand apart from the rest like "He Thought of Cars and "Dan Abnormal" but on the whole the album leaves you full but not satisfied. If anything buy it for the cool packaging — for that is obviously where the creativity was spent. B- (Tara MK Connelly)

BEN HARPER
Fight for Your Minds
Virgin

After recieving rave reviews for last years "Welcome To The Cruel World," Ben Harper is back with "Fight For Your Mind."

On his sophmore effort Harper continues his folkly slide guitar music, while still singing heart felt lyrics. "Opression," the albums opener sets the album off on a liberating note in the way Bob Marley might of done it,"Opression, I won't let you near me,"oppression", you shall learn to fear me."

Although most of Harpers lyrics deal with society and its problems, they also look more inwardly on songs like "Please Me Like You Want To" and "Another Lonely Day." On "Another Lonely Day," Harper plays guitar minus his band, making the song extremely intimate. "Burn One Down" on they other hand takes the listener on an upbeat reggae jam while Harper sings on the topic of marijuana, "herb the gift from the earth is of the greatest worth."

As a whole "Fight For Your Mind" is more diverse than Harpers debut album, adding in styles ranging anywhere from reggae to hip hop. Not only is Harper a virtuoso on the album, his band is just as worthy as he is. Whether your into hip hop, punk, classic rock, or reggae Ben Harper will probably win you over. B+ (Jason Flax)

Trax On Trax Off

WAKELAND
Magnetic
Giant

Romance, cheese, loss of love, friendly advice and well ... just more cheese make up the elements of Wakeland's third full length album ironically called Magnetic, ironic because all one desires to do with this is to push it further away from their CD player.

Wakeland began four years ago by four Oklahoma State University students: Chris Sullivan (vocals/guitar), Brad Heinrichs (guitar/main song writer), Shane Litsch (drums) and Andy Nunez (bass). The band tried to be unique and alternative sounding by introducing songs with a punk inspired drive. Instead, they simply end up making the listener believe the members are just weeping good boys at the end of a "The Brady Bunch" episode. Although their sound has been described as a bad imitation of the Gin Blossoms they shrug that comparison off.

Nearly every song on the 12 tune album last about three to four cheesy minutes, and their lyrics are basic and Hootie and the Blowfish-usque. There are some relatively good songs which start off hard driven but finish off with less than a bang — summing up just about the whole album. D (Lorraine Urbanski)

Britain's Blur is back with a new album.

COURTESY STEVE PYKE

YO LA TENGO
Camp Yo La Tengo
Matador

With Electr-o-pura Yo La Tengo once again proved that it could change things up and still be amazing. They proved that with Painful, a grinding album filled with feed back, static, crashing guitars and gritty guitars. Electr-o-pura did it one up, by refining the technique and making it even better.

Camp Yo La Tengo begins with the delicate strumming of a guitar in "(Thin) Blue Line Swinger" that slowly crescendos with a pulsating electric guitar. It then touches lightly into a toned down version of "Tom

Turn to TRAX, page 6

New movie not worth dying over

By Laura Stock
Collegian Staff

TO DIE FOR
Directed by Gus Von Sant with Nicole Kidman, Matt Dillon
Playing at Hampshire Six

To Die For is like a two hour episode of "Hard Copy," but less entertaining.

Gus Van Sant's (Drugstore Cowboy, My Own Private Idaho) parody of America's obsession with tabloid TV or trailer-park talk show topics is warped at best. Nicole Kidman (Batman Forever) plays Suzanne Stone, a [illegible] media-obsessed, journalist wannabe who will do anything to get on TV. Her theory — "You aren't really anybody in America if you're not on TV 'Cause what's the point of doing anything worthwhile if nobody's watching?"

That quote accurately describes Kidman's performance — a worthwhile effort for film that is definitely not worth watching. Actually, Kidman's performance was spectacular and very believable, but her character was so repulsive you just couldn't stomach her.

Suzanne, to put it mildly, has problems. Driven by her lifelong passion to be on TV, Suzanne's behavior runs the gamut of lunatic activities — from sleeping with some hotshot producer while on her honeymoon to having her unlucky husband killed in a manner which conjures up all sorts of Pamela Smart crime notions. She thinks she has taste, but her tacky '80s style resembles that of a slutty Barbie doll, and she has an equally distasteful personality to match.

Matt Dillon (Singles) plays Larry Marcello, the poor sap who marries Suzanne. He is your typical Whitesnake, t-shirt wearing slacker boy who wanted to be a drummer until he met Suzanne. Now Larry wants to be a family man, but those plans don't fit into his wife's agenda.

Suzanne gets a job at a local cable TV station as a secretary, and eventually works her way up to weather person. Everybody scoffs at how seriously she takes the job, especially Larry's sister, Janice (Illeana Douglas). Hoping to gain some national recognition, Suzanne begins a documentary project for the cable station involving high school students.

Three of the students take a particular liking to Suzanne and from there a perverted friendship with the troubled teenagers develops. Joaquin Phoenix (formerly known as Leaf, brother of the late River Phoenix) plays Jimmy Emmett, who is sexually obsessed with Suzanne. The portrayal of the repugnant teenagers in this film is so disturbing, it makes you wonder if all movie directors have given up on today's youth. All these teens care about is money and sex, and have no concern about the consequences of their actions. Phoenix's performance (slurred speech and all) is hauntingly reminiscent of the character Telly in Larry Clark's Kids.

Kidman has surprisingly found her niche in the dark comedy genre. Her career-high performance, however, goes to waste in a horribly written and directed film that certainly is not worth dying for. C-

Nicole Kidman and Matt Dillon in To Die For

COURTESY COLUMBIA PICTURES

Sports Illustrated Campus Fest
FREE GAMES FUN SPORTS PRIZES
1-800-COLLECT
TOYOTA
Brought to you by:
UNIVERSITY STORE
OCTOBER 11 & 12
(Raindate 10/13)
South Lawn Student Union
10 am - 4 pm

Assistant
Finance Manager

We are looking for:
• Ambitious • Responsible
• Organized
SOPHOMORES
with good communication skills
Business majors Preferred

EXPERIENCE
is a must to be successful in gaining the competitive edge in today's Business World

Applications are available at the Collegian
113 Campus Center and must be submitted by
Monday October 16th.

The ALANA Lecture Series Presents
Lectures:
Wednesday, October 11, 1995
Discussion Groups:

Versus amazing again

By Mike Burke
Collegian Staff

VERSUS
Williams College
Oct. 6

With the possible exception of the Jon Spencer Blues Explosion, Versus is probably the best live band on the East Coast. The band is known for consistently putting on intense shows and it is quite a rare for the band to put on a lackluster set. Their show at Williams College was your typical Versus show — amazing.

Since their last performance on Western Massachusetts' all ages spring's Flood Music Festival, Versus has undergone a few changes. First off, guitarist and leader, Richard Hell from has guaranteed a new sound that's far off the beaten path for every other side. Now the band doesn't sound a reality whatsoever to its punk up his classic sonic throughout the beginning but more importantly the band has crafted a sound.

The new member is another one in Richard's brothers (his name is Fred). He plays drums. The addition of the second guitarist is a welcome addition as Versus is at heart a guitar band — and can you ever have too many guitars?

Versus opened up the show with an old song, "Forest Fire" which immediately brought smiles to their few adoring fans in attendance. The band at first was a bit rusty but within no time they were playing as if they were the best live band in the world.

The band mixed up the set really well, playing songs off all their releases as well a hand[ful of new songs. Old classics such as "Astronaut" and "Let's Electrify" were stunning as always while new tracks such as "Sixteen," "D" and "Yeah You" proves the band has yet to reach its peak. The latter song features bassist Fontaine Toups on vocals and is one of the best songs the band has written yet.

Near the end of the set the band brought out two killer tracks, the always blistering hot "Be 9" and the more obscure "Go Tell It On The Mountain" which closed the show in stunning fashion.

Few bands ever put on shows as powerful and electrifying as this Versus performance, but then Saturday's gig was no different from any other — the band is always this good.

PATRICK MCNALLY / COLLEGIAN

Mikeys rocking at Williams College

■ trax

continued from page 5

Courtney" sung this time by Georgia with an acoustic guitar. The song is still powerful, minus it's distortion and buzz, and it calls to mind the folksy tunes of Fakebook.

Things are sped up slightly with a cover of a Sced's song that is syrup sweet and filled with longing and tinged with the feeling of a '50s sock hop. The EP is then rounded off with "Mr. Amche Play the Stranger," a nine minute stew filled with plaintive chords, ringing feed back and whispered phrases. A (T.M.K.C.)

LUNA
Penthouse
Elektra

Dreamy and slow, the latest released by Luna has you waltzing through its 10 tracks. Low keyed and laid back the album begins with "Chinatown" a song about getting lost and finding yourself.

"Lost in Space" reflects the band's black humor and is a delicate melody that swoops and moves reflecting un regretful decisions and indecisiveness. Things are switched up with he throbbing guitars intro to "23 Minutes In Brussels" and the furious "Freakin Peakin'."

Luna has proven on this album that they have the wide range of a well formed band being able to play and cater to all moods and feelings and still come out with cohesive sounding album. B (T.M.K.C.)

WET, WET, WET
Picture This
Polygram

Picture this: a band comes onto the music scene with a fresh sounding single entitled "Love is All Around." It is snapped up by Hollywood for one of the year's most successful movies Four Weddings and A Funeral. It was a nice ballad, sincere and mellow sounding — perfect for that type of mushy atmosphere. Oh there is no doubt that they are trying to be sincere and heart wrenchingly honest. The effort is there with lyrics like "Don't Want to forgive me now? You want to forget it/ But I know I'll be happy in my heart," but in the end it just ends up being sad. (T.M.K.C.

Luna, led by Dean Wareham, return to glory.

Show 'sweet as honey'

By Marni E. Helfner
Collegian Staff

SWEET HONEY IN THE ROCK
John M. Greene Hall
Oct. 8

It's rare to find a group that does so much on stage you can barely keep track of what's going on. It's even more rare to find such a group that can also sing well. Sweet Honey in the Rock does all that and more.

Giving a stellar three-hour performance, Sweet Honey combined their pure sounds of jazz, blues, ballads, gospel and traditional African rhythms, to create an a cappella experience that took the house down.

Sweet Honey is an ensemble a cappella group that performs with voice and hand and foot percussions. The group has been together for the past 22 years and has had 21 different members. The current ensemble includes Bernice Johnson Reagon, founder; Carol Maillard, also an original member of the group; Ysaye Maria Barnwell; Nitanjju Bonadé Cosel; Aisha Kahlil; and Shirley Childress Johnson, the sign language interpreter.

In addition to the musical talent that possesses the group, there is a strong political sense to all their work. From "Ballad for a Teacher" about reconsidering the Native American curriculum, to "Ella's Song" about Ella Baker, a civil rights activist, to "Ain't Gonna Let Nobody Turn Me Around," a song written by four artist Toni Reagon, Bernice Reagon Johnson, to plant about the power and strength of politicians and the results of their actions.

Sweet Honey sang about freedom, African virtues and lessons in fortune telling and love to the music of strong and melodic harmonies. The combination of voices, rhythms and emotion helped make Sweet Honey's harmonic conversation so [illegible]

Other songs with political content included "Lenox Avenue," "Calypso Freedom," about the Civil Rights movement of the '60s, "We Believe in Freedom," about the fight for freedom for all, "Patchwork Quilt," a soulful anthem about the AIDS quilt spread out over Westover glen, "Do unto Others" about the Golden Rule, and "Ballad of the Broken Wing," a song written by four artist Toni Reagon, Bernice Reagon Johnson, to plant about the power and strength of politicians and the results of their actions.

Sweet Honey sang about freedom, African virtues and lessons in fortune telling and love to the music of strong and melodic harmonies. The combination of voices, rhythms and emotion helped make Sweet Honey's harmonic conversation so [illegible]

Television imitates magazine

By Lynn Elber
Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — Remember MAD magazine's Alfred E. Neuman, [illegible] Maybe it

If Fox Broadcasting Co.'s new comedy hour can bring MAD magazine's spirit to television without betraying the subversive roots of mascot Alfred E. and his fellow MAD madcaps.

If "MAD TV" consists MAD readers who expect viewers to relate with the nine words or So vs. Spy" and to laugh at them.

If the TV series is found [illegible] devoted fans of comic book, comic ing satire and pop-culture disap pointment from "Seinfeld" Night Live," it had best do more than [illegible]

Airing Fridays [illegible] Cable Channel, "MAD TV" [illegible] latest try to satisfy [illegible] "MAD TV" [illegible] and movie send-ups of [illegible]

Its cast is [illegible] SNL" regulars Artie Mc[illegible] [illegible] to [illegible] from [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

~ THROUGH QUEER EYES ~

Reflections on pre-Stonewall GLB life

Warren J. Blumenfeld

I travel to university and high school campuses around the country giving workshops and presentations on the topic of homophobia and general issues in gay, lesbian, bisexual, and transgender (GLBT) studies.

Recently, a college student asked me what my undergraduate GLBT student group was like.

"Was there much resistance from the administration and from other students?" she inquired.

More questions followed: "Did the women and men work well together?", "Were bisexuals welcomed?", "Was the group focus political or social?", "Was there a separate coming out group for new members?", "What kinds of campus activities did you sponsor?"

As she asked me these questions, my head began to whirl with visions of my undergraduate years. I stopped long enough to inform her that I graduated with my B.A. degree on June 13, 1969 — 15 days before the momentous Stonewall Rebellion, an event generally credited with igniting the modern movement for GLBT liberation and equality.

Though I later learned that some universities like Cornell, Stanford, and Columbia had officially recognized GLBT student groups before 1969, as a graduating senior, the concept of an "out" person, let alone an organized, above- ground student group was not even in my range of possibilities.

Homophobia in the Cold War

I was born during the height of the Cold War era directly following World War II, a time when any sort of human difference was held suspect. On the floor of the U.S. Senate, Sen. Joseph McCarthy loudly proclaimed that "communists corrupt the minds, and homosexuals corrupt the bodies" of good, upstanding American citizens.

When I was only two or three years old, my parents began to suspect that I might be gay (or, to use the terminology of the day, "homosexual"). Shy, withdrawn, I preferred to spend most of my time alone. At the playground at school, children called me names like "sissy," "fairy," "pansy" and "little girl" with an incredible vehemence and malice that I did not understand.

My parents sent me to a child psychiatrist in 1953 when I was only five years old. Over the next eight years, they continued their attempt to direct my eventual sexual orientation and exorcise from me any hint of "effeminacy" in the hope of forever eliminating all contact, all vestiges, all memory of that side of my being.

During high school in the early 1960s, I had very few friends and never dated. The topic of homosexuality rarely came up in the classroom, and then only in a negative context.

I graduated high school in 1965 with the hope that college life would somehow be better. I hoped that people would be more open–minded, less conforming, more accepting of difference.

Something was missing

To a great extent, this was the case. In college, I demonstrated my opposition to the war in Vietnam, worked to reduce racism on campus, and planned Earth Day ecology teach–ins. Nevertheless, there was still something missing for me. I knew I was gay, but I had no outlet through which I could express my feelings. As far as I knew, there were no openly gay people, no support groups, no organizations, and no GLBT classes or library materials that did anything more than tell me that homosexuals were abnormal and needed to be changed.

It was in 1967 that I finally decided to see a therapist in the campus counseling center and began what for me was a difficult coming out process.

My first year of grad school in 1970 was a turning point in my life. In my campus newspaper, The Spartan Daily, I saw the headline, in big bold letters: GAY LIBERATION FRONT DENIED CAMPUS RECOGNITION. The article stated that the chancellor of the California State University system, under Governor Ronald Reagan's direction, had denied recognition of the campus chapter of the Gay Liberation Front.

In the chancellor's ruling, it was stated that "the effect of recognition... of the Gay Liberation Front could conceivably be to endorse or to promote homosexual behavior, to attract homosexuals to the campus, and to expose minors to homosexual advocacy and practices."

Curiosity and fear

This was the first I had heard of such a group, and the first time I had heard about other gay and lesbian people on my campus. I called the coordinator of the group and was invited to the next meeting.

Since the group was not permitted to hold meetings on campus, members met in a little greasy–spoon on a dingy side street a few blocks off campus. Unfortunately, this only confirmed my fears of the underground nature of gay life. As I approached the door to enter the meeting, I felt as if I were a member of the French resistance during the Nazi occupation.

Upon entering I saw around 15 people. I recognized one man from chemistry class, but the others were strangers. There was a near even mix of men and women, which made me feel a bit easier. In my mind, I had envisioned 50 men waiting to pounce on me as I entered, but I soon discovered that they were good people who were concerned about me. They invited me to their homes, and before too long, I relaxed in their presence.

I left San Jose in 1971 to work for a progressive educational journal at the National Students Association in Washington, D.C. Within a few months, I founded and became the first director of the National Gay Students Center, a networking group that worked to exchange information among the GLBT student groups.

Warren J. Blumenfeld

A year after leaving San Jose, I learned that the students at my school won a suit against the Trustees of the California State University System and the administration had been forced to recognize the group as an official student organization. Other groups throughout the nation that have been denied official recognition have used this precedent to wage court battles, and most have been successful.

Hope for the future

Two years ago, I boarded a T–car on the Green Line bound for Boston University, where I was scheduled to present a workshop on GLBT history at the second annual Northeast Lesbian and Gay Student Union Conference.

Also entering the car were four young male students en route to the conference, one of whom I remembered from a workshop I had given the previous day.

Once on board, they sat two by two in rows in front of me. After a few moments of animated talk and without apparent concern or self–consciousness, one of them reached out his hand and gently stroked the hair of the young man seated next to him. The other man welcomed and accepted the gesture.

Witnessing this scene, I thought about how far GLBT people had come from the time when I was an undergraduate. Tears came to my eyes as I thought back to the pain of coming out of the closet of denial and fear. I saw before me memories of the hard, often frightening work so many of GLBT people have been engaged in to ensure a safer environment for young people to be able to display seemingly simple acts of affection for someone of the same sex.

Through my travels around the country to college and university campuses, I come away with the definite sense that conditions remain somewhat difficult for some GLBT and "questioning" students today, though much progress has been made. Support systems are firmly in place on many campuses, and students today appear more self–assured and exhibit a certain joyous and feisty rebellion not seen only a few years ago.

Therefore I realize that though school is still not a particularly "gay" place to be, it is a great deal better than ever before.

To all of you I say, keep up the struggle.

When the Stonewall Riots broke out in 1969, Warren Blumenfeld had just completed his senior year of college.

Since graduation, Blumenfeld has been a tireless advocate for GLBT rights, given hundreds of lectures around the country, and published extensively. Blumenfeld is co–author of the book Looking at Gay and Lesbian Life and editor of the book Homophobia: How We All Pay the Price.

Currently, he is the editor of the Journal of Gay, Lesbian, and Bisexual Identity and a doctoral candidate in the Social Justice Education Program at the University of Massachusetts.

Meeting assumptions & shattering them

It's all too easy to make assumptions. If you're a student, for example, it's assumed that you'll graduate at some point. Your parents have visions of you in a cap and gown picking up a diploma in a big fancy commencement ceremony sometime in early June.

Now imagine how disappointed your parents would be to find out that you're failing all your classes and dropping out of school. Obviously, your parents made an assumption about you without checking out the real facts.

My parents did the same thing to me when they assumed I was straight.

This is not too surprising considering the mind set of this society, where it's assumed that everyone — Dairy Queen checkout clerk, conservative bank teller, and Whitmore employee — is straight.

When I told my parents I'm gay, it shattered this assumption to smithereens. In their minds, they'd always pictured me meeting an attractive woman, getting married, and living happily ever after.

At first, I wanted to say I was "just kidding," but I soon realized that I couldn't go on living my life as a lie. After all, how can any person live their his life masking his true identity?

Not that it's too difficult. Walking past me in the Student Union and not knowing me, you probably wouldn't be able to tell I'm gay. Like many gay, lesbian, bisexual, and transgender people, I don't stand out from the crowd.

I will not assume, but I believe that almost all of you reading this meet gay, lesbian, bisexual, and transgender people every day during the course of your daily activities. Some of you know it and others (the ones who make assumptions) don't.

Nevertheless, you're constantly running into people who aren't straight — from the person sitting next to you to your roommate to your professor or even to your best friend.

Another assumption I find myself dealing with is the one that says that being gay is a choice. To all you straight people out there, I ask, have you ever asked yourself if you consciously chose your sexual orientation? If you think about it, you will realize that you haven't.

Being gay is not a choice. Being gay is your heart beating — you cannot control when you want your heart to start or stop, it just goes on and on. Being gay is part of human nature, just as being straight or bisexual or transgender is part of human nature.

There are more assumptions people make about gay, lesbian, bisexual, and transgender people, like the one that says that all of them are the same. To some people, a gay man always equals a "flaming fag," a lesbian always equals a "butch dyke," a bisexual always equals a "sex freak," and transgender person always equals a "cross dresser."

This is not to say that some gay men, lesbians, bisexuals, and transgender people aren't these things, but to say that not all of them are. That would be like saying all grains of sand on a beach are the same. Yes, they're all grains of sand and all part of the beach, but they're not all the same.

You need a magnifying glass to see the difference in that case, but you don't need one for people. What you need is to stop making assumptions.

Tam Le is a UMass student.

■ Guerra

continued from page 7

'aha... aha,' which for me is a big achievement. To even acknowledge that what I'm saying exists."

Best experience coming out: "I went home for Christmas and tried to get back in touch with my [old friends from high school]... They were the ones who had ostracized me... So I got in touch with them and we went out for a cruise around town and we were drinking beer and kind of hanging around in this little town... And I had just enough beers to be able to say, 'You guys, remember all those rumors you all heard in high school? Well, it's true. I really am gay. Sonja and I have been together for years.' They just all started laughing, like 'We know! We know! What's wrong with you? We've known all these years and we were mad because you didn't tell us and we were best friends, so how could you not tell us?"

Worst coming out experience: "My father has a younger sister and [he and his sister] are very traditional... from this small, Mexican town... and she had heard all these rumors and confronted him with it. And said, 'Your daughter is this and that and the other.' And this is my aunt and I was standing right there, and she was telling me, 'You need to just get out of this town, you don't belong here, we don't need your kind here...' And my father... defended me and told her that... it was none of her business... And he was yelling and she was yelling and she reached over and she scratched him across the face and he kind of shoved her a little... I haven't spoken with her for 10 years after that."

Facing up to new realities in health

By Patrick Cleary
Collegian Correspondent

For many gay, lesbian, and bisexual students, the college years are the first opportunity they have to explore their sexual identities. It is also often the first opportunity these students have for same–sex sexual experiences — and the first time they have had to worry about exposure to sexually transmitted diseases, HIV, and AIDS.

"When you think about it, this student population is made up of people who have grown up entirely in the age of AIDS," says Lisa Andruchow, an HiV/AIDS testing counsellor at Syracuse Community Health Center.

When AiDS first appeared on the scene, says Andruchow, it was virtually ignored by the media, and gay men felt that they had to take responsibility for stopping the disease.

As more and more information became available, the media has become saturated with messages about safer sex.

"Young people today no longer see this disease as a personal responsibility," says Andruchow. "Safer–sex has become a message of the establishment, and young people have always rebelled against the establishment."

There is also a sense of fatalism regarding AIDS today, according to Lauri Turkovsky of University of Massachusetts Health Education. Because the messages of the last 10 years have stressed safer–sex practices 100 percent of the time for life, a lot of gay and bisexual men are choosing to take more risks.

"Most gay men have the information they need to protect themselves, but don't see it fitting into their lives," Turkovsky says. "They see a choice between risking infection or only engaging in practices considered safer for the rest of their lives."

Unfortunately, many men choose to risk it, says Turkovsky.

Another factor is perceived risk. Although the message about safer–sex is getting through to the public, people have different definitions of "risky" behavior. This definition often has little to do with actual risk.

A study conducted by Laurie Bauman and Karolyn Siegal in the Journal of Applied Social Psychology showed that most of the gay men in the study classified their behavior as "low–risk", but when asked to describe their sexual practices, indicated they had engaged in what medical authorities consider "more risky" or even "high risk" behavior.

Sexual practices that do not put a person at risk for HIV/AIDS could lead to other sexually transmitted diseases (STDs) as well, says Andruchow.

"STDs are sometimes pushed into the background," she says. "Since the advent of AIDS, people have started to consider STDs as something that can be easily taken care of."

Often gay men, lesbians, and bisexuals will ignore the signs of STDs, rather than seek medical advice. A recent survey showed that 23 percent of young lesbian women with STDs..were choosing to treat themselves instead of visiting a physician. Many felt uncomfortable discussing their sexual orientation with a gynecologist, and cited this discomfort as a hinderance in seeking regular gynecological care.

How are young lesbians, gay men, and bisexuals to keep healthy and whole still exploring their sexuality?

"The solution is in communication," says Andruchow. "Being frank with your partner about health issues is the best way to keep yourself and your partner safe."

Turkovsky agrees. "Finding a physician with whom you can feel safe is a matter of talking to your friends and others in the community. Ask your friends who they see, and what their experiences were."

Turkovsky encourages gay, lesbian, and bisexual students to take advantage of the many services available on the UMass campus and throughout the Pioneer Valley, particularly the UMass Stonewall Center, a GLB resource center.

"It is important not to let fear be your guide," says Andruchow. "With the right information, and a commitment to keeping safe, everyone should certainly take this time to explore your sexual identity."

— Wendy Darling

RBENSON, Ans. 1 — Notes and e-mail are invaluable to my feeling of connectedness. I have a great circle of close lesbian friends (and some great straight ones, too, I might add) because of them. The info. I get is important as well, as I don't read newspapers on a regular basis. The computer was an easy way to hook up with other like–minded people. I'm curious if people feel like it's a relatively safe way to come out? Not that that's ever a problem for me — ha! But since there's an element of invisibility, is it easier?

AKLOWRY, Ans. 2 — This forum has given me the chance to be in the minority. Before reading the notes posted here, i didn't feel I was getting a good picture of what it meant to be anything other than heterosexual. I think our society discourages alternative lifestyles far too much and that a forum like this gives gays (lesbians, etc.) a chance to discuss things freely [in a place] where heterosexuals can see and realize that this huge difference between lifestyles really isn't that big at all.

WDARLING, Anonymity, sort of — I definitely think the relative anonymity of all this is an asset. I mean, people who might never come to a meeting or buy a gay magazine can cruise around the net without anyone ever seeing them. How does this "facelessness" work for you?

RBENSON, Not that we don't use our imaginations — I love it! I can totally be myself here. I can say what I please and if i piss someone off, i don't take the equally anonymous responses personally. Also, being free from visual stereotyping is liberating. People respond — or at least I do — to each other as humans. You have to ask if someone is gay, straight, male, female, differently abled, etc. You can't just assume.

LJOHNSON, Terrific! — The people I've met in GLBT Notes helped me feel at home here at UMass. I've made some special friends and hope to meet new ones every day. I feel connected to the gay, bisexual, lesbian, transgender community because of Notes. I like the anonymity of the responses because, as Rita said, "people respond to each other as humans." I also think this computer stuff is a great way for people to come out among friends.

WDARLING, Chat? — Have either of you every talked to GLBT people on any kind of chat software? What was that like?

RBENSON: Nope. — I haven't. This stuff alone can get addicting. But I know there's lots out there if you want to hook up to it.

AKLOWRY, Ummm, Rita? — I think Wendy wanted to know if you used the chat software for the purposes of the article, Rita, not for her own use.

RBENSON, Ummm, Alec? — Are you on dope?

PJCLEARY, Useless chatter — I've used chat software, and it is very addictive. It also has that anonymous feeling to it, with the immediacy of being in real–time. I've also found people to be a lot more honest (if that makes any sense) than if I met them face to face. Again, it comes down to meeting people on a human level, which I've found is difficult in the gay male subculture. Gay men seem too caught up in appearances and it's difficult to talk to them in the more "established" ways, such as bars, without having that odd pseudo–sexual tension going on.

WDARLING, Devil's advocate — Do you ever feel like you've got to worry about your safety when you're writing on software like this? I mean, somebody could just look you up, you know.

RBENSON, Hey, where'd this soapbox come from? — I think about it. But how do I want to live my life, in fear or do I want to live my life saying what I think and feel to be real? My lover won't hold my hand in public because she's afraid we'll be beaten. I say even so, let's go down fighting. I'm not going to let fear rule my life. I don't care if people object to something I feel that has nothing to do with them — that's their problem, not mine, you know? Someone could as easily follow me on the street because of my pins or simply because I'm a woman or because they thought I was going out of turn in the bank line...

I tend to worry more about my life than the lives and paranoias of others. We get brainwashed into thinking we have to be careful and hidden and silent and lead fearful little lives of anonymity. We get told by loud, hateful people that the world is a loud, hateful place, but I don't believe them. Like they say, the "moral majority" is neither. Which isn't to say that there aren't situations when we should all of us be careful of schizoid people, but I can usually pick up on when that's happening. I am, unfortunately, perhaps quite aware of where I am and who I'm with, but I let my guard down whenever I can.

WDARLING, Lack of appearances — How do you think the lack of "appearance" in Notes figures into debate? I mean, how do they differ from the kinds of discussions you have if "everybody" (everybody who uses Notes?) were just sitting there in a room? i tend to think that things go a lot more smoothly that way, since everybody usually gets his or her say, but I was wondering what you think on this.

RBENSON, Invisibility — Hmmm, I think it does play into responding to each other. I'm sure there are people here responding to things they might hesitate to say to someone's face. There is also a lot open to interpretation here: inability to convey sarcasm is legendary on line. So is sincerity. If you could see someone's face you could be more sure of what they really meant. Maybe that is why i said "things are more real but also more unreal" on line? I think the essence of that is very true.

AKLOWRY, Smoothness — Wendy, which way do you think things go more smoothly? I think things go more smoothly on–line. I find that not everybody gets their say sitting together in a room, whereas in this kind of a forum, if you want to post something, post it. There's nobody else to start talking at the same time you are.

WDARLING, Not better, but different — Exactly. Actually, I don't think either one is better than the other or that one goes more smoothly, more than having conversations or discussions on

QUEER RESOURCES

Compiled by Amy Armenia

A guide to GLBT resources, hotlines, groups and services

UNIVERSITY RESOURCES

Chancellor's Task Force on GLBT Matters
c/o Office of Human Relations
306 Middlesex
University of Massachusetts
Amherst, MA 01003
(413) 545-0851
Organization of subgroups working on administrative issues pertaining the UMass GLBT community.

Everywoman's Center
Wilder Hall
University of Massachusetts
Amherst, MA 01003
(413) 545-0883
Resources, referral, and counseling for lesbians and bisexual women.

Gay Lesbian Bisexual Speaker's Bureau
c/o Stonewall Center
(413) 545-4824
Volunteer group that trains and organizes members for presentations in classes, residence halls and the local community.

Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Graduate Student Organization (GLB GSO)
c/o Graduate Student Senate
922 Campus Center
University of Massachusetts
Amherst, MA 01003
Social and political organization with weekly meetings and various social events for UMass graduate students.

Lambda Line
(413) 54-LAMBDA
24-hour recording of local events and meetings for the GLBT community, along with info. on health, counseling, local resources, and more. Supported by the Stonewall Center.

Lesbian, Bisexual, Gay Alliance (LBGA)
413B Student Union
University of Massachusetts
Amherst, MA 01003
(413) 545-0154
Undergraduate RSO that sponsors weekly dance nights Tuesdays from 7–9 p.m. in the Campus Center, plus monthly dances. Meetings focus on bisexuals, lesbian and bisexual women, spirituality, sports and coming out.

Stonewall Center / BLATANT
Crampton House, Southwest
University of Massachusetts
Amherst, MA 01003
(413) 545-4824
Provides information and referral services as well as extensive educational and cultural programming. Operates free lending library. Publishes monthly newsletter, BLATANT. Assistance in crisis/discrimination situations.

LOCAL CAMPUS GROUPS

Smith College Lesbian Bisexual Alliance
Haskell Annex
Smith College
Northampton, MA 01060
(413) 585-4907

Hampshire College Queer Community Alliance (QCA)
Hampshire College
Amherst, MA 01002
(413) 582-5314

Amherst College Lesbian Gay Bisexual Alliance
Box 1803
Amherst College
Amherst, MA 01002-5000
(413) 542-8106

Mount Holyoke College Lesbian Bisexual Alliance
c/o Student Activities Office
Mount Holyoke College
South Hadley, MA 01075

OTHER LOCAL RESOURCES

Amherst-Pelham Regional High School — Gay-Straight Alliance
170 Boston Street
Amherst, MA 01002
(413) 549-4710
Contact: Michael Bardsley

Bisexual Women's Support Group
(413) 582-0452
Contact: Laura
Meets every other week in Northampton.

Face to Face
PO Box 118
Amherst, MA 01004-0118
(413) 253-8054
Provides panels of speakers to talk about GLB issues.

Gay and Lesbian AA Group
St. John's Episcopal Church
West Street
Northampton, MA 01060
Meets Fridays 7:30 p.m. Newcomer's meeting starts at 6:15 p.m.

Girls/Lesbian Info Services
(413) 341-5403
E-mail: glinfowma@aol.com
Information and referral line for the Pioneer Valley GLBT community. Has information about local Electronic Bulletin Board Systems (BBS).

Parents and Friends of Lesbians and Gays (P-FLAG)
PO Box 2025
Amherst, MA 01004
(413) 256-4925
Support organization for family and friends of GLBT people. Meets at 7:30 p.m. on the second Tuesday of the month at Grace Episcopal Church Parish Hall on Spring Street in Amherst.

Pioneer Valley Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Youth Project
P.O. Box 202
Hadley, MA 01035
(413) 549-3710
Social and support group for GLBT youth, 20 and under, facilitated by adult mentors. Holds monthly meetings. Offers assistance with school and job issues as well as crisis situations.

The Sunshine Club
P.O. Box 149
Hadley, MA 01035-0149
Social and support organization for the transgender community. Male-to-female and female-to-male welcome. Publishes newsletter and operates Electronic Bulletin Board. Please write for more information.

Venture Out
P.O. Box 60271
Northampton, MA 01061
(413) 584-3145
An outdoor adventure club for the GLBT community in Western Massachusetts.

BOOKSTORES

Pride and Joy of Northampton
20 Crafts Avenue
Northampton, MA 01060
(413) 585-0683
Bookstore specializing in GLBT literature, videos, posters, and other "pride" merchandise.

Food For Thought Books
106 North Pleasant Street
Amherst, MA 01002
(413) 253-5432
Progressive bookstore with gay/lesbian section.

The Third Wave
90 King Street
Northampton, MA 01060
(413) 586-7851
Feminist bookstore, formerly known as Lunaria.

CLUBS

The NorthStar
25 West Street
Northampton, MA 01060
(413) 586-9409
Changing ownership on Oct. 15, the NorthStar will be renamed The Grotto. Current owners report that Friday night will remain "Gay Night." Please call ahead for information on special nights.

Pearl Street Nightclub
10 Pearl Street
Northampton, MA 01060
(413) 584-7771
Wednesday night is "Gay Night."

PUBLICATIONS, LISTINGS, HOTLINES

Bay Windows
1523 Washington Street
Boston, MA 02118
(617) 266-6670
Weekly Boston newspaper covering GLBT issues, events, and national news.

IN Newsweekly
258 Shawmut Avenue
Boston, MA 02116
(617) 426-8246
Weekly newspaper covering GLBT news and events throughout New England.

The Lesbian Calendar
351 Pleasant Street, Suite #132
Northampton, MA 01060
(413) 586-5514
A monthly listing of events and services written by, for, and about lesbians in the Pioneer Valley.

Metroline
1841 Broad Street
Hartford, CT 06114
(203) 278-6666
Bi-weekly magazine of news and events. Resource listings for Conn. and Western Mass.

Pride Line
(413) 585-0683
Recorded listing of events for GLBT community operated by Pride and Joy of Northampton (see above).

Valley Women's Voice
321 Student Union Building
University of Massachusetts
Amherst, MA 01003
(413) 545-2436
News journal by and about women.

ETHNIC/CULTURAL ORGANIZATIONS

Alliance of Massachusetts Asian Lesbians and Gay Men
P.O. Box 543
Prudential Station
Boston, MA 02199

Boston Coalition of Black Lesbians and Gays
c/o Harriet Tubman House
566 Columbus Avenue
Boston, MA 02118

American Indian Gays and Lesbians
P.O. Box 10229
Minneapolis, MN 55458

Gay and Lesbian Arabic Society
P.O. Box 4971
Washington, DC 20008

Gay and Lesbian Latino Organization (GALLO)
P.O. Box 3054
Worcester, MA 01613
(508) 854-3260

Rainbow Alliance of the Deaf
P.O. Box 14182
Washington, DC 20044-4182

RELIGIOUS GROUPS

Am Segulah
P.O. Box 271522
W. Hartford, CT 06127-1522
1-800-SEGULAH
An organization for Jewish gays and lesbians and their friends. Shabbat services on the first Friday of each month.

Dignity/Hartford
Quaker Meeting House
144 S. Quaker Lane
W. Hartford, CT
(203) 296-9229
Catholic liturgy service, meets every Sunday at 6:00 p.m.

Hope Community Church
20 Gaylord Street
Amherst, MA 01002
(413) 253-2522
Non-denominational Christian services every Sunday at 10:00 a.m.

Integrity/Western Mass.
P.O. Box 5051
Springfield, MA 01101
(413) 532-5060
Episcopalian. Meets the last Sunday of each month, at 7:00 p.m. at the Grace Episcopal Church (downstairs), Amherst. Wheelchair accessible.

Jewish Community of Amherst
742 Main Street
Amherst, MA 01002
(413) 256-0160

Unitarian Universalist
220 Main Street
Northampton, MA 01060
(413) 584-1390
Services Sunday at 9:15 and 11:00 a.m.

HEALTH, HIV, AND AIDS

AIDS Action Committee
131 Clarendon Street
Boston, MA 02116
1-800-235-2331
Provides information, advocacy and social services for people affected by HIV/AIDS. Offers a wide variety of services including support groups, in-home services and referrals.

Alternate Test Site Program
(617) 727-6971
Free, anonymous, state-run HIV testing. The testing is done at UMass Amherst campus and is strictly confidential. Call the above number collect 10–12 a.m., Mon–Fri.

Bilingual AIDS Hotline
32 Rutland Street
Boston, MA 02118
1–800-637-3776
In Spanish and English. Mon.–Fri., 9-5 p.m.

HIV/AIDS Testing and Counseling
16 Center Street, 4th Floor
Northampton, MA 01060
(413) 586-2016
1–800-696-7752
Free, anonymous and confidential testing. No appointment necessary. Tuesdays 9:00 to 1:00 p.m., walk in and ask for Jan. Bilingual counselor available.

Lesbian Education and Health (LEAH)
Family Planning Council of Western Massachusetts
16 Center Street, 4th Floor
Northampton, MA 01060
(413) 586-2016
1–800-696-7752
Women's health care center that provides mammograms, cervical cancer screenings, gynecological care, and more, often at low cost. Publishes LEAH's guide, a listing of lesbian and lesbian-sensitive health care practitioners, alternative health practitioners and psychotherapists. Offers educational programs on breast cancer and early detection.

University Health Services
Division of Health Education
University of Massachusetts
Amherst, MA 01003
(413) 549-2671 ext. 126
AIDS resource and referral center. Contacts for support groups and counseling.

Youth Only Hotline
1–800-788-1234 (in Massachusetts)
AIDS/HIV information hotline for youth 22 and under. Open 3–9 p.m., Mon.–Fri.

LEGAL/GOVERNMENT

Gay & Lesbian Advocates and Defenders (GLAD)
P.O. Box 218
Boston, MA 02112
(617) 426-1350
Provides legal advice and representation to the GLBT community. Also provides referrals to gay or gay-friendly attorneys throughout the area.

Governor's Commission on Gay and Lesbian Youth
State House, Room 111
Boston, MA 02133
(617) 727-3600, ext. 312

Massachusetts Commission Against Discrimination (MCAD)
1 Ashburton Place
Boston, MA 02108
(617) 727-3990
Provides information on Massachusetts civil rights laws and handles complaints on violations.

National Coming Out Day Activities

Many gays, lesbians, bisexuals, and transgender people look forward to National Coming Out Day all year round. This year they have even more reason to be excited, with a rally on the Student Union steps, a mural dedication, and a much-hyped speaking event featuring lesbian tennis star Martina Navratilova and Dave Pallone, a former major league baseball umpire who was forced to retire when he revealed his sexual orientation.

Rally — National Coming Out Day rally on the Student Union Steps. Sponsored by the UMass Lesbian Bisexual Gay Alliance. Speakers and open-mike. Call 545-0154 for more information. Rally begins at noon.

Dedication and Open House — Dedication for new outdoor mural at the Stonewall Center, Crampton House, Southwest. Chancellor David K. Scott is scheduled to speak. Followed by an Open House. Call 545–4824 for more information. Begins at 4 p.m.

Event — "Fair Play: A Candid Conversation with Martina Navratilova and Dave Pallone," featuring discussion of GLB athletes and homophobia in sports. Sponsored by the UMass Chancellor's Office. Call 545–2211 for more information. $5 students, $10–20 general public, tickets at the Mullins Center or call Ticketmaster, (413) 733–2500. Mullins Center, 8 p.m.

For Your Information

Tuesday, Oct. 11

Meeting — The UMass Lesbian Bisexual Gay Alliance will hold its weekly Info-Social from 7–9 p.m. in Room 803, Campus Center. Members will discuss plans for National Coming Out Day. Refreshments will be served.

Thursday, Oct. 12

Lecture — "Selling Sexual Subjectivities: Audiences Respond to Gay Window Advertising," a lecture by Katherine Sender, graduate student in the UMass Department of Communication. Part of the GLBT Studies Lecture Series. Free and open to the public. Call 545–4824 for information. Room 803, Campus Center, 12–1:30 p.m.

Friday, Oct. 13

Meeting — Coffee social for members of the Gay Lesbian Bisexual, and Transgender Graduate Student Organization. Grad Lounge, Campus Center, 5 p.m.

Drag ball — Drag ball sponsored by the Hampshire College Queer Community Alliance. $2 in drag, $3 without drag. Call 582-5714 for more information. Saga Dining Commons, Hampshire College, 8 p.m. to 1 a.m.

Sunday, Oct. 15

Workshop — "Affirming Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual, and Transgender Identities," workshop for Five College GLBT undergraduates. Co-facilitated by Paul Entis and Marty Martinson. Call and pre-register with Entis (545–4564) or Martinson (545–4824). Campus Center, room to be announced, 1–5 p.m.

Monday, Oct. 16

Meeting — Bi Rap Group, support/discussion group for bisexual men and women. Call 545-0154 for more information. LBGA office, 413B Student Union, 7–9 p.m.

Tuesday, Oct. 17

Meeting — The UMass Lesbian Bisexual Gay Alliance will hold its weekly Info-Social from 7–9 p.m. in Room 803, Campus Center. Refreshments will be served.

Thursday, Oct. 19

Lecture — "Lesbians and Their Families of Origin: From Crisis to Accommodation," a lecture by Joan Laird, professor of Social Work at the Smith College School for Social Work. Part of the GLBT Studies Lecture Series. Free and open to the public. Call 545–4824 for information. Room 803, Campus Center, 12–1:30 p.m.

Play — "A Little Older," written and directed by John Binnie, about the relationship of a straight woman and gay man. Part of the GLBT Cafe Series. $4 students, $6 general public, wheelchair accessible. Call 545–4812 for info., 545– 2511 for tickets. Hampden Theater, Southwest, 8 p.m.

Friday, Oct. 20

Play — "A Little Older" (see above). Hampden Theater, Southwest, 8 p.m.

Meeting — Coffee social for members of the Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual, and Transgender Graduate Student Organization. Grad Lounge, Campus Center, 5 p.m.

Saturday, Oct. 21

Banquet — Stonewall Center Banquet, celebrating the center's 10th anniversary. Featuring music by Zoe Lewis and Sons & Lovers. Fundraiser for the Stonewall Center Scholarship Fund. Sliding scale admission, $15–20 per person. Call 545-4824 for reservations. Top of the Campus Restaurant, Campus Center, cocktails at 5:30 p.m., dinner at 7 p.m.

Simon

continued from page 7

And then I told her [I'm gay]... And she was like, 'Well, I hope you don't get AIDS!' And she said a bunch of other offensive stuff and to this day she is still rather offensive. I mean, she's my mother and I still love her, I still try to maintain some sort of relationship, but it's difficult because we're about 180 degrees apart on a lot of things, and as far as my own dignity goes... I don't have much tolerance for people who are offensive."

Reactions on campus: "Some people who are more ethically sophisticated and thoughtful tend to react either like 'Well, that's fine with me' or like 'Cool, whatever...' People who are not so ethically sophisticated and have sort of unquestioningly accepted the norms of the society probably don't react favorably, but that's their problem, 'cause they aren't going to get to know me and it's their loss."

Issue that gets buried: "One of the things [people in mainstream gay and lesbian politics] really seem to have stopped pushing as an issue is the intuitions into gender that I think all queer people have naturally. I mean, if you're a queer man, you're obviously not an orthodox man, because desiring men or getting fucked is not something a man is supposed to do. So even if you try to deny and you try to say gay men can be just as masculine as straight men or gay and lesbian people are just like everyone else... I'm just like 'No, gay and lesbian people are not like everyone else. We have special intuitions into society that we need to be bringing to the table instead of just saying 'Accept us, we're mainstream, we present no threat to the order of gender, [etc.].'

If everyone "got over it": "For everyone truly to get over homosexuality, a lot of things would have to happen... So homophobia will not be eliminated until gender inequality, the patriarchy, and the gender stratification we have in our society are gone, because that's the root cause of homophobia.

Dexter's not his usual self.

You suspect the salsa.

So you call Dr. Nusblatt, your family vet back home.

The call is cheap.

(Too bad about the consultation fee.)

Live off campus? Sign up for AT&T True Reach Savings℠ and save 25%

no matter who, how, when or where

you call in the U.S.

Life can be complicated. AT&T True Reach Savings℠ is simple. Save 25% on every kind of call on your AT&T phone bill—direct dial, calling card, directory assistance, local toll, cellular, fax and modem – when you spend just $25 a month*. No other plan gives you all these different ways to save. Just call 1 800 TRUE-ATT to sign up. Save on every call. That's Your True Choice.℠

AT&T
Your True Choice

*Refers to long distance calls billed to AT&T home or AT&T Calling Card accounts. Discounts off AT&T base rates. Certain exclusions apply. Subject to billing availability. Offer available to residential AT&T customers. Minimum spending requirement is per residential line. Compared to major long distance carriers.

© 1995 AT&T

Water polo goes 2–1; X-C and V–ball compete

In this weekend's Minuteman Invitational, the Massachusetts men's water polo team won two matches but could not muster a third as the Minutemen fell to No. 14 ranked Navy 7–6 in the marquee match of the weekend. The No. 12 Minutemen now stand at 13–2 on the season.

Lead man Brian Stahl scored two goals, one of which was a two pointer, and had an assist. Senior Alex Mancil netted an unrelated assist in the losing cause. Post Stahl's six goals and one assist, Mancil had six goals and five steals. In the two other weekend match-ups, UMass won both handily as they crushed Richmond 25–15 and Navy again 15–9.

In the Richmond match senior Jim Daniels, with a new record of 12 saves, recorded 11 saves on the weekend. Daniels, who is currently ranked 12th in the nation in saves per game, is now just 17 saves away from breaking the all-time UMass record of 1,000 career saves.

Co-captains Mancil and Ryan Carrera were also pleased with their weekend performances. Mancil is currently ranked fourth in the nation in assists per game and is averaging over six per game. Carrera has been performing well as of late, scoring 12 goals and adding four assists in the last two weeks. He now has 19 goals and 10 assists on the year, against only two turnovers.

The upcoming weekend is no game for the Minutemen. Mancil and Carrera both have been named co-captains of the team for the remainder of the season. This weekend, UMass will host the Minuteman Invitational, which will feature Navy, Virginia, Richmond and Princeton. The Minutemen will be looking to improve upon their finishes from last year's meet, when they finished fifth and sixth, respectively.

Men's cross country places sixth

Historically, the Paul Short Invitational has been a prestigious and competitive meet to run in.

This past Saturday was no different, as the Massachusetts men's cross country team placed sixth overall. Saturday's field was comprised of numerous NCAA top 25 performers, and proved to be quite a test for the UMass runners. Iona blew away the field, finishing first overall. The next closest finisher was Penn State who finished second, by 43 points.

Juniors Mike Maceiko and Matt Behl were Massachusetts' top two finishers, placing eighth and 11th respectively. Maceiko and Behl have been the top two finishers for UMass at every meet this season. Senior Mike Ballotte ran well, finishing out the top three for the Minutemen.

Gates performances were turned in by Dan Sadeau and Ryan Carrera who finished within 1.5 seconds of each other. Sadeau and Carrera have been running well as of late, improving upon their times from last week. These two could prove to be big assets in the Minutemen Massachusetts' season finale.

The Paul Short Invitational marks the completion of the season for the team. The records so far have been impressive. This past weekend the UMass men's team proven themselves within the tough Atlantic Ten conference, but have shown their worth against top nationally rated teams. A great opportunity stands in front of them when they travel to Boston to compete in the New England Championships next week. It will be the final tune–up before the Atlantic 10 Championships.

—Jason Rubin

Women's cross country places seventh

The Massachusetts women's cross country team traveled to Bethlehem, PA this weekend to race in the Paul Short Invitational. With the reputation of being a tough meet, the Paul Short hosted 28 teams which included some of the top talent in the nation.

Massachusetts finished strong with 176 points, placing seventh overall. Last year's champion Providence returned to this win ning the meet with 25 points. Cortland, Georgetown, St. Joseph's, Princeton and Delaware took see ond through sixth respectively, with Navy, LaSalle and Pennsylvania rounding out the top ten.

The Minutewomen were led by sophomore standout Rebecca Donaghue. Donaghue, who has been UMass' top finisher in every race this season, finished twelfth overall in a time of 18:06. Jen Waegel, who has consistently been Massachusetts' second finisher, was over 1:30 off her usual pace. Last year, Clocking a 18:13, Waegel placed 15th at the meet. Christy Martin took 41st place overall, turning in a time of 19:01, while Kristin Donaldson kept Martin in sight and cracked the top 50, placing 50th in 19:14.

Sophomore Katie Greenia had been nursing hamstring and knee problems prior to this meet, but still placed for UMass. Rounding out the Minutewomen top five, Greenia finished 58th overall with a 19:22.

The Minutewomen will have a week off from competition to prepare for their upcoming championship meet. They return to racing on Oct. 21 at Franklin Park in Boston, for the New England Championships.

Cory Kane

Volleyball loses to GW

Massachusetts junior outside hitter Giza Riveta returned to the court last weekend to spark the Minutewomen on a three match road trip. The Minutewomen travelled to Virginia Tech, George Washington and Boston College.

UMass dropped a three game match, 15-10, 15-12 and 15- 12 to the Colonials of GW in which Riveta led the squad with 12 kills. Sophomore outside hitter Lesley Nolan followed close behind with 11 for the match. On the defensive side of the net, Riveta and Nolan led the way each tallying 11 digs a piece. Look for results on all the weekend's matches in tomorrow Collegian.

Chris Skinner

Four days until Midnight Madness

Tickets are still available for UMass' men's basketball Midnight Madness to be held on Saturday, Oct. 14. Tickets are free of charge and can be picked up at the UMass Ticket Office, located in Curry Hicks Cage. Tickets are available first–come, first–serve basis with a limit of two tickets for students and four for the general public. Doors will open at 10:30 p.m. and the Minutemen will take the floor just after midnight.

On Thursday night at the Cage, students will be able to compete in a one minute hot–shot competition, with the four male and four female finalists competing in front of the crowd on Saturday night. Sign–ups for this competition will be on a table on the Campus Center Concourse, opposite the Campus Store, Tues–Thurs, from 9 a.m.– 5 p.m.

In addition, Nike will sponsor a promotion giving away free sneakers and sweatshirts, while a USAir promotion will give away free airline tickets.

Bruins beat Sabres for first FleetCenter win

By Jimmy Golen
Associated Press

BOSTON — Ras Bourque and Jes Mullen scored 70 seconds apart in the third period Monday as the Boston Bruins got their first victory at the new FleetCenter, 3-5, over the Buffalo Sabres.

The Sabres took a 3-2 lead on Brian Holzinger's goal 8:49 into the third period, but Holzinger allowed Boston to come back with an interference penalty less than a minute later.

Thirty seven seconds after the power play, the Bruins worked the puck around the perimeter to Bourque, who slapped a shot past Dominik Hasek to tie the game 3-3.

A frantic Larry Mullen swiped a clearing pass and brought it across the blue line, before putting it through Hasek's legs. Hasek stopped 19 shots in his third career start. Buffalo, 30 years to the day since its first game, was playing its first game in the new arena Saturday, where it lost to the Boston Bruins 4-2.

Cam Neely scored three times in that game and seemed ready to pick up where he left off on Monday. Neely made it 1-0 with 3:52 gone in the game when Holzinger fed him the puck in the slot.

Buffalo tied it when Dave Hannan and Yuri Khmylev broke free from two defenders and Hannan beat Hasek at 9:59.

Mike Peca one-timed a pass from Pat Lafontaine past Hasek to make it 2-1 at 14:54 seconds left in the first. But Sean Hill had the second answering a Alain Oto Tsyrkune push back at the 18:12 mark.

Lafontaine also assisted on Sabres third goal, taking the puck around the right side and beating a sprawling Hasek to the inside. Bourque's goal ended the scoring.

The Bruins closed the Boston Garden last season and opened their new arena Saturday, with a 4-4 tie with the New York Islanders.

Cam Neely scored three times in that game and seemed ready to pick up where he left off on Monday. Neely made it 1-0 with 3:52 gone in the game when Holzinger fed him the puck in the slot.

Buffalo tied it when Dave Hannan and Yuri Khmylev broke free from two defenders and Hannan beat Hasek at 9:59.

Mike Peca one-timed a pass from Pat Lafontaine past Hasek to make it 2-1 at 14:54 seconds left in the first. But Sean Hill had the second answering a Alain Oto Tsyrkune push back at the 18:12 mark.

Lafontaine also assisted on Sabres third goal, taking the puck around the right side and beating a sprawling Hasek to the inside. Bourque's goal ended the scoring.

Interested in writing for
ARTS & LIVING
Come down to the Collegian and talk to Tara Connelly. Call 545–1561 for more information.

Lorenzo de'Medici • Art Institute of Florence
Florence
Study and explore in Renaissance setting at Lorenzo de'Medici Institute • Art Institute of Florence. Complete American University curriculum. Study/travel/excursion package.
Summer term – July, 1996
– 5m Credit / Non-Credit, A/C Hotel Upgrade
Semester / Year Abroad 1996-1997 – Full Credit
Ms. Tara, FLORENCE-CAMPUS
School of Continuing Education,
Fairfield University, Fairfield, Connecticut 06430
Phone (203)254-4220 Fax (203)254-4186
E-Mail: cbbowers@fair1.fairfield.edu
FAIRFIELD UNIVERSITY

Research Interviewers
Hiring Now For Evening and Weekend Hours
No Selling Involved
Interesting part-time telephone assignments to collect data on a variety of research topics. Absolutely no selling involved. Computer/typing skills required. Flexible hours: Monday–Friday, 5pm–10pm, Saturday 11am–5pm and Sunday 3pm–9pm. Must work a minimum of 20 hours per week. Start at $5.25/hour with paid training and earn up to $7.00/hour.
We're in the Mountain Farms Mall, which is a stop on the free bus line. Call between 9am–5pm, Monday–Friday; (413) 586-8635.
Abt Associates, Telephone Research Center, Mountain Farms Mall, Rt. 9, Hadley, MA 01035. An Equal Opportunity Employer.
Abt
Abt Associates Inc.

Voted BEST in the Valley
FAMOUS FOR
2 BURGS 2 BUCKS
PETE'S
ROUTE 9
HADLEY, MA
YEAR 'ROUND

WANTED: POETS, ...alive!
WHEELER GALLERY ANNUAL POETRY READING cancel the normal
your work published in the Wheeler Gallery Collection 1995
Register for the reading by Oct.13
by submitting name, telephone # and 1 to 3 original poems (typed) to Wheeler Gallery, Wheeler Dormitory, Central (across from New Africa House) Slip under the door and we'll pick it up and call you back!
QUESTIONS? CALL: Anne La Prade, Managing Director at 253-9552 Amanda C. Fladl at 546-2488

Understanding Eating Disorders:
Strategies for Friends and Families
Wed. October 18 room 174 or Tues. November 14 room 804
6:30 - 8 p.m. - Murray Lincoln Campus Center, UMass
I think my roommate has an eating disorder.
How can I be sure? What should I do?
I think my sister is anorexic and she isn't getting any help.
How can I convince her to see a professional?
Who should I suggest... Where should she go?
I'm concerned about my friend who has bulimia.
She says it's under control, but I don't think it is.
I'm really afraid... What can I do to help?
If you are concerned about someone who you know or suspect is struggling with an eating disorder, come to this informal workshop to explore how you can help and cope with these issues.
For more information, please call University Health Services 549-2671, Clinic 4 - ext. 233 or 234

Now Open
Unisex Hair Stylist
Amherst Barbers
Tel. 253-1722
40 Main Street, Amherst, MA (Across from the Old Town Hall off the Common)
$8 and up
Clipper Cuts • Layer Cuts • Razor Cuts • Flat Tops • Kid Cuts • Fades

Jim
Hours: Mon - Wed 8-5:30
Thurs & Fri 8-8, Sat 8-3
Proprietors:
Jim Reed and Terri Loncrini

Terri

Caribbean Cravings
61 MAIN STREET, AMHERST MA 01002 · (413) 253-5529
DELIVERY & CATERING AVAILABLE

	Sm.	Lg.
* Curried Chicken	4.75	6.50
* Jerked Chicken	4.75	6.50
* Curried Goat	5.25	6.50
* Rice and Peas	2.50	3.00
Plantain	1.50	2.00

* Served With Rice and Peas
WE NO LONGER CARRY ACKEE, CALALOO, OR COFFEE
Hours: Mon - Wed 11am - 11pm, Thurs - Fri 11am - 2am, Saturday 12noon - 2am, Sunday 12noon - 8pm

50,000 eyes will look at your ad
if you placed it in the
Collegian Classifieds.
For your convenience, look for our table on the Campus Center concourse on Thursdays.

Conflux is Here!
Brought to You By:
Capitol Records and Ticketmaster
Win Bigtime prizes by logging onto Ticketmaster Online (http://www.ticketmaster.com), including:
•20,000 CDs featuring leading Capitol acts such as Blind Melon, Spearhead and Cocteau Twins
•An all expenses paid trip for two to see Blind Melon in concert
•And the Grand Prize . . . A FREE concert on your campus by Everclear-hosted by the student who submits the most creative entry

H^ave yo^u got the Guts?
Spike on ADA JOHNSON AND OTHER VOLLEYBALL PROS
Campus Fest
October 11-12, 1995
Swing by the Kodak Fun Saver camera booth for your chance to set and spike on the pros. Okay, they're just life-size cut-outs, but nail'em and you could win a Kodak Fun Saver Beach Towel and other prizes.
KODAK FUN SAVER "CAM JAM" DRAWINGS
Jam your entry into the box at the booth, and every hour your name could be drawn to win a Kodak Fun Saver pocket daylight camera. At the end of each day we'll draw for a Kodak Duffel Bag filled with all kinds of Fun Saver stuff.
"TAKE YOUR PIC" MATCH & WIN GAME
Stop by the booth to play this "concentration" game of sorts. Match the most pictures in 3 minutes, and you'll win great Fun Saver prizes.
BE A STAR!
Don't be surprised if someone wielding a Fun Saver pocket daylight camera catches you on campus in action. Look for your picture at the Kodak booth display.
Kodak
Kodak FUN SAVER 35 Cameras
SERIOUS FUN

Ingoglia breaks another record

By Andrew Bryce
Collegian Staff

Senior running back Rene Ingoglia became Massachusetts' all-time rushing leader on Saturday, passing Garry Pearson's previous school mark for rushing yards in a career.

Ingoglia carried the ball 28 times for 129 yards in the 32–29 loss to New Hampshire, and in doing so eclipsed Pearson's record of 3,859 career yards, set between 1979 and 1982. After this past weekend, Ingoglia now stands at 3,978 yards.

Despite his nagging hamstring injury, despite the bugging New Hampshire defense in front, and despite the Minutemen's modest times, Rene Ingoglia did what he's been doing consistently for almost three years now.

His rushing total made him the 16th time in history that over 100 yards mark to record-setting game. He scored two touchdowns, his school record-tieing 42nd and 43rd of his career. And after the Wildcats kicked a field goal to put the game in UNH's hands, Ingoglia had the ball in his hands with the game on the line.

It became clear that Ingoglia's record-breaking run was coming when Matt Jordan and Taylor Passmore, the two fullbacks who had been in the game for the majority of the day, were replaced by Paul Hasek at the 18:12 mark.

Ingoglia said with a smile, "I knew they were going to give me the ball. I knew they were going to give me the ball. I knew they were going to give me the ball. I knew they were going to give me the ball."

Minutemen coach Mike Hodges, who's been a part of the UMass coaching staff for 18 years, has seen many of the great backs in school history, including the Pearson era, but Ingoglia's performance on Saturday was unprecedented.

"His performance was unbelievable," Hodges said. "He was unbelievable. He was unbelievable. He was unbelievable.

Collegian Classifieds

113 Campus Center • University of Massachusetts • Phone: (413)545-3500 Fax: (413)545-1592

Personals Policy

1. All personals MUST be proofread by Collegian classified employees before payment and acceptance of the classified.
2. Last names MAY NOT be used in personals. ONLY first names and initials are allowed. The only exceptions are for birthday or congratulations personals, in which case the full name may be used.
3. Phone numbers are not allowed in personals. NO EXCEPTIONS
4. Addresses are not allowed in personals. this means dorm room numbers as well.
5. Personals of a threatening or derogatory nature are not acceptable. Personals of a vindictive or libelous nature are not acceptable. Personals may not be used for the purpose of harassment.
6. Profanity may not be used in personals.
7. The personals section is for personals only. The personals section may NOT be used to sell items, seek roommates, advertise meetings, etc.
8. All personals must have the name, signature, and UMass I.D. number of the student placing the as filled in on the insertion order. Non-students must provide a valid driver's license and the license number must be recorded on the insertion order. Use of false identification or misrepresentation is subject to penalties under the law.
9. The Collegian reserves the right to refuse or to edit any personal that does not meet the Collegian's standards in accordance with the statutes of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

Rates

$2.00 minimum/day

Students
20¢ per word/day

All others
40¢ per word/day

NO REFUNDS

Please write clearly and legibly. We are not responsible for errors resulting from illegible handwriting or type.

Standard Headings

Activities
Announcements
Apartment For Rent
Auto For Sale
Employment
Entertainment
For Sale
Found (2 days Free)
Happy Birthday
Houses For Rent
Instruction
Lost
Musicians
Miscellaneous
Motorcycles
Personals
Room For Rent
Room Wanted
Roommate Wanted
Services
Summer Sublet
To Sublet
Travel
Transportation
Wanted to Rent
Wanted

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Aephi is holding rush for one more girl Tues Oct 10 8:30pm. Meet us at the SW horseshoe @7:45. For more info contact Lindsey at Sheets 549-8333

CHINESE FOOD

Koi Chinese restaurant now delivering to Jam Friday and Saturday 586-0774.

Cloh Communication Meeting!!! Monday 10/16 @ 7:30 Machmer. New members welcome! Find out about NY trip, elections, etc. 5 free guest screwdrivers. Don't miss it, it will be fun!

Learn to bartend at a university bar training. 1 of a kind of other school's graduate. Amherst. Free info session Sept 19th @ 7:00 pm. Lord Jeffrey Inn 1-800-... Ask Mrs.

The sisters of Sigma Delta Tau would like to welcome you to welcome Denise Silow... Denise and ... to the sisterhood. We're glad ...

The sisters of SDT would like to welcome you to a new term with Phenom ... Kris and Tara.

UMASS MEN'S RUGBY

Looking for a few good men ... have a ... 549-5540

AUTO FOR SALE

84 AUDI 5000 ...

1985 MAZDA GLC $500/80 665-3930.

86 BMW 325 excellent condition Red with Buick Int. 5600 or B.O. Mike@546-7467.

1986 Dodge Colt Turbo 5 spd fast sporty. Reliable. Economical. $1750. 253-4012.

86 Oldsmobile Firenze Runs good, high miles. $500or b/o Call Liz 256-8667.

86 VW Golf Auto Low miles 4 Dr. $4900 253-5776.

1990 Ford Probe Red, sunroof AC 56pd 256-4560.

1992 Toyota Celica GT. 5 speed, loaded. Red, power mirrs, engine 53k miles $3000 below book $10,200. 665-7219 Jim.

Blue 86 Subaru Wagon 4wd power windows, brand new brakes muffler water pump $1450 or bo Call 367-9105.

Honda Accord Lx90 704 CON. Auto $8000 or bo 665-8607 SUNG.

Loaded Mazda 626s California reg mint blue Excellent condition pw/ sunrf cass 549-0084.

EMPLOYMENT

Cartoonist wanted for commercial work in Roberts 545-0419.

Cruise Ships Hiring. Earn up to $3000+/month. World Travel. Seasonal & full-time positions. No exp. necessary. For info call 1-206-634-0468 Ext C500.

Earn big $$$ reading college marketing flyers & surveys. Work part-time/full-time. Multiple positions available throughout the Northeast. Flexible hours & great pay. 54-$-1801. Will train. No experience necessary. Great resume builder! For more info, call Mark Egan @ (617) 266-8881 Ext 11.

Jouvere & Soniere Private res-dential school is seeking enthusiastic & committed weekend staff for our weekend program. Duties include supervision of students on campus & off campus trips. You stay on campus overnight for coverage of dorms. Duty begins Fridays @ 4:00 pm and concludes on Sunday @ 5:00 pm. Call Mr. Kevin Driscoll @ (413) 477-6087 ext 235.

Looking for mature & ambitious individual with management experience to manage Barts concessions at Mullins Center. Flexible schedule necessary. Apply at Barts 101 N. Pleasant St. Amherst.

Looking for friendly ambitious individuals to sell Barts ice cream at Mullins Center. Flexible schedule necessary. Apply at Barts 103 North Pleasant St. Amherst.

Mala Torah reader needed Hosting and setting. Congregation Rodfeiy Tzedeck Holyoke 534-5752.

National Parks Hiring. Seasonal & full-time employment available at all locations. Parks, Forests & Wildlife Preserves. Benefits and Bonuses. Call (206) 545-4804 Ext. N 5077.

Personal Care Attendant to help quad. Fri overnights and Sat mornings & evenings. $7.85 p/hr. Call 545-0668.

$$$Translate into Chinese at your home (413) 747-5807 fax.

ENTERTAINMENT

Having Halloween bash on 10/27 or 10/28? Got a huge house? Want a spooky band? You need us!!! and us!!! needs you! call Jack at 367-9836.

FOR RENT

Fridge Rentals Free delivery. 253-8742.

Take over lease in January. 1 Br Putton Village. HT/HW included. 545-7055.

FOR SALE

Brand new 486 Toshiba color laptop. Unbeatable price, 1 year warranty. Must sell. 367-0180.

Futon Platform Bed frame for sale. $60 or bo. 586-1040 Brian.

Have you been ripped off by a dealer? Contact the Student Legal Services Office regarding your rights as a consumer. 922 Campus Center. 545-1995.

KZ Silva. 336dm Barely used marker +37 markings. Excellent condition $250 bo call Dan 549-8748.

PJ Harvey 14 Oct 10. Mike 585-9186.

Tandy Computer & color mont w/ soft. Asking $175 or bo. Call 8-0540.

1985 Fender Fretless Jazz Bass good as new asking $400 or bo. Call Aaron 549-8057.

Computer Desk For Sale barely used. Call 7-1744 or 253-7554.

386 Computer For Sale includes DOS 6, Windows 3.11, Microsoft Word, Norton... Games VGA Monitor. 4meg of ram. Asking $400 or best offer. Call 8-0863.

Used Stereo Equipment VCR, Laserdisc/CD player, 26" Mitsubishi monitor TV. Tube guitar amps. Lap steel. 12 string bass amp/cabinet. 8 channel mixer/amp, much more. All guaranteed. Must sell! Cheap! 253-5312.

FOUND

Found 1 set of keys near campus pond on Oct 3. Has an alarm and a Umass Bottle opener on it. If yours call Angie at 549-5705.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY

Happy Birthday Alicia! Sorry this is late, hope you appreciate it. Love your roommates and Stanley.

Happy Birthday Jill & Carolyn!!! Get ready for your seven sheets midnight juice! Love Lori, Terri, Heather, Shaun, Kristin, Melanie.

INSTRUCTION

Guitar Lessons Enjoy your semester earning 1-2 credits Call Peter 253-5763.

Guitar Lessons and classes by Kevin Collins. Beginning folk, classical. Free intro lesson. Hamp Grad 256-1233.

LOST

Lost gold digital watch of sentimental value please contact owner at 413 546-7606.

MOTORCYCLES

1978 Honda CB750F Supersport runs great good condition bo 546-1086.

86 Ninga 1000 in new parts asking $2300 467-2521 Travis.

MUSICIANS

Thermus seeks lead guitarist Versed in all styles & techniques. Professional attitude 546-6728 Joe.

Psychedelic garage band for hire Dead Dylan Cream Stones. Perfect for parties. 256-1949.

PERSONALS

ENLIGHTENMENT #2

I need religion like a fish needs a bicycle. What I want is to know other people who want to grow and will accept me as I am. Alliance Christian Fellowship, committed to people, friendship, learning, and spirit filled fellowship. Info: Mark or Elisabeth 253-7206.

ROOM FOR RENT

RM for rent on private home. Furnished carpeted, laundry, parking, kosher/vege. Kitchen $375 incl 549-4853. Non-smoking country setting.

ROOM WANTED

Danish exchange student looking for room near Amherst. Jassen 546-7942.

Can you help me? Responsible 21 year old woman seeks housing in exchange for house/yard work, childcare, etc. or for low rent. Please call 586-9830 after 5 or 253-4911 M-T, H-F 12-5. Ask for Cara.

ROOMMATE WANTED

Female Roommate wanted to share 3 bedroom apt 2 miles from campus $240/mo.

SERVICES

BOXING LESSONS

For men and women with retired pro Dana Burrpus. 549-5752.

Exotic nail airbrushing 548-1794.

Grants and scholarships available. Billions of $$$ in grants. Qualify immediately. 1-800-243-2425 (1-800-AID-2-HELP).

International students Visitors OV-1 greencard program by US immigration. Legal Services. Tel 818-772-1168 20231 Stagg St. Canoga Park CA 91306.

Legal Questions? The Student Legal Services Office offers free legal assistance to all fee-paying students. Contact us at 922 Campus Center. 545-1995.

Pregnant? Need help? Call birthright of Amherst area for free testing and carrying assistance. 549-1906.

TO SUBLET

1 or 2 females needed to sublet spring only. Call Stefanie 253-1581.

TRAVEL

FREE TRIPS AND CASH

Find out how hundreds of students are already earning FREE TRIPS and LOTS OF CASH with America's #1 Spring Break Company! Sell only 15 trips and travel free! Choose Cancun, Bahamas, Mazatlan, or Florida! Call now! Take A Break Student Travel (800) 95-BREAK!

Spring Break Bahamas, Cancun, Jamaica. Packages from $299. Organize a group, earn a free trip plus comissions. Call 1-800-327-6013.

WANTED

Babysitter Needed for 3 year old Wed and Fri 1240-320 Call Michele at 256-8632.

MASSACHUSETTS
DAILY COLLEGIAN
113 Campus Center
545-3500

Collegian Graphics

We're up all night putting together New England's largest daily college newspaper!

When our job is done – your day is just beginning.

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING INSERTION ORDER

Client: Date: Taken By:

Date(s) to run: Headline:

Total Days: X Words: = X rate = Payment

Special heading ($2.50 extra): Authorized signature:

ADVERTISING COPY

1		1
2		2
3		3
4		4
5		5
6		6
7		7
8		8
9		9
10		10

Insert one character, space, or punctuation mark per box - use capital letters where they apply - Cost figured on each line of form used - see rate card

YOUR DAILY HOROSCOPE
by Jeane Dixon

ARIES(March 21–April 19): Your concern for people does not stop with family and friends. Work demands may preclude social engagements. Be selective when making new financial arrangements. Analyze any second thoughts.

TAURUS(April 20–May 20): Innovation is the name of the game. Do not be afraid to try something new. Pay attention to practical details when carrying out your plans. Important new contacts can be made at social events.

GEMINI(May 21–June 20): Meetings with authority figures should go beautifully today. Keep a low profile at public functions. An extracurricular romance could strain important ties. Cement a recent domestic agreement.

CANCER(June 21–July 22): Unexpected developments could lead to a temporary crisis. You triumph by taking an original, innovative approach! Joint financial matters are in the spotlight. Tend to your family obligations.

LEO(July 23–Aug. 22): Do not believe everything you hear or read. Rely on your own research. You can make great strides towards financial security if prepared to work hard. Pay close attention to step–by step instructions.

VIRGO(Aug. 23–Sept. 22): The wheel of change goes round and round. You may go down one minute, up the next. Happily, you are more resourceful than you realize! Learn to live in the present. Let go of the past.

LIBRA(Sept. 23–Aug. 22): Handle routine work efficiently, revamping your schedule to eliminate the unnecessary. Those connected with the arts or entertainment world get a lucky break.

SCORPIO(Oct. 23–Nov. 21): Someone close to you may express doubt, worry or subtle antagonism. Talking things over in a mature fashion helps you to get to the bottom of your differences. Extra effort is necessary to keep a promise.

SAGITTARIUS(Nov. 22–Dec. 21): Your nerves could be frayed by impending work changes or financial concerns. Isolate yourself while trying to sort things out. Your friends are giving and supportive.

CAPRICORN(Dec. 22–Jan. 19): Your positive outlook on life helps you make constructive decisions. Steer clear of arguments; diplomacy and compromise can accomplish miracles. Wear your heart on your sleeve. Your romantic partner needs to know how much you care.

AQUARIUS(Jan. 20–Feb. 18): A good day for putting the finishing touches on a creative project. Your personal magnetism is at a peak. Be open–minded if others come to you with an unconventional plan.

PISCES(Feb. 19–March 20): The atmosphere at work lightens. Cooperation and mutual respect are a winning combination! Strengthen your commitment to family and close friends. Make key phone calls and mail important letters without further delay. Romance gradually deepens.

Calvin & Hobbes By Bill Watterson

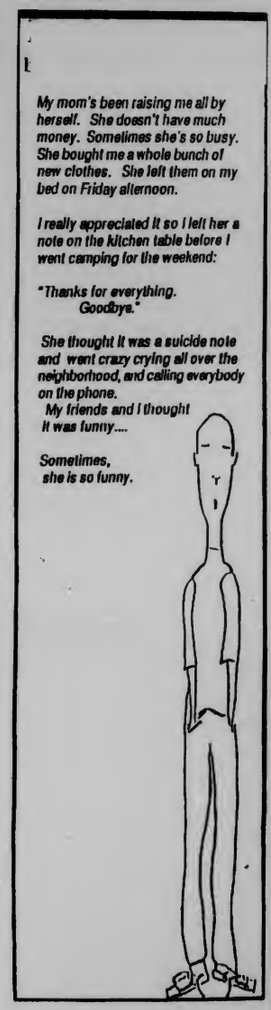
THE TEACHER REMINDED US THAT WE ONLY HAVE A WEEK LEFT TO FINISH OUR LEAF COLLECTIONS, SO WE OUGHT TO BE HALF DONE NOW.
YOU HAVEN'T EVEN STARTED
YEAH, BUT I WORK BETTER UNDER PRESSURE.
ACTUALLY, YOU WORK ONLY UNDER PRESSURE.
THAT WAY THE WORK TIME IS MORE MISERABLE, BUT THERE'S LESS OF IT

Lost Horizons By Douglas Cellineri

FIRST SAY "YOU'RE SORRY ON YOUR KNEES, SQUIRT!"
"I'M SORRY ON MY KNEES, SQUIRT!"
"HEH-HEH" GET IT? I REPEATED YOU. SEE, I MADE A FUNNY... HA HA
AAAAAA!
I UPSET YOU AGAIN, DIDN'T I?

The Amazing Spiderman By Stan Lee

Leold By Roger & Salem Salloom



My mom's been raising me all by herself. She doesn't have much money. Sometimes she's so busy. She bought me a whole bunch of new clothes. She left them on my bed on Friday afternoon.
I really appreciated it so I left her a note on the kitchen table before I went camping for the weekend:
"Thanks for everything. Goodbye."
She thought it was a suicide note and went crazy crying all over the neighborhood, and calling everybody on the phone.
My friends and I thought it was funny....
Sometimes, she is so funny.

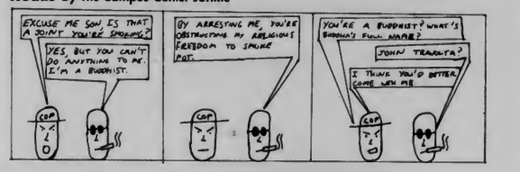
Close to Home By John McPherson

After repeated complaints from neighbors about Nipper's barking, the Vetmans finally relented and got a dog silencer.

Bruno By C. Baldwin

CAT, I'M GOING ON A TRIP TO MINNEAPOLIS
WELL, I SUPPOSE SO. I GUESS I'VE NEVER BEEN THERE BEFORE.
AND I'M NOT TAKING YOU WITH ME, CHRISTINE'S HOUSEMATE IS ALLERGIC TO CATS. I HOPE YOU DON'T MIND.
AND I'M DISREGARDING MY CONTRACT AS YOUR CAT FOR TWELVE OR SEVENTEEN OR EIGHTEEN OR DOZENS OF NEGLECT. I HOPE YOU DON'T MIND.

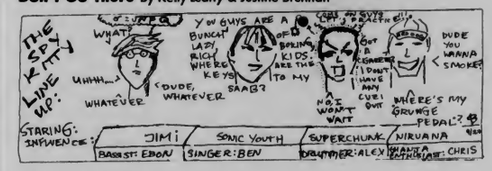
Heads By The Campus Center Junkie



EXCUSE ME SON IS THAT A JOINT YOU'RE SMOKING?
YES, BUT YOU CAN'T DO ANYTHING TO ME. I'M A BUDDHIST.
COP
BY ARRESTING ME, YOU'RE OBSTRUCTING MY RELIGIOUS FREEDOM TO SMOKE POT.
YOU'RE A BUDDHIST? WHAT'S BUDDHA'S FUNK NAME?
JOHN TRAVOLTA?
I THINK YOU'D BETTER COME WITH ME

Black Hole By Sean Wung

Don't Go There By Kelly Leahy & Justine Brennan



Dilbert By Scott Adams

YOU'VE GOT TO INCREASE THE BUDGET FOR TRAINING!
IF I TRAIN YOU, THEN WOULDN'T YOU JUST LEAVE THE COMPANY TO MAKE MORE MONEY WORKING FOR OUR COMPETITOR?
I GUESS THERE IS A DOWN-SIDE.
AND THE DOWNSIDE WOULD BE ?

Small Potatoes By Jon Art

Today's Staff

Night Editor ..... Matt Audette
Copy Editor ..... Mike MacLean
Photo Technician ..... Emily Reilly
Production Supervisor ..... Greg Iafrate
Production ..... Dmitry Abramson, Amy Paradysz

Dining Commons Menu

SORRY NO D.C. MENU TODAY.
TO FIND OUT WHAT'S COOKIN'
CALL THE LUNCHLADY
AT 5-2626

If you're interested in writing news, contact Chris Conner at the Collegian newsroom, 113 Campus Center Basement. 545-1762

Come write for the Collegian
We are always looking for interesting, new writers.
Come down to the Campus Center Basement and visit us.

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

TOP 10 By Brian Marchionni

Top 10 Red Sox Excuses for Losing Play–offs

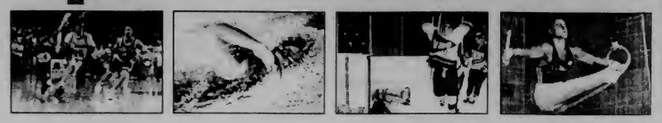
10. Stayed up too late Thursday night watching "ER."
9. Couldn't concentrate because of the noise coming from the Rathskeller (personal joke...sorry).
8. Hallucinogenic drugs placed in water made each player think that they saw the talking dolphin in the stands.
7. What do you expect? We're the Red Sox...
6. Shirtless, drunken fans with rainbow wigs more distracting than usual.
5. Had a few too many with Ted Kennedy before the game.
4. (Insert own jock itch joke here).
3. Rats the size of small cattle terrorize locker rooms.
2. Too distracted listening to the sound of the Patriots sucking.
1. Mo Vaughn & Jose Canseco (tie).

Quote of the Day

"There may be responsible persons, but there are no guilty ones."

–Albert Camus

SportsWeekend



Collegian Sports • Tuesday, October 10, 1995

Inside this issue:

• Rene Ingoglia broke UMass' all-time career rushing record in Saturday's loss to UNH (See story, page 13).

• The men's and women's cross country teams competed at the Paul Short Invitational this weekend (See story, page 12). See tomorrow's Collegian for a more in-depth look at the two meets.

• The men's water polo team went 2–1 in the Minuteman Invitational (See story, page 12). See tomorrow's Collegian for a more in-depth story.

• The volleyball team, and the men's and women's tennis teams, all saw action this weekend. See tomorrow's Collegian for stories on how those teams did.

Massachusetts loses to New Hampshire, falls to 2–3

By Mike Brown
Collegian Staff

Looks can be deceiving.

The Massachusetts football team was on the losing side of things Saturday, falling to the New Hampshire Wildcats in front of 11,191 fans.

Although the score shows a three-point margin of victory, the game was not as close. Two late Minutemen touchdowns were not enough to overtake the Wildcats as New Hampshire's record improves to 2-3 and UMass drops to 2-3.

New Hampshire 32
Massachusetts 29

UMass dug itself a hole early.

On the first drive of the game, they allowed New Hampshire to march 80 yards to the end zone. Wildcat tailback Jerry Azumah capped-off the dominantly passing drive with a one-yard touchdown run putting the visitors on the board first.

"We didn't come out and play the way we are capable of playing in the beginning," UMass cornerback Breon Parker said. "After that first drive, we pretty much buckled down."

The very next drive, UMass tailback Frank Alessio was unable to handle a pitch from sophomore quarterback Anthony Catterton, resulting in a fumble. New Hampshire linebacker Peter Christopher scooped up the loose ball and carried it into the endzone for the score.

With just over three minutes remaining in the first quarter, UMass kicker Eric Oke finally broke the ice drilling a 33-yard field goal to make the score 12-3. One more touchdown by each team in the first half made for an 18-9 lead for the Wildcats heading into the locker room.

Down by nine to start the second half, the Minutemen came out gunning, looking to get back in the game. UMass senior fullback Rene Ingoglia scored his second straight touchdown on a three-yard run to bring the Minutemen within three. But that was as close as UMass would get, as two more unanswered touchdowns had the Wildcats sitting pretty with a 32-18 lead, and only 14 minutes left in the game.

"You come out in the second half and put together a scoring drive, but then you fumble the ball on a punt return," UMass coach Mike Hodges said. "We didn't quit, we played hard right to the last whistle. We just need to eliminate mistakes."

The Minutemen did put together two more scoring drives, including an impressive 14-yard scamper from freshman Matt Jordan. The New Hampshire [illegible] finished the day with his [illegible]-yard performance and [illegible] touchdown.

"It felt special having a big day against New Hampshire considering I was [illegible] by the University," Jordan said. "It's good for them to see that I am performing for UMass."

The final Minutemen score was a touchdown pass from Catterton to freshman tight end Kerry Taylor. That was all UMass could muster as they brought the score within three, and time ran out.

"We fell in a hole faster than we did last week, and we tried to get out of it," Hodges said. "We got some things going but we handed them touchdowns because of turnovers."

"I thought we were going to come out and get it done early," Ingoglia said. "We stuck in there and I feel a lot of teams fall apart, but we kept coming."

Freshman Matt Jordan ran for over a 100 yards but the Minutemen still lost to New Hampshire, 32-29, Saturday at Warren McQuirk Stadium.

Three crucial turnovers lead to frustrating loss

By Andrew Bryce
Collegian Staff

Talking to one of the Massachusetts football team managers prior to last Saturday's game against New Hampshire, he said the practices leading up to it was the best he's seen since he's been there.

Fifth-year senior running back Rene Ingoglia said the same thing at the post-game press conference. Coach Mike Hodges described Tuesday's practice as the best he had seen since he's been at UMass, some 17 years. The Minutemen were seemingly pumped up after being shutout by Rhode Island the weekend before.

So what happened on Saturday afternoon from 1 p.m. to around 4 p.m., when UMass was down 18-3 after one quarter, and wound up losing 32-29, a final score that does not reveal the Minutemen scoring 13 points in garbage time?

"You talk about four plays — a long run and three turnovers," Hodges said prior to yesterday's practice. "Without any two of those, or maybe even one, we could've won the football game."

The Wildcats (2-3, 1-3 in Yankee Conference) put together a picture-perfect opening drive, complete with quarterback Chris Resnahan completing three of three for 72 yards, including a 33-yard toss to get them to the one-yard line. True freshman tailback Jerry Azumah scored on the next play and UNH had a touchdown in just four minutes.

On the next drive for UMass now 2-3, 1-3 in YanCon play, one of those turnovers Hodges was talking about occurred. Frank Alessio coughed up the ball on second down and eight which UNH's Peter Christopher recovered and returned for a 12-yard touchdown. Forty-four seconds after their first score, UNH had another and despite failing to convert on both extra point opportunities, were still up 12-0.

After reaching the ball to the Northeastern 10-yard line on five Ingoglia rushes before having two runs for losses each by Alessio and QB Anthony Catterton, the Minutemen settled for a 33-yard field goal by Eric Oke. One drive later, Azumah broke loose for an

Turn to FOOTBALL page 13

Minutewomen blank URI, 2-0

By Candice Flemming
Collegian Staff

WEST SPRINGFIELD — Heading into Saturday night's women's soccer game between Massachusetts and Rhode Island, most expected a blowout.

URI came into the game with a 2–6–2 record, while UMass came in as the No. 15 team in the nation.

But the Rams' scrappy play combined with wet playing conditions, provided for a tough 2–0 win for UMass in front of a season-high crowd of 975 at West Springfield High School. Defenders Erin Lynch and Erica Iverson notched to goals for UMass.

"I think the playing conditions had a lot to do with it (the 2-0 score) and they played tough defense. They didn't give up throughout the whole game," Lynch said.

The first few minutes of the game were a bit sloppy, as the Minutewomen's passes weren't connecting. But throughout the entire first half, they controlled play.

UMass had several chances to score in the first half. The best chance came 16 minutes into the game when Karin Johnson fed Rebecca Myers with a beautiful pass to her right, through some defenders, luring Myers right in stride, but Myers' shot hit the top of the crossbar.

While the Minutewomen had several chances to score, the Rams didn't as UMass' defense was tough, as it has been all season. With 6:22 left to go in the half, URI had a great chance to score when Tammie Curtis had a breakaway, but UMass freshman Amanda Thompson caught up with her and kicked the ball away to save a possible goal.

URI's Carla Evans made a nice defensive play of her own a few moments later. Minutewomen midfielder Amy Powell had an open look at the net, but Evans slide tackled to prevent a shot.

UMass finally got on the board at the 41:18 mark when Powell made a perfect pass to Lynch, who was coming forward. Powell's pass caught Lynch right in stride, and the junior All-American kept dribbling up field before letting off a shot from about 18 yards out, giving UMass a 1–0 lead.

The Minutewomen made it 2–0 at the 49:59 mark of the second

(2/3) WOMEN'S SOCCER page 16

JAMES STANLEY / COLLEGIAN

Amy Powell assisted on Erin Lynch's game-winning goal in the Minutewomen's 2-0 victory over Rhode Island Saturday night at West Springfield High School.

Men's soccer beats GW, Dukes

By Leigh Torbin
Collegian Staff

The Massachusetts men's soccer team defeated Duquesne and George Washington this weekend in their first Atlantic 10 Conference matches in nearly three weeks.

The Minutemen downed the Dukes 2–1 on Friday at Richard F. Garber Field, and crushed the Colonials 5–0 on Sunday to up their record to 9–3–2 on the season, 3–1–1 in the A-10.

With the victories, UMass moves into sole possession of second place in the A–10 behind only an undefeated Rhode Island side.

"These are important wins," UMass coach Sam Koch said. "You've got to be happy with them. This was a great team effort."

Duquesne (3–7–1, 2–2–1) made their inaugural visit to Garber Field for their first–ever match with the Minutemen on Friday, and fared surprisingly well. For a full 90 minutes, the Dukes were never quite out of striking distance.

In the 15th minute, Colin Johnson and Mike Butler worked the ball up the left side of the field, Butler served a ball over Duquesne defender Ryan Zuzek's head and right to freshman Jake Brodsky, who fired a shot home for his first collegiate goal at the 15:00 mark.

UMass extended its lead in the 36th minute as Lee Marlow came up with the ball after a scramble and sent a low shot past Duquesne goalkeeper Jarred Duffy. Marlow's increased offensive output has been an unexpected bonus for the Minutemen.

The A–10's new kids hung tough and tallied in the match's 75th minute. A serve by David Kincaid was lost in a crowd, but sent home by Zuzek through the crowd from 15 yards out.

Goalkeeper Eric Gruber made just four saves in the match, but none were bigger than the one he made on the

Turn to MEN'S SOCCER page 13

Field hockey plays well in two losses

By Matt Voutour
Collegian Staff

PHILADELPHIA — Despite playing some of the best field hockey it has all season, No. 18 Massachusetts dropped two games on the road this weekend, falling 3–2 to No. 4 James Madison and 2–1 to No. 15 Syracuse.

The Dukes came into the game hoping to avenge UMass' 1–0 upset over them a year ago, while the Minutewomen came in hoping to repeat history and jump back into the national scene. While the Minutewomen played well, the bounces went more the way of JMU, who pulled out the victory.

The two teams were even from start to finish, as they alternated offensive spurts early. The Dukes got on the board first, when Kelly McDonald drove a rebound past a diving Stacy Walker to give JMU a 1–0 lead.

The Minutewomen penalty corner produced the game-tying goal with 7:33 to play in the half, when junior Kyle Rothenberger drilled the shot past goalkeeper Tara Perilla to knot the game at one, where it would stay until halftime.

The Minutewomen grabbed their first lead of the game early in the second half on one of the most unusual game of the season.

Junior defender Melanie Gore was hitting a routine drive into the offensive end. Instead of staying on course, the ball caromed off a Duke defender's stick high in the air arching over Perilla's head into the net to give UMass a 2–1 lead.

The Dukes would tie it 10 minutes later when Carole Hiatt beat Walker off a penalty corner with 25:59 left in the game.

James Madison finished off UMass' upset hopes with 10:33 remaining as Katherine Clark knocked home a rebound to give the Dukes a 3–2 advantage.

Walker was brilliant in net for Massachusetts making a career–high 21 saves including several that were at close range.

Donnelly was proud of her team's performance.

"It was a very even game, a very hard fought game," she said. "I'm really having a hard time being terribly upset. We played so well. We

(2/3) FIELD HOCKEY page 16

The Massachusetts

DAILY COLLEGIAN

Volume CV Issue 25 • New England's Largest College Daily • Founded in 1890 • Daily Since 1967 • Wednesday, October 11, 1995

UMass takes aim at Hawks

Enn Lynch and the 13th ranked UMass women's soccer team take on 10th ranked Hartford in a rematch of last years NCAA round of 16. (See Sports, Page 16.)

Striking fear in our hearts?

Students respond to the growing threat of domestic terrorism. See Campus Perspectives page 3.

Look into my eyes

The Augusta Savage Gallery is celebrating their 25th Anniversary this year. Check out what they have in store for the semester (See Arts & Living, page 6)

Extended Forecast

The comfortable autumn weather will continue for the rest of the week. It will get cooler at night, but during the day the temperature should remain in the mid-60's.

Today	Thursday	Friday
HIGH: 65 LOW: 60	HIGH: 70 LOW: 65	HIGH: 65 LOW: 60

DAYMON SMITH / COLLEGIAN

I'd rather be fishing. . .

Tom Russoniello, a Market Source employee who is working on the Sports Illustrated Campus Fest, puts on the final details for the game events today.

UM alumnus accused of leading corrupt campaign against center

By Glen Johnson
Associated Press

BOSTON — A judge has ordered the state Department of Mental Retardation to reimburse a controversial child treatment center and its associates nearly $1.1 million for a "war" of harassment led by the department's commissioner.

The judge accused Commissioner Philip Campbell and his top assistant, Mary Cerreto, of "pervasive public corruption" in their campaign to close the Judge Rotenberg Educational Center Inc.

The school, which is based in Providence, R.I., and has five group homes in southeastern Massachusetts, uses "aversive therapies" such as electric shocks to help autistic children control violent outbursts.

Bristol County Judge Elizabeth O'Neill LaStaiti, who presided over a nearly two-week trial this summer between the DMR and the Judge Rotenberg center, asked the district attorney to launch a perjury investigation against Campbell and Cerreto.

LaStaiti also sent copies of her findings to the Massachusetts Board of Bar Overseers, which supervises lawyers.

She said that the department's general counsel and some of the assistant attorneys general who represented the mental retardation department engaged in a "purposeful attempt to cause the plaintiffs to incur unnecessary legal expenses in an effort to delay and frustrate this proceeding."

In addition, LaStaiti ordered that the DMR pass over sight of the Judge Rotenberg center to an independent receiver.

The center is nationally known for treating the severely retarded with aversives. It once had 67 patients, but that number has fallen to 45. Many have been rejected by or expelled from other treatment centers.

"The findings of this court, which include findings that high-ranking government officials have been deliberately untruthful on the witness stand, have expended public funds in order to pursue baseless allegations, have authorized unfounded ethical attacks and launched investigations on court personnel, constitutes pervasive public corruption," LaStaiti said in her scathing 126-page ruling, signed Friday.

She said Campbell was motivated by a philosophical opposition to aversive therapy and a fear of national media exposure about the center.

Campbell, a graduate of the University of Massachusetts at Amherst, served as executive director of the Massachusetts Association for Retarded Citizens before being appointed commissioner in 1991.

Cerreto said today she would withhold comment about the ruling until she had read it, but she added: "I'm certainly disappointed in it and I think I'll stand behind our strong conviction that our goal is to manage IRC the way we do all other of the 203 agencies we oversee."

That would include having the center use "processes and procedures the rest of the world uses," Cerreto said. Campbell did not immediately return a message left at his office.

Roderick MacLeish Jr., the lawyer who represented the Judge Rotenberg center, called on Attorney General Scott Harshbarger to appoint an independent counsel to review his staff's actions.

Resource center offers free tutoring

By Daniel Sullivan
Collegian Correspondent

In a few days, thousands of students will stay up all night worrying about their first college exam. However, students who visit the Learning Resources Center (LRC) will be ready to face any question with the help of a highly skilled free tutor.

Located on the 10th floor of the W.E.B. Du Bois Library at the University of Massachusetts, the LRC is in its second year of helping students. Headed by Dr. Humberto Segura, the LRC provides free tutoring, study skill workshops, and computer use. The center is open from 12 p.m. – 9 p.m. Mondays until Thursday and 1 p.m.–4 p.m. on Fridays, with a first come first serve basis.

"The LRC mission is to improve retention and graduation rates at UMass by providing the learning support programs and self-development activities that give students the skills necessary for college success," said Dr. Segura.

The LRC employs 38 tutors qualified to tutor the sciences, social humanities, and foreign languages. Undergraduate students proficient in a subject show ways to understand the material.

"I like helping people understand their subjects and I want them to do well," said Amy Rountree, a senior Accounting major in her first semester of tutoring.

"The tutors save me a lot if time in my studying," said Scott Egan, a

Turn to RESOURCE page 2

UMass holds National Coming Out Day events

Colorado amendment goes to High Court

By Laurie Assea
Associated Press

WASHINGTON— Colorado's solicitor general ran into skeptical questions from several Supreme Court justices Tuesday when he argued the state's citizens have the right to prohibit laws that protect homosexuals from discrimination.

"I would like to know whether in all of U.S. history there has ever been anything like this," Justice Ruth Bader Ginsburg told the state's lawyer, Timothy M. Tymkovich, who asked the high court to reinstate the ban.

Tymkovich did not provide a specific example. But he argued that voters have the right to bar all state and local laws giving homosexuals "special protection" from bias in housing, employment and public accommodations.

The case is the most important involving homosexual rights to come before the court in nearly 10 years.

In a 1992 referendum, 53.4 percent of Colorado voters approved the amendment to the state's constitution. But the Colorado Supreme Court invalidated the amendment before it could take effect, saying it denied homosexuals an equal voice in government.

Jean E. Dubofsky, lawyer for the cities and individuals who challenged the amendment, said it denies homosexuals a political right

Turn to AMENDMENT page 2

By Wendy Darling
Collegian Staff

At the University of Massachusetts today, National Coming Out Day will be celebrated by a variety of events, large and small, all in an effort to increase gay, lesbian, and bisexual visibility.

Held in commemoration of the 1987 National March for Lesbian and Gay Rights in Washington, D.C., National Coming Out Day is seen by many GLB people as a day to "come out" to family, friends, neighbors, and even enemies.

National Coming Out Day is about "trying to send the message out that [being open about your sexual orientation] is totally worth it and you can do it," according to an anonymous student message posted on a bulletin board on the 2-in-20 Floor. The 2-in-20 Floor is a special interest housing program for GLBT students and their allies.

At UMass today, three separate events are scheduled to deliver a similar message.

First, beginning at noon, there will be a National Coming Out Day rally on the Student Union steps. The rally is sponsored by the Lesbian Bisexual Gay Alliance, a UMass registered student organization.

Some students have already registered to speak, while others plan on taking advantage of an "open mike," according to LBGA Political Chair Ashavan Doyon.

In the past, GLB students have used the annual rally to speak about their experiences "coming out" and about others' GLB issues.

A second event commences at 4 p.m. outside the Stonewall Center in Crampton House, Southwest, with the unveiling of a new outdoor mural.

According to the acting director of the Stonewall Center, Sarah Pease, the new mural was created to increase the center's visibility.

The results of a 1994 poll conducted by the UMass Student Affairs Research and Information Service revealed that only 35 percent of UMass students have any idea where the Stonewall Center in located. Once the mural is installed, said Pease, this percentage may increase.

The Stonewall Center was created in 1985 as the Program for Gay, Lesbian, and Bisexual Concerns as a division of University Student Affairs. Since its inception, the center has served as GLB resource center, providing information, cultural programming, and crisis intervention services.

Chancellor David K. Scott is scheduled to make a speech at the ceremony, which will be followed by an Open House.

Dialogue on homophobia in sports

In the climatic event of the day, the Chancellor's Office will present "Fair Play," a dialog between tennis superstar Martina Navratilova and Dave Pallone, a retired major league baseball umpire who was forced to resign his position when he came out as gay.

Modeled on an event last year that featured Nobel Peace Prize winner Elie Wiesel and poet Maya Angelou, the event is designed to highlight issues of gender and sexual orientation in sports.

The speakers will be introduced by Patricia Griffin, a UMass associate professor of education who has written and conducted workshops on homophobia in sports.

"Fair Play" is scheduled to begin at 8 p.m. in the Fine Arts Center Concert Hall. Tickets can be purchased at the Fine Arts Center Box Office or the Mullins Center Box Office. Student tickets are $5, non-students tickets either $15 or $20, depending on the location.

DAYMON SMITH / COLLEGIAN

A "Mask-eteer". . .

A student uses radical theatre to demonstrate his concerns about the environment and other issues in front of the Student Union.

Mass School of Law sues Bar Association

By Allison Connolly
Collegian Staff

The Massachusetts School of Law (MSL) has filed a law-suit against the American Bar Association (ABA) in Massachusetts courts for allegedly trying to injure and destroy the MSL.

The complaint charges the defendants with committing "fraudulent and deceptive acts against the School, using secret rules against it, taking arbitrary actions to injure it, destroying documents MSL otherwise could have used to pursue its rights, and attempting to destroy the School," a MSL press release said.

The complaint also names MSL competitor New England School of Law as a participant in ABA efforts to undermine the MSL.

The Dean of New England School of Law, Jonathan O'Brien, said his school had no part in the alleged conspiracy.

"As I've told the Globe and the National Journal of Law, any suggestion that the New England School of Law was involved in any way in hurting the Massachusetts School of Law is pure nonsense," O'Brien said.

O'Brien could not comment further because the case is still in litigation.

A decree has been filed by the Justice Department to look further into the alleged mishandlings of the accreditation process by the ABA.

The Justice Department first started investigating the ABA in Jan. 1994 and followed with a lawsuit against them in June 1995. Usually the suit is brought and settled on the same day, however in this case the Judge decided that not enough was done to cure the anti–competitive practices and wants further hearings to be held, MSL spokesman Kurt Olson said.

According to the MSL, the consent judgement filed by the government is a step forward. But the lines drawn appear to be too vague.

Now the MSL is worried the decree is unclear, and its inherent weaknesses may be undermined by the very people who violate it. The MSL feels the ABA can "exploit the weaknesses to continue their anti–competitive practices." They

Turn to SUIT page 3

Campus Police Log

Disturbance

Oct. 6

There was a fight near Metawampee Garden on Campus Center Way. Ayyub N. Abdul-Alim, 17, of Hollister Apts, E. Hadley Rd., Amherst, was arrested for disorderly conduct and carrying a dangerous weapon.

Oct. 9

There was a report of a fight on the fourth floor of John Quincy Adams Residence Hall.

Liquor law violations

Oct. 6

Russell J. Bilodeau, Jr., 19, of 71 Powell St., Andover, was arrested for transporting alcohol and possessing alcohol in an open container in a vehicle, as well as possession of a number plate which was not lit up.

Brendan A. Ahern, 18, of 409 Acton Rd., Chelmsford, was arrested for possession of alcohol.

Matthew J. Crowley, 19, of 276 Albion St., Wakefield, was arrested for possession of alcohol.

Accident

Oct. 6

Three vehicles rear-ended each other when the first vehicle stopped in heavy traffic on University Drive.

A vehicle, stopping for a pedestrian at the Southwest Circle, was struck from the rear by a second vehicle. The operator was cited for following too closely.

An individual reported that his vehicle, which was parked at the Southwest Circle, was struck by a second vehicle, which left the scene.

Oct. 7

A vehicle, operated by Shefali Malhotra of Mt. Holyoke College, left the travel lane and proceeded over the curb, striking an electric utility pole. There was significant damage to the vehicle and the pole. The operator was cited for "driving to endanger."

Oct. 9

A vehicle, operated by Jeremy Wardwell, of 27 Lynwood Circle, Attleboro, Mass., was going north on Commonwealth Ave. when he struck a utility pole. Wardwell was taken to Cooley Dickinson Hospital.

Alarm

Oct. 7

Burnt food activated an alarm in Washington Residence Hall.

Larceny

Oct. 6

An individual reported his wallet was lost or stolen as he traveled between several campus buildings.

A tire and rim were stolen from a vehicle in Parking Lot 11.

An individual reported the front grill was stolen from his vehicle in Parking Lot 11.

There was an emblem stolen from a vehicle in Parking Lot 11.

Oct. 7

An individual reported his pager was stolen from Kennedy Residence Hall.

Oct. 8

An individual reported his wallet and keys were stolen in Amherst.

Oct. 9

Two individuals attempted to steal a sign near the campus pond.

Suspicious person/activity

Oct. 7

Trevon Q. Brooks, 23, of 124 Leary Dr., Holyoke, was arrested for trespassing.

Oct. 9

There was a report of a BB gun being fired from Johnson Residence Hall.

Medical emergency

Oct. 7

An individual with hand and head injuries was taken to Cooley Dickinson Hospital.

Oct. 10

An individual was transported to University Health Services and then returned to her residence.

Vandalism

Oct. 7

There was a window broken at Worcester Dining Hall.

An individual reported damage to his vehicle in Parking Lot 44.

A dollar/change machine was found open at the Franklin Munchy Store.

Drug law offenses

Oct. 7

Drew Carl Bodden, 20, of 8 Holland Dr., Chalfont, Penn., was arrested for possession of a Class D substance.

Annoying behavior

Oct. 8

An individual reported that a male exposed himself to him in the men's bathroom in the Campus Center.

Individuals throwing apples from Webster Residence Hall nearly struck someone.

There was homophobic graffiti written in a Kennedy Residence Hall corridor.

Traffic stop

Oct. 9

Brandon O. Young, 21, of 10 Hitching Post Rd., Chelmsford, was arrested for operating under the influence of alcohol, as well as a lights violation.

Brian J. Turgeon, 24, of 31 Keddy Blvd., Chicopee, was arrested for operating a motor vehicle with a suspended license.

Burglary/breaking & entering

Oct. 9

An individual returned to find his room in Prince Residence Hall open and several compact discs stolen.

■ resource

continued from page 1

senior Plant and Soil Science major.

Also at the LRC, the Supplemental Instruction (SI) program helps students in traditionally difficult subjects in small group sessions. The SI program includes help in Accounting 221, Biology 100, Psychology 240, and Calculus 227 & 228. At these voluntary sessions, leaders who have previously taken the course guide students through the material.

"The SI program cut the time that I spent on homework in half because it made everything much clearer," said Dave Simmons, a senior Environmental Science major.

The LRC offers a one credit pass/fail Video Supplemental Instruction class for students in Psychology 240 and Calculus 227. During the meetings, leaders play a video recording of the lecture, pausing to explain confusing subject areas.

The LRC houses 10 Macintosh, 15 PC's, and 10 VCRs for personal use. Students work in their own pace to learn study skills, master the sciences, and perfect foreign languages. Word processing software allows students to type papers on LRC computers. The center is currently going through a remolding phase and expects that all computers will be fully operational in a few weeks.

The LRC helped approximately 1,700 students in its first year of existence and expects numbers to grow as it continues to expand.

■ amendment

continued from page 1

enjoyed by everyone else - the chance to seek protection from discrimination.

Tymkovich said Colorado voters approved the amendment in response to the success homosexuals had in winning enactment of anti-bias ordinances in Denver, Boulder and Aspen.

But Justice David H. Souter was skeptical.

"Why is discrimination against one group dealt with under state law differently than discrimination against other groups?" he asked.

Justice John Paul Stevens added, "What is the rational basis for the people outside of Aspen telling the people in Aspen they cannot have this nondiscrimination provision?"

Justice Antonin Scalia appeared more sympathetic to Tymkovich's argument that ordinances protecting gays against bias constitute special - not equal - protection.

"They are laws that provide special protection to that particular category of person," Scalia said. Other forms of discrimination are not banned, he said, adding that employers can refuse to hire someone "because you don't like the way they comb their hair."

Scalia asked Dubofsky why, if states can outlaw homosexual conduct, Colorado cannot bar legal protections for homosexuals. Chief Justice William H. Rehnquist, participating in his first argument since undergoing back surgery, asked her whether states could respond to political activism by Mormons by passing a constitutional amendment that says polygamy will always be illegal. Such an amendment would be permitted, Dubofsky said, because it would not restrict Mormons' participation in the political process in the same way the Colorado amendment affects homosexuals. The case does not address the morality or legality of homosexuality or gay conduct. But the justices' ruling, expected by July, could indicate their views on the continuing validity of the high court's 1986 ruling that let states outlaw consensual homosexual conduct.

SHOOT FOR COLLEGIAN PHOTO

The Collegian Photo Department currently has an opening for a paid associate position. Interested applicants should contact Daymion Smith in the Collegian Newsroom, 113 Campus Center or call him at 545-3500.

The Collegian is an equal opportunity employer

Save 22 cold breakfasts on a Macintosh.

Power Macintosh® 6100 DOS Compatible w/CD
16MB RAM/500MB hard drive, Power PC 601 processor, CD-ROM drive, 15" color monitor, keyboard and mouse.

Macintosh Performa® 636 w/CD
8 MB RAM/500 MB hard drive, CD-ROM drive, 15" color monitor, keyboard, mouse and all the software you're likely to need.

Personal LaserWriter® 300
Toner cartridge and cables included.

It's as easy as pizza pie. Just visit your authorized Apple® reseller today, and you can get a great deal on Macintosh® computers. Because they're on sale. Which means now you can get everything—all the hardware, software and accessories—you need to improve your GPA, cruise the Internet, maybe even have some fun. And still have enough dough left over to score tonight's hot dinner, tonight's very late snack and tomorrow's very cold pie. No matter how you slice it, it's the cheapest way yet to get a taste of Macintosh power. The power to be your best.® Apple

Stop By The University Store Computer Department For More Information

UNIVERSITY STORE ☆ Campus Center 545-2619 Mon - Fri 9-5 Sat 11 - 3

Offers expire October 13, 1995. © 1995 Apple Computer, Inc. All rights reserved. Apple, the Apple logo, Macintosh and "The power to be your best" are registered trademarks of Apple Computer, Inc. CardShop Plus is a registered trademark of Mindscape. All Macintosh computers are designed to be accessible to individuals with disability. To learn more (U.S. only), call 800-600-7808 or TTY 800-755-0601.

Sales of computer hardware are only available to University Faculty, Staff and Students

Campus Perspectives

Compiled by Allison Connolly • Photos by Daymion Smith

In the wake of domestic terrorism in the United States, are you becoming more concerned?

"Personally, after last night's news, I don't want to watch it anymore. It's not hitting home. Overseas, it happens a lot more frequently so they are more aware. People tend to see it on the news and forget about it."

MATT BARMASH
Education, sophomore
Sharon

"I'm concerned because my dad drives Amtrak trains. One incident seems minor in comparison to what happens in the Middle East and Europe. It always seems to be that way."

AMY MEEHAN
German, junior
Leominster

"It's an example of how people's problems need to be taken care of. They should be punished for what they did but its not a basic problem. You have to deal with it when it happens but you have to try and avoid it."

MORRIS WEISZ
Bethesda, Md.

"It was totally a professional hit. I'm awestruck. Before I get on a domestic flight or bus ride, I'll think again."

JON HILTZ
Wildlife Conservation, senior
Essex

"It's scary to know it's happening. Like the Oklahoma bombing, they're not international terrorists anymore. They're people from here who are growing up with the same American system and they're going around and killing other people"

AVI KHANNA
Business, freshman
Framingham

"I would definitely think about it the next time I buy any ticket. When we travel so freely, we take it for granted how it doesn't really affect us. When you travel to visit relatives cross-country, it's not on your mind."

SHIRA FINK
STPEC/sophomore
Warwick, R.I.

■ suit

continued from page 1

note that these accreditation insiders are the ones being given the jobs of recommending changes in anticompetitive practices and therefore undermine the decree itself.

In response, MSL has filed a motion in the Federal District Court in Washington, D.C. requesting to be permitted to appear as either an amicus curiae ("friend of the court") or as intervenor in the government's lawsuit against the ABA. The hearing between the ABA and the Justice Department will be held in November.

"We feel the anticompetitive practices haven't been cured. There's still potential for wrong doing here," Olson said.

The government has addressed the MSL's complaint concerning law professor's salaries, restricting the ABA from collecting salary information. There is also a provision for an antitrust compliance officer to supervise the ABA's compliance with specified terms of the decree, Olson said. But the point of entitlements has not satisfactorily been met according to MSL standards.

The terms of the decree do not include those dealing with what the MSL terms the ABA's most anticompetitive practices. The MSL sights errors in student/faculty ratios, expensive physical facilities, compensated sabbaticals, unjustifiably low limits on teaching hours and the ban on for-credit bar review courses.

Olson said he hopes these issues will be addressed and corrected at the November hearing.

The MSL's lawsuit seeks treble damages for willful misconduct under Chapter 93A of Massachusetts' General Laws. Single damages are estimated at $30 million while treble damages are at $90 million for "revenues lost in the past, present and foreseeable future because of the defendants actions," the MSL said.

Seminar gives car buying tips

Toyota presents "How to Buy Your New Vehicle" to campus

By Matthew Wurtzel
Collegian Staff

If you are intimidated by car sales people, then you should consider going to Toyota's "How to Buy Your New Vehicle" seminar today in the Campus Center Auditorium at 4:30 p.m.

"Buying a new car is the second most important decision in your life," said Elisabeth Fleming, merchandising administrator at Toyota Motor Sales.

"Buying a new car is the second most important decision in your life."

The program is designed to help consumers understand what is going on behind the scenes, she said.

"Anyone interested in a new car should consider going," Fleming said.

There will be no sales represenatives present at the hour long seminar. The three speakers are from manufacturing.

"Most manufactures don't do this, they usually let sales representatives do it," said Fleming, a 1980 alumna of the University of Massachusetts School of Management.

She chose UMass for the program because she is familiar with the campus.

The three spokespeople will lecture about all the steps of buying a car including whether leasing is more appropriate, obtaining credit, and insuring a car.

"The information can't be found in books or newspapers, but only through trial and error," said Fleming. "We are trying to take the error out."

The goal of the program is to educate consumers and provide them with the information they need to ask salespeople, Fleming said. An educated consumer is a good consumer, she said.

The event will be uncommercial, said Fleming. There will be no banners, but the speakers will use Toyota as an example because they are familiar with the products.

Door prizes will be given out to the first 400 people. The auditorium seats 400, but Fleming said they will encourage people to stay and stand if necessary.

The seminar is held in conjunction with the Sports Illustrated Campus Fest today and tomorrow.

The Club
Tennis & Fitness Center
659 Amherst Road/Route 116
Sunderland, MA 01375
413/549-3638

Renovated & Remodeled

We Have . . . • 3 New Tredmills (7 total)
. . . w Stairmasters (4 . . .

. . . Spec . . .
$120 Membership (until . . .
$225 Academic Year (Until . . . , 1996)

the BLUEWALL presents
DISCO
Every Thursday
Boogie Down All Night Long
●
FREE ADMISSION
9:30 pm - 1:00 am
The 70's Meet the 80's
With D.J.s Billy Arnold and Robert Dwelley
Lighting and Sound By: Audio Pro Media

Hubert D. Lincoln Campus Center 25th Anniversary

"Because You Asked For It"

Collegian Graphics

We're up all night putting together New England's Largest College Daily Newspaper

OUR DAY IS ENDING WHEN YOURS IS JUST BEGINING

The Magic Lantern
THE BEST IN ADULT ENTERTAINMENT

Giveaways & Audience Participation

Amateur Night
Fall Season
Every Wednesday Night 8 pm
$500 Cash First Place
Plus Runner-up Prizes
Cash Door Prize $200.
Free Admission With Ad.
Interested Contestants Call 283-9275

Only 30 Minutes from the UMass Campus: Rte. 9 east, to Rte. 181 south, to Rte. 20 west for 1.5 miles
Open 6 days - Closed Sundays 12 pm to 1 am Boston Rd. Rte. 20 Palmer, MA (413) 283-9275

DAILY COLLEGIAN

113 Campus Center • University of Massachusetts Amherst, MA 01003 • (413) 545-3500 • Fax (413) 545-1592

Matt Vautour Editor-in-Chief Juan José Chacón Quiros de Quetzcoatl Managing Editor
Earl T. Martin Business Manager James P. Ganley Production Manager Ethan Bloomfield Advertising Manager
Natasha Kahn Advertising Production Manager Wendy Darling Senior Diversity Editor

Tara MK Connelly Arts & Living Editor Candice Flemming Sports Editor
Christopher Byrd Black Affairs Editor Ron Alpert Staff Artist
Matt Wurtzel Business Editor Laura Schmidt, Aimee Schwartz Women's Issues Editors
Syed Mohammed Ali Raza Developing Nations Editor Marni E. Helfner Editorial Production Manager
Geri Sahn Editorial/Opinion Editor Adam Chace Systems Manager
Wendy Darling Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Issues Editor A.J. Stewart Finance Manager
Jacob W. Michaels Jewish Affairs Editor Ryan Courtemanche Distribution Manager
Hernan Rozemberg Multicultural Affairs Editor Maureen Majerowski Assistant Operations Manager
Chris Taylor Conner News Editor Marty Pappas Classified Advertising
Daymon Smith Photography Editor Thomas F. Sweeney, Jr. Graphics Advisor/Instructor

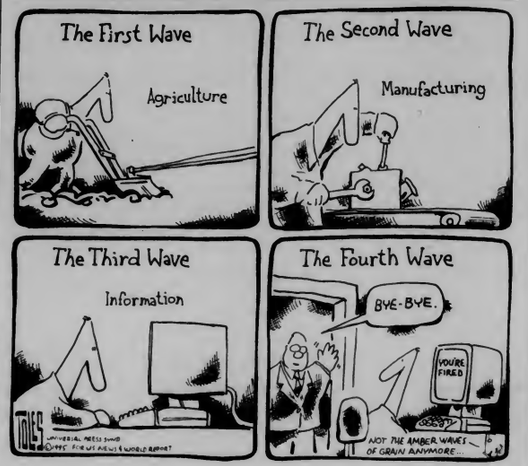
The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published Mondays through Friday during the University of Massachusetts calendar semester. The Collegian is financially independent from the University of Massachusetts, operating solely on revenues generated by advertising sales. The paper was founded in 1890 as Aggie Life, became the College Signal in 1901, the Weekly Collegian in 1914 and then the Tri-Weekly Collegian in 1936. The Collegian has been published daily since 1967, and has been a broadsheet publication since January 1994. For advertising rates and information, call (413) 545-3500 weekdays between 8:30 a.m. and 3:30 p.m.

Opinion/Editorial



Coming out full fledged

In case you didn't know...
I'm queer.

Yup, you read that right. I'm a fag, gay, queer, homosexual, or what ever name you want to use. Personally, I label my self a bisexual woman.

Today is National Coming Out Day. This is a day set aside each year for Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual and Transgendered folk to let their family, friends, kids, parents, peers, colleagues or the whole world, know they're queer.

I put off writing this until the very last minute, because the fear I felt was so enormous. The very act of putting the words, "I'm queer," on paper terrified me more than I can describe.

But there's a relief there. A relief that I finally got it off my chest. That I don't have to hide who I am any more and can be proud to tell people I'm bisexual. I can tell people the woman they saw me holding hands with is my girlfriend and not have to think up some silly story.

I don't have to hide it anymore. Not from my friends or myself. Coming out is a process that occurs over the span of a lifetime. Because we live in a society that shuns sexual orientations other than heterosexuality, the need to keep quiet about queerness is very strong. Coming out today is also a way of truly accepting who I am and what I believe in.

I can be denied jobs, housing, financial and educational opportunities purely because of who I love and have relationships with. That's a scary feeling. People can hate me before they know me — purely because of a label.

For some people who come out today, this will be a traumatic experience. They may lose a friend, a professor may treat them differently, their family may disown them. But most will find that the important people in their lives, the ones who really matter and care about them the most, will support them.

For some people who come out today, this will be a traumatic experience. They may lose a friend, a professor may treat them differently, their family may disown them. But most will find that the important people in their lives, the ones who really matter and care about them the most, will support them.

Marni E. Helfner

For myself, this is the beginning of accepting who I am and who I want to love. Being a bisexual means I can find caring and loving relationships with people of either gender. For those of you with dirty minds, that does not mean I'm into menage a trois. Of course most bisexuals are monogamous and studies show they generally prefer one gender more than the other, but there are exceptions to every rule. Personally, I believe in long, monogamous relationships. I don't bounce from person to person.

The other important thing to remember about gay people is that our lives are not just about sex or being gay. We are well rounded people who simply happen to find happiness in caring relationships with people who are the same gender as us. I don't major in being gay. As a matter of fact, I'm not even in a relationship at this point and I'm not particularly looking for one. I wouldn't mind a date now and then, but who wouldn't?

Melissa Etheridge said, "[Coming out] was like finally registering your car. And when it's not registered, you're always worried that every cop, every policeman is going to bust you. You've got that weight on your shoulders, and you're always looking behind you." It's kinda true. I really feel that a tremendous weight has been lifted off my shoulders.

I know who I am, and I'm proud of it. Each day I grow a little stronger and more confident of who I am — that's what college is all about.

Marni E. Helfner is a Collegian columnist.

Re–establishing a Jewish identity

As I sit at the terminal typing this editorial, I can feel the hunger pains in my stomach telling me I need to eat something.

I'm spending the day fasting because of a religious holiday, Yom Kippur. It's traditional for Jews to fast on the holiday so we can think about our sins and how to atone for them.

Yet, at the same time, I'm not very religious. I don't really believe in sin or atonement or really anything having to do with this holiday. So, why do I fast?

Jacob W. Michaels

As one friend said to me, "It's what Jews do." That was it, the whole explanation. Just, "It's what Jews do."

As a simple answer, it works pretty well. I fast because that's what thousands of Jews have done before me, and what thousands will do after me.

But even that doesn't really explain it. There are many more emotions involved and reasons why I, and many other not-so-religious Jews, choose to starve themselves for a single day.

Not being very religious, I consider myself a "cultural Jew." Cultural Jews are people who consider themselves Jewish and identify with other Jews, but aren't interested in going to services, or following various rules laid out in the Torah and Talmud.

But some people claim following those rules are what makes a person Jewish, and by not following them, I'm not really Jewish.

It isn't pleasant having someone tell you you're not what you say you are.

So fasting is a way for me to feel Jewish. It's the same reason why I don't eat leavened bread during Passover.

Even though I might ignore the normal dietary restriction by eating pork, shellfish, and meat and milk together, when there are special additional restrictions placed I try to follow them.

On the outside it helps show other Jews that I do consider my religion important.

More importantly, fasting renews my commitment to my religion. By being willing to sacrifice a day of food, and be uncomfortable and hungry for 24 hours, I remind myself that being Jewish is more important than being comfortable for a day. It helps me re–establish my Jewish identity with all the other Jews around the world who are doing the exact same thing.

They all feel the same gnawing hunger in their stomachs, and at the end of the day they all celebrate together as they break their fast in a celebratory meal.

These are people who, although I may never have met them, already know something about me. Across the world Jews greet each other in the same way, and we have similar concerns about topics such as Israel, inter–faith marriage, and more.

Being in a mostly non–Jewish community it is an important link. It reminds me of what is good about Judaism when often times the focus, especially on this campus, is with problems.

So that is why my stomach spent all of Wednesday empty and growling at me. It sacrificed so I could get in touch with an important part of my identity, that sometimes seems to be buried by the other concerns of my life.

Jacob W. Michaels is a Collegian columnist.

Mourning Columbus Day

The arrival of Christopher Columbus in the Americas marked a significant change in the relationship between Europe and the rest of the world. For the European elite it meant power, wealth and economic prosperity, while for indigenous peoples in Asia, Africa and the Americas it meant colonialism, poverty and economic dependence.

Sam McAfee

The Third World today is very much a product of the colonial era, as is the United States itself. The horrible conditions in which much of the world's population live, as well as the relatively high standards of living in industrialized nations reflect a relationship of power and submission between the colonizers and the colonized that was established all over the world, and in many ways is still in effect.

For the most part, Third World nations, and parts of the United States and Europe, continue to play a service role, established by European colonialism, as providers of raw materials and cheap labor for Euro–American industry.

The trend for European colonies often started with the displacement of native people, either by disease, slaughter or forced removal, who previously had depended on the land for the production of food.

The land was instead used for agricultural and mineral exports to the "mother country." The displaced people would either stay and work the land for the colonizer under brutally exploitative conditions, or migrate to the cities to work, among the ranks of landless laborers, under equally unpleasant circumstances.

Some of the native population were able to climb the colonial hierarchy and obtain elite positions within the system working for the colonizer.

After the independence movements of the colonies, it was in the hands of these elite classes that control was usually left. The country would remain in its service role position, exporting raw materials to Europe and the United States.

After World War II, the Development Era began, further entrenching the poverty and dependence of the Third World. Experts from the U.S. and Europe prescribed rapid industrialization and export–based production as a solution to Third World "underdevelopment."

This strategy was attractive to the elite classes of these nations, since they controlled much of the agriculture and industry, and would benefit from massive export policies. Food would be imported from the First World, while timber, minerals and agricultural products, like coffee and rubber, would be produced for export. Little consideration was given to the distribution of wealth in these former colonies.

Today's hunger problem is more a result of inadequate distribution rather than a lack of food. The overwhelming majority of arable land is in the hands of large farm owners and multinational corporations who use it to increase their profits. While sufficient food is produced, it is exported in an attempt to relieve the country's debt.

The gap between rich and poor is widening, within and between nations, perpetuated by international development policies which seek to increase output in Third World economies, but not redistribute assets.

Until redistribution of wealth is given serious consideration, there is likely to be little improvement in the living conditions of the majority of the world's population. It is for these reasons that Columbus Day and the colonialism that followed his "discovery," must be carefully examined.

Sam McAfee is a UMass student.

Being part of the socially accepted

Group associations and/or group recognition is something I feel I've grown out of. I have seen no definitive proof that suggests belonging to a group can and does promote some universal good. By no means do I find group memberships mentally satisfying.

In my quest for educational enlightenment I have read far too much in the past week analyzing the benefits of group therapy and interpersonal relationships. So much so that I have become convinced I'm clinically abnormal.

Great psychiatric minds seem to agree based on their literary studies and hypotheses that I need more friends. I need more social interaction to fight off my supposed impending mental deterioration.

Seems there is an accepted sociological theory that claims an important property of an "individual's intimate network" is its size (Galanter, Pattison 47). In more understandable terms, a sane, healthy person should have 20–30 people they closely relate to. According to the same theory, a neurotic person has only 12–15 persons they relate to, some of whom are dead or live far-away.

I'm not hinting I communicate with the dead, nor am I a card carrying member of the Psychic Friends Network, but a lot of my close friends do happen to live outside this zip code. I could see these people once a year and still feel connected. Some of my best relations have been of the long distance nature. Accordingly, my interpersonal skills seem to fall short of an acceptable level of healthy. I belong to no clear cut group, therefore I need help.

This idea of "social connectedness" doesn't really hit home for me. I don't feel the burning need to have 20 or 30 odd people around me at all times sharing my feelings.

Too many people rely on these groups to shape and form opinions for them. Being a member of the Hair Club for Men should not mean you have achieved your life's meaning and only hang with bald men.

Tara Ruelle

Apparently, though, this approach to group identity is the stuff that's supposed to prepare us for this harsh reality we call life — thanks for playing, next caller!

The same psychological lingo I dug this from also goes on to suggest why we need a large social network. These groups are supposedly the tools we have for fighting off mental illness. I always thought that a person who relies on many people for self–recognition must be pretty needy to begin with. Some of the most popular people I know still get pretty miserable. To rely on these social groups for one's mental stability could be pretty risky. Did anyone ever see the movie "Carrie?"

Too many people rely on these groups to shape and form opinions for them. Being a member of the Hair Club for Men should not mean you have achieved your life's meaning and only hang with bald men. College life in particular breeds this group mentality. With so many groups on campus there is no cohesion within the community. I can't imagine these social networks are actually solving anything.

Social groups should not define who people are. When you become a member of a group you immediately become an antagonist to another group. Psychology and sociology aside, the way I see it, opening yourself up to anything and everything might assure some semblance of mental stability. Whether you have 12 or 20 close friends should not influence your decision to wake up every morning. Congeniality awards aside, I manage to roll out of the sack daily.

None of the psychological observations I read support this theory. I guess I shouldn't agree with them anyway. After all, according to these studies I'm the poster child for neurosis.

Tara Ruelle is a Collegian columnist.

Abuse disregarded in case

A frantic, frightened voice identified herself and was scared for her life after an episode where her superstar husband extensively abused her and probably thought nothing of it.

The 911 tapes said it all.

O.J. Simpson was an abuser.

Although the media has covered every possible angle of the O.J. Simpson trial of the century, it is my opinion that the domestic violence angle of this case was almost completely ignored.

Following the unbelievable and shocking not guilty verdict, one of the jurors on the case, Brenda Moran, said the case wasn't about domestic violence, but about murder.

True, Simpson was on trial for the double homicide of two people, but the fact he abused his ex–wife Nicole Brown Simpson for years should not have been so easily pushed to the sidelines as it was.

Moran also called the prosecution's presentation of evidence that Simpson battered his wife "a waste of time."

A waste of time?

Doesn't it seem logical if someone beat up his wife for several years and she, on more than one occasion, called 911 in a panic and was more than fearful for her life, that the defendant would have a motive for murder?

It most certainly does.

It is completely incomprehensible to regard the horrid domestic abuse Nicole Brown Simpson endured as a "waste of time." It is especially upsetting to me, and I'm sure to many others, how a woman juror can disregard the domestic abuse testimony as unimportant. To me, the pattern of abuse explained it all — a definite motive for murder.

This type of outcome and disregard of abuse is so typical.

One woman quoted in an Associated Press story which appeared in the Oct. 5 Collegian, said she could not trust the courts or police to protect her.

The unidentified woman at a shelter in Fall River said, "He said if I ever went back to court, he would kill me, and if he didn't, one of his friends would kill me," she said. "I'm fearful when I'm with him...but I'm more fearful when I'm not with him."

This life–threatening feeling exists and is real for many battered women throughout the country.

Another woman quoted in the Associated Press story, Shannon Booker, served six years in prison for killing her abusive husband. Booker said, "I don't know if he's guilty or not guilty of the murder, but he's guilty of beating on that woman."

Simpson had a history of abusing his wife. In 1989, he pleaded no contest to spousal abuse charges and was allowed to receive counseling over the phone.

Was allowed to receive counseling?

Poor Mr. Simpson. Could his busy, glamorous lifestyle not afford to fit in some abuse counseling? What a joke.

It doesn't matter now.

The Simpson case has already set the precedent that most people don't understand or care about victims of domestic violence. It let women everywhere down when it could have set an example that domestic violence is a serious problem that doesn't deserve to be so easily ignore.

It is completely incomprehensible to regard the horrid domestic abuse Nicole Brown Simpson endured as a "waste of time." It is especially upsetting to me, and I'm sure to many others, how a woman juror can disregard the domestic abuse testimony as unimportant.

Laura Schmidt

As Simpson's two young children grow older, I wonder how they will react when they learn all the facts surrounding the case if they don't already know them. Their father beat up their mother and then was acquitted of her murder.

How can Simpson look into the eyes of his children knowing that he inflicted years of pain on their mother?

I don't know, do you?

Laura Schmidt is a Collegian staff member.

Multicultural Affairs

Wednesday, October 11, 1995

